MOSQUITO BOARD HAS PUT IN BUSY SEASON

[illegible]

Commission, of which W. H. Randolph of this city, is a member, has conducted a vigorous campaign against the Sylvestris mosquito. This pest winters in the egg stage at the bottom of the pools in which it normally breeds. Early in the following spring the eggs begin to hatch and from that time on, if the pools are not dried up, the larvae may be found. The eggs all hatch unevenly and the complete development of the first brood covers a long period. One brood succeeds another as rapidly as weather and water supply will permit. Breeding may occur in almost any water except that which is brackish or positively foul. In woodland pools the number of Aedes Sylvestris larvae is second to Aedes Canadensis and in open swamp areas they are more abundant than any other species. This mosquito often travels a distance of six or eight miles and is a very important species to fight.

A list of the more important breeding places remedied by the Mosquito Commission shows their attack was centered on the center of the county, namely, Kenilworth, Cranford, Roselle, Roselle Park.

In New Providence Township or near Berkeley Heights a new ditch 300 feet in length was installed for improvements to an old ditch and brook. This is on the Venezia Farm on Springfield avenue.

In Scotch Plains, the three large swamps along Morse avenue were filled by the ashes from the Town of Westfield. On Longfellow avenue, a tile, which was to small to carry the flow of water from draining of Jackman farm swamp, was replaced by 12-inch pipe. The brook at Crossway place between South avenue and the C. R. R. was lowered two feet to accommodate the new grade established at the bridge on North avenue. A drainage ditch from a bad swamp in the rear of School No. 3 was cleaned and regraded.

In Clark Township, the ditches in the vicinity of School street were cleaned at the request of Freeholder George Holland.

In Westfield, the two swamps on Chestnut street, near St. Marks avenue and Lenox avenue were filled privately and the swamp at Hillcrest avenue and Chestnut was filled by the Town of Westfield. A survey was made by the town engineering force of the pond at Fairview Cemetery to show the possibility of draining.

In Cranford, the brook which parallels Orange avenue on the southeast side was cleaned and regraded to the Kenilworth line. The brook through Normandie Park and crossing Columbia avenue was thoroughly regraded and cleaned. On Mr. Droescher's property at New Orange Boulevard near the Rahway River several hundred feet of ditching was installed to drain this very swampy ground.

The sewer ditches near Aldene in Cranford were cleaned, but this is very ineffective. Sewers should be installed here as this condition is very detrimental not only from the enormous quantities of mosquitos produced but also from a health standpoint.

In Kenilworth, the brook paralleling Orange avenue in Cranford, and crossing Fairtoute and Michigan avenues, was cleaned and the bordering swamps drained. The huge swamp in the rear of the Kenilworth Washing Company and along Concord avenue was thoroughly drained and is a tremendous improvement. The brook crossing Michigan avenue at the corner of Faitoute avenue was cleaned throughout its entire length.

In Roselle and Roselle Park the brook from Bauta's Pond crossing Westfield avenue at the junction of L. V. R. R. and C. R. R. was cleaned and all its branches were cleaned as were the sewer ditches in Aldene.

In Elizabeth, a great deal of filling has been going on under the supervision of the Mosquito Commission and also of the Board of Works of the city. Summer street dump is nearly filled and going very rapidly now. Baltic street dump is nearly filled and going mosquito breeding places are eliminated and the same is true of the Third avenue dump. Simmons swamp is being filled under the supervision of the Commission. The swamp at the crossing of B. & O. R. R. and Bayway has been filled. The swamp at Richmond street and Trenton avenue is also nearly filled.

On the North Elizabeth Meadow, a new 1,850-foot dike was built along Bound Creek from the C. R. R. in an easterly direction, practically enclosing all this meadow behind dikes and sluice-gates.

"Work will of necessity slow up during the winter although we hope to complete still more drainage work before the winter arrives," says the commission's announcement. Any suggestions of swamp which caused residents annoyance during the past season would be gladly received by the Commission and relief will be attempted before next summer.

HOSPITAL HAD BUSY SEASON; FACILITIES ARE ALL OVERTAXED

Board At Annual Meeting Hears New Structure Will Be Ready June 1

[illegible] reports of the most active year [illegible] history of Rahway Hospital [illegible] with the announcement [illegible] the comparatively magnificent [illegible] building will be completed in [illegible] for use this coming summer, [illegible] the annual meeting of the [illegible] of Governors at the Rahway [illegible] Company Tuesday night an [illegible] affair.

[illegible] W. Kidd was re-elected [illegible] of the Board of Governors. Other officers who were [illegible] are: Vice-president Fred C. Hyer; treasurer, Jan van Herwerden, and secretary, Orlando [illegible]

[illegible] following managing committee was named: H. T. McClintock, [illegible] Kirstein, Sr., Bertram Berry, [illegible] C. Hyer, Henry H. Landon, [illegible] C. Shotwell, Hampton Cutter, [illegible] committee, Henry L. Lamphear, Harold M. Searles, M. F. [illegible], Sidney Harris, Edward K [illegible] W. T. Ames.

Members of the board for three [illegible] were elected, as follows: [illegible] Berry, Fred C. Hyer, [illegible] F. Kirstein, Harold M. Searles, [illegible] McClintock, Hampton Cutter, [illegible] latter succeeding F. F. Anness [illegible] resigned because of impaired [illegible]

[illegible] outstanding feature of the [illegible] of President Kidd was the [illegible] announcement that the new memorial hospital will probably be ready [illegible] July 1 1929, when dedication services will be held. [illegible] Christmas Day the structure is expected to be enclosed he said, and [illegible] after work inside will be [illegible] with all possible speed. [illegible] was broken for the foundation of the new $500,000 structure [illegible] and the cornerstone was [illegible] November 2. An appeal for [illegible] payment of pledges when they become due and an expression of appreciation for the work of the [illegible] and surgical staff the superintendent and nurses closed the president's report.

Many Repairs Made

[illegible] many needed repairs have [illegible] made in this, the eleventh [illegible] of the institution's service [illegible] way and surrounding community was the burden of the report [illegible] managing committee. Two [illegible] of the nurses' home and the [illegible] room, halls, men's ward [illegible] laboratory of the hospital have [illegible] repainted.

Little Cash In Bank

The annual report of Treasurer vanHerwerden showed receipts [illegible] $50,198, and the cash in [illegible] bank, $254.17, besides a contingent fund of $5,500.

More Space Needed

Although the capacity of the present hospital is thirty-two patients, the staff has been required [illegible] past several days to accommodate forty, said the report of [illegible] Superintendent, Miss [illegible] Anna [illegible]

"Although these figures are most [illegible] as they show a large increase in the work of all departments, they do not give any idea of [illegible] this has been accomplished, or [illegible] great increase we have been [illegible] under to properly care for [illegible] large increase," the report said.

A total of 1,269 patients have been treated at the hospital this year divided as follows: Private room patients, 273; semi-private room patients, 229, and ward patients, including emergency cases, 767. Male patients totaled 561, female, 460, and children 248. Seventy-seven were medical cases, 947 surgical cases, and 245 maternity cases. Seventy-eight deaths, including still-born babies and emergency cases, were reported. The average number of patients per day was thirty. A total of 2,511 tests were made in the laboratory.

Auxiliary Carries On

"Very much as in former years," the Rahway Woman's Auxiliary has carried on its activities, as shown in the report signed by President Mrs. Ruby Foster Orton and Secretary Miss Natalie Edgar. The average attendance at the nine monthly meetings has been ten. Turkeys have been provided at the hospital for Thanksgiving and Christmas, and a woman has been engaged to take care of all mending at the institution. Donation Day, of which Mrs. Jan vanHerwerden had charge, was met with the most generous response on record. Under Mrs. Bernard Engelman the linen committee made 185 large sheets, 219 draw sheets, 276 pillow cases, 214 triangles and 60 laparotomy sheets. The surgical dressings committee, under Mrs. O. A. Wilkerson, made 25,340 dressings. Two sets of curtains for the private rooms were made by the house committee, of which Mrs. H. D. Tucker is chairman. This group also purchased $50 worth of kitchen utensils and six dozen small towels. Card parties, the chief source of [illegible] 50. Of their $10,000 pledge to the new building fund, the women paid [illegible] out of the reserve fund which was accumulated over a period of years, $5,000. The report of Treasurer [illegible]

Local "Y" Quintet Wins District League Opener

The Rahway Y. M. C. A. quintet won the first of the District League games on the local court last night, defeating Westfield 52 to 31. The visitors had things in their favor at half time when the score read 22 to 20 in Westfield's favor, but the Rahway outfit found its stride in the second half and made an easy win of it.

Twenty-one of the Rahway points were scored by Daly, who found the basket ten times from the floor besides dropping in a foul. Four baskets apiece were made by Chaillet and Henderson. The rest of the score was accounted for as follows: Madden 5, Orr 6, Hereward 2 and Doty 2.

The Valley A. A., of Orange will be the opponents of Rahway "Y" cagers tomorrow night. This same combine playing under the name of Orange Varsity Club last year defeated Rahway on [illegible] floor by one basket after one of the fastest games of the [illegible]

In the preliminary [illegible] reserves will play the fast [illegible] team of Elizabeth.

The Phantoms [illegible] will start on the [illegible], who defeated the Phantoms earlier in the season on their own court.

PLAN CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Arrangements for collecting the usual Christmas gifts for the [illegible] for the Aged [illegible] Society of [illegible] Church [illegible] of Mrs. John H. Arkinstall [illegible]

The gifts for the Christmas offering to the [illegible] will be turned over to Mrs. A. Law and forwarded. Mrs. J. A. [illegible] announced a special affair for January 28. Those present included Miss Julia Ryno, Mrs. Mar. Turner, Mrs. J. V. [illegible], Mrs. Elizabeth Houshal [illegible], Mrs. Alfred [illegible], Hoffman, Mrs. George Armstrong, Mrs. Arthur Chase, Mrs. [illegible] Kinter, Mrs. F. [illegible], Mrs. [illegible] Bernhard, Mrs. George Cook, Mrs. Carl Carlson, Mrs. G. A. Law and Mrs. John Arkinstall.

Test Shows Incinerator Better Than Guaranteed

In its final test Tuesday before being accepted by the city the municipal incinerator at the foot of Hazelwood street consumed fifty per cent more garbage per hour than it is guaranteed to do. No odor was detectable at the plant or near it, and no visible smoke issued from the chimney.

Citizens are now being urged to keep garbage separated from ashes and to have the garbage drained to a reasonable degree. An ordinance is in force requiring that ashes and garbage be kept separate. The incinerator has been erected at a cost of $40,750 under the direction of a Common Council committee composed of William Herman, chairman; Samuel D. Love and A. C. Feakes.

ELKS BALL TONIGHT

The annual Charity Ball of Rahway Lodge, No. 1075, B. P. O. E. will be held this evening at the Elks Clubhouse, the proceeds to go toward the annual Christmas treat for Rahway youngsters, which will be different this year from those of the past. Music for the dancing this evening will be furnished by Sedge Ryno and his orchestra.

Mrs. Helen E. Bull showed the bank balance to be $151.05.

Woodbridge, Sewaren Auxiliary

Seven shoulder scarfs and decorated baskets containing large quantities of foodstuffs were sent to the hospital last Christmas by the Woodbridge and Sewaren Auxiliary, of which Mrs. B. W. Hoagland is president, and Mrs. J. F. Harned, recording secretary. [illegible] report of Treasurer Mrs. [illegible] W. Tisdall showed a balance of $900 in the building fund, $1,000 [illegible] memorial hospital [illegible], $517.28 earned from a bazaar and $186.50 earned from card parties.

Phone Gabbers Block Call As House Burns

While flames raged in a clothes closet in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris H. Spitzer, of 124 Central avenue, this morning, gaining in fury as the seconds passed, two women gabbing on the telephone blocked a call to fire headquarters.

The department was summoned by an alarm from Box 51, at Central avenue and Maple terrace, and with chemicals extinguished the blaze before it spread far, confining the damage to about $1,500, [illegible] to clothing.

[illegible] of Whittier street, Linden [illegible] driver of the delivery wagon of C. M. [illegible] grocer, to send in a [illegible] alarm from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. [illegible] [illegible] he told the women who were occupying the line that there was a fire and he wanted to put a call through to the fire department, they refused to hang up. The Reeves' telephone line is 17, and their letter is W.

The cause of the blaze has not been determined, and Fire Chief Ritzman was conducting an investigation early this afternoon. Mrs. Spitzer was said, at her house later, to be "very sick" as a result of the excitement.

Fortunately the blocked telephone call was not necessary to summon the firemen, as the box alarm had already been sounded. But due to a misunderstanding of [illegible] the firemen experienced a slight delay in getting to the scene, [illegible] during this period that [illegible] use the telephone.

Supreme officers will participate in the affair, together with some of the Grand Council officers from New York. One application for membership was received.

Arrange for Testimonial For Mayor Thos. A. Fyffe

Arrangements are being made by a group of friends of Mayor Thomas A. Fyffe, who will bring more than twenty years of public service to an end with his retirement from office December 31, for a testimonial banquet for Mayor Fyffe at Cross Keys Inn Thursday evening, December 27. Governor A. Harry Moore and Commissioner John A. Matthews will be among the prominent guests. The banquet will also be in the form of a "thank-you" to the outgoing councilmen of the Democratic party, namely, A. C. Feakes, George Hollinshead and Edward Leonard. Mayor-elect Adolph Ulbrich has been invited to speak.

HOOVER WOMEN PLAY

At the card party held by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Herbert Hoover Republican Club Tuesday afternoon prizes were won by Mrs [illegible], Mrs. L. H. Wolff, [illegible] F. Widman and Mrs. [illegible] Wimmer. The committee in charge included: Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Bernhard Wimmer, Mrs. William H. Armstrong, Mrs. Frank Splane, Mrs. E. M. Seaman, Mrs. Peter Godfrey.

DEFENDS TRAFFIC CONTROL ON AVE.

Chief Smith Replies to A Newark Man's Charge

That charge made by William Koester, of Newark, in a letter to the Newark Sunday Call, that through traffic on the Lincoln Highway in Rahway is discriminated against in favor of local automobile [illegible] is declared by Police Chief John A. Smith. Defending the manner in which the [illegible] traffic in this city is handled the chief says:

"We have always taken pride in getting traffic on Lincoln Highway through the city as rapidly as possible on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays and when special occasions cause it to be congested.

"The traffic going north and south on the highway is heavier than that going east and west across the highway and much more time is always allowed the former, but motorists must remember that the people going east and west may have just as urgent business and [illegible] have as many rights as those going north and south, therefore it has been the aim of the department to deal justly with all.

"Lincoln Highway separates the business section of our city from a large residential section, and the [illegible] of the latter have as much right to get to the business section as the motorists have going north [illegible]

"In his letter Mr. Koester declares that a wave or a nod of a local car to the traffic officer is sufficient to have the whole line of traffic held up so he can get through. That is not so. If there is a temporary thinning of the traffic, the traffic officer takes advantage of it to shoot the cross-town cars through so as to inconvenience as few as possible.

"Rahway is the concentrating point of the seashore traffic as well as that which follows Lincoln Highway to the large centers. Unless [illegible] highways are provided [illegible] the naturally most-traveled routes must expect to be delayed.

"Stalled engines and other mechanical delays often figure in stops other than those made by traffic signals.

"Automatic signals spoken of by Mr. Koester were not permitted by the State authorities along the highway when the Rahway signals were installed."

High School Court Team To Meet Linden Tonight

Although handicapped by having some of his players declared ineligible, Coach Earl Walter has completed preparations for the opening game of the Rahway High School basketball team with Linden at Linden tonight. The Searle and Black will have DuRie at center and Mauren guard, but the balance of the team will not be announced until the quintet goes onto the floor.

Among those from whom the choice will be made are Tandy, R. Graeme, Jefferson and Indelicato for the forward positions; Shotwell, T. Pickens, R. Pickens, Bartz, Glagola and Zuman, guards.

Linden will have nearly the same outfit which downed Rahway 18 to 16 at Linden last winter.

HONOR GUEST

In honor of her guest, Miss Mae Lockwood, of Brooklyn, Miss Erma Whitehead, of 57 Harrison street, entertained a gathering recently. Prizes in the card games were won by Miss Lockwood, Miss Freda Seitz and Mrs. Bert J. Marson. Others present were: Mrs. Harold S. Gibbons, Mrs. Russell Ludlow, Mrs. William Lints, the Misses Mildred Ludlow, Esther Martin, Edythe Anderson, Ruth Laurent and Minnie Bedman.

COLONIA CLUB DANCE

A December Dance Frolic will be given by the Colonia Community Club Enfield road, Colonia, tomorrow evening. Music will be by Larry Back's Criterion Orchestra. Prizes will be awarded for waltz and fox trot, also a door prize. Dancing will be from 8:30 till 1 a. m.

SCOUTS PASS TESTS AT BOARD OF REVIEW

Mr. William Bliss Presided At H. S. Last Night

Last night at the Rahway High School, the Boy Scout Board of Review held its first meeting. William Bliss was elected chairman of the committee, comprising S. C. Bull, O. B. Garthwaite, Jr., Abe Weitz and Martin B. Gundaker, Jr. They were assisted by Mr. Carmen and Mr. Springer, two members of the Elizabeth Board of Review.

The boys successfully passing were George Brunt, John Beebe, Nelson Brown, of Troop 46, all passing second class handicraft, and Raymond VanBuskirk, Troop 46, first class handicraft.

James Depew, Ronald Evans and Herbert Wylie, of Troop 42, passed their first class scout examination, and Warren Wyllie, of Troop 42, passed first class merit badge examinations in first aid and gardening.

Tonight at the home of John D'Ambrosa Sr., the Scout Leaders will meet to rehearse their parts for the show to be given next Friday night at the Christmas party. The party will be held at St. Paul's parish house. Boys from Troops 41, 42, 44, 45, 46 and 47 have made arrangements to be present, and an elaborate program has been arranged.

