MAN HIT BY TAXI; AUTO RAMS TRUCK; OTHER ACCIDENTS

Man Involved With Taxi Has Broken Bones; Woman Is Cut on Face

A Yellow Cab driven by Leo Mosso, of 153 Main street, going north on Irving street yesterday struck George Gerhold, of 54 West Hazelwood avenue, who Mosso declared stepped in front of his machine. Gerhold declared he did not see the taxi approach. He walked into the rear of the taxi, according to Mosso's story. Dr. Kusher attended Gerhold and found that he had a possible fracture of the left knee and of one rib, and was badly cut over the right eye. Patrolmen Joseph Jardot and Raymond Harton investigated the accident for the Rahway police.

In an accident on Lincoln Highway near the Linden city line, a car driven by Lester Price, of 364 Springfield road, Elizabeth, ran into the rear of a truck driven by John Masarik, of Keasby. Mrs. Price, who was riding with her husband had a number of stitches taken to close wounds over her eye and under her chin.

William Burns, Jr., of 703 East Jersey street, Elizabeth, had one rib on the right side fractured in an auto accident at St. George avenue and Union street at 5 a. m. Sunday. He was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital, Elizabeth, for treatment and then went home. He was riding with Henry Wiles, of [illegible] street, Elizabeth.

Two cars were damaged in a collision on Main street near Lewis street Sunday at 12.30 p. m. The machines were driven by Lawrence Wilson, of 11 Commerce street and James Confrida, of 170 Main street, both of this city.

Three cars were involved in a collision Saturday afternoon. The machine of Arthur Smoot, of Fort Hancock hit the car of Miss Frances Mauson, of 116 Jaques avenue driving it against the car of Richard Cook, of 9 South Maple avenue, East Orange. Patrolman William E. Smith investigated.

Will Hold Services for Miss L. T. Fox Tomorrow

A solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning for Miss Loretta T. Fox, who died suddenly Saturday night, as the result of a heart attack, at her home, 69 Jaques avenue. Ill about six weeks, she had expected to leave Sunday for Lakewood to recuperate. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

She was born in this city and lived here all her life. Her father, Edward C. Fox, died about two years ago.

Miss Fox graduated from Rahway High School and Trenton Normal School and had taken special work at Columbia University for her master degree. For the past three and a half years she had taught in Theodore Roosevelt Junior High School, Elizabeth, prior to which she was a teacher at East Newark. She taught history and social subjects.

The deceased was a member of Court Victory, No. 449, Catholic Daughters of America, which conducted a brief service at the home last night, Grand Regent Miss Mary T. McCartney leading the prayer. She also belonged to the Children of Mary, and the Elizabeth Teachers Association. She leaves one sister Mrs. Alice Farrell, of Brooklyn, and one brother, J. Francis Fox, of 69 Jaques avenue, who is chairman of the Democratic City Committee.

POLICE COURT NOTES

In Police Court last evening Judge F. N. Talley fined John J. Sheridan, of 354 East 21st street, New York, $10 on a charge of reckless driving. A suspended sentence was given Mr. and Mrs. Albert King, of 517 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, charged with fighting in the street on Sunday and arrested by Patrolman Henry J. Miller, and later released in the custody of Chief of Police George Pickel of Linden. Harold Cohn paid $5 for reckless driving.

MARTIN H. SHEARCRAFT

Martin Henry Shearcraft, aged 4 years and 3 months, son of Edward and Helen Shearcraft, of School street, Clark Township, died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Elizabeth, Sunday after a short illness with pneumonia. The boy survived his grandmother, Mrs. Annie Shearcraft, who also died of pneumonia, by one week. Besides his parents the child leaves one sister, Helen, and two brothers, Edward and Walter Shearcraft.

Miss Gladys Mann, of [illegible], has returned home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davis and family, of 16 Pierce street.

O. A. Wilkerson, of Colonia, left Monday for Cincinnati on a business trip.

DEMOLAY CHAPTER WILL STAGE FARCE

Rehearsals Are Being Held For December Production

The date for the third production of Union Chapter, Order of DeMolay, in the form of the well known farce, "Love Them and Leave Them," was set yesterday as December 14 at the Roosevelt School. Rehearsals have been carried on under Miss June Bynon, oral English teacher at Rahway High School.

The action centers about a group of clerks living at the Woodruff Boarding House who are preparing to give a play, the first scene being in a bedroom of the boarding house and the second scene in the parlor. The final scene represents the dress rehearsal for the show. The leading roles are carried by the Misses Margaret Geist and Clara Mae White together with Master Councilor James Cook.

Others in the cast are the Misses Dorothy Jacobs and Ethel Cook, and Frank Johnson, Vernon Simmons, Francis Moore, Herbert Kiehn and Ewald Bergman.

Dancing will follow the play with music by Walls Albertson's orchestra.

The committees in charge are: Advertising, Charles Neinstaedt, chairman, William Turner, Frank Wylie, George D'Ambrosa and John Burten; tickets, Charles Bedman, chairman, Herbert Kiehn, William Schmidt, Harold Baird; stage, Fred Schmidt, Carmine Salo, John Marhut, Kenneth Huff.

Franklin School Pupils Enact Red Cross Scene

A Red Cross sketch was presented by Grade 5A of Franklin School at the assembly period Friday. The scene represented a Red Cross hut in France during a rest period of the World War. The entire class was seated at tables around the room playing games or writing letters. The boys of the class represented soldiers and the girls were Red Cross workers. War time songs were sung. The chief characters were, Announcer, Richard [illegible] playlet, "Socks," Sir [illegible] Mc Bacon, John Timoney, officer, William Houdlow, clerks, Robert Godfrey, Arthur O'Neill; privates, Joseph Monnell, Theodore Droege. Between the scenes of the play there was dancing by Isabel Buchan and violin selections by Georgina Malbury. The previous program was given by Grade 7B. There was a typical voting exercise with Peter Cooper and John Ruffini as clerks of election, while the voters were Grace Smith, Naomi Coffey, Albert Law and Robert Taylor. A thrift playlet, "A Penny a Day," was presented by the following cast: Mrs. Warner, Gloria Mosher, Jessie, Dorothy Roman, Elaine, Helen Pekorsky, Richard, Charles Kropiczek, Uncle Horace, Philip Vurchuk.

Names of Two Rahwayans Listed in "Who's Who"

The name Henry Floor, Jr., a mechanical engineer, of 195 Pierpont street, this city appears in the 1928-1929 edition of "Who's Who," raising Rahway's representation in that volume to two. Earl Reed Silvers, writer of books for boys, of 88 Pierpont street, again is listed.

WILL VISIT LODGE

On November 27 a delegation from Essex County Lodge, I. O. O. F. will visit Radiant Star Lodge, Newark, and witness degree work. Preliminary arrangements were made Friday night for a joint dinner and social with Rahway Rebekah Lodge. John Moores, of Newfoundland, was a visitor at the lodge session. Noble Grand John F. Eckert was in charge with Fred H. Herman, secretary.

CLUB HAS DANCE

The Young Men's Catholic Club held a dance at St. Mary's auditorium Friday night. Music was provided by Lind Brothers' Cliffwood Beach Orchestra. The dance was largely attended by guests from neighboring places. The committee in charge consisted of Carl Andelfinger, chairman, Vincent O'Connor, Francis Gerlach, Francis Darrah, James Coffey, A. J. Melbrod.

PLAN ANNUAL SERVICE

The Second Annual Service of the Sigma Alpha Chi will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Second Baptist Church, East Milton avenue. GRAND JURY CITES CITIZENS' DUTIES

Quotes Words of Georgia Judge as Fitting Here

The October Term, Grand Jury, adopted the following resolution before its recent dismissal:

"Whereas the sessions of this Grand Jury are about to end, and the duties of this Jury, except there be a special call, have been performed,

"Therefore, be it resolved,

"(1) That as members of this Grand Juary we express to the officers of this Court, the Judge and the Prosecutor and assistants and other officers, our sense of satisfaction with the very apparent effort on the part of the same to meet the demands of justice and to uphold the law of the State.

"(2) That we recognize the tendency toward the increase of crime with deep concern and hence the renewed obligation on the part of all high minded citizens to hold the faith, that right makes might.

"(3) That we own the following to be the plain duties of the citizens of this County; using the words of a judge in the State of Georgia:

"'To play no favorites; to stand for the vigorous and impartial enforcement of law.

"'To obey all laws myself and to expect others to do it; to uphold officers in the enforcement thereof.

"'To openly and vigorously work for the repeal of all useless or unjust statutes.

"'To stand as a ready soldier, an honest taxpayer, a willing and impartial juror, a faithful though inconspicuous public servant.

"'To stimulate patriotism, good feeling and loyal co-operation among all classes of our citizens.

"'To openly oppose and publicly denounce the traducers of my country's institutions and the slanders of her public servants.

"'To carry to the foreign-born and those affiliated, the message of a lofty Americanism.

"'To further all safe efforts in behalf of peace and the outlawry of war.'"

AXE, HATCHET TILT LANDS TWO IN JAIL

Arnondoz Outgenerals Hurtado, Bringing Up in Rear

George Hurtado, 36 years old, who threatened destruction with an axe, and Enrike Arnondoz, 29, of 11 Haydock street, who went him one better with a hatchet, were both placed under $1,000 by Judge F. N. Talley in Police Court Friday night, the former on a charge of attempted assault and battery and the latter on a charge of the same thing successfully accomplished.

Hurtado, it is said, went to Arnondoz' residence Friday afternoon and demanded that the latter open the door. If Arnondoz did not comply he would smash the door down with his axe, according to report.

While Hurtado was occupied with breaking down the door, Arnondoz ran through the back door and around the house and hit his visitor on the head with a hatchet.

He then reported the affair at police headquarters. The police patrol with Captain James Thompson, Patrolmen C. J. Crowley and William Flanagan found Hurtado with gaping wounds on top of his head. After the wounds were dressed he was lodged in a cell adjoining Arnondoz.

A telegram received by Van Pelt's parents said they were married Monday in Elkton, Maryland, by Rev. W. R. Moon, Baptist minister.

Rotary Club Arranges Ladies' Night Dinner

The first annual Ladies' Night Banquet of the Rahway Rotary Club will be held Thursday evening at The River View Tea Room on Lennington street, and plans have been made to make this one of the outstanding features of the activities of the local club for the year. Two prominent guests of honor will be present. They are Congressman Harold Hoffman and Past District Governor of the 36th District of Rotary International, James G. Orr. A professional entertainer from New York will add to the gaiety of the occasion.

President Harry Holmes has appointed the following to act as reception committee: Past Presidents Fred C. Hyer and George Orton, Vice-president Alfred C. Brooks, Treasurer Thomas H. Roberts, Secretary H. T. McClintock. Decorations are in charge of Adolph Baumann. At the banquet it is expected that announcement will be made as to the date of the address and visit to the Rahway Rotary Club of John M. Thomas, President of Rutgers University, who will be the club's guest early part of December.

Sergeant McIntyre and Daughter are Improving

Police Sergeant George McIntyre, Jr., and his three-year-old daughter, Doris, who were injured in a head-on automobile collision near Keyport Thursday night, are improving, it was said at the Rahway Hospital this morning. Sergeant McIntyre, who received a light fracture of the skull, will be able to leave the hospital within a few days, it is expected. His daughter, with a fractured right arm, bruises and severe lacerations, is in serious condition but is improving.

Perna—Schmidt

Miss Harriet Schmidt, daughter of Mrs. Susan Schmidt, of 66 Lewis street, this city, was united in marriage to William Perna, of Avenel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perna, of 314 Waverly street, Newark, with impressive ceremony at Trinity Episcopal Church, at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. Benjamin J. Myers officiated.

The bride was gowned in pearl white ivory satin. She wore a lace veil and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, jasmine, white roses and orange blossoms. The maid of honor, Miss Susan Schmidt, a sister of the bride, wore Nile green and carried a bouquet of jasmine, white roses and chrysanthemums.

Each of the six bridesmaids carried jasmine and chrysanthemums. They were Miss Sophie Schmidt, dressed in rose, a sister of the bride; Miss Edna Schmidt, another sister of the bride, dressed in turquoise blue, Miss Mary Genest, dressed in maize; Miss Tessie Buckesyer, in orchid; Miss Mary D'Ambrose in American beauty, and Miss Tessie Centami in changeable taffeta.

Moose Members Enjoy Big Masquerade Party

One of the most enjoyable joint social affairs yet held by the three Rahway Moose organizations was the masquerade last night at the Moose Home. Under the auspices of Rahway Chapter, No. 529, Mooseheart Legion, the affair was attended by the members of Rahway Lodge, No. 1363, L. O. O. M., and the Junior Moose. The main hall was gayly decorated for Hallowe'en.

A program of games, music and dancing was enjoyed, the music being provided by the Junior Moose band, including Miss Marion Bergen, David Currie and John Boland. The door prize was awarded to Mrs. Harry McClure. Prizes for costumes were awarded to Mrs. P. Weigl for the most original and to Mrs. Edwin Payne for the prettiest. The judges were Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Sauer, H. G. Kettner and Howard Van Allen.

The committee in charge included Miss Catherine Kettner, chairman; Miss Helen Bierwirth, Miss Florence Engel, Miss Anna Hammer and Miss Marion Bergen.

Sunday a delegation went from the Mooseheart Legion together with a delegation from the Senior Lodge to the State Association meeting at Elizabeth. The ladies of the Mooseheart Legion will visit Belleville Chapter, Thursday evening. Next Tuesday, November 27, the nomination of officers will take place.

Union County Redmen Meet With Local Tribe

The Union County Association of Redmen tribes met with Rahwack Tribe, No. 165, Improved Order of Redmen last evening, hearing addresses by John J. O'Brien, of Coytesville, great sunnap of New Jersey, and also by Martin Smith, of Flemington, great guard of the forest of New Jersey. This pair of State officers conferred the past sachem's degree on five members of Rahwack Tribe: Edward Nolan, Arthur Brooks, John Moss, John McSarthy and Henry Gardiner.

The county meeting was presided over by Matthew Kennedy, of the law committee of the great council, while Sachem Anthony Horling presided over the preceding meeting of Rahwack Tribe. Announcement was made that the next meeting of the county group will be at Plainfield on December 14.

Seven tribes were representel. A social time with refreshments followed, the committee from Rahwack Tribe in charge of the entertainment including John Jaske and Arthur Brooks.

PLAN BARN DANCE

"Ye Old Fashioned Barn Dance" will be given by the Rawlin Community Club, Inc., at "Ye Franklin School House," St. George avenue, Friday, November 30, starting at 8 p. m. Music by Farmer Pressl's Fiddlers.

