The Pingry School WILL RESUME WORK ON MONDAY, SEPT. 15th, 1890, 445 WESTMINSTER AVE., ELIZABETH, N. J. REV. JOHN PINGRY, Ph. D. jul 11-6m REV. EUGENE W. LITTLE, A. M.

All was over, at least all in the cart were.

I passed an uneasy night. The wind moaned wearily round the house, at one moment seeming to die away altogether, at another returning with redoubled fury, roaring down the wide chimney, shaking the whole building. It dropped completely toward dawn, and after hours of fitful slumber I slept heavily.

In the gray of the early morning I was awakened by some one coming into my room, and started up to find Charles standing by my bedside, dressed and with a candle in his hand. His face was worn and haggard for want of sleep.

"I have come to speak to you before I go, Middleton," he said, "when I was thoroughly awake. Ralph and I are off by the early train. Will you tell my father that we may not be able to return till to-morrow, if then; and may I count upon you to keep all you saw and heard secret until after our return?"

"Where are you going?"

"To London. We start in twenty minutes. I don't like it in the least use; but Ralph insists on going, and I cannot let him go alone."

"My dear Charles," I said (all my anger had vanished at the sight of his worn face), "I will accompany you."

"Not for worlds!" he replied hastily. "It would be no good. Indeed I should not wish it."

But I knew better.

"An old head is often of use," I replied, rapidly getting into my clothes. "You must count me in, Charles. I shall be ready in ten minutes."

Charles made some pretence at annoyance, but I was not to be dissuaded. I knew very well how invaluable the judgment of an elder man of experience could be on critical occasions, and besides I always make a point of seeing everything I can on all occasions. Ten minutes was down on the dining room, and beside a spluttering fire the brothers both heavily booted and ulstered, were drinking coffee by candle light. A hastily laid breakfast was on the table, but it had not been touched. The gray morning light was turning the flame of the candles to a rusty yellow, and outside upon the wide stone sills the snow lay high against the panes.

Ralph was sitting with bent head by the fire, stick and cap in hand, his heavy boots beating the floor impatiently. He looked up as I came in, but did not speak. The ruddy color in his cheeks was faded, his face was drawn and set. He looked ten years older.

"We ought to be off," he said at last in a low voice.

"No hurry," replied Charles; "finish your coffee."

I hastily drank some also, and told Charles that I was coming with them.

"No," said Charles.

"Yes," I replied. "You are going to London, and so am I. I have decided to curtail my visit by a few days under the circumstances. I shall travel up with you. My luggage can follow."

As soon as Charles grasped the idea that I was not going to return to Stoke Moreton his opposition melted away. He even seemed to hail my departure with a certain sense of relief.

"As you like," he said. "You can leave at the unearthly hour if you wish and travel with us as far as Paddington."

I nodded and went after my great-coat. Of course I had not the slightest intention of leaving them at Paddington, but I felt that the time had not arrived to say so.

"Here comes the dog cart," said Charles as I returned.

Ralph was already on his feet. But the dog cart, with its great bay horse, could not be brought up to the door. The snow had drifted heavily before the steps and right up into the archway, and the cart had to go round to the back again before we could get in and start. Charles took the reins, and his brother got up beside him. The groom and I squeezed ourselves into the back seat. I could see that it was only allowed to come as a reluctance, and that at the last moment they would have been willing to dispense with my presence. However, I felt that I should never have forgiven myself if I had let them go alone. Charles was not 20 and Ralph several years younger. An experienced man of 50 to consult in case of need might be of the greatest assistance in an emergency.

"Quicker!" said Ralph; "we shall miss the train."

"No quicker if we mean to catch it," said Charles. "I allowed ten minutes extra for the snow. We shall do it if we go quietly, but not if I let him go. An upset would clinch the matter."

We drove noiselessly through the great gates, with their stone lions on either side, rampant in wreaths of snow, and up the village street where life was hardly stirring yet. The sun was rising large and red, a ball of dull fire in the heavy sky. It seemed to be rising on a dead world.

Before us (only to be seen on my part by craning around) stretched the long, white road. At intervals here and there among the shrouded fields lay cottages half hidden by a white network of trees. Groups of yellow sheep stood clustered together under hedgerows, motionless in the low mist and making no sound. A lonely colt, with tail erect, ran beside us on the other side of the hedge to the te said looking at the clock; "and it is hardly 9 yet. Considering how late we received notice of the accident—for the news had to travel by night and on foot for a considerable distance—I don't think there has been much delay."

"Will all the passengers come back by this train?" asked Ralph.

"Yes, sir."

"We will wait!" said Ralph; and he went and paced up and down the most deserted part of the platform. The man followed him with his eyes.

"Anxious about friends, sir?" he asked Charles.

"Yes," I heard Charles say as I went off to warm myself by the waiting room fire, keeping a sharp lookout for the arrival of the train. When I came out some time later, wondering if it were ever going to arrive at all, I found Charles and the man in black walking up and down together, evidently in earnest conversation. When I joined them they ceased talking (I never can imagine why people generally do when I come up), and the latter said that he would make inquiry at the booking office, and left us.

"Who is that man?" I asked.

"How should I know?" said Charles absently. "He says he has been a London detective till just lately, but he is an inspector of police now. Well?" as the man returned.

"Booking clerk can't remember, sir; but the clerk at the telegraph office remembers a young lady leaving a telegram last night, to be sent on first thing this morning."

"Has it been sent yet?"

"Yes, sir; some time."

"Where was it sent to?"

"That is against the rules, sir. The clerk has no right to give information. Anyhow it is as good as certain from what I can say that the party was in the train, as all eyes as you will not be kept in doubt much longer," and he pointed to the long expected puff of white smoke in the direction in which all eyes had been so anxiously turned. The train came slowly round a broad curve and crawled into the station. Ralph had come up, and his eyes were fixed intently upon it. The hand he laid on Charles' arm shook a little as he whispered in a hoarse voice:

"I must speak to her alone before anything is said."

"You shall," replied Charles, and he moved forward a little and waited for the passengers to alight. I felt that any chance of escape which lay in eluding those keen light eyes would be small indeed.

Then ensued a scene of confusion, a babel of tongues, as the passengers thronged out upon the platform. "What was the meaning of it all?" hotly demanded an infuriated little man before he was well out of the carriage. Why had a train been allowed to start if it was to be overturned by a snow drift? What had the company been about not to make itself aware of the state of the line? What did the railway officials mean by—etc., etc.

No one seemed going to put up with such scandalous treatment. He should cause an inquiry to be made; he should write to The Times; he should—in short, he behaved like a true Englishman in adverse circumstances, and poured forth abuse like water. Others followed—some angry, some silent, all cold and miserable. A stout woman in black who had been sent for to a dying child was weeping aloud; a young man with bride up from Brighton and terrified wife were pounced upon immediately by expectant friends and borne off with voluble sympathy.

One or two people slightly hurt were helped out after the others. The train was emptied at last. Aurelia was not there. Charles went down the length of the train, looking into each carriage, and then came back, answering Ralph's glance with a shake of the head. The man in black, who seemed to have been watching him, came up.

"Have all come back by this train?" Charles asked.

"All, sir, except"—and he hesitated—"except a few. The doctor who went has not returned, and the guard says there were some of the passengers badly hurt—that he would not allow to be moved from the farm when the train came for them. The engine driver and one or two others were."

Charles made a sign to him to be silent.

"How far is it?" he asked.

"Twenty miles, sir."

"Are the roads practicable?"

"No, sir. At least they would be very uncertain once you got into the lanes."

"We can walk along the line," said Ralph. "That must be clear. Let us start at once."

"Could not the station master send us down on an engine?" asked Charles. "We would pay well for it."

The police inspector shook his head, but Charles went off to inquire nevertheless, and he followed him. I thought him a very pushing, inquisitive kind of person. I have always had a great dislike to the idle curiosity which is continually prying into the concerns of others. Ralph and I walked up and down, up and down the now deserted platform. I spoke to him once or twice, but he hardly answered, and after a time I gave it up and we paced in silence.

At last Charles returned. His request for an engine had been refused, but a further relay of workmen was being sent down the line in a couple of hours' time, and he had obtained leave for himself and us to go with them. After two long, interminable hours of that everlasting pacing we found ourselves in an open truck, full of workmen, steaming slowly out of the station. At the last moment the man in black jumped in and accompanied us.

The pace may have been great, but to us it seemed exasperatingly slow, and in the open truck the cold was piercing. The workmen, who laughed and talked among themselves, appeared to take no notice of it; but I saw that Charles was shivering, and presently he made his brother light his pipe and began to smoke hard himself.

HIS GREATEST WORK.

A GLIMPSE AT THE PROOF SHEETS OF TALMAGE'S LIFE OF CHRIST.

