POETRY.
THE CHURCH-SPIDER.

Two spiders, as the story goes,
Upon a living bant
Entered the meeting-house one day,
And hopefully were heard to say,
"Here we shall have at least fair play,
With nothing to prevent."

The light webs grew apace;
One on the altar spun his thread,
But shortly came the pastor, said,
"It is wrong, and we must draw
He sought another place.

"I'll try the pulpit next," said Mr.

"There surely is a prize;
The desk appears so neat and clean,
I'm sure no spider there has been;

See how often I have been!"

The pastor brushing flies."

He tried the pulpit, but, alas!

"His spires proved visionary;

With dinging banch the sexton came,
And spoiled his geometrical game,
For gave him time nor space to claim
The right of sanctuary.

He sought his former neighbor,
Who now had grown so sleek and round.

He weighed the fraction of a pound,

And looked up with a smile,

Of living without labor.

"How is it, friend?" he asked, "that I

Endure such thumps and knocks,

While you have grown so very gross?"

"Tis plain," he answered, "not a less

The contribution box."