Last Saturday afternoon the troops had a Hare and Hound contest under the direction of Scoutmasters Dura, Conway and Schaefer. The trail was set by Senior Patrol Leader Andrew Wills of Troop 42, and Walter Engle of Troop 47. After the hares were captured the boys enjoyed a hot dog roast, prepared by Schaefer, Conway and Harold Rand.

Saturday night Troop 49 met with Assistant Scoutmaster S. Zuman and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster M. Friedman in charge, Patrol Leader Herman Blumenthal led the opening exercises.

A. S. M. Zuman, S. M. Oxman, Field Executive Schaefer and District Commissioner Morton gave short talks.

Two patrols, first the Buffalos, then the Foxes, gave short skits showing the benefits of scouting. This was followed by a knot-tying contest, which was won by the Foxes. A game, won by the Foxes, was next played.

Bonnie Burn Fund Is Up To $388, Trussler Says

"The Bonnie Burn Fund is slowly increasing and the total amount so far received is $388," reports Frank H. Trussler from the midst of his annual campaign.

"On Wednesday of this week I sent to Dr. J. R. Runnells, Superintendent of Bonnie Burn, a check for $300 to help defray the expenses of the Christmas entertainment, gift giving, etc., at the sanatorium.

"I just want to relate in this article one little story connected with the institution. A young lady who was a teacher in a school in Plainfield was obliged to go to Bonnie Burn as a patient nearly [illegible] ago. She is of a highly intelligent and refined type, and is putting up a splendid fight against great odds. The particular point, however, which I desire to bring out is that she has a young lady friend, a teacher in the same school, who has visited her practically every afternoon for a period of two years, and her visits have been a source of great comfort to the patient. This action on the part of the friend is one of the very best examples of fidelity of friendship which has ever come under my observation. It serves to prove that such a thing as true and constant friendship does actually exist."

The fund is now as follows:

Previously acknowledged	$321.00
James Smith	5.00
"A Friend"	2.00
Rev. J. F. Vanderhorst	2.00
Mrs. Chas. W. Bowers	5.00
Henry H. Jardine	5.00
"A Friend"	15.00
Walter Freman	5.00
Ladies Auxiliary Rahway Lodge, No. 1075, B. P. O. E.	25.00
"A Friend"	1.00
Walter G. Wortham	2.00
Total to date	$388.00

FYFFE WOMEN PLAY

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Thomas A. Fyffe Association held a card party yesterday afternoon in the Roberts Building. Prizes were won by Mrs. John Galwin, Mrs. James Brennan, Mrs. A. G. David, Mrs. Pierre DePotter, Mrs. Anna Frank, Miss Mary Ryan, Mrs. Mary Keyes, Mrs. George Weber, and Mrs. Charles Corey. The non-players prize went to Mrs. Charles Walker. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. George Palmer, Mrs. Susan Flake, Miss Anna Ryan and Miss Emma Ryan.

CONSIDER ENLARGING Y. M. C. A. BUILDING; NEED DORMITORIES

Another Story May Be Added And Banquet Hall and Cafeteria Installed

Following a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. last night it was learned that an important enlargement of the association building is being talked about, although it has not reached the position of a certainty. The contemplated changes include another story to increase dormitory facilities, a banquet hall and a cafeteria.

Dormitories are filled to capacity and there is a waiting list. General Secretary Chalmers Reed turned away twenty-five applicants for rooms last week, indicating that if additional accommodations are provided, additional revenue will be realized. The erection of another story would increase the dormitory capacity from forty-seven to seventy.

Strong support is being given for these improvements by the women's department which is probably the most ambitious group at the "Y."

Secretaries' Reports

General Secretary Reed filed a new type of report, which included the reports of all departments. Copies were sent to the directors a day or two before the meeting. A membership of 1,048 on December 1 was shown, representing a decrease because of the fact that 443 memberships have expired in the past two months.

At the close of the current membership drive, on December 18 all members will be required to show their membership cards for a period to permit checking up on the use made of "Y" facilities by non-members.

A drinking fountain will be installed in the locker rooms, and electric locks will be placed on the locker room doors.

Among the association events listed for the next few weeks are the Christmas party for children Monday afternoon, December 24, the Wawayanda Camp reunion Thursday, December 27 and basketball games Christmas and New Year's Day.

PROPRIETOR OF INN GIVEN $2,500 FINE

Rahway Murder Inn Was Disorderly House

On a plea of guilty of three indictments charging him with the operation of disorderly houses, one of which, in this city, was the scene of a murder last August, Joseph Rose, of 501 Third avenue, Elizabeth, was fined $2,500 by Judge Stein in Quarter Sessions Court Wednesday morning.

Rose operated the Rahway Inn, August 9 when David Stewart, Jr., a garage employee of Elizabeth was shot to death by Joseph Magaro, a cook at the inn. The cook was recently sentenced to serve twenty-five years in the State Prison on his plea of non vult to murder in the first degree.

Rose also operated the Rosebud Restaurant, in Lincoln Highway, Linden. Raids on the two places were conducted by Chief of County Detectives Galation, the Rahway Inn being visited April 10 and August 10, and the Linden resort last January. Rose was also indicted for procuring inmates for his houses.

IS GIVEN CELEBRATION

On his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary, Richard Stephens, Sr., a Civil War veteran, of 32 Lufberry street, was given a celebration Sunday night. Dinner and music were on the program. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Larson, Dorothy and Robert Larson, Miss Susie Kissell, of Perth Amboy; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brunt and sons, Elwood and Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aszman, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stephens, Margaret, Thomas and Hazel Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stephens, and Mrs. Richard Stephens, Sr., of this city.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

The engagement of Miss Eveyn M. Singer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Singer, of 17 Sycamore street, to Charles Regele, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Regele, of 28 Monroe street, was announced at a bridge party at the Singer residence Saturday night. Prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. P. Gordon Lorzer and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Huntley, while the consolation awards went to Mrs. James Brown and Eugene Ludlum. Others present were: Mrs. A. H. Flora, of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hugger, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Friend, James Broma, and Miss Helen Stromberg, of Rahway.

MYSTERIOUS EXPENDITURES UNEARTHED BY ACCOUNTANTS

Improvement Appropriations Were Exceeded in 1926-1927 by About $10,000; City Council Must Raise Funds to Cover

Because the cost of several road improvements made in 1926 and 1927 exceeded the liberal appropriations made for them, the Common Council Wednesday night, under orders from the municipal accountants, passed seven ordinances to levy monies to cover the overexpenditures. The passage of these measures on first reading was not accomplished, however, without a great deal of hesitating, questioning and condemning on the part of the councilmen.

Why the costs of the improvements were greater than the original appropriations, which were based on the estimates of City Engineer C. S. Bush was not answered excepting in the case of a sewer in St. George avenue northeast 500 feet from Maple avenue. And the answer to that was only half an answer. In that particular instance, according to the city engineer and Councilman Samuel D. Love [illegible] feet of ten inch pipe were charged against the job when as a matter of fact only 500 feet of twelve inch pipe were used.

"And there are probably other discrepancies," added Mr. Bush.

The rest of the answer [illegible] made the mistake [illegible] But this [illegible]

The exact increase [illegible] ordinances [illegible] Francis V. Dobbins [illegible] amendatory ordinance [illegible] request of Councilman Ward [illegible] City auditors [illegible] ranged between $500 and $1,500 [illegible] ordinance. The total [illegible] probably about $10,000.

As another example of the discrepancies between the appropriations and what was asked [illegible] Councilman Park [illegible] to the laying of a sewer in [illegible] Broad street.

A small tempest [illegible] the presentation [illegible] finance committee [illegible] $1,500 from the new uniforms [illegible] which all members of the police [illegible] gave recently appeared. Councilman Ward introduced a resolution [illegible] to borrow this sum, the purpose of which was merely to finance the purchase of the suits for the policemen. A small amount was to be deducted from the pay of each man each month to reimburse the city.

Councilman Park wanted to know who would make the payments if one of the policemen died. Ward told him the city would then be stuck. He explained that Councilman McCollum, chairman of the police committee, and Police Chief John A. Smith bought the uniforms without consulting the finance committee. When Ward learned that the policemen have not consented in writing to have the necessary amount deducted from their pay he withdrew the resolution.

Councilman Feakes said that some of the policemen had just bought new uniforms of another kind and that consequently paying for those ordered by the commissioner and the chief will be a burden upon them. Ward said he will re-introduce the resolution when and if the cops agree in writing to the deduction of the monthly installments from their pay. The council in October agreed to finance the purchase of the uniform if the men would enter into this agreement. The purpose of buying new uniforms was to have all members of the force attired alike.

NEW TELESCOPE MOST POWERFUL

Half Billion Stars Will Be Seen for the First Time.

Washington.—About a half-billion stars that cannot now be seen or photographed with any telescope, as well as thousands of inconceivably remote nebulae, will be within the reach of astronomers when the new 200-inch telescope, announced by the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, is completed. But astronomers are not interested merely in great numbers, and that alone would not justify the millions of dollars that will be spent on the great instrument.

The closer and brighter things that will be seen better are what particularly interest the astronomer. But even some of these would have been thought impossibly far only a few years ago. For instance, there are the spiral nebulae. Thousands of these have been observed in the sky, all with the characteristic spiral structure more or less evident. For years their nature was subject of dispute until Dr. Edwin P. Hubble of the Mount Wilson observatory, with photographs made with the 100-inch telescope, still the world's largest, definitely showed what they are. His photographs revealed the individual stars of which they are constituted. They showed that these nebulae are systems of stars like that of which the Milky Way, and all the stars that we can see, including the sun, are part.

Two Nebulae Observed.

Two spiral nebulae, out of the thousands that are shown, do not form a very large proportion, although there is plenty of evidence that the two studied are rather typical of the group. Astronomers have been anxious to observe the two even better.

The 200-inch telescope will do this. Perhaps a half dozen or so nebulae, that now appear as continuous areas of light, will be resolved into their constituent stars. If this is done, their distance can be measured.

Some distant spiral nebulae, now invisible, undoubtedly will come into view. The farthest now in reach of the 100-inch telescope are something like 840 million million million miles away—so far that their light takes 140 million years to reach us. With the new telescope thousands beyond will be visible, the farthest of them being nearly five thousand million million million, or five sextillion miles from us. And when they are seen, the light exposing the photographic plates will have been on its way for a thousand million years—since a time long before man appeared on the earth, and when the planet itself was still young.

Sun Will Be Observed.

Another field for the 200-inch telescope will be the members of the solar system. As it is planned to make the mirror of quartz, which will not expand distortingly under the sun's rays, it will be possible to use it for observations of the sun. The planets will be brought almost to within hailing distance, and some of the present-day mysteries concerning Mars, Jupiter and the other planets may be solved.

In deciding on a telescope with a mirror 200 inches in diameter, the astronomers are making the greatest jump in size since Isaac Newton invented the reflecting telescope. It was in 1672 that, in order to overcome the defects that were then inherent in refracting telescopes, in which the light rays were brought to a focus by a glass lens, he made the first reflector. Here, a dish-shaped mirror reflected the rays back toward the object, and at the same time brought them to a focus. A second, and flat, mirror, reflected the rays to the side, where the observer could see the image, without getting his head in the way. Newton's original reflector, with a mirror only two inches in diameter, is still in the possession of the Royal society in London. In 1723 the astronomer, Hadley, showed the proper curves that should be given to the mirror to give the best images, and from then on large reflectors became possible.

Art Critics Prove Too Appreciative

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Modernistic art seems to puzzle even the critics.

For three weeks "The Fossil Hunters," an example of modern art, by Edwin Dickinson of Provincetown, Mass., hung in a choice position at the international exhibition of art here while thousands wondered what the maze of black and blue print, as it appeared to the untutored eye, was intended to be.

Officials connected with the exhibition, as well as the critics, apparently understood the picture perfectly; so no one asked questions.

But imagine the embarrassment of the officials and critics when Dickinson wired a demand that his picture be hung right side up instead of sideways!

Britain May Prohibit Marriage of Subnormal

London.—The British board of control charged with the administration of the lunacy laws, has published a survey concerning the marriage of mental defectives. No immediate steps are likely to be taken by parliament, but the board's conclusions have aroused national interest.

"A careful study of the information before us," says the survey, "leads to the conclusion that the marriage of defectives has disastrous consequences to the community and that the time has come when definite legislative steps should be taken to prevent the marriage of those under normal [illegible]

ILLINOIS BOY IS GIANT AT TEN AND STILL GROWING

Physicians Say If Average Rate of Growth Continues He Will Reach Nine Feet.

Alton, Ill.—Among members of the National Association of Longfellows, Robert Wadlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wadlow of this city, probably enjoys the most abundant prospects, professionally speaking. At ten years of age he is six feet six inches tall and weighs 211 pounds.

Four physicians who examined him predicted that his average growth of four inches a year will continue until he is approximately nine feet tall. They based their predictions on the size of Robert's feet, which now measure 15½ inches from heel to toe when out of his $30 a pair triple E size 21 shoes, explaining that a rapidly growing boy's feet outdistance their owner's height early and then wait for the rest of his body to catch up.

An overzealous pituitary gland is credited with the responsibility for Robert's upspringing. The boy's mother and father are of normal size, as are Robert's three younger brothers and sisters.

Robert makes satisfactory marks in his fifth grade class, according to his teacher, Miss Glenn. School authorities were forced to provide a special seat for him, however—a seat from the high school resting on several blocks is momentarily satisfactory, but the janitor at Milton school where he attends is already casting about for some further improvement which may be needed any day since several seats have already broken under his weight.

After school he joins children of his own age playing on playground apparatus many sizes too small for him. He may be seen using the slide at the Horace Mann school. His height and weight and width reduce his speed down the apparatus and smaller children crowd him out since they can move more swiftly.

He encounters all sorts of trouble because of his height. The family Ford sedan will hold him, but he must squeeze slowly into the rear seat and then his head is but half an inch from the top. There isn't enough leg room in the front seat.

Wadlow, senior, says he has received a number of offers from circus and vaudeville producers for the appearance of Robert on the stage and sawdust. His parents, however, hope to give the young giant a satisfactory education before he enters what apparently will be his "natural" profession.

Corn Growing Favored

Mexico City.—So poor people of Mexico will not have to make their "tortillas" of high priced imported corn, Deputy David Ayala of Guanajuato has proposed that a government department be created to effect a greater domestic production.

Court Rules Man Can Sell His Soul

Madrid.—A man can sell his soul to the devil, and still be sane, a local court has ruled.

Castillo Ramirez, feeling the end near, willed "my soul to the devil, my house to my wife and my fortune to charitable institutions." The testament was contested by the widow who claimed that "when a man gives his soul to the devil, he is insane." The court ruled otherwise.

Avoids Mine Perils; Dies of Pin Scratch

New York.—Only a year ago Benjamin Waslosky, twenty years old, died in the depths of a coal mine in Scranton, Pa. His father and his uncle and others also had been victims of the family occupation, mining.

When Benjamin was buried his mother decided she would keep her remaining son, Anthony, a boy of sixteen, out of the coal mines and find for him a less hazardous occupation. Opportunities for work were presented, but one by one they were vetoed by the mother, whose imagination saw the slightest hazard transformed into a menace.

Three months ago she was satisfied when Anthony went to live with his married sister, Mrs. Verne Lottoz of Bayonne, N. J., who found for him a job with a dress company there. His work there was delivering goods and keeping the shop clean.

The boy died recently in Bayonne hospital of blood poisoning and pneumonia induced by a pin prick in his left hand. His employer, George Clusid, said Anthony was cleaning the floor recently and a pin embedded in the floor barely punctured the skin.

FIND TRACE OF RACE THAT VANISHED 700 YEARS AGO

Minnesota Scientists Report Strange People Lived in Valley in New Mexico.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Evidence of the history of a race which lived in the Mimbres valley in New Mexico centuries ago, and which, as far as the evidence shows, apparently vanished about 700 years ago, was given by Dr. Albert E. Jenks, chairman of the department of anthropology at the University of Minnesota, in a lecture at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts recently.

Doctor Jenk reported to members of the institute on the findings of its expedition into the Mimbres valley last summer and which he headed.

The race studied is estimated to have lived in the valley from about the time of Christ until about 700 years ago.

Doctor Jenks told of the finding of beautiful pieces of pottery of strange design, of stone and adobe houses, built one layer upon another, and of peculiar burial customs.

"Nearly all of the pottery found in the excavations we made were 'kill' pieces," said Doctor Jenks. "That is, each one had a small hole broken into its bottom before being buried with a dead person.

"The name kill has been given these mutilated pieces because of the belief that the people who used them broke them to kill them so that the spirit of the vessel supposedly the favorite of the person with whom it was buried, might leave the vessel at the same time the dead person's spirit left his body."

The bodies were found buried just below the adobe floor. In nearly every case a bowl, with its bottom punctured, was found placed over the cranial bones of the skeleton.

Baby's Chance for Life Twice Those of 1912

Washington.—The 1928 baby has twice the chance of living its first year out and attaining a healthy happy childhood than had the baby of 1912, announces the children's bureau of the department of labor.

Birth registration now is complete in about 90 per cent of the United States. In the first year the census bureau published birth statistics, 1915, of every 1,000 babies born in the birth registration area 100 died before their first birthday.

Provisional figures indicate that only 64 out of every 1,000 infants died before their first birthday in 1927. This means a saving of approximately 60,000 infant lives. The 1928 baby, the children's bureau points out, comes to a mother who is better prepared to care for him than the mother of 1912, and who may supplement her own knowledge from community resources to a greater extent.

Postage Stamps?

It was in a small country town during the World war that an eager solicitor selling her quota of war savings stamps met an amusing experience. She explained the purpose of her visit to one woman, and received this answer: "Well, I guess I don't need any of the stamps. We don't write many letters."