A Striking Title, "From Manger to Throne"—Graphic Description of His Visit to the Christ Land—The Most Ambitious Literary Effort of His Life.

[Copyright by American Press Association.]

Few persons possess Dr. T. De Witt Talmage's most distinguishing characteristic—something to say, and the ability to clothe the thought in language fresh and striking. The great Brooklyn divine has given us another example of his tireless energy, his great study and his matchless word paintings in his life of Christ—"From Manger to Throne"—to be issued in a few days from the press of the Historical Publishing company of Philadelphia. Through the courtesy of Mr. H. S. Smith, president of the company, I am enabled to tell something about the work in advance, for I have seen the proof sheets.

ARAB INHABITANTS.

The book differs from all other lives of the Christ in this, that it is a simple narrative in which no theological question is propounded, no "views" extolled, and there is no straining after effect.

It is made up of 500 pages, with over 400 engravings, copies of famous paintings by the old masters illustrating the scenes in the life of Christ and portraits of the Saviour by many famous painters. In addition there is a splendid panorama of the crucifixion in colors, ten feet in length, which is a great achievement of the publishers.

As a literary effort the book is the most ambitious of the great preacher's life. It fulfills all the requirements of literary style and finish. Each fact was carefully weighed and scrutinized before put on the paper. Nothing was taken for granted. It is not the work of an idle hour, but rather the life work of a strong man still in his prime. It should meet with a cordial welcome. It is not written above the head of the average reader. On the contrary it is a series of magnificent word pictures, so simple that a child would be interested in them. The reader is taken to every spot made remarkable in the Holy Land, and the guide is like a delightful elder brother chatting in the twilight hour, praising the old, old story, ever new.

"I have been writing that book for thirty-five years," Dr. Talmage told me recently, and he supplements this in his preface by saying:

"In my American home, on the Atlantic, on the Mediterranean, on camel's back, on mule's back, on horseback, under chandelier, by dim candle light, on Lake Ludella, in convent, at Bethel, where Jacob's pillow was stuffed with dreams and the angels of the ladder landed at the brook Elah, from which little David picked up the ammition of five smooth stones, from all and than were needed for crushing like an eggshell the skull of Goliath, in the valley of Ajalon, over which, at Joshua's command, Astronomy halted, on the plain of Esdraelon, the battlefield of ages, its long yellow flowers suggestive of the blood dashed to the bits of the horses' bridles; amid the shattered masonry of Jericho, in Jerusalem, that overshadows all other cities in reminiscence, at Calvary, whose plain water became festal beverage, on Calvary, whose aslant and ruptured rocks still show the effects of the earthquake at the awful hour of the crucifixion, at the sepulchral tomb of the world's rescue and with my hand protected from the storm, or wet from the Jordan, or bared to the sun, or gliding over smooth table, this book has been written."

Dr. Talmage is the only author of a life of the Christ who visited the Holy Land for the purpose of seeing for himself the scenes made famous by the birth and crucifixion of the Saviour, and this record of his life is one of the most interesting portions of the book. The writer vividly portrays the visit of Mary and Joseph in Egypt:

"Over the hills and down through the deep gorge they urge their way. By Hebron, by Gaza, through the sand, under a blistering sun, the babe crying, the mother faint, the father exhausted. How slowly the days and weeks pass. Will the weary three ever reach the banks of the Nile? Will they ever see Cairo? Will the desert ever end? When at last they cross the line beyond which old Herod has no right to pursue their joy is unbounded. Free at last! Let them dismount and rest. Now they resume their way with less anxiety. They will find a place somewhere for shelter and the earning of their bread. Here they are at Cairo, Egypt. They wind through the crooked streets, which are about ten feet wide, and enter the humble home where I have been today. It is nine steps down from the level of the street. It is such a place as no reader of this book would like to dwell in! I measured the room, and found it 20 feet long and 7½ feet high. There are three shelvings of rock, one of which I think was the cradle of our Lord. There is no window, and all the light must have come from lantern or candle. What a place for the King of heaven to live in!"

As he approaches Jerusalem the doctor can hardly contain himself. He is sitting on a patient camel's back writing these words: "Along the route I am amazed beyond expression at the boldness and jaggedness of the scenery of the Holy Land. I expected to see it rough, but not Alpidian and Sierra Nevadian in grandeur. The hills are amphitheatres, piled up galleries of gray rock, with intervals of soil, brown and maroon, until their tops add head and shoulders surrounded and lips that for a long while were exclamatory become speechless. Before sundown we will see Jerusalem. I never had such high expectations of seeing any place as of seeing the holy city. I found myself singing 'Jerusalem, My Happy Home,' while dressing myself this morning. I think my feelings may be slightly akin to that of the Christian just about to enter the heavenly Jerusalem."

Then follows a graphic picture of the great city, and the visitor's thoughts as his eyes behold it for the first time.

Dr. Talmage gives a description of a Sabbath in the Jordan valley:

"Yesterday we bowed on the sacred ground, and having pitched our tents in the midst of a grove of palm trees, we passed the day in scribe upon the Jordan, a river which more people have desired to see than any other. On our way we overtook an American, who requested me to baptise him by immersion in the river Jordan. We dismounted at the place where Joshua and his host once crossed the river dry shod. We were near a turn in the river, and not far off from where rocks and sand are piled up in shape of cathedrals, domes and battlements. We pitched our tent, and after proper examination of the candidate for baptism I selected portions of Scripture appropriate. One of our Arab attendants had a garment not unlike a baptismal robe. With that garment girdled around me I led the candidate down under the trees on the bank, while near by were groups of friends and some strangers who happened to be there. After a prayer I read of Christ's baptism in the Jordan and the commission, 'Go, teach all nations, baptizing them.' The people on the bank then joined in singing to the familiar tune that soul stirring song, 'On Jordan's Stormy Bank I Stand.' With the candidate's hands in mine we waded deep into the Jordan, and I then declared, 'In this historical river, where the Israelites crossed, and Naaman plunged seven times for the cure of his leprosy, and Christ was baptized, and which has been used in all ages as a symbol of the dividing line between earth and heaven I baptize thee in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.' As the candidate went down under the waves and then rose I felt a solemnity that no other scene could have inspired. As the ordinance was observed under the direction of no particular denomination of Christians, and no particular church could be responsible for it, I feel it my duty to report what I did to the church universal."

Dr. Talmage's description of his departure from Jerusalem is characteristic:

"Now we leave Jerusalem for the long journey north through Palestine. A little way out we get on a hill and took the last look at Jerusalem, and I felt and remarked to the brethren that this last look at that sacred city on earth, and the next Jerusalem we shall see will be the heavenly. We went on within sight of Mizpah and Gibeon, where Joshua commanded the sun to stand still; on by Hazna, connected with Samuel's history; on by the traditional village where the parents of Christ missed their boy, about three and a half miles from Jerusalem. This is the road over which Jesus came and went from Jerusalem to Nazareth. Tonight we camp at Bethel, where was once a school of the prophets, a theological seminary. Elijah and Elisha were here. Near this Abraham and Lot divided the land. Here Jacob, pillowed on a stone, saw the ladder used by angels' feet, and he set up a stone and consecrated it. To-night the heavens were full of ladders—first a ladder of clouds, then a ladder of stars, and all up and down the heavens are the angels of beauty, angels of consolation, angels of God ascending and descending. 'Surely God is in this place,' said Jacob, 'and I knew it not.' But to-night God is in this place, and I know it!"

The doctor has this to say about tradition, history and fact before beginning the real work of the book:

"Are the places that I see in Palestine and Syria and the Mediterranean, lakes the genuine places of Christly, patriarchal and apostolic association? Many of them are not, and many of them are. We have no sympathy with the bedwarfing of tradition. There are traditions contradicted by their absurdity, but if for several generations a sensible tradition goes on in regard to events connected with certain places, I am as certain of the locality as though pen and document had fixed them. Indeed, sometimes tradition is more to be depended on than written communication. A writer may, for bad purposes, misrepresent, misconstrue, misstate; but reasonable traditions concerning places connected with great events are apt to be true. I have no more doubt concerning the place on which Christ was crucified or in which Christ was buried than I have about the fact that our Lord was slain and buried. But suppose traditions contradict each other? Then try them, test them, compare them as you do documents. It is no more difficult to separate traditions, true and false, than apocryphal books from inspired books. Do not use the word tradition as an synonym for delusion. There is a surplus of Christian infidels traveling the Holy Land who are from scalp to heel surcharged with unbeliefs. A tradition may be as much divinely inspired as a book. The scenery of Palestine is interfused, interwisted, interlocked with the Scriptural occurrences. The learned Ritter, who has never been charged with any weakness of incredulity, writes: 'No one can trace without joy and wonder the verification which geography pays to the history of the Holy Land.'

