How a Trust Company Safeguards Estates and Trusts

THE care of an estate or I trust is essentially a service of protection. The safeguards with which the modern trust company surrounds the administration of estates and trusts include:

RESPONSIBILITY: The trust company is financially responsible.

EXPERIENCE: There is no lost motion in the handling of an estate by a trust company. Every step is taken in the light of long experience and intensive training in trust System: Accurate accounting is the backbone of estate administration. A trust company keeps estate records with the same accuracy that it accords to banking opera-may die. A corporation has unlimited existence, and is always ready and competent to act.

CONTINUED EXISTENCE: The individual named as executor

JUDGMENT: The directors and officers of a trust company, through the general transaction of their business, usually are far better able to invest funds and handle business matters than an indi-

SUPERVISION: Trust companies are under the supervision of State Banking Departments and subject to rigid laws

By appointing a trust company your executor and trustee every safeguard provided by that highly developed organization will be utilized in the protection of your estate
