Life in Seviet Union

By E. Sidman Wachter We all know people who have been on conducted tours of the Soviet Union and come back garging with gratification at having "soon it all for themselves." How deluded can one he? Rep. John Wydler of New York makes it alsogethe legislator must lead in Communist countries. Rep. Wydler was in Russia daring the congressional recess to meet in Moscow with officials of the Soviet State Committee on Atomic Energy. On his arrival in the Russian capital, American officials handed him a list of security suggestions, which tells a lot about life in the Communist paradise:

-- All telephone calls are monitored by the Soviets. -- Assume all rooms have electronic envestropping equipment, and all conversations will be monitored. -- Assume all drivers understand English and are required to report on all conversations required to report on all conversations. -- Assume any huggage or briefcases in your rooms will be searched while you are absent. -- Assume all trach thrown in wastebaskets will be examined. --Do not leave any sensitive personal or official papers in non-secure rooms. Please work on all classified material in controlled rooms. Remember, hotel rooms and other non-controlled rooms are not secure for sensitive conversations or discussions. :-- If you take classified material to meetings, insure it is under American control at all times. --One-time typewriter ribbons, carbon paper and typing back-up sheets should be destroyed as classified -- Please report any unusual incidents, problems, --Please report any unusual incidents, problems, provocations or harassment to the Embassy Security Officer, Embassy No. 216. The representative reports he never saw a Soviet citizen smile all the time he was in Moscow. He assumes this to be because life in the Soviet Union is assumes this to be because the in the sovier Union is a never-ending struggle for existence. Except for the 5% of the population belonging to the Communist Party, the public's lives are absolutely controlled by the dictatorship. The average person cannot belp feeling cowed and depressed, when he lives in perpetual need of placating his own government. The government is, of course, the absolute masses absolute master. The American lawmaker suggests the best possible civics course for American youngsters of high school age would be to have them spend just 24 hours in When the Wydlers returned to their hotel room one day, Mrs. Wydler observed the draperies were removed from the window, and there was no shade to cover it. Rep. Wydler shouted in the direction of the mearest lamp, "Bring back the drapes right away." They did.

Railroad track upgrading is essential for U.S.

Railroad track improvements scheduled along Con-rail's former Central Railroad of New Jersey mainline rail's former Central Rairfold of New Seriecy namine in Union County will help protect the area against a rash of derailments being experienced nation-wide. Sut even with safer tracks, the danger of railroad accidents will persist. Not until the federal government strengthens railroad safety and provides effective en-forcement of safety standards will any reversal of the rorcement of safety standards will any reversal of the present trend be assured. The mounting threat of derailments has been traced by the United States Dept. of Transportation both to faulty railroad tracks and improperly maintained rolling stock --- particularly in freight operations. Years of neglect stemming from financial difficulties caused railroads to fall into disrepair. As a result, rail-road accidents now occur at the startling rate of more than 10 000 a war. With more embosive and partic chemroad accidents now occur at the starting rate of more than 10,000 a year. With more explosive and toxic chem-icals being transported than ever before, the menace of derailments has become frighteningly severe. Fifteen persons were killed in a recent explosion caused by liquid propane leaking from a derailed tank car in Tennessee. Two days later, eight persons died when chlorine gas escaped from a damaged tank car in a de-railment in Florida. Questions are being raised about the federal role in railroad safety. In particular, it is being asted whether Congress, with its responsibility for interstate trans-portation and its leavy subsidization of Conrail and Amtrak, is doing enough to make railroad travel safer. The answer, in brief, is that a great deal has been t unless the FRA backs up this order with firm and early deadlines for the work to be completed, it will be many years -- and many more deaths -- before the rail

The manner in which railroad safety is shunted aside can be judged by the sequel to a Dept. of Transportation order in July, 1974, that all newly manufactured railrowith the sequence of the seque jumbo tank cars must be equipped with half inch thick "head shields" -- similar to auto bumpers -- to protect the tank cars from end punctures. As part of the new rule, tankers built before May, 1973, had to be retro-fitted with the shields by Jan. 1, 1973.

By the time the deadline expired, not a single jumbo tank car had been fitted with the safety shield. Instead, some additional safety eq. present was ordered -- and the deadline for retrofitting was put off until the end of 1961. In other areas, too, there has been evidence of lagging enforcement and taxly rule making. Although the railroad safety law was passed in 1970, the FRA's rules defining how it would carry out its responsibilities were not insued until October, 1972. Rules enabling states to participate in enforcement and inspection activities did not go into effort until Decom-ber, 1973. Freight car standards were not instituted until November, 1973, and personnel safety rules still have not been insued.