"When the brilliant Renan went to Palestine he was stuffed with enough incredulity to make a dozen Thomas Paines, and yet he gives the following experience: 'The marvelous harmony of the evangelical picture, with the country which serves as its frame, was to me a revelation. I had before my eyes a fifth gospel, imitated but legible; and ever afterward in the recitals of Matthew and Mark, instead of an abstract being that one would say has never existed, I saw a wonderful human figure live and move.' So said an unbeliever. In this visit to Palestine, in the year of our Lord 1890-90, I also find the landscape a commentary. The rivers, the mountains, the valleys, the lakes, the rocks, the trees; the costumes of the Holy Land, agree with Matthew and Mark and Luke and John. The geography and topography are the background of the Gospel pictures. They carry a different part of the same song. Admit Palestine and you admit the New Testament. A distinguished man years ago came here, and returned and wrote, 'I went to Palestine an infidel and came home a Christian.' My testimony will be that I came to Palestine a firm believer in the Bible, and return a thousand fold more confirmed in the divinity of the Holy Scriptures."

Quite as interesting as anything else in the book is this announcement:

"Wandering up and down the chief art galleries of Europe I have looked for a face of the Saviour which I would like to have in my life of Christ. The one I have chosen in preference to all is that executed by a modern artist already widely honored.

"I have no idea that the Fourteenth century, or the Fifteenth century, or the Sixteenth century monopolized all the brain. I think the best music is yet to be composed, the best scul

OFFICIAL CALL.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE
OF THE DEMOCRACY OF NEW JERSEY,
NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 26, 1890.

To the Democratic Representatives and Members:

You are hereby earnestly requested to attend the regular meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic Society of New Jersey, to be held at Democratic State Headquarters, 24 Market street, Newark, on Monday, October 6th next.

The business to be transacted will be of an important character, and your presence is desired.

The meeting will be called to order promptly at 10:30 A. M.

By order of the Executive Committee.

Democratic Congressional conventions at Elizabeth next Monday.

The 29th Essex Congressional convention under the new apportionment will be held at Newark next Monday. The primaries take place in the city Friday night—both republican and democratic being simultaneous with those of the Democrats.

Mr. Daland, of Minnesota, chairman of the house committee on the eleventh census, has introduced a bill in appointment bill on the basis of 356 representatives for the 60,000,000 of population. Under this New Jersey will have the number of Congressmen.

The republican convention of Essex has refused to endorse Governor Abbett's administration. He was opposed by the corporation element, and the Republican ticket is a proper candidate for Democratic votes. Democrats in that county should endorse it cordially.

The Democratic State Committee will meet at the Executive rooms, next Monday evening, at which time and place the time and place for holding the State Convention will be fixed. It is probable that the convention will be held in Trenton, Wednesday, Sept. 24th.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Most of the leading citizens of the state and the newspapers generally appear to oppose the amendment to the constitution which provides for the receipts to the sinking fund of special legislation, and we believe, with them, that it is best to let well enough alone. Railway certainly was a victim of special legislation in times past, and while we might never suffer in the same way again, still it is best not to open the door.

We point below the form of ballot, and as well be seen, it will be necessary to cross off with pen or pencil any portion that is disapproved—hence if the voter desires to vote against the special legislation portion he will cross off the whole of the paragraph in reference thereto. The amendment to article seven is merely a correction of a clerical error by which a provision of the old constitution was left in, which should have been omitted. The way it reads now it provides two ways of appointing Judges of the Common Pleas, by the Governor, with the approval of the Senate, which was the intention of the new constitution, the old way being by joint meeting. It will be proper, therefore, to vote for the last paragraph, as it merely makes a correction. The ballot is the ballot:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Proposed amendments to the Constitution.

For all propositions of this ballot which are not cancelled with pen and pencil and against all which are so cancelled.

For the proposed amendment to article four, section seven, clause two, sub-division three, which reads as follows:—Regulating the internal affairs of towns and counties, appointing local officers or commissions to regulate municipal affairs by municipal the words "regulating the internal affairs of towns and counties," and by changing the word "officers" to "officials" so that the same shall read: "appointing local officers and commissions to regulate municipal affairs."

For the proposed amendment to article seven, section two, clause two, by omitting the words "shall be appointed by the Senate and General Assembly in joint meeting; they" so that the same shall read: "Judges of the Court of Common Pleas shall hold their offices for five years; but may be appointed to fill vacancies; they shall hold for the unexpired term only."

THIRD WARD REPORT.

Judge Magie was at the Court House at 11 o'clock yesterday to receive the report of the Rahway appraisers commissioners for the Third Ward, and to hear any objections to its confirmation. Four persons appeared to object, as follows:

John F. Mills, complaining that he had been damaged more than benefited by the improvement on Seminary street, and had to raise the large amount in hand each year to make his property on account of the change in the street.

Mrs. Richard L. Mann objected for somewhat similar reasons.

Hezekiah Edwards appeared for E. H. Arrandenzen and complained of excessive rate of assessment, stating it to be more than the property is worth, and virtual confiscation. Mr. Edwards, we think was a little extravagant in his statement, as we are informed that Mr. Arrandenzen has been offered for the property a large amount in excess of the assessment figures.

N. Mooney, for Thirza Mooney, protested against the assessment on her property. Mr. Arrandenzen's was considered of too much—as he believed the latter had much less cause for complaint, as a matter of justice.

All these objections were made orally, the Judge confirmed the report as a whole, but granted the objectors a rule to show cause why the report should not be reconsidered, so far as their cases are concerned, returnable in two weeks, written and sworn objections to be filed in the meantime.

The matter, therefore, will come up before him Saturday of next week.

It is not thought there will be found any grounds for reductions, as the complaints generally, by well posted and reasonable citizens, has been that the assessments have reduced such assessments too much.

MISTAKEN.

The Newark Journal recently asserted that the country papers of the state would not oppose the adoption of the proposed constitutional amendment because the adoption would mean greater profits to such papers in the publication of the laws. The Journal like most city papers, has exhibited its ignorance in two respects. In the first place, the country papers—so far as we have noticed are opposing the amendment, and in the next place, if the amendment should be adopted it would not mean the amount to be paid to the papers about one-half: for the act provides that only such laws as affect the respective counties shall be published in the newspapers of such counties, while, at present the law's have to be general and hence are published in all the newspapers which certainly the new papers received about $350 to $500 for a session, at sixty cents a folio, now they receive nearly double the last figures, or an average of sixty cents a folio. The Journal is like many so-called newspaper men in these days, know but very little about the newspaper business, practically.

NOW'S THE TIME.

The editor sat on a hard bottom chair trying to think of a thought, and he plunged all his fingers about through his hair, but not one topic they brought. He had written of temperance, tariff and trade, and the prospects of making a crop, and joked about ice cream and weak lemonade, till his readers had told him to stop. And weary of thinking, deep came to his eyes and he pillowed his head on the desk, when the thoughts which awoke refused to arise, came in troops that were strong and grotesque. And as the ideas airy float, he selects the bright one of the prize: and this is the gem which while dreaming he wrote: "Now is the time to subscribe."

Some of the newspapers have been taking liberties with the name of Hon. Wm. Chamberlain, connecting him with the aspiration for the nomination for different offices on the Republican ticket this fall. Mr. Chamberlain may take the nomination for Assemblyman, but we think his eyes are cast further than the approaching election, for he has never forgiven himself for not taking the nomination for county clerk the last time, and we think he proposes trying to quiet his conscience two years hence when another opportunity will offer in that direction.

The Trenton correspondent of the Ocean County Democrat has the following to say about Union county politics:

Miller, an accidental Republican, goes out of politics. Foster M. Voorhees desires to succeed him, but the local bosses think Voorhees is not malleable enough. Smith will be wise to nominate Voorhees for he is strong with the young Republicans. The Democrats in Union can beat any man but Voorhees, and will make him hustle any way with the brainy young Assemblyman, Fred Marsh.

Westfield, the star of empire, takes its way—Union County Standard.

The Temperance Question

as viewed from various standpoints.

Dear Sir:—I am pleased to see that editorial writers are beginning to discuss the temperance question from the stand-point of "equal rights." I consider you as the natural leader in this movement, and that your ability in Rahway "is the best commodity in the world," to your fellow-citizens.

Now, my dear sir, I am not quite demoralized on this special revelation of your incentive, and will presume to say a few more words to your friend.

You make a statement of being shocked at my efforts in attempting to bring this guerilla form of discussion to some sort of a direct issue. I am willing to leave to the intelligence of our readers whether or not the question at issue was not the one raised by you, for remember, you are the attacking party. If you can put it in better form I am willing.

As to public debate—I gave you an opinion. The inducement of platform discussion is that the debaters can be kept to the question by the chairman, and there is more opportunity to bring out the facts then in a short letter.

