Public library awaits renovation funding

way, Roselle, Springfield, Scotch Plains and Cranford.
"The proposals were ideas for the library board to improve the new facade to make it more inviting and accessible to the public," said Professor Don Vicente, the coordinator for the project.
The project benefited both the students and the library.
The students gained practical experience working on a real-life, applied project. Their work was done free of charge and was presented to the trustees at their September meeting.
The drawings, floor plans and elevations — how the library will look when renovations are complete — are only preliminary.
Bits and pieces from each student's work are to be used in the final design of the main entrance. The "real" plans will be done by an architectural firm, said McCoy, but will be based on the students' concepts.
No money has been appropriated for the renovations as of yet, but McCoy said that the library is expecting a budget to come in to pay for the work.
The plan that the students submitted included radical changes to the library.
The "simplest," according to McCoy, was done by Puschow, it transformed the utilitarian wheelchair ramp at the entrance into an angled two-step ramp with a landing in the middle. This landing was to be covered with a glass.
One pair of students moved the entire lobby to the edge of the sidewalk behind the library and included two side entrances. Two other plans included reading rooms right off the library entrance.

Rolling Thunder unites ethnic backgrounds young people to fight them, and then leaving them behind.

Donald Laker, vice president of the New Jersey Chapter, said, "We're trying to touch as many people as we can with this issue. And we want to commend the people who've supported our efforts. All of the town councils, counties, police, rescue squads, firemen and politicians have been extremely supportive of our efforts to get our message out. They support the 'Freedom Ride' and a lot of the other things that we do."
The Rolling Thunder also participates in "one-on-one" education. The members go to schools and help educate students and their teachers about this issue. They're also going into prisons to talk with and help counsel inmates, many of whom happen to be war veterans.
Rolling Thunder crosses ethnic barriers and economic strata, and unites people who believe in same cause, freedom and fairness. The issue at hand is the return of the "forgotten" servicemen and servicewomen. The goal is to prevent this from ever happening again.
Muller added, "Until this issue is resolved and our colleagues are brought home, we will continue to be a force to be reckoned with. We're not going away."

Vets claim ailments are due to chemical warfare work, because of unusual or unexplainable ailments that the J.A. may or may not consider resulted from exposure to Agent Orange. Some ailments such as weakness of the extremities, fatigue, loss of strength, and severe headaches may not be considered severe enough to warrant benefits, but they are severe enough to negatively affect a veteran and his or her quality of life.

For many veterans, the psychological impact is still being felt from the "Agent Orange" controversy. "All of these issues should be considered and weighed by the V.A. when considering a veteran's application for disability benefits. Compensation is necessary for the suffering done since the war, as well as the suffering yet to come."

ROBERT POSNER, DDS
UNDERSTANDING PLAQUE

Q. What special considerations affect the treatment of elderly dental patients?

A. The symptoms of more than 100 diseases reveal themselves in the mouth, sometimes posing serious threats to teeth and gums. Some health problems affect the ability of a patient to brush and floss regularly.

Thus your dentist will need to know if a patient has diabetes, arthritis, and other problems that surface during life's later years. A patient's prescription and non-prescription medications are taken daily by many arthritis patients and by others as prevention against heart attack. This can be a contributing cause of inflamed gums.

Be sure to tell your dentist about any change in overall health and new medications you are taking. We would be happy to discuss the above subject matter or any dental concerns you may have.

Arts Center opens 1997-1998 season

By Lane Ingalls
Staff Writer
The Union County Arts Center opened their 1997-98 season with a new musical director for the Westfield Symphony Orchestra.
David Wroe, a native of Great Britain, is no stranger to the Union County Arts Center, located in Rahway. Last year, he and the Westfield Symphony Orchestra opened the 1996-97 season for the center.
Wroe has dedicated much of his time to education and has played a prominent role in the Boston Symphony Youth Orchestra. He was also awarded SPINT's "Up and Coming Artist" in Kansas City for his excellence in contributing to the community.
Prior to the start of the concert, Wroe engaged in a pre-concert discussion with several attendees. He presented some of his credentials, spoke of last year's concert while making light of the blue-sky weather that night, and invited questions from the crowd.
When asked who his favorite composer is, he replied, "As a conductor, it's very difficult to have a favorite composer. It is important to be as objective as possible in order to showcase the piece at hand. But, I do enjoy Wagner."
He went on to point out the similarities between the two composers who were presented on Saturday night.

Rahway River Association keeps eye on environment

By Chris Byles
Staff Writer
Members of AmeriCorps and the New Jersey Community Water Watch held a reception for the city Sept. 25 at the Brand New Day Development Co.'s housing unit at 101 Broadway.
Residents met with Brand New Day representatives, C.A.R.E. Task Force members, representatives from the Arthur Kill Watershed Association, Rahway River Association, members of Kean University fraternities and sororities, representatives from the high school, and community members to discuss NCRW goals and projects for the 1997-98 year.
"We came to talk a little about how the grassroots organization was founded in Rahway to help support the River," said Jimmy Lynch, president of the Rahway River Association. "The issues surrounding the Elizabeth Watershed and the Rahway River Watershed are basically the same. We had the same kind of pollution problems, environmental problems with garbage, and we're both on the Arthur Kill so we both get some water coming back up into our watersheds."
Lynch said Elizabeth is unique in that it has its own river and its own watershed while the surrounding hills and Union and Essex are not. He said Elizabeth is also in a much better position to control and do something about its water problems since it only comprises three areas and is therefore smaller than Rahway's. By comparison, the Rahway River watershed encompasses 30 towns along its full length. The problem Lynch and other concerned Rahway citizens are having is that the majority of those tributary towns are upriver from them and their little they can do on their own to stem the tide of pollution.
"We're bringing more towns into the Rahway River Association as we see they have tributaries that in fact flow into our watershed," he said. "When you've got ten towns the watershed is much easier to manage, and Elizabeth is in a great position to manage its watershed because they can get all the benefits of being in a big group but they're a lot more manageable."
The meeting was an extension of AmeriCorps' activities earlier that day which included a visit to the Elizabeth River Presbytery Center. The visit was actually an educational excursion to teach the children in the center's after-school program about environmental concerns on the city's watersheds.
"I think the visit and our presentation went really well and the children enjoyed themselves and learned some things," said Gina Porroco of the AmeriCorps. "We basically conducted science projects and showed them the difference between oil and water and how they don't mix." Porroco said the two events, though separate, were linked by their overall message, and the importance of giving back to the environment by passing it on to future generations.

