The Eldaran bowlers never showed better form till they did Wednesday night in the classy Athletic League series against Roseville 1-1-1 on the latter's alleys. The home team was in the battle, too, and the match was a corner from start to finish. The Eldaran succeeded in making it three straight. In the first game the Rahway team made the splendid mark of 1,000 through the great work of Mooney and McCormick who topped the timber for 312 and 313 respectively. Even with this great planing the Rahways had a lead of only thirty-one as Grover piled 257 for the home five.

The second session was another fight to the finish, the Eldaran grabbing 344 while the home team had 357, a difference of only thirty-eight.

Mooney, McCormick and Martin came through with big marks, the former getting 316, while McCormick had 190 and Martin 216. The Roseville had another towering mark in this game when Nagley split the wood for 250.

In the third game the Eldaran led by sixty-three. McCormick and Mooney again contributing double centuries of 213 and 212.

The remarkable work of Mooney was the chief feature of the game while McCormick did almost as well. Mooney averaged 312.1; McCormick, 212; W. S. Martin, 184; Captain Clifford Miller, 173.1 and Howard, 171.1. The best average for Roseville was secured by Nagley with 302.1, while Grover had 196.1; Stevens, 171.1; Wood, 173, and Van Ness, 171. McCormick and Martin pulled the dirt game from the fire, while Mooney and McCormick headed the list in the second, and Mooney, McCormick and Howard topped their opponents in the final. McCormick led his rival in all three games; Mooney was ahead in two, and Miller, Howard and Martin in one. The Rahway players had the knack of getting their big scores at the psychological moment when they had the most telling effect.

The Eldaran team average was 977 and Roseville 929.

Investigation First Before Railway Operation is Interrupted Says President

Washington, D. C., Dec. 11.—Standing squarely behind the recently examined view of President Wilson, a report presented by a Committee on Railroad of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States declares the operation of railroads shall not be interfered with by railroads or by employees until after investigation. That report has been issued for a referendum vote of the commercial organizations of the country.

In connection with the railroad strike of last summer, the National Chamber by an overwhelming vote had asked that Congress direct the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate the causes leading up to the threatened strike before a settlement was attempted. The new report takes the same fundamental principle of a full investigation before a strike or lookout, but suggests different agencies and laws for carrying it out.

CIRKAUS SAYS LOCAL COMMENT INFLUENCED HIM

Employee of Stokes Rubber Co. Finds Tinsel as Good as Represented

"Tinsel has helped me more than anything else I have taken," said Mr.
Leopold Kratz, of the Newark-based Tinsel Co., who has held employment at the Joe Stokes Rubber Co. for the past 14 years. In an interview with the Times-Man reporter:

"It was the favorable comment of local people that influenced me," he continued. "For three years I suffered from stomach trouble. Nothing seemed to give more than temporary relief.
One would form on my stomach after a meal, and the tightest foods caused a heavy feeling and pulsation of the heart."

"I gradually lost appetite and became very weak. I rarely enjoyed a full night's sleep and morning would find me all tired out. I took one cold after another during November weather. Since I started taking Tinsel I don't catch cold so easily. The tinsel has given me greater power of resistance."

"My appetite is keen, my digestion good; all signs of gas and intestinal trouble have gone. I sleep fine at night now, and am no longer nervous.
Tinsel and nothing else has done this, and I am just beginning my new chapter of the regeneration."

"Over fifteen thousand Jersey people are taking Tinsel. It is being sold daily in Newark at Kretsch's Pharmacy.
It costs 10c."

Mr. Kratz is chairman of the committee whose report is carried in the referendum succeeded in the one which voted at the time of the threatened railroad strike and whose recommendations were so heartily approved by the national body. It has studied the situation thoroughly and has worked along the lines contemplated by the city committee.

Because of the importance of the work in hand particular care was exercised in the selection of the present committee. Judged by the prominence of its members and the widely divergent interests which they represent, it is said to be one of the most remarkable committees which has ever served the National Chamber.

Mr. Wood, its chairman, as has been said before, is the President of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and a well known New England lawyer.

Harry A. Wheeler, of Chicago, was the first president of the National Chamber.

