POETRY.

THE PRUSSIAN NATIONAL ANTHEM.

I am a Prussian! see my colors gleaming,
The black white standard floats before me free;
For freedom's right, my father's heart blood streaming,
[illegible]
Shall I then prove a coward? [illegible]
[illegible]
I am a Prussian, will a Prussian be!

[illegible]

That every wish unfaithful is to me.
How many far and near would think exchange much dearer?
Their Freedom's naught how then compare with me?
I am a Prussian, will a Prussian be!

And if the anger elements exploding,
The lightnings flash, the thunders louder roar,
[illegible]
[illegible]
I am a Prussian, will a Prussian be!

[illegible]
The mere alone true happiness can muster
[illegible]
[illegible]
Be strong the bond, strike hands, clear hearts with me
I am a Prussian, will a Prussian be!

"That's all," said the tired girl, letting her pen drop, and breathing a sigh of relief.

"I hope she will pay you to-night," [illegible] Mrs. Stetson.

"She is well aware [illegible] was the sad reply. [illegible] she carries her old habits of saving [illegible] she knows I shall [illegible] the price a regular dressmaker would. She would have [illegible] Madame [illegible] twenty-five dollars at the least."

"Well, it's a shame," replied her mother, [illegible] work as well and better [illegible] estimation. Time was when [illegible] could have bought and sold Walter Hayden and now you must work [illegible] his daughter who has neither [illegible]

"O don't mamma!" pleaded Laura [illegible] that was partly [illegible] only make it worse for me [illegible] Just say it was [illegible] as papa used to, and with the smile still on her lips, she turned the [illegible] away, that her mother might not see [illegible]

For poor proud Laura, earning a [illegible] living for her mother and herself, had a memory of the Haydens hidden in her heart.

When Bart Hayden, the handsomest man in New York some said, had gone away [illegible] only a year before, she had [illegible] months after [illegible] The Haydens were not wealthy [illegible] a short time they had [illegible] and it was rumored that young Bart was [illegible] growing [illegible]

It was just nine months since the death of Laura's father. He [illegible] death, while apparently in the full [illegible] of health, and after the funeral it was found that his affairs were in a very tangled condition. In fact only a small house was left to the widow [illegible] far from comfortably furnished!

Laura, the child of wealth and fashion, her father's idol, a delicate, thorough bred, elegant girl who had hitherto sunned herself in the warm rays of prosperity, and barely knew whether she had a heart or not, proved herself a heroine. Whatever she could find to do, she worked at with all her heart—Plain sewing, embroidery, dress making for which she had a talent and concerning which she had often laughingly said, that if she had not been rich she might have been very famous; everything was undertaken willingly, and labored at uncomplainingly. She accepted the situation, though not without some struggles with pride, and many secret tears.

"Well, I suppose I must carry the dress home," said Laura.

Mrs. Stetson thought of the time when a carriage was at the call of her beautiful darling.

"Dear, can't I take it?" she asked, gazing at her anxiously. "You are ill."

"I am ill—that is, my head aches, but the walk will do me good," Laura responded, trying to look bright. "It's not far to the Haydens. Do you think I would let you carry home my work. No indeed!" and she bent over and kissed her mother's forehead.

Out in the air she felt better. The nervous depression from which she had suffered gradually had left her, as she became interested in the sights and sounds about her. In gay and beautiful dresses, some of her former acquaintances passed her, a few of them with a nod of recognition, but most without noticing her at all. little stings they were, but she held her bundle firmly, lifted her head a trifle higher, and passed bravely on. Turning a corner she came full upon an unexpected tableaux. A smartly dressed boy, with a feather in his cap, kicked and struggled with his nurse, who vainly pulled the obstinate child until her face turned purple.

"Why, Lucy! Why, Benny!" exclaimed Laura, for the girl was nurse maid at the Haydens, and Benny the youngest hope of the house.

"What's all this?"

"Deed, Miss, he's awful," said the girl, nearly crying. "When he makes up his mind it's a tiger he is, Miss. Just see him now."

Laura spoke a few words to the boy in a low tone, and he ceased struggling for a moment.