Earlier today at the Presbytery Center, the children really responded well to our presentation and the evidence of that is the fact that some of the same kids were actually back here tonight," he said. "If we don't do something about our water pollution problems now and we don't teach the youth about it, then there's going to be a continuous trend of destruction to the environment instead of giving back to the environment by passing it on to future generations."
The Arts Center is known for its fabulous acoustics and creates the perfect showcase for an orchestra.
The Westfield Symphony Orchestra will be appearing at the Union County Arts Center four more times. The opening concert was one of a series of five scheduled for the season.

This plain was meant for flooding

The area of Union and Allen streets has been the site of at least three major floods during the past 20 years. Two of these occurred within 10 months of each other — the first during the nor'easter of October 1996, the second this year during heavy July rains.

There has been considerable opposition to the city's buy-out of this land. Some say that residents should continue to live there and be compensated through city funds or their own flood insurance whenever flooding damage occurs. But this is a misunderstanding of the situation that simply cannot be remedied without the buyout.

The City Council finally voted this month to buy out the homeowners in this area with federal Green Acres funds. The houses there are to be bulldozed and the area will be turned into a Green Acres site. Fortunately, this project is under way as several homeowners have already been relocated.

Residents opposed to creating a non-residential site really should consider the environmental aspects involved — that is, if a river of up to 6 feet of water filling the streets is not enough to sway their opinion. According to Cathy Papirnick of the Rahway Environmental Commission, that area should never have been built upon. It was built circa 1920s and this was before people were aware that this area is in the flood plain of the Rahway River. By definition, this is where the water will go when the river overflows its banks. In fact, some of the houses on Union Street are not 50 feet away from the banks of the Rahway River.

The city's plans for the area seem inviting not only because the flooding will be curbed somewhat, but also because the area will undergo a beautification process. This includes plans to plant native plants, including trees, along the banks of the river in this area. The plants and the tree canopy there will slow the rate that rainwater flows into the river and will absorb some of this rainwater before it can get to the river.

Residents should support the city's effort to alleviate this area's flooding. It is obvious that the current plans for Union and Allen streets reveal the best possible solution. Rahway will benefit by transforming this residential area into one which fits the natural environment.

It's time to get on with education

The Board of Education and the Rahway Education Association have agreed on a contract for the school teachers, aides, and custodians. The members of the REA had been without a contract since July 1, 1996. The board's approval of the contract with a vote of 8-0 now allows the district to confidently surge ahead into the 1997-1998 school year.

In the area of education, there is probably nothing worse than the threat of a teachers' strike. Any time there is tremendous difficulty in negotiations of a teachers' contract, the possibility of a strike looms large. A strike is a situation which both sides of the negotiation table suffer. In addition, the strike scenario means students lose vital learning time while there is no exact date a strike will conclude.

We acknowledge the REA's reluctance to strike and the school board's swift vote which came merely eight days after the REA announced its approval of the contract.

Some critics may disagree with the three-year contract's average 3.5 percent pay raise to REA members. But while it may be arguable as to whether or not this is too much of a pay increase, the bottom line is that the contract finally benefits the school system.

Most importantly, the contract's approval will bring an end to much of the storminess surrounding the Rahway schools. It will allow parents and guardians of pupils within the district to rest assured rather than anticipating sudden changes in school day scheduling. For example, the REA undertook two job actions to protest their slow progress. This included a disruptive "action holiday" on Feb. 12, Washington's Birthday, when Rahway's teachers took an unannounced holiday that day and did not show up for work. Consequently, the schools had to be closed and many parents had to scramble to set up day care for their children.

Residents concerned about the status of the Rahway education system should keep in mind that this situation was resolved without a strike. The REA did not take drastic action even though it did not gain several of the key bargaining issues. For instance, extra services pay has risen with every Rahway contract but for the next few years, it will remain unchanged.

With the new contract in place, teachers and the Board of Education can now spend their time focusing on improving the school district.

Success is determined by your happiness

Vantage Point

By Bill Von Sont
Staff Writer

break our necks just to have more toys? And when you get down to it, that's really all it is — more toys. Personally, I like to think that I'm a success. After many years of searching for my niche in the professional world, I was very lucky to find that I belonged working for a newspaper.

Not exactly at leisure, as being a neurosurgeon — or a Hollywood star, for that matter — but so what? For the first time in my life, I'm proud to use my job as part of how I define myself. The reality is that, with few exceptions, journalism will not make someone rich. It's often long hours for pay that others — my friends in other fields — would laugh at. But what should be considered here is that, as an intelligent person, I would just find another job if those were my main motivations.

In this last year, I have enjoyed, beyond that, why kill myself and diminish the quality of what is already there? For things I don't have and, quite frankly, don't need in order to survive? I do not feel compelled to work as hard as I do to make a living. I've discovered in order to lose weight is to simply curb your appetite and watch your caloric intake. A family physician could prescribe that without any problem. And, besides, what's wrong with a young woman or man saying, "I'm a few pounds overweight." So long as they are not endangering their health, so what and who cares?

Desire to be thin outweighs health concerns

As I See It

By Norman Rauscher

But the trend has drawbacks. Some women were afraid to eat for fear of putting on a few pounds. Norm Rauscher is a former newspaper publisher, is an active member of the Summit community.

Some literally starve themselves to a point of almost no return when they deny themselves food and live on water in the name of beauty and the trend to remain slim.

What is frightening is the fact that they were taking these two pills to lose a few pounds. They were not considered obese, but carried more weight than the professional models did and that did not fit in with the fashion trend.

In polling Redux and Pondimin from the market, the FDA pointed out that a steady diet of the drugs could result in damage to heart valves. In other words, low-pile, doctors are saying that some could lead to higher blood pressure or heart disease.