STEEL EQUIPMENT HAS FAST QUINTET

Entered in Middlesex County Industrial League

For the first time in its history the Steel Equipment Corporation is to be represented by a basketball team, and the outlook is promising for a real fast aggregation. Practice is held Thursday nights in the Rahway "Y" and the opening game of the season will be played tonight on the Perth Amboy "Y" court, when "Seco" will oppose some fast outfit in a Middlesex County League contest.

Coach "Hank" Landon, former Yale athlete, is handling the boys, and has a wealth of good material from which to select a quintet. Among the experienced men are such well-known stars as: "Pom" Pomeroy, former Gloucester, Mass., H. S. star and [illegible] with Woodbridge High; "Chuck" Barstow, former mainstay of the Bar Harbor (Maine) State Championship H. S. five, and other fast New England teams; "Les" Sheets, who starred for Clinton H. S.; "Nick" La Beder, one-time leader and sensational back with the Amboy A. A., and star of several championship caliber teams; "Duck" Corey, former Rahway "Y" flash, who needs no introduction to fans of this vicinity; Meille, a capable and experienced back with plenty of speed and fight, and other men of promise, including Stephen, Christiansen, Kara, Powers, Kein, Panko and Kennedy.

Besides the league contests, games are pending with other fast teams in this vicinity, and an intersectional battle has already been arranged with the fast Globe-Wernicke Five at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Shakespeare's Vocabulary

The wealth of Shakespeare's vocabulary, says Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, is staggering. It consists of 24,000 words, compared with Milton's 17,000, the Bible's 7,000, Homer's 9,000 and Dante's 5,800. Shakespeare actually used more words than any other known author. Of these words 5,000 were only used once, and in "Hamlet" there are 426 words which appear in no other play.

U. S. 'LOOY' ENDS WAR IN BALKANS

Hoover Says Officer Accepted Arms in Name of "Food Administration."

New York.—A young American lieutenant, acting with no authority whatever, brought to an end the civil war in Montenegro, which followed the World war, and accepted the surrender of the two opposing armies "in the name of the United States Food Administration!"

This funniest chapter of post-war history, heretofore unpublished, has just been revealed by no less an authority than Herbert Hoover.

The story, recounted by Bruce Barton in a recent issue of Cosmopolitan, was brought to light, Barton relates, when he commented casually on an ivory handled dagger lying on a table in Hoover's Washington home.

Mrs. Hoover, telling how he came into possession of the dagger, related the story of the unique Montenegrin surrender which Barton retells in the Cosmopolitan as follows:

Montenegro, which had fought with the Allies in the World war, quickly split into two armed camps after the peace of Versailles to settle an ancient dispute which existed between the sides of the little mountain kingdom. Within a few days the men who had fought side by side were engaged in a bitter civil strife.

Food Brings Truce.

The only neutral was a young American lieutenant who represented the United States food administration. He wired to Hoover in Brussels that the country was starving, and Hoover dispatched a shipload of food. The difficulty was to arrange with the warring Montenegrins to unload it. The lieutenant called a conference of the opposing generals, and after a long discussion it was agreed that Army A should unload during the day; then there would be a one-hour truce during which Army B would come on as the night shift.

The young officer took occasion at the conference to point out the folly of the war.

"You ought to be plowing and getting in your crops," he told them. "This food will soon be exhausted and if you don't raise enough to carry you through next winter, then God help you! the United States won't."

They agreed with him but said there was no hope.

"Why?"

"Because a war can only end when one side has been defeated. A compromise would be contrary to all precedents in Montenegrin history."

But, after another parley, when the ship was unloaded, the chief of Army A advanced a brilliant suggestion.

"We could both surrender to the United States. That would end the war and save our honor," he offered. The other general agreed, and the lieutenant offered to accept the surrender with both armies drawn up in the main street at four o'clock the next afternoon.

It seemed a happy solution. But the ambitious subaltern was awakened in the night by a horrible thought. "I am only a lieutenant," he considered. "What right have I to accept the surrender of two armies in the name of the United States? Suppose Pershing should hear about it; how do I know I shouldn't be shot?"

But before the time for surrender a happy thought had come to him. He would accept the surrenders and end the war—but not in the name of the United States.

At four o'clock the rival forces were drawn up, scowling at each other. The commanders advanced, each bearing an ivory-handled dagger and sword. Between the two ranks strode the lieutenant to accept the arms, then in a voice that echoed in the nearby mountains, he cried:

"I accept the surrender of these armies in the name of the United States Food Administration!"

The first that Hoover learned of how the peace was accomplished was when the lieutenant showed up in Brussels with the ivory-handled daggers and the story. The then food administrator gave the young officer one set of the arms, keeping the other among his most prized mementos.

SMUGGLERS IN FAST MOTOR BOATS WORRYING BRITONS

Large Incomes Are Being Made by Participants in the Illegal Traffic.

London.—An intensive campaign has been started by the police and customs authorities against smugglers who are operating in fast motor boats from the continent.

Smuggling between Flushing and the mouth of the Thames has reached such proportions that large incomes are being made by a number of people.

The new campaign had a sequel at Stratford police court, where the youthful cook of a motor barge which had tied up at a jetty in the Thames, backing on the lonely Dagenham marshes, was heavily fined for endeavoring to land a parcel of tobacco and a quantity of rum.

"We have known for a long time of this business," said a customs official. "We have known, too, that recently it has grown enormously, but the detection and conviction of the offenders is a difficult matter. It has all arisen through the tremendous developments which have taken place in motor barge traffic between this country and the continent since the war.

"Little wharves, up and down the Thames which were formerly derelict, or, at the best, devoted to landing goods by Thames barges only, have taken up a new lease of life.

"In these lonely marshes along the rivers and in the backside areas there are plenty of small licensed houses where rum and tobacco can be 'planted.'

"The chief offenders are believed to be Dutchmen. Any day now you may see two or three motor barges from Holland anchored off Southend. They come perhaps on the night tide and anchor purposely close in shore.

"There is nothing to prevent any member of the crew sculling or even wading ashore [illegible] a convenient place where he may land his goods [illegible]

Historic Estate Now Home for Stray Cats

Richmond, Va.—[illegible] "Farley" [illegible] is now a refuge for friendless cats.

This famous old estate which came into the possession of a [illegible] as a gift of the English crown early in the Eighteenth century and which has changed owners but twice since then, is now the home of Miss Emily Palmer Stearns whose love for cats has led her to convert it into a refuge for stray felines "anywhere."

Seventy-five cats from North Carolina, Maryland, Washington and many parts of Virginia are now harbored at the home, the only one of its kind in America. Miss Stearns hopes it is the first of one in every state in the Union.

Miss Stearns, who is the daughter of the late Franklin Stearns of Richmond and Culpeper, says the refuge is the development of her childhood love for cats. This love has increased with the years and especially has her fondness for the stray cats grown, until two years ago she conceived the idea of offering a part of "Farley" as a "Refuge for Friendless Cats."

Since then no cat without home and shelter has been denied admittance to the refuge.

Nurse Loses $200,000 as Wedding Is Halted

Boston.—A fortune of $200,000 has slipped from the fingers of Mrs. Eva Rebecca Walker, comely fifty-eight-year-old nurse of Brockton, who for the last twelve months has been in attendance on her wealthy admirer, John W. Lufkin, seventy-nine years old, who has just been declared insane by the Suffolk County Probate court.

The sum was named in a prenuptial agreement which was to have been paid by Lufkin to his nurse following their marriage. The marriage was prevented only by last minute court action on proceedings begun by Miss Elizabeth A. Lufkin of Squantum, Lufkin's sister.

Lufkin's insanity was established by two alienists appointed by Judge Dolan. Judge Murray had granted a waiver of the five-day marriage law to Mrs. Walker so she could marry the invalid inventor, whose fortune is more than $200,000. It was Judge Murray, however, who rescinded the waiver only after a dramatic last minute appeal.

Clive Brook, Irene Rich, Edmund Breese and Tully Marshall are the featured players.

"The Night Bird" is one of the features for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. [illegible] saying a lot about our favorite comedian's newest [illegible] you remember "Good Morning Judge" and a few others. [illegible]

[illegible] the grace of a veteran.

[illegible] feature for those three [illegible] is "Topsy and Eva," starring the Duncan Sisters. [illegible] the plot of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" throughout it—even to the characters—it is an uproarious comedy of many ludicrous situations and movements that should easily rank it as one of the most enjoyable laughing films of years. The antics of Rosetta Duncan in her black-face role of "Topsy," the little slave girl, are so effervescent and absurd that they produce laughs without the slightest seeming effort. Vivian Duncan as the little angel child, "Eva," is an excellent foil for her sister's natural gift of comedy.

USE OF MOVIE FILMS FOR EDUCATION GROWS RAPIDLY

15,000 Institutions Now Equipped for Visual Instruction in Classes.

Washington.—Visual instruction in schools by means of motion pictures has developed rapidly in recent years, a report by the United States bureau of education showed recently.

Fifteen thousand educational institutions, including everything from the university to the kindergarten, are now estimated to be equipped for motion picture projection.

Many state universities maintain film libraries and regularly supply educational films to schools and community organizations of their states. Yale has co-operated in producing an American historical film and Harvard is aiding in making films relating to science.

In a number of cities it is now the practice to equip every new schoolhouse with projecting machines. Cleveland now has such apparatus in nearly every school. Use of this form of instruction is said to be increasing rapidly notwithstanding objections that learning through pictures is too easy and that it results in mental indolence.

Despite the recent progress, however, the bureau said many film companies organized to manufacture educational films have been forced to the wall because not enough schools were using their product regularly to enable them to make a profit.

The number of text films which may be used in connection with daily teaching is still far from adequate, the bureau reported. Improved mechanical equipment and development of the portable machine has now virtually eliminated any operation problem, according to the bureau.

Indian Fighter Seeks $125 for Shot Horse

Washington.—Back in the time of the Custer massacre William J. Bailey, seventy-nine-year-old veteran of many skirmishes with the Indians, had a horse shot from under him.

Today that horse is worth $125 to Bailey, if he can prove it was killed in battle. From his sick bed the old campaigner sent out a request that Deadwood Dick, another famous character of those stirring days, come to visit him so they can talk over old days and determine if by chance Deadwood Dick saw the horse after it was killed.

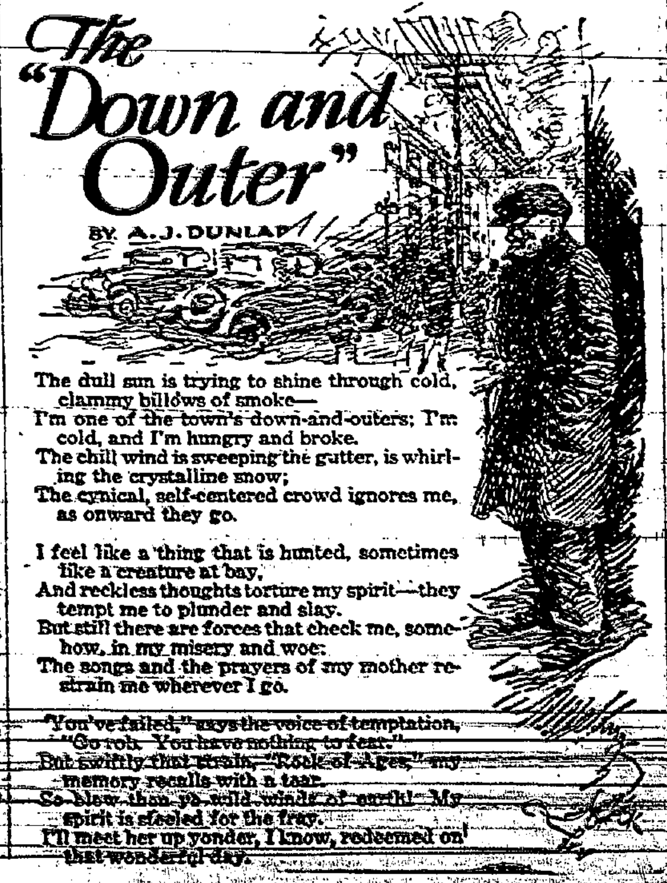
Deadwood Dick is one of the few remaining scouts who served under General Custer when the Dakota frontier was being pushed westward. He arrived in Washington to invite President Coolidge to pass the summer in the Black hills of South Dakota. Deadwood Dick's real name is Richard Clark.

Dog Saves Students

Syracuse, N. Y.—The barking of a pet dog saved 25 students in Syracuse university when fire destroyed a fraternity house. The barking awoke the students, who were able to escape without injury.

Rag Pickers Suffer

Moscow.—Rag collectors have a hard time of it in Moscow. Most people save rags for use in making patches.



The "Down and Outer"

BY A. J. DUNLAP

The dull sun is trying to shine through cold,
clammy billows of smoke—
I'm one of the town's down-and-outers; I'm cold, and I'm hungry and broke.
The chill wind is sweeping the gutter, is whirling the crystalline snow;
The cynical, self-centered crowd ignores me,
as onward they go.

I feel like a thing that is hunted, sometimes
like a creature at bay,
And reckless thoughts torture my spirit—they tempt me to plunder and slay.
But still there are forces that check me, somehow, in my misery and woe;
The songs and the prayers of my mother restrain me wherever I go.

"You've failed," says the voice of temptation,
"Go rob. You have nothing to fear."
But swiftly that strain, "Rock of Ages," my memory recalls with a tear.
So blow, then ye wild winds of earth! My spirit is steeled for the fray.
I'll meet her up yonder, I know, redeemed on that wonderful day.

COUNCIL LEARNS OF OVEREXPENDITURES

The property owners were assessed for 550 feet when only 156 feet were laid. The assessed cost was $1,353.84 and the actual cost was $493.38.

Sewers costing $6 a front foot, and sidewalks costing $2 a front foot caused Councilman Armstrong to declare that there was something radically wrong with the way business was being done.

They caused Councilman Love to say that it is not fair, after assessing property owners for an improvement to come along later with an additional assessment for the same improvement. But it was not considered likely that any additional assessments would have to be made. In cases where the owners have already been assessed the levies have been figured on the basis of the total cost of the improvement as submitted by the street commissioner to the city treasurer, by him to the city engineer and by him to the Board of Assessors. The assessments were not based upon the estimated cost which was appropriated in the ordinances which authorized the improvements be made. The amounts assessed will be checked with the amended costs by the assessment board.

Councilman Herman wanted to know, but was not told, why it took the auditors two years to find out that the appropriations in these cases were overexpended. Upon a resolution by Councilman Armstrong the city engineer will be instructed to see that all improvements in the future are held within the price submitted [illegible] the estimated cost.

MRS. JANE M. COLES

Mrs Jane M Coles, widow of David Furman Coles, died at Flanders, N. J., Friday, November 30. She was born in Rahway in March 1845, the daughter of Gershom and Julia Woodruff Marsh and was a member of the First Baptist Church for over thirty years. She left Rahway for the [illegible] in May, 1881, and had [illegible]. Her husband died there in December, 1913. A daughter, Mrs. Chas. E. Ellison, of Mercerville, survives.

MARK TENTH BIRTHDAY

ELKS FIGHT DUEL ON GOLF COURSE

Battle for 15 Minutes After Sliced Ball Hits One of Them.

Jasper Park, Alb.—The golfing season at Jasper Park is officially closed, but Inspector Frere of the Royal Canadian mounted police is convinced that the course offers more varied excitement in its post season aspect.

Playing over the course recently Inspector Frere noticed two bull elk grazing at the timber's edge some hundred yards from the tee on the sixth fairway. Elk are a common sight on the Jasper Park course and their presence on the fairway aroused no more than a casual interest.

Golf Ball Hits Elk.

Following his partner up to the tee, the inspector sliced his drive slightly. He watched the ball curve high into the air. It dropped down quickly, but not onto the fairway, nor yet into the timber. The report as it hit the farthest of the two elk was quite audible back on the tee.

Then several things happened—and at once. That an inspector of the Royal Canadian mounted police [illegible] any hand in the indignity [illegible] had suffered, never appeared [illegible] into the calculations of [illegible] aggrieved elk. And besides, Inspector Frere was too far away. The other elk was much closer. It [illegible] only, as a matter of fact, [illegible] feet distant.

Engage in Combat.

The other elk reared about to [illegible] accept an incomprehensible attack upon his midsection and the [illegible] the two beasts became [illegible], the fairway was torn up [illegible] hooks and, as Inspector Frere and his companion approached, the [illegible] panting of the combatants could be heard.

The struggle was indecisive. It endured for about 15 minutes with honors, if any, in the hands of the second elk—he whose majesty had been imperiled. Then [illegible] their antlers loosened they commenced again to graze.

In 1927, the association [illegible] more than 20 per cent of such accidents were caused in this [illegible] two hundred and forty four persons were killed and 1,081 [illegible]. 1,148 of such accidents [illegible] passenger [illegible] buses and trucks. Of these 1,0[illegible] were passenger automobiles, contributing 220 to the death list. Many of them, the association reports, [illegible] crashed through the [illegible] before striking the [illegible]. One hundred seventy nine [illegible] automobiles crashed into trains [illegible] causing 207 deaths.

Hundred Parties of Mappers Coming Home

Washington.—Over a [illegible] surveying parties under [illegible] of the geological survey are [illegible] up their work preparatory to returning to Washington within the next few weeks.

These parties, working in five different states, have mapped approximately 17,000 square miles of territory and have conducted various investigations into the mineral resources of the United States.

Officials in Washington always await with some anxiety the return of these parties, for in past years [illegible] have made important discoveries which have had a marked effect on sources of raw materials. Potash fields in Texas, and gold fields in Alaska are among the discoveries these parties have made in the past.

Some of the men have been living entirely by themselves in isolated spots for weeks at a time without communication with the outside world.

Wife Bequeathed One Cracked Bowl

Cowling, Yorkshire.—One [illegible] bowl were the only things left to his wife in the will of Isaac Lund, a gardener, here. Lund left about $1,370.

