By Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr. After more than a decade of anti-discrimination intograms designed to undo the affects of part imagistics in employment practices and callege adminations pullicies, new questions have arisen about the best way to arbieve "affirmative action" goals.

The United States Supreme Court, in what has been a controversald and important civil rights case, recently decided alphosph race can and should be a consideration in college adminisions policies, strict racial quotes may not be enforced.

The decision was made after Alian Bakke, twice desired admission to a California medical school, charged he was discriminated against by the university's minority quota system. The Supreme Court agreed.

Rigid formulas, the court axid, only foster a kind of "reverse discrimination," and although affirmative action is a commendable goal, equal treatment for women and minorities distald not be obtained at the expense of others.

The Bakke decision was widnly interpreted as a favorable vertict for affirmative action programs — and rightly no. It is a fresh recognition of the fact aimple formulas will not work with a lumina factor. You cannot play people into a flat quota system and expect to arrive at a fair solution.

But the Supreme Court, justices and women without instead.

How do we promote minorities and women without suppling on the "white majority's goes?" What constitutes "an effort in good faigh" to hire or accept minorities?

minerities?

The certainty is the challenge the court set out for hot legislators and the public.

In Congress two Mills were receasily approved which follow in this broad and store equitable spirit of anti-discrimination.

President Jimmy Carter signed into law a hill which I sponsored to raise the satisfactory retirement age to 70. This is her a first step in combeting discrimination against the section's working elderly and may lead to the eventual abolishment of sansfatory retirement, ages altopether. Thanks to the self-glassed stribules reflected by this Mill, working men and women will assender be exceeded by this Mill, working men and women will assender be exceeded by this hill, working men and women will assender be exceeded by this hill, stribulation reflected to ensure wherevercomprehensive health or disability programs are available to employer, pregnancy in not singled out for exclusion from coverage.

In many party of the country, is in continue the exceeding the six of each little party would not be allowed to draw distinctions between local to the allowed to draw distinctions between pregnancy disability and other medical disabilities for the purposes of job stance.

These are but two examples of the forms discrimination can take, but wherever there is an opportunity for discrimination.

The Supreme Court resisted these making the discisions — schools, husinessees and employers — to blind themselves to irrelevant considerations and security and truly equal treatment for all in the years to come.

The simplicatic quots system was considerations and security and truly equal treatment for all in the years to come.

It helieve the Supreme Court decision will guide us toward truly equal treatment for all in the years to come.

Public confidence in the ability of Congress to deal with our critical energy problems is being undersected by the stalemate on energy policy legislation which has existed since last November.

As a result, I, along with a number of other annature from both publical parties, an meking an effect to attimulate new movement on the energy policy legislation.

We are urging a large number of senators to sign a latter we have disclad to San, Russall Long, chairman of the Sanste Patente Committee and one of the key Sanste conference on the energy legislation.

Our latter notes the Sanste has given final approval to the first part of the national energy plan — the coal conversion hill — and agreement was reached on some other parts, including natural gas pricing.

The latter trajus: the conference on the energy-tan parties of the everall legislation to resource regular mostlags to resulve remaining differences between the Sanste and house vertices of this legislation.

Should the conference be unable to reach agreement, then we urge other parties of the leaving legislation in the star parties of the energy legislation is through a concerned effect.

Our first hope is a renewed effort can result in final action in this Congress on the whole energy legislation. But, if agreement cannot be reached on the tax pervisions onergy tax incentives and distincentives as a package is, in some instances, proving counter-productive to the goals of a national energy policy.

For example, the current impasses on the energy-tax provisions has created hardships and distinuture on the goals of a national energy policy.

For example, the current impasses on the energy-tax provisions has created hardships and distinuture of the letter they would be eligible for malar equipment in the helief they would be eligible for malar equipment in the belief they would be eligible for substantial Federal tax incentives. By U. S. Sen. Chifford P. Case UCTC cornings jump 19% over last year The chairman and president of United Counting
Trust Co., Raymond W.
Bauer, reported income helier accurities transactions was $1.19 per share for the first heliful 1978, an increase of 19% over the $1 per share earned in the same period a year ago.

Net income for the six manths ended June 30 was $2,466,681 compared with $2,077,859 for the first heli of this year compared to the same period last year.

Total deposits on June 30 were $415,477,487, an increase over the $408,-948,306 reported at end of the 1977 first half, at 1977.

The improved performance can be attributed largely to the acceleration in horrowing activity and a resultant increase in income generated from losss.

to the belief they would be eligible for substantial Federal tax incentives.

Of equal importance is the damaging effect fullare to come to agreement on the energy tax provisons has had on the growth and development of new indexestes engaged in the manufacture, installation and maintenance of renewable energy technologies.

A case in point is the industry making the collectors generally used in solar hot water systems — the solar flat plate industry.

Currently, there are more than 700 U. S. husbenness which manufacture, sell, install or maintain solar energy materia. More than 70% of these have annual solar systems. More than 70% of these have annual solar systems. More than 70% of these have annual solar systems totaled $130,000,000, with no manufacturer accounting for more than $3,000,000 of the total. Small solar husbenness are deponient upon continued growth for their survival. Only through growth will they be able to rudice unit costs for consumers and russain competitive with the relatively few solar husbenness with large capital resources.

Industry growth spurted when Congress flrut began considering the energy policy Mill with its incontives for development of solar energy. But uncertainty over the legislation has led to deferral of purchases in many cases since them.

It is a litter irony the solar flotplate industry in this country fared better before Congress hegan to consider a national solar energy legislation is draining the life out of the solar industry.

Under the municipal manager form the elected council operates as the policymaking levely and lives a manager to execute its judicies.

There are three major versions of Facilitaer Act government:

——Council Manager—

The elected council hires a manager who serves at their pleasure, executes their policies and administers the municipality, including appointing and runnoving department hands and proparing an anamal livinget.

——Mayor—Council—

The elected council is a legislative hody. It adopts ordinances, makes appropriations, decides all policies and holds investigative powers over the administration.