Some years ago, it was a compliment to say a woman was "pleasantly plump." To say that today could virtually a severe dressing down or being accused of sexual harassment. Back in the mid-16th century, Peter Rubens, a Flemish painter, gained fame by painting women. Some thought his concept of the female body was grotesque since all of them were voluptuous. "Fat," some thought Rubens was an artist. Some thought him a dirty old man. Today, some of Rubens' paintings are sold for millions of dollars.

things that can't be accounted for in financial terms. I have had the great good fortune of being able to get up in the morning and eagerly look forward to going to work. I am able to do something I greatly enjoy and, which, I believe, I have a talent. And, when earned, I receive praise from my superiors, respect from my colleagues and compliments from the readers. In short, I am in a position wherein I have something to offer and it's appreciated. When you consider how few people can honestly say that, I'm already ahead of the game.

In the meantime, my family is housed, clothed and fed, the necessities with which we must all concern ourselves. Beyond that? Sure, I'd love to have a hot tub waiting in the back yard after a long day. I'd also love to see Europe, take the kids to Disney World and get a second car. But these are all toys and even if I never get the lot of things, I'd still love to live in an environment of respect. That's not to say I'd turn down a raise if one were offered, but it's not fulfilling. I still have a really great — and successful — job.

The toys are nice, but you can't put what I've already got in a paycheck. And that's what success is truly all about.

Police blotter

On Sept. 10, a New Brunswick Avenue property was burglarized. Entry was made through a driveway gate by cutting the chain on the fence. Approximately 200 pounds were taken, valued at $600. There are no suspects at this time.

On Sept. 10, an E. Albert Street resident wanted to report a burglary to his vehicle. It occurred sometime during April of this year. There were no signs of forced entry. His driver's license, social security card, a Parkway card and checkbook from a Parkway Savings institution were taken. Two days later, he found his driver's license and social security card down the street from his house. He was recently contacted by Parkway to return the items to him. He is making good on his checks.

On Sept. 10, a Parkway resident stated that she saw an unidentified male ride away on her daughter's bike. The victim did not get a good look at the suspect. Serial number and model numbers are unknown at this time.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Immigration policy needs reform

To the Editor:
Since our very successful picketing demonstration for an immigration moratorium at Congressman Bob Franks' office on Sept. 13, we as American Immigration Control have been inundated with requests for information on our organization and on how to join.

Over 90 percent of Americans favor an immigration moratorium, or sealing our borders tight against illegal entry.

If you are concerned about the future of your country for cultural, environmental or financial reasons, and the impact current immigration will have on them, write to American Immigration Control at P.O. Box 550, Whippany, NJ 07981, or call (908) 733-7347.

FIRE BLOTTER

Airbag causes alarm

An inflating airbag is apparently causing firefighters to respond to some fires on a car fire call. Some 1 on Sept. 19 on a car fire call.

The car, of an unidentified make, was not on fire but had popped out an airbag at about 8:30 a.m.

The "fire" was caused when the airbag inflated. Airbags are usually packed with either cornstarch or talc powder to help them inflate better and to preserve them.

The airbag is inflated when a charge goes off. This charge generates enough heat to melt the inflator, but also generates sparks. These sparks can scorch the powder that the airbag is packed with, especially if it is contained, resulting in a smell of smoke.

An unknown, but probably not toxic, substance was found floating in a nearby Maurice Avenue on Sept. 25.

Rahway firefighters were called to the scene at 2:26 p.m. by the Union County Emergency Health Commission, who were already there.

According to Battalion Chief Irwin Hummel, the substance had the appearance of cornstarch. He said that they probably came from Linden where a water main was being cleared.

The Environmental Health Commission took a sample of the substance to the Water Department for analysis. Hummel said that the Commission suspected the fire department, since they have not called back, it is assumed that the substance was not toxic.

The Rahway Fire Department used a fire hydrant to flush out the stream.

Library programs

Linden Public Library's annual series of pre-school programs will be starting in early October. A parent or guardian must accompany each child. Pre-registration is required. It is suggested to register early because space will fill up quickly.

At the East Branch, 1425 Hill Ave., pre-school programs will be held on Wednesdays, Oct. 29 at 1:30 p.m. for ages 3 to 5. For further information or to register for the Wednesday afternoon programs at the East Branch, call children's librarian Alma King at 298-3829.

Sunnyside Branch, 100 Edgewood Road, will present its programs on Thursdays, Oct. 15 to 10 a.m. for ages 3 and 4. For further information or to register for the Thursday morning programs at the Sunnyside Branch, call children's librarian Carol Reider at 298-3839.

At the Main Library, 31 East Henry St., pre-school programs will be held on Wednesdays, Oct. 15 to Nov. 12 at 10:30 a.m. for ages 3 to 5. For further information or to register for the Wednesday morning programs at the Main Library, call children's librarian Mary Skramovsky at 298-3830.

Do you have any handkerchiefs or paper napkins in good condition? Do you no longer want, but don't want to throw away and don't know what to do with? Donate them to the Friends of Linden Library for sale at their annual book sale in October. The

October marks safety

Whether it's the bright colors or the busy din, something attracts children to fire engines. So, building on that interest, the fire departments in Linden and Rahway, together with the public libraries in those two cities and Merck and Co., are developing two fire safety modules for the Children's Department in both libraries.

The design for the Fire Safety Corners will be in the form of a real fire truck, but child-sized. Both fire trucks will have seats for children, and shelves on one side to hold materials about fire safety. Lettering on the sides will indicate that it is a fire engine from that particular community.

The project was developed by Battalion Chief Robert Lathrop of the Rahway Fire Department. He had read an article about an identical program at the Ramsey Public Library, and thought it would be equally effective here. Lathrop spoke with his counterparts at Merck, Deputy Chief

Children's programs begin

Registration for the fall series of children's programs at the Rahway Public Library is underway, and there are just a few days left to register. The Wednesday morning program is already at capacity. The series begins during this week and runs until the end of November.

Each program is for a different age group. The first program is for 3-year-olds. The second is for 4-year-olds. The third is for 5-year-olds. The fourth is for 6-year-olds. The fifth is for 7-year-olds. The sixth is for 8-year-olds. The seventh is for 9-year-olds. The eighth is for 10-year-olds. The ninth is for 11-year-olds. The tenth is for 12-year-olds.

Book covers offered

Is your family Bible crumbling? Is your favorite novel looking worn? Has your Zuckerman become untidy? The Rahway Public Library can now offer you a program to get it all together, between two sturdy covers.

