A series of new twists in the controversy surrounding the referendum on the new Rahway City Hall-Police Headquarters complex may delay a decision indefinitely in a court case brought against the city by petition Over the last six weeks, Superior Court Judge Million A. Feller has examined more than 4,000 signstures is a legal test on the validity of petitions seeking a public write on an amondment adding $1.5 million to the cost of the building. It was possible, he noted, for the city to start con-struction on the new complex by using the original $3 million approved by the city council, but with the $4.5 million total, the entire project would have to be relied. "What's more, a new question the tails must be from registered voters or from eligible residents who ac-tually cast hallots in the last election. This difference will be crucial becaute more than 100 signatures have been discounted as forgeries, ano-ther 600 names were unregistered voters and 335 others are from voters who did not participate in the June Primary Election. The petitioner's had figured they would need 3,103 voters, or 25% of the city's 14,010 registered voters, to put the question up for referendem. The figure required could be less, depending on the decision expected from the magistrate is several works. A capital program is a multi-year schedule of capital projects needed by a local unit over a specific period of time. The new regulations require every municipality and county to prepare and adopt a capital budget in any year in which it proposes to begin a capital project. In adopting a capital budget, a municipality must also adopt a capital program for at least three years if it has under 10,000 population, and for at least six years if it has over 10,000 population. Counties must have a six-year program. The capital budget will hereafter be considered as part of the official annual budget and be published with it.

Formal adoption by the governing body must take place no later than adoption of the operating budget, which is March 20 for municipalities and Feb. 26 for counties. Only 3.6 million New Jerseyans -- or 68% of the 5.2 million eligible voters in the sinte --- were registered to vote in the Nov. 7 General Election, a situation Secretary of State Donaid Lan called a "diograce." Mr. Lan, who released the figures in Trenton, pre-dicted that only 58.5% of those registered actually vote for a United States senator and 15 congressmen as for a United States sensor and 15 congressmen as well as decide six public questions in addition to scores of county and local contests. He added, "Looking at the entire picture of potential eligible voters, numbers actually registered and poten-tial voter turnout, I find it distressing to project a 40% numout of the estimated eligible population in any state-wide election given ideal weather conditions." The secretary of state said he attributes the low regis-tration not only to apathy but to those persons "turned off by government in general since the Nixon era, the Vietnam War and the general feeling of people that they don't want to get involved." The state official added he also finds the low figures disturbing because the state, county and local govern-The state official added be also finds the low figures disturbing because the state, county and local govern-ments have conducted aggressive campaigns to register people — either by postal card, mobile registration units, special night hours in municipal buildings and courthouses and other means. "The problem," he said, "is not restricted to New Jersey but has become a nation-wide problem and one of deep concern." The total registration is 55,204 less than last year when there was a gubernatorial election, Mr. Lan noted. Last year, only 59% of those eligible voted for a governor and the 120 members of the Legislature. According to voting records in the Secretary of State's office, the Lowest turnout of voters since 1952 happened in 1975 in the Assembly races. Then, only 57.3% of those eligible weed eligible voted. The biggest turnout in the past 27 years was in the 1961 gubernatorial election, when 91% voted. The largest number of registered voters the state recorded was in the 1976 presidential elections when 3.7 million registered, and 81% voted.

By E. Sidman Wachter

A serious threat to the independence, indeed to the continued existence, of many private schools in Amer-ican life has been made by the internal Revenue Service. In the back pages of the Federal Register of Aug. 22, it is declared, as of the end of October all private schools, including church-operated schools, which were organized around the time integration of public schools began, will be automatically assumed to be racially discriminatory and their tax-exempt status evoked -- unless such schools can prove they are ntegrated. Criteria include:

-- Hiring of racial minority teachers.