As to the time, I offered to find time. In doing this I appear to have touched your sensibilities. I hasten to disclaim, and to say that I am willing to accord you the privilege of showing like liberality.

As to the audience—I am willing to invite the "fanatical secretaries" of whom you appear to be so much afraid, to stay at home until you have had an opportunity to sell the souls and the votes of your friends to the "fanatical drinkers," or even wipers and rumsellers whose you could influence to attend, the better I would be pleased. "They shall be white need not a physician."

It is evident that you are viewing this question from an Ephesinian's stand-point, and know very little about the Temperance Question as it is in America.

Your astute commercial Statesmen Farmer, recognized in America leads in this great reform, and expressed a hope while here, that our experience would be a means of helping England, just as England had put the way in emancipation of slaves. Your designation of the temperance people as "fanatical prohibitionists" is positive evidence that you are in need of further light from an American stand-point.

The word "temperance" has evidently a broader signification to you, and when applied to the Equal Rights Party would invariably mean abstinence. All modern temperance societies are upon a total abstinence basis. You would have a long time to find fellowship in one, and will be permitted to take a trip should you have the inward craving to do so.

Some years ago there was a so-called temperance society that would suit a certain class of would-be-called temperance people. The pledge of membership was that "any member known to have been drunk once would be dismissed." You can find this kind of a society in any saloon almost any day in the week.

I notice that there are now a number of these fanatical speechifiers in Britain also, including Hon. Mr. Linsdale, Neb., recently received a license fee of $1,000 from every saloon, and in 1889 levied a tax at the rate of $400. The same year in the prohibition cities of Topeka, Kas., and Des Moines, Iowa, the rates were $696 and $651, respectively, without any fees from saloons. So we might go on with facts and figures.

Now may I ask a question.—Can you give any figures showing a decrease in drunkenness, pauperism, crime or taxation in the English city of Birmingham, since introduction of the coffee houses, etc?"

I have answered your question, specifically and pointedly and will expect a like response. If we are to discuss in the press let us have some direct issue, keep to the point and let personal recriminations alone.

We find in the Mt. Tabor Record the following reference to a present resident of this city, the act referred to evincing a high degree of filial love as well as devotion to the church of his choice:

The Sumner, Iowa, Gazette, contains an article referring to Mr. J. Malcolm Brookfield's tribute to the memory of his mother and at the same time Liberal present to the Methodist church in that place, the gift of a bell of rich tone. Mr. Brookfield, who is now in business in Rahway, was for several years a resident of Sumner, and since his removal from that place has done much for the struggling church there. The Gazette says he "has by reason of his liberality and interest made manifest in behalf of the membership of this church made for himself a record worthy of emulation by all professing christians."

This bell (weighing 720 pounds) will be tolled on Saturday, Sept. 13th, once for each year of her age. On Sunday, Sept. 14th, there will be held in the church memorial services in her honor. Mrs. Brookfield was one of the mothers in Israel of Mr. Tabor, and her benevolent features and fine erect figure are missed by our people.

The 21st annual Exhibition of the State Agricultural Society will again open the Society's permanent grounds at Waverly Park, on Monday, September the 22nd, and will continue for five days. The grounds of this Society are without question the most substantial and best equipped for exhibition purposes of any fair grounds in the East. The officers of the Society gave us full assurance that the coming exhibition will fully equal, if not surpass any previous fair held by this Society. The different departments are under the charge of competent superintendents, who are held responsible to the officers of the Society for their skilled management. Extra efforts have been made this year to enlarge the display of agricultural implements and farm machinery, a branch that is always of interest to the progressive farmers. In the department, containing the domestic and manufactured articles, there is always to be found an infinite variety of domestic wares, which are both interesting and instructive to farmers' wives and daughters. The art department has been steadily growing in size and popularity, showing at a glance what numerous are doing in artistic and fancy decorations. As a matter of fact we know of no place where a day or two can be spent to greater advantage than on the State Fair Grounds during the week of the Annual Exhibition.

SECOND WARD
Sale of Delinquent Lands for Taxes, Assessments and Water Rates.

OFFICE OF THE CITY TREASURER,
RAHWAY, N. J., Sept. 15, 1890.

Notice is Hereby Given, That the undersigned, City Treasurer and collecting officer of delinquent taxes, assessments and water rates in the Second Ward, pursuant to the authority of the statute in such cases made and provided, will expose for sale on at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the City Hall in said city, certain lots, tracts and parcels of land upon which the taxes, assessments and water rates here-in-after stated and specified by the Commissioners of Adjustment hereinafore appointed under the act passed March 18th, 1868, entitled:

"An act concerning the assessment and collection of assessments and municipal taxes, assessments and water rates or water rents in cities of this state, and regulating and levying of assessments and fees in lieu and instead of such assessments, and to enforce the payment thereof, and to provide for the sale of lands subjected to assessment and assessments," as appears by the certificate of said Commissioners, as approved by the Circuit Court of the County of Union, and filed in this office, all of which taxes, assessments and water rates remain unpaid and are in arrears more than six months.

That the said parcels of the land to be sold may be identified at the sale of the same by the said City Treasurer, on any day prior to the said sale, during business hours.

The following list contains the lot and block numbers of the lots, tracts and parcels of land to be sold, together with the names of the persons against whom the same assessed to said respective lots, tracts and parcels of land, in which the said property is assessed, and the amount of the said taxes, assessments or tract of land. The date at which sale is to be made is fixed for the 8th day of October, 1890.

H. S. LAMONTAGNE,
City Treasurer.

OUR ADVERTISING RATES.

Customers are sometimes inclined to find fault with some of our advertising charges, comparing them with what they may have paid elsewhere, especially in our special departments. In the first place we do not encourage advertising among our local items at any price, and charge Ten Cents a Line for such, for each insertion. In our cent-a-word department we carry out the original idea, as nearly as possible—that is One Cent a Word for each insertion, except when one notice runs a long time, when we make special terms. The lowest priced advertising is not generally the best. Advertisers will please make a note of the above facts and govern themselves accordingly.

Senator Miller was in the city Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Nellie Brokaw, of this city, has been visiting relatives in New York state during the past month.

Mr. Clarence Vescelius, a Pingry graduate of '89, started on Wednesday to take a course at Rutgers College.

Miss Lulu Avery has returned to school after a very pleasant vacation, and enters the graduating class of 1892.

There are a number of cases of influenza about town, probably due to the "spell of weather" we have had during the week.

The depot platform is not in the best of shape and is not up to the high standard of condition of the P. R. R. in general.

Cladek & Smith have the contract to build a new house for Mr. A. J. Hansen, on New Brunswick avenue—Forest Park.

Mrs. Annie Boyce has returned from her summer sojourn in Michigan, and has taken up her abode at the Rahway House.

Harry and Munton Martin, sons of Capt. Jas. W. Martin, of this city, started on Monday for school at Claverack College, New York.

The celebrated Everdale Creamery Butter, the finest manufactured in America, for sale at the New Butter Market, 129 Main street.

Presiding Elder Brice will hold the second quarterly conference of the year at the 2d M. E. church, Friday evening, of this week.

Assistant Postmaster Wright is enjoying a respite from labor for a few days, sojourning at Warwick, N. Y., accompanied by his wife.

Sunday closed the Pennsylvania Railroad's Coney Island season. These excursions have proven immensely popular during the summer.

The veterans of the 14th regiment, several of whom reside in this city, hold their annual reunion Friday of this week at Hopewell, near Trenton.

Regular morning and evening services will be resumed at St. Paul's church next Sunday, and the Rector, Rev. L. W. Norton, will occupy the pulpit.

Governor Abbett and staff will be at the Inter-State Fair on Thursday, October 2d. They will also be accompanied by Governor Biggs, of Delaware.

Miss Hattie M. Kent, of Campbell street, with her sister Mrs. F. M. Miller, of Grand street, and son Robbie, are visiting friends at Newburgh for two weeks.

The grand vocal and instrumental concert at the German Presbyterian church, Irving street, referred to last week, will take place Thursday, Oct. 23rd, at 8 p. m.

Read the new advertisement of Miller, the Tailor. He is always up to the times as to styles and low prices, determined not to be outdone by any outside clothiers.

The new depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Jersey City will, when completed, be the largest passenger depot in the world. Its length will be 256 feet, which is seventeen feet longer than the St. Pancras Station, London, England. The arched roof will be ninety feet high in the centre.

The profuse rains of the past week have been bad for base ball games, picnics and agricultural fairs; in fact it has been a "foul" time for all purposes of enjoyment.

The Misses Allie and Hetty Coleman, sisters of City Clerk Coleman, of Elizabeth, and Miss Grace Coleman, of Dunellen, have been visiting Mr. W. R. Ryno, of Union street.

