to revitalize downtown Staff Writer

The changes to it may not have been called radical, still, the changes to the city's Master Plan this week are the first since 1973. The changes, approved by the Planning Board on Tuesday, are centered on the downtown area and are focused toward revitalizing this area. The downtown, once a central retail area, has received increasing competition from shopping malls and centers.

But the Master Plan will also affect the rest of the city, mainly through zoning changes. The Master Plan will now be passed to the City Council, which will pass a number of zoning ordinances based on the Master Plan. "It was really balancing sustainable economic growth with quality of life," said Richard Preiss, Preiss, of Abeles, Phillips, Preiss and Shapiro, is a consultant brought in by the city to help with changes to the 1973 Master Plan. The changes in the downtown area have been called the only major ones to the city as a whole. This will become a historical district, though not registered with the state or federal government. ncludes changes to building codes in the downtown area and recommendation for a historical commission that would review permits and changes to buildings to keep changes in "historic context." According to the Master Plan, the downtown area will be the site for more . 'esoteric" shops, shops that would not fit in a large shopping mall. These include ethnic restuarants, specialty stores and, on the fringes of the downtown area. live-in shops for artists and artisans. This also includes a large zoning change in the northeast end of the district. This will be changed to a central business zoning Highway Business, which is intended for "automobile-oriented" businesses like hotels, gas stations and drive-through businesses. Preiss said that the downtown area is already in a Special Improvement District; businesses there already pay a special fee, worth a certain percentage of their property taxes, to make changes in the downtown area. The Rahway Business Partnership in the downtown area could not be reached for comment, but " Preiss did not anticipate any changes in this fee to implement changes there, Preiss said that, outside the downtown area, not much will change. The Master Plan reportedly "picks up on development trends" that are already taking place in Rahway. The overall character of the city has not changed, with businesses and indus-

Pass the test In November, the City Council was advised to reinstitute testing for lead contamination via a letter from Robert Carson of the Rahway Lead Screening Group. Carson followed up by addressing the city government with concerns about continuing what is known as an outreach program. The program gathers information about the health status of the city's children, alerts parents of the health factors of lead in the blood, and seeks to control lead contamination.

This issue should be put at the forefront of the City Council's agenda - lead screening is vital not only because it involves the health of Rahway children, but to the city's Richard Weden, the group's supervisor, has suggested the city create a part-time position to pursue the lead testing program and coordinate lead screening appointments for study programs. Weden is compiling the data taken from the lead screening program's results and will summarize them in a report. This analysis of the statistics gathered during the last three years must be utilized as a foundation for further research. The part-time position, which would possibly utilize a nurse from the city's health department. is a salient suggestion. The City Council should do its best to find the funding for this task.

The statistics don't lie. A significant number of children tested did have relatively high levels of lead in their blood. Whether this comes from some of the city's older pipes or, from paint chips which children get on their hands and mouths, it should be controlled, not overlooked.

The levels of lead in blood are measured in micrograms per deciliter and the standard set by the Centers for Disease Control for an allowable level is 25 micrograms per deciliter: Conversely, the American Pediatrics Association has said that any lead within the blood is bad. Isn't a lead screening program beneficial to a city if these organizations endorse controlling the lead levels in children's blood?

Carson explained that any level which exceeds 20 micrograms per deciliter would warrant notifying the child's parents and checking the house for lead piping, soder within the pipe joints and the content of the house's paint. Although this action generally controls exposure to lead, councilmembers should note that the process of this control is initiated through the lead screening program. Without the program, the awareness of lead in these households is perhaps never achieved.

A level of 40 micrograms per deciliter would prompt con-and treatments. The chemicals administered by the physician grab the lead or other metals and bond so they are flushed out. The tendency to significantly lower the level of lead within the bloodstream due to such treatments further sustains the need for a continuation of the lead screening

The outreach program studies these levels of lead and if a significant number of those enrolled in the program are not researched further, the data will be lost. The city should value this research rather than let it be thrown by the wayside.

The organization Parents United Against Lead have set March 29 as a tentative date for a promotion for lead screening. The attempt to make people more aware of lead and its effects and promote increased enrollment in the lead screening programs is a significant opportunity for residents. Through these types of events, parents and children may gain knowlege that could not only improve the qu in Rahway, but could save lives.

The Union County Concerned Citizens, of which Carson is a member, have been particularly vocal about health being affected by the incinerator in Rahway. According to Carson. the lead screening study shows no obvious effects from the incinerator because the study was not specifically designed for that reason. There needs to be more data from areas upwind and downwind of the incinerator and studies would require expanding the testing into other areas such as Carteret.