His will read: "To my wife, Gertrude, who has ceased to reside with me, the sum of one shilling and the cracked bowl which she left me."

SLEEP BROKEN 35 TIMES DURING AN AVERAGE NIGHT

Observations by Investigators Show Men More Restless Than Women.

New York.—You may think that you sleep like a log, but you don't. The fairly typical sleeper awakens, at least to part of his environment, about 35 times in the course of an ordinary night, and in general men are more restless than women.

These facts have been determined by H. M. Johnson, director of an investigation at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, University of Pittsburgh. More than ninety different people have been under observation for several months during the investigation, and experts have recorded more than a quarter of a million periods of rest to determine how much sleep people actually need and to get data about how they sleep.

Subjects ranging in age from sixteen days to sixty-three years, of both sexes, and of widely different states of health contributed to the experiments. One of the reasons for the investigation was to find out how little sleep is necessary.

Persons absorbed in interesting work or play begrudge the interruptions of sleep. They are the ones who want to know if there is any harmless way of getting along with less than seven or eight hours in bed, Johnson explains.

"When a person falls asleep he loses most of his personal dignity. He begins to behave much like a vegetable and he looks the part. He spends a third of his life asleep, and its effects persist through a good part of another third.

"Even during the hours of work we are awake to only a small group of objects at any one instant and are asleep to all of the rest. An instant later we are awake to a second group of objects, and asleep to some of the members of the group to which we were attending an instant before. Thus the reference pattern of our sleep is continually changing, but at no time are we asleep to all the environmental world at once.

"Sleep and waking are relative. Whenever we use the words we imply a certain kind of activity. Ordinarily they refer to motility. An organism is awake to those changes to which it responds by specific movement; to all other changes we call it sleep. In sleep it is motility which is suppressed; certain other vital activities are maintained, and some are intensified.

"Of 22 college boys studied at Mellon institute, the least motile stirs about once in 25 minutes; the most active once in 7¾ minutes, the most typical about once in 13½ minutes."

Gradation of Heavens

To be in the seventh heaven means to be supremely happy. According to Mohammed, there are seven heavens. The seventh, says the Koran, is formed of divine light beyond the power of description. Each inhabitant is bigger than the entire earth, and has 70,000 heads, each head 70,000 mouths, each mouth 70,000 tongues, and each tongue speaks 70,000 languages, and all of them are continually engaged in chanting the praises of the Most High. It was in the seventh heaven that Mohammed met Abraham. The Cabalists also believe in seven heavens, each rising in happiness above the other, the seventh being the abode of God and the highest class of angels.

Gigolos in Trouble.

Paris.—Not content with making $50 a night with champagne and supper thrown in, gigolos, or professional dancing partners, have been doing things that caused police action. Seven recently were sent to jail for blackmail and other offenses. All now must carry police licenses, which are subject to revocation.

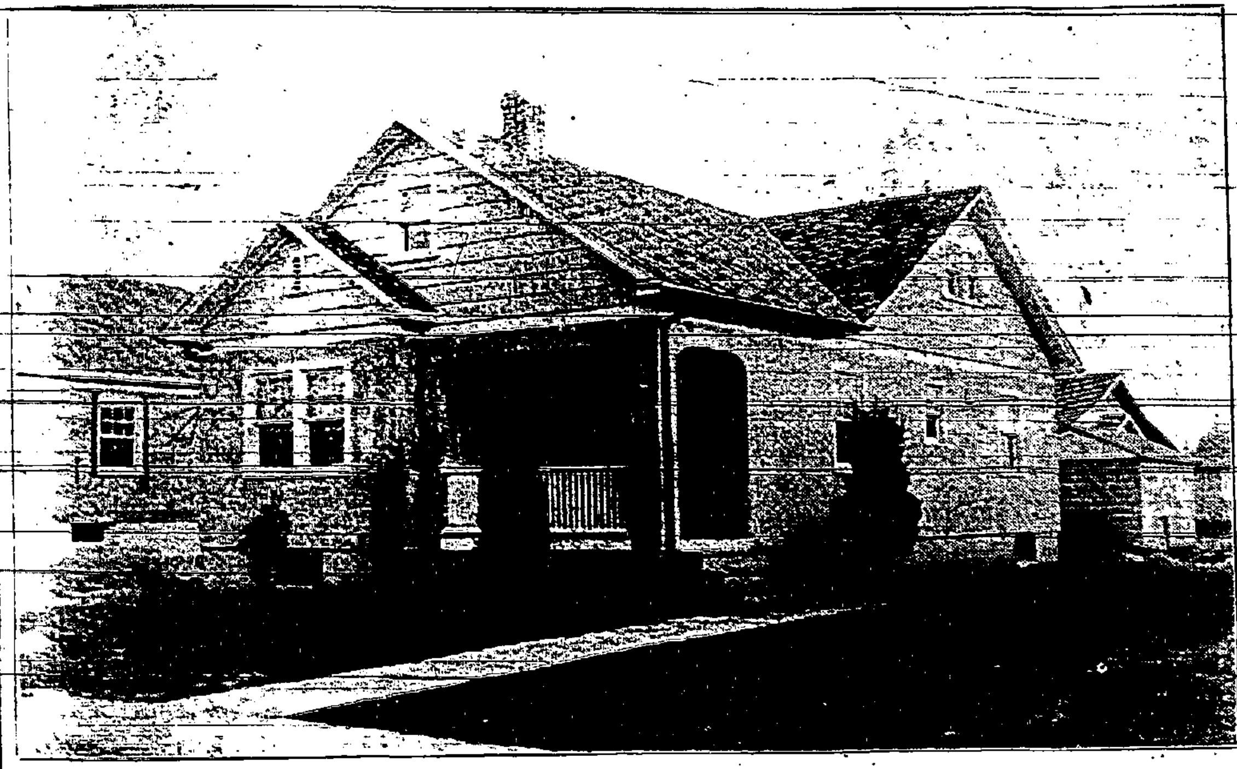
Buy a Beautiful Bungalow In "Tingley Manor"

Rahway, New Jersey

First Model Home Open to the Public Tomorrow



Special Announcement

We are glad to announce that we are to open our five room model bungalow located on Church Street, between Scott Avenue and Lincoln Avenue on Saturday, December 15, 1928.

This bungalow has five large spacious rooms and bath; living room is finished in ivory egg shell finish; the walls are finished in textone of a very pleasing buff; floors are North Carolina pine finished with sanding machine and two coats of varnish; also has a nice fireplace mantle that helps to make the living room cozy as can be. Dining room is large, finished the same as the living room. Bath is finished in textone; lower half marked off, upper half in stucco finish, has bath on base, pedestal basin, combination closet, medicine chest and the room is of a nice size. Two large bedrooms with closets fitted up with shelving and coat hanger. The kitchen is fitted up as nice as any that cost five times as much and has large cupboards; place for a Fridigaire; broom closet; ironing board; blue enamel gas range; place for kitchen table; white enamel sink—in fact, all that any woman can ask of a kitchen. Stairs to attic and room enough to make two rooms. If you desire we will finish off these rooms for $250 each while we are building the house.

Features that have made this a Model Home.

Five Reasons Why You Should Buy From Us.

1. We have been building in Rahway for the past eighteen years and have pleased about 95% of our customers. This is a point too often overlooked by the home-seeker, if you do pay more for a reliable builder it is good insurance but in most every case comparing workmanship and material the fly-by-night builder is by far the most expensive.
2. We have only experienced, well-trained men in our organization, (no subcontractors), all our men are paid by the hour and directly under our control, which is impossible under the subcontracting plan.
3. All materials are standard and the best of their respective kinds. Practically all material is bought in carload lots giving you the advantage of the best possible price.
4. Holland Vaporaire Heating. Most modern healthful and economical heating plant. Usually installed in homes of much higher price.
5. When you buy one of these bungalows you pay for no street assessments; grading or seeding of the lawns. You get electric light fixtures, gas range, shades. The house is decorated in textone, paint or paper. These are some of the items included in this house that you do not find when you are buying a house, and they would cost you anywhere from $800 to $1,200 to install them yourself. We invite you to inspect this bungalow. You might not be interested in this type of house but we feel as builders we can do just as well no matter what the type of house is you might want. If in the market for a house it will pay you to see us. You are under no obligations and our service is at your disposal.

You can sign your contract now so we can get started in the early Spring on your bungalow. Pay $100 down when you get your contract, terms can be arranged. Full price is $5,750, which includes lot about 50 x 100 and all improvements in the street paid for by us.

This Model Bungalow Was Furnished Completely By

James McCollum

Every article of high quality furniture you find in this most attractive model home came from the modern and up-to-date Rahway furniture store of Jas. McCollum.

When you go through this home note the luxurious living-room suite, the handsome dining-room set, the two dainty bedrooms and the sanitary and modern kitchen furnishings.

This is in every sense of the word a cozy nest and one to be proud to possess. A real home for a small family.

We want everyone who possibly can to come out tomorrow and see with your own eyes what a little money on easy terms too can give you in the way of a home.

BURIED WEALTH LOCATERS BUSY

Stories of Such Abound These Days in Central Kentucky.

Danville, Ky.—Residents of a rural section of this county do not know whether they are facing an attempt to bunco them, or whether there have been bona fide discoveries made of buried treasure. It is asserted that gold money in various sums, in one case placed as large as $60,000, has been taken from the earth, and so far nobody has disproved it, as the discoverer has disappeared. There have been stories for many years of large sums in gold and silver buried in central Kentucky by planters during the Civil war to prevent marauding bands from one or another of the armies making away with it.

James Boner, a respected and prosperous negro, tells the queerest story of the recent search for treasure under the ground. No one has questioned his veracity and his reputation is of the highest. Boner lives on the edge of Herrington lake, a huge body of water created by erection of the Dix river power dam.

Wore Official Badge.

Boner says a negro in an automobile came to the Boner home. The stranger, according to Boner, drew back the lapel of his coat and allowed the stare of Boner to rest upon an impressive appearing badge. The negro, Boner says, declared he was a "government man" and that there was a pot of gold buried on the farm of Addison and William Pence, across the lake in Garrard county. The stranger requested Boner to accompany him to the place where the money was buried, as the coin was in a kettle, which would be very heavy; and he would need help to lift it! likewise he would require the aid of some one to hold a flashlight while he (the stranger) was making the excavation for the money.

Boner told the negro that he did not care to go, as he was old and had already retired for the night. Finally, however, Boner agreed to accompany him. Along the route the visitor confided to Boner that he had been endowed with power to locate buried money. He went, accompanied by Boner, straight to a place on the Pence farm where two ledges of rock almost met and began digging at a spot which was covered with grass and where, it seemed, the ground had not been disturbed for many years. Boner held the flashlight while the negro sank a pick into the hard ground. He dug about two hours, Boner said, and then there came the "sting" of the pick against something made of iron. Little by little a huge kettle was uncovered.

Then Boner and the strange negro lifted the implement from the ground. Boner says the kettle weighed 150 pounds at least. The strange negro then pried up the top and took therefrom three silver dollars, a few quarters and half dollar pieces. Boner said he also saw some gold coins, and declared the finder estimated that the kettle contained $60,000. Then the two men put the kettle into the negro's car and the "mystery man" sped away in the darkness.

Kettle on Boner's Farm.

While Boner pondered all next day there were no developments, but that night the stranger reappeared. He told Boner that there was a kettle of money buried on Boner's farm and that at a later date he would return and dig it up for Boner if the latter would divide with him. The stranger offered to exchange some $50 gold pieces with Boner for silver or paper money, but Boner, a man of considerable wealth, had no funds in the house.

Next day Boner decided to take "white folks" into his confidence and told Squire Nelson May and his son Albert May, with Mr. Hatcher and other citizens. All visited the place on the farm where Boner says the treasure was taken from and there, right under their eyes was the excavation.

Inquiry in Danville has developed that at least four well-to-do negroes have been visited by unknown persons who claimed they had found pots of gold and silver in and around this section. No attempt has been made to impose upon the negroes, nor have any white persons been approached.

In August, James Ashe, a farmer of the county, was going through his farm when a dog began barking at a tree stump. Ashe dug into the stump, believing a rabbit to be therein, and discovered a kettle containing $1,800 in silver coined between 1800 and 1837. He placed this money in a Springfield (Ky.) bank.

Stories are current from practically every town in this section of Kentucky of coins having been hidden in ancient houses or farms during the Civil war era, and now and then loose coins are found while farmers are plowing.

Berlin Will Build a Palace of Youth

Berlin.—Plans for the construction of Berlin's "Palace of Youth" have been approved, calling for expenditures totaling $1,000,000.

It is designed to serve as a social welfare center where organizations connected with the German Youth Movement will have their headquarters.

Great building projects are afoot in other parts of the capital. These include a new department of justice building, costing $2,500,000, and the largest covered swimming baths in the world. A glass dome 500 feet in diameter will span a water course 65 feet wide. A sandy shore with artificial sunshine and seaside mural paintings will create the impression of outdoor bathing.

Will Hear First Reports Of "Y" Campaign Tonight

First reports of canvassers in the Y. M. C. A. membership campaign will be received at a dinner at the association building tonight. The drive got under way with a dinner and short talks Tuesday night, with Frank C. Hitchcock, general, presiding.

"Looking Ahead" was the subject of a speech by Frank W. Kidd, president. Maurice Chaillet, colonel of the Red Division, Charles H Harding, colonel of the Blue Division, and General Secretary Chalners Reed were the other speakers.

Announcement was made of the canvassing teams as follows: Reds, Colonel Maurice Chaillet, H. C. Fray, R. A. Conn, J. W. Wieser, Edward Love, Russell Post, Walter Gilman; Blues, Colonel Charles H Harding, A. V. Carkhuff, Clarence Krusie, Robert K. Miller, George E. Anderson, Paul Cohen, Ross Fowler, Jr., Franklin LeCompte, William LaMorte, Carl Jacobson.

FYFFE GROUP ELECTS

The following officers have been elected by the Thomas A. Fyffe Association: President, George W. Palmer, first vice-president, Councilman Alfred C. Feakes; second vice-president, Miss Emma Ryan, who is head of the Ladies' Auxiliary; secretary, Lacey Luckhurst, treasurer, Edgar P. Murphy.

A Christmas celebration, card party and election of officers are on the card for the next meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Card games followed the business meeting Monday night and the following won prizes: Mrs. Joana Ford, Mrs. William Connolly, Mrs. Lawrence E. Fox, Mrs. George W. Palmer, Mrs. Cecilia Dunn, Mrs. S. S. Flake, Mrs. A. G. Bader, Miss Gladys Titus, Miss Emma Ryan, Mrs. Philip Buhl, Mrs. Pierre De Potter; non-player's award, Mrs. Anna O'Connor; special prize, Mrs. William Connolly.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Perry, of 162 Central avenue, are entertaining Mrs. Perry's father, M. D. Parson, of Roxbury, N. Y.

WINDJAMMER IN PACIFIC VOYAGE BREAKS RECORD

Trip From Alaska to Golden Gate Is Made in 11 Days by the Star of England.

San Francisco.—The bark Star of England, "white winged daughter of the gales, will not go down into maritime history besmirched with disgrace.

Last spring she was ignominiously beaten by the Star of Alaska in their epic race from the Golden Gate to Alaskan waters in what will probably be the last race between windjammers in the world.

For months Capt. Charles Wiese, master of the Star of England, felt the disappointment keenly. During the long days in Alaska waiting for his ship's hold to be loaded to the gunwales with cans of salmon, the veteran sea captain planned to erase the stigma of defeat.

Recently he dropped the Star of England's mudhook in San Francisco bay just 11 days out of Alitka, Alaska, setting what is believed to be a new record for fast passage between Alaska and San Francisco.

Moreover, in breaking the record she took some part of the glory away from her former conqueror, Star of Alaska, for it was that ship which had previously held the record, making the trip in 12 days three years ago.

It was a foul wind but a fair one that brought the latest victory to the windjammer. This craft had earned the nickname, "Daughter of the Gales" for good reason. Her ability to carry canvas in the strongest gale is renowned in shipping circles of the Pacific coast.

On the northbound passage, there was a stiff breeze but nothing approaching a gale. As a result, the Alaska made the trip in 19 days, while the England followed in her wake, arriving in 34 days.

With his weather eye cocked on the barometer and after a careful scrutiny of the wind current charts Captain Wiese was sure of his triumph on the south-bound passage.

Sailing directly into the teeth of the sou'westerly gales enroute home, her canvas taut, her line quivering in the strong winds, her clipper bow cutting the seas like a knife, she hove into port a conqueror.

Canaries Found Best in Detecting Mine Gas

Washington.—The canary bird has no peer as the detector of gas in mines, the United States bureau of mines has found after conducting experiments with chickens, rabbits, dogs, pigeons, mice and other animals.

White mice can be used if the canary is not available, as both show visible effects of breathing dangerous gases long before human lungs are affected.

The advantage of the canary lies in the fact that it falls from its perch but revives quickly on being brought into fresh air. The birds seldom die from breathing the gas a short time, and can be overcome and revived many times in a few hours without harm.

Canaries, white mice, chickens, dogs, pigeons, sparrows, guinea pigs and rabbits collapse in the order named when exposed to a small amount of carbon monoxide.

Rescue parties carry a test canary in entering a mine believed to contain dangerous gases.

Cuba Just a New Island, After All!

Havana.—An Indian legend that once dry land connected Cuba and Yucatan is receiving sensational revival from excavations by archeologists.

At Lake Mampoten, in the province of Pinar del Rio, Cuba, earthen pots bearing inscriptions similar to those of the dead Mayan civilization of Mexico and Central America are being dug up by American archeologists and naturalists co-operating with the Cuban government. The similarities in pottery are striking. Some of the pieces are said to be almost exact copies of Mayan wares taken from the ancient city of Chichen-Itza and other places in Yucatan and Campeche. Fossil remains have been unearthed of animals identified as belonging to species now existing in Mexico. Some of these animals now live in Mexican highlands.

