At issue is not the giving of our canal and some to the likes of Silven Indians, another likes. At issue is constantly of the equil-specified and our avereign territary to a printic of Mannadity, Caner Torrigs, who selared power in 1914 by a milliony coup; who was never elected to anything; who there out the Panemasian constitution; who has the worst recard on human rights is all of Central America; whose heather is under indicatent in New York for stronging star-cetics into our country, and whose regime encourages the transit of marcotics through Panema is large quantities.

quantities. Third, there is no reason to impuge the morality of the 1903 treaty, under which Panama "granted" us the Canal Zone (the word "grant" being used 14 times in the sent). It was a very one-aided treaty, in favor of Panama. What country ever got so much out of a worth-less piece of real estate as Panama did out of what deal?

The shis "Gold pro 900," Panama got far more "quid" than we did "quo." What did the United States get? A little piece of land 10 miles wide by 50 miles long, resteried to recently of the ord weight blacks

A US guarantee of their independence from Colum-bia which in 50 successful revolus they had been unable to achieve for themselves. 2. A US promise to build our canal across Panama -motent of Nicarague, where it would have been closer instead of Nicaragae, where it would have here closer to the United States and less costly to construct.
3. More each then the US has paid for any lead in its entire history. Originally $10 million in each and subsequently a total of $70 million in cash.
4. A magnificent clean-up job. In 1903, Panama was one of the most disease-up job. In 1903, Panama was one of the most disease-ridden arous in the world. It took US similation and health experts two years to vipe out malaria, yellow fever and the rates which carried the bahouic plague and to make Panama a healthful place.
5. An enormous US investment is dollars and facilities, by virtue of which Panama enjoys the highest standard of living in Central America. Last year, aconomic benefits flowing into Panama touched $243 million. Fourth, our control of the canal and zone in Panama have no taint of colonialism. There is nothing "immoral" about our presence there. We have not imposed American culture on the people of Panama, is no way to we exploit Culture on the people of Pinama, in no way do we exploit Panama or deplete its natural resources. On the con-trary, we constantly contribute to the economy of a nation now almost bankrupted by its Marxist dictator. Fifth, American taxpayers have poured $7 billion into our causal and zone in Panama. For an appearement-prone President, backed by a coterie of radical legisla-tors and interviewal backed by a coterie of radical legislators and international banking interests, without consent of the House or a referendant to the voters to give them away would be morally wrong -- imm;ral. Tuition help needed

to increased costs

Nearly a century ago the English philosopher Ben-jamin Disraeli said, "upon the education of the people of this country, the fate of this country depends." What was true in England then is most certainly true in our nation today. For millions of Americans, a ticket away from despair and poverty and the chance for a hatter lifestyle go hand in hand with a solid education. Yet, at today's prices, the cost of education, especially a college education, is growing beyond the reach of too many American families. Sending a non or doughter to the university, poses an enormous burden on anyone who is neither rich nor eligible for special financial assiss-ance. Those in the midile-income bracket have to sac-

One factor consumers have been giving increasing weight to in their car-buying decisions is gas milenge. Radings of gas milenge have been used by car manufac-merers in promoting their products as "economical" new cars -- this is a sizable number of consumers --report me mileage may are actually actuating in main-every-day driving is five or more milespergation less every-any arriving is nive or more milesper gallon less than the EPA ratings. Car buyers should be aware the EPA ratings are based on laboratory type of tests which merely simulate actual driving conditions. The disclaimer that is included in most car advertising warns, "actual mileage may vary." The reson actual mileage can be less than official ratings is because of the wide difference in environ-mental factors drivers and their cars face on the roud. A and example is temperature. Tests of ras mileage con influence of the set which merely simulate actual driving conditions. The disclaimer that is included in most car advertising warms, "actual mileage may vary."

The stop-and-go city traffic which is simulated in one EPA test is the hardest on gas mileage. The EPA test simulates a trip of 7.5 miles, if you must make abort trips or run errands, it is best to combine the trips, so you travel more than five miles on any one trip. A: that time, I warned that if of the Sen Conference kept hagging over a proposed international agreement on ocean mining, the US might "go it alone" in the recovery of valuable sea-bed Congress has acted exactly the way I had predicted. Three hills have been introduced in Congress that would authorize unilateral occan-bed mining by US superprises, and a total of three Congressional commit-we have worked on the measure. The Congressional action provides a blunt message to the Law of the Sea Conference: The US is growing watry of prolonged international stalemate in this important insue. It is a message the Law of the Sea conference would be wise to bear in mind when they reconvene in Geneva next month.-Third Warld members of the conference, who have have only themselves to blame if they ignore Congres-sional southment and later find their countries side-graphed in exploitation of a vast untapped source of minteral weaks. The inglolative thrust inward US development of scata-hed mining has my full support. But I am con-cerned about a Congressional proposal that financial guarantees he provided to stimulate private ventures in accas-hod mining.

Financial risks have always been accepted in private enterprise. The potentially rich returns of ocean mining capit to be always incentive for private development. Under a hill approved by the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Com/nitee, a company moving into ocean-bed mining outside territorial waters could collect up to $300 million in compensation from public finds, if a subsequent international agreement wiped out that company's investment. This is a matter in which I agree with former

This is a matter is which I agree with former Secretary of State Elliot Richardson, who now represents the US at aesulons of the Law of the Sea Conference. In recent Congressional testimony, Mr. Richardson criticized the proposed guarantees as "writing a blank" check" for mining companies. Another legislative approach has been taken by the House Interior Committee, which recently approved a version of the bill sanctioning ocean-bed mining har without the provision providing financial guarantees. The issue is important: mineral wealth valued at billions and possibly trillions of dollars is at state. Exploration: has shown there are billions of tons of mineral memories are for greater than those available from land-hased deposits. As average nodule is 24.2% manganese, 14% iron, 1% nickel, .5% copper and .35% cohalt. Manganese is used in steel production, nickel as an alloy in stainless steel and other metals, cohalt as an alloy and copper in great quantities in electrical alloy in stainless steel and other metals, coholt as an alloy and copper in great quantities in electrical applications, industrial machinery and construction. Several companies are ready to start mining --holding back, they say, only because of uncertainty over the outcome of talks by the Law of the Sea Con-ference. With the United States importing 100% of its coholt and 90% of its manganese, the companies are convinced ocean-bed mining would be competitive with land-housed production. Six years have passed since the Law of the Sea Con-ference hegan talking about an ocean-bed mining arranference began talking about an ocean-bed mining agree-ment, but it appears to be no closer now than it was at the start. With federal legislation providing ground rules for ocean-bed mining by US enterprises, there would be powerful pressure on developing nations hi reach an international pact. er The United States benefited considerably by establish-a 200 mile fishing runs.