It is not remarkable that the Natannunciation to the shepherds, the divine events of Christendom should have inspired painter and sculptor for centuries. The birth of Christ and the incidents attending his infancy were the subjects of Christian art, but from the thirteenth century on they found reverse representation at the hands of those artists who, inspired by the religious spirit of the middle ages, turned to Biblical subjects for the nob-blest examples of their art. Symonds

DESSERTS FOR CHILDREN

RANGE SPONGE Soak a tea-spoonful of granulated gelatin in a little cold water for fifteen or twenty minutes, then stand it over hot water until thoroughly dissolved. Add one-quarter cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of orange juice. Beat the white of an egg very stiff. Pour in the orange mixture and beat all thoroughly. Stand in a pan of ice water or in a cold place for fifteen or twenty minutes, then beat again. Turn into a mold or small dish and place on ice. Serve plain.

Tapioca Pudding Cover a cupful of tapioca with cold water and let it stand two hours, stirring occasionally with a fork to separate the impurities. Put in a buttered mold and a half of water. Slice three tart apples and add to the tapioca together with sugar to sweeten. Stir all together and cook until the apples are soft and the tapioca clear. Serve hot or cold with cream.

Wheat Pudding Put a half cupful of any of the prepared wheat preparations about the same quantity of sugar, a quarter half cupful of seeded raisins and a bit of ground cinnamon into a pudding dish with two quarts of milk. Put in oven, cover and bake about two hours, without separating until very light and thin. Tapioca is good, too, and adds to the texture. When done, add a cupful of milk, stir thoroughly and add the hot custard. Pour into custard cups, stand them in a pan of hot water and bake about thirty minutes.

Caramel Custard Dissolve three tablespoonsfuls of sugar by putting it in a saucepan and letting it dissolve. Remove from heat and add a quart of milk, well beaten, and a dash of vanilla. FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

State Health Departments Slogan "Care for All
By 1920"

Trenton, Dec. 31.—Hereafter the campaign against tuberculosis is to be conducted in accordance with the slogan "Facilities for the care of all the tuberculous in New Jersey is 1920," according to a statement obtained this afternoon from the office of the State Department of Health. This slogan was adopted at a recent conference of tuberculosis workers for the purpose of fixing a definite end toward which efforts may be directed. From the platform adopted for the purpose of carrying this slogan into effect, it appears that hospital or sanatorium provision for all patients is not expected by that time. It is expected, however, that it will be possible to provide care in their homes for those who cannot be cared for in institutions. The platform embraces all lines of work that have been found most effective in combating tuberculosis. It consists of seven points as follows:

1. Every county to have sanitary provisions within or very near its borders for all the tuberculous.

2. A well organized and properly supervised public health nursing service to be extended to all parts of the state.

3. Facilities for the physical examination and medical supervision of all patients to be provided in dispensaries or by other arrangement.

4. All living cases of tuberculosis to be reported to the local board of health.

5. Such careful painstaking follow-up work by the local health officials or by others where health officials fail as will insure proper supervision at home for all cases who cannot be induced to accept hospital or sanatorium care.

6. Thorough cleaning of the premises after every removal or death of a tuberculous patient.

7. A more intensive study of the tuberculosis problem in relation to the state and the several communities within the state; and a full presentation of the facts to the public.

The conference decided to make special efforts during the year to obtain sufficient funds to provide for tuberculous patients, and adopted the standard of one bed for each annual death from the disease as an ideal toward which to work. It was felt that the idea of full disbursement that each county should make immediate sanatorium provision for as many cases as there are annual deaths in the county, but that this ratio should be kept in mind as representing the probable ultimate needs. For this reason a sanatorium should be so planned that additions can be made when more beds are required. The standard was fixed at one bed for each annual death for the reason that experience has shown that this probably approximately represents the needs. In some New York counties where provision has already been made for half the number of beds there are annual deaths from tuberculosis, the demand for additional beds has become imperative.

Sanatorium provision for active cases regarded as the most important step that may be taken for the prevention of tuberculosis for the same reason that isolation of the patient is considered important in the treatment of smallpox, diphtheria or scarlet fever. People become infected with tuberculosis by living in close contact with persons who have the disease. Children are much more susceptible to infection than adults and for this reason it is particularly important not to permit children to associate with tuberculous patients.