Washington Camp, No. 172, Patriotic Order Sons of America, will have a public card party Thursday night in Junior Mechanics hall.

Water Board, State Health Officials Seek Action

Indications now are that the case of the City of Rahway and the State Board of Health against the Chemical Company of America, of Springfield, charged with pollution of the Rahway River from which Rahway takes its water supply, will further delayed and probably continued until 1928. Although it had been expected that both sides would sum up Friday and so pave the way for the Special Master Charles F. Lynch to submit his report to Vice-Chancellor Backes, the attorney for the Chemical Company delayed the hearing until he can appear before Vice-Chancellor Backes to ask permission to submit further testimony.

The Chemical Company is represented in the case by Attorney Heine who, it is understood, wants to submit the testimony of a man now in Chicago, and therefore wants the final summing up before the special master held off for a time. To secure this permission he will appear before Vice-Chancellor Backes today. As the case has been pending since the beginning of the year, this move will, it is understood, be opposed by the representatives of Rahway and also of the State Board of Health.

The only testimony of note submitted Friday was a newspaper clipping which the Chemical Company offered from the records. Attorney David Armstrong and Superintendent of the Water Board C. W. Ludlow represented Rahway at the hearing. The tSate Board of Health is represented in the case by Assistant Attorney General Richmond and chemists from Trenton, who are attempting to prove that the Rahway River is polluted by chemical wastes coming from the Springfield plant.

The action of Rahway and the State Board of Health is based upon a permanent injunction issued against the Chemical concern at Springfield several years ago, restraining them from further pollution of the river. At that time the injunction was issued by Vice-Chancellor Backes following a legal battle between the City of Rahway and the chemical company.

Celebrate Anniversary Of Boy Scout Troop 41

Following a short business meeting of Union Council, No. 31, Jr. O. U. A. M. last evening, the first anniversary of the formation of Troop No. 31, Boy Scouts, sponsored by the council and headed by Scoutmaster John D'Ambrosa, with Alfred Wyllie as assistant scoutmaster, was celebrated.

A. H. Schaefer, chairman of the troop committee, presided, and in behalf of the council presented Mr. D'Ambrosa with a combination pen and pencil set. The pie-eating contest was won by Frank Steele, and a cracker eating and whistling contest was won by Nelson Wyckoff.

In addition to the Junior Order of Rahway and the scouts, a delegation from Union City, and the degree team, Winfield Scott Council, No. 53, of Elizabeth, were present. The program included: Entrance of troop and singing of "The Star Spangled Baner," history of troop by Scoutmaster D'Ambrosa, followed by remarks by Field Executive Charles Schaefer. Scoutmaster Thomas Conway, of Troop 47, sang, accompanied by G. L. Helmstadter. An address was made by Past State Councilor Everett Gray, of Summit Council, Jersey City.

Remarks and clever drawings by Rev. Finley Keech, pastor of the First Baptist Church, were the next feature. After remarks by R. J. Morton, scoutmaster of Troop No. 46, Max Thiel, a magician, entertained the assemblage. Other members of the troop committee besides A. H. Schaefer are W. C. Brower, John Gerner, M. B. Gundawker, Jr., K. H. Schwotzer. Refreshments were served by the good and welfare committee headed by Walter Frederickson.

Trinity S. S. Board Plans Christmas Program

Plans for a Christmas program on Wednesday, December 26, at the church, were made last night at the meeting of the Sunday School Board of Trinity Methodist Church. Miss Anna Josephson is chairman of the committee, other members being Miss Edith Carlson, Miss Dora Price, Miss Marie Schuster, Miss Helen Leech, Miss Mildred Little and Alfred Carlson.

Mrs. Henry Fancher was named treasurer to fill the vacancy which had been temporarily filled by Miss Henrietta Richards. W. H. Barner was named treasurer of the building and loan fund. Report was made that there are six new members in the Cradle Roll and two in the home department.

Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Leech, Mrs. Henry Fancher, Mrs. A. A. Hopkins, Mrs. Christine Price, Miss Dora Price, Miss Anna Josephson, Marie Schuster, Mildred Little, Helen Leech, Alfred Carlson, Paris R. Forman, Edith Carlson, Henrietta Richards.

ON STAGE AND SCREEN

AT THE NEW EMPIRE

George Bancroft, the star of the year, fresh from his outstanding portrayals in "Underworld," "Showdown" and "The Dragnet," in his greatest story of sailors, stokers, stevedores of the most fascinating spot in the world—"The Docks of New York," is the feature attraction for today and tomorrow.

The companion feature is Charlie Murray in a laugh election in which he becomes "The Head Man."

Zane Grey's story of out where the West begins, "The Water Hole," starring Jack Holt, is the feature for Friday and Saturday. There is romance and danger in this one. Magnificent scenic backgrounds, reproduced in natural colors. Desert, mountains, prehistoric cliff dwelling—all framing a story of rare power and charm.

The companion feature, the story of a woman's silence and a mother's devotion to her son on trial for murder. Belle Bennett is again superb as the mother in "The Power of Silence."

Haunting the dark caves of lower Manhattan, slipping by way of the river in and out of the huge warehouses that line the waterfront, taking rope and ship materials and selling it to skippers of outgoing ships—this is the life of "The River Pirate," the feature attraction for Sunday and Monday. In it Victor McLaglen wins new screen honors as Sailor Frink, while Lois Moran and Nick Stuart play the romantic roles. This one has Fox Movietone accompaniments.

The companion feature is a delightful farce, "Beware of Married Men," starring Irene Rich.

Coming Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday is one of the greatest of screen masterpieces, "Sunrise," starring Janet Gaynor and George O'Brien. Its emotional appeal is intense. It is a dramatic study of moods—sinister, menacing, joyous and throbbingly human. The movietone accompaniment will greatly enhance your enjoyment of this one.

AT THE RAHWAY THEATER

That wonderful production "Lilac Time," featuring Colleen Moore in the title role, is shown for the last times today at the Rahway Theater. If you have not already seen this beautiful picture don't let anything interfere with your seeing it tonight.

The two attractive features for Wednesday and Thursday are "The Raider Emden," showing the thrilling exploits of the German terror of the sea, and "Love Is a Lie" with an all star cast.

In casting about for a star to portray the fiery and tempestuous role of Monica Salazar, heroine of the "Charge of the Gauchos," which comes to the Rahway Theater Friday and Saturday, producers of this super-production of the birth of the Argentine republic were faced with many difficulties. Charm, temperament, daring and the ability to reflect the volatile Latin temperament were essential. The choice fell on Jacqueline Logan. She made the trip to Argentine, made good, and her work with Francis X. Bushman as her screen sweetheart is one of the outstanding features of this production.

The other feature for these two days is "How to Handle Women." Marian Nixon, who formerly earned her living as a vaudeville ballet, toe and eccentric dancer, is still keeping up her dancing lessons, although she finds use for them but rarely in her featured roles for Universal. Miss Nixon appears with Glenn Tyron in this, his latest comedy success. William J. Craft directed the picture and included in the supporting company are such players as Raymond Keane, Robert T. Hains, Bull Montana, Cesare Gravina, E. H. Herriman, Leo White, Mario Carillo and Violet La Plante.

ELMORA THEATER, ELIZABETH

Do you know that the Elmora Theater Stock Company, located at Elmora and Jersey avenues, Elizabeth, are presenting weekly big Broadway successes at popular prices. This week the bill is "The House Next Door," presenting the dramatic side of that theatrical sensation "Abie's Irish Rose." The play is written by J. Hartley Manners, author of "Peg O' My Heart" and "Happiness." It tells a story of an English baronet broken down in health and wealth, but unyieldingly proud, with a fanatical hatred for the Jews. In particular he hates the Jew in "the house next door," from which the play takes its title.

Next week, Thanksgiving, the bill selected is "Adam and Eve," one of the most charming diversions the theater has offered in many seasons. The new leading man, Jay Holly, has established himself already, his opening bill with the company being "The House Next Door." With a nice line of attractions booked this popular company should have the support of this community.

Elected Over Protests To S. P. C. A. Presidency

Despite her protests Miss Mae H. Macann was elected president of the Rahway Branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals at the meeting Friday night. Miss Macann has headed the organization for twelve years.

The other officers are: First vice-president, Miss Mary P. Robinson; second vice-president, Mrs. L. M. Edwards; secretary, Mrs. George Cotter; treasurer, Miss Mary T. Bristor. The nominating committee consisted of Miss Mary Robinson, Mrs. Anna Farley and Mrs. F. L. Washburn.

Miss Helen Clarkson resigned as treasurer and as a member of the society.

Members who are delinquent for two years will be eliminated from receiving notices of meetings hereafter. An invitation was accepted to attend the State conference on vivisection the latter part of the month at Asbury Park.

Mrs. F. L. Washburn reported on badges and action was deferred. Remarks were made by President Miss Macann, Charles D. Gray, Mrs. Harry Gramm, Mrs. F. L. Washburn and others. Members were present from Westfield, Scotch Plains, Elizabeth, Linden and this city.

SISTER MARY DIGNA CLADEK

Funeral services were held at 9 o'clock this morning in the St. Elizabeth Hospital chapel, Elizabeth, for Sister Mary Digna Cladek, 75 years old and a native of this city. She had been ill a short time, and died Saturday. Burial was in the Holy Family Churchyard, Convent Station.

Sister Mary Digna was born in Rahway, daughter of the late John J. and Margaret Cladek. She was a sister of the late Dr. W. E. Cladek, of this city, and of former Freeholder George B. Cladek, now of Irvington.

She entered the hospital five years ago as a patient and after her recovery remained there because of her advanced age. For many years after joining the order of the Sisters of Charity she was a teacher. She taught at St. Vincent's Academy, Newark, where she was disciplinarian of studies. Before that she was stationed at All Saints' School, Paterson, and St. Cecilia's School, Kearny.

EUROPE COPIES AMERICA IN CURBING IMMIGRATION

Quota System in Slightly Different Form Is Adopted by Several Countries.

Paris.—Once vilified and classed as unfair by humanity, the quota system of immigration restriction created by the United States to check the flow of emigrants from overseas, is slowly being adopted under only slightly different form all over Europe, where new immigration problems have been created by the industrialization of the continent.

When Secretary of Labor Davis was in Europe recently on a tour of study of labor conditions, he estimated that 5,000,000 Europeans and Asiatics were waiting for their turn to come into America, and if the bars were lifted tomorrow every ocean liner would be filled on every west-bound passage for 18 months with nothing but immigrants, and still the tide would flow westward.

France today finds herself in much the same position as the United States was in a few years ago. She has enough work for her own population but not enough for the unemployed of all Europe and England. Consequently she has erected bars, without any fuss and as quietly as possible.

Italy is doing the same thing. A Frenchman who wants to go to Italy to work finds his way barred with enough red tape to trip him unless he is a specialist in some particular trade which Italy particularly needs. Spain is ready to export rather than import labor, and taxes are levied so as to discourage foreign laborers.

England long ago barred continental workers, for her own unemployed are providing a problem which several successive governments have been unable to solve.

Labor leaders all over Europe openly blame America for the condition, but government officials cannot blame the United States for the immigration stand she took. When the bars of American ports were leveled against mass movements of labor from abroad into the United States, there was created a vast labor surplus which is today estimated at 10,000,000 on the continent, outside of Russia and the British Isles.

One of the problems of the League of Nations labor bureau is to find something for these ten millions to do.

Shakespeare's Vocabulary

The wealth of Shakespeare's vocabulary, says Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, is staggering. It consists of 24,000 words, compared with Milton's 17,000, the Bible's 7,000, Homer's 9,000 and Dante's 5,800. Shakespeare actually used more words than any other known author. Of these words 5,000 were only used once, and in "Hamlet" there are 426 words which appear in no other play.

Stromberg-Carlson Sets Reproduce Accurately

"Accurate reproduction in a radio set and loud speaker depends on so many factors that it is difficult and expensive to provide the fidelity the prospective customer is taught to expect," Ray H. Manson, chief engineer of the Stromberg-Carlson Telephone Manufacturing Co., declared recently. Mr. Manson further said in part:

"Alternating electric light current sets up disturbances which are readily reproduced in the loud speaker unless adequate rectifying and filtering systems are employed. These latter are expensive to produce and any attempt to reduce costs by cutting down on them usually results in either an audible A. C. hum in the speaker or in cutting off the low frequencies in order to make the set insensitive to these disturbances.

"In all Stromberg-Carlson sets, including the new models, 635 and 636, filtering and other precautions to separate low frequency hums are ample to do the job without making the audio system insensitive to the lower musical notes."

Novelty Lamps

Interesting and unique are the electric lights which modern ingenuity has supplied us. Their name is legion, for almost any article may be wired, and presto, you have a new species of electric lamp.

Have you seen these thin white living-room lights in which the electric bulb is encased in a statuette, a white glass figure of bird, a ship, a vase, a person's head, or [illegible] charm about these [illegible] models [illegible] would imagine [illegible]

Room Decorating

The charming room is the room which is lively with colors. The correct scheme is to have one dominating color and another color to supplement it and tone it down. It is sometimes a problem to know which two colors should be chosen. Take your cue from the two leading colors in your floor pattern, from your rug or your linoleum. The room decoration should be built up from the floor, and if that is correctly finished, the color tones of the room should harmonize. For example, if your prevailing colors in the rug are green and tan, have green draperies with tan [illegible] and choose other furnishings to match.

First Umbrella

The first umbrella in America was hoisted at Baltimore by a gentleman of unusually moral courage 155 years ago. Putting it mildly, it caused a great sensation, such waggish remarks as "Gadzooks, wonder the fool don't carry his house round with him, egad," and, of course, the ever-present small boy made life interesting for this early pioneer who was determined to keep dry.

GRANDMA SQUIRREL'S LETTER

By EVELYN BURDEN RAND

[illegible] called Old Black [illegible] his whistle loud [illegible] called Sammy and [illegible] Postman is coming [illegible] Mrs. Squirrel saw [illegible] in his neat black [illegible] a letter for Mrs [illegible] said Mrs. Squirrel [illegible] she quickly scur[illegible] trunk of the walnut [illegible] the kitchen of her [illegible] Susie stood around [illegible] while she read the [illegible]

[illegible] ever in all your life!" [illegible] Mrs. Squirrel.

"What does it say, Mother?" [illegible] Susie.

"Who is it from?" said Sammy.

[illegible] will read the letter to you," [illegible] mother.

"Dears:

You will not be able to come to [illegible] house for Thanksgiving. One [illegible] I was out gathering nuts for [illegible] pie when alas, I cut one of [illegible] paws on a piece of glass. I [illegible] to Dr. Heron. He said I [illegible] not use my paw for some [illegible]. So we will not have any [illegible]ksgiving this year, and how I [illegible] miss my dear little Susie and [illegible]my. Give them all my love, [illegible] tell them as soon as my paw [illegible] better I will send a package of cookies.