Legendary tales of Cuba, dating back many centuries and handed down from the old Siboney Indians, say that at one time the Straits of Yucatan connected with the western end of the island. A terrific inundation left only the higher lands of the region exposed, cutting off land communications.

Plane Test Chamber Attains 7-Mile Height

Washington.—The United States bureau of standards will possess the only available motor testing chamber in the world capable of reproducing in the laboratory flying conditions seven miles in the air upon completion of the bureau's present equipment now under way.

The improved chamber can be so regulated as to produce any desired conditions of temperature, density, air pressure and other vital factors affecting motor performance at any altitude at which planes can fly.

They Would.

New York.—Gladys De Havilland and Mona Eley, English girls here on a tour of the world in a seven horse-power auto, are wondering if there will be any trouble in obtaining permission to carry a pistol. "You see," explained Miss De Havilland, "over in England we hear so much about holdups and yeggmen here."

Finds Old Musket.

Lamont, Iowa.—Guy Walling has a Springfield musket which is one hundred and three years old. The dated antique was found in tearing down an old house here.

A YARDSTICK for your Net Worth

HAVE you ever figured what your net estate would amount to after deducting federal and state taxes, debts and administration expenses?

They may call for a surprisingly large amount of ready cash. Many men carry an additional life insurance policy to provide cash for this specific purpose. Otherwise, some part of your estate might have to be sold at a sacrifice to produce the needed funds.

Whether you adopt this plan or not, you, as a business man, will certainly wish to know what these deductions from your gross estate may amount to.

Let us help you to estimate the total. We will gladly do this for you without cost or obligation.

Why Bother?

MOST business people can test their products before delivery and know whether they are good.

In the telephone business the situation is a little different. We know that the equipment will perform effectively and that it is operated and maintained by well-trained workers.

Yet it is only after a call is completed or fails that we or you can know whether the service was fully satisfactory. That's why we continually check and measure the quality of service and ask you to tell us when anything is persistently wrong with your service.

Constant watchfulness on our part and cooperation on yours is fundamental in the furnishing of modern telephone service. It is part of the effort to provide "the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety" (the policy of every Bell Company in the United States.)

Practical Individualism vs. Socialism

President-elect Hoover's statement, that in regard to business, government should be the umpire and not a player in the game embraces in an epigram our whole American theory of social and economic existence.

Elsewhere in the world we have seen the failure of industrial nationalization. Many foreign governments have not only been players in the game but in some instances, of which Russia under Soviet regime is the outstanding example, as they become the entire game to the disadvantage and loss of all others.

The United States has forged ahead under a government policy based on encouraging practical individualism. The century old statement, that government is for the people, not the people for the government, is as true today as in the time of Jefferson. Our attitude toward the European and Russian experiments has been that of a by-stander with an innate dislike and distrust of political paternalism.

That the soundness and wisdom of American individualism has been proven cannot be doubted. It can be measured in dollars and cents, and in the less tangible, but more important values of human rights and happiness. There has never been a period in our history when the relations between labor and capital were more amicable—we have never been more free from strikes and disturbances and never have the people of any country at any time in the world's history enjoyed the advantages which are commonplace to every American citizen. We have learned that personal prosperity and general prosperity are indivisible—that it takes capital to make industries and pay bills and comforts.

The average American has become unknown to the average European which he can use to whatever purposes, cultural or otherwise, he wishes. He has motor cars and sufficient money to keep them going, entertainment and money with which to buy it. He has all the natural advantages, and an illimitable number of other advantages that have accrued from science and industry and our living standards.

Those who, in the past, have looked to Europe as the barometer that forecasts the future of America have been mistaken. We have become a world in ourselves, a universe of individuals, free from the blight of despotism. The American social-economic theory, with its stalwart support of the innate soundness of individual initiative and effort, as contrasted with paternalism, has been a magnificent success.

You Can Lead a Child to Water

Ten little fingers and ten little toes may be a mother's rosary, as a popular song writer once said, but they become the bane of mother's existence when they get somewhat bigger. The pink little digits of the year old baby become the grimey hands of the ten year old boy. No parent, however blinded by loving prejudice, can claim that cleanliness is exactly an overpowering obsession with children. It takes home training in large doses, to develop in them a "sanitary sense." This is one of the fundamental duties of the home for the sake of the child's health and future welfare, and its importance cannot be over estimated.

The importance of leading reluctant children to water is constantly reinforced by the statements of bacteriologists and doctors. Hands, they tell us, are primary factors in the spread of disease, and disease prevention consists partly, at least, in keeping the hands clean and in seeing that they do not travel unnecessarily to the mouth, nose and eyes. Sanitary habits are difficult to inculcate because the eye, unfortunately, is not an accurate judge of the sanitary character of an object or surface.

"The child must be taught to be clean," says Doctor Jean Broadhurst, Professor of Bacteriology at Columbia University. "Probably the best way to teach cleanliness habits to children is to put the matter on an aesthetic basis. That is not the only reason, but it ought to be sufficient in any civilized society. A second way of presenting this hygiene phase to children is by example—by making sure that example speaks as implicitly as precept. Why insist that children must wash their hands before coming to the table if you get up from the table to lift the dog into the easy-chair, or change the baby's soiled underclothes, and return to the table without washing your hands?"

Rural Billboards a National Disgrace

The Bureau of Public Roads, Agricultural Department of the Federal Government in its annual report, comments on the advertising signboards which often carry misleading information and hide publicly placed guides or confuse travelers.

Mr. Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the Bureau, says: "Designedly placed where they will receive the utmost attention, they frequently obscure or mar attractive roadside views and so detract from the pleasurable use of the highways. Accustomed as we are to their unwanted presence in ordinary surroundings, to come upon these blatant commercial appeals high on the face of a majestic cliff, marring a mountainside, or completely obscuring a particularly beautiful vista awakens a sense of their utter incongruity. In practically all cases these roadside advertisements merely repeat in the same form appeals made quite properly through other agencies. Their disfigurement of the landscape is a national disgrace."

Nowadays it's getting so that where there is smoke there must be girls.

Repeat Old Defective Conditions

A warning that suburban areas in the New York Region may become as bad as the old overcongested districts of the city unless adequate preventive measures are taken, is sounded in a report on the Population of the New York Region, to be issued shortly by the Regional Plan of New York and Its Environs.

Although the report declares that the present general movement from the overcrowded districts of the city toward the suburbs is desirable from the point of view of regional distribution of population, and can help to create a more healthful area, it points out that unless the suburban areas are planned to prevent overcrowding of the land and badly constructed dwellings, "the movement may in time mean nothing more than the transfer of population from already deteriorated areas to new areas where the same defective conditions will be repeated."

The report advocates not only the preservation of sufficient space for purposes of recreation in the suburban districts, but larger areas permanently reserved for cultivation.

"The advantages of the suburban trend," the report states, "are that those who move get more wholesome housing conditions and better access to outdoor recreation facilities." These advantages, however, are lost when overcrowding is permitted and inadequate space for recreation is provided. Reviewing the desirability of suburban development from the point of view of recreation and family life the report declares that the pattern of development on the outskirts of the center has received much less attention than it deserves.

The motor car is indicated as one of the factors encouraging suburban growth. The report states, however, that badly planned or badly paved highways [illegible] the advantages to be [illegible] in the ownership of the motor car are impediments to suburban development. Badly planned rapid transit lines are also [illegible] an obstacle.

When new lines are built closely parallel to the old ones, they do something to distribute population because they provide new daily carrying capacity along existing channels of movement, but they thus encourage [illegible] close development similar to the physical character of that found in the blocks in the center of the city. [illegible] through [illegible] where none already exist and where [illegible] is available.

"Insofar as these rapid transit [illegible] they tend to [illegible] the [illegible] in which they carry additional [illegible] of commuters. At the same time they [illegible] the enlargement of the characteristically suburban area.

Joy and Dignity of Eating In Decline

Complex and difficult has become the problem of eating. [illegible] a plaint by a speaker before a convention of the National Restaurant Association that the American people as a whole are taking their meals too casually, with not enough realization of what the art of dining can [illegible] nowadays."

More than one element enters the situation. [illegible] where even that word may [illegible] the present fashion of female [illegible] might account for at least a falling off in total food consumption. Of late years, too, there has been a marked drawing away from indulgence in meats, until the packers are complaining loudly, and a definite campaign is afoot to offset the belief that so-called "red" meats are detrimental to health. One expression of this is the change in bills of fare effected by one large chain of restaurants whereby emphasis on vegetables and vegetable dinners has been heightened.

There is, too, the matter of alcoholic concomitants to leisurely feasting, which makes outdoor and indoor lunching and dining so attractive to American visitors to Paris and other European capitals. Prohibition has saddened the lives of gourmets on this side of the water so that the old-fashioned prandial artist has become almost extinct. Perhaps in odd corners of conservative clubs, and at window tables of historic restaurants a few old fellows survive to carry on the gourmet tradition, but a new generation is providing no successors. Drinking, nowadays, is too much a matter of business, wherein all artistry is sunk in mere, vulgar consumption.

But prohibition must not be found wholly at fault for what has betided, even dieting does not explain all. Rather must the falling away from discriminating trencher work be explained in the frantic haste of life. Folk rush rather aimlessly hither and yon pausing only long enough at table to sustain life, even though elaborately. To speed has been sacrificed the sense of taste; cooking of a dinner has become standardized, and amid all the talk of art in industry the chef has perforce been overlooked.—Newark Evening News.

Charging All to Future, Bad Habit

The question of taxation is outstanding among present day problems. It is a rare community that is without indebtedness, and to a greater or lesser extent, a tax burden.

Investigation shows that communities which have the largest bonded indebtedness and the highest tax rates are not usually the most prosperous. "Improvements" and government ventures which are made without sound economic foresight are doomed to become expensive failures. It is easy to vote bond issues. The rub comes when they have to be paid in the tax bills.

We will have general tax reduction when communities learn the difference between improvement and extravagance and prefer to "pay more as they go" instead of "charging it all to the future."

Safety Nowhere

Safety campaigns have been repeatedly carried on in manufacturing and transportation industries, and traffic officers everywhere are constantly reminding people to observe the rules for safety, till people generally come to regard home as the only safe place.

At every turn and even in the home danger lurks "to take us unawares," and to some comes the conclusion that there is safety nowhere.

Rahway Girl Played Role In "Icebound" at N. J. C.

Miss Louise Wencher, of Jefferson avenue, Rahway, played an amusing character part in "Icebound," the play at the New Jersey College for Women which played last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The play was given by the Little Theater Workshop Group, under the direction of Mrs. Jane Inge. Miss Wencher is a member of the junior class and of the workshop, and she has appeared before in several plays. In "Icebound," Owen Davis' Pulitzer prize play, she was cast as Orin Fellows, a boy of twelve.

The play is the second one presented this year by the theater group, and offers an interesting contrast to "Expressing Willie," the comedy which opened the season. All work connected with the play, including making of costumes, scenery and furniture, doing make-up and other ends of production is done by members of the workshop under the director's instruction.

Will Sing Old Carols At Trinity Church Sun.

Trinity Methodist Church will begin its Christmas season by singing traditional carols of many nations at both services Sunday. Explanatory program notes will be given by the pastor, H. B. Leech. The program in the morning will include an organ solo, "O Du Froehliche," by G. Rebling, a traditional Christmas melody on a theme by Bach; quartette, "O Bethlehem," a traditional Spanish (Basque) carol, arranged by Dickenson; alto solo, "French Cradle Song," traditional, arranged by Liddle, sung by Mrs. George Martin; offertory carol anthem, "Come Hither Ye Faithful," McCollum; choral response, Bartlett; organ, selection from the "Messiah," Handel.

Sunday evening's program will consist of the organ solo, "Pastorale for Christmas," DeLange; "Sleep of Child Jesus" and "Bring a Torch," traditional French, arranged by Gavaert; "Jesu, Thou Dear Babe," traditional Haitian (French), arranged by Dickenson; "Still Grows the Evening," 14th century Bohemian, arranged by Dickenson; choral response, Bartlett; organ, "Fanfare," Bridge.

ARE YOU SUPERSTITIOUS ?

BY FRANK ELLIS, JR.

Lucky Days

IN RUSSIA when a man thinks the time has come to take a wife, he will put a turquoise ring into his pocket on Whitsunday and go into the Summer park (at Lemberg) determined to bestow this trinket on somebody before the day is over, but having no idea when he sets out who the lady will be.

A common saying runs:

"Born on Monday, fair of face,
Born of Tuesday, full of grace,
Born on Wednesday, sour and sad,
Born on Thursday, merry and glad,
Born on Friday, worthily given,
Born on Saturday, work hard for your living,
Born on Sunday, you will never know want."

The Spaniards hold Friday to be a very unlucky day, and never undertake anything, consequently, on this day. The Finns think Monday and Friday are bad days in which to transact business.

To wear green on Friday is lucky. It was on Friday that Columbus discovered America. George Washington was born on that day, and the Pilgrim Fathers reached Plymouth Rock on Friday.

The Annual Meeting of Shareholders, for the Election of Officers and Directors, adopting [illegible] amending Section of Constitution, hereinafter referred to, and such other matters as may come before the meeting, to take place at 7 o'clock Monday evening, December 17, 1928, at 142 Irving Street, Rahway, New Jersey.

The following amendment to the constitution is to be submitted:

Section 1, Article 1[illegible], to read:

"Any Shareholder who has not become a borrower may withdraw his shares by giving thirty days written notice to the Board of Directors. If the withdrawal be made within the first year, the withdrawal value of the shares withdrawn shall be not less than the sum of the subscription or dues paid on such shares less a proportionate share of any loss sustained by such association. If the withdrawal be made after the first year, the shareholder shall be entitled to receive from this association the amount of dues actually paid in, first deducting therefrom such shareholder's proportion of all losses and expense incurred by the Association, together with all fines and forfeitures charged against such shareholder, provided that after the first year a shareholder shall be entitled to receive the actual amount paid in as dues by him plus fifty percent of the profits accrued to his share or shares after the second year, fifty five percent after the third year, sixty percent, after the fourth year, sixty-five percent, after the fifth year, seventy percent, after the sixth year, seventy-five percent after the seventh year, eighty percent after the eighth year, eighty five percent after the ninth year, ninety percent after the tenth year, ninety-five percent after the eleventh year, such higher rate as the Board of Directors may determine.

A MUTUAL SAVINGS BANK

What Do Youngsters Know About Expenses?

Watch those boys and girls in Rahway's School Yards—and you'll breathe the hope that the world will use them kindly. But you know that hard knocks come—that the unprepared suffer.

It's well, then to prepare the children for the years ahead—and the money question that will come.

At this strong, friendly community bank, many boys and girls already have bank accounts. We want your boy or girl, too—for children's accounts are valued for the meaning they have for the future—in safety and progress for the owners.

Back Stairs

"There's many a man done got himself lost tryin' to find a short cut to somewheres. A feller has sure got to be dad-burned certain of the neighborhood when he tries to git in the back way."—Preachin' Bill.

I DENY the truth of that old threadbare maxim, "Where there's a will there's a way." I refuse to accept the assertion of those knowing ones who declare, "There is no such word as can't."

Why, most of us spend half our lives willing to attain ends that are forever beyond our reach. The rest of the time we are finding out the things which we cannot do.

Some of us never do find out that for us there is no way to [illegible] things though our wills were strong enough to burn us in a slow fire. And between you and me, that is the reason why so many of us fail to arrive anywhere in particular.

For instance, I know a fine man who stands only about four feet. If will-power could do it he would stretch to six feet, or [illegible] he might not be satisfied [illegible] seven. But my friend [illegible] there is no way, so he very wisely wastes no strength on the impossible but gives all his attention to making the most of his four feet [illegible].

All the will-power in the universe would never have enabled me to sing like Caruso. I was not born with Caruso's singing machine, because I discovered this in time I have wasted no ammunition shooting at that target. The world has not lost a singer because there was [illegible] singer there to lose; but I [illegible] gained a considerable [illegible] [illegible]. Do you see?

Now, the chief thing which [illegible] cannot do is to accomplish anything like satisfying and enduring success by short-cut, underhanded, back-stairs methods.

[illegible] remember about the fellow [illegible] "Climbeth up some other way"? "The same is a thief" [illegible]

[illegible] I suppose a thief may be a successful thief. One might successfully commit a murder. [illegible] know the kind of success I am discussing. Please don't quibble.

I deny the truth of that old threadbare maxim, "Where there's a will there's a way." I refuse to accept the assertion of those knowing ones who declare, "There is no such word as can't."

All the will-power in the universe would never have enabled me to sing like Caruso.

Now, the chief thing which we cannot do is to accomplish anything like satisfying and enduring success by short-cut, underhanded, back-stairs methods.

To have financial success that is real, one must actually own that which one possesses.

It is the person who holds no shares in Life who complains about the scanty dividends.

Make no mistake, you can't bunco Life indefinitely.

I say, one either walks right up to the front door of the House of Success, rings the bell, and climbs the main stairway to the inner room or, sooner or later, is thrown out for an intruder, a sneak, or a [illegible].

For instance, no person ever yet attained to real financial success by the back stairs.

Now, wait a minute!

I do not say that no one ever climbed to large sums of money by the get-rich-quick stairway. But I do say that a fortune so accumulated never in reality belongs to the one who gains it—it still remains the property of those from whom it was taken.

To have financial success that is real, one must actually own that which one possesses. A dollar in your pocket would not be necessarily be your dollar; it might be mine. If it were mine the fact that you carried it in your pocket would not make it yours. You might enjoy a certain cheap uneasy, and momentary thrill by flashing the coin and pretending it was yours. But that would fall far short of what I understand by financial success. And you would soon weary of the attentions you received by such pretense.