The danger to adults is very much less than the danger to children.

It is pointed out also that sanatorium provision near the patient's home is highly desirable for the reason that patients are more willing to accept sanatorium care near their homes than far away. Some counties in the state are now paying for the

Some Christmas Beliefs

Holy berries possess and give wonderful power when worn in the shape of a wreath, which must be made in imitation of the sacred crown of thorns and of berries as red as blood, and the wreath must go above at midnight on Christmas and sit in a church in the dark, according to an ancient belief.

Second sight will then come to him and into the church will sit the three friends who will die during the coming year. Women Christians over the holy wreath will evoke visions of spirit forms coming from the air to sing their Nativities. The wreaths will be seen to stand down in winter. If there is no snow for a year the wreath will be accepted and eaten in the house.

The wreathes, it is understood, explain why the War Department has offered $1,000 postage stamps to every man they can induce to enlist, and why it proposes to offer every private citizen $1 a head for all the recruits they may induce to join the army.

Another interesting item in Gen. McClellan's report shows that of 97,512 enlisted men for 1918, exactly 1,355 deserted, or something over four per cent.

All these figures are for the regular army and do not include the Philippine Scouts.

In regard to the failure of the state militia to measure up to the recent promises of former Representative Hay, Governor Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts said in his address at the Governor's conference:

"An it is today, the militia is about nineteen-twentieths a national militia as we relate to the coast and almost nineteen-twentieths a State institution as far as defense goes—do not believe that we can have effective ability of control of military forces."

"After the passage of the Hay bill when the state soldiers were transferred from the militia into the National Guard they had a definite object of service presented to them as a condition of their going to the front, where their patriotism bids them go, the aim of the so-called Hay bill putting them into a military paradise for something like six years. There was hardly a man who did not rebel at the idea, but they believed they were needed and nearly every man took the oath."

PEARL OF THE ARMY

Thrilling Picture, Serial Begins at Engine Theatre Next Tuesday

An all star cast will support Pearl White in Pathé's great, military-mystery serial, "Pearl of the Army," which will be shown next Tuesday at the Empire theatre. "The Shielding Shadow" marked the coming of the all star cast to the motion picture. Its success has been demonstrated and an even stronger cast has been gathered for the Pearl White picture which is expected to outdo all of her former vehicles.

Pearl White is recognized as the most popular serial star in the world.

The cast supporting her in "Pearl of the Army" includes, Ralph Bellard, who became famous in "The Shielding Shadow"; Theodore Roberts, one of the most widely known actors in the country, Marie Wayne, a beautiful young adventuress in the film, and that wonderful actor, W. T. Carter.

Pearl White has been starred in "The Perils of Pauline," "The Exploits of Elaine" and "The Iron Claw."

Each has been more successful than the other. Her role in "Pearl of the Army" is the best she has ever had. It gives her an opportunity to act as never before and also to do the thrilling stunts that made her famous.

Throughout the serial there is a strange and mysterious character called "The Silent Man." In one episode we see Pearl White and the "Silent Man" after a thrilling struggle fall from a cliff into the river below. Again we see her rescued by the daring driver of a military aeroplane. We see "The Silent Man" boldly invade one of the Government buildings in Washington and steal a pack bag containing important documents. We see Pearl White in a thrilling fight with "The Silent Man" in the tower of the building, buried down the sloping roof and saving herself by clinging to the railings.

What I like about my part is

"Pearl of the Army," said Miss White, that it has a big idea behind it.

It is a very thrilling and interesting part. It has a big theme—protection of women and children will appeal to every man, woman and child because of the message which it carries.

ARMY WEAKNESS IS DISCLOSED

Failure of National Guard For Defense, Shown by Expert Evidence

Washington, Dec. 31.—Disclosures of the numerical weakness of the United States regular army and of the failure of the National Guard as a second line of defense have just been made in Washington, the former coming from Brig. Gen. H. P. McCall, adjutant-general in the War Department, and the latter arising in a conference of state governors at which about half the state executives of the nation were present. And these governors are the commanders-in-chief of the militia in their respective commonwealths.