Lots of love to all,

From Grandma Squirrel."

When the letter was finished [illegible] and Sammy felt very sad [illegible] it was all they could do to [illegible] back the tears.

"My dear children," said Mrs. Squirrel, "you do not need to feel badly. Do you suppose we [illegible] be away from our dear [illegible] on Thanksgiving Day?"

"What will we do?" answered [illegible] little Squirrels.

"We will go to Grandma's for Thanksgiving. You children take [illegible] baskets and go gather some [illegible] nuts and acorns, and we [illegible] begin to prepare the Thanksgiving feast. The idea of Grandma thinking we would leave her [illegible] with a sore paw, and hardly [illegible] in store for one meal."

[illegible] gathered nuts all day, and [illegible] Daddy Squirrel came home [illegible] night he had a basket full [illegible] apples and potatoes.

[illegible] Squirrel read the letter [illegible] "It would be a fine way to [illegible] Thanksgiving. We will take [illegible] what [illegible] said Grandma [illegible] said little Susie.

And I [illegible] to make a nice [illegible] to keep the nuts in," said Sammy.

"That will be just splendid," said Mother Squirrel, who was busy measuring [illegible] for the pies and cookies.

"[illegible] Daddy," said Sammy, "will you ask [illegible] Teddy the Terrier to take his little sleigh [illegible] Then we will have plenty of room, and with Teddy pulling us over the snow we will go so fast and oh! it will be such fun."

"That is a fine idea. I will ask Teddy the Terrier this very minute," and putting on his gray coat, away scurried Mr. Squirrel.

When he reached the home of Teddy the Terrier, Mr. Squirrel knocked at the door.

"Bow, wow, wow," called Teddy. "Who is there?"

"It is I, Gray Squirrel."

"Come in," said the little dog.

"My dear friend," said Mr. Squirrel, "next week is Thanksgiving. Will you take us all down to Grandma Squirrel's? We will go the night before, and you can borrow Dicky Boy's sleigh, and what a merry time we will have."

"Bow, wow," said Teddy. "How will I get my Thanksgiving dinner?"

"Why, Grandma Squirrel has a lovely big home, and she would be very happy to have you spend the day with us."

"Very well," said the dog. "All be ready at seven o'clock Wednesday evening, and we will be at Grandma's early Thanksgiving morning."

"Thank you, Teddy," said Mr. Squirrel. "We will be ready," and calling "Good-night," he ran back to his Walnut Tree home.

When Br. Squirrel reached home he told them all about his visit to Teddy the Terrier.

After this it was time for the Squirrel family to climb in their little soft beds.

So let us leave them here dreaming about the Thanksgiving surprise they are going to have at Grandma Squirrel's.

Next story, "The Squirrel Family's Thanksgiving."

Pineapple Custard

Scald two cups of milk and add two egg yolks, one half cup sugar, and two tablespoons gelatin, which has been soaked in a half cup of [illegible] from a can of crushed pineapple and the three egg yolks well beaten. If the pineapple has not been cooked, cook it or it will not form a mold. Pour the mixture into individual molds, dipped in cold water, and set away to harden. Serve with whipped cream.

To Tell Beaver Fur

The real beaver fur may be distinguished from the imitation, by the manner the real fur has of curling up at the ends in little masses of curls. The false article remains straight.

The Bath Tub

If your bath tub, lavatory or kitchen sink have become yellowed, wash them with salt and turpentine to restore their original brightness.

Don't pray for more; but give thanks for what you have.

Smiles

Teacher: "Don't you want to learn so that when you are a woman people will look up to you."

Small Girl: "No, I want them to look around at me."

Cranberry Jelly

Pick over one quart of cranberries, removing stems. Wash in cold water and put on to cook in one cup of water. Cook the berries in a covered vessel until tender, about seven minutes. Then press through a sieve. Add two [illegible] bring to a boil and stir to dissolve the sugar. Pour into molds which have been rinsed in cold water. Set away to jell.

Gelatin Salad

When making a vegetable salad of cooked vegetables, and gelatin, save the water in which the vegetables were cooked and use it for dissolving the gelatin. It will add color, flavor and nutriment to your salad.

There are Electric Servants to Help in Holiday Preparations

HOOVER Cleaning Makes Rugs Look Like New
The Hoover is the quickest, the easiest, and the most thorough of cleaning devices. It will save years of wear for your rugs. It preserves the richness of their colorings. It makes the nap stand upright again. It removes all the dirt, not only surface dust and lint, but the ground in dirt which ordinary cleaning methods cannot dislodge.
One demonstration of the Hoover on your rugs will show you why nearly two million women have chosen it. Ask to have a demonstrator call. There is no obligation. He will appraise your old electric cleaner. By trading it in to us you can realize a substantial discount on the price of a new Hoover.
Payment terms on the Hoover are $5 down and $5 a month.

Electric Beauty Aids Help the Appearance
To ward off the tiny lines that come around eyes and mouth use an electric vibrator. Prices from $11 upward.
To keep the coiffure trim and in place use the electric marcel waver. It gives a wave as becoming as that of an expert hair dresser.
Priced at $6.50

Heat Comfortably Applied With Electric Heating Pad
Heat is the remedy for so many ailments that an electric heating pad becomes part of the household's first aid equipment. It gives heat so quickly. Covered entirely with soft material it can be comfortably adjusted to any part of the body. Prices are from $6.50 up.

Electricity Makes Toast Quickly
Plug in the electric toaster and serve each slice of toast hot. At Public Service stores prices begin at $3.75. For $9.75 you can purchase the Westinghouse automatic toaster which controls its own heat.

Tasty Dishes Easily Cooked on Electric Grill
The electric grill will cook a breakfast, luncheon or supper quickly and you can prepare two or more dishes at one time. It boils, broils, fries and toasts. Prices from $12 up.

The Thanksgiving Dinner Should End with Coffee
and the most dependable way of making good coffee is to percolate it electrically. Then the delicious flavor and aroma are retained.
Our prices on electric percolators begin at $4.50. An unusually handsome percolator set may be purchased for only $17.75.

Linens Look Better Wear Longer If Laundered By THOR Electric Methods
In the new Thor Agitator the dirt is loosened and washed out by the force of hot soapy water. No friction is employed and the wearing qualities of fabrics are preserved. The washer occupies little space, and will hold a big washing.
It sells for only $105 cash and $110 on terms.

THOR Speed Ironer
stands on the table. It heats in four minutes and has a surface equal to ten hand irons. You have only to sit at the table and guide each article through. With a little practice you can iron the most difficult pieces with as fine a finish as hand ironing gives. Only $79.50 cash. On terms $84.25.
Payment terms on both Thor Agitator and Speed Ironer are only $5 down and eighteen months to pay.

Serve Waffles at Impromptu Parties
They bake quickly on an electric waffle iron and you can make them right in the living room and serve them piping hot.

Why Public Schools Cost

In reflecting on the increased school costs in Rahway in recent years, consideration by our people should be given to other items besides the decreased purchasing power of the dollar and the increased school enrollment. These and similar items do not tell the whole story.

Our schools have become veritable "Shock Absorbers" in that they have been forced to assume many activities far removed from the early conception of school functions. They have developed into sensitive instruments recording our social and economic tendencies, accurately reflecting the people's changing habits, tastes and needs. Step by step they have added to their scholastic labors varying functions, so that today they play a more important part in the everyday lives of the people than any other institution in existence.

The school responded with recreation facilities when these were found necessary as a vent for the excess of youthful energy and leisure. When adults craved the same privileges the schools were opened evenings and at other times to furnish recreation and cultural activities to all. The moral development of youth has become everybody's concern and the obligation of supplying character training, teaching ethics and furnishing religious instruction has been placed upon the schools.

It is emphasized that discipline has disappeared from the home, so the schools are turned to to foster respect for law and order. Where physical welfare is neglected by the individual or in the home, the schools must safeguard health by assuming medical inspection; they must maintain eye clinics, dental clinics, and in many cases furnish medical treatment to pupils.

There is a wide variety of talents among pupils, therefore the schools must attempt individual instruction; they must discover and satisfy individual inclinations, interests and aptitudes. Classes in art, music, drawing, trades courses have grown up to be the result. A school of one thousand touches today five hundred homes at their most sensitive point, hence every child must be schooled as if the school existed solely for him. Childhood's personal problems, too, must be confronted, hence the establishment of advisors for children for vocational guidance, for psychological testing and expert training of teachers.

Boys and girls, and some big ones, in advanced years, must be prepared for a gainful occupation, hence the vocational departments conducted several nights a week in the high school building. Many girls, if they would sew, must learn the art in school; many can learn cooking only in school. What is the reason? Has fond mama other matters to take up her time to such an extent that she is unable to devote a period of time to training her daughter? Whatever the cause, it's the new order of things, and it must be met at public expense and charged to our school system.

As high school pupils vary in personal choice of college, admission requirements of diverse institutions must be met. The schools must not only give intensive training to prepare pupils for college but at the same time give general training for those that plan otherwise. To provide all this extra training requires more teachers and more supplies for instruction. The methods of instruction and subject matter are constantly changing, making it imperative for instructors and school principals and superintendents to devote a goodly portion of their out-of-school time to study. They just must keep abreast of the times.

A multiplicity of special weeks has become a part of the school program such as Safety Week, Fire Prevention Week, Thrift Week, Constitution Week, Kind to Animals Week, Clean-up Week, Accident Prevention Week, Red Cross Week and many others. All are commendable but all add to the cost of the schools.

Yes, our schools have become "Shock Absorbers" in the effort to stabilize thought, conduct and action. This bulging program has increased school costs, but don't forget that it has thrown a tremendous burden on the school officials and teachers. Their's is a twelve month job and not a nine as many people suppose.

Signs of Community Thrift

The Rahway banks are preparing for an early distribution of Christmas fund savings to hundreds of members, and consequently a reign of happy anticipations pervade this army of fortunate ones. It is a clear indication that the virtue of thrift is not being overlooked in this city and community, and that financial foresight is a quality of which the present generation, notwithstanding current criticisms as to economic irresponsibility, may legitimately boast.

It is to be assumed, of course, that the major part of the sum saved will be used for shopping purposes, with consequent benefit to Rahway storekeepers. That is the objective which most people have in mind when they enter a Christmas Club. But it is none the less true that the educational value of saving for a definite purpose is exceedingly great. Without doubt, many a Christmas Club member has learned the important lesson of individual thrift, and many a dollar, in addition to those diverted into Rahway's mercantile establishments, will find its way into permanent savings accounts.

Thanksgiving Turkey News

With Thanksgiving a little more than a week before us, Rahwayans are asking as to the possible prices and also the extent of the supply. The first car of Texas turkeys has arrived in this metropolitan district, and the word has gone out that the crop of the leading turkey producing states is about four percent greater than that of last year.

Figuring that by the law of supply and demand, the price f.o.b. in Rahway should be no higher, at any rate, than for the 1927 Thanksgiving bird. Of course speculation over the real retail cost is already progressing merrily. That is one of the most captivating pre-Thanksgiving pastimes—guessing how much the turkey is going to cost and indulging in highly pessimistic predictions.

Turkey prices last year ranged from so much to so much. There was the usual amount of gloomy forecasting, followed by more or less relief when the tax for a noble gobbler or hen became known. As usual, it was agreed the price was high enough, but budgets were stretched in the customary manner and there is no evidence today of their having suffered permanent injury.

Cranberries are glowing in the market stalls, corpulent pumpkins and squashes are just waiting for their golden brown overcoats of flaky crust, and there is a comfortable feeling accompanying the knowledge that no devastating pip or other episotic is going to prevent the arrival of the turkeys in sufficient numbers.

Rahway housewives and exchequer family officials will have an opportunity of a possible saving and choice of selection by watching the advertisements in the Friday and Tuesday issues of the Record, as presented to them by Rahway markets, thereby adding comfort and consequent happiness in the preparation of the annual family festival.

Nothing Now to Wrangle About

Now that the presidential, state and city campaign is over life in Rahway stretches out ahead, a flat plain. Gone is the major interest that for months has preoccupied our people, and the people of the entire nation. Families can now be reunited, lifelong friendships recemented. Except for some few grenades, still unexploded, like, "Perhaps you will not be so cock-sure another time," or the inevitable, "Well, what did I tell you!" the conversational No Man's Land in this city is as humdrum as the Argonne the day after the Armistice.

Old Man Apathy, chased over into Clark Township by the intensities of a canvass without recent parallel in Rahway for acerbity, can come timidly back, never to be the same again. Ladies and gentlemen of education and refinement can again gaze at each other across the bridge table without any more hate in their hearts than normally is engendered by the rigors of the game. From Six Roads to Kinsey Corner, Lennington street to Terrill road, local citizens can now resume consideration of interior decoration in the home and the chances of a measles epidemic later in the winter. In addition we may give due thought and deliberation over the proposed widening of Main street, the Rahway Valley Trunk Sewer, and the probable benefits to be derived from a governmental administration, the complex of which will be wholly Republican.

It is no exaggeration to state that since the nominating conventions in June a good time has been had by all. Vocal cords seldom tested for dependability have been given setting-up exercises beneficial to their owners, and the I-seldom-bother-with-politics fringe has abandoned its detached status. The Nineteenth Amendment has at last commenced to hit on all eight and the job of election officer is no cinch. The year 1928 will go on the records as the one in which they all turned out.

"And now how about getting back to business?"

1929 Automobile License Plates

Wednesday last was the date set this year by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Dill for the first issuance of 1929 registration plates and drivers' licenses. Latest reports from the local official of this department, however, fail to reveal any special rush to get into line, though the obvious thing was to encourage all automobile owners and drivers to act early in order to avoid unnecessary confusion and delay during the last week's rush. We feel safe in predicting a waiting line from the local office midway of the block on Campbell street, to Elm avenue and beyond on New Year's Day or the day before—an annual sight.

Each year the newspapers of New Jersey make this appeal. And with equal regularity thousands upon thousands of motorists act as though procrastination is better than foresight.

The inevitable annual result is that the Department of Motor Vehicles is subjected to almost overwhelming pressure during the last few weeks of December, whereas exercise of common sense by the motoring public would greatly facilitate departmental work.

On the chance, however, that Rahwayans this year will surprise Commissioner Dill and his assistants, we again issue a plea for early attention to the matter of securing licenses and plates. "Vote early" worked as an election slogan. Let us hope the idea can be applied with equal effect in the realm of automobiles in this city.

Forcing Grafters to Cover

With the recent sentencing of a politician and five policemen on charges of bribery, extortion and conspiracy, Philadelphia's probe of vicious municipal conditions has reached its first climax. It represents a vigorous repudiation of official corruption which will be applauded by citizens in all parts of the country.