The library will pack the items, arrange for periodic delivery to LBC, and contact you when it is ready. Turn-around time is usually a month from time of shipment. LBC uses a standard Grade F, forest green bookend on the inside, type and condition of the item, the cost can run between $30 and $120 plus shipping.

In addition, the library is offering a repair service, for books which are slightly damaged. With the help of library volunteer Norma Bender, a little tape or glue can add years to a good book. The cost for this service is $10 per item.

A special treat will be the return of storyteller Ruth Blake on Oct. 25 at 2 p.m. She will present a family-oriented program that even includes a special treat for the children.

Children are voting during the month of September for what Saturday program they would like to see. The winners will be announced on Oct. 15 at 2 p.m. Other Saturday programs will be on Nov. 15, Thanksgiving craft, and Dec. 13, how to wrap presents. Librarian Jean Kovacs leads the Saturday series.

Walk for cancer research

The American Cancer Society's Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walk is scheduled for Oct. 19 at Liberty State Park.

The five-mile non-competitive walk will begin at 11 a.m. following registration at 9:30. More than 5,000 participants are expected at this annual event, and donations are also welcome.

For more information, call (800) 492-2433.

Latex paint recycling

The Union County Utilities Authority will host a latex paint recycling day Saturday at the Cranford Municipal Swimming Pool on Central Avenue from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Information regarding cancellation of the event will be available by calling the authority after 3 p.m. tomorrow.

There is no cost to participate, however registration with the UCUA is mandatory. The disposal of latex paint for recycling is open to Union County residents only; proof of residency is required.

Latex paint will be accepted from residents in the original paint cans. Paint in containers larger than five gallons will not be accepted.

Access award given

Former Union County Mayor Ann Baran will be given the Public Leadership Award by Community Access Unlimited during the agency's 17th annual dinner dance, Oct. 15 at L'Affaire Restaurant, Montclair.

Baran, who became director of operations for the Gateway Institute at Kean College, after leaving the county manager's office earlier this year, will be cited for her "consistent dedication to the cause of people with disabilities."

William Waldman, commissioner of the state Department of Human Services, will present the award to the honoree.

St. Pat's parade fundraiser

The Union County St. Patrick's Day Parade Committee will hold a "Halfway to St. Patrick's Day" fundraiser on Sunday from 2 to 7 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus in Jeanette Avenue, off Morris Avenue, in Union.

Admission costs $15 per person, which includes beer, soda, food and Irish entertainment, including dancers.

Barn dance planned

Square Dancing, hayrides, horse rides, a barbecue dinner and a whole lot of fun will highlight Union County's annual Barn Dance for people with disabilities at the Watchung Stables Oct. 19, 4-7 p.m.

Leading the square dancing will be caller Dick Meyers of Cranford. His quick, straightforward approach to teaching and his genuine enthusiasm have been highlights of past Barn Dances.

Riverside Clean-up

As part of an ongoing effort to improve the quality of the watersheds in Union County, the Board of Chosen Freeholders and the county manager have announced plans for a community clean-up of the Watchung Stables area.

The clean-up will be held Oct. 18, from 9 a.m. to noon. Volunteers will meet in front of the Union Memorial Pool in Watchung Stables, located off Valley Road, Clark. The meeting site can also be accessed through the park entrance on St. George Avenue, Rahway.

Refreshments, T-shirts and gloves will be provided. Participants should note the clean-up will take place outdoors, rain or shine, along roadsides, waterways and wooded areas, so appropriate clothing is a must.

Historical site open

The O'Brien-Cannonball House, circa 1760, located at 1840 Front St., in Scotch Plains, will be open to visitors on Sunday, from 2 to 4 p.m.

The Historical Society of Scotch Plains and Fairwood, which is celebrating its 25th year of history, is bringing 200 years of history to the community.

Ministry Day scheduled

The Catholic AIDS Network Archdiocese of Newark will hold its annual AIDS Ministry Day on Oct. 11, at Xavier Center in Convent Station.

The day will feature Rev. Charles Anco speaking on "What Does It Mean to Be a Minister?" and additional workshops will give updated information on new treatment for AIDS, opportunistic infection, HIV, AIDS, and social issues.

The day's activities will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Registration and lunch will be served. There is a registration fee of $10.

Register by fax at (908) 789-8918.

Horse club meetings

Union County youth, grades 5-7, are invited to join the Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Union County 4-H Horse Club.

The club meets once a month, on the second or fourth Friday, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Meetings are held at the 4-H office, 300 North Ave. East, in Westfield. Horse ownership is not required.

All the meetings, you will make new friends and also do fun, hands-on activities that teach about horses, such as helping to run the club by choosing a name, for it and election officers.

Lucent lifts meeting

Union County Life Member Club of Lucent Technologies will have its monthly meeting at 1 p.m. on Monday at Union Boys & Girls Club at 1050 Jeanette Ave., Union.

Meeting will feature speaker Renee

Producer gets 'on the boards' of Paper Mill Playhouse

By Bea Smith
Staff Writer

Now that Roy Miller has been promoted to the position of associate producer to Angelo Del Rossi, executive producer at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Miller is enjoying the best of both worlds in business and entertainment. As a "recovering actor" and former associate producer of films and videos from Pepsi-Cola Co., he is now involved in live theater, with live actors in addition to long-range planning, budgeting and production. Miller also has been during the concert season on the Paper Mill stage introducing the concert artists.

Del Rossi and Elliot I. Stupak, chairman of the Board of Trustees, recently announced Miller's new position. Miller had served as assistant to the executive producer since joining the Paper Mill staff in 1991. He is now actively involved in all-day-to-day operations, along with long-range planning, budgeting and production, and according to Del Rossi, he will continue to negotiate all union and actor contracts. Paper Mill is a fully-united, non-profit professional theater.

"Through the years," explained Del Rossi, "Roy has proven himself invaluable to me and to the Paper Mill."

"Roy Miller's move to the position of associate producer," declared Stupak, "will add another dimension to the already exceptional production team at Paper Mill."

"I have a lot of responsibilities on my shoulders right now," Miller explained during a chat the other afternoon. "There's a lot going on here, you know. With this new position," he said, "I'm a little more in the public eye and dealing with a lot of things that I had just touched on before. It's a lot of responsibility and quite a challenge. And I'm certainly enjoying every minute of it."