In a "comparison of authorized and actual strength" as he puts it, Gen. McCall gives these figures for June 30, 1918, the close of the fiscal year, and it may be said that they are even more disconcerting at the present time. Total authorized strength, 1,171 officers and men; actual strength, 1,022, leaving a shortage of 14,886 officers and men, or over twenty per cent. Incidentally, the shortage in the preceding year had been only 1,781 officers and men.

These figures, it is understood, explain why the War Department has offered $1,000 postage stamps to every man they can induce to enlist, and why it proposes to offer every private citizen $1 a head for all the recruits they may induce to join the army.

MERRY CHRISTMAS EVERYBODY!

Four Ancient Christmas Carols

THREE ancient Christmas carol "Holy Night" is German in its origin and is considered by many persons to be the most beautiful of all Christmas carols. It has sometimes been ascribed to Martin Luther, but the consensus of expert opinion is that it is much older than his time and is one of the oldest of German folk songs.

The carol "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," is English in its origin and dates back to about the beginning of the sixteenth century, although the author of the words and the composer of the music are unknown. The first and best known to the public was a poet who sang to the people some of the old traditional carols and probably wrote all the words, with which he always accompanied them.

Originally the old carol was sung in polyphonic harmony with the melody placed to the tenor, as was the inverted custom of the seventeenth century. Modern transcriptions of it however, have placed the melody in the upper voice part instead of the third voice part, as formerly. This carol, too, is one of the most popular and most beautiful in the entire range of Christmas music.

The carol "Dovey Nigh, Isamanon," is one of the oldest pieces of coherent music in existence, and both the words and music are anterior to any of the others. The music is an old French melody, dated from the thirteenth century, although, of course, it has been harmonized to conform with more modern standards.

There is a most curious but lasting musical effect at the close of this carol, the words of "Dovey Nigh, Isamanon," are about 100 years older than the music being taken from the Monastic breviary of the twelfth century, and it is generally believed that they were taken from the library of the early Christians at Toledo, Spain, where the Monastic breviary was formulated.

Another carol, "The First Noel," has a traditional French melody and probably originated in France, although the exact origin of this fine old song is somewhat in doubt.

CHRISTMAS PLAYS IN THE HOME THEATER.

The dramatic instinct is strong in most children and should be encouraged, says Mrs. Blanche Cole Hosmer, in the New York Evening Sun. To the young child in the戏曲家's career to write away many rainy hours; to the older child it can provide a source of inspiration to make dreams and a means of gratifying the longings for romance and for drama for adventure.

Where there are two or more young children Santa Claus plays all night will occupy the pre-Christmas days.

The most popular and simplest one is that in which one child represents the benevolent saint and the rest of the family go to bed after hanging the stockings. The saint fills the stockings and makes what other preparations he imagination can compass, then usually because a child again and goes to bed himself, not wishing to be left out of the Christmas morning fun so soon to follow.

All Christmas stories may be dramatized. The story of Gretchen, who set her sash by the chimney and found a poor sparrow in the chimney and will be acted out with as many embellishments as the story teller has been able to add.

There is a story of two children who weeks to find Santa Claus in their room. They accompany him to toyland and back with many adventures on the way. This lends itself well to play also. Reliving the distress of a poor family on Christmas morning is a pretty play. The generous Samsonite go along to bring the unhappy ones and play in a joyous dance.

While the dramatic spirit is on the children will not stop with Christmas tales, but will play Cinderella, Goldilocks, Squire Nutkin and any other simple story which is familiar to them.

The Realm of Christmas Fancy

To the realms of Christmas fancy I must speed away, away, Where the gift of joy are standing And the spirits of pleasure play. I must go where gentle fairies Whisper softly on the air And the gift king waves his scepter Over blossoms sweet and rare.

Childhood's realm of Christmas fancy

Once again shall feast my eyes With the old time love and rapture, With the old time fond surprise. In the flickering hearthstones shud- ows,

In the music and the mirth Once again each dear remembrance Speaks good will and peace on earth.

In the realms of Christmas fancy I shall very shortly see All the old, beloved memories Coming back to gladden me. Long forgotten forms and faces, Long departed thoughts and dreams.

I shall find in these fair visions Where the Christmas play dreams.