All too often the forces of governmental dereliction are able craftily to evade the bar of public opinion. They manage, somehow or other, to cover up their trails of graft. And, hiding behind self-erected shields of partisan martyrdom, they succeed in staving off thrusts resulting from the righteous indignation of honest men.

The course of events in the Quaker City may serve to warn grafters elsewhere that in the long run official dishonesty, like murder, will out. If so, it will have a wholesome effect of vital consequence far beyond the bounds of Philadelphia, putting local government on a higher level of integrity.

That "too damned dumb" Iowa heckler has demanded an apology from Senator Curtis. Considering the results, he deserves a reiteration instead.

CHANGING THE TAX SYSTEM
(From Trenton Times)

An attempt has been made by the single taxers, who would make land bear the entire burden and abolish the municipal personal property tax, to obtain from the candidates for Governor a declaration as to where they stand on the question of "tax relief for industry and homes." Thus far they have not succeeded, nor are they likely to succeed. The Governor of New Jersey will take an oath to uphold the constitution of the State, which declares that "property shall be assessed for taxation under general laws, and by uniform rules, according to its true value."

Tax reformers should make their appeal to the Legislature, not to the Governor or to candidates for Governor; and the Legislature will no doubt continue to represent the people, and not a few factory owners who are attempting to have the "Pittsburgh plan" introduced in New Jersey and relieve buildings of half of the burden. They must first have an amendment made to the State constitution, and that, as we have good reason to realize, is not easy to get. So that the prospect of obtaining any radical change in the taxing law, is not promising.

DOES NEW JERSEY TAKE STATE PRIDE?
(From Newark News)

Mosquitoes and signboards, said a speaker before the Bloomfield Kiwanis Club, are the emblems of New Jersey throughout the rest of the country. This duality of characteristics is due, as the speaker admitted, to the fact that railroad travelers from Jersey City to Philadelphia and beyond see the most unattractive sections of the State, and meet its most undesirable inhabitants.

It has been the fortune of the Jersey mosquito to win publicity not justified by its importance. New Yorkers are the first to acknowledge the preeminence of the Long Island product, but these latter never had the good press of Jersey mosquito has had its reputation built up by skillful publicity our own. As with some men, the promotion, while the diligent, though taciturn, Long Islander makes only the back pages.

Of billboards, the less said by loyal Jerseymen the better. State, flat and unprofitable as the scenery may be as the Pennsylvania steam cars transport wayfarers westward the billboards make it even more depressing. To say nothing of barns decorated in the art of outdoor advertising.

New Jersey may have given way in the past to an inferiority complex, but she is recovering. The motor car has taught disdainful outlanders that the Garden State is, in very truth, that thing, and that its scenery, in variety embracing mountains, valleys, rolling farmlands, mysterious pine barrens and sandy sea beaches, has charm possessed by few sister states of the Atlantic Seaboard. As for its historical interest, no state, not even Massachusetts, transcends it.

State pride? New Jersey abounds in it. But it is not expressed in the blatancies of the booster. She is a fine lady, so sure of her social position that to assert it would be unthinkable.

TOLERANT COUNTRY
(From New York Herald Tribune)

Is this a tolerant country? To find the answer one need look only at the popular vote for the defeated Presidential candidate. Governor Smith has received the largest popular vote ever given a Democratic candidate, a vote much heavier than that which elected Mr. Wilson in 1912 and 1916, several millions larger than that for Mr. Taft when he defeated Mr. Bryan. The minority party is the largest in the history of the country.

When one seeks for the reason why Mr. Hoover has been elected by the largest of electoral votes many factors must be taken into consideration—prosperity, the personality of the candidates, prohibition—but there is nothing in the result to bear out the statement that the country is intolerant, narrow-minded, bigoted. On the contrary, an analysis of the vote indicates that the unprecedented rush to the polls was due to the fact that millions of Americans were determined to register their views on issues which had nothing to do with the question of tolerance. The liberal in politics has every reason to feel satisfied with the verdict.

THANKSGIVING
(From Summit Herald)

Here's a suggestion—free, gratis, no charge—for Clarence Darrow and the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, and all others of that stripe; to start a nation-wide protest against recognition of God in the Thanksgiving Day proclamations of the Presidents. Just see how far they would get. Our guess is that they would get as many as twenty-three signatures.

There would surely be a most enthusiastic response to a suggestion that we render thanks to the cosmic forces, the chemical reactions and what not which have kept us in good health and given us prosperity and peace. Mr. Darrow orally ought to issue a counter proclamation to that effect. Of course, if he doesn't do something of the sort, he tacitly acquiesces in official recognition of God by the head of the American Government.

Amid all the chatter about whether or not this is a Christian country, and whether or not God is in the Constitution, the annual Thanksgiving Proclamation stands out conspicuous and conclusive. It is in effect a formal and official declaration, by the Chief Magistrate of the nation, that this nation, as a nation, believes in God and worships Him. And even the A. A. A. A. and Mr. Darrow join in that declaration to the extent of observing the holiday and eating a turkey dinner!

Business and Occupation Taxes

SHOULD a tax be levied upon business and occupations? Some use of such a tax, generally with little concern as to ability to pay, is found in most states and municipalities. The purpose of the levy is either regulatory, or to receive revenue, or both.

The use of license payments is much more extensive in the southern states than elsewhere, although their use in other states has been increasingly rapid in recent years. The early and extensive development in the South can be explained by the activities of the owners of large plantations because of their desire to have the tax burden on property reduced to a minimum.

Any southern state might be chosen to illustrate the extent to which license payments have been applied to businesses and occupations. Some of those found in Georgia will serve to indicate the condition.

The annual license upon an adjustment bureau is $50 for each adjuster employed; auctioneers, $50 to $200, depending on kind of goods sold; garages, $5 to $50, depending on size of city; billiard tables, each $50; barber shop, $5 per chair; baths, $50; brokers, $25 to $250, depending on nature of business; restaurants, $5 to $100, depending on size of city.

The license on retailers varies from $5 to $600, depending mostly on the nature of the business, although the size of the city is sometimes considered. Electrical contractors pay an annual license of $10; laundries, $25 to $100, depending on population; packing houses, $25 to $300, depending on population; peddlers, $10 in each county; skating rinks, $25 to $100; undertakers, $10 to $300.

A long list of professional licenses is also found. The annual payments vary from $5 for book agents and horticulturists, to $200 in each county for bond makers. Most practitioners, such as lawyers, dentists, physicians and public accountants, must pay a license of $15 annually.

In addition to the above, there are a large number of miscellaneous license requirements. The payment required of a circus is from $100 to $500 a day, depending upon population of city; for each grand opera concert in cities of less than 100,000 population, the license is $1,000; in larger cities, $2,500. Moving picture theaters pay from $2.50 to $12.50 a month.

Mouse in Gas Pipe

When an iron gas supply pipe was being renewed at offices in Cannon street, Birmingham, England, a mummified mouse was discovered in a state of perfect preservation, even the whiskers being intact.

As the pipe had not been disturbed for thirty years, it is certain that the creature crept into it when the premises were being erected. A connection was then made to the meter, and the coal gas sealed the mouse's fate and at the same time saved the body from the decaying effects of the atmosphere.

Early "Rapid Transit"

The first electric trolley cars were built by Van Depoele and run in Chicago in 1883. In the following year electric lines were operated in Cleveland and Kansas City. The first electric street car in Canada was exhibited at the Toronto exhibition in 1885, while the first Canadian electric street car line was built at St. Catherines in 1887. The first street car railway in America built exclusively for electric operation was a line opened in September, 1885, from Baltimore to Hampden, Md.

ARE YOU SUPERSTITIOUS

BY FRANK ELLIS, JR.

Messengers of Death

CROWS, "with the voice of care," are supposed to share with ravens the ill-reputation of being considered messengers of death. A number of crows are said to have fluttered about Cicero's head on the day he was murdered.

It was a notion in Cornwall and other parts of the country, that if a cock crows at midnight, the angel of death is passing over the house. There is also a superstition that if a cock crows at a certain hour for two or three nights in succession, it is a sign of early death. "When the bird of morning singeth all night, long life is at stake."

The owl has been dreaded from the earliest times. The Ethiopians, when they wished to pronounce sentence of death upon any person, carried him to a table upon which an owl was painted; when the guilty man saw the notice, he was expected to destroy himself with his own hand.

The legend of St. Polycarp, who was burned alive, tells us that his blood extinguished the flames, and from his ashes arose a white dove which flew toward heaven. In the same manner a dove was seen issuing from the funeral pyre of Joan of Arc.

It is believed that to insure good luck when one goes out hunting, a bittern's claw should be fastened to the buttonhole by a ribbon. This superstition has never failed to bring good luck.

To Their Credit

An interesting list of the things England has spread through the world was given by Mr. H. A. L. Fisher recently. They are: Parliaments, railways, factories, co-operative societies, safety bicycles, tobacco, afternoon tea, athletic sports, aseptic surgery, child-welfare work, Boy Scouts and girl guides, jury system, Salvation Army, high-class tailoring and Gilbert and Sullivan.

Germany takes the honor in beer, music and disciplined knowledge, France in taste, and the United States in brilliant mechanical inventiveness.—London Tit-Bits.

The Gossip

BY A. J. DUNLAP

You'll find her everywhere you go—
The gossip of the town.
Sometimes with eyes of baby blue,
Sometimes with lovely brown.
Quite often she is much bejeweled,
Sometimes of lowly station.
But she is known by none of these—
It's by her conversation.

She rattles hearsay by the yard
And, whether false or true,
The latest scandals of the town
She marshals on review.
She doesn't care for things worth while,
To her they're dull and slow;
But broken friendships and mistakes
Are things she wants to know.

She'll sit and gossip by the hour
In confidential prattle,
An endless chain of mental chaff
And idle tittle-tattle.
Of all the ills we must endure
Upon this spinning ball,
The shallow, senseless gossiper
Is queen no doubt of all.

Small Boy Trapped by Leading Question

Five pieces of candy remained on the plate. Billy, Harry and Robert had eaten as much as they were permitted to eat, and mother suggested that the five pieces be saved until a later time. Father agreed that mother's suggestion was made at the proper moment.

In the evening father noticed that only four pieces of candy remained on the plate, which had been placed on the buffet. He called the boys to inquire about the missing piece of candy, which he felt was to have been left untouched.

"Who has eaten a piece of candy since dinner?" he asked.

"All of us looked at it, but Billy ate it," said Robert, the oldest, to whom the question seemed to be addressed particularly.

"Did you eat the candy?" the father asked Billy, age three.

"No," replied Billy, who felt that he had made a most politic answer.

"Was it good, Billy?" asked the father.

"O yes," said the child, not aware of the contradiction in his reply.

Day of Sea Chanties Belongs to the Past

Music of the sea and true sea-music are not at all the same thing. Songs about the sea and the life of a sailor have been made in every language, but most of them have been written and sung by people who are safe and comfortable on dry land, and it seems natural enough that sailors, when they are aboard ship, should want to sing about almost anything but the sea. There are, as a matter of fact, no sea-songs nowadays—none, that is, that are sung by sailors, since there are so few real sailors. Sea songs and chanties are remembered and published and sung by landsmen, but there can be no new songs of the kind till some one finds a way of singing to the work that has to be done on a steamship. Stoking would seem to be the most likely work for the purpose, but who could expect singing in a stokehold. And so the music on modern ships is mostly supplied by a band for the enjoyment, or not, of the passengers.

Rachel's mother was accustomed to lay out her daddy's wearing apparel each morning. This morning she had forgotten to put a shirt with the rest of the clothing. Daddy was jokingly complaining about the matter to her and said:

"What would you do in a case like that, Rachel—get a divorce?"

"No," answered Rachel disgustedly, "I'd get a shirt."—From "Children, the Magazine for Parents."

The Rialto at Venice

The Rialto, the famous marble bridge across the Grand canal at Venice, was built by Antonio da Ponte in 1590. It consists of a single arch, 90 feet wide and 24 feet high, and rests upon 12,000 piles. The name Rialto is derived from Rivo-Alto, one of the islands on which Venice is built. This island was long the financial and commercial center of the city, and gave its name to the bridge that connects it with the mainland.

Largest Bible Has 8-Foot Pages

Stockholm.—The largest Bible in the world is said to be in the National library of this city. It is hand-lettered and beautifully illustrated. The pages are more than six feet high and when opened the book is nine feet wide.

The smallest Holy Book was printed in Glasgow in 1895 upon one single sheet of the thinnest India paper. It is three-quarters of an inch high [illegible] only by the aid of a magnifying glass.

Sense of Sight in Plants Seems Proved

The sense most developed in plants is that of sight, which enables them to see light, but not to distinguish objects. This same limitation is found among many living creatures, such as the earthworm, oyster and coral, etc., which possess no localized vision organ, but give proof of their sensitiveness to impressions by the contraction they manifest when exposed to a ray of sunlight. Similarly, it is easy to gauge the influence of light on plants. Cultivate a plant in a room with a window only on one side and its stalks in growing will incline toward the source of light. Physiologists explain this by suggesting that the side in the dark grows more quickly than that exposed to the light. There remains, however, the fact that the plant has reacted to the light, of which effect it was conscious.

A sense common to many plants is that of touch. Of this the most illustrative example is, as its name implies, the sensitive plant. Another leaf responsive to the touch is the catch-fly, whose two halves close down one upon the other by means of a central hinge.

Missing Finger Gave Police Needed Clue

Finger prints on stolen goods are of more interest sometimes than footprints on the sands of time. By their aid, the Leeds (England) police obtained a clew to the thief who had been robbing handbags from the pews of St. Anne's Roman Catholic cathedral.

When the finger prints were made clear by powdering a chemical dust on the ransacked bags, it was seen that the robber's hand had only three fingers. The light-fingered thief was a finger short.

Watch was kept and a woman who entered the cathedral was noticed to have only three fingers on her right hand. She sat down near her usual hunting ground, by the side of a bag which had been left there.

When she got up to go the bag was empty, but it had been a bait, and the rest of this painful story was told at the police court.

A true wife in her husband's house is his servant; it is in his heart that she is queen. Whatever of best he can conceive, it is her part to be; whatever of highest he can hope, it is hers to promise; all that is dark in him she must purge into purity; all that is failing in him she must strengthen into truth; from her, through all the world's clamor, he must win his praise; in her, through all the world's warfare, he must find his peace.—Ruskin.

STOWAWAYS ARE TOUGH PROBLEM

Many Hundreds Make Attempts to Enter U. S. in Variety of Ways.