John Morgan, who frequently gets full and plays his vocal organ, was taken in by officer Conger Saturday afternoon, and Justice Trussler prescribed a dollar and costs, as a remedy.

Franklin Hose Co. No. 2 will commemorate their 34th anniversary by a gathering at the Second Ward Hall, next Monday evening, to which a few friends have been favored with cards of invitation.

Mullins, the great furniture manufacturer and dealer, of Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, and Brooklyn, presents his fall advertisement this week, announcing great bargains in all kinds of furniture.

Mr. P. C. Thruelsen and his son Anton returned last week from their visit to their former home in Denmark, after thirteen years absence. They had a very pleasant visit and look well after their sea voyage.

The sun "crosses the line" next Sunday, at which time we generally expect the equinoxial storm; but it probably came a week in advance this year. At any rate we are satisfied with what we have had this week.

The Union County Roadsters have leased a new house on Wood avenue, Linden, near the R. R. station, which they will occupy as a club house. This makes it convenient for members from Elizabeth and Rahway.

Look out for the new fall and winter advertisement of J. C. Melick & Co., the custom tailors and clothiers, which will appear in these columns next week, the copy being received two late for their space this week.

Mr. Joel Melick, an old gentleman, formerly of Woodbridge, who has made his home in this city for several years, boarding at the Melick House, Mrs. Harned's and latterly with Mrs. J. C. Coddington, died on Saturday, after several months' illness.

Mr. John M. Weldon has arranged for, and will soon have in his store, on Grand street, near Oliver, a long distance telephone pay station. This will be a great accommodation to our uptown citizens, and all in need of any service of this character, should give it their patronage.

The regular monthly meeting of the Womans' Christian Temperance Union, of Rahway, will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 instead of Thursday as in the past. New members, and all friends cordially invited. SECRETARY.

On Tuesday evening, at the home of the bride's parents, corner Oliver and Grand streets, Miss Susie, daughter of Norman Dyke, and Robert Lawrence, were united in wedlock by Rev. J. H. Fields, of the Baptist Mission. Only the immediate friends were present at the ceremony.

The members of Co. F had a very unfavorable day for their picnic Monday. It was to have been held at Eckert's Grove, but the rain prevented, and it was held in the armory; the continued rain still made it unpleasant going and many were deterred from attending.

East Rahway is still progressing, for not only have ready purchasers been found for lots and houses sold under the Martin Act, but its old settlers are making things boom. Among them is jovial John Crockner, the flagman at Scott avenue, at whose house a little stranger arrived last Sunday evening.

The members of the boards of registry of this county are receiving copies of the election laws this week, through the county and city clerks. The officers need not want for evening reading now for some time, as they will find the laws will require several readings in order to familiarize them.

We regret to learn from the Perth Amboy Republican that Mrs. Milton A. Brown, formerly of this city, had a fall on the 28th ult., from which she suffered severe internal injuries, which had confined her to her home up to the time of the last issue of that paper. We join with it in hoping for her speedy recovery.

Durand & Moore (H. L. of this city) opened their Photograph Parlors in Brooklyn, on Monday. We think Mr. Moore will have his hands full, as he has recently been greatly pushed with work at the gallery in this city, having two men employed, and he states he will have to secure additional room for printing.

One night last week, thieves entered the residence of School Commissioner Samuel Williams of Elizabeth, (formerly of this city) and after helping themselves to edibles and drinkables, started to gather together some plunder, but were frightened away by stepping on an electric button in the floor which set the burglar alarm to going.

On the evening of Sept. 6th, a very enjoyable time was participated in by about thirty friends of the temperance cause, who gathered at the residence of Mrs. Samuel Wilson, on Elm avenue, to welcome Mrs. J. T. Ellis, at whose house she was a guest. Music, singing and readings were enjoyed, and lastly refreshments, all of which were duly appreciated.

Rev. Edward Andelfinger, son of George Andelfinger, Esq., of this city, a professor in Latrobe College, Pa., has been spending a portion of his vacation with his relatives here and will preach in St. Mary's R. C. church on Sunday morning. He is reputed to be a very eloquent preacher and his many friends will doubtless be pleased to have an opportunity of listening to him.

The funeral of Dessie, only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. Moeser, of New York city, formerly of Rahway, took place at the 2d M. E. church on Sunday morning last. She had been ill for several months, with lung trouble, and the physician had prepared the minds of the parents for the sad result it being evident for some time that she could not recover. Rev. Mr. Hull preached a very feeling sermon which was listened to by many friends of the family from this and other cities. The interment was at the Rahway cemetery.

A German resident of New York, whose name was not ascertained, in stepping from a train near the Grand street signal tower on Monday morning last, mistaking it for the station, in some unaccountable manner fell through the bridge to the roadway leading into Oliver's coal pockets; he was removed to the office of Dr. Daly where upon examination, it was found that not bones were broken, he having escaped with a badly sprained ankle. He returned to his home in New York, being assisted to the train by Mr. Weber, of Main street.

Mrs. J. William Vail has many rare works from her own hands exhibited on the walls of her beautiful home, "Villa Bell," on St. George's avenue. Mrs. Vail has been a student of Miss S. H. Clark, of Brooklyn, for the past five years, but her early specimens show that she possessed considerable natural talent. She has a complete studio where she would be pleased to meet a few select young ladies of this city on Friday afternoons, in view of forming an art social class, under Miss Clark. We will, probably refer more fully to some of her works in a future issue.

We notice among the arrivals by the "City of New York" last week, Mr. Geo. G. Daland, organist of Trinity church, Elizabeth, who has been spending a season in London studying the voice with Wm. Shakspeare and music with Dr. Hopkins, of Temple church. He spent nearly two months traveling through Germany, Holland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway and a tour through the Lakes and the west coast of Scotland as far as the "Isle of Sky," returning, spending a week coaching through Ireland. His many friends and pupils will be glad to hear of his safe return.

Richard Collens, a brave soldier of the war of the rebellion for many years connected with Bloodgood's Mills, died on Saturday of consumption, from which he has been suffering for some time. During the summer he went to the Adirondacks, hoping to gain relief, but the disease was too deeply seated, and he returned, and as bravely met death as he did the enemy on the field of battle. His wife died only a few months ago, three daughters being left to mourn the death of their parents, occurring so near together. He was a private in the 5th N. J. Vols. Col. Starr, and has been a member of Barry Post G. A. R. and Co. F, of this city.

Woodbridge Warblings.

Mrs. Solace Mitchell, of Jacksonville, Fla., is visiting her mother.

Mr. Lewis Schnabel of White Bear Lake, Minn., is visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Joseph Lockwood is visiting the family of her son, Mr. Fred'k Lockwood, in New York.

The roads are is a bad condition owing to the heavy rains which have been constant this week.

The Middlesex County Sunday School Association is expected to meet in the M. E. church of Woodbridge, Friday of this week. Services to be held in the morning afternoon and evening. Several prominent speakers will make addresses. A committee from the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches has been appointed to look after the entertainment of all visitors who attend the meetings, and every effort has been put forth to make the day a helpful one to all who come.

We are very sorry to announce the death of Mr. T. H. Morris, Sr., which occurred Saturday, Sept. 13th. He was confined to the house but a short time, although he had been ailing much during the summer. He was much beloved by the people of Woodbridge, many of whom attended the Elm Academy, of which he was principal for many years. He was a faithful worker in the Presbyterian church and Sunday School and many there are who will miss his cheerful countenance from their midst. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. McNulty preached the sermon and Rev. W. H. Martin offered prayer. The interment was made in the Presbyterian cemetry.

Westfield Wanderings.

Corn is ready to cut.

High school teacher, Miss Rector, of Jersey City.

Jonas S. Miller has sold his milk route to a Mr. Eichenberg, of Cranford.

A new bridge is being built near J. E. Burtis's livery stable, North avenue.

The poles for the new Telephone line are being rapidly placed in position.

Showers, heavy and often is the order of the day—and night too, for that matter.

Now cometh the fall campaign; get ready for the enumerator and ballot reform.

The Westfields defeated the Crescents of Plainfield, at Somerville, Saturday the 18th. Score 2 to 1.

The Western Union Telegraph Company has a force of men erecting new poles along the line of the railroad.

Take your wife and children to the State Fair, and initiate them in the bewitching mysteries of horse racing, throwing rings for pen knives, and other innocent amusements calculated to deplete the pocket-book.

Need Repairs.

A recent investigation of the boilers at the water works has revealed the fact that for the purpose of assuring safety from accident, extensive repairs were necessary, and at a special meeting held last Friday evening (there having been no meeting at the regular time) the superintendent was instructed to procure an estimate from a competent machinist of the cost of the repairs required. It is found necessary to remove the tubes, on account of accumulated dirt and scale about them, and as such removal destroys the tubes they have to be replaced by new ones. If it were necessary to have new boilers, one side of the house would have to be torn down, as no provision was made when they were put in, for replacing them—and even to take the tubes out a portion of the wall has to be taken down. The master machinist estimate that it will cost $700 to make the repairs necessary, and to thoroughly test the boilers. If they should be found defective, of course, the expense will be greater.