"We're all at sixes and sevens," said the nurse, "and the Missis is that nervous. Mr. Bart's just returned from California without no warning, and brought a beautiful young lady with him. I do suppose it's his wife [illegible] from what I heard, [illegible] Missis, and [illegible] there's that [illegible]

Laura heard [illegible]

The strange and [illegible] passed, however [illegible] Bart had a [illegible] [illegible] ever since the flood and [illegible] the end of time. [illegible] said that he had never [illegible] and yet her heart answered [illegible]

Those words he had whispered [illegible] to whisper she said [illegible] cheeks.

Was it but an hour [illegible] moments was! She [illegible] stood at that moment [illegible] the [illegible] and he handsome and [illegible] answer to his question [illegible] her very eyes.

The blood burnt her face [illegible] came in sight of the [illegible] ceded, leaving her pale [illegible]

She started at herself [illegible] tremely foolish, but the tears were [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible]

"Laura, my dear, dear Miss [illegible] claimed the young man [illegible] her.

But Laura's face was [illegible] a cool [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible]

"Dear me! [illegible] go down and ask [illegible]

Laura felt as if she [illegible] floor.

"Stop!" she said [illegible] on her arm [illegible] course, I can depend [illegible] day?

"Yes [illegible] you go? [illegible] you. Well then [illegible]

Laura had not worn her [illegible] were running down her cheeks [illegible] descended the steps of the palace [illegible] and Bart Hayden who happened [illegible] saw them. Oh! the humiliation [illegible] proud spirit. She threw a half defiant [illegible] at the handsome pitying face [illegible] gesture that repelled him [illegible] toward her. She almost flew [illegible] nor hardly drew a breath [illegible] home.

How dreary and meagre it all [illegible] few che [illegible] the scanty [illegible] half covered floor, the faded [illegible] worn out chintz on chairs and [illegible]

"I'm dreadfully tired mamma [illegible] down," she cried, in a suppressed voice and threw herself on the cracking old lounge.

"What is the matter, my darling? I see she didn't pay you, of course, and not a stick of wood in the house. Oh! the wickedness of those who are rich! I thought—"

A loud rap. Laura hid her face. Her mother answered the call and in strode Bart Hayden, almost defiantly.

"At least you will welcome me, Mrs. Stetson," he said, the old fine ring in his voice. Laura sat up cold and proud again.

"Anne sent this by me," he said and [illegible] a sealed envelope on the table.

"When did you get home?" asked Mrs. Stetson, as soon as she had recovered from her suprise.

"Only a few hours ago," was Bart's reply. "I brought Cousin Jack's wife with me. She was ordered home for her health, and Jack couldn't leave, so I took Mattie in charge—Poor girl! I am afraid home is not going to help her much, or, indeed, anything else."

Laura made an almost imperceptible movement. She was far from cold, now; her very temples burned.

We have just received one from our respected representative in Congress, Hon. John T. Bird, the high compliments contained in which we fully appreciate.

◆

North Carolina has gone Democratic by from ten to fifteen thousand majority, and the Democrats have secured Members of Congress in the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh districts. The Legislature is Democratic by at least two-thirds, which will secure the election of a Democratic United States Senator. Mr. Shipp, Democratic candidate for Attorney General, has carried the State.

◆

During the administration of President Buchanan, the annual expenses of the government were about $[illegible],000,000. Grant was elected amid the cry of "economy," and the expenses now foot up to over $[illegible],000,000, to say nothing of the millions of acres of the public domain jobbed out to swindling corporations, and the hundreds of thousands of dollars stolen outright by the radicals. And yet, the people of the United States allow themselves to be blinded by the misrepresentations and promises of the radicals who are thus pocketing and squandering their money. How much longer will the people suffer this wholesale robbery?