-- Scholarships for racial minority students. -- Racial minority students should equal up to 20% of the percentage of minority students of school age in the community. To maintain its tax-exempt stams in years to come, a private school would further be required to institute: -- Minority participation in running the school. -- Radical "affirmative action" programs to A minority-oriented curriculum, such as "black studies" or promotion of Zionism.
 Allegedly, the purpose of this momentous IRS de-cree was to clamp down on private schools spawned by government-mandated racial integration of public But this takes no account of the church-relate schools organized because children were forbidden to pray or read the Bible, discipline became deplor-able and academic standards plunged in the government schools. Should the IRS have life-and-death power over church Should it be able to force them to conform to notions Should it be able to force them to conform to notions of social good proclaimed --- though not often practised --- by Washington bureaucrats? It takes little imagination to envision the federal government, on some idiotic pretext of "public policy," next requiring private schools indulge in someone like. co-educational sports programs, co-educational dormi-tories, homosexual teachers, abortion counselors and abolition of male and female choirs. Many private schools are still struction has no make Many private schools are still struggling just to make ends meet. For them to afford minority scholarships a la IRS would be next to impossible. As far as parochial schools are concerned, the general counsel of the United States Casholic Conference has called the IRS decree "completely unrealistic," For the minority status of a parochial school to be determined on the basis of the public school of the "community" (which is often an estire city) would be Would it not be more realistic to compare the num-ber of minority students in the school with the perentage of minority families of that religion in the Historically, tax exemption was granted to churches and other educational institutions to guarantee their independence from government interference. But the new IRS ruling is based on the premise tax exemption is a form of federal assistance. Should this concept go unchallenged, never doubt all tax-exempt organizations will sconer or later feel the heavy hand of Uncle Sam. he IRS has become a rechless, predatory and dictaprial agency, which acts as legislator, judge and jury. It must be cut down to size.

It must not be permitted to hold in its hands the power to destroy tax-exempt and church-related schools. What to do? Protest to Jerome Kurtz, commissioner of the IRS. Protest to President Jimmy Carter, and Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo.

States: Mental patient needs your help now

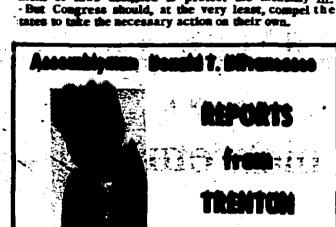

The world of "Clockwork Orange" has arrived in some of our cities. Half-drugged, frightened and confused men and women released from mental institutions wander the streets of psychiatric ghettos hoping to find shelter and food. Many wind up in flophouses and rotting hotels with prostitutes and drug addicts and in unsupervised hoarding homes where they are exploited or forgotten. One official in the State Division of Mental Health estimated recently about 7,000 former mental patients in New Jersey are living in these rundown boarding and rarely-inspected boarding homes to mental wards ind welfare botels. The dumping of mental patients on the streets prompt ed hearings by the House Select Committee on Aging

As a member of the committee, I was shocked and disturbed by the testimony of witnesses and experts in We found patients are being discharged from mental institutions around the nation in wholesale lots. The number of patients in state mental hospitals dropped 62% between 1969 and 1977. Many are not receiving the care and services they More often than not, they have been placed in slum housing, such as old hotels and boarding homes. They are forgotten. The primary reason for all these transfers has been to save money. Yet over the same eight years when the inpatie population has been reduced by 62%, state hudgets have increased 100%. State government spending doubled from $2.2 billion in 1969 to $4.4 billion in 1977. The states are releasing mental patients on the streets in an effort to substitute federal dollars for state dollars. It costs the states an average of $21,000 a year to keep 3 patient is a mental hospital. If the same individual can be transferred to a profit-making hoarding home and enrolled in the federal Supplementary Security income program, the federal government will pay the bill. Thus the federal weifare program pays $167 a month or $2,000 a year to support elderly indigents. Another reason is the recent Supreme Court roling a state assnot constitutionally confine a non-dangerous person who is capable of surviving safely in freedom without offering treasment to that individual. Still another reason is humanitarianism, the notion as individual is hencer off almoot anywhere than in a an individual is better off almost anywhere than in a In many states, former patients find their way into unlicensed and unsupervised boarding homes. That is why the House Select Committee on Aging has recommended legislation to require the states to establish minimum standards relating to admissions, discharges, transfers, safety, sanitation, nutrition and access to health and social services for mental patients. This legislation would protect their civil liberties and their lives heir lives. This would leave responsibility in the hands of the states, where it belongs. It would be impractical to have the federal govern-ment substitute itself for the states in the enforce-ment of laws designed to protect the mentally ill.

Governor must face

difficult fiscal choices It a time when Americans from coast to coast are calling for tax cuts and limited government spending, New Jersey is facing a budget shortfall of tens of millions of dollars. Although the state budget for fiscal 1979-1980 will not be submitted to the Legislature by the governor until next February, recent revelations about the state's current and anticipated fiscal condition are causing great concern at the State House. Preliminary reports indicate the state faces a potential deficit of anywhere from $70 m $200 million. Given the "Proposition 13" mood in the country which demands government live within its means, this latest fiscal wee couldn't come at a worse time for the governor, who must make some politically unattractive choices -- namely, proposing a new tax or cutting established programs. The administration has already floated a trail balloon involving a 5¢ increase in the state gasoline tax, a pro-posal which, official or not, drew vigorous reaction and caused the governor's office to issue a statement denying such a tax increase was under consideration.

