Dear Members of the Class of 2003:

John Dewey, American philosopher and educator, said in 1897, as part of his Pedagogic Creed, "...education...is a process of living and not a preparation for future living." No group of young adults embodies this statement more than the Class of 2003. For you, the education you acquired at PDS was a process as well as a product. Through service to others in the broader area and in our own Lower School, you lived your value of giving back to the community that enabled you to receive so much.

Through the arts that were brought to you, like the Jules Schnaifer Retrospective and the one-man presentation of Munch,... you saw paradigms against which to benchmark your own accomplishments. Through the arts you created, like the pottery, paintings and photography in our halls and the miraculous work of which you should be proud with no prejudice on our stage, you brought beauty and enjoyment to others by sharing your talents and gifts.

Through athletics, you brought honor to yourselves and the school; not just by winning championships (and you did win championships), but also by demonstrating the power of coming together as a team in pursuit of a common goal.

In academics, you flourished. You excelled at writing. You honed your ability to discuss, debate and persuade others. You applied what you learned about precision in measurement and focus in observation. You read; you computed; you evaluated; you stretched yourselves; you inspired your teachers.

In the school at large, you were large, indeed. In addition to reclaiming for seniors the winning mantle at Halloween Challenge, you produced issues of Spokesman that engaged the thinking of your readers and challenged us to look critically at ourselves. In Community Council, you assessed an enormous range of school matters, from the snack bar to the U.S. schedule. In your other activities, you learned, taught and acted in ways that made you and the school richer for your efforts.

For your presence, PDS is a better place. Through your example, it will continue to learn and grow and improve. What you did during your years at PDS was not practice for living in the future; it was living here and now in a way that was full, productive, energetic and absolutely wonderful for the rest of us to share with you.

Thank you, Class of 2003, for being here and for living your education with us. We will miss you.

Sincerely,
Judy Fox
Head of School

Judith R. Fox
Ross,

It is difficult to find the words to express to you what an impact you have had on the Class of 2003. You are such a central part of our lives at PDS and have been a source of inspiration to us all. The words ‘friend’ and ‘mentor’ don’t even begin to describe what you represent to us as students. In classes, you help us open up and express ourselves. On the stage, you push us as far as we can go, helping us to put ourselves out there, take risks, forcing us to be vulnerable and thus we have discovered much about ourselves. In our time spent with you, we have been able to grow in many ways. Your influence on us will never be forgotten. Thank you for the endless hours you have spent dedicating yourself to this school and us as a class.

Fondly,

The Class of 2003
Being a dean is like being a policeman, a district attorney, a judge, and a secretary. Mr. Quigley has been more like a big brother to the class of 2003. In addition to being able to do the work of six people, Mr. Quigley has a big enough heart for all eighty-eight of us. The door to his office is literally always open, and he has been an answerer of questions, a vent for frustration, and always has a fresh perspective on whatever problem might walk in.

It takes a man with extraordinary courage to approach the Head of School, while wearing a jester hat, and correct her interpretation of the rules of the Halloween Challenge. He used that same courage to give enough rein to our class to let us grow into responsible citizens. In class meeting, he grabs our short attentions with jokes rather than threats. He speaks slowly and purposefully because he thinks a lot.

Mr. Quigley’s colorful personality is represented by the diverse selections of Crayolas which he uses to write things. He painted his office black so that people could chalk their own messages on his walls. It takes a very special person—and a very wise dean—to not be judgmental about people. Mr. Quigley can bring out the best in anybody. We thank him for four years of outstanding leadership.

With Much Love,
The Class of 2003

Maybe some people just aren't meant to be in our lives forever. Maybe some people are just passing through. It's like some people just come through our lives to bring us something: a gift, a blessing, a lesson we need to learn, and that's why they're here... you'll have that gift forever.

There was a small disaster, west of here, minutes ago, I know there was: a pink & gold ribbon blew from a schoolgirl's hair & deep inside a thornbush. A timid half-wild Appaloosa kept its distance on the other side of the planet, slowly licking rainwater from inside a tire. The tractor splayed on its back at the bottom of a mooncrater.