New York.—In strange nooks and crannies of ships, often defying death and always facing deportation if caught, the tide of stowaways, lured by America as the "land of promise and opportunity," continue to flow from every foreign port to New York. They travel thousands of miles, hiding in crates, near boilers, in lifeboats, and in other uncomfortable places, with a meager supply of food, on the slim chance that they may be able to slip into this country undetected when the ship arrives in port. Nothing, not even the danger of death, deters them from making the attempt.

Recently, on the Hamburg-American liner Cleveland, there arrived from Dusseldorf, Germany, a nineteen-year-old youth, nailed into a packing crate consigned C. O. D. to a fictitious New York address. Equipped with his passport and a visa as a quota immigrant, the youth found himself without sufficient funds to pay for his ocean passage. So with the help of a friend, who nailed him into it, he constructed the box and chose that unusual way of coming to America.

Is Discovered.

He was discovered only after the box had been unloaded from the steamer. A checker noticed a [illegible] on the case, thrust his hand in to investigate, and the young German, without thinking, bit it. The checker ran down the pier shouting that he had been bitten by an animal. The box was opened. The young German, somewhat emaciated, stepped out.

Officials of the Hamburg-American line stepped into the case, and instead of being deported to his land of origin, the young man was allowed to enter the United States on the promise that he would repay the ocean passage when he was able to do so.

One of the most unusual examples of an ingenious device used to enter this country illegally came to light when the new Italian liner [illegible] arrived in New York on her maiden voyage. After the ship had been searched several times by customs experts, an Italian who said he was an interior decorator of Trieste, was arrested [illegible] going ashore.

Before going to Ellis Island [illegible] his deportation to his land of origin he showed the customs officials a snug secret cabin in an [illegible] the after first-class [illegible] way. The decorator had worked on the liner for months for the builders at the Monte Falcone, near Trieste, and had spent much of his working time in constructing the secret cabin. Inside the cabin was found all indications of comfort, including a bed, washstand, suitcase, small table, chair, electric light, ventilator and carpet. He [illegible] was even supplied with [illegible], candles, mineral water and fruit. Entrance to it was gained by a sliding panel, so skillfully constructed that it escaped the eyes of a special searching squad. The young Italian had provided for every contingency except that of getting off the liner in New York without being detected by the watchmen at the gangways.

Thought He Was a Ghost.

A ghostly story of a white apparition which enjoyed prowling about the decks after nightfall arrived in New York city with the docking of the United Fruit liner [illegible] recently. Members of the crew told how their slumbers had been disturbed by a "white spirit" which was seen so frequently that finally skeptics organized a search. The "apparition" was discovered to be a sixteen-year-old Portuguese stowaway, who had boarded the vessel in a South American port to come to the United States in search of work. He had chosen a flour barrel for his hiding place.

The same steamer brought in two other stowaways, also Portuguese, who, when found, were as black as the sixteen-year-old youth was white. They were both middle-aged married men who had boarded the vessel hoping to find employment here. They had stowed themselves in the coal bunkers and when discovered had been without food for four days.

Probably the largest group of stowaways to come here on one ship was that of 32 men, distributed in various hiding places among the bales and boxes of the flaxseed cargo below decks of the British freighter Dunrobin when she arrived here not long ago from Santos, Brazil. One or two of the visitors, whose total number equaled that of the freighter's crew, confronted the astonished gaze of the vessel's captain when customs officers were examining the cargo. The 32 men, most of whom were of Portuguese or Spanish origin, were taken to Ellis Island under armed guard by immigration officials and deported.

Mingled With Passengers.

A stowaway who disdained the discomforts and lack of opportunity to mix in good society, which most stowaways expect, and who insisted on comporting himself as a well-to-do tourist, arrived in New York from Havana at the height of the returning tourist season. During the voyage the young man freely mingled with 500 American tourists. Nattily dressed, wearing a light felt hat and pacing the deck swinging a Malacca cane, the stowaway was to all appearances another tourist homeward bound. He avoided the danger of discovery by refraining from dining in the dining saloon, as he would have been quickly spotted in the checking up of the passengers by the purser. Instead, he secured his nourishment by partaking of the bouillon served on deck at 11 a. m., the [illegible] sandwiches [illegible] in the palm garden and [illegible] in the lounge.

His appearance as he was going down the gangplank aroused the suspicions of a public health officer, who asked him if he had been examined. "Oh, yes," was the reply. To further questioning he said that his stateroom number was 81. But there was no such number and the surprised young man who admitted that he had arrived in Havana from France as a stowaway, found himself going in the direction of Ellis Island instead of the destination he had selected.

Nor is deportation the worst misfortune that may happen to a stowaway when his hopes of entry into America are blasted. Recently a Munson liner came into the harbor with a stowaway found jammed against the smokestack below decks, burned to death by the heat of the giant pipe. Three other stowaways were routed out from hiding places below decks, all on the verge of exhaustion from the lack of food and water.

Fumigation of a ship frequently sends stowaways [illegible] sputtering to the deck, while the fumes of coal gas have suffocated many others. If the [illegible] of the [illegible] had not smelled coal gas during a [illegible] cruise the stowaways [illegible] instead of two, would have paid the penalty of death for their transgressions. The three survivors, half buried in the bunkers, were found just in time.

Twenty-five Bodies Found.

Naked in the sweltering heat of summer, ten Chinese were discovered on a sugar ship from Cuba when she arrived at New Haven. One of them was already dead of suffocation. [illegible] New York and they had [illegible] days.

Another tragedy occurred aboard a French ship [illegible]. The bodies of [illegible] was found [illegible] the coal which had shifted during the [illegible]. That was probably the greatest casualty list in stowaway history.

Several times New York harbor has seen a deported stowaway leap over the rail of the ship that was taking him back in a final effort to enter this country by swimming. Sometimes they succeed in outracing a revenue cutter and reach the shore of Staten Island. More often they drown in the swiftly swirling waters of the Hudson.

The girl stowaway, too, is becoming a serious problem to steamship companies and the immigration officials in their efforts to bar all illegal entrants into this country. Occasionally the woman stowaway dresses herself in the attire of a man and escapes suspicion until her arrival in New York. One such case was discovered recently when a fight broke out between two oilers on a vessel and it transpired that one of them had brought his bride aboard clad in overalls and the second oiler, discovering the fact, had tried to make love to her.

No Age Limit.

An Antwerp woman, hearing that her husband had met with an accident and was in a New York hospital, promptly started for America wearing overalls. One day she emerged from her hiding place beneath decks and exposure quickly followed.

There is no limit to the age of those who catch the stowaway fever. They range from nine years old to seventy. The boy stowaway presents perhaps the most romantic picture in all the gallery of vagrants of the sea.

Not long ago a fifteen-year-old Serbian boy landed in Boston in charge of the immigration authorities. In the last two years he had stowed away on more than a dozen freighters in a vain effort to reach the United States. He had been carried to South America, [illegible] India, and to practically all the Mediterranean ports. At Marseilles he crept aboard a vessel of the Dollar line and hid under a tarpaulin hatch cover. Then a sailor stepped on him and his dream of concealment was abruptly ended.

Names for Left-Handed

I should like to know how many equivalents for this term are now in use in this country. The village school, or, rather, playground, is where they would be heard most frequently. All ball games from time to time disclose a left-handed player, and rarely would school children apply the formal compound term of left-handed to him. "Wacky" is the word in use round Evesham, "Watty" near Redditch, "Neggy" or "Neggy-anded" at Castle Bromwich, and Elworthy in his "West Somerset Word Book" gives "Kefty."—London Times.

Bodies of Belleau Marines Unfound

Belleau.—Thirty-six United States marines who fought in the Battle of Belleau Woods remain missing and unaccounted for.

Fourteen were found by caretakers of the cemetery in an intensive search through the thickets. One skeleton was found a few feet off the path leading to the flagpole where it had remained unnoticed for ten years.

The remains of the 14 were buried in a plot reserved for unidentified heroes. Renewed efforts are being made to locate the last of the Belleau marines.

LIFE SEALED 100,000,000 YEARS, REPRODUCES SELF

California University Professor Has Success in Experiments With Micro-organisms.

Berkeley, Calif.—Announcement by Dr. C. B. Lipman, professor of plant physiology at the University of California, that he believes he has revived micro-organisms which had been dormant in rock for [illegible] years is under the scrutiny of science here.

The announcement made by Doctor Lipman, who reported his discoveries to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, said that these ancient organisms not only lived, but even reproduced their kind under culture. At least one and perhaps two of the organisms so produced were declared by Doctor Lipman to be totally unlike anything known to science up to the present.

Followers of Doctor Lipman said that if the process could be continued with variations, the modern world might have an opportunity to examine living organisms perhaps similar to those first on earth, and that discoveries regarding the first generation of life might be forthcoming.

Doctor Lipman began his experiments a year and a half ago with rock from Canada of the pre-Cambrian age, the first period of geological history.

All the resources of modern bacteriology were used to prevent the cultures in which the micro-organisms were placed from coming into contact with free air or other agencies by which modern bacteria might invade the ancient rock.

Doctor Lipman said some of the pre-Cambrian rocks had been exposed to the air within comparatively recent times, but that he took every possible precaution to use sections of the rock so encased by other rocks that organisms sealed up there were virtually certain to have been isolated.

From these sealed-up rock centers he took micro-organisms apparently dead, and placed them in culture plates, again sealing them from all contact with the modern world.

In this manner, he said, he produced spore-bearing rods, appearing in chains, which he was convinced were indigenous to the rock itself. Evidently the ancestors of the micro-organisms found had been spore-producers, and their tiny offspring had been able to seal themselves up somewhat in the manner that larvae are sealed up in cocoons.

Little Ball Puzzles Wahabi Polo Players

Bagdad, Iraq.—The Wahabi tribesmen, who are taking up modern sports under the tutelage of British officers, have their own ideas of how polo should be played.

The first game played between a team of natives and a team of soldiers has just been played here with almost disastrous results.

The natives were armed with polo sticks and lined up. Then the ball was set in motion in the orthodox manner. Instead of following the ball, the natives got together in mass formation with their sticks held high and charged the soldiers' team.

Afterwards they explained that they thought the sticks were provided for a free fight and that the ball was used to divert their attention while the soldiers gave them a good whacking.

Fishermen Distinguish Between Fish Schools

Gloucester, Mass.—An inlander watching a fisherman about his work might credit him with a sixth sense in his uncanny ability to tell whether a school of fish is composed of mackerel or porgies or herring. But it is really simple.

Old fishermen watch the water. If the fish rush along the surface in a body they are mackerel. If they merely ripple the surface in the manner observed when a moving body of water impinges against a counter-current they are porgies or herring.

Veteran seiners nearly always refer to a school of fish as a "pod." Therefore, "We got 'round a pod'" is a common New England coast colloquialism.

Very Cold

Ottawa, Ont.—The annual report of the royal Canadian mounted police tells of one inspector finding it so cold in Baffin land that kerosene froze and he was able to climb a frozen waterfall.

Introduced

When Gen. Hugh Lenox Scott was superintendent of West Point he frequently visited the White House to see President Roosevelt. Once he arrived to find the President conferring with many different groups. After progressing around the room from group to group, Roosevelt turned suddenly to Scott.

"I announced myself as 'Colonel Scott from West Point,'" relates the general in "Some Memories of a Soldier."

The President took the skirts of his long frock coat in each hand, and making a curtsy like a girl said —quick as a flash:

"I am Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States," and then laughed loud enough to be heard outside.

Burial Alive Now Unlikely

The horror of being buried alive is universal. Poe, past master of the gruesome, based one of his tales on it. So obsessed was a Californian with this fear that he had a radio transmitter and a telephone installed in his coffin. A few score years ago it was a common sight to see bells hanging outside of family vaults, their ropes piercing the casket cover. Fortunately, the examination of doctor and undertaker in these days is unlikely to mistake mere catalepsy or coma for death itself, and is fairly well assured against a post-burial awakening—especially in event of cremation.

An Amendment to Her Acceptance

By HILDA SPRAGUE

LEANDER HUTCHINS rattled up the village street in his noisy little car, [illegible] grandsir before the snug white cottage of Capt. Dan Bruce. Captain Dan trotted swiftly around the shell-bordered path to the front gate.

"What you bringing that giggling old craft around here for, Leander?" he complained. "I was feeding my hens, and they's all scudded off, and it'll take a lot more of bait to catch 'em."

Leander's car was the official bus that ran to the railroad station, and Leander had the contract to carry the mail. And, in an almost imperceptible degree, Leander was improving. He was saving money and thinking of getting married.

He confided this last determination to Captain Dan.

"Married?" the captain lifted his head quickly and regarded Leander from his keen, frosty blue eyes that seemed the color of the blue seas he had sailed, laced with white foam. "Married?" he repeated again. "Picked out any one as yet, Leander?"

"Perhaps," said Leander, cautiously. "You can laugh, Dan—maybe you're thinking of getting married yourself?"

"Dassen't change my luck," muttered the bachelor captain, his blue eyes fixed on the distant horizon. "You said you wanted my help. What can I do?"

"Tell her—I—well, I haven't got the nerve, Dan. Maybe you could."

The captain glared at him. "What do you want to marry for if you're scairt of wimmen?" he demanded. "You keep out of it, Leander."

"I wish I could," sighed Leander, "but, honest, Dan, I ought to get married. And besides it might be well for the business. Next year I could buy a real motor bus, and that means success for me."

"Fool," sneered the captain angrily. "I'll see her. What feather-headed girl do you want me to ask?"

"She's no feather-head, Dan. She's sensible. I'm talking about Lucy Wayne. Will you do it, or won't you?" He climbed into the little car. Then climbed out again and lighted a pipe, and all this while Captain Dan had not answered.

"What say?" Leander was impatient.

"I'll do it, Leander," promised the captain, his gaze flickering back to Leander, and then away to the horizon again. "She shall have a chance."

"That's what I thought," murmured Leander, smugly.

"Excuse me!" ejaculated the captain as the car rattled away. Many minutes he stood there, his thoughts busy with his past in which Lucy Wayne had a part. Even now with their gardens adjoining they did little more than pass the time of day when they met.

A voice suddenly cut the silence of the afternoon.

"Why don't you come and give me Leander Hutchins' message?" asked the low pleasant tones of Lucy, who was leaning over the snow-dusted hedge between their yards. She was fair and fresh looking, with big brown eyes that were inclined to be mischievous, and a sweet little face that refused to grow old as the years fled over her bonny brown head. "I want to hear what he had to say."

The captain came to the hedge. "Lucy, he wants to marry you," he announced abruptly.

"Oh!" Lucy was really surprised. "I thought perhaps he wanted to borrow money to go into the automobile business."