November, 1973, and personnel sheety rules shin have not been insued. O The FRA's own safety plan drafted last year is still not available (5 the public. To their credit, railroads account for fewer than 9% of all accidents involving hazardous materials, while carrying more than 40% of these materials. But that 9% is too high, particularly when the potential for deva-stations in a heavily populated when area is considered. Safer tracks, safer rolling stock and firmer enforce-ment of asferty standards must be considered essential ment of safety standards must be considered essential ingredients of a modern railroad system.

'Welk-in-end-vote' hill is fodder for corruption

Our democratic electoral process has come a long way since the days when graveyards and Tammany Hall taverns regularly turned out record numbers of voters on Election Dev Since those times of easy voting fraud, both state and national laws have been enacted in an effort to "purify" the election process by assuring only citizens qualified on the basis of age and minimum residency requirements can participate in the selection of their public officials. These laws also serve to prohibit those with criminal

When instant voter registration was adopted in Wis-consin, one college fraternity required each new pledge to vote 10 times without getting caught. All pledges met the challence casily the challenge easily. In addition to inviting undecked voting corruption, the proposed instant registration law would create an ad-ministrative nightmare for counties and municipalities. Additional funds and personnel would be required to process the delage of voters who would wait until Elec-tion Day to register. A similar Ohio law, which was repealed by 700,000 votes last November, carried an repealed by 700,000 votes that invovements, cannot dressing. fruit and home appropriation of $2.3 million. Why should we spend precious tax dollars simply to make it easier for unscrupulous power-brokers to manipulate elections? Estimates of fraud where instant registration has been tried suggest that nerly 50% of all Election Day registrations are improper.

Under our present system, citizens may register cither in person or by posscard 30 days before an elec-tion. The 30-day period allows election board officials MONDAY Luncheon No. 1: Grilled cheese stanwich, mashed potime to check if the would-be voter has been convicted of a crime, and time to verify the potential voter's ad-dress and signature. dress and signature. The main complaint with the present law is many qualified voters miss an opportunity to cast a ballot because of their failure to register before the deadline. This problem is overcome in many localities with news-psper, radio and television advertising at a fraction of the cast of "instant" mada station This problem is overcome in many localities with news-psizer, radio and television advertising at a fraction of the cost of "instant" registration. Passage of Senate Bill No. 276 would make voting more convenient by sacrificing electoral integrity. Since voting is a responsibility as well as a right, the concern-ed citizen must assume responsibility for proper regis-tration. It is especially important, in a time when mistrust of public officials is at an all-time high, that our election procedures truly reflect the will of the people. For this

PASTA WITH OIL AND GARLIC DRESSING FOR OLD HOUSE LOVERS ... Mr. and Mrs. Bruce C. FOR OLD HOUSE LOVERS... MIT and mits brace of Bauer, Rahway residents, recently purchased this older three-family home at 694 Hamilton St., Rahway. Mr. and Mrs. Bauer will be working together to renovate the building themselves. A city Realtor firm, Markey Realty Associates, 208 Central Ave., handled the sale.

Let the oil cool before adding water. Hot oil and water do not mix; they exploite. The first time I did his, I added the water directly to the hot oil. It ex-lated, and I wore the pock marks on my arms for water. This recipe also calls for pasts water. Take dt the one eighth cup from the water the pasts is ecking in before draming. Six garite cloves, chopped fine. One quarter of a cup of oil. One eighth of a cup of pasts water. Salt and payter. One tablespices of chopped paraley. Place oil and garite in pot and, over medium heat, rown garite but do not here. Add half a tablespicon of thopped paraley. Remove from heat and water and add sectore adding pasts water. Return to heat and add sectore adding pasts water. Return to heat and add sectore adding pasts water. Return to heat and add sectores passe, place in scop-type dish and pour sauce on mp. Add more popper grinds and sail to taste. Serves on matched for more. If. Rome will be glied to answer questions regarding table rucipes, coulding, the book or the column for reflexs to write to P.O. It was one of the wisest moves our secred honor" little did Richard Stockton of Princetom realize before the Revolutios ended he would lose his life and much of his fortune. Stockton's family des were formerly set in England, where his clan was weakthy and well-edu-cated. They were a part of the inner councils respon-sible directly to King George III. By all logic, he should have been a Tory. Perhaps the rebellion in the Princetonian's heart took root at the College of New Jerney in Newark, where he graduated in 1746 as a member of the first class.