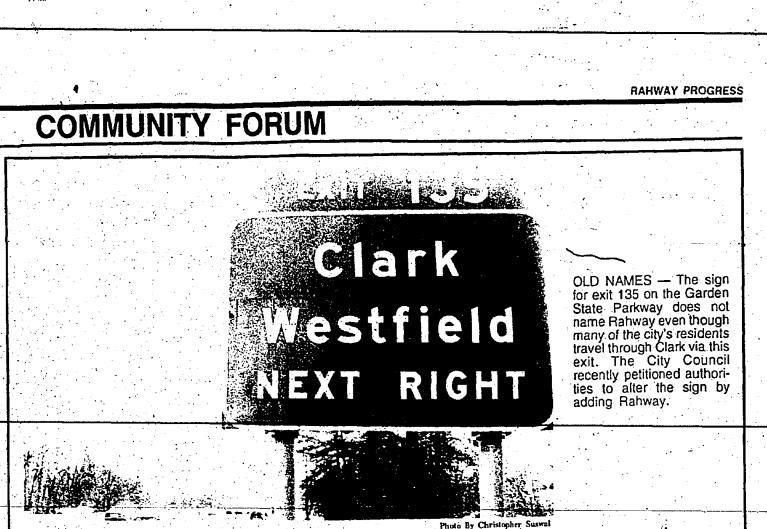

If the creation of this position is at all possible, the city should resolve to do so. Any notion asserting it would be money well spent is an understatement. The City Council should find funding for the part-time position, one which can be met with swiftness and deep concern for the residents. The public has reiterated the need for lead screening research and should be heard. Many campaign promises flooded the voters' ears before the November elections and, much of those promises included working for the people of Rahway This is a true test of a new council which, if it fails will only prove detrimental for Rahway residents.

"[There is] an alarming trend in which the bottomfeeding media appear to drive even the serious big fish to make everything more entertaining." -Robert MacNeil journalist.

become citizens in the 21st century. . The state's 28 Abboit Districts, the poorest districts in the state as described in the state Supreme Court's Abbott v. Burke decision, will receive a total of $2. billion, nearly half of the entire state school aid allocation and more than 10 percent of the proposed FY98 state budget. This represents a $138.6 million . increase from the current school year. "The distribution of more than $2 billion in state aid to the 28 Abbott Districts underscores our committment to ensuring that the children in the poorestdistricts have the appropriate level of resources necessary for them to achieve the Core Curriculum Content Standards," said Commissioner of Education Leo Macholz, "For the hist fine he monore way they will have the resources and education programs necessary to compete with every other child in the state."

In the 1997-98 school year the state also is providing more man $460 million in two new aid programs for disadvantaged children. As required by the court, these funds are being directed into specific programs aimed at ameliorating the commitment from the state to ensure that all children are given the opportunity -effects-of-poverty .---

Rahway in the end. "Lester contributed in a big way, h was such a presence." Petela said. "He came on as his back loosened up." Lester, Rahway's second leading scorer, finished the same with 1 points, including 10 in the final quarter, after being limited to just one point in the first half. Lester said his back tightened up a little after the game, but he would be ready to play Elizabeth. Rahway trailed Roselle after each of the first three quarters, 14-13, 30-25 and 40-39, before outscoring Roselle 24-17 in the fourth quarter. Rahway took the lead over Roselle with 5:15 left and never looked back. Sonhomore guard Antonio Davis me off the beach and snarked the

Saab 9000 CSE is the top pick

UNION COUNTY CLASSIFIED

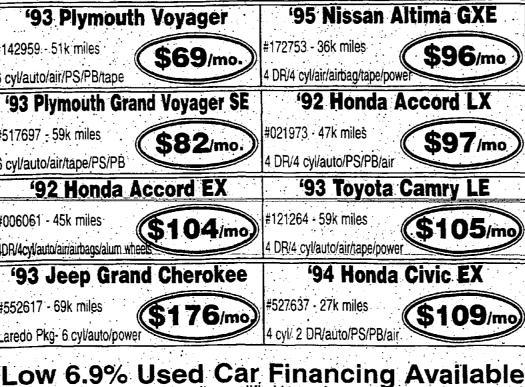

The Saab 9000 CSE was chosen as the "Top Pick" in its price category by the American Automobile Association (AAA) in its 1996 new car buying guide, Autograph. The 37-million member association selected the distinctive Saab 9000 CSE best in the $35,000 to $40,000 price range. Vehicles evaluated in AAA's Autograph represent almost every new model car, truck, minivan and sport utility vehicles available in the newcar marketplace.

This is the Saab 9000's third Top Pick award from AAA. Previous winners are the 1993 Saab 9000 CS 5-door hatchback and the 1995 Saab 9000 CDE touring sedan.

The 1996 Saab CSE scored extremely well in the overall ratings, earning accolades for such traditional Saab attributes as ride, handling, braking performance and interior room. The 9000 CSE scored a "perfect" 10 in both the interior and exterior workmanship categories, as well as posting top scores for cargo space and ease of entry. Saab's 9000 series is rated as a "Large Car by the EPA, based on its generous cabin and cavernous cargo capacity. The standard engine is a turbocharged 200-hp 2.3L four-cylinder, a 210-hp 3.0L V-6 is available as an option.

David Van Sickle, editor in chief of the Autograph book, said the list of top-scoring cars "shows that the best have gotten better. They offer new features, continued quality and outstanding value to the consumer."