Alas! If only I was there now, I could name that very horse, give it a shard of saltrock. I could easily turn that tractor upright—so small the gravity is there.

But I am here: thorn through my tongue, thorn through my temple, thorn in my thigh dreaming.

"When we honestly ask ourselves which person in our lives mean the most to us, we often find that it is those who, instead of giving advice, solutions, or cures, have chosen rather to share our pain and touch our wounds with a warm and tender hand. The friend who can be silent with us in a moment of despair or confusion, who can stay with us in an hour of grief and bereavement, who can tolerate not knowing, not curing, not healing and face with us the reality of our powerlessness, that is a friend who cares."

- Henri Nouwen

For attractive lips, speak words of kindness.
For lovely eyes, seek out the good in people.
For a slim figure, share your food with the hungry.
For beautiful hair, let a child run her fingers through it once a day.
For praise, walk with the knowledge that you never walk alone.
People, even more than things, have to be restored, renewed, reclaimed and reobserved; never throw out anyone.
Remember, if you ever need a helping hand, you'll find one at the end of each of your arms. As you grow older, you will discover that you have two hands, one for helping yourself, the other for helping others.
The beauty of a woman is not in the clothes she wears, the figure that she carries, or the way she combs her hair. The beauty of a woman must be seen from her eyes, because that is the doorway to her heart, the place where love resides.
The beauty of a woman is not in a facial mode, but the true beauty in a woman is reflected in her soul. It is the caring that she knowingly gives, the passion that she shows.

We the unappeased, the un-accepting continued looking, filling in the silence with our own wishes, fears, and fantasies. Driven forward by the fact that no matter how empty the world seemed, no matter how degraded and used up the world appeared to us, we knew that anything was still possible. And, given the right circumstances, a new world was just as likely as an old one.

For the greater part of seventeen years I have kept to myself. My feelings and thoughts go unshared, banished to the depths of my mind. Nevertheless, I am generally a happy person. I have no reason to be sad. My parents love me and take care of me, and my life has been far from difficult because of their support. But I like being secretive. It is fun to just sit back and observe the world. I’m in no rush to jump in and participate. I’d like to know as much as possible first. I become wiser and stronger as I learn more about the people around me. Of course, I believe the opposite to be true as well— the more people know about me, the weaker I become. I have had this mindset for quite some time. And now, as I say my farewell to all of you and go off to the academy, I think it is time to divulge a little bit about myself. Hence, the story of

Christopher C. Campbell

Welcome to my life! The past is boring and irrelevant. I have lived, and I have learned. So technically the past can be forgotten as long as I implement my new knowledge in the future. This idea is fundamental. On a somewhat separate note, I think I’ll talk about what makes me happy. I am a hopeless romantic. This is by far my biggest weakpoint.

Love stories sometimes make me cry, and I like seeing other people truly contented. If it was possible I would want everyone, everywhere, to be absolutely joyful all the time. But anyway, I tend to cry a lot just because I am happy. The absolute saddest story ever is portrayed in an anime called Neon Genesis Evangelion.

There is this boy, named Shinji, who has had a troubled past. He grew up without his parents, his mother is dead, and he was abandoned by his father, and now, once reunited with his father, he is forced to work for him and save the world. In the process he meets two very different girls, Asuka and Rei. But I don’t want to reveal the plot. Trust me—this is a fantastic story. Just remember:

“God’s in Her Heaven, All’s Right with the World”

This reminds me of a very important aspect of my life. Since a young age I have gone to church. I truly cannot remember a time when I did not attend church. It began with Sunday school, and then junior high, and finally I was confirmed and became a regular member. God has been a big part of my life. There have been times when I was doubtful (or perhaps just lazy), but I am beginning to become firm in my belief for Her. It gives me something to believe in, and it is surprising how much that helps. All it takes is a little Faith.

Now, as I approach the Christmas season, it is important to remember God. I wish this to be the best Christmas ever— I want to show my love for Her and for my family and friends. All I can do is try. But sometimes trying isn’t enough. People want results all the time. Effort is becoming an irrelevant quality. These are a few important qualities:

Commitment. That’s right, the core values of the Navy. I know that I can take the discipline in the armed forces. I know I can take it because I must. It is important to serve— somebody needs to protect everyone else. I would sacrifice my life for the greater good because I know that I would be well taken care of by God. My life is temporary, and I will not fool myself into believing otherwise. Should I be accepted into the armed services, I will likely become a pilot. Since fourth grade I have been interested in aviation. I have always loved the thrill of Flying.

