We are informed that a patent has been granted to our townsman, Patrick Clark, Esq., for an improvement in filters similar to the one built by him for our Water Works about sixteen months ago, and that during that time he has furnished the city with unobjectionable water. The improvement being fundamental is considered valuable by those who are competent judges.

Howard's Grocery Store was broken into by thieves on Monday night and about ten dollars in money stolen. The small change in the store was as usual placed in a box and left every day. The thieves found and appropriated. Mr.

Howard's desk was broken open but its contents were not disturbed. The thieves seem to have been satisfied with getting the money or else were frightened away before they could accomplish anything more.

A quarterly meeting of the Sunday School by Rev. B. O. Parvin, was in his best style. A beautiful offering of the school remarks. The singing by the school was ROBERT ON HIM.—The headships in-separably connected with being a Democrat in a Republican family are being experienced by a young Plainfield gentleman.

He was away on a little vacation when the election took place, and returned home to day to find his room completely draped in mourning—craps on the furniture, craps on the walls, craps on his pet footstool, and his favorite pipe, craps around his photograph of the superb, craps everywhere. He will begin at once the work of covering his mother and sisters to the principles of Democracy.—Plainfield Bulletin.

THE TENNESSEE JUDICIAL SHIRERS will gladly. Many of their songs abound in pathos, others are cheerful and some are absolutely thrilling. It is very rarely that such genuine melody of voice and such masterly of the sweet harmonies of music

INJURED BY A FALL.—Alex. Fyffe was seriously injured by a fall at the Park house, on Monday evening last. The accident occurred in this way: During the illumination in honor of the Republican parade one of the lanterns attached to the flag-staff caught fire and fell to the ground, in the hurry to prevent the roof from catching fire the ladder which was brought was not securely and Alex. mounted it and slipped and fell, throwing him to the sidewalk beneath. He struck on his back and was for a moment unconscious. Medical assistance was called in, and an examination made, when it was ascertained that no bones were broken and it is feared he received serious in-

It was Tuesday—Hamm.—On Friday at Chambers Hotel, armed with sticks, yew-tree, and other weapons, and were seen to be engaged in a riotous and disorderly conduct. A constable, who was on duty at the time, endeavored to disperse them, but standard silver dollars were shipped from the different branches of the United States mint and put into circulation; $60,000 of this

THE MICE FOR THE DEMOCRATS.—Benjamin F. Butler and Colonel Ingersoll met on the train to Washington Wednesday evening. In reply to Colonel Ingersoll's greeting, "How do you feel tonight?" Butler said, "Oh, pretty well." "Why," said Colonel Ingersoll, "I surprised you. I supposed you must be feeling very sick over Garfield's election."

"I am well," Butler replied. "But "I do feel badly enough," and then added,

"You and Beecher did it, Colonel."

"Well to be sure," said Ingersoll, "but could you expect to win with the Lord and the Devil both against you?"

ABOUT THE WORLD.—Mr. Cyrus W.

Field began on Wednesday of last week at 4.30 a. m., from New York, over the Pennsylvania railroad his projected tour around the world. His package was taken on the train to Washington which leaves

San Francisco on the 18th inst. He had ordered a Christmas dinner at his hotel and expects to make New York calls at Hong Kong, Washington's birthday he hopes to spend in California. Mr. Field remained in the city since the recent fire will deliver in his honor merely to cast his vote for friend, General Arthur, and he expects to return to his Grammar Park home just upon the eve of the next Presidential election.

SPEECH RESTORED.—The Bellevue Independent relates the following singular incident:

Some time since a man named James Palmer, a resident of Oxford, Penn., while making his usual rounds of visiting, was aware of the fact that his power of speech was gone. He remained in this condition for a considerable period. The attention of the leading physicians was called to his case, but they were unable to render any benefit. He was, however, restored to his former condition by the use of a certain remedy. He had given up all hopes of ever being able to again express himself orally, and friends too felt that he was doomed to be through the world speechless. But a brighter day was destined to dawn on our friend. A few nights ago he had a peculiar dream. It appeared to him that he could talk, and holding a conversation with his wife, telling her of his restoration to speech and his joy growing out of it.

So rejoiced was he that he awoke, and found that his dream was literally fulfilled. He could talk as fluently as ever and has since retained the power of speech.