"Christmas Carol"

Wolverhampton, England, was the town in which Charles Dickens gave his celebrated reading of "The Christmas Carol" after the conclusion of his first London season. He read it in the Corn Exchange on the evening of Wednesday, Dec. 11, 1852, before a crowded and appreciative audience. He was accompanied on that occasion by Arthur Smith, brother of Albert Smith, who managed all the business details of his tour.

As Rev. Mr. Parkes was on friendly terms with Arthur Smith, he and Dickens were invited to stay at the denunciating during their visit to Wolverhampton, and Richard Bradley (Cuthbert Bede was asked to meet them. It was, however, Dickens' custom on such occasions to prefer to put up at a hotel where he might be as private as he desired and from the importance of guests who were anxious to be seen.

He made more than one story in that town (the Swan), and his expertness there with the mention of the waiter whom he saw returning from the "Wolverhampton" across the way and slapping over his shirt the sole intended for the novelist's dinner formed the subject for one of his graphic articles in "Household Words."

His journey by night from the same inn to Birmingham supplied him with the material for his famous paper, "Fire and Snow," in the same journal.

Mr. Dickens was greatly pleased with his Wolverhampton reception and afterward told Cuthbert Bede, who sat by Mr. Parkes' side in a front row, that he had never read or "quizzed" any audience and that of course he had scarcely been able to continue his reading from the "quizzed" fidelity of his audience.

In the very commencement of the "Christmas Carol," where mention is made of Scrooge's clock occupying a dismal little cell—"a sort of tank"—there was an irrepressible shout of laughter from an occupant of the back seats, who doubtless had an everyday experience of a similar tank. The laugh was taken up by others, and the applause thereafter was continuous.

In talking with Cuthbert Bede at the denunciating over the events of the evening Dickens especially referred to that burst of laughter at the mention of the "tank" and said that he instinctively clapped the person for his aplomb.

While the dramatic spirit is on the children will not stop with Christmas tales, but will play Cinderella, Goldilocks, Squire Nutkin and any other simple story which is familiar to them.

Early Christmas Play.

Two of the earliest Christmas plays that have come down to us are to be found in the few fragmentary works of Hildegard, a monk of the twelfth century, who is said to have been an Englishman and who is known to have been a pupil of the monk Abelard. Of the three mystery plays which he is thought to have written in collaboration with Jordanus and Simon, probably brother monks, two were evidently played during the Christmas season—namely, "The Image of St. Nicholas," most likely produced on that saint's day, Dec. 6, and "The History of Daniel," which seems to have been intended for Christmas presentation.

Holiday Time in Holland.

The country where the people enter most thoroughly, perhaps, into the spirit of the nativity is Holland. In nearly every Dutch town at 3 o'clock on Christmas morning the rooms are resounding in the merriment of the people, who have been up all night, and at 6 a.m. cards until dawn, when they repair to the houses of some prominent men and partake of a bountiful breakfast. England, however, furnishes the best example of the Christmas carol.

At Christmas Be Merry.

At Christmas be merry and thankful with thy near neighbors—the great and the small.

—Thomas Fuller.

Christmas Clip Five Adventure

Once upon a time in a queer little town,

On the shore of the Taylor Sea,

When all the good people were fast asleep,

A strange thing happened to me.

Close the night before Christmas,

Laid by the glowing fire,

Watching the stars as it rose and fell,

While the sparks shot higher and higher.

Suddenly one of the sparks began

To flicker and shimmer and wisk

One big, bright eye till I hardly knew

What to do or say or to think.

Quick as flash it changed to a face,

And what in the world did I see?

But there old Santa Claus was sitting

In his seat,

And waving his hand to me!

"Oh, follow me, follow me!" said he.

And up through the chimney with him,

I mounted, not daring to utter a word,

Till we stood on the chimney's rim.

Many a stocking he filled to the brim.

And numerous Christmas trees burst into bloom at his magical touch.

Then all of sudden & boom

Captain us and have away to the south.

And afterward blow us out west,

And never till dawn purped over the hills.

Did we stop for a moment's rest.

"Christmas is coming!" he whispered to me.

"You can see his smile in the sky."

I wish merry Christians to all the world.

My work is over. Goodby!"

Like a flash he was gone, and I was alone.