Just talking about it makes me smile. I can barely picture myself all dressed up in a flight suit with that crazy helmet sitting in the front seat of a huge sixty-foot long jet tied up to the bow of a ship. Then, the steam shoots out the side of the pressure control valve and the catapult launches me off the front of the giant, swaying deck. What a thrill. But honestly, I am a bad writer, so it probably doesn’t sound really cool here anyway. I have a few more interesting passions. One of them I have already mentioned... anime. This is a relatively new hobby of mine, but I am already completely entranced by it. I have only seen two complete series, Evangelion (mentioned earlier) and, perhaps the best story ever, Love Hina.

What a fantastic experience. It was a pleasure to watch from beginning to end, and I will always treasure some of the moments in the Christmas movie. Oddly, I have also grown fond of the Japanese pop music that accompanies the series. Even though I understand almost no Japanese, the tunes and beats are strangely addicting. What is the greatest song? In my opinion it would have to be Koi no Tenshi Majorite.

Fun to listen to. So anyway, that is just a small piece of my life. But now I am running out of things to say. Really don’t feel like telling you about my thought process or my deepest, darkest secrets. I have had a crush on somebody since seventh grade. I am playing with the idea of putting her name in here, but I don’t know if I should do it. I certainly won’t put it in bold (actually, I will lol). So now, moving on to the final part of my discourse. I’d like to say Thank You.

Yes, there are many people to thank. First of all, my parents deserve the biggest thanks. They have always been there for me. Furthermore, I have to thank all of my teachers. Especially Mrs. Latham. Also, thank you to my classmates, Bianca, Chad, Christopher, Colin, Erich to name a few. Notice the order, alphabetical (to be impartial). As Chad would say, they are all heroes. Maybe I can be one too.

"Why am I doing this?" I asked myself, as I gripped my prepared speech like a security blanket and forced my gaze up towards the audience. As I tried to speak, I discovered to my dismay that my tongue had turned into glue. Somewhere in the back of the crowded room, a chair dragged on the carpeting, followed by a heavy double cough. It's nothing personal, I reminded myself, but somehow I couldn't shake the idea that this person's bronchitis was a calculated insult. As my gaze traveled across the room, a classmate leaned into his neighbor's ear, and both of their faces contorted in expressions of fiendish merriment. Were they mocking me or, just as bad, chuckling over that new commercial for nasal hair remover? Surely even Mi|*^kUee th ise two jokers, I was finished.

As I delivered the final line of my speech, I realized that I imagined that my speech would be greeted by total silence, at best. But to my surprise, the audience clapped. Afterwards, not just my friends, but complete strangers walked up and congratulated me. "Great speech." "It took guts to do that, man." Of course I felt a twinge of disappointment when I didn't win. But it hadn't been nearly as bad as I had feared. And so, I concluded that running for class president in my first month of high school had been a good idea. After all, my friends had not tried to win the election. Rather, I simply wanted to challenge myself and face my fears.

Public speaking had always been a煎痛事 for me. Throughout middle school, every time I was forced (after much foot-dragging) to read a report in front of the class, I would read my essay or report in a high-speed mumble, hoping to get it over with. My father once joked that I looked as though I was auditioning for Rainman. However, during my 8th grade year, my father took me to see "Ally McBeal." At that moment, I decided that I didn't want to be just another face in the audience, and resolved to confront and conquer my fear of public speaking. For the next three years, I embarked on a masochistic journey from stage to stage, seizing every opportunity to address my peers. I became a regular fixture at lunch meetings of the Debate Club. In my sophomore year, I stood again before the class to run for office. As a junior, I chose to take a course in Speech & Debate, and when my proposal for our class entry in the Halloween Challenge competition came under fire, I successfully defended it with another speech before my classmates.

