She smiled faintly, cast a look of unexpressed love upon him, and gently breathed out her last breath of life in his arms.

Schubert went to Antwerp, received the honors of the people, and the homage of his fellow artists, but the light of life went out with Lischen.

low that the skating mania has broken out with violence, a change takes occasion to print the following directions for beginners :

1. Never try to skate in two directions at once. This feat has often been attempted by beginners, but never successfully. It always ends in sorrow.
2. Eat a few apples for refreshment before skate, and be sure to throw

3. Sit down occasionally, no matter where—right in the way of the rest of the party if you want to. There is no law to prevent a new beginner from sitting down whenever he has an inclination to do so.

new pair. Keep buying new pairs, that are not slippery. This will be fun for the dealers. [N. B.—We don't expect a pair of skates for this notice, but if they are sent, we feel tolerable sure they will not be thrown out of the window.]

8. In sitting down, do it gradually.—Don't be too sudden; you may break the ice.

9. When you fall headlong, cry out:

before you get up. This will make everybody think you fell because your skates were loose. Beginners always do, you know.

10. Wear a heavy overcoat or cloak till you get thoroughly warmed up, and then throw it off and let the wind cool you. This will insure you a fine cold that will last you as long as you live.

11. After you get so you can skate diately. Don't be responsible about it; skate three or four hours—skate frantically—skate till you can't stand up. Do this every day, and it will be sure to make you sick at last; and then you may die, and that will be an excellent thing; it will be such a good example to the rest of the young people.

A few simple directions for lady skaters are added:

2. If your skating partner is eligible and your foot is pretty, don't hesitate in asking him to adjust your skate straps to his foot. He will rather like it.

Cupid on Ice.—One of the prettiest tricks of the season of that sad reign of Cupid, was witnessed a few days ago at a skating party, not a hundred miles from Columbus, Ohio. A company of young men and maidens, and some gray beards too, had met at a fine pond in the vicinity of C—, during the first days of the late "cold snap," and among them were a young lady and gentleman, both strangers.

The sport had begun, and all was going "merry as a marriage bell," when a young lady, whose name for the present shall be Belle, glided away, in advance of her companions, towards the centre of the pond. Every eye followed her admiration as she spun round in straight circles, or darted away on lines as straight and unerring as geometry. — It was a beautiful scene, and the lady in her ex-ment, but not knowing how to bend around her, but several of friends who were nearest to her sat and cried out to warn her of her danger. Strange as it may seem, fearless as she was, she grew paralyzed with terror, though she kept her feet, she seemed capable of moving from that spot, stood gazing at it fascinated at the place where the ice began to show signs of breaking up.

tempt a rescue, and Henry, strange young man, rushed forward as fast as steel could carry him. A moment of anxiety, of breathless suspense, as he has reached her; and now, with arms around her waist, with the tremor of a bonding and cracking between their feet, he guides her rapidly to the place of safety. The horizontal surface of the water reaching to a few feet above the heads of the men, the