"I said I would ask you—I've done it," growled the captain, knocking out his pipe and putting it into his blue pilot jacket. He was gazing at her with hungry eyes; he looked lonely and wistful, standing there, asking her to marry another man.

Lucy was sorry for the lost years, too. She handed a little envelope over the hedge. "My answer to Leander is here—I heard his conversation with you—I was pruning my grape vines—so I wrote down the provisions under which I would marry Leander."

"You would—you might—marry him?" gasped the captain as she walked away toward her cozy little house. He knew there was a bright coal fire in the sitting room grate, two cats would be on the rug, and perhaps Brownie, the spaniel. Lucy would be in there now, making some tea and preparing her supper, while she considered Leander's proposal of marriage. He tore open the envelope and read the few penciled lines over and over again:

"I agree to accept Leander's proposal, if Captain Dan does not ask me to forgive and forget, and if he does not ask me to marry him before nine o'clock tonight."

At last the truth smote the captain between his blue eyes and they lost their frost forever—something came into them that warmed them with the fire of youth. He leaped over the hedge and ran up the path, presenting himself at Lucy's door in breathless haste.

"I'll telephone Leander that you're going to marry me, and that we will be glad to lend him some money, so that he can start a business," suggested the captain.

"That is just what I was thinking," agreed Lucy demurely, as she poured another cup of tea.

Y. M. C. A. CAGERS TAKE ON MONTCLAIR AFTER LOSS TO WAGS

Hasbrouck Answers Critics Who Say Two Hard Games Were Wrongly Slated

Not the least discouraged by their one-point loss to the Wacs Friday night the Y. M. C. A. quintet will engage in two more hard tussles this week. [illegible] ning the team will oppose Montclair on the Montclair court and on Saturday evening will meet the Orange Y cagers at the Orange association. The Reserves will accompany the team and play preliminary games with the reserve Orange outfits.

Some of the wise ones are severely criticizing the playing of the two games in a row last week. They make these criticisms because they are not familiar with the circumstances under which these games were arranged, says Manager Hasbrouck. The Rahway squad consists of eleven men. In order to give each player an opportunity to display his wares prior to the opening of the home season it was decided to take these two games and give all of the squad a chance. Unfortunately the game was so close Friday night Coach Brooks was unable to do this and had it not been for the stalling tactics adopted by the Wacs, the locals would have pulled the game out of the fire. For the last three minutes of the game the Wacs simply passed the ball and Rahway was unable to crash through to victory.

The rough spots in the team will it is hoped, be all polished off before the opening game at home on Thanksgiving when Rahway will meet the Easton Collegians. When the team is hitting on all cylinders Rahway will present the classiest outfit ever to step on the floor under the colors of the local Y, Hasbrouck declared.

To get back to the games this week let it be said the Montclair team has played two games so far winning one and losing one. They lost a thriller to the Miles (Bayonne) Industrial Y and on Saturday defeated Orange by one basket. All of the Y teams have strengthened up this year and it looks as though the locals have a hard road ahead of them.

The Orange team is acknowledged to be one of the strongest outfits in the State and is traveling at a dizzy pace. Thursday night of this week they meet the Pioneers at Elizabeth in Elizabeth.

In reviewing the two games played last week, it can be said the team showed flashes of its whirlwind form and when the machine was in operation the Hebrews did not know what it was all about. The local fans have all been watching the work of the new man in the squad, Bill Berewardt, and up to this writing, nothing but praises can be heard, but Bill will have to keep in there all the time as several boys are waiting for a chance and when they get it they will be hard to keep out of the lineup. George Doty has at last taken things seriously and when he gets in tiptop shape he will be hard to keep out of that squad. Last Friday he performed with the Reserves and deserves credit for the fine spirit he is displaying. Bob Henderson and Van Chaillet at forwards seem to be in the best of shape, and what a pair they are when in operation. Orr and Bill Dunn are always in good condition. Other members of the team are all waiting for Old Man Opportunity to knock.

Bill Wilson, the new physical director, is taking over the Reserves and promises us some real action when the opening gong sounds.

The Varsity squad will appear in new uniforms of blue and white, with blue and white sweaters, Thanksgiving night, when the Easton Collegians will be here from Lafayette College. According to the latest dope the college boys will come with some team. The Phantoms will play the Starlings and the Reserves will play the Westminsters of Elizabeth. Also dancing. The team will leave the Y tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

Friday's Encounters

It is said the affair Friday night when the Warinanco A. C. snatched [illegible] was one of the greatest games ever seen in Moose hall, Elizabeth. The final count was 32-31, but about two minutes before the end of the game it was Rahway which was in the lead. Hemingway of the Wacs tossed in the shot that won the game for his outfit when time was pressing. The Rahway Reserves lost to the Warinanco Junior Varsity 38-17.

LONG RUN WINS FOR NORTH PLAINFIELD

Scarlet and Black Defeated 7-0 at Riverside

Simcoe, North Plainfield fullback nabbed one of DuRie's punts and raced sixty-eight yards to a touchdown and victory for his team when the North Plainfielders met the Rahway High eleven at Riverside Park Saturday. This happened in the second quarter. Vandenbosch added another point to make the score 7-0 where it remained until the final whistle.

Simcoe in his triumphal dash tore off more yardage for the visitors than their combined efforts were able to account for all the rest of the game.

Rahway got off several long passes which seemed to pave the way to a touchdown but could not get going after receiving the advantage. Shortly after the score had been made in the second quarter, DuRie punted [illegible], but Rahway [illegible] a fumble, a mass of [illegible] covering the ball. A [illegible] Machon carried the oval [illegible] line and another pass to Machon netted eight yards. Here the half ended.

Again in the second half a [illegible] Machon carried the ball to [illegible] line and a penalty [illegible] of Rahway to the extent of five yards. The ball was fumbled and DeForest fell on it. North Plainfield kicked out. Here Rahway started another rally. Jones [illegible] substituted for [illegible] leading the attack which [illegible] first down [illegible] North Plainfield [illegible] Rahway [illegible].

The line-up:

N. PLAINFIELD		RAHWAY

RAMBLERS SCORE NOT NEITHER DO PREMIERS

Scoreless Deadlock Thrills Crowd at County Park

The Rambler A. C. of this city and the Elizabeth Premiers fought to a scoreless tie on the county park gridiron off St. George avenue Sunday afternoon. In the last minute of play the Ramblers had their opponents backed up to within three yards of the Premier goal but Smith fumbled and Tomaio of the visitors dropped on the ball.

For diving into Smith when the latter was about to receive a forward pass, Matlin was expelled from the game in the closing minutes. His dive placed Smith temporarily hors de combat. Rahway was given fifteen yards.

In the first period the Ramblers were only eight yards from the Premiers goal. Here a fumble spoiled the opportunity.

Both sides played hard and fast and the backfields did some brilliant work. Tomaio played well at end, while Mrozek also made a good showing.

The line-up:

PREMIERS		RAMBLERS
M. Smith	left tackle	Goffredo
Reilly	center	[illegible]
Lacey	right guard	Hedeman
Barry	right tackle	Mason
Fris	right end	Collins
Sullivan	quarterback	R. Smith
Fromm	right halfback	Anderson
Hecer	fullback	[illegible]

Referee—Austin. Substitutes: For Premiers, Hanks for Sullivan, Mrozek for Fris, [illegible] for Barry, Trowbridge for Lacey; for Rahway, Farrs for Smith, Williams for Orr, Moore for Goffredo. Periods, Twelve min.

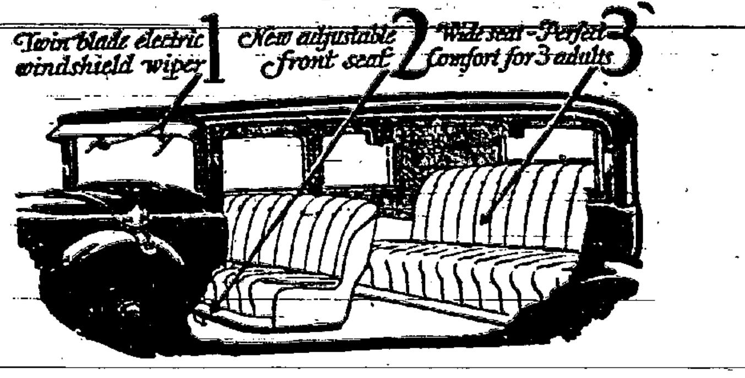
Making Life Hard for Bandits in Oregon

Here is a squad of the plane-motor cycle sheriffs of Oregon, who specialize in capturing bandits fleeing in automobiles. The aviator sheriff flies, locates the escaping outlaw and signals directions to the motor cycle sheriff below, who follows in accurate pursuit. The scheme has worked out successfully.

Three wonderful new comfort-factors not combined in any other automobile—all playing their part in the tremendous country-wide demand for the new Buick



Twin blade electric windshield wiper 1
New adjustable front seat 2
Wide seat—Perfect comfort for 3 adults 3

In addition to its vivid new beauty—in addition to sensational performance—the Silver Anniversary Buick provides comfort and convenience not combined in any other automobile.

A new adjustable front seat—an electric windshield wiper with two wiping blades—seats affording plenty of room for three full-grown adults—all combine with countless other comfort factors to make the Silver Anniversary Buick the easiest car in the world to ride in and to drive.

The new Buick marks a new epoch—a new era—in all elements of style, comfort, performance.

NOTICE OF INTENTION

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that the following Ordinance was introduced at a regular meeting of the Common Council held Wednesday evening, November 14, 1928, and was passed on first reading by Common Council at the said meeting and that said Ordinance will be further considered and presented for final passage on November 28, 1928, at 8 p. m. at the Common Council Chambers, 118 Main Street, Rahway, N. J.

All persons interested will have an opportunity to be heard at that time.

JOHN J. HOFFMAN, City Clerk

AN ORDINANCE

AN ORDINANCE to authorize the widening of the Roadway of Main Street from Pennsylvania R. R. Bridge to Milton Avenue and to provide for the assessment of the cost thereof as a local improvement.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Common Council of the City of Rahway:

Section 1. That the roadway of Main Street from Pennsylvania R. R. Bridge to Milton Avenue shall be widened by relocating the curb line on both sides of the street to a line distant twenty-one feet from the center line of the street with such modifications that may be necessary at the angle points in said street.

Section 2. That curbs shall be constructed or set to conform to the above described line and that the area of the existing brick roadway between the [illegible] curb line shall be paved with concrete. That all existing basins be re-built and that all [illegible] water boxes and other structures be re-located and that new curbs corners be constructed at intersecting streets to conform to the proposed curb lines.

Section 3. That the said improvements shall be under the supervision of the City Engineer and the Street Committee of the Common Council who are hereby empowered to determine the lines, establish the grade and make such decisions regarding any and all details in connection with the said improvements that may be necessary.

Section 4. That one-third of the total cost of said improvement shall be borne by the City at large and that two thirds of the total cost of said improvement shall be duly assessed upon the property benefited thereby in accordance with the law as a local improvement.

Section 5. That the sum of Twelve Thousand ($12,000) dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purpose of temporarily financing the cost and expenses chargeable to the City of Rahway in connection with the foregoing work and that the cost of said local improvement be paid therefrom and the benefits derived therefrom duly assessed upon the property benefited thereby and that temporary bonds or notes are hereby authorized to be issued from time to time in an amount not to exceed in the aggregate Twelve Thousand ($12,000) dollars pursuant to the provisions of Section 13, Chapter 252 Laws of 1916 as amended, which bonds or notes shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed six per cent per annum.

Section 6. All other matters in respect to said bonds or notes shall be determined by the City Treasurer, who is hereby authorized to execute and issue said temporary bonds or notes as it may be necessary to meet payments required.

LOCATE NATION'S MINERAL WEALTH

Aviators and Government Geologists Unearth Vast Hidden Resources.

Washington.—Records of the United States geological survey tell the story of millions of dollars in mineral wealth uncovered by government geologists in recent years. The finds include rich gold deposits in Alaska, potash fields in New Mexico, phosphates in Idaho, Wyoming and Utah and oil in Colorado.

These discoveries have led to huge commercial developments and projects such as the [illegible] of Moffat oil domes in northern Colorado, the purchase of large areas of oil shale land to be held in reserve against a day of need, and the working of almost limitless deposits of phosphate.

Geologists of the survey are engaged now in a search for ore bodies in Colorado, because the great mining camps are reported to be on the decline because of the exhaustion of known ore bodies. [illegible] the better known [illegible]. Large topographic maps, made by airplane photography and similar methods will serve as a basis for further work by the geologists.

Extensive Field Work.

About 100 groups of government geologists and topographic engineers are in the field each year from Alaska to the Gulf, from the west coast to the Alleghenies in search of oil, copper, coal and other minerals and metals. Each year the geological survey sends fliers, surveyors and geologists into remote regions of Alaska to investigate areas for the exploration of valuable minerals and to supply fundamental geographic information for development enterprises. These investigations include also study, mapping and reports covering already developed mineral deposits in or adjacent to the settlements and in the more accessible and better known parts of the country.

The Alaskan explorations are conducted in extremely wild and difficult country, where the explorers are cut off from all communication with the outside world and are thrown on their own resources. Most of the chiefs of the Alaskan parties—geologists and topographic engineers—are veterans in Alaskan work. During the summer there have been six parties in widely scattered areas of the territory. In the Ketchikan region of southeastern Alaska, Admiralty island, the Nizina district of the Copper River region west of the international boundary and in the Alaska range region of the Southwest.

Rich Sources Unearthed.

Among the survey records is the story of a geologist long in the service who discovered a prehistoric beach in Alaska that later yielded much gold. At the time of his discovery more than [illegible] a year was being garnered along the Nome beaches in gold which it was locally believed was washed up by the sea. The geologist was laughed at for his theory that the gold was being washed out to the sea from inland, and his later announcement of the discovery of the source of the metal on an inland prehistoric beach received scant attention. Several years later commercial interests rediscovered the older beach and worked it for its valuable deposits.

The story of the discovery of phosphate in the West by government geologists is similar. The phosphate deposits in Florida were petering out and alarm was expressed over the dwindling supply of this necessary agricultural fertilizer. Following President Roosevelt's conference in 1907 two geologists were sent West to investigate deposits which had been discovered incidentally some years previous but never worked. The geologists found phosphate in Idaho, Wyoming and Utah in quantities ample to supply agricultural needs for many decades. Other valuable deposits were found later in the Tonopah area by the geologists.

The Potash Deposits.

More recently the discovery of potash in New Mexico has completed the trinity of phosphate, nitrate and potash, so necessary to the fertility of farm lands, and has made possible the independence of the United States of foreign sources of potash supply. The survey recently completed analyses of samples of potash selected from the core of a well drilled in Eddy county, New Mexico, which show that within 1,500 feet of the surface nine beds or groups of beds of possible commercial interest were encountered. One of these, at a depth of 1,463 feet, is 8 feet 10 inches thick and contains 11.08 per cent of potash according to sample.