When Fear is a guest at the banquet the host does not eat with a hearty appetite. When Dread walks arm in arm with one, Happiness and Contentment are always on the other side of the street. It is a mighty truth that to hold riches which belong to another is not to possess the treasure, but it is to be possessed by it.

Yes, "pull" is another back stairway which seems to promise a way into the House of Success. In fact, the almost universal belief that one may quickly and safely sneak up to the inner room by the back stairs of Pull and Influence, is the principal reason why the steps to the front door are never crowded.

The man who, on his way to the main entrance, slips his arm through yours with a cheery, "Going up, brother? Fine! So am I—come along and we will go in together"—well, that is different.

True—One may sometimes gain the second story by the back stairs of Pull. Professional porch climbers accomplish the same end. But no one could, with reason, contend that because the porch climber was in the house he was at home.

One who gains a position by Pull, [illegible] always [illegible] to [illegible] him to the [illegible] Such an intruder may snatch a few pieces of silver, or bag a handful of jewels before being forced to vacate, but that is all. To feel comfortably and happily at home in the House of Success, one must be a welcome and honored guest.

Another thing which cannot be done is to gain a welcome in the House of Success by coming up the back stairs of Credit.

No, I am not referring to the various methods of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

Some of us seem always to be [illegible] mental reservations. Pay day comes around, and when our reservations are [illegible] there is nothing left for those we owe but a current excuse [illegible].

Make no mistake, you can't bunco Life indefinitely.

And never mind if the world sometimes forgets to give the credit which is your due. Be thankful that you are not charged with what you owe.

No one ever yet gained the inner room in the House of Success by the back stairs. The front way of the house is never barred. Better go in that way, or stay out.

EMPIRE THEATER, NEWARK

Billy Watson retired from burlesque several years ago but the management of the Empire Theater have prevailed upon him to return to the stage for one week only with his Chicken Trust company in the old reliable comedy "Krousmeyer's Alley." Watson will have his old side partner, Billy "Grogan" Spencer, Jules Jacobs, Kitty Howard, Billy Hart, Jule LaPorte, Rae Keith, Dorothy Fuller and the famous Chicken Trust chorus. An extra added attraction will be "The Great Richards," called the physical marvel of the age. He is said to withstand body blows without having been knocked off his feet. Five hundred dollars will be given to any man who can upset him with a [illegible] punch. The usual boxing [illegible] will be held Thursday night.

LOEW'S STATE THEATER, NEWARK

"Napoleon," the epic French film produced by the General Society of Films and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which comes to Loew's State Theater, Newark, on Monday is the first French picture "all star cast" ever to be made. It is not a sound picture.

Ruth Harrison and Alex Fisher head the new vaudeville bill in a musical offering called the "Whirl of Youth," wherein Claire Willis and Alene Hoove are featured with a cast of twelve distinguished artists. Others on the bill will include Amith and Allman, Victor recording artists in "Left Is Right"; Vox and Walters, ventriloquists; Baby Rose Marie, four-year-old song bird; The Karoll Brothers, acrobatics.

SHUBERT THEATER, NEWARK

Since he last played in Newark, Howard Thurston, magician extraordinary and illusionist par excellence, who opens at the Shubert Theater tonight has added a score of new illusions to his carte de jour. The most startling of the new effects is the "Mystery of the Whippet." A real automobile, with ten pretty girls as passengers, is flipped out of existence with a wave of the necromancer's hand. And this, too, on a fully lighted stage. Another new illusion, bearing the charmingly apt title of "The Moth and the Flame," is really a fantastic pantomime with more than a coupon of mystery.

Among the new illusions this season are "The Magic Box Revue" a magical-musical act in which the chorus of pretty young girls are garbed in the latest Parisian gowns; and "The Lady or the Lion?" a thrilling illusion of the African jungle. "The Mystery of the Blue Boxes" and "The Lady of the Swords." But the star new feature of the Thurston program this season is the debut of the magician's daughter, Jane, who will be seen in a [illegible] act with her father and a dancing act of her own. The engagement here is for one week, beginning December 17, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday at the Shubert Theater.

What It Costs to Govern Us

By PROF. M. H. HUNTER
Dept. of Economics, University of Illinois

The Tariffs of the United States

THE tariff has been an ever-recurring topic for discussion in the halls of congress, and everywhere else, for that matter. One of the first things that the first congress did was to pass a tariff bill to raise revenue and for the encouragement and protection of manufacture. The rates were low and afforded but little protection.

But few changes were made in the tariff until after the War of 1812. During the war, because of commercial disturbances, few commodities could be brought from abroad, the result of which was the development of many small, inefficient industries in this country. The influx of foreign goods after the war threatened to destroy these industries. The tariff of 1816 was used as a protective device, and this may be said to be the first tariff with distinctly a protective flavor. The protective feature was emphasized still more in the tariff of 1824 and 1828.

The tariff of 1828 was exceedingly unpopular, and was the impetus to a reaction to lower rates. These were found in the laws of 1832 and 1833. Slight increases were made in 1842, but the Walker tariff of 1846 contained the lowest rates since the beginning of the protective policy.

During the Civil war the tariff rates were considerably increased, presumably as an emergency measure, with the hope of securing the much needed revenue. In this they failed, since few goods were imported, but the stimulus given to industry was so popular that the high rates were continued. The first significant legislation was the McKinley tariff of 1890, in which the rates remained high.

President Cleveland and a Democratic congress were responsible for the Gorman-Wilson tariff in 1894. In this the rates were lowered, but not to the extent which President Cleveland desired. Many attributed the severity of the panic of 1893 to the low tariffs, which was primarily responsible for the reaction to the high Dingley tariff of 1897. Some rates were lowered and some raised in the Payne-Aldrich tariff of 1909, but the net result was little change in the level rates.

A reaction to the high rates came in the Underwood-Simmons tariff in 1913. Rates were radically reduced, but the advent of the war precludes any judgment as to industrial effects, good or bad. Soon after the war the Fordney emergency tariff was passed, presumably as a check to the agricultural depression. In 1922 congress passed the Fordney-McCumber tariff, which is now in force.

The Sales Tax

THE sales tax was first seriously considered after the World war. Many individuals thought it desirable to relieve incomes and profit from the high tax rates to which they were subject. One possible substitute which was widely advocated was a general sales tax, that is, a tax of 1 per cent upon every sale, to be paid by the one making the sale. It was claimed that this would produce an adequate revenue, was so small that the burden upon no one would be great, and consequently would offer but little incentive for evasion.

The proposal succeeded in evoking considerable discussion but was not adopted. After a lull of several years the discussion is being revived and so many are again urging the adoption of the general sales tax that its weaknesses deserve mention.

A tax upon every sale would fall with very different weight upon industries of different forms of organization. In one industry, all the processes of production, from securing the raw material to selling the finished product, may be under one ownership and management, and with a sales tax would involve but one levy.

In an industry made up of various stages, each under a different owner, involving a sale from one to the next, many taxes would be levied and the total tax burden would consequently be much greater. This unjust discrimination might tend to an inefficient reorganization of many industries and to the abolishment of middlemen.

A general sales tax would undoubtedly fall much more severely upon some types of business than upon others. The tax is upon turnover or gross sales rather than upon net receipts and in different businesses the relation between gross sales and net receipts is very different. Suppose one man to invest $50,000 in a retail jewelry business and another $50,000 in a retail grocery. In order to make a fair return on the investment the grocer will have to sell many times the volume of goods that the jeweler will have to sell, since his margin of profits is much smaller. The tax, however, would be upon the volume of sales, an unfair discrimination against the grocer.

It has been assumed that the tax will in the end rest upon the final purchaser, in which case it is a tax upon expenditure. A man with a wife and four children spends $5,000 a year in rent, food, clothing and education—necessities. A bachelor spends $5,000 a year upon cabarets, theaters and fancy clothes, yet the tax upon each will be the same.

The Cost of Government Protection

NINETY-EIGHT per cent of the federal expenditures for protection! This was the percentage reached during the World war, but of course it is not always so great. The federal government has always assumed the role of providing protection against enemies from without. This is accomplished through the maintenance of the army and navy. The item for protection occurs in the budgets of both states and cities, although it is relatively unimportant among state expenditures.

In the federal estimates for 1928, more than $700,000,000 are allowed for the War and Navy departments. Not only must the actual expenditure for the army and navy be considered as costs of defense, but [illegible] expenditures, as those for interest, pensions, and the veterans' bureau. The sum of these items makes about 85 per cent of the federal budget.

Even in our most peaceful years expenditures for protection have claimed a large share of the total. In 1870 they were over 80 per cent of the total; in 1890 more than 72 per cent. In 1890, when war was farthest from our thoughts, out of a total per capita expenditure by the federal government of $4.75 only $1.79 was for civil purposes.

The item of protection is much less in the expenditures of states than in those of cities, being less than 6 per cent of the total in states and about 25 per cent of the total in cities. The large expenditures in cities goes for the maintenance of fire and police departments. The other items, such as food inspection, weight inspection and regulation of markets are of relatively little importance. The protective services of the states are rendered in the regulation of such institutions as banks, insurance companies, public service corporations, and of the sale of such commodities as seeds, trees and fertilizers.

The expenditures of the different states for "protection" vary greatly in different parts of the United States. In the New England group the per capita expenditure is about 70 cents; in the East, South and Central group about 15 cents. In Nevada the per capita expenditure is about $1.20, while in Georgia it is a little more than 10 cents.

City expenditures for protection also vary greatly, although it is generally true that the per capita expenditures are larger as the population increases.

The Expenditures of the States

IN 1926 the 48 American states spent $1,010,234,000. This was about $9 for every man, woman and child in the states. The cost of carrying on the governments was $86,871,000, of which $5,442,000 went to the legislative branch, $41,297,000 to the executive branch, and $6,070,000 to the work of the judiciary. The most important items of expenditure under the executive branch are the collection of revenues, $21,538,000, and assessment of revenues, $6,048,000.

The protection to person and property carried by the states is made up of many activities, although the total expenditure was but $3,747,000. Some of the most important items are police, $6,754,000, militia and armories, $10,268,000; fish and game wardens, $4,796,000; regulation of financial institutions, $4,770,000; regulation of insurance companies, $3,174,000, and the regulation of public service corporations, $5,011,000.

In developing and conserving natural resources, the states spent $62,686,000. Of this, $32,144,000 went to agricultural projects, the most important of which were extension work and development of live stock. Conservation of health and sanitation took $25,340,000, the most important items in which were prevention of communicable diseases, conservation of child life, and food inspection.

For highways a total of $156,630,000 was expended, going to supervision, roads, waterways, bridges and abolition of grade crossings. The lion's share, $143,186,000, went to roads. The item next in importance after highways was for charities, hospitals and corrections, receiving a total of $178,580,000. The important items under charities with expenditures are: outdoor relief, $1,365,000; care of children, $7,571,000, and care of blind, deaf and mute, $12,017,000. The general hospitals cost the states $11,140,000; those for the insane, $77,583,000, and those for the feeble-minded, $12,040,000. Institutions for correction may be divided into those for adults, and those for minors, the former costing $34,651,000, and the latter $14,331,000.

The cost of education was by far the most important in the states' expenditures, taking $415,282,000, while recreation was relatively unimportant, receiving but $3,541,000. Of the educational costs, $5,783,000 went for supervision, $134,604,000 for state institutions, while $265,262,000 was appropriated to minor civil divisions.

The Federal Budget

BEFORE the adoption of the budget, the management of the finances of the federal government could be characterized as extremely unsystematic. Appropriation and revenue bills were drawn and modified in haphazard ways, with no correlation between them, and with no one really responsible. Millions of dollars were spent in needless federal buildings and "improving" rivers and harbors were such could scarcely be found. Secretary Glass portrayed conditions by saying that "Congress votes with a lavish hand stupendous sums, conceived in a magnificent spirit of generosity, with a view to enhancement of the prestige of the nation, or for the benefit of this or that element in the community."

Budget legislation was passed in 1921 which centralizes responsibility in the President. He must transmit the budget to congress on the first day of each regular session. This sets forth an estimate of all money needed, and all receipts for the coming year; conditions of debt; and any data which will show the financial condition of the government. He must make any recommendations which the public interest may require.

While the President is responsible the budget is originally prepared under the direction of the director of the budget. His estimates are based on a careful study of the needs of the departments. No department can request congress for an appropriation except at the request of the senate or house. In addition to preparing the budget, the law authorizes the President to require the director to make investigation in order to secure greater economy and efficiency in the public service and in the business methods of the government.

Much has been accomplished in the six years of the operation of the budget. Chairman Warren of the senate committee on appropriations said: "The budget law has demonstrated its worth. It helps separate the chaff from the grain. It gives accuracy, as well as integrity, to estimates, which results in less work on the part of congress."

The Expenditures of the Federal Government

THE TOTAL expenditures of the federal government chargeable against ordinary receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, were approximately $3,494,000,000. Had the government made a per capita distribution of this huge sum, every man, woman and child in the United States would have more than $30.

The cost of the executive office was $337,000 while the legislative establishment received about $19,300,000. Of this the senate received $2,781,000, the house, $7,597,000, the architect of the capitol $4,602,000, and the government printing office $2,569,000.

Many independent bureaus and offices exist, the total expenditure of which was $512,892,000. Some of the most important of these are: General accounting office, $3,886,000; board for vocational education, $7,254,000; interstate commerce commission, $7,434,000; United States shipping board, $13,329,000; United States veterans' bureau, $376,032,000. The expenditures for the District of Columbia were $37,757,000.

The expenditures of the Department of Agriculture were $156,279,000. The most important items here were: Forest service, $10,417,000; bureau of entomology, $6,215,000, and road construction, $82,057,000. The Department of Commerce spent $31,126,000, of which $10,046,000 went to the bureau of lighthouses. The Department of Interior spent $299,812,000, of which $36,792,000 went to the bureau of Indian affairs and $220,354,000 went to army pensions. The total expenditure for the Department of Justice was $24,758,000, while that for the Department of Labor was $9,761,000.

The Navy department spent $322,527,000, of which a large part went to the bureau of supplies, the pay of the navy alone taking $121,510,000. The bureau of aeronautics received $15,375,000, while the increase in the navy cost $38,892,000. There was a cost in the Post Office department of $27,217,000 and in the Department of State $16,514,000.

The total expenditure of the Treasury department was $280,708,000. Refunds under the internal revenue office accounted for $115,300,000 of this, while refunds under the customs service accounted for $20,801,000 more. The cost of collecting the internal revenue was $33,142,000, while the cost of collecting the customs was $17,244,000.

The total expenditure of the War department was $351,087,000. Of this sum $88,482,000 may be considered for nonmilitary purposes, such as the $62,594,000 for improving rivers. Of the military expenditures $123,559,000 went for the pay of the army, $17,625,000 for the subsistence of the army, and $16,948,000 for the air service. The amount of interest paid on the public debt was $787,794,000.

The Cost of Highways

THE annual expenditure is now well over $1,500,000,000 for construction and maintenance of roads and streets. Of this, well over $1,240,000,000 is spent on rural roads and highways.

Expenditures for highways appear in the budgets of federal, state and municipal governments. Only for education and protection is more public money spent.

No other public expenditure shows such a rapid increase in recent years as that for highways. The present total is about 15 times as great as it was 25 years ago.

The method of financing highway construction has changed greatly. Twenty-five years ago almost the entire cost was borne by the counties and townships. Today the part of the cost borne by the state and federal governments almost equals that of local units. Twenty-five years ago almost one-fourth of the entire expenditure was in the form of labor required from individuals, while the remainder came from property taxes. Now the item of labor has practically disappeared, while receipts from motor vehicle licenses, gasoline taxes, and borrowing, make up more of the total expenditures for highways than do the taxes from property. That considerable use is made of borrowing is indicated by the fact that 15 per cent of the total expenditure goes for the payment of interest on highway bonds.

At present about half the expenditure for highways is for new construction and about half for maintenance. In some states, especially in the North Central states, where highway development is being rapidly extended, the construction costs run as high as 70 per cent of the total.

In 1916 congress first authorized federal aid to the states for highway construction. In 1921 the secretary of agriculture was authorized to co-operate with state highway departments in the construction of highways. At present the annual expenditure of the federal government in extending aid to the states for highway construction is about $100,000,000. In addition to this the federal government is attempting to build a system of highways connected with the national forests.

What Puzzled Youngster

A father took his son of six years to the incubator in the cellar to see the eggs hatch.

Said dad impressively: "Isn't it queer how the little chicks get out of the shell?"

"Huh," said the youngster, "What gets me is how they get in there."—Watchman Examiner.

Turkish Women Slow to Adopt Short Skirts

Constantinople.—Turkish women are not adopting the new regulations in respect to short skirts and bobbed hair as readily as was expected. Although many a close-fitting little cloche hat and many a pair of silk stockings are seen on the streets of Constantinople, the more conservative women, both here and in the smaller towns, are resisting the innovations stubbornly.

Recently Kiazim Pasha, the president of the Angora assembly, felt the necessity of issuing a series of sharp rebukes to his countrywomen.

"To let bobbed hair grow out again," is a retrograde step, a backward movement from the way of progress. Long ago men got rid of their long locks; it is now women's turn to do the same."

The same applied to short skirts, he further stated.

"No woman today can sweep the streets with long skirts without being ridiculous. They are in no way fitted to the structure of the feminine body and I see no reason to hide the legs in a full and shapeless bundle."

Silk head scarfs also came in for their share of criticism. The pasha announced firmly that western hats were far more becoming. Scarfs were like ugly nightcaps, he asserted.

Famous Cough Prescription

Contains No Chloroform Or Other Harmful Drugs

The use of medicines containing chloroform or dope to relieve coughing is dangerous and unnecessary. Now anyone can get quick sure relief with a famous prescription called Thoxine, which contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and is safe and pleasant to take.

