Is Edison's Patent Rejected.

A Washington dispatch says: "It is reported in certain quarters that Edison's patent for a patent upon a divisible electric light has been rejected by the Ex aminer of the Patent Office. The ground upon which a patent is denied is that Ed ison's invention is an infringement upon an invention for a divisible light made by John W. Stearns of Connecticut. Ste arns filed a caveat in 1845, which expired at the end of a year, and subse quently obtained a patent in England.

He does not appear to have completed his temporary derangement of mind. Mr. Yost was found by his wife near his residence found lying on the ground, with a razor in his hand, and a pool of blood around him. He was taken to the village of South Branch, where he died on Friday morning last. His wife is now in a state of grief, and is unable to leave her home.

His death is a great loss to the community in which he lived, and was a depression to the issue of the English pa was well enough for a few centuries, but it is not so now. The custom has been