A R. R. Smashup.

A freight and a coal train collided on the Penn. R. R. between Linden and South Elizabeth during Monday night—one train running into the rear of the other. Several cars were thrown from the track and badly broken up, and one of the locomotives also much damaged. The engineers and firemen saved themselves by jumping. The tracks were blockaded for several hours, and the rails and ties torn up and bent in all directions. A defective switch is said to have been the cause. A man giving his name as Patrick Gainor, of London, who was stealing a ride on one of the trains was severely injured and taken to a hospital in New Brunswick.

Miss Gordon's Will Contested.

A contest has been instituted over the will of Mary Agnes Gordon, (daughter of the late George P. Gordon, of Gordon's Press Works, of this city) which was executed in Paris, France, on December 16, 1886. The Mercantile Trust Company is made sole executor and trustee, and is directed to divide the estate, giving one-fifth to Pauline Theresa Reitz and the remainder to Samuel Richard Ruyssenaers of the Chateau de Valkenbery, at Steeg, near Arenhem, Holland. The decedent had no relatives nearer than uncles and cousins. She did not included any of them among her legatees, and some of her cousins have filed objections to the probate of the will, it is stated.

The First Ward Sale.

We last week stated that we would in this give the result of the adjustment sale in the first ward, which was concluded on Thursday afternoon. We find, however, that we underestimated the job and that to give a full report wold require more space than we have to spare, and, also that we could not give a satisfactory report, as the ten days in which to give certificates, on the last sale, will not expire until Saturday; in the meantime many are redeeming their property. We will endeavor next week to give some kind of an intelligible record, where property has been purchased and not redeemed.

Trim the Trees!

Many of the property owners have failed to trim the trees in front of their premises in the city, by the first of September, in accordance with the notification of the street commissioner. During the storm the past week these untrimmed trees have been a great nuisance to pedestrians and many complaints have been made. The street commissioner will proceed at once to do the trimming, and the expense will be charged against the property. Those who prefer to do it themselves should act at once, before the commissioner reaches them.

Mrs. Nancy Baker, of Westfield, passed the one hundredth anniversary of her birthday Monday, at the house of her daughter, Mrs. Geo. W. Moore, in Plainfield. A reunion of her descendants, comprising four generations, was held in honor of her birthday. Mrs. Baker was born near Springfield. She has not left the neighborhood of her birthplace at any time during her lifetime, and lives now upon a farm situated but four miles from the home of her infancy. Although living less than forty miles from the ocean, Mrs. Baker has never seen the Atlantic or any of its larger tributaries. She has excellent eyesight and uses no glasses. She drinks a half cup of strong coffee or tea at every meal. Her countenance is almost free from wrinkles, her voice is strong and her memory of dates unimpeachable. Even at her advanced age, Mrs. Baker manages a farm of twelve acres, upon which are yearly grown profitable crops.

The Westfield Athletic club will inaugurate its first Tennis Tournament on the club grounds at Westfield, N. J., on the dates of October 2d, 3d, and 4th, 1890. There will be handsome silver cups offered for first and second prizes in singles and doubles, besides special prizes. The tournament will be open to the players of any Union County Club. In connection with this tournament there will be an open match for singles between several of the world's crack players. Entries of contestants for the different prizes will be received by Frank T. Lent at the above address, Mr. Lent having charge of the arrangements. The entrance fee for each event will be $2.00 and must accompany each entry. The entries must be received by the management not later than September 25th.

Miss Millie Tappen will open a primary school for girls and boys, Sept. 22nd, at her residence, 281 Milton ave. s12-3t

Police News.

Wm. Murphy, a laborer, a newcomer, was arrested by officer Conger on Friday for being drunk and disorderly; he was let off by the payment of costs.

Officer Dunham arrested John Callahan on Saturday afternoon for being drunk and disorderly. He was sentenced by Judge Trussler to give the station house a thorough cleaning.

Special Caleb W. Ward arrested James McDonald, of New Dover, at the depot, on Tuesday afternoon, for disorderly conduct in that vicinity. He was fined $2 and costs, which he paid, and departed Wednesday morning.

"Camp" Coffey and James Cunningham were arrested by special Jos. VanPelt Saturday night for fighting and disturbing the peace at the depot. They appeared before Judge Trussler on Sunday morning, and he let them go upon payment of $4 fine and costs.

Wm. Hughes, claiming Jersey City as his residence, was arrested by officer Dunham on Cherry street, Monday morning, for drunkenness. A razor was found in his possession with the initial "H" on it, and it was learned that he had stolen it from Pomerebne's barber shop, and belonged to Mr. Herbert Stiles. He was committed to the county jail by Judge Trussler, to appear before the sessions.

Richard Casner, alias Rosencrans, a baker, employed by Mr. Hedeman for about a month, was arrested by officer Conger, on Saturday night, on complaint of Sebastian Schott and another baker at the same place. Casner was about to leave, and Schott missed $22 from a valise which had been broken open. There were four five dollar bills and a two dollar bill. The money paid Casner by Mr. Hedeman was in ones and twos. Four five dollar bills were found upon him and he had $24 in the small bills, which was strong circumstantial evidence, though he denied the theft. He had a hearing on Monday, and the complainant positively identifying one of the bills, Justice Trussler committed him to the county jail, in default of bail. He is from New York, and has been in this country only about two months.

A stranger, with strange actions appeared in this city Saturday night, attracting the attention of the officers, and Chief Tooker watched his movements until about three o'clock Sunday morning, when the Chief concluded it was time he was taken care of, and arrested him. He claimed to be a professional base ball pitcher, and a detective, and went to Mr. Hedeman's shortly after the arrest noted elsewhere, and said a baker had knocked down and robbed a woman in New York, killing her, and that the baker was in the employ of Hedeman. He also insulted a lady at the depot, and his last exploit was to jump on a train and jump off again after running through the cars, after which he was arrested as above. At the hearing he gave his name as John Stark, said his father was a carpenter in Elizabeth, and that he had served time in prison in New York and Trenton. He was fined $10 and costs, for disorderly conduct, and was committed to the county jail in default of payment. He is evidently "not right in his head."

The police department has been doing quite a "little country business" during the past week as will be seen by the above, and the officers have shown a commendable determination to preserve good order, and bring all offenders to justice.

Real Estate Transfers.

We quote the following recent transfers of real estate in this vicinity, as recorded in the county clerk's office—those referring to the R. R. Co., are the results of the suit we referred to some time ago in which the court decided that the railroad had infringed upon certain lands of the property owners named:

Charles Avery and wife to the United New Jersey Railroad & Canal company, 352 square feet of land on line of said railroad in Rahway, $1,410.

William McMahon to same 240 square feet of land $960.

Squire Radley and wife, of Westfield, to same 315 square feet of land in Rahway, $1,260.

Blandina C. Underhill, exrx., John U. Underhill, to Stewart C. Shann of Plainfield, following tracts in Rahway, viz.: One lot on Grand street, four on Bond street, eleven on Lincoln avenue, two on Underhill place, eleven and a half on Whittier street, $115.

James R. English, special master in chancery, to Anna E. Newhall, land on n. s. of Milton avenue, Rahway, owned by Arthur D. Mansfield and wife, and sold at public auction by special master, 100x150 feet, $5,750.

Annie L. Farrell and husband to Susan D. Moore all of Rahway, lot in Rahway on n. s. Cherry street, 35x156 feet, $594.

Caroline Blancke and husband Ferdinand of Linden, to Archibald Mitchell, sr., of Providence, R. I., three acres land in Linden township, $279.

Rosa Sloan to Micheal Connors, both of Rahway, land on s. s. Bond street, Rahway, 660 feet from Grand street, 100x25 feet, $450.

Frederick Ritter and August Ritter, exrs., to Marcus J. Ritter, lot on Main street, Rahway, 20½x68 feet, $1,150.

Lettie C. Potter and husband to Emily S. Crowell, lot on s. e. side Fulton street, 163 feet from Milton avenue, 50x97 feet, $1,400.

Emily S. Crowell and husband to Maggie T. Savage, of Woodbridge, same tract, $1.

Silas P. Leonard and wife to Rufus N. Edgar, lot on Blancke avenue, Linden, 30x100 feet, $75.

Sarah E. Ludlow and husband to Phebe C. Edgar, Ursula M. Edgar, Anna W. Edgar and Mary W. Edgar, lot near Brunswick avenue, 95x215 feet, $175.

Frank M. Stillman to Sherman O. H. Mills, lot on Jaques avenue, 62x182 feet, $1.

Joseph B. Oliver to Ella W. Oliver, 4,920 square feet of land on Seminary street and lot on Oliver street, $2,000.

William L. Pierson and others, to Hannah P. Fowler, land on Grand street, $1.

Another Claim Against the Frazee Lee Estate.

Suit has been commenced against John H. Jackson and Monroe B. Long, the executors of the late Frazee Lee, to recover $2,100, which Charles E. Abbott & Son, claim Frazee Lee owed them for services performed for him. They allege that Lee, on April 2, 1883, at Rahway and Elizabeth did confess the indebtedness and promised them that their services should be paid in full. He died not long afterwards and his executors ignored the claim. City Attorney Berry is counsel for the plaintiffs, and the case will be tried at the January term of the Union County Court, it is expected.

Editor of the National Democrat:

The taxpayers of the first ward would like to know in what manner the old planks from the Monroe street bridge were disposed of by the resident Freeholders. Were they auctioned off to the highest bidder according to custom, or for repairing political fences? Or are they held in reserve for temporary repairs? If so would it not be well to apply a few of them in fending off the bottomless pit at the Milton avenue drawbridge which is not only an eye sore, but a menace to life and limb of the unlucky wayfarer, in that section after dark. The influence our Freeholders would have with the board, which was claimed for them before election, has evidently not been used to any great extent in this direction and but little time is left them in which to make a record.

FIRST WARDER.

Bethel A. M. E. Church.

Upon good authority it is understood that the ladies of St. Paul's church have donated a pulpit to be placed in our new church when the building is ready to receive it. Subscriptions to help us do this are now in order. Among those who have already subscribed to our building fund since June 1st, 1890, we note the following: Dr. E. B. Silvers, Dr. J. J. Daly, Mr. W. C. Squier, Mr. Wm. McMahon, Mr. C. Marsh and others, to whom we are duly grateful and hereby publicly express our thanks. We have $85 dollars now in the bank and hope to make that over $100 by our own efforts the last Sunday in this month. The subscription list is now open at the DEMOCRAT office for those who wish to give us something to help pay for getting the church enclosed, and their names will be printed as fast as they come in each week. We wish to publish the names so that they may know we intend to deal justly with them.

BASE BALL.

THE RIDGEWOODS DEFEATED IN A FIVE INNING GAME—4-0.

Saturday was a bad day for base ball throughout the country, many of the games being postponed or only partly played out. It was a question with the management all the morning as to the advisability of a postponement, but rather than disappoint the patrons of the game, they took the chances of its raining.

In view of the disagreeable weather and the uncertainty of there being a game, a good crowd was in attendance, not a small part of which was ladies.

The Rahways had for their opponents the strong team of the Ridgewoods. They had come prepared for battle for they put their strongest nine in the field, in the hope of reversing the defeat they received when last here.

The rain held off for four innings and during these not a fielding error was made on either side, but Rahway got a man across the plate through a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Before the fifth inning was commenced it began to rain and the Rahways scored three runs. The inning was played out, but the game was called at its conclusion.

Rahway, as usual, went first to the bat, and W. Paasch was the first man to face Livingston. He struck out. Burns followed and hit the ball in the same place; then A. Paasch hit a little grounder to second and was out at first.

The Ridgewoods started in as though they meant business. Ryman made a clean single and reached second a moment later. Gatens then hit to Murphy and was out at first. Ryman tried to reach third on the play but was put out by the Paasch brothers. Evens then lined it out for a base, and Haley did the same, but Fritz hit a grounder to Murphy, and that settled it.

In the second inning both sides were blanked, although Murphy got as far as third for Rahway, and Landman to second for the visitors, but none making base hits.

In the next inning Parsons and W. Paasch failed to knock the cover off the ball and Reilly's fly was caught by that excellent fielder Ryman. Ridgewood got just as many runs as Rahway did, and six round marks adorned the score card.

Burns led off in the fourth inning with a safe one to center field and stole all the way round to third. A. Paasch flew out to second. Meehan had three strikes on him, but the ball got by Haley, and he reached first. Burns tried to score on this play but was put out. Meehan then stole second and went to third on a passed ball. He scored the first run of the game when Livingston made a wild pitch, and got in just in time, as Murphy retired the side by striking out. The Ridgewoods went out in one-two-three order.

It had now commenced to rain, and good ball playing was out of the question, but both teams stuck pluckily to their work. The two errors charged to the Ridgewoods should really not count, as they were made in consequence of the wet ball.

After Livingston had hit Dillon with a pitched ball in the commencement of the fifth inning, he gave way to Landman, but the latter was unsteady and sent the next two batters to first, filling the bases. Reilly then made a hit and Dillon and Simmens scored, Parsons going to second. Livingston then fumbled W. Paasch's grounder, and the bases were full. Burns hit a short fly to center field and Ryman muffed it, but the latter threw to third and caught Parsons. Burns supposed that Ryman had caught the ball and walked back from first, and the pitcher getting the ball touched him with it and he was out. A. Paasch made a base hit and Reilly scored, but W. Paasch tried to come home on the hit and was put out on his endeavor to return to third.

The Ridgewoods went out in the order of their batting, then the umpire called the game.

The features of the game were the splendid team work of the Rahways and the battery work of Burns and Meehan, while the Ridgewoods did almost equally as well.

A game between these nines on a clear day should be as interesting an exhibition of base ball as can be witnessed anywhere, as both teams stand at the head of semi-professionals and they are very evenly matched.

While but five innings were played, it is a singular fact that their first baseman put out only one man.

The score was as follows:

The managers have decided not to try another date with the lady ballists, after two interferences by the Jupiter Pluvius.

Much interest will be centered in the game on Saturday when the Rahways will again meet the Perth Amboys, and it is expected the home team will retrieve themselves for the loss of the previous game.

The Plainfield Crescents still decline to make a date with the Rahways. We are informed that their friends give the excuse that they are afraid to come to Rahway for fear they will be mobbed, etc., because there has been so much said in the papers about them. They need have no fear on that score. We are not barbarians. They would be received as gentlemen by gentlemen.

NEW YORK,
September 15th, 1890.

One of the earliest demands of Autumn trade is for Boys' school suits. We do not make up a grade of goods that can be sold profitably in Boys' suits for $4 or $5. It is not possible to produce strictly reliable clothes at so low a cost, and we are out of the race for merely "cheap" clothes. We never knowingly offer a garment that is not capable of earning its price in satisfactory service.

But, nevertheless, we have $4 and $5 suits for school boys. We get 'em by marking down the small lots carried from last year. In that way we "kill two birds with one stone." Prevent accumulation of stock, and supply customers with a better quality of clothes than they can otherwise obtain for so low a price.

Free deliveries to all points within one hundred miles of New York City.

But the chief priests and the scribes and the chief of the people sought to destroy Him." The next two chapters will give us a record of His teachings during these days, but it is more fully recorded in Matt. xxi. 23. He exposed their sin, the heartlessness of their hypocrisies, foretold more fully the coming judgments, and made many references to His return in power and glory. But as far as the chief of the people, either in civil or religious matters, were concerned, His preaching fell on deaf ears and hearts full of hatred for Him and His teachings.

PHUNNY-GRAPHS.

One Mary had a little man
Whose name was Antonio;
And every where that Mary goes
That man is sure to go.

He followed her abroad one day
And on the other side
He won her heart and then her hand.
And made her there his bride.

"What makes the man love Mary so?"
The wondering people cry,
"Cause Mary loves the man, you know—
Jehoshaphat! Oh, my.

Montana, Oregon and Washington.

The Northern Pacific Railroad passing through Minnesota, Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington, was the first line to bring the region occupied by these states into communication with the east. Its main line and branches penetrate all sections of these states, reaching nineteenths of the chief cities. It is the short line to Helena and Butte, Mont.; Spokane Falls, Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., and the only line running through train service from the east through the states of Montana and Washington. Pullman Sleepers and furnished Tourist Sleeping Cars are run via the Wisconsin Central and Northern Pacific, and Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars via Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Northern Pacific from Chicago through to the Pacific Coast without change. This is the Dining Car and Yellowstone Park route.

The large travel on the Northern Pacific line necessitated the inauguration in June 1890, of a second through train to the Pacific Coast, thus enabling this road to offer the public the advantage of two through trains daily to Montana and points in the Pacific Northwest, carrying complete service of sleeping cars, dining cars and regular day coaches. The train leaving St. Paul in the morning runs via the recently completed Air Line of the Northern Pacific through Butte, Mont., making this the shortest line to the latter point by 120 miles.

Colonists for Washington, Oregon and British Columbia points should take no other line than the Northern Pacific, as by this line only can all portions of the state of Washington be seen. Stopovers are allowed on second class tickets at Spokane Falls and all points west, enabling settlers to inspect the country without extra expense.