The East Orange-born Miller, who resided in Irvington through his second year of high school — "which is when my family moved to East Hanover," he wasn't really too happy about it at the time — wanted to be an actor at an early age. "I had appeared in 'Fanny' with Joe Finner at the Paper Mill some years ago, just for the fun of it. It told me that I needed to get back into the theater, so I began producing films for Pepsi Cola Co. Years ago, I went completely off in another direction."

"Six years ago, I went from being in 'Fanny' at the Paper Mill to being an associate producer, and I have no one but Angelo to thank for trusting my abilities and giving me the opportunity to work here in this capacity. It really was one of the best things that had ever happened to me."

Actually, Miller had applied for the position of assistant to the executive producer in 1991. "Angelo remembered me from 'Fanny,' and he gave me the job. Since day one," he mused, "Angelo and I have worked together. We have a great working relationship and it's really a lot of fun. I don't know anyone I have ever worked with who has been as good as Angelo. He has been the best. He's one of the top people in this field and one of the classicists, nice people. I've ever worked for. It's a pleasure to come to work every day. I look forward to it. And not everyone can say that," Miller chuckled.

He is very proud of the fact that what began as summer concerts at the Paper Mill are now turning into fall and spring concerts "and most probably, will branch out all year round. We've had such a fantastic response to the past concert this year. We're selling out quickly for the most part."

"You know," he laughed, "it took two years to get Englebert Humperdink to sign for a concert with us. Actually, Miller confided, "it was my mother, Helen Miller, who was responsible for getting him to sign here. She has a fan club for him, yes, president of the club, and she's been after us for a long time to get him to sign up. Rest assured, she'll be there in the first row at his concert on Nov. 11. No grand tickets for her. As soon as she knew, she called the box and bought her tickets."

The future of the concert series at the Paper Mill is in the bag, as far as Miller is concerned. "Our shows, our plays, our musicals are outstanding, but so are our concerts. In addition to Humperdink, we have Harry Belafonte and Paul Page."

"You know, we have a wish list. We have some exciting ideas. We just have to go after them," he said. "So, stay tuned for more surprises."

Crusade engages music fans in commitment to the cause

On Sept. 27, Jim Kilby and The Crusade took on the roar of central Jersey airplane traffic at an outdoor concert at Phil's Place in Linden, for the town's end-of-the-summer bash.

In spite of the coolness of the afternoon, fans gathered in the parking lot of Phil's to see these accomplished performers strut their stuff.

And strut they did, especially Kilby on guitar and vocals. Percussionist Joey Vitello of Union drummed up enough energy to keep the crowd warm and the band at the boiling point. The Crusade put forth some powerful music, proving not only that they can hold their own live, but also can deal with challenging conditions.

Kilby has great presence on stage, playing instinctively to the crowd. "I like my vocal, what can I say," he said after the first set, with what breath he had left after a series of acrobatics, twisting and turning, his original material. His presentation inspired the question, "When does he not jump?"

Although Kilby is definitely in charge on stage, he showcases the rest of the band effectively. All band members, from drummer Vitello to guitarist Matt Troyano got the crowd worked up, until people were dancing on blacktop in the late afternoon chill. The Crusade does not take their audience for granted, as they made the most of instrumentals and creative intros. Kilby worked the small stage area as if it were Madison Square Garden, while teasing and joking with the audience.

The Crusade's live show features original work from their current release "Sacred Heart," interspersed with tunes from their upcoming CD, a cover or two for good measure. "Miami's Got My Arm," a new composition, is a stand-out with the appropriate lyrics. "I'm freezing in New Jersey, my arm's so far away."

The Crusade hit hard into another new song, "My Friend," reminiscent of among Reagan Democrats rock hits and this reviewer's pick for a potential hit single. Kilby stripped on a blues harp to help out with a dynamic rendition of "Angels Do Exist" from "Sacred Heart." Especially impressive was the new "Clover Honey" featuring a great acoustic break, and the serious jamming on a Santana-esque intro to "Grandma Love the Action" from "Sacred Heart." And, of course, no rock and roll show would be complete without a cover from The King. Kilby did his best Elvis to "All Shook Up," with a little boy from the audience helping out on tambourine.

Kilby probably didn't feel as fresh as an Irish sheep, having worked up quite a sweat on stage. His boyz good looks, however, did not suffer for wear as he employed all his assets to keep the crowd's attention, and made good eye contact with the ladies. The spirit of his lyrics came through in the performance, accentuated by strong vocals. Quite an impressive performance, considering that the performer confided that a kill-by-family wedding had taken place the night before, leaving minimal time for sleep and rehearsal.

The Crusade is definitely not just another band. They love their music, and it shows. Set flow with no breaks. Kilby's question, "So, ya havin' a little fun yet?" was met with an unqualified affirmative. After all, if the band is having fun, the audience can help but go along for the ride. New Jersey bar crowds want to hear the kind of good, hard driving rock and roll that makes you feel alive, and The Crusade gives the people what they want.

"Sacred Heart," on Lighthouse Records label, is on sale at Izzy's Records and CD's, 904 W. St. George Ave., Linden, and at Compact Disc Den in Westfield. The Jim Kilby and The Crusade hotline is (973) 694-6441.

Musicians Academy wield all 'four hands' at gala

By Jacquie McCarthy

On Saturday at 8 p.m., Union County Arts Center in Rahway will feature the American Premiere recital of Olga Gurevich and Alexander Ruvinsky, two accomplished Russian pianists, four hands.

Gurevich and Ruvinsky moved to New York in February 1997, after finishing a whirlwind of music education, accompaniment, performances and awards. The two met in 1987 at the Russian Academy of Music, Gnessin, in Moscow, where they began their classical music education. According to Gurevich, it was not only a common love of music, but also a shared favored composer that brought the two together.

"We met when we started at Gnessin. Alexander had just returned from service in the army," said Gurevich, explaining that serving in the then-Soviet armed forces was mandatory for men ages 18-20. "For both of us, the favorite composer is Sergei Rachmaninoff. He also lived in America, for a long time, and he was very, very popular in America. So many people follow his name."

