TILT ENVIERS CITY MEETING

"How do you know," Mr. Dobbins asked the Mayor, "if my eyes don't deceive me there is no evidence of anything being done so far as I can see."

You receive two or three letters of commendation at one meeting and get all puffed up. One is the cutting of a driveway to the house, a very commendable project, but particular benefit to the people as a whole. You improved your own property, but you have not improved the city.

Mr. Dobbins then turned his fire on the newspapers. "If we had a news paper we would show you what is the (probably needless) and (possibly mischievous) remark in private conversation."

As he uttered the latter words he was waiting toward the city and left the city hall evidently in a highly perturbed state.

Previous to this unexpected development the meeting had proceeded in a calm and businesslike way. The starting point of the dramatic was the request of Mr. Dobbins for further information regarding the cost per capita to educate a pupil in the city.

WHETHER prices go up or down—whether merchandise is plentiful or scarce—the great Hahne store is constantly protecting the people's interest with the best values the market affords.

The public benefit from this has been strikingly demonstrated in the many important special events held by us recently in which wanted merchandise was sold far under market prices then prevailing.

We shall continue to merchandise our store "abreast of the times."
