MUMS LEAVES
The mums leaves are falling fast, and the autumn is well advanced. The weather is cool and pleasant, and the foliage is in its best condition. MATRONS OF FACT PEOPLE: It was said of an ancient poet, that he was so thin and light that he was fastened to his chair to prevent his being blown away. The story is told by a writer, who at the same time in the graves' manner described it, for eyes he how could he carry about sufficient weight to prevent his being blown away, if he was so weak as to be unable to resist the sun breeze? This matter of fact way of reading the world is a fair one, and the same reason could be made the same what similar examples upon the following American story. A traveler after a long journey, anxiously sought for a place where he could rest and eat. He found a hotel, but no room was vacant, so he sought a private spot for a night's lodging. In the morning he awoke to find a sign on the door which read "No admittance after midnight." He was surprised, but not alarmed, and went to the door. He found the door closed, and he was unable to open it. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything.

A man's name of office, possibly at a distance. A person named a ship, and the name of the vessel was the "Liberty Bell." The ship was in the harbor, and the man was on board. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything.

There was a man named John, and he was in a dilemma. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything. He was in a dilemma, and he was unable to do anything.

Time on line to six. Passions are the things that drive us, and they are the things that drive us. They are the things that drive us, and they are the things that drive us. They are the things that drive us, and they are the things that drive us.

There are things that are true, and there are things that are false. There are things that are true, and there are things that are false. There are things that are true, and there are things that are false.