Gurevich and Ruvinsky are becoming acclimated to their new life in the United States. Gurevich, born in the city of Baku, capital city of the Azerbaijan republic, and Ruvinsky, born in the city of Uman in the Ukraine, have more in common than just Rachmaninoff. The husband-and-wife team both began their musical education at age 5. After Gnessin, they went on to further musical study at the Moscow State Music Academy in Moscow. The duo began winning awards even before their graduation in 1995, winning individual first prizes in the Young Pianists Regional Competition held in Kazanka, Ukraine, in 1982. As a team, the couple won first prize in the XVIII International Piano Competition in Salerno, Italy in 1995, and second prize in the 10th International Duo-Piano Competition in Italy in 1996.

Gurevich and Ruvinsky bill themselves as "one piano, four hands" in honor of composer Rachmaninoff's "Suite for Piano, Four Hands."

The young couple said they are enjoying meeting new audiences in different countries, and being exposed to the work of different composers, a rare privilege for classical musicians before the demise of the U.S.S.R. The resulting changes in government policy facilitated promoting the duo internationally. "It became easier to go abroad," said Gurevich. "Unfortunately, the system of classical music promotion has now just started to be created, and we didn't have time to get used to it in Russia. It was easier to promote ourselves, and much more freedom for musicians, too."

At Saturday's recital, a black-tie optional event which will be preceded by a meet-the-artist champagne reception in newly renovated Union County Arts Center lobby, the duo will perform classical favorites and Gurevich's melodies. "Gurevich is a great composer," said Gurevich. "We hope we can continue to arrange his music because his melodies are wonderful."

In addition, a much-anticipated American Premiere, Saturday will mark another first for Union County Arts Center. After extensive renovations, the arts center will welcome the public to the restored historic building in honor of Standing Ovation Day, a kickoff to October as National Arts and Humanities month. Arts center staff will conduct tours of the theater, once a 1928 vaudeville house. The festivities will continue with a champagne reception, and conclude with the recital.

Tickets are $22, $17 and $12. Union County Arts Center is located at 1601 Irving St., Rahway. For information, call (732) 499-8226.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

The investment pays off with 'The Spit Fire Grill'

A bake sale or car wash may bring in a few hundred dollars for your cause, but if you want to make some real money perhaps you should try investing in a major motion picture. It worked for one small mid-western church. This congregation needed to raise money and ended up making a movie and selling it to Hollywood for over $3 million with "The Spit Fire Grill."

While Percy is released from a Maine prison at a young age she knows exactly where she wants to go. She heads for a nice small town that has only read about where the falling leaves turn a thousand shades of brown.

With both superb acting and a heartwarming script, the viewer is immediately drawn to naive, troubled Percy. The Spitfire Grill, where Percy both boards and works, becomes the catalyst for change for the four main characters of this film. Hannah, the owner of the diner seems to be a mean, bitter, old lady but we begin to understand her and see her true, loving side early on in the film. Hannah, Hannah's nephew, is a scheming, cruel degenerate who claims to keep watch over his sickly aunt, although he is more concerned with her money than her well-being. Nathan's wife, Shelby, truly cares about Hannah and is the only person in the town who is not quick to judge Percy.

Shelby, who has been belittled by her husband for her life together, finds her true self-worth when the changes helping Percy run the diner after Hannah is torn in a fall. The two characters quickly find they have a lot more in common than may appear to outsiders and become good friends. In an attempt to help Hannah sell the diner, which she has been trying to do for over ten years, they come up with an idea to make a video. The contest is printed in papers throughout the country and the essays and $100 entry fees begin pouring in.

Nathan, the skeptic is convinced when Percy has come up with this idea to take the money and run and in his attempt to right the situation caused a two-fold disaster that answers some unanswered questions, such as who is living alone in the woods and coming to Hannah's door after dark to collect money of food and money lessons to anyone with a greedy side who deep down believes money is everything.

Video Detective Trivia Ellen Burstein's film is an adaptation of a Henry Miller novel. What was the name of the book and the film? Answer: Both the book and movie were titled "Tropic of Cancer."

Also new on video: "Scenes." The English Patient, "Warriors of Virtue."

A resident of Mount Pleasant, Jim Riffel is the author of "The Video Detective's Guide to the Top 100 Films of All Time."

Gallery to feature 'manufactured' art

Union County College's Tomaso Art Gallery will host a display of post-industrialist paintings by Tim Gaydos of Monclair, a well-recognized artist throughout New York City and New Jersey. The exhibit will be on display tomorrow in the MacKay Library of the College's Cranford Campus.

Through his works, Gaydos explores abandoned industrial structures that echo with lives and events of the past. These, he notes, are symbols of the "transitoriness" of human endeavor. On the level, these symbols represent a changing society no longer manufacturing products, but rather one that lives on the manufacture of products from less advanced nations. Gaydos conveys the message of mystery as he depicts the abandoned factories and warehouses as who worked there, where did these people go, what did they do, and why are the walls silent witnesses of everything that transpired there?

Gaydos' works primarily are acrylic on panel, with one oil poster also included in the display. For Gaydos, acrylics give him the rawness that his factory subjects demand, an accidental quality that affords him a degree of control. His art took the form of a palette knife and nylon brushes which retain their "spring" even under the heaviest dolo of acrylic paint. Gaydos says that acrylics also enable him to reach a final level of realism as he adds texture to his paintings.

A goal medal winner of the 1995 American Watercolor Society Show, Gaydos is the recipient of a New Jersey State Council on the Arts Fellowship for painting. His work is in various private and public collections, and has been hung in galleries regionally.

Gallery hours are from 1 to 4 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays and Saturdays. For more information, call the Tomaso Art Gallery at (908) 709-7155.

City Tavern Restaurant and Bar

A good time and a great meal
By Chris Sykes
The fictional bar "Cheers" may be the place to go in Boston where everybody knows your name, but for a good time and great meal in Elizabeth the City Tavern Restaurant and Bar will more than suffice. Located on the corner of West Scott Place and Elizabeth Avenue, the tavern is a refuge from the urban grind in the middle of the city's commercial district. It is conveniently located one block from City Hall, two blocks from the county court house, and one-and-a-half blocks from St. Elizabeth's Hospital on Broad Street.

Owners Steve and Concetta Bongiovi have designed their establishment to be equally accessible to businessmen taking lunch and twenty-somethings. They have accomplished this by putting together an international menu loaded with pasta, steak, seafood, soup dishes and combination platters that cater to the diverse tastes of the city's ethnic and cultural groups. Menus are printed in both English and Spanish, and they list a wide array of Colombian, Spanish and Italian dishes and appetizers including stuffed clams, fried calamari, and mussels served in either a cream or marinara sauce. The tavern offers a variety of veal, chicken and seafood dishes, but the specialty is Piccata, a Colombian dish made from mixed meats.