Christmas Cribs of the Tyrol

THE Christmas crib, showing the food resting place of the infant Christ, which one now sees usually in the churches of this country, can not be compared with those of Europe, especially the remarkable ones made by the peasants of Italy and of the Tyrol. In the former country there has been of recent years a decided revival of interest in these cribs, representing the nativity of Christ.

It is not unusual to see one with several bridged figures. Not alone, the birth of the Saviour, but the adoration of the shepherds, the arrival of the kings with their golden and incense, the flight into Egypt, Jesus in the temple, and even the marriage at Cana are represented.

The Tyrol's cribs have been famous for centuries, and the people were highly proud of them until the spirit of "modern enlightenment" invaded the land and crib building was denounced as child play. Introducing amusements and art culture snuffed up all the old cribs and then cold stone at good profit to tourists.

Many fine specimens have disappeared from the land, but fortunately a few of the best were acquired by national museums. The best two Tyrol is known to be in the Louvre, Paris, the "Crib of Immaculate Conception" and the "Moses crib" of Munich, and the "Moses crib" of Berlin, are now in the Bavarian National museum, Munich. A third, the "Jesuit crib," is in the Vienna museum.

Originally it was used as a family in Witten, now a part of Innsbruck, it contained 120 animal figures, 64 buildings and 200 human figures. It included wild woodland life, among the heads of which were wolf and others whose heads and bodies were movable. Some of these date back as far as the year 1700. Seven more were represented.

The Moses crib of Berlin was much more elaborate. Moses' "city" was in itself a masterpiece and included palaces, temples, fountains, instruments of music, etc., and the figures. The angel who carried the manger to the ground there is a general similitude.

This ceremony takes the place of the Christmas tree, which is purely a festa for the children. After the children have been sent to bed we who are grown up enjoy a typical Christmas feast. It is usually a feast of fish, salads, grapes and wine. Dancing on well varnished floors to the music of a stringed orchestra follows.

Around the table, or dancing room, as tables are placed costly gold and gilt ornaments. These might be analogous to your codlin favor, except that they are bestowed on everybody. It is long after midnight, far into the dawn of Christmas day, when the dancing is over and the guests, loaded with little gifts, depart.

Twelve-color may be divided into two general classes, the essential type and the Tyrolean. In the latter class the crib owner takes it for granted that Christ was born in Tyrol, hence money, people and dress are purely Tyrolean. In all the other cribs the masterpieces are now lost to Tyrol. It can hardly cause surprise that western-minded men begin to entertain grave fears for their remaining works of art. This fear had a practical result in the formation of a society whose object was to prevent in future the medium—corporation and selling of old cribs and to revive the spirit that produced them.

This fear had a practical result in the formation of a society whose object was to prevent in future the medium—corporation and selling of old cribs and to revive the spirit that produced them.

The society of Bethlehem and its members always remain the center of the greatest, the reason is merely the setting. The crib means much to the family. The other results of useful pastimes taken, everything is ready, but the holy family is not there. After the parents have given over their love to the crib, the people come to visit about the crib, the crib owner waits to detect the thefts of the "unchristified," are told that the holy family are still seeking a shelter and finding none. The persons that of their compassion lay on their bosoms, these give way to joy as they recall that perhaps there is some in their poor household less than will share room. At midnight the children climb out of bed all to mass, and when the family returns to their home the father is the first to kiss his wife, while Mary and Joseph find no humble abode in the city.

There was a large family, and always there were guests and relatives to dine with us. In consequence the table was enlarged, to the limit of its capacity and reached from one end of the dining room to the other. In the center was a bowl of bolly whose berries gleamed in the light which fell upon them, and at both head and foot of the table a large, impressively large, and consequential turkey which had long been preparing for his fate by ready for his sacrifice. Today two turkeys seem sentimentally unnecessary. In the yesterdays they were not considered so.

On one side of the holy barrier was a sunburnt man, tanned to a brown, man that was indeed singular; on the other a round of spiced beef which required much washing down, soup and beer on Christmas day were always dispensed with.

Oysters only were served when the carving was being done, and when the latter was sufficiently advanced to permit the guests to sit down with their plates ready to the eyes, the meal was over. The service was then completed, the dishes removed, the table cleared, and the room prepared for the next course.

For many hours on Christmas day, however, the table was set, and the room prepared for the next course.