For Maps, Time-Tables and Illustrated Pamphlets, or any special information desired, address your nearest ticket agent, or Chas. S. Fee, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Harvest Excursions.

Take advantage of the cheap excursions offered by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, to points in Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Arkansas, Indian Territory, Texas, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Minnesota, Northwestern Iowa, South and North Dakota, Montana and Colorado, at the low rate of one fare for the round trip. Tickets for these excursions will be sold on Tuesdays, Sept. 9 and 23, and Oct. 14, 1890. They are first-class and good 30 days for return passage.

If you want to see the country, or secure a home in the Great West, don't neglect this opportunity. Be sure that your tickets read via the C., R. I. & P. Ry., which has its own lines to principal points in many of the above-named States.

For rates and full particulars address A. B. Farnsworth, G. P. A., 257 Broadway, New York City, or Jno. Sebastian, G. T. & P. Agt., Chicago, Ill.

Home Seekers' Excursions.

ONLY THREE MORE OF THEM WILL LEAVE CHICAGO AND MILWAUKEE VIA THE CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & ST. PAUL RAILWAY.

For points in Northern Iowa, Minnesota, South and North Dakota, (including the Sioux Indian Reservation, in South Dakota,) Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska, on September 9 and 23, and October 14, 1890. Half rate excursion tickets, good for thirty days from date of sale.

For further information, circulars showing rates of fare, maps, etc., address, George H. Heafford, First Assistant General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill., or John R. Pott, Traveling Passenger Agent, Williamsport, Pa.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, and am now on my third bottle, and able to resume the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

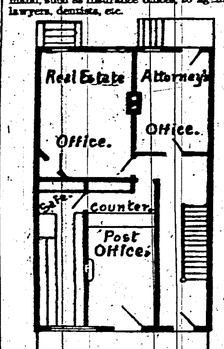
Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Samples bottles ten cents, at Brown & Smith's drug store.

A GOOD COMBINATION.

Store, Post-office and Dwelling Under One Roof.

This building was designed as a post-office and stationer's store in a small village, near a railroad station and frosting on the principal business street. The building is 22 feet wide by 36 feet deep, with a broad stoop in front with steps from the street. There are two rooms in the first story at the rear of the post-office and store, with a private door and hall from the porch connecting with each. The larger room could be used for a real estate office and the smaller one for an attorney's office. There are two good sized chambers, bathroom and two small bedrooms with closets in the second story. These rooms can be let for lodgers only, or the smaller room in the rear could be utilized as a kitchen and the larger chamber as a dining room, and the two front rooms as required. The larger room on first story could be used as a parlor and the smaller room as a bedroom, and this arrangement would accommodate a small family nicely; or the structure could be used as an office building, and the chambers and bedrooms would then be let as circumstances might demand, such as insurance offices, to agents, lawyers, dentists, etc.

COMBINATION STORE, POST-OFFICE AND DWELLING.



FIRST STORY.

The design calls for a brick front trimmed with stone, but could be erected in wood if desired. The design is pretty, and would become an ornament to the street in which it is erected. The roof of course is flat, covered with tin in the usual way, as also the roof of the porch. The interior of the postoffice and stationery store is finished in yellow pine left natural color of the wood. The front window and door have border lights of small panes of glass which give a pretty effect. The letter boxes and lock boxes are of neat design, tastefully finished, all with suitable shelves, etc., for packing, stamping and distributing the mail. The chimney in second story is supported on brackets from below, extending below the ceiling of the first story sufficiently to admit a thimble for a stovepipe to heat the store. There is a cellar under the building, 6 feet 6 inches deep in the clear, with a concrete bottom 3 inches deep.

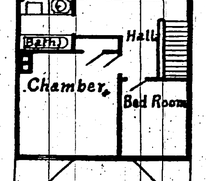
The chimney in the rear of the store extends from the bottom of the cellar and rests on concrete footings. All rooms except the store are plastered, three coat work, the last coat hard finished with plaster of Paris and finishing lime putty troweled smoothly. All the woodwork except the doors is of yellow pine, finished with two coats of hard oil. The doors are finished with three coats of Crocket's preservative, all with Berlin bronze butts, with furniture to match. The hand rail and newels of the stairs are of cherry, strings, steps and risers of yellow pine. The cornice of galvanized iron.

The building is so arranged that it can be heated by a furnace.

The cost of this building in brick would be about $6,000 in the suburbs of New York; in wood it would cost in the neighborhood of $3,500.

DAVID W. KING.

Fans are powdered with flowers as well as dresses. A white gauze fan was covered with single violets and edged with the leaves of the same flower. A delicate pink gauze fan was painted with wild strawberry blossoms and fruit, and a few artificial blooms were loosely stitched on.



SECOND STORY.

A Trip to Mexico and California.

The best way of all to see Mexico and California is to take the Santa Fe Route. The distance by this line is the shortest, the time the quickest, the service the best. Through Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars are run daily between Chicago and the City of Mexico, and Tourist Sleeping Cars are run through to San Francisco three times a week. Personally conducted excursions leave Chicago every Thursday, Pullman cars through without change. Rate as low as by any other line. Correspondingly low rates to all points in California, Mexico and the Mexican Gulf ports. Two fast trains daily between Chicago and Kansas City. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Galveston. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Denver. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Pueblo. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Colorado Springs. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Deming, N. M. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and El Paso, Texas. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Albuquerque, N. M. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Phoenix, Arizona. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Los Angeles, Cal. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and San Francisco, Cal. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Ogden, Utah. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Salt Lake City, Utah. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Portland, Oregon. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Tacoma, Wash. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Seattle, Wash. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Helena, Mont. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Butte, Mont. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Cheyenne, Wyo. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Omaha, Neb. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Minneapolis, Minn. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and St. Paul, Minn. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Duluth, Minn. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Chicago. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Peoria, Ill. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Toledo, O. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Detroit, Mich. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Buffalo, N. Y. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and Boston, Mass. Two fast trains daily between Kansas City and New York City.

Through the weird shadows of Tehachapi Pass, the grand central basin of the Golden State is seen spread out like a beauteous mirage upon the northern vista. Lake Tulare is here at the left. At Bernda you take the sleeper for Raymond, where stages will to carry you into the wondrous Yosemite; and at Lathrop you take the train for Sacramento, from which point divergent lines transport you to Mt. Shasta, Lake Tahoe, and the base of the inspiring dome of Shasta. Proceeding directly from Lathrop we soon catch the first glimpses of the Golden Gate, and, crossing the beautiful bay, approach the city of the Pacific—San Francisco.

While at San Francisco do not fail to visit the Geysers, Santa Cruz, Monterey, and other places of resort and pleasure in or contiguous to the city. The Southern Pacific Company, with its steamer lines, can offer you 12,328 miles of travel on its own property: to Florida and Havana, to Central America or Vera Cruz, by water; and by rail from New Orleans to the City of Mexico or to Portland, Oregon, through Texas, Mexico, Arizona, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento, and thence over the beautiful Mt. Shasta Route.

A journey to Japan or China, Australia, New Zealand, or Honolulu, or "Round the World," can be arranged by any of our agents, and the fullest information given as to prices of Tickets, Sleeping Car or Freight rates.

Special parties, semi-monthly, are managed by the Southern Pacific Company's "Sunset Route" by which cheap fares with tourist sleeping cars can be obtained.

For maps free descriptive illustrated pamphlets, address E. HAWLEY, Assistant General Traffic Manager, 343 Broadway, or L. H. NEVILLE, Eastern Passenger Agent, Southern Pacific Company, 1 Battery Place, New York.

Our European Agent, Rudolph Falck, at Hamburg, Liverpool or London, can similarly assist parties from any portion of Europe who desire to go to California, Texas or Mexico. We meet all such passengers consigned by Mr. Falck on their arrival in New York, and arrange every detail as to baggage, sleeping cars, etc., and see that they are safely and comfortably started on their journey. 7tf

Vacation's Up AND School Open

This is the season for a brisk demand in CHILDREN'S CLOTHING. During the months of Summer enjoyment they have played the dickens with their clothes, and usually have little left fit to appear in school with.

We have always made the clothing of the little ones a speciality, and this Fall we shall strengthen our well deserved reputation of keeping the best stock of these goods in Newark. You'll find it to be money in your pocket and the saving of no end of trouble to come straight here with your children and fit them out for the coming season. We can not only show you all the styles to be met with elsewhere, but many novel conceits which we have had designed exclusively for us. Our prices for the newest styles are no greater than you'll pay for the old ones, and as to reliable work there isn't a store in the country that is more particular than we are, especially in children's goods. We know, in advance, the strain to which the little garments will be put, and every safeguard against a sudden coming from together is taken advantage of.

It's a pleasure to talk children's clothing just now; it's a pleasure to show it. We've got something to show and talk about.