My nervousness never vanished completely, but with each address I became more comfortable letting go of my security blanket, and the coating of glue on my tongue began to thin. I still struggled with delivery, but my pacing and enunciation gradually improved with experience. Just a few months ago, I decided to put myself to a bigger test, standing before the entire school to run for Community Council. I was speaking second out of three, and the first guy was good. He was confident, poised. His cadence was conversational, and his articulation teutonically clear. While I waited I was thinking, "It still isn't too late to back out." But I didn't. Although I lost, I was pleased with my performance, and I felt triumphant that I had done something that I would have found unimaginably horrifying only a few years past.

Public speaking is still difficult for me, but I continue to refine my skills. Maybe I will never be a Cicero or a Bill Clinton, but at least I'm no longer a Rainman.

Get wisdom, get understanding: forget it not; neither decline from the words of my mouth. Forsake her not, and she shall preserve thee: love her, and she shall keep thee. Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding. Exalt her, and she shall promote thee: she shall bring thee to honour, when thou dost embrace her. She shall give to thine head an ornament of grace: a crown of glory shall she deliver to thee. Hear, O my son, and receive my sayings; and the years of thy life shall be many. I have taught thee in the way of wisdom; I have led thee in right paths. When thou goest, thy steps shall not be straitened; and when thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble. Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go: keep her; for she is thy life.

TO YASH:

BE A FLAME
...OR BE A SPARK
BE A CANDLE IN THE DARK
BE A SUNBEAM OR A STAR
BE THE SHINING LIGHT YOU ARE

Twenty years from now you will be more disappointed by the things that you didn’t do than by the ones you did do. So throw off the bowlines. Sail away from the safe harbor. Catch the trade winds in your sails. Explore. Dream. Discover.

GREAT GRATULATIONS JOHN!

We love you.
Mom, Dad, Matt, Brendan & Plugs

Russell-
We love you and we are so proud of you. Enjoy your accomplishments and strive for more.
Happiness always!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Becca and Joe

Clint-
Congratulations! We are so proud of you. Wherever life’s adventures take you we’ll be here to cheer you on. We love you very much!

Mom, Dad, Bryce, Cora & Grace
Dear Amy,

You bring a smile to everyone you touch, especially us. God has given you such a thirst for life. Continue to live your dreams to the fullest. Remember: Shoot for the moon! The worst that will happen is that you'll fall amongst the stars.

How quickly yesterday became today in your life. Take our love and pride with you through all you tomorrow's. Always know that when you believe in yourself, you have the power to control your life. There's no limit to what you can do! We are proud of you and all that you have accomplished. You are ready to create more magical moments in college and beyond. We may not always be at your side but we will always be in your heart. Your roots are sturdy so spread your wings. For all your past accomplishments and future successes,

"Baby, take a bow!"

Love Always,
Mom & Dad

To our little sister,
We will always be there for you. Congratulations and good luck in next year. Keep away from those college boys!

-Stephen & Joey

Congratulations to the Class of '03
Dear Blair,

CONGRATULATIONS!

We are all so proud of you and so happy to see this day come.

CONGRATULATIONS JAMIE!

WE LOVE YOU AND ARE VERY PROUD OF YOUR ACCOMPLISHMENTS.

Mom, Dad, Jane & Sarah

GOOD LUCK TO THE CLASS OF 2003!
These eighteen years have seen wonderful changes: a beautiful baby is now a beautiful woman -- who has distinguished herself as a fine scholar, athlete, artist, responsible leader, and caring friend. Congratulations on your hard work and stellar accomplishments. Constant for all these years—and for all the years to come—is my love for the spirit that is you.
You’ve come a long way, Eli!

The mornings when I walked with you to Miss Miller’s kindergarten class seem like yesterday. PDS has been a long chapter in your life filled with close friendships and inspiring teachers. I wondered what you would discover, become passionate about, during this time. You’ve discovered so many things, some surprising (but maybe not, if you consider the genes)—photography, hip-hop, volleyball, CARS!

Now you are ready to move on to new places and new adventures. I am so proud of who you are and what you’ve done. Your father would be so proud, too. He would be beaming.

Congratulations, sweetheart. Enjoy the moment. Life is a great adventure that is really just beginning. I’m proud and thrilled to share it with you. You make life a joy!