◆

A correspondent of the New York Sun, writing from Newark, after alluding to the chances of U. S. Senator Cattell's successor, says:

"There will be lively times in the Legislature, let either party succeed. Both parties are split up into factions, and each faction has a Senatorial candidate. The strong probabilities are, notwithstanding the negro vote, which will be large in this State, that the Democracy will carry the Legislature.—They will certainly, if the spring elections are any indication. In those elections, although the negroes were out in full force, the Democracy increased their majorities everywhere. In the rural districts of this State there is great hostility to negro suffrage among the more moderate Republicans. During the recent elections to which we have alluded, it made itself visible by leading Republicans in many of the townships openly voting the Democrat ticket, and alleging as they did so that it was done to put in their protest against mongrelizing the franchises."

In Indiana an independent political movement is in progress, and participated in by men of all parties. Its object is to rout the Radical corruptionists in power at the capital. At a convention in Indianapolis to nominate a ticket, ex-Senator Hendricks, Democrat, and Major J. W. Gordon, Republican, made speeches. Major Gordon expressed the views of a host of Republicans in all the Northern States. He said:

"God knows I shall hate to give up the dear old Republican party, for it has more nearly embodied my political ideas and hopes than any other party ever did. I have loved it with all my heart, and served it with all my strength. If called upon, I am sure I would have been willing to die for its success. But that was in the day of its humility, when struggling up the hard ascent to power. It succeeded. It came into power, and then came rebellion and war. I returned home after a three years absence in the army to find it changed. It had become fairly intolerant of any dissent from its decisions. It [illegible] the Administration, the Government and [illegible] President [illegible] had [illegible] at the commencement of the war [illegible] life [illegible] were [illegible] his [illegible] a state of things [illegible] was [illegible] I [illegible] of mortal [illegible] reason [illegible] meeting [illegible] then. I spoke against these things then, I speak against them now, and shall speak against them forever. (Cheers.) [illegible]

How few of the mothers in our State are aware of the existence of a law [illegible] a father the right to [illegible] or bestow in adoption [illegible] or consent, the children she has borne with infinite pain and reared through days of anxiety [illegible] watching and nights of sleeplessness— One need not point out the [illegible] this law permits. That it is rarely acted upon is because the manhood of our State is superior to the laws; but that it has been acted upon, sorrowful in [illegible] histories here and there over the State can testify. Among the laws relating to guardianship is one so wicked and so encouraging to wickedness, that its existence seems out of all character and harmony with the times. A father may, by his will, appoint a guardian for his children, who may take them from their living mother and remove them and their inheritance from her into distant and strange lands. The mother's claims, affections or anguish seem as nothing in this tyranny of power. Such laws are so palpably unjust, that we cannot, scarcely, allow ourselves to believe a court will be found to execute them. The power is in the law, which should be amended. The court is but the instrument. The good and true men and women of our State should urge upon our legislators the amendment or abolishment of all laws which permit such abuses. By agitation, petition, and every lawful means, our people should have these relics of a barbarous past, removed from the statute books of our State.

RAHWAY, N. J., AUGUST 11, 1870.

COMMON COUNCIL.

Regular meeting Tuesday evening, August 9. Present—Bennett, E[illegible], Freeman, Howard, Jackson, Martin, Roll and Vail. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Remonstrance from property owners on Inman avenue, against opening the same—referred to street committee.

Communication from E. H. K[illegible] stating that he signed the above named remonstrance under a misapprehension, and withdrawing his name from the same—referred to street committee.

Petition from property owners on Milton avenue for a number of changes and additions [illegible] lamp posts—referred to lamp committee.

Petition from property owners on Milton avenue [illegible] to proceed with the work of graveling the same, according to ordinance [illegible] some time ago—referred to street committee.

Report of commissioners of assessments on [illegible] street received and referred to assessment committee.

[illegible]

[illegible] Carnes and Myers.

[illegible] during nineteen years, it cost [illegible] $12[illegible] to board the prisoners of the county [illegible] during the past year.

An exceedingly paternal man, living on [illegible] Lake, Florida, aged eighty-seven, is the father of sixty children, the youngest of whom is nine months old.

EUROPEAN WAR—GREAT PRUSSIAN VICTORY.

From official sources on both sides comes the news of a great battle, or series of battles extending for several days, in which the French have met with a decided defeat. The Prussian movement forward began on Friday last, when the heads of the Prussian [illegible] approached the Saar. Saturday morning Gen. K[illegible] found the enemy [illegible] west of Saarbruck in strong position in the mountains near Speichern, and immediately attacked them. [illegible]

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS, FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A LAXATIVE MEDICINE.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative PILL. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always [illegible]

Mild, Certain, Safe and Efficient!

It at once relieves and invigorates all the vital functions, without causing at any time, or under any circumstances, the slightest injury to any of them.

The most complete and uniform success has for many years attended its use in France, and in some portions of the United States, and it is now offered to the general public, with the most absolute conviction that it can never fail to accomplish all that is claimed for it.

It is harmless in the extreme, at all times, and under all circumstances; and is unequalled by any remedy yet known in the world where a purgative is indicated.

[illegible] Indigestion and Dyspepsia, it is [illegible]

[illegible] of the Blood, and hence [illegible] Scrofula, Erysipelas, [illegible] eruptions [illegible] of Appetite, Colds, Coughs, [illegible] Catarrh, [illegible] Pains, Diarrhœa, [illegible] Stomach and fullness [illegible] breath, dizziness, [illegible] Headache, Rheumatism, [illegible] forms, these and all [illegible] wholly cured or greatly [illegible] remedy.

NATIONAL DEMOCRAT.

RAHWAY, N. J., AUGUST 11, 1870

"The War between the States, its Causes, Character, Conduct and Results." By Hon ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS is the title of a valuable work just issued by THE NATIONAL PUBLISHING Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Five years have elapsed since the close of the bloodiest and most gigantic war known to modern history, and in that interval men have had an opportunity of thinking over the events which passed before them in such quick succession that reflection was impossible, and as a natural consequence each section has manifested a great desire to hear what the other has to say of its motives and conduct in the great struggle. This has led to the production of a number of histories and narratives on the Northern side, but until recently no authentic or reliable [illegible] tory had appeared on the [illegible] The demand for such [illegible] felt and there was a [illegible] satisfaction [illegible] country, when [illegible] nounced that the Hon. A. H. S[illegible] Vice President of the [illegible] federacy, was [illegible] The War Between [illegible] then made is now [illegible] which [illegible]

Mr. Stephens was [illegible] ment [illegible] which immediately [illegible] knows [illegible] stirring events [illegible] struggle upon [illegible] mind, the habits [illegible] powers of analysis [illegible] honesty and [illegible] dered him in the [illegible] the proper historian [illegible] he acted [illegible] domitable energy [illegible] ing health, he [illegible] this work, was [illegible] in the [illegible] war, we [illegible] ern history [illegible] peared.

ARTHUR'S HOME MAGAZINE [illegible] Among the Ladies' Magazines [illegible] keep the lead not only for the [illegible] of its reading, but for the beauty [illegible] tions and the fulness and variety [illegible] and needlework departments. Mrs. [illegible] sends new story [illegible] interest with every number [illegible] rable series of articles on "[illegible] Work and Woman's Wages" show [illegible] and common sense in [illegible] difficult subject, worthy of all praise. [illegible] Arthur & Sons, Philadelphia, [illegible] of this elegant periodical are [illegible] efforts to make it the leading [illegible] Magazine of the country. Price $2 a [illegible]

ZELL'S ENCYCLOPEDIA AND [illegible] DICTIONARY continues its regular [illegible] our sanctum. We find upon examination that the late numbers show no [illegible] from the general excellence exhibited at the outset. We can commend to [illegible] essay on the Latin Language [illegible] and the article on "Man" suffices for a proper exemplification of the proverb "Man, know thyself." The first volume, bound and ready for supplying subscribers, can be procured from the publisher, T. Ellwood Zell, Philadelphia, or his agents in various parts of the country. Ten cents will procure a specimen number.

The Children's Hour, published by T. S. Arthur & Sons of Philadelphia, comes to our table for August as pure, and fresh, and beautiful as ever. To our readers we would say, take as many magazines for your children as you can afford; but whether you take one or five, be sure that you let them have "The Children's Hour." The price is only $1 25 a year, and your children should have it if it cost twice as much.