Patrons are treated to generous serving portions intended for one that could very well accommodate two. My guest and I ordered the mussels in marinara sauce as an appetizer and dinner entrees of Paella and Arroz con Pollo. The mussels were tasty while not being overwhelmed by the wonderfully delicious marinara sauce, and the entrees themselves were marvelous examples of Colombian delicacies served the way they are supposed to be served.

Paella is a seafood dish made from yellow rice and vegetables with a variety of shrimp, clams, lobster, crab and other delights of the deep mixed in, and the Arroz con Pollo is a chicken and rice dish with the ingredients served together with vegetables mixed in. Each meal was presented creatively; the Arroz con Pollo in particular was served very deceptively with sliced tomatoes on a bed of onions on one side and a lightly fried maduro, sweet plantain, on the other. Everything was delicious, and I highly recommend the City Tavern to anyone inside or outside the city who is looking for a great meal, great company and excellent service. In fact, Steve Bongiovi, the silent partner in the business run by his wife, said the purpose of the tavern is to provide a quality dining and entertainment experience.

Patrons must be 21-years-of-age or older to be served alcoholic beverages at the bar, which also serves drinks of the non-alcoholic variety as well. Proper attire is required of all patrons at all times.

Union concert promoter's efforts are music to the ears

By Joseph McCarthy
Associate Editor
Many believe that listening to music can be a healing experience. Inspector Nicholas Ciallo of the Union Twp. Department of Public Works takes this concept quite literally. Ciallo has had a long and successful career promoting and coordinating benefit concerts featuring bands from the golden age of rock-and-roll, the 1950s.

The part-time promoter has devoted much energy to bringing the music to the ears of the public, while at the same time raising money for many people in need of emergency financial assistance.

Ciallo, also a volunteer Union Twp. fire fighter, stopped by his office to talk about his newest endeavor, an oldies revival to benefit the Union Municipal Alliance and the Drake program, with two shows scheduled for Sunday at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.

A busy man, Inspector Ciallo arrived late for his interview, explaining that he was "out chasing bad guys." However, busy he is, he is always ready to take the time to work on behalf of those in need.

The inspector began encoing benefit concerts in 1969, at an oldies show with Jay and The Americans and Dion and The Belmonts. When the enco called in sick, Ciallo was asked to fill in, and the inspector has been organizing shows ever since, focusing mainly on benefit performances.

Ciallo described the process of putting shows together, saying it can take as long as six months to coordinate a fund-raising event. He feels the result, however, is well worth the effort.

"It's nice when the show's over and the benefactor makes money," he said. "That's the nice part about it. The family comes up, and they call you and thank you, for the person being alive and having no medical bills to worry about."

"I've done one for friends of Bobby Baker. He was a young boy that was afflicted with cancer near the spine," said Ciallo. "I was asked if I could assist in raising some funds for the boy's parents, down in Backus, because they needed funds for his medical bills, which were overwhelming at that time. I agreed to go down there and put together a fund-raising show, which was very successful. It raised nearly $50,000 and was raised."

Unfortunately, dealing closely with people with life-threatening concerns has given Inspector Ciallo some sad stories to relate, as well as positive ones.

"I've done one for Theresa Salerno, who was a young girl two-years-old. She actually passed away right at the event that we were doing for her,"

Elvis' soul," he said. "They had me go through the entire set, and people were like, 'Selling it, selling it, don't look like Elvis,' he laughed. Inspector Ciallo will be getting into the act even more with The Classics IV, as he began performing with the band in February 1997. According to Ciallo, he was first introduced to the members of the band during the Bobby Baker benefit in Backus.

"They called me and said they had heard about me doing different shows throughout the state, and they wanted to be part of the group to hire for the various shows."

Ciallo eventually auditioned and is now the percussionist for The Classics IV. "It adds some time of Latin percussion to the music," he said. "They've been out since 1967," the inspector said. "They did 'Spooky Stormy,' 'Every Day With You, Girl,' and 'Traces,' which is a beautiful arrangement of music."

According to Ciallo, The Classics IV recently restructured the group. "The leader of the group is Mike Manisetti, he's the lead vocalist of the group, and Ken Viny, they're the owners of The Classics IV. And Bobby Baker, he's the lead of the group."

Four Seasons. "He sounds like his brother, which is really interesting. We do a medley of his songs to honor his brother."

Ciallo said there is a possibility that the newly restructured group will eventually re-release some of their old records.

"Even though I wasn't part of the group when they came out in '67, to go onstage and perform with them and get the reaction from the people and be part of rock-and-roll history is kind of fun," said Ciallo. "I remember listening to these songs as a kid, and then to be up on stage and singing them and having people react and say you for your autograph is kind of different. Johnny Maestro really gives it to me," the promoter chuckled, "he says, 'You're singing more autographs than me today.'"

"People recognize me on the stage, and then people recognize me on the street," he added, "and the people that see me in my uniform cannot relate to the person up on the stage with the carrying is his ear with the muddo out!" Ciallo laughed.

Audiences will have another chance to relate to the inspector-cum-promoter-cum-performer this Sunday at the Rock 'N' Roll Revival. As with other fund raisers Ciallo has organized, he has nothing but thanks for all the people who are helping to make the event a success.

"Ashley Tomasco over at Planet Honda is arranging some radio spots, on CBS FM and NJ 101.5, and he's been a big help as far as advertising," Ciallo said. "And of course, Greg Muller, the mayor, has helped. They're very cooperative at the board of education, and Dominick Fargnoli. To sit and have everybody would be impossible."

"It's so hard to believe the people it takes to put together something like this, and people behind this," Ciallo added, "and not once did any of them say, 'I can't, I'm sorry, I'm busy doing this or I'm busy doing that.' Behind the scenes it's feeding the entertainers, seeing to the security of the entertainers, making sure the lights are up. It's a big production, and it goes pulled off without any problems, thanks to these people."

Ciallo, also a volunteer Union Twp. fire fighter, stopped by his office to talk about his newest endeavor, an oldies revival to benefit the Union Municipal Alliance and the Drake program, with two shows scheduled for Sunday at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.