Thoxine is thoroughly efficient because it has a double action—soothes the irritation—goes direct to the internal cause, and stops the cough almost instantly. Far superior to cough syrups and patent medicines. Also excellent for sore throat. Quick relief guaranteed or your money back. 35c., 60c., and $1.00. Sold by Verneau's and all other good drug stores.—Adv.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS

NEW JERSEY SUPREME COURT
UNION COUNTY

In the matter of the petition of the State Highway Commission of the State of New Jersey for the condemnation of lands of Joseph W. Davis. NOTICE

TO: Joseph W. Davis and "Mary" Davis, his wife, the name "Mary" being fictitious, her proper name being unknown; State of New Jersey; the City of Rahway, a municipal corporation of New Jersey; and to whom it may concern:

Please take notice that application has been made by the State Highway Commission of the State of New Jersey to the Honorable Samuel Kalisch, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New Jersey, upon its petition, which petition has been duly filed in the office of the Clerk of Union County, for the appointment of three disinterested freeholders, residents of the County of Union, as commissioners to appraise and fix the compensation to be paid for a certain tract of land situate, lying and being in the City of Rahway, County of Union and State of New Jersey, and more particularly described as follows:

Parcel No. 21

As indicated on a certain plan filed in the office of the Clerk of Union County, showing particularly the location of the center line and right of way lines of the State Highway leading from Edgar Road, Rahway to Route No. 4 as adopted by the State Highway Commission, which plan is entitled "New Jersey State Highway Department, General Property Key Map, Route 25, Section 7, Edgar Road, Rahway to Route 4, showing existing right of way and parcels to be acquired in the City of Rahway, Union County, and Woodbridge Township, Middlesex County, March 1928," and also as shown on a plan attached to the petition filed in this cause, marked "Exhibit A."

BEGINNING at a corner of lands of Joseph W. Davis on the south and lands now or formerly of James H. Evans on the north in the existing westerly side line of Lawrence Street, distant about two hundred (200) feet from the existing southerly side line of Hancock Street and running thence (1) along said existing westerly side line of Lawrence Street, in a southerly direction, a distance of about fifty (50) feet to a corner of lands of Joseph W. Davis on the north and lands now or formerly of George Goulburn on the south; thence (2) along the dividing line between lands of Joseph W. Davis and lands now or formerly of said George Goulburn, in a westerly direction, a distance of about one hundred forty-six (146) feet to a point in the proposed northwesterly right-of-way line of State Highway Route 25, Section 7, from Edgar Road, Rahway to Route No. 4; thence (3) along said proposed right-of-way line, in a northeasterly direction, concentric with and distant fifty (50) feet radially from the proposed center line, on the arc of a curve to the right with a radius of fourteen hundred eighty-two feet and sixty-nine one-hundredths (1482.69) of a foot, a distance of about seventy six (76) feet to a point in the dividing lines between lands of Joseph W. Davis on the south and lands now or formerly of James H. Evans on the north; thence (4) along said dividing line in an easterly direction, a distance of about ninety (90) feet to the point and place of Beginning; CONTAINING one hundred thirty-six one-thousandths (0.136) of an acre, be the same more or less.

TOGETHER WITH all right, title and interest of Joseph W. Davis in and to Lawrence Street, adjacent to the above described premises.

TOGETHER WITH such slope rights as may be required for the grading of the entire one hundred (100) foot right-of-way width of said State Highway Route 25, Section 7, all as shown on said plan attached to the petition filed in this cause, marked "Exhibit A", of which lands and premises the owner of record is Joseph W. Davis, and to make such decision and award as to such commissioners so to be appointed shall seem just and proper and to do whatsoever else said commissioners are by law authorized to do in the premises.

Take further notice that an order was made by said Justice on the seventh day of December, A. D. 1928, fixing Saturday the twenty-second day of December, A. D. 1928, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at his chambers, No. 738 Broad St., in the City of Newark, County of Essex and State of New Jersey, as the time and place when said petition will be heard, at which time you should appear if you desire to be heard.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Common Council of the City of Rahway:

Section 1. That all of Riverview Terrace extending westerly from Jefferson Avenue, all of Fairview Place, extending westerly from Jefferson Avenue, that portion of Jefferson Avenue, lying northerly of the westerly extension of the division line between lands of the Rahway Cemetery and lands now or formerly of one Noel, that portion of Grand Street lying westerly of Jefferson Avenue, be and are hereby vacated.

Section 2. That this Ordinance shall take effect immediately.

$277,000 SCHOOL BONDS CITY OF RAHWAY, NEW JERSEY.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed proposals will be received by the Common Council of the City of Rahway, New Jersey, at the Common Council Chamber, 118 Main Street, in said City, on the 26th day of December, 1928, at 8 o'clock P. M., for the purchase of the following described bonds of the City of Rahway, New Jersey, to wit:

Not exceeding $277,000 par value of School Bonds, dated December 1, 1928, denomination $1,000 each, bearing interest at the rate of 4½ per centum per annum, payable semi-annually June 1 and December 1, and maturing $4,000 on December 1, in each of the years 1930 to 1939 both inclusive, $7,000 on December 1, in each of the years 1940 to 1954 both inclusive, and $8,000 on December 1, in each of the years 1955 to 1968 both inclusive.

The total amount of bonds authorized to be issued is $277,000 and bonds will be sold in an amount not exceeding said sum. The sum required to be obtained upon the sale of said bonds is $277,000. Said bonds will not be sold for less than par value and accrued interest. The right is reserved to reject all bids and any bid not complying with the terms of this notice will be rejected. Unless all bids for said bonds be rejected, said bonds will be awarded to the bidder or bidders complying with the terms of sale and offering to pay not less than such sum (namely, $277,000) and to take therefor the least amount of bonds commencing with the first maturity and stated in a multiple of $1,000, and if two or more bidders offer to take the same amount of such bonds, then the bonds will be awarded to the bidder or bidders offering to pay therefor the highest additional price. In the event that it is not necessary to sell all of the above mentioned bonds, the bonds unsold will be those of the last maturities above specified. No more bonds of said issue will be sold than will produce the sum of $277,000 and an additional sum of less than $1,000. In addition to the price bid the purchaser must pay accrued interest from the date of the bonds to the date of delivery.

Said bonds will be coupon bonds with the privilege of registration as to principal only or as to both principal and interest, and will be payable in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard weight and fineness, or its equivalent at the office of The Rahway Trust Company, Rahway, New Jersey.

Each bid must be enclosed in a sealed envelope marked on the outside "Proposal for Bonds" and addressed to John J. Hoffman, City Clerk, Rahway, New Jersey, and must be accompanied with a certified check payable to the order of the City of Rahway for two per centum of the amount of bonds bid for drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company to secure the City against any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the bonds.

Said bonds must be taken up and paid for by the purchaser at the office of the Rahway Trust Company, Rahway, New Jersey, on December 29, 1928, at 11 o'clock A. M.

The purchaser will be furnished with the approving opinion of Messrs. Clay, Dillon & Vandewater, Attorneys, of New York City without cost.

By order of the Common Council.

Dated Rahway, N. J., December 12, 1928.

JOHN J. HOFFMAN,
City Clerk.

CORPORATION NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that the following Ordinance was adopted on final reading at a regular meeting of the Common Council held duly signed by the Mayor Wednesday evening, December 12, 1928, duly signed by the Mayor.

JOHN J. HOFFMAN,
City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

An Ordinance providing for the issuance of School Bonds of the City of Rahway in the amount of $277,000, for the purpose of permanently financing the cost of the New Grover Cleveland School House and site therefor.

WHEREAS, an ordinance was duly adopted by the Common Council of the City of Rahway on the 19th day of January, 1927, appropriating the sum of $[illegible] for the purpose of [illegible] and furnishing the New Grover Cleveland School House in the First Ward of the City of Rahway and providing for the issuance of temporary notes or bonds in said amount in anticipation of either the levy or collection of taxes or of the authorization and sale of permanent bonds; and

WHEREAS, said improvement has been temporarily financed and there are now outstanding temporary obligations for such purpose in the amount of $[illegible] maturing January 2, 1929, and there are no funds available to pay the same, and it has been determined that it is necessary to raise the full amount of said appropriation, namely the sum of $277,000 to fund said temporary bonds; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Education and the Board of School Estimate have [illegible] duly certified to the governing body of the City of Rahway that it was necessary to raise the sum of $30,000 to purchase a site in the First Ward in the City of Rahway on which the new Grover Cleveland School House is being erected; and

WHEREAS, said governing body did appropriate the sum of $[illegible] for such purpose and said site has been acquired and there are now outstanding temporary obligations of the City of Rahway and maturing January 2, 1929, in the amount of $[illegible] issued for such purpose, and it is necessary to fund said temporary obligations by the issuance of permanent bonds, and therefore

THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF RAHWAY DO ORDAIN:

Section 1. That it is necessary to raise the sum of Two Hundred and Seventy-seven Thousand Dollars ($277,000) for the purpose of funding temporary school bonds of the City of Rahway in the amount of $[illegible] issued temporarily to finance the acquisition of a site and the erection and furnishing of the new Grover Cleveland School House thereon in the First Ward of the City of Rahway.

Section 2. That said amount of Two Hundred and Seventy-seven Thousand Dollars ($277,000) shall be borrowed for such purpose and the repayment of such sum together with interest thereon shall be secured by the issuance of School Bonds in the corporate name of the City of Rahway pursuant to the provisions of an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An Act to establish a thorough and efficient system of free public schools and to provide for the maintenance, support and management thereof," approved October 19, 1903, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Section 3. That said bonds shall be issued in the aggregate principal amount of Two Hundred and Seventy-seven Thousand Dollars ($277,000), in the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, numbered from one (1) to two hundred and seventy-seven (277) both inclusive, dated December 1, 1928, and maturing in numerical order as follows: [illegible] both inclusive, seven (7) bonds on December 1 in each of the years 1940 to 1954 both inclusive and eight (8) bonds on December 1 in each of the years 1955 to 1968 both inclusive.

Section 4. That said bonds shall bear interest at a rate of not exceeding five per centum per annum and the interest thereon shall be payable semi-annually June 1 and December 1 [illegible] shall be signed by the Mayor and City Treasurer and sealed with the corporate seal of the City attested by the City Clerk, and the coupons if any attached to said bonds shall be signed with the facsimile signature of the City Treasurer and said bonds shall be sold in the manner provided by law for not less than par and all other matters with respect to the issuance and form of said bonds shall be determined by resolution of the Common Council.

Section 5. The City shall in its annual tax levy raise money sufficient to pay the interest and principal of said bonds as may mature during such year.

Section 6. It is hereby determined that the period within which said bonds should mature is forty years, said improvement being hereby classified as acquiring a school site and constructing thereon a school building of fireproof construction.

Section 7. That the proceeds of sale of said permanent bonds shall be applied solely to the retirement of the temporary bonds described in the preamble of this ordinance and interest thereof.

Section 8. This ordinance shall take effect upon its passage and publication as required by law.

[illegible]
President Common Council.

Shoe Man Inherits Ancient Hammer

Fenton, Ohio.—O. S. Wilson, a South side shoe dealer of this village, owns a hammer with a history. Documentary evidence in Wilson's possession states that the hammer was first brought to this country from Scotland in 1700 by Jessy Justice, who used it in the construction of some of Philadelphia's early frame buildings. At Justice's death the hammer was bequeathed to his son and, descending from one generation to the next, it eventually came into its present owner's possession about one month ago. The handle, undoubtedly made from a hickory sapling, was placed in the hammer 83 years ago.

Old and Popular Song

The song "The Old Oaken Bucket" was written by Samuel Woodworth in 1817, and first published under the title "The Bucket." The air is an adaptation by Frederick Smith of Kiallmark's music, which was composed for Moore's "Araby's Daughter."

Kiddies' Evening Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

A Blue Tongue

"Well," said the Blue-Tongued Lizard, "I look very much like a small white snake.

"I have a blue tongue and of my blue tongue I could talk a great deal.

"I have always been proud of my blue tongue. I have always been so pleased that I had a blue tongue.

"I would hate to have a red tongue. So commonplace. Just think! If a doctor came to me and said:

"'Please put out your tongue!' how proud I would be to put out my beautiful blue tongue.

"In fact I am so proud of it that I will do it without asking; that is, I will do it of my own free will and just as they say, without anyone urging me to do so.

"And I am glad that I have been named after my tongue, for that is unusual.

"Few creatures are named after their tongues. In fact, I don't know that I can think of any at this moment."

"To be named after one's tongue is splendid; that is, if one is a blue tongued lizard and is proud of the fact."

"Yes," said the Salamander, "you are something unusual and to be named after a tongue is something which doesn't very often happen.

"Yes," said the Salamander, "You Are Something Unusual."

"Thank you, Blue Tongued Lizard. I have enjoyed my talk with you immensely."

And the Blue Tongued Lizard was very proud, and he felt he was quite nicely received at the zoo.

Right at the start he had been noticed, and now the Salamander had heard his story.

The Salamander had seemed to like his story, too, and after all, why not?

It was an interesting story and an unusual story. It was not every one in the world who could tell a story about the color of their tongue and how they were named after it.

Of course maybe most creatures would not care to be named after a tongue, but as the animals so often said, it was all according to the point of view.

For instance, a little girl might not care to be named, "Little Red Tongued Girl."

But oh, the Blue Tongued Lizard was so very proud of his name, and he liked the color of his body, too.

He thought it was fine to look like a small white snake.

And as long as he was pleased it was quite all right. Later the Salamander talked and told his story so they knew pretty well about each other and their family ways and habits, and why they had been brought to the zoo.

National Greetings

The equivalent national greetings of some other countries to the English "How do you do?" are interesting. Translated they are:

French—How do you carry yourself?
German—How do you find yourself?
Swedish—How can you?
Dutch—How do you fare?
Italian—How do you stand?
Spanish—Go with God, senor.
Russian—How do you live on?
Egyptian—How do you perspire?
Polish—How do you have yourself?
Arabian—Thank God, how are you?
Persian—May thy shadow never grow less.

Didn't Ask Twice

Billy was to attend his first party and had been carefully warned by his mother not to ask for a second helping of anything, and Billy readily agreed. When he returned from the party he was bubbling with enthusiasm.

"O, mother, we had the mostest stuff to—. I had two pieces of cake and two dishes of ice cream, and—"

"Why, Billy!" cried his mother, shocked. "Didn't I tell you not to ask for anything twice?"

"O, mother, I didn't ask for anything twice," he answered proudly. "They gave me the first serving, and I just asked for the second."

U. S. Trails England in Shipbuilding Race

London.—American competition in shipbuilding, the greatest menace to British supremacy between 1916 and 1920, has now ceased to exist, in the opinion of British investors. With a general depression on, which makes it a real trial of competitive strength, England is building 20 times as many ocean-going vessels as the United States and 50 per cent more than all continental countries put together.

Within the last few weeks British shipbuilders have secured contracts from the United States, Norway, Sweden, France, Spain, Canada, Argentina and Chile. One firm on the Tyne has booked the biggest order on record, that of ten ships for Canada.

BOY SCOUT HEROES GIVE THEIR LIVES FOR OTHERS

Families Awarded Gold Medals for Youths Who Made the Supreme Sacrifice.

New York.—In attempting rescues of drowning persons three Boy Scout heroes made the supreme sacrifice, it was announced at the national offices of the Boy Scouts of America in New York, through the Boy Scout national court of honor, of which Daniel Carter Beard is chairman.

The three scout heroes whose lives were lost were Guy Atwood Ruggles of Tecumseh, Okla.; Curtis Larsen of Warren, Pa., and Charles McKnett of Huntington Park, Calif.

Awards of gold honor medals to the parents of these three boys and to seven other scouts who endangered their lives in making rescues were made by the national court of honor. Certificates of heroism also were issued to many scouts whose scout training made it possible to save the lives of others without grave danger to themselves.

Scout Ruggles was drowned June 16, 1928, in rescuing Miss Jewell Caler of Lindsay, Okla., from a treacherous stream near David, Okla. Ruggles, a life scout, twenty-one years old, became exhausted and sank after getting Miss Caler to shallow water.

Sacrificing his own life in a successful effort to save his younger sister, Scout Curtis Maxwell Larsen, thirteen, of Troop No. 4, Warren, Pa., was drowned in the Allegheny river at Big Bend on July 16, 1927. The scout was rowing a boat in which were also two of his sisters. The younger fell overboard. Scout Larsen, an inexperienced swimmer, nevertheless dove into the water and brought his sister to the boat. He sank and drowned.

Scout Charles Edward McKnett, twelve, of Troop No. 17, Huntington Park, Calif., attempted to rescue his younger brother, Robert, nine, from a deep pool below the falls of Fish canyon in the San Bernardino mountains, on June 3, 1928. The McKnett family, consisting of the father and mother and three boys, were on a picnic at Fish canyon. One of the boys, Robert, plunged into the pool and Charles and a younger brother arrived. Robert was seized with cramps and sank. Charles directed a still younger brother to run for help and leaped in. He could not break the drowning grip of his brother and was pulled to the bottom.

Afghan King Builds a New Capital City

London.—The new Afghan capital city, Darlahman, which will replace old Kabul, is nearing completion on modern and completely western lines, say Afghan newspapers reaching here. Amanullah, who recently visited European countries, is ambitious of transplanting western ideas, culture and methods of living to his mountain kingdom.

The nucleus of the new city is the official quarter. This will consist of a modern palace, equipped with the latest facilities, and a number of huge government buildings which will house all state departments.

"Big Money" Finds Profit on Small Personal Loans

New York.—"Big money" which long has turned a cold shoulder to "little money," apparently has opened its eyes to the fact that the collection of a few dollars here and a few more there makes a sum quite worthy of consideration.

That may explain the sudden growth in the number and resources of companies loaning funds to wage earners. One concern alone is planning to put out $50,000,000 in such loans next year, and there are dozens of others ready to do a similarly extensive business. Then there are numerous banks inviting the borrowing of small but necessary sums on good collateral.

