GET TO THE BOTTOM OF THINGS. - As the boy begins, so the man will end. The lad who speaks with affectation and mimics foreign tongues that he does not understand at school, will be a weak chromo in character all his life; the boy who cheats his teachers into thinking him devout at chapel, will be the man who will make religion a trade, and bring Christianity into contempt; and the boy who with the highest average by stealing his examination papers will figure some day as a tricky politician. CHILDIAN DIBRESPECT .-- Parents cer-CHILDISH DISHESPECT.—PArents certainly should treat their children with respect. Not as though the children were their superiors, but as though they had the dry post-paid; SUBLINGTON, Tr. their superiors, but as though they had rights which all were bound to respect, and feelings which the parents should regard, reasonable consideration. Children so treated will not be tempted to serious impudence. I do not say that they will never speak words that sound saucy. The only way to prevent this is to bring them up in a state of constant fear, so that they will never speak at all except in well-considered words. If children feel free and easy and confidential with their parents, they will be apt to address them sometimes very much as they do their playmates of their own age, and sometimes this will seem distespectful behavior, but if we send them to school, or allow them to play with their little neighbors, they will probably pick up expressions which we cannot admire, and use them in the family. Few children of natural independence or spontaneity have never said "I wont" to their parents. But often this means nothing more than an expression of preference-or too vehement expression, which should certainly be modified. But the child expresses the momentary feeling, and immediately repents, and intends no disobedience.

A TRUE HOME.-The following beautiful gem is floating around the press as a

The most perfect home I ever saw was a little home into the sweet incense of whose altar fires went no costly things. A thousand dollars a year served as a living for father, mother, and three children. But the mother was the creator of the home. Her relations with her children were the most beautiful I have ever seen. Even the dull and common place man was lifted up and enabled to work for souls by the atmosphere which this woman created. Every intimate of her house involuntarily looked into her face for the key-note of the day, and it always rang clear. From the rosebud or clover-leaf, which in spite of her hard housework she always found time to put beside our plates at breakfast, down to the story she had on hand to be read in the evening, there was no interruption of her influence. She has been, and always will be, my ideal of a wife, mother and home maker. If to her quick brain, loving heart and exquisite face had been added the appliances of wealth and the enlargement of wide culture, hers would have been the ideal of a home. As it was, it was

2. It would lessen the force of the temp-tations which often lead men to barter honor and honesty for display. 8. If there were less style in dress at | church, people in moderate circumstances | would be more inclined to attend. 4. Universal moderation in dress at church would improve the worship by the removal of many wandering thoughts. 5. It would enable all classes of people to attend church better in unfavorable weather. 6. It would lessen on the part of the rich the temptation to vanity, 7. It would lessen on the part of the poor the temptations to be envious and malicious.

8. It would save valuable time on the Lord's day. 9. It would relieve our means of a serious pressure, and thus enable us to do more for good enterprises.