A busy man, Inspector Ciallo arrived late for his interview, explaining that he was "out chasing bad guys." However, busy he is, he is always ready to take the time to work on behalf of those in need.

The inspector began encoing benefit concerts in 1969, at an oldies show with Jay and The Americans and Dion and The Belmonts. When the enco called in sick, Ciallo was asked to fill in, and the inspector has been organizing shows ever since, focusing mainly on benefit performances.

Ciallo described the process of putting shows together, saying it can take as long as six months to coordinate a fund-raising event. He feels the result, however, is well worth the effort.

"It's nice when the show's over and the benefactor makes money," he said. "That's the nice part about it. The family comes up, and they call you and thank you, for the person being alive and having no medical bills to worry about."

"I've done one for friends of Bobby Baker. He was a young boy that was afflicted with cancer near the spine," said Ciallo. "I was asked if I could assist in raising some funds for the boy's parents, down in Backus, because they needed funds for his medical bills, which were overwhelming at that time. I agreed to go down there and put together a fund-raising show, which was very successful. It raised nearly $50,000 and was raised."

Unfortunately, dealing closely with people with life-threatening concerns has given Inspector Ciallo some sad stories to relate, as well as positive ones.

"I've done one for Theresa Salerno, who was a young girl two-years-old. She actually passed away right at the event that we were doing for her,"

been a big help as far as advertising," Ciallo said. "And of course, Greg Muller, the mayor, has helped. They're very cooperative at the board of education, and Dominick Fargnoli. To sit and have everybody would be impossible."

"It's so hard to believe the people it takes to put together something like this, and people behind this," Ciallo added, "and not once did any of them say, 'I can't, I'm sorry, I'm busy doing this or I'm busy doing that.' Behind the scenes it's feeding the entertainers, seeing to the security of the entertainers, making sure the lights are up. It's a big production, and it goes pulled off without any problems, thanks to these people."

"You have to come to the show," he says. "You're singing more autographs than me today." "People recognize me on the stage, and then people recognize me on the street," he added, "and the people that see me in my uniform cannot relate to the person up on the stage with the carrying is his ear with the muddo out!" Ciallo laughed.

Audiences will have another chance to relate to the inspector-cum-promoter-cum-performer this Sunday at the Rock 'N' Roll Revival. As with other fund raisers Ciallo has organized, he has nothing but thanks for all the people who are helping to make the event a success.

"Ashley Tomasco over at Planet Honda is arranging some radio spots, on CBS FM and NJ 101.5, and he's been a big help as far as advertising," Ciallo said. "And of course, Greg Muller, the mayor, has helped. They're very cooperative at the board of education, and Dominick Fargnoli. To sit and have everybody would be impossible."

Buick showcases next generation with XP2000

Buick's XP2000 represents a new generation of automotive technology, specifically selected to enhance the convenience, comfort and safety of Buick customers. While the XP2000 remains a dream car, many of these features will appear on real-world Buicks during the next few years.

Customer's Choice allows customers to tailor many features of the car to their personal taste. Each driver is identified by an electronic code in a keyless fob. As he or she approaches the car, a digital code from the fob tells the XP2000's computers to adjust the seat, steering column, outside mirrors, climate control and entertainment system to the preferences of that driver.

The dynamic response of the car, including steering effort, transmission shifts, engine response and suspension feel, can also be programmed using Customer's Choice. Each driver of XP2000 will have a unique keyless fob. On approaching the vehicle, a signal from the fob unlocks the doors and, if it is dark, turns on the car's interior and exterior lights.

To start the car, the driver inserts the fob into a slot in the instrument panel and presses it momentarily. A security code in each fob allows the car to start only if an authorized fob is used. To stop the engine, the driver simply removes the fob from the slot. The GM Smart Card, a credit card with an integral computer memory, fits into a slot in the instrument panel, providing a number of convenience features.

A list of Customer's Choice settings can be placed on the card, allowing the settings to be transferred to any Buick equipped with Customer's Choice. The Smart Card can pay for fuel, food or other services. It can automatically pay tolls, so the car can pass through toll booths without stopping. Smart Card can also carry the driver's medical records and personal history, important assets in the event of an accident or illness.

A head-up display projects vehicle data onto the base of the windshield, allowing the driver to check speed, fuel level and other important information without moving his or her eyes away from the road.

The advanced head-up display of the XP2000 uses programmable, reconfigurable color displays to provide whatever information the driver chooses. When the car is parked or operating in wire-guided mode, the head-up display and the flat-panel color display that normally serves as the instrument cluster can be used as screens for the vehicle information center, the cellular phone, the driver's personal computer or the entertainment system.

XP2000 features a navigation system with an easy-to-use format. An arrow indicates vehicle direction while distance, time to destination, road names and the color of approaching traffic lights are displayed nearby. The system warns the driver of approaching emergency vehicles, even contains a directory of restaurants and tourist attractions.

The Smart Arrow Navigation System can be programmed to use either the head-up display or the main color display in the instrument panel. The navigation system, climate control, entertainment system and other features can be activated by a voice recognition system, allowing the driver's hands to remain on the steering wheel.

XP2000 is designed to use wire-guidance systems proposed for the Intelligent Vehicle Highway Systems of the 21st Century. In automatic guidance mode, the XP2000 reconfigures its color displays and other features, transforming the interior into an office or entertainment center.

Also featured on the XP2000 is an Adaptive Cruise Control system, which can be used for either wire-guided or normal driving. The driver selects a speed and following distance; the cruise control automatically maintains this distance from the car ahead. The system will instantly slow the car and alert the driver if the vehicle ahead slows or stops suddenly.

To make driving safer, especially at night or in poor visibility, a Near Obstacle Detection System uses radar to track objects near the XP2000 and predict their motion relative to the car. This information is graphically displayed on the head-up display.

When the vehicle is shifted into Reverse, the system scans the space behind XP2000 and warns the driver of any obstacle, using the head-up display and an audible tone. When the car is in Reverse, the system also adjusts the outside mirrors downward to improve rear visibility and reduce blind spots.

Signal air bags are provided for the driver, front passenger and rear passengers. Side-impact protection is enhanced with a roll-over protection system. The roll-over protection system is a bag located in each of the four doors.