I love you.

Mom

Congratulations to the Class of 2003!

We are proud of you Ben!

Dear Eli,

Congratulations on your graduation from Princeton Day School.

We are very proud of your many accomplishments and wish you much excitement and joy in your future accomplishments.

Love,
Grammy and Bompa

Dear Jonathan,

We are so proud of you and your diligence and hard work. Always remember, “The early bird may get the worm, but the second mouse always gets the cheese!” (Think about it some more :-D)

Congratulations Class of 2003!

All of our love and respect.
Doomeems, Big Daddy P, & Doobielinda
Congratulations Darren!

We wish you health, happiness and success in all of your endeavors.

We love you very much.

Mom, Dad & Lauren

Three cheers for Chad and the Class of 2003!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Kyle & Kenzie

New Friends and Old Friends

Make new friends, but keep the old;
Those are silver, these are gold.
New-made friendships, like new wine,
Age will mellow and refine.
Friendships that have stood the test--
Time and change--are surely best;
Brow may wrinkle, hair grow gray;
Friendship never knows decay.
For 'mid old friends, tried and true,
Once more we our youth renew,
But old friends, alas! may die;
New friends must place supply.
Cherish friendship in your breast--
New is good, but old is best;
Make new friends, but keep the old;
Those are silver; these are gold.

Congratulations

Congratulations

May kindness continue as the hallmark of your days, and may loving kindness be your life's companion.

James,

You’ve always been a great son and a good-hearted person. We are very proud of the MAN you’ve become and of all your accomplishments. May college be as good to you as your years at PDS.

The Family
Yesterday the child came out to wonder...

And the seasons, they go round and round...

There'll be new dreams, maybe better dreams and plenty
Before the last revolving year is through.

-Joni Mitchell

Long have you timidly waded, holding a plank by the shore,
Now I will you to be a bold swimmer,
To jump off in the midst of the sea, and rise again and nod to me and shout, and laughingly dash with your hair.

- Walt Whitman

Sean, you are a bountiful accumulation of grace, humor and constant love
A true and generous friend
Go wherever your dreams and gifts draw you.

Jessica,

Congratulations!!! You have made us so proud and filled our lives with love. You make us feel like we are walking on sunshine.

Love, Mom, Dad, Nicole and Matt
Dear Stephen,
I hope I grow up to be just as smart, kind, fun and silly as you are, except maybe with different hair. I’m glad you’re my godfather. I’ll always look up to you, even when you’re wearing your “funky fresh” hat.
Love always,
Julianna

Dear Kristin,

Our warmest congratulations on reaching this milestone in your life and on always striving for excellence. We're so proud of all you've accomplished, but Kristin, we're most proud of the unique and wonderful person you are.

As you leave the security of youth and move into the adult world, we're confident you'll succeed in whatever you choose to do. Your dedication and caring will always serve you well.

We love you, Kristin, 'forever plus a day'.

GranPa and GranPat Apple

Dear Al:

I am who I am today, in large part, because of you. From the moment I first set eyes on you when you arrived at Kennedy Airport from Korea, I knew that my life would never be the same. My heart was filled with such pride and love, much as it is now as you graduate from PDS. You have had such a profound effect on my life. Your kindness has touched the lives of many, but most of all, mine. You have made my life complete. Congratulations on yet another accomplishment—next stop, Carnegie Hall!

Love always,
Momma

You better not forget us next year—We'll be waiting at the door with our leashes already on!

Love,
Sadie Mae, Maggie, Kyla and Matt (well, Sadie and Maggie will, any way. Matt just wanted to say, “Congratulations, little sister”)

Congratulations Pupper!

Go get ‘em!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Patch & G

LITTLE DIVA—You are surely on the road to success. We’re so proud of all that you are!

Love,
Mom, Grammy, Grampy, Aunt Elyse, Uncle Len, Uncle David, Sammy & Annie

Congratulations to the Class of 2003
Alex (aka, Al, Duke Frederick, Duke Senior, Mr. Kessel, Mr. Collins, Sy Benson, Commissioner O'Brien), we all wish you the best of everything always. Joy and happiness to you from:
