CHAPTER L

Antony Blake left the office of Rumril & Co. a good deal disappointed. He was himself a shrewd and intelligent fellow He had secured the patents on his nev invention, and was ready to proceed with the manufacture. He had carried the papers, the drawings his model machine to Rumrill & Co., and they had them i consideration. They now offered hir $800 for the whole thing if he would turn it all over to them. He had pro posed one and another scheme by which he should go into business as a partner with them. These had been referred by the managing partner to the Mr. Jorkins behind the scene, who was an imaginar person created for the purpose of saying no when the managing partner wa ashamed to. Practically all these scheme had been refused, and Antony was now to take the $800 or nothing. This was not his first experience in sucl business. He knew by this time that the people who bring things before the pub lic, be they inventions, be they books o be they ideas, generally expect to be well paid for doing so, and he knew that the system of co-operation, which people are hoping for and praying for, was by n means yet established. With some bit terness of feeling, it must be confessed though he was a good natured fellow enough, he walked down the street Tamworth considering whether lie would take the $800 and be done with it, o whether he would go to Pittsburg and see if there were better chances there. Antony Blake did not believe in debt and he knew how to live on a very little money, but for all that he had very little money in store, and he certainly did no have the $10,000 which would be neces sary for him if he were to equip a little machine shop of his own, and make hi own automatic car coupler. But, as happened, he was a person well esteemed in the whole community of Tamworth as he deserved to be. I should like to know, however, how much of this esteem he owed to one queer circumstance. While he had t start in life with absolutely no propert it happened that he did hold as truste for his mother some bonds which he considered worthless in the second issue of the Cattaraugus and Opelousas railroad These bonds had long, since been taken off all lists known to brokers, and it was long since any coupons had been paid Still the Cattaraugus and Opelousas ex isted, and there were sanguine people among whom his mother was one, who supposed that at some time paymen would be resumed. Antony, being he trustee, had, to keep these bonds some where, and he had been notified by legal advisers that he must keep them in one of the security vaults which are now established in all the considerable cities. He had hired a modest safe at the Amicable of Tamworth, and at the Amicable you have the facilities of a charming reading room, where are all the new magazines, where you can wash your hands if you need, you can make an appointment with a friend, you can write a note on the Amicable's paper. These facilities are thrown been to you because you have hired, perhaps for only $10 a year, a safe in that bank.

Antony had found that here was by far the best club room in Tamworth. In that city they have what is known as the "Strangers' Rest" well developed; you can go in and pay ten cents an hour for along his lands southerly one hundred feet, more or less to said line of LaFayette street; thence along said LaFayette street easterly one hundred and thirty-two feet, more or less, to the many feet and thirty-two feet, more or less, to the many feet and thirty-two feet, more or less, to the many feet and thirty-two feet, more or less, to the many feet and thirty-two feet, more or less, to the many feet cents an flour for all the comforts of a club room, and then go out again. But Antony found that, in the long run, $10 a year was cheaper the cents an flour for all the comforts of a club room, and then go out again. for him than the Strangers' Rest at ten cents an hour, and what I should like to room of the Amicable. He suspected himself that it gave him these advantages, and he was careful not to presume on them. He took care not to sit there writing letters in times when a business man would be at his counting room; he only looked in there of November, 1890, the unknown owner or owners, mortgagees and all other persons interested in the above described lands and premise; are required to redeem the same or in default there of to appear before said Court, at the Court House, intrine ity of Elizabeth, on Wedcesian, the Twenty-seventh day of May, 1991, at ten oclock in the forencian, them and there to show cause, if any they have, why a deed should not be made and delivered by the Treasurer of the City of Rahway of said lot of land above decired to the inderestored of the legal representation.

KERO COFFEY, ly revenue comes to the initiated with out much cracking of their finger nails or griming of their hands On this particular morning Antony was obliged to break his rule. It was inst the hour when he should not ordinarily have gone to the Amicable. It was seldom indeed that he had any occasion to look at his mother's bonds in his safe, for they were as worthless one month as they were another. But to preserve the respectabilities of the place it had been his habit to have his safe

The most honorable and virtuous warders are selected by the most ingenious and highly approved competitive examigate and you are personally known to the warder, who speaks to you cordially and opens the gate to you, as he would not do if you were one of those unknown loafers who have no safe in the security vault. You pass through this prison gate joyfully, for you know it is no prison to you. You tell him that the day is fine. or that it is rainy, as it may happen, and pass on till you come to another gate and another warder. You tell him that it is fine, or that it is rainy, as before. He also calls you by name, and says that you are looking well, and you enter a second passage. This passage is provided with little catacombs or columbaria, precisely like those under or near the city of Rome, except that these are much smaller, and that those catacombs have now no doors, but in the security vaults each catacomb has a little iron door, and these doors are numbered. You remember by mnemonic processes known to yourself what is the number of yours; the number of Antony's was 4,927. You meet in this passage a smiling gentlemanly friend, who also calls you by name, expresses his hope that you are well, and tells you what the weather is. You also tell him. These are not passwords, but they are the civilities of the occasion. You then mention to him, in a whisper if you please, the number of your box. He affects to remember—does remember, perhaps and with his key adjusts the lock of your catacomb. But please to observe he cannot open the catacomb, because he has not your key. Your key has been given to you long since when you hired your catacomb. You then open the catacomb with your key, which you cannot do till he has first turned his key in the lock. In the catacomb you find a long, narrow tin box, unless you should be a very Edith Lane. How it happened that they great don. In that case you have a box. Poor Edith was distressed and pained to be out of order, but being an ingenious person it happened that he had a little skeleton key with him, and with this he threw open the lock of the box. He saw in a moment that it was not his box. The securities in it were those of the C., K. and W., C., B. and Q., B., C. and D.—securities, many of the many and the securities in the dock of them, absolutely "gilt edged" in the dock of them, absolutely "gilt edged" in the dock of the community not fo say her duties in the care of your own affairs before in the form of which and pained the newels, rails and ballsters of stairs; in the newels, rails and ballsters of wood work of man, the new new new newels, the newels, rails and ballsters of wood wood coursel, but how much worke of stairs, in the newels, rails and ballsters of wood wood coursel, but how much worke of wood coursel, but how much worken file and two coats, best copal varnish.

But all of them had been imported from New York to carry on the Amicable, which was a new enterprise in Tamworth so that he had not made their acquaintance other than officially. In the second place, as occurred to him now for the first time; he should have gone to the head center before if he meant to go at all. He should have gone when his little key did not open the bond box. He should not have picked the lock of a box which, as he now knew, was not his with his little skeleton key. In the third place, he was not sure whether he should best advance the ends of justice by going to the head center. He could say that his $100 were not in his, box. But here were securities of three or four hundred times as much worth; and, as he well knew, there was not any one outside an idiot say lum who would steal the Cattaraugus and Ope-A SUMMER COTTAGE. Designs Which Could Be Carried Out in Either Swiss or English Style. Copyright by American Press Association.] The accompanying illustrations represent alternate designs for a summer cottage, with but a slight modification in the plans. The first design is what is termed the "Swiss cottage style" of architecture adapted, of course, to the requirements of an American family. Its characteristic features are the low pitched roof and open timber work, wide projections of cornices, details of brackets, veranda, etc., and is most appropriate for hilly or sugged scenery. The first story contains a large staircase, hall, parlor, with a pretty bay window;

On the inside of the inner case is the following inscription:
"Presented to Thos. O'Donnell by a lady whose life he saved at the risk of his own, at Iselin, N. J., Sept. 1888... The lady is evidently in easy circumstances, judging from the handsome Christmas presents she has sent her rescuer. In 1888 he received a heavy gold-headed cane, and last year a heavy diamond inger ring, and pin, and now a much more expensive token, which is one of Tiffany's best, valued all the way from $300 to $700—the express receipt fixing the former figures. It was sent in care of Supt. Crawford, who sent word for Mr. O'Donnell to come to his office, where he was surprised by the handsome present that awaited him, though he had been apprised by a letter written in a beautiful hand, equal to engraving, that something of the kind was in store for him. Mr. O'Donnell's many friends appreciate, with him, these value friends appreciate, with him, these valuable gifts, and only regret that he is in ill health, so as to be unable to regularly attend to his duties. The following is a copy of the letter: FIFTH AVENUE, Dec. 22nd, 1890. IR. THOS. O'DONNELL. Dear Sir: Again another year has rolled around on the calendar of life and by the will of the Divine Providence we still remain although we can observe thousands of changes in the various spheres of life. Only five years old and over two million of these lamps in use. It must be a GOOD lamp to make such a telling success. Indeed it is, for lamps may come and lamps may go; but the "Rochester" shines on forever! We make over a,000 artistic varieties,—Hanging and Table Lamps, Banquet, Study, Vase and Piano Lamps, every kind, in Bronze, Porcelain, Brass, Nickel and Black Wrought Iron.

Ask the lamp dealer for it. Look for the trade-mark stamp: "The Robussten." If he hasn't the genuine Rochester and the style you want, or if no lamp-store is pear, send to us for free illustrated catalogue (and reduced price-list), and we will box and send you any lamp safely by express, right to your door.