During the half century of development that followed the discovery of gold in California one great bonanza after another was discovered in the West. Gold in many cases was exposed at the surface of the earth and merely awaited the touch of the miner's pick. Later it became necessary to mine the enriched sulphides at greater depth and then the lean primary ores at lower levels, where costs of recovery even with the best modern methods, may soon exceed the market value of the product.

As time has passed fewer deposits have been found. An occasional strike has been made within the last generation—Cripple Creek in 1891, Tonopah and other Nevada camps in 1900 and later, but by far the greater number of the big gold mines of the United States were in operation by the opening of the present century.

Leaders in the mineral industry are keenly aware of the necessity of finding new [illegible] and are calling upon the flyers, the trained geologist and the mining engineer to help solve their problem. Old-time methods of prospecting are regarded as too slow.

Army air service flyers accompanied by geologists and camera experts have flown over approximately 10,000 square miles in eight states during the past season in search of prospective ore deposits. Base maps are made which show every physical as well as every artificial feature of a region. These maps are in effect picture models which indicate the shapes and the heights of mountains, hills and slopes and the location and gradient of rivers and creeks. The government program calls for the surveying in this way of 17,000 square miles a year.

Oil shale is receiving increasing attention by the government geologists as a source of the nation's future oil supply. As it has been demonstrated that a ton of shale will yield a barrel or more of oil, several commercial organizations have set aside millions of acres of shale for possible use later. And the federal bureau of mines has recently established an experimental plant in Colorado with a view to developing a commercially practicable method of extracting oil from shale.

Peking Barbers Profit as Men's Queues Fall

Peking, China.—The barbers of Peking have been reaping a harvest since the nationalist authorities ordered the women to bob their hair and the men to lop off their queues.

Men have their hair cut in the street by the itinerant barbers, but the girls are more particular and have the job done at home or at a beauty shop which caters only to women.

The walking barber advertises himself by striking a metal in tuning fork effect, which makes a buzz like a giant bee. He walks up one street or alley and down the next, having regular customers among the servants and shopkeepers along the roadways which he travels.

The barber chair, a stool, is carried on one end of a bamboo pole and the wash basin and other tonsorial utensils on the other, along with a hat rack and a magazine for the customer to read. A hair cut costs about one cent, the price having advanced recently owing to the rush of business brought about by the government's decree.

Only a Few Indians in Wealthy Class

Santa Fe, N. M.—Many people have heard and read stories of the fabulous wealth of the Osage Indians of Oklahoma and are accustomed to the tradition that all Indians are either rolling in wealth or comfortably provided for. A state investigation of the Indian census in New Mexico has proved this belief untrue.

Only 2 per cent of all the Indians in America have incomes exceeding $500 annually, the New Mexico committee found after weeks of investigation. The individual per capita income of [illegible] per cent of all Indian tribes is less than $200.

The condition especially affects Indians in the southwestern states. The incomes of the tribes are in proportion to their per capita wealth, except the Osages, whose rich oil royalties bring their individual incomes to $11,265 each year.

Bride's Memory Lives in "Marblehead Rose"

Marblehead, Mass.—White roses that flourish in profusion along the coast of Maine each summer, from Bristol to Wiscasset, bloom as a tribute to a girl's love of flowers.

Her name or even the fact that she ever existed is unknown to the thousands who enjoy the beauty and fragrance of the blooms. The blossom is known only as the Marblehead rose.

The girl came from Marblehead, the bride of a Maine sea-faring man. When she left for her new home, many years ago, she stopped to take a few slips from the favorite rose bush in her garden. From these slips, full grown, the other bushes have sprung.

Tree 4,000 Years Old Still Produces Cones

Washington.—The General Sherman big tree in the Sequoia National park, estimated to be at least 4,000 years old, is still producing an annual crop of cones from which fall millions of fertile seeds. The park rangers have nurseries which contain many young trees, the progeny of this oldest and largest living thing. The Methuselah of the forest perpetuates his kind today as it did when Cheops built the Great Pyramid in Egypt.

Broom Is "Mount" for Texas Coeds

Houston, Texas.—Girls who have become expert equestriennes in the great open spaces of Texas must ride brooms when they become freshmen at Rice institute.

Every Friday they are compelled to ride "with fashion" to their classes. They must also wear overalls, green tam-o'-shanters, green hose and low-heeled shoes and keep rouge and powder off their faces.

Brooms in the hands of sophomore girls serve the same purpose as barrel staves in the hands of sophomore boys—disciplining freshmen lads. If some first-year coed forgets Friday is a day devoted to hazing.

Acknowledged Nancy's Greeting

By AD SCHUSTER

ON THE farm of Arthur Reynolds, Miss Nancy, his sister, was a privileged character. There was no one, the countryside over, who did not know the sedate spinster, her bobbing black and white hat, and her precise speech, and there was no one who did not think of her when there was a case of measles, a quilt to be knitted, or a winter's store of preserves to be made.

Miss Nancy was the friend in need, the gentle assistant, and the strong anchor. Because she smiled and went her way uncomplaining it was assumed she was happy. Arthur Reynolds and his wife gave her a good home where the work was none too hard. There were some who envied a woman who, when she was alone in her room, felt sorry for herself.

It was because there had been no romance in her life that Miss Nancy grieved. She did not look for a prince to come riding over the hill, but she did long for something to break the monotony. She told herself it was very wicked to be dissatisfied, but there were times when she wished some one would wait upon her.

"It's my fault, I suppose. They have the habit of calling on me for everything. I wish something would happen."

Then something did happen. It was small enough, perhaps, but for one on a farm far from the change and bustle of the world, the coming of the mail airplanes was an event. The plane in its daily course flew over the farm of Arthur Reynolds, and Miss Nancy timed her afternoon walk that she might be in the field each day as it went by. In time she was able to recognize various planes and pilots, to know that the man who flew over one day would be the one to do it five days later. To herself she gave the planes and pilots names and always when they passed she spoke pleasant greetings quite as if they could see and hear. Perhaps it was foolish, she told herself, but it was adventure. This was more enjoyment than she had in years.

She decided to be in the same spot each day when the plane went over. In time they would notice her. So she stood close to the large oak tree. Luke Dwiggins, hired man of the sort who was called a "bit balmy," noticed her there, saw how she faced the west with the first hum of an approaching motor, and smiled when she made a polite bow to the distant airman. Then he saw a queer thing—the plane bowed back. It might have been an accident, but most certainly the airman dipped his craft as if in acknowledgment of Miss Nancy's greeting. To Luke Dwiggins it was a strange occurrence, but to Miss Nancy it was romance more splendid than she had dared dream.

"He bows to me—that one," she said. "He is a real gentleman."

It was enough. Miss Nancy did not ask that the airman descend from the skies to carry her off. He had given her adventure, something to think about, and she was happy. It was no longer a drudge to work for others. She went about her task singing, waiting for the one day in each five when the man of the airplane would dip his plane in the heavens in answer to her bow. It was almost too good to be true.

She watched the others fly by, but it was only on the fifth day she stood near the tree to bow to the one who understood how much an answer seemed complete. She fell ill. The work she had been doing for others proved too much, and suddenly Arthur Reynolds and his wife realized how much they had depended upon the frail woman. They tried to make up in care, but Miss Nancy's strength was gone.

There came the day for her airplane to pass and the sick woman surprised them all by insisting she be taken to the field. Near the tree she asked that she be left alone. She was waiting to bow for the last time to the perfect gentleman who had brought her romance out of the sky.

The airplane came over the hill and Miss Nancy, standing erect and prim, nodded and, for the first and last time, waved her hand. It was more than she would have done, she told herself, were it not good-by. The airplane dipped and she smiled. Then from the sky there fell at her feet a bunch of flowers. The plane was a speck in the blue, but Miss Nancy, flowers pressed to her bosom, watched it until it disappeared. Then, with a new and beautiful look on her face, she returned to the house and went to sleep. In the morning the flowers were in her hands and the smile was on her face. They said she was happy when she died.

Luke Dwiggins, the hired man who is a "bit balmy," watches the airplanes pass and waves his hand. "I guess I didn't do wrong," he says, "climbing into that tree and chucking down the flowers. It seemed to please Miss Nancy and—and she was my friend."

Migratory Birds

The Biological Survey says that when migratory birds are removed to some section not native to them, they usually disappear after the first season. They do not become acclimated, and whether they die from lack of food or get lost, or are lost during migration, is not known. Experiments that have been conducted show that removing birds of the strictly migratory type from their native haunts has not been successful.

The Figure Britannia

Up to 1825, the figure of Britannia on British bronze coins was a portrait of Charles II's mistress, Miss Stewart, afterwards created Duchess of Richmond. It is not known who posed for the new Britannia.

FAMOUS AS WORLD BEAUTY, NOW SCRUBS FOR LIVING

[illegible] of European Royalty Makes Her Home in Chicago Basement.

Chicago.—Anita Keep, a Chicago beauty who once reigned sumptuously in her own villa at Monte Carlo as the toast of European wits and nobles, was found living in a South side basement room.

She scrubs by the day when she can, finding it hard to get work. But she still has the blue in her eyes that made her a favorite of Edward VII, the Grand Duke Cyril, Count Tolstoi, William Leeds, the tinplate king, and others.

She was discovered when another headliner of a by-gone day, Belle Livingston, touring the country writing, visited her in the basement room which she also uses as a laundry. Mrs. Keep had entertained Belle Livingston 21 years ago when she was ensconced in her Monte Carlo mansion.

Mrs. Keep made her first appearance at a charity ball in Chicago 35 years ago as the bride of Billy Keep, the law partner of Frank O. Lowden. Mrs. Potter Palmer led the grand march at the ball. Mrs. Keep left her husband several years later and went to Europe. He killed himself in 1900.

"I've been back in Chicago since the war," said Mrs. Keep. "I'd like to find some work, so I could get out of this basement. I've never asked anyone for help. A friend put me in a home, but I couldn't stand it—an eternal parade of wheel chairs."

Old Mud Church Will Be Restored

Harrodsburg, Ky.—Another century-old mark of this Bluegrass town, the oldest in the state, is to be restored and preserved through the gift of a deed to the Old Mud Meeting house by the Dutch Reformed Church in America, of New York, to the Harrodsburg Historical society. The meeting house was built as a place of worship of a colony of Dutch settlers in 1800. Across a rock foundation, heavy logs were laid and from these, upright logs were placed at intervals. Between these upright standards were a double row of slats packed with a composition of clay and mud. When the preparation dried and hardened the walls were virtually of mud so that the church received its name "The Old Mud Meeting House."

Biblical City Found by U. S. Explorers

Jerusalem.—In its endeavors to locate the places mentioned in the Bible the American School of Oriental Research has now unearthed ancient Dwirti referred to in Scripture either under that name or the name of Kiryath Sefer.

The latter means "Town of the Book," and one opinion therefore has it that in the time of the Hebrew kings the state archives were kept there.

Various indications led Prof. F. W. Albright, director of the institute, to assume that the lost town must have been situated on the site of Tel Mirsim near Beersheba. The excavations undertaken by Professor Albright at this spot proved his assumption to have been correct.

Home Heating Plants Use Sawdust Burners

Olympia, Wash.—Far western sawmills are now cashing in on sawdust since the adaptation of an automatic feeding burner attachment applicable to any furnace. Sawdust burners are being installed in Pacific Coast cities, using one-third the amount of fuel to obtain the same units of heat.

A sawdust burner consists of a sheet steel or castiron box placed on the cellar floor with the end fronting the ashpit door. The furnace grates are removed. Into the ashpit extends a special combustion grate on which sawdust is fed by gravity from a large sheet steel hopper. Once lighted it is only necessary to keep the hopper filled with sawdust.

Mussolini Refuses to Stand for Lisp

Roma.—During the last two years, the young men and women of Roman society have been backsliding in their linguistic habits. Instead of rolling up the old Italian "r" in "prego," for example, they aspirate it as the French do.

But the tough country schoolmaster who is Benito Mussolini, remembering that he had to fight for every vowel and consonant of his education, heard of the pose. Several young officers, in presenting a report, referred to the capital as "Woma."

"RRRRoma se chiama RRRRoma!" roared Mussolini, "Rome calls herself Rome!"

Site of Ancient Italica Unearthed Near Seville

Seville.—A Roman way, with stone pillars similar to those found at Pompeii, has been unearthed in the course of excavations on the site of ancient Italica. The foundations of a Roman house, with marvelous mosaics 5 by 6 meters, in a perfect state of preservation, were found, as were added objects of value.

Italica was founded by Scipio Africanus about 25 B. C., as a refuge for his veterans. It was the birthplace of three Roman emperors—Trajan, Hadrian and Theodosius. In the Middle ages later the ruins served as a quarry for Sevilla.

Much Ado About Nothing But Cat in East Rahway

One of several stones which a resident in Rutherford street threw at a cat about 1 o'clock Saturday morning struck the home of Councilman Alfred C. Feakes, of 134 East Milton avenue, causing Feakes to summon police. They found that the Rutherford street citizen had been followed home by the cat, an incident about which his wife was superstitious. He therefore tried to drive the animal away with stones, and in so doing, accidentally struck the councilman's house.

Lieutenant Joseph L. Gerlach sent Patrolmen Jardot and Albers to investigate Feakes' complaint. After learning the facts they accompanied the Rutherford street man to his house, where the cat, which was thought to have been driven away, was waiting for him on the back porch.

POLICE RECOVER LOOT

Watches and other loot stolen from the store of Thomas H. Roberts & Son, of 148 Main street, Tuesday morning, has been found in the possession of boys who said they found it in a garbage barrel on the river bank at [illegible] street. They upset the barrel and the watches, carving sets, nut sets and other articles rolled down the bank to the edge of the river. Patrolmen Crowley and Miller learned that the boys had suddenly blossomed out with watches, and communicated the information to Captain James Thompson, who collected a large quantity of the loot.

A MUTUAL SAVINGS BANK

World Fame Through A Savings Fund

A very few years ago a certain ambitious young man was bending every effort to save a thousand dollars—and succeeded. Little did he dream of the world fame that that thousand dollars was to bring him. The fund and the ambition it demonstrated won a partner in the purchase of the airplane now at Smithsonian Institute, the "Spirit of St. Louis." Have you an "ambition fund?" Deposit it with the Rahway Savings Institution where it will earn 4% interest.

GIRL ATTRACTS WIDE NOTICE WITH TALENT

Linden Dramatic Soprano Will Give Elizabeth Concert

Several Rahway people are expected to attend the benefit concert at the Elks' Auditorium, Elizabeth, Tuesday night for Miss Serafina DiLeo, a 17-year-old soprano of exceptional promise, formerly of Linden. The concert has been arranged by a committee representative of several organizations of Elizabeth and Linden, and Miss DiLeo herself will be the principal soloist. The noted baritone Giuseppe Martini Rossi, of Chicago, Philadelphia and Cincinnati grand opera, will also be on the program, and Miss Katherine North, of Elizabeth, will dance.

Such celebrated musicians as Martinelli and the Misses Rosa and Carmella Ponselle are known to be interested in Miss DiLeo, whose teacher, Mme. Virginia Novelli, refused to abandon her talented pupil when misfortune struck the family in Linden and the girl was no longer able to pay for instruction. Miss DiLeo has received an offer to make her debut in grand opera in Philadelphia in January.

One of the persons who has extended help to the young musician is Mrs. Remsen S. Voorhis, now connected with the recreation department of the Union County Park Commission and formerly social welfare worker for the Bayway Refinery of the Standard Oil Company. Mrs. Voorhis told the Rahway Visiting Nurse Association about Miss DiLeo at the meeting Wednesday afternoon.

As a result several Rahway women have become interested in advancing the career of the girl who is confidently believed to have within her the qualities of genius and who needs only money for the maintenance of herself and her parents to enable her to rise.

War On Diphtheria

In co-operation with the Board of Health, the physicians of Rahway have consented to administer the toxin-antitoxin treatment, diphtheria preventative, to every child in the city between six months and six years of age, free of charge. Parents desiring this treatment for their children should take them to the office of their family physician, or any other Rahway physician, in office hours between December 1 and December 15. The effort here to immunize every child against the ravages of one of the most feared diseases is part of a State-wide campaign.

In connection therewith the local Board of Health, through Health Officer Fred M. Williams, has issued the following notice to parents:

"A campaign is on foot throughout the State of New Jersey to stamp out the dread disease of diphtheria. We are a part of our State, and what is good in any other part is also good for us. We want your co-operation and consent in this matter, in order that your children may have this protection.

"Each year in New Jersey about 5,000 cases of diphtheria are reported and about 500 persons (mostly children under 6 years of age) die from it.

"Nearly all this sickness and death is unnecessary, for diphtheria can be prevented. Three injections, five or six days apart, of toxin-antitoxin, will protect your child against diphtheria. This protection, when once established, lasts for many years, and probably for life.

"It is estimated that there are about 350,000 children in New Jersey under five years of age. It is in this group that a third of the annual cases of diphtheria, and two-thirds of the deaths occur. If a considerable portion of these children can be treated a great saving in life will result. Don't wait until your child is taken down with diphtheria, it may then be too late. See to it that your child is protected now.

"The physicians of Rahway have kindly consented to give their services without any cost to further the end sought in this campaign. Any child between the age of six months and six years will be given the immunizing treatment if taken to the office of the family physician, during office hours, between the dates December 1 and 15, 1928." This is a very commendable service on the part of our physicians, and every mother should take advantage of it.

DECEMBER 1 TO 15 IS THE TIME. DON'T PUT IT OFF.

Honor Mrs. Springer for Twenty Years of Service

Mrs. Walter I. Springer, of 37 East Milton avenue, has been honored for long service as secretary of Manchester Grove, Woodmen Circle, been presented with a pin celebrating a period of twenty years in that office. The presentation was made at the meeting of Manchester Grove Tuesday night by Guardian Mrs. Maurice Imrie, of 375 Jefferson avenue, where the meeting was held, in behalf of the State organization.

Mrs. Springer is the first of the 9,000 members in this State to be thus honored. The emblem she received is formed of two parts connected by a chain of twenty solid gold links representing her twenty years of service. Mrs. Springer was formerly head of the State organization.

New officers of Manchester Grove were elected Tuesday night as follows: Guardian, Miss Helen Bierwirth; adviser, Mrs. Charles Lemke; secretary, Mrs. Walter I. Springer; treasurer, Mrs. Peter Godfrey; attendant, Mrs. Alice Eastman; auditors, Mrs. Mary Keyes, Mrs. Philip Lachman, Mrs. Theodore Eary; inside sentinel, Mrs. Mary C. Higgins; outside sentinel, Mrs. A. J. Boyle; physician, Dr. George E. Gallaway.

The next meeting will be held December 26 with Mrs. Charles Lemke, of Westfield avenue, Clark Township.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Arrangements to banquet the Rahway High School football team are being completed by the Hi-Y Club. The banquet will take place December 5, at which time a special program including talks by former football stars will be held. The committee in charge of arranging the details for the affair includes Victor Jones, George Bentol and Charles Roberts. The supper will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Second Presbyterian Church in charge of Mrs. W. B. DuBie, this being in accordance with the plans of the Rahway "Y" Auxiliary.

The ping pong tournament in the Boys' Department was continued last evening with Kenneth Gross as high man; Clayton Cowan, second; Arthur Knittel and Russell Hoagland, third and fourth respectively. On Saturday a team will represent the Rahway boys in the North Jersey League, the lobby team of the local association including Benjamin Karan, Salvatore Cocuzza and Henry Black.

Coach Edwin Schultz worked his group of Junior Department swimmers last evening and reported that a number of them show promise of developing into good swimmers. Among the boys who have been standing out from the rest in the swimming group are Robert Cornell, Buddy Bennekamper and Jack Marsh.

In the point contest for the trip to Wawayanda for the high man of each group, Arthur Perry leads the preps with 251; Joseph Farrell is high in the juniors with 414 and Joseph Person in the intermediates with 199.

The Stamp Club will have an important meeting tonight when plans will be advanced for a supper on December 30. This afternoon the new non-swimmers class will start at [illegible] o'clock.

The Fellowship Club enjoyed a chicken dinner last evening following which Rev. Finley Keech took up the fourth of his series of discussions on "The Unknown Bible." The attendance was the best of the year.

Two outside groups enjoyed the facilities of the "Y" last night. A group from the Steel Equipment, at Avenel, used the gym and pool for a time and Merck & Company used the bowling alleys.

Announces Social Night Of Vocational School

Dr. E. E. Ackerman, chairman of Americanization work in the New Jersey public schools, and Miss Edna Peterson, head of home economics work, were high in their praise of the Rahway Vocational School, following an official inspection last night. Both Dr. Ackerman and Miss Peterson congratulated Principal Arthur L. Perry on the excellent showing that the Rahway school is making.

Mr. Perry announced last evening that the social night program of the school will be held at the Franklin School auditorium on the evening of December 5, when a schedule of entertainment and dancing will be carried out. This year because of the big increase in enrollment, a large crowd is expected. Tickets are being issued today.

CAMP HAS PARTY

Washington Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America held a successful card party at Junior Order Hall last night. A basket of fruit was won by Stephen Van Dyke, while the non-players' prizes went to George Sammond, Mrs. George Sammond, William Sammond and George R. Way. Prizes in pinochle were awarded to the following: Mrs. W. J. Force, Mrs. Vernon M. Bugg, Mrs. Bernard Johnson, H. D. Rowles, Stephen Van Dyke, Vernon M. Bugg, Mrs. E. M. Seaman, Geo. Hardy, William C. Priestley, Mrs. Roy Hollingshead, Edward Pae, C. J. Van Schoick, Mrs. R. E. Corey, Mrs. George Way, H. Raby, Mrs. George E. Way, Mrs. Harold Johnson, C. A. Corey, Mrs. Anna Conrad, Mrs. Charles Smith, P. F. Corey, William S. Hull, George E. Way, W. J. Force, Bernard Johnson, Mrs. Charles Corey, E. M. Seaman and Mrs. I. M. Bealer. Geo. R. Way was chairman.

LUTHERAN Y. P. PLAN

The Young People's Society of the Lutheran Church made plans for a Christmas party between Christmas and New Year's, at a session Tuesday night. The committee of arrangements consists of Misses Edna Price, Hilda Stutzke, Eugene Krepper, chairman, the Elsie Berger, Theresa Preplak. Plans are under way for a three-act comedy, "Bashful Mr. Bob," to be presented soon after the holidays under direction of Fred Schultz. Nathan Rau was received into membership. President Henry Hackman was in charge of the meeting, with Miss Emily Strakele, secretary.

WILL HAVE PARTY

The Linde Society of the Vasa Sick and Death Benefit Association will have a public card party tomorrow night at the Moose Home, 25 Fulton street. The committee consists of Chairman and Mrs. Olaf Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Larson, Charles Palmgren, President John H. Larson.

STOREKEEPER FINED

Edward Shapiro, who operates a confectionery, cigar and newspaper store at 104 Main street, was fined $100 and placed on probation for five years after pleading guilty to selling liquor when arraigned before Federal Judge McCarthy in Newark, Wednesday.

ELOPERS RETURN

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Van Pelt returned Wednesday night from an 800-mile wedding trip. They eloped and were married at Elkton, Md.

TROOP WILL DANCE

The Purple Pansy Troop, Girl Scouts, of Colonia, are having a barn dance on Saturday, November 24, at the Colonia Community Club.

ROTARY ENTERTAINS ON LADIES' NIGHT

First Annual Affair Was Held at River View

The first annual ladies' night program, including a banquet and entertainment, of the Rahway Rotary Club was held last evening at the River View Tea Room. Fifty members and as many ladies were present. The principal speaker was Congressman Harold Hoffman, of South Amboy, whose topic was "The Rotary Ideal," tending toward universal brotherhood and thus universal peace.

Another talk was delivered by James Orr, of Westfield, Past District Governor of District No. 36, who is acting governor of the district in the illness of the present incumbent. Mr. Orr told of the original Rotary idea of having business matters and women eliminated from all programs, including socials. How this idea was found to be unsuccessful and the importance of the women in Rotary work were other features brought out in the Past District Governor's talk.

A professional entertainer, William Kiesch, of New York, entertained the group following the speaking, with feats of magic. Congressman Hoffman was introduced by J. Stanley Davis, head of the committee which arranged the entire program. Secretary H. T. McClintock introduced Mr. Orr.

Two new members welcomed were Robert A. Coan of the Rahway High school faculty, and James Smith of the Hamilton Cooperage.

Stock Exchange Installs Forty Simplex Machines

It has been learned from sources close to the Simplex Training School in this city that the New York Stock Exchange, whose tickers have been unable to keep pace with the tremendous volume of business since the election, ordered forty simplex machines installed the day before yesterday. The new type machines were installed over night and are already in service, receiving one of the severest tests to which they could be put. They are faster than the old style tickers, with which the exchange has, up to now, been exclusively equipped. It is believed that if the forty machines stand the strain to which they are being subjected, they may replace the tickers entirely as one means of keeping quotations up to date.

FORESTERS HAVE PARTY

A successful card party was held last evening under the auspices of Court No. 55, Foresters of America, at the Moose Home, Fulton street. Non-players' prizes went to C. Kinney, Alf Madsen, a special feature was awarded to F. C. Sanderson, and the door prize was taken by A. J. Zirwes.

Prizes in pinochle were won by Thomas Pickens, Mrs. Pierre DePotter, Mrs. Cecilia Dunn, John Pennecen, Henry Schaefer, Mrs. A. J. Schaefer, Mrs. John Feeley, Mrs. Ampless Fagans, Mrs. L. E. Fox, George Muse, Mrs. T. Pickens, Mrs. E. Buhl, E. Dooley, A. J. Zirwes, Mrs. Edgar Murphy, Mrs. A. J. McCoy, Mrs. Charles Carroll, F. C. Sanderson, Mrs. George Bierwirth, E. A. Roarke, George Bierwirth, Mrs. George Geisel, Marion Goes.

The committee in charge headed by Chief Ranger Alf K. Madsen, included L. E. Fox, George Bierwirth, F. C. Sanderson, Chester Lamb, George Benedict, John Bierwirth, John Godfrey, William Swearer, Tony Schaefer and Chas. Heid.

CHAPTER HAS PARTY

Mrs. Harry Beam was chairman and Mrs. Otis W. Foster and Mrs. Hugh W. Roarke members of the committee of the card party of St. Paul's Social Chapter Wednesday night. Those who won at cards were: Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Charles Corey, Mrs. R. C. Abernethy, Mrs. Lester H. Wolff, Mrs. H. B. Johnson, Mrs. J. T. Pickens, Mrs. Gustave Ohlweiler, Mrs. Thos. COOK GETS 25-YEAR TERM FOR RAHWAY INN MURDER

Appeals for Court's Mercy, Pleading Non Vult

Throwing himself upon the mercy of the court, Gaetano Maggo, 30 years old, a cook, indicted for the murder of George Stewart, Jr., on the steps of the Rahway Inn, Bramhall road, this city, early in the morning of August 10, entered a plea of non vult before Judge Stein in Oyer and Terminer court yesterday. He was sentenced, for first degree murder, to twenty-five years in the State prison at Trenton at hard labor.

The maximum legal penalty when the court accepts a non vult plea to first degree murder is thirty years. The court instructed Maggo that it had cut five years from this period in view of the fact that he had saved the State the expense of a trial.

Attorney Thomas F. Heuston, of Connelly and Heuston, represented Maggo and pleaded for clemency in his behalf. He declared that Maggo came to this country from Rome, Italy, when 18 years old, and worked as a ditch digger in Buffalo, finally drifting to New York City where he became a cook. He was to receive $30 weekly as a cook from Joseph Rose, of 801 Third avenue, Elizabeth, owner of the Rahway Inn, and now out on bail under two indictments charging him with maintaining a disorderly house. Maggo, Attorney Heuston said, served in the American army during the World War, and has never been in trouble before.

Maggo's story to his counsel, Attorney Heuston said, was that Stewart was attempting to climb into a window of the Inn and that Maggo picked up the revolver intending to frighten him, and the revolver went off.

Judge Stein said the State's investigation showed a somewhat different state of affairs. Stewart, accompanied by his brother, James C. Stewart, and Andrew MacFarlane and Winfield MacFarlane, cousins of the dead man, were at the inn for a considerable time. An argument ensued between David Stewart, Jr., and Miss Mary Lukart, a hostess. The dispute was over money and Maggo, the State contended, pushed his revolver against Stewart several times in an effort to enforce payment of what was claimed to be due. Stewart left with his brother and cousins, and when he was on the porch of the inn Maggo fired through an open window, killing him.

Miss Lukart has been held in the county jail as a material witness ever since the death of Stewart.

Assistant Prosecutor Walter C. Tenney arraigned Maggo.

Maggo will be taken to Trenton at once, Sheriff Tool said.

The indictment by the October Grand Jury, which also indicted Joseph Rose, proprietor of the inn, for conducting a disorderly house. The Rose case has not been called for trial.