Another proposal to cut millions from school aid, while completely revising the school aid formula to give the executive branch unprecendented control, was met with cries of outrage from legislators and educators. This plan, too, has been withdrawn for now. A move toward economy, while greeted with more acceptance than the other proposals, will not nearly makeupthe budget deficit. The state treasurer called for a spending freeze of 2% in all state departments and agencies, which will save only $36 million by the end of the current fiscal It is a great temptation, of course, to point out the impending financial crunch is largely of this administra-tion's own making. The majority membership on the Joint Appropriations Committee has stoutly resisted efforts to cut the budget over the past few years, preferring instead to dip into surplus funds from the previous year to bring the budget into balance.

into balance. Whatever the outcome of the current efforts toward economy, it appears 1979 will be a year of substantial fiscal turmoil. Tax increases, unpopular at any time, are even more repugnant to an administration and Legislature in an election year as 1979 will be. Cutting established and politically popular spending programs is equally difficult. The solution will be a most difficult one. We must avoid the haste surrounding passage of the income tax the former Elizabethown funds for the establishment three years ago and urge all concerned to exercise the prudence and foresight which have been lacking in recent budgetary decisions.

floward offers net automatic transfe

The Howard Savings Bank began offering a new Automatic Transfer service to its customers yesterday. This new service comes as a result of a recent change in government regulations which will permit banks to automatically transfer funds from a depositor's savings account to cover overdrafts in a checking

Passbook Savings Account. The Howard will charge 250 for each check requiring a transfer, providing the cus-tomer's savings account balance is $500 or more. If the savings balance is less then $500, there will be a charge of $5 per check covered. The banking regulations governing this new service require customers sign an authorization card to be eligible for the Automatic Transfer service. "The way the service will work is simple," says

State body forfeits

adians' perfect record

By Ray Hoagland A decision made Oct. 30 by the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Assa. caused the Rahway High School Varsity Foot- hall Team to give up its undefeated senson. The state group's ex- ecutive committee decided to forfeit the Indians' sea- son-opening victory against titteride hecause of the use of an ineligible player, Ho- ward Joyner, in their first game. According to Superinten- dent of Schools Frank Brunette, Joyner had in- formed school officials at the beginning of this season be had completed enough summer school courses to make up for credits he was lacking.	However, Brunette said, the officials later learned the gridder hadn't taken the necessary courses. The decision, which school principal, Roy M. Valentine, said was con- firmed to him by James Growney, the executive secretary of the state body, could decide the eventual champion of the Watchung Conference National Divi- sion and be a key for the hopes of both schools to earn a berth in the state sectional tournament. It leaves Rahway's rec- ord at S-1 and Hillside un- defeased with 6-0. However, Hillside still has to play conference ri- val, Roselle, according or Valentine and this or ad make the difference in the title.

New Jersey's largest savings and loan association, City Federal Savings, has taken on New Jersey bankers for what the bank's chairman and president terms a rejection by the bankers of an important new consumer rejection by the himters of an important new communer service, NOW accounts. Gilbert G. Rocannes, in advertisements appearing in media across the state, charged state bankers with a lobying attack in Congress that "was successful" in excluding New Jersey residents from participating in NOW Account Programs with this state's financial institutions. institutions. NOW Accounts, which are in effect checking accounts wisk interest, have been opposed by the bankers, who pay no interest on checking accounts. Mr. Roessner, in the advertisement, said they "succeeded in denying this service to New Jersey residents by New Jersey institutions. They appear to be delighted that New York. Institutions that acvertise so heavily on mievision overing half our state will be offering this service to

New Jersey residents." The legislation in which the NOW Account authority was contained had a provision authorizing such accounts for New York and New Jersey. The latter was dropped from the final version in the waning hours of the last nession of Congress. Mr. Roessner said of the bankers' strategy: "They compete in strange ways. They prefer to restrict their competitors rather than seek better ways to serve the people. We have supported every power they have ever sought, and some they didn't want. We think have ever sought, and some they didn't want. We think they should have even more authority --like paying interest on all their deposits." "They, on the other hand, have opposed almost-every new power we have ever sought." The advertisements, which are being carried in newspapers throughout the state, asked the question, "Would you like a checking account that earns interest?" The advertisement then states, "We'd like to offer one." The Congress was within hours of enacting such authority for New Jersey financial instantions, but Mr. Roessner charges, "The commercial bankers have again heen successful in thwarting our efforts to gain such authority." such authority." The City Federal Savings advertisement states, however, that "sooner or later, we will be offering accounts with interest, or something very much like it."
