CHAPTER VI. CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION, IN TWO PARTS. The next morning there was a most unusual outcry in the doctor's house. The last thing before going to hed, the doctor had locked up some valuables in the dining room cupboard; and behold, when he rose again, as he did about 4 o'clock, the cupboard had been broken open and the valuables in ques-tion had disappeared. Madame and Jean-Marie were summoned from their rooms, and appeared in hasty toilets; they found the doctor raving, calling the heavens to witness and avenge his injury, pacing the room barefooted, with the tails of his night shirt flirting as he turned. "Gone!" he said: "the things are gone, the

He he said, in quite an alteral voice, "compose yourself, command your feelings. I would not have you give way to passion like the vulgar. This—this trifling accident must be lived down. Jean-Marie, bring me my smaller medicine chest. A gentle laxative is indicated." And he dosed the family all round, leading the way himself with a double quantity. The wretched Anastasie, who had hever been ill in the whole course of her existence, and whose soul recoiled from remedies, wept floods of tears, as she sipped, and shuddered and protested, and then was bullied and shouted at until she supped again. As for Jean-Marie, he took his portion down with "I have given him a less amount," observed the doctor, "his youth protecting have thus parried any morbid consequences, let us reason." "I am so cold," wailed Anastasie. "Cold!" cried the doctor. "I give thanks

The Law of Growth.

The law of growth is health and favorable conditions. All healthy things grow. for confirmation of this fact ook at your little boy in his last year's suit. This law! in growth is as true of a business as it is of a tree. Our! own business is a striking illustration of this; if well nay judge by the manner in which it continues to expandit is in a most healthy condition. In casting about to find reasons for this, we sometimes attribute it to one shing and sometimes to another. It is not the amount! or puffing in the newspaper. representatives of the entire band of Christ's followers. There were no doubt many others beside them who had traveled the long distance from Jerusalem to attend this meeting which [Jesus had appointed. He still appoints places where He will meet His people. Let us be sure to be there. The precise mountain in Galilee is not known. Some think it Mount Tabor, or the mountain on which He was transfigured. It seems to have been providentially arranged that every important place where Jesus manifested His giory should be obliterated from the subsequent knowledge of mankind Enough remains of the places to attest the truth of Christian records, but no one spot connected with His life can be certainly identified. Bethelem still exists, but there is no trace of the place where the manger cradled the wondrous child. Nazareth is indicated, but the carpenter shop and the home of Jesus cannot be pointed out. One can no more find the bouse where the Last Supper was instituted than the drops of water that wet the disciples' feet. Tourists are shown at least three places in Gethsemane where Jesus agonized.

The hill of Calvary and the tomb of Joseph cannot be surely identified. There was to be no shrine to which idolatrous worshipers V. 17. An immense assembly looked upon Him.