Much of the small-loan business, however, probably will be done by companies making loans under the uniform small-loan law affecting sums below $300. With interest rates on personal loans averaging 3 per cent a month, millions of dollars passing over their counters, such companies evidently see a good opportunity to turn little money into big without undue risk.

Students Ban "Spying" in Honor Examinations

Austin, Texas.—University of Texas students decree they are not their brothers' keepers in the matter of honesty in examinations.

By vote of the student body the "spy" clause of the pledge of honor, which has been in operation since 1893, has been abolished.

The honor system now is based on a declaration by the student that he or she has neither given nor received aid on examinations and certain written work.

That part of the pledge in which the student said he had not seen others giving or receiving aid was struck out by 1,100 votes of the 1,494 cast in the referendum of the question.

Deepest Well Produces Scientific Data, Not Oil

Titusville, Pa.—Three years to the day after the well was spudded at LaMont, a few miles south of Kane, the deep test well of the United Natural Gas company is 7,007 feet deep. This makes it the deepest ten-inch well in the world, but so far the well has produced nothing but scientific data.

The well was drilled for that purpose, however, and consequently the backers are not disappointed over the failure to make a strike. Rumors are current that if any trouble develops in the future drilling operations will stop.

GLOZEL ANOTHER HISTORIC FAKE

French "Discovery" Takes Place Among Other Attempts to Fool Public.

New York.—Last winter French public opinion was shaken to its foundations, in a way difficult for Americans to understand, by the announcement that discoveries at the little village of Glozel, near Vichy, in the valley of the Loire, had proved the existence of man in a high state of civilization in fabulously prehistoric times. Now the Glozel excitement is probably over. Those who believed that the mellowness of French culture rests on a foundation thousands instead of hundreds of years old will have to look elsewhere for their evidence. Glozel probably will take its place among the scientific fakes which from time to time engage the popular attention, says the New York Times.

Not long ago France was divided into Glozelites and anti-Glozelites. Ugly rumors of deception began to be heard. Objects said to have been picked up in the Glozel pits were found to be crude forgeries. The Glozelites replied that these objects had been planted by members of the opposition in an effort to discredit the discoveries. Finally the French government took a hand and M. Bayle of the judiciary police was sent to make a thorough examination. M. Bayle was a good detective, though not an archeologist. His report, rendered a few days ago, has apparently punctured the Glozel bubble.

M. Bayle selected ten objects at random from the Glozel museum. The evidence of modern manufacture was overwhelming. A bit of grass embedded in a supposedly ancient piece of earthenware was found under the microscope to have all its cells intact—something that could hardly have happened had it been thousands of years underground. Bits of thread in other pieces of pottery had been colored with aniline dyes, which were not used prior to the Twentieth century. Bone instruments still had gelatinous matter in the marrow. Inscriptions probably had been made with modern steel instruments.

Fakes like Glozel have been common and have usually been momentarily successful. Readers of Mark Twain will remember the "petrific man" whom he reported having been dug up near Virginia City, Nev.

An Unintentional Hoax.

This story, first published in the Virginia City Enterprise, on which Mark Twain was then a reporter, contained a detailed description of the position in which the supposed body had been found which, had it been carefully read, would have revealed the hoax. Nevertheless, it went far and caused great excitement.

Almost as ludicrous, though in this case seriously intended as a fraud, was the so-called Cardiff giant, dug up at Cardiff, Onondaga county, New York, about the middle of the last century. This strange object was found by a man who was digging a well for a certain Mr. Newell. It was a huge figure, which might have been either a statue or a petrified human body, lying on its side and contorted as though in great pain. The thrifty Mr. Newell placed the remains, if such they were, on exhibition, and charged an admission fee to the thousands who came to see them. He even succeeded in interesting P. T. Barnum, who was, in fact, accused of having initiated the whole enterprise. His advertisements, more clever than truthful, made it appear that the leading scientific men of the day had testified to the genuineness of the find.

As a matter of fact the Cardiff giant was a pure fake. The plan had been originated by Newell's brother-in-law, George Hull of Binghamton. Hull bought a block of gypsum at Fort Dodge, Iowa, had it carved by a German stonecutter in Chicago, and then planted it on the Newell farm. The strained position which aroused so much sympathy was due to the fact that the stone had broken in transit, so that the original design had to be contracted within a smaller space. The stonecutter had done a good job with a steel hammer, putting in pores and other body marks very industriously.

Perpetual Motion.

Many famous hoaxes have had to do with machines supposed to defy the law of conservation of energy by producing perpetual motion. One of the first of these was perpetrated by a man named Redheffer in Philadelphia about 1812. Redheffer announced that he had solved the problem of making a machine that would run forever. He was taken so seriously that the Pennsylvania legislature nominated a commission of distinguished engineers to inspect his invention.

The story is told by Prof. Daniel W. Hering in his "Foibles and Fallacies of Science." When the commission arrived on the scene at the appointed hour they found Redheffer absent and the doors locked, but were able to inspect the apparatus through a barred window. They suspected fraud, but were not able to gather final proof. Later the machine was taken to New York, where Robert Fulton, listening to the click of the cogs, made the discovery that it was being driven, like a steam engine, by reciprocatory motion. Fulton investigated and found that the motion came from a catgut cord, operated something like the driving mechanism of a modern dentist's drill. The cord led through a wooden support to an upper room where an old man with a long white beard sat patiently turning a crank. The machine was destroyed by a mob, which for once resented being fooled.

Keely's Famous Motor.

The most practical perpetual motion machine in American history was that of John W. Keely, which deceived not only the public but some of Keely's closest friends for about twenty-five years. Keely was a Philadelphia carpenter, uneducated, but shrewd and with a convincing tongue. He invented a "vibratory generator," though it had several other names in the course of its long history.

In 1872 he organized the Keely Motor company in New York city and took in enough capital to keep him going for a long time. His machine was first demonstrated in 1874.

The inventor was full of the most high-sounding theories, some of which, as Professor Hering points out, actually anticipated the modern notions of the powers imprisoned in the atom. He pretended to believe that in some mysterious way he could recombine the constituents of the atom and so release vast stores of power.

For twenty years Keely's motor seemed always on the point to be coming a complete success. Some little thing was always lacking and more money was always needed. Many of his supporters finally lost faith in him, yet interest in the motor continued, and he seems never to have been completely out of funds. His laboratory was never thoroughly examined until after his death. Then it was found that the whole apparatus was a fraud. His "atomic energy" came from an engine in the cellar.

Transmutation of Metals.

The transmutation of metals has been the source of hoaxes and delusions almost as old as history. This was long supposed to be the principal occupation of the chemists, or alchemists, of the Middle ages, some of whom solemnly claimed to have achieved it. The delusion died hard—so hard that it lasted to a time when it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that it can be transformed into accomplished fact. The feat is a simple matter of knocking electrons out of atoms—simple, that is to say, though not so easy yet to do.

A favorite form of scientific hoax—if the adjective can be used at all in this connection—has to do with attempts to predict the future. So we find that there are, and always have been, astrologers. Even now intelligent persons may be found who believe that the movements of the stars have very much to do with the destinies of human individuals. But this can scarcely be called a hoax, since it has never rested upon claims which a trained scientist would accept.

If one attempts to list hoaxes and delusions one soon finds oneself involved in a history of human chicanery and credulity. In this field belong many marvelous "cures" for the evils which afflict the human race, all the way from "touching for the King's evil" to uttering Doctor Coue's famous phrase about the daily improvement of one's health. Blue glass, X-rays, hypnotism, bloodless surgery and countless other methods and devices have been put to both legitimate and illegitimate uses and it is often hard to tell where science leaves off and charlatanism begins.

All that is sure is that anyone who attempts to fool the public in an interesting and sufficiently ingenious way, whether he digs up a prehistoric bean pot, invents a perpetual motion machine or produces an infallible cure for hay fever, can count on a following.

Austria Will Publish Her Side of World War

Prague, Czechoslovakia.—To set the world clear on Austria-Hungary's part in the World war, the Austrian war department has decided to issue an official history of the war, in six large volumes, called "Austria-Hungary's Last War."

Historians, military experts and others are now completing the first volume and it will be put on the market before Christmas. The history will describe the country's part in the war from a strategic rather than from a political standpoint.

The heroism and self-sacrifice of Austro-Hungarian soldiers and officers on all fronts will be featured. America's entry into the war, which spelled the end of Austro-Hungarian effort, will be treated in a special chapter.

Chinese Put Limit on Prices of Wives

Shanghai.—China's marriage market is getting back to normalcy. Mothers may no longer place exorbitant prices on marriageable daughters. The Nationalist government has set a maximum of $150 to be charged future sons-in-law and $100 if the bride has been formerly married.

Whales Have Largest Brain, Says German

Hamburg.—The fishes had an inning at the German Congress of Natural Sciences here when the whale was declared the only mammal entitled to the record of possessing the largest brain.

Prof. S. Weygandt, a Hamburg neurologist, confuted a prevalent belief that the largest brain claim is shared by whales, elephants and the man. As a matter of fact, he said, only the whale justified the claim, the largest whale ever caught having a brain weighing 7,000 grams. The human brain seldom exceeds an average weight of 1,230 to 1,580 grams in the male and 1,140 to 1,340 in the female.

His Fortunate Accident

By DUFORD JENNE

ELSIE was busy in her flower garden at the left of the house when she heard the deep hum of a powerful car down the road. She looked up just in time to hear a sharp explosion.

She stood a moment in stunned horror; then, calling her father who was busy in the barn, she went swiftly to the wrecked car.

Her first frightened glance revealed the form of a young man seemingly pinned down by the wreckage, and unconscious. Then her father arrived on the scene and drew the quiet figure with its oddly twisted leg from the tangle of metal.

"Phone Doc Ferguson, lass," her father said hastily. "I guess he has a case here. I can get him into the house alone."

She hurried to the house and the telephone and sent her message. Then, in the guest room, she made ready for the unknown visitor.

Hardly had her father laid his burden down gently when Doctor Ferguson's car came roaring up the driveway, and soon the gray, veteran physician of the hills was at work, and she was assisting him. Under the doctor's ministrations, the hurt man's eyes opened. Elsie, looking on, saw that they were dark—and a swift thought raced through her mind: "He is downright handsome!" and vanished as the doctor sent her downstairs for towels.

She had other errands after that—and then came the startling news. Doctor Ferguson, his work finished, was going to his car, and he called her.

"Elsie, that young man up there is Don Freeman, the son of old 'Jed' Freeman—and you know how your dad hates him! The boy should not be moved with that injured leg, and he knows how your father feels; so he wants to be known as Dick Harris while he is here, see? It was his idea that only he and I should be in the secret, but I think you should know."

Elsie stood in silence, hardly believing her ears. Upstairs was the son of the man who in a lumber deal had cheated her father out of money that was rightfully his—a loss that had embittered him and made him in his older years a hard-working weary farmer.

It was an odd and a difficult situation. At first, Elsie was cold of heart toward him, but his eyes were so dark and boyish, and his ways so gentle, that she found she could not maintain her attitude of cool reserve. As the days went, she could not escape evidence of his quick pleasure as she came into the room.

She kept the secret well, and her father, worried with the work on the hill farm, did not pry into the situation, being content with her mere statement that her patient was progressing.

The badly wrenched leg responded to treatment, and one day "Harris" said in his quick, boyish way: "Elsie, I'm going before long—and I hate to go!"

She paused suddenly. The cold shock of his words went through her. He was to go, of course, she thought, but— She did no more thinking until alone that night in her room; and then came realization.

"He is going out of my life," she thought, "and—and I don't want him to!" She went on to the inevitable conclusion: "It can't be that I am in love with him—the son of the man who—but I do! I do!"

The week that followed was a trying one. She tried to obey the sharp warning of her mind, but her heart was too full.

Then the evening of evenings came. They were on the porch looking out into the warm, singing June night. He caught her hand suddenly, and the thrill of it made her tremble.

"Elsie, I have something to tell you." His pleasant voice was tender with emotion. "From the moment I opened my eyes and saw you, even in those moments of pain, I knew that you were the girl I would want. I want you—and for always! When I leave—"

Her heart was telling her over and over again, "You love him! You know you do!" And her will gave way. "I love you, too, but, Don, I—"

He started. "You know my name! And in spite of what it meant you—you—sweetheart!"

He drew her face to his, and his kiss on her lips brought her to surrender.

Out of the blur of her emotions reality came at a spoken word. "Elsie!" in her father's voice.

He stood, tall and dark, in the twilight of the porch. Fear, anger and foreboding, whirled through her heart; but his voice was gentle as he went on to speak:

"So this is the way the land lies. Well, I guess it is all O. K. I just looked at my mail, and there was a letter from 'Jed' Freeman, saying that his son was at my house, that the boy had been investigating the grounds of my claim, and that he had recommended the claim be paid in full." He waved something in his hand. "And here's the check, young man. I oughtn't to say it, but I'm kinda glad you got wrecked out there."

Don's cheery voice interrupted. "Don't worry! I'm glad I was. So that makes two."

"And so am I," Elsie said with a hint of happy tears in her voice; "so that makes three!"

Came Back This Time

Brentwood, N. H.—The cat comes back, but so does the pig. Not long ago Ray Pike sold a young pig to a man who lives two miles away. The pig was put in a bag and carried to his new home, which was a perfectly good one, but the little pig was not contented. He got out of his pen, traveled about a bit and in two days was back in his old pen. He showed all sorts of affection when he saw his mother, and she was just about as glad to see him, which is not always the case when pigs are separated for even a short time.

2ND REPORTS SHOW Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN IS GAINING GROUND

Two Divisions Have Secured More Than 100 Renewals And New Memberships

Second reports in the annual membership campaign of the Rahway Y. M. C. A. made last night brought the total for the campaign up to 117. Frank C. Hitchcock, general, and the division leaders, Maurice Chaillet and Charles B. Harding, expressed satisfaction. The final reports will be made Friday night.

First reports made Friday night in the membership drive showed ninety-seven new memberships and renewals.

Holiday Program

Plans for the general holiday program at the "Y" were announced complete by General Secretary Chalmers Reed. The program this year will be unusual in that it will take in every department. The social committee will have a meeting this Friday evening when details for the winter program will be gone over.

The Endurance Bowling Tournament will open Saturday and will be the first of the holiday activities. The tournament will continue over Monday and close on Christmas Day. There will be no league bowling during the holiday period, the alleys to remain open. There are twenty-one entries already in for the endurance tournament including J. Pickens, F. Walker, C. Wiles, J. Schmidt, J. Cassio, [illegible] Hoffman, C. Crowell, W. Hedeman, [illegible] Lamphear, H. Durmer, M. Cha[illegible], [illegible] Ray Smith, M. Cassio, R. Ka[illegible], [illegible] H. Martin, E. Tandy, A. Re[illegible], [illegible] D. Thorn, [illegible] Paterson, [illegible] Smith and A. Prietz. Entries will close Friday night.

On December 27, the headpin tournament will start, to continue throughout the week, closing New Year's afternoon. Bert Hasbrouck, the new social secretary, has charge of the bowling program for the week.

In the physical department, Physical Director William M. Will[illegible] has a number of important events, chief among which will be three big basketball contests in a period of seven days. The handball tournament which has been going along nicely will be carried on, a number of matches remaining to be played. The gym and pool will remain open during the holiday week.

The boys' department has what will probably be the feature event of the year, the Camp Wawayanda reunion, which will be held at the Rahway Association on December 27 with 250 boys from all parts of the State. The kiddies Christmas party will be held Monday afternoon, December 24.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will hold its monthly meeting this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with President, Mrs. F. H. Roberts, Jr., presiding. The "Y" will observe Open House on New Year's Day and the Ladies Auxiliary will be asked to serve refreshments.

The regular weekly meetings are being carried out, including the Hi-Y dinner tomorrow night and [illegible] Fellowship dinner, December 2[illegible].

Pair Held On Charges Of Girls, 10 and 12

William Irving, 22 years old, who gets about in a wheel chair and who gave his address as 8[illegible] Livingston street, Elizabeth, was held for the action of the Grand Jury by Judge Fayette N. Talley in Police Court last night on charges of lewdness and carrying concealed weapons. Also held for the action of Grand Jury was Herbert Coon, 21 years old, of 37 Delaware street, Elizabeth, who was employed by Irving to push his chair. Coon was charged with carrying concealed weapon.

The pair were arrested Sunday evening in company with two girls, 10 and 12, on the sidewalk in a secluded spot in Elizabeth avenue, across the street from the Miller & Hoff lumber yard. Captain Thompson made the arrest after receiving a tip from two men.

When searched Coon was found to have a loaded 38 caliber revolver in his pocket, while Irving, the cripple, had a blackjack and police whistle in his possession. Coon declared the revolver belonged to Irving.

The pair were taken to police headquarters and placed in cells while Captain Thompson took written statements from the two girls, who were crying bitterly and said they wanted to go home but Irving wouldn't let them. One of the girls had seventy cents and the other six cents while Irving had a dollar bill in his hand, the police say, when arrested.

HARD SCHEDULE FOR LOCAL "Y" CAGERS

Will Tackle Newark Tonight Penn A. C. and Wacs Later

With a string of seven straight victories to their credit the Rahway "Y" cagers enter upon one of the hardest parts of their strenuous schedule this week when they are called upon to face three strong opponents.

Tonight the team will play at the Newark Y. M. C. A. It will be recalled that these two teams met in the final game of the State Tournament last year and Rahway emerged victorious by one basket.

Thursday evening Rahway will receive its big chance when the team will journey to Philadelphia to meet the famous Penn Athletic club. This club always boasts one of the strongest outfits in the East and should Rahway succeed in annexing this game it will mean quite a lot to the team. The team will leave the "Y" at 6.15 p. m.

Saturday evening the second game of the series between the Warinanco A. C. will be played. The first game played November 16 at Moose Hall went to the Wacs by one point after a battle that had the fans on edge throughout. The game this Saturday promises to be a repetition and a large crowd of rooters will be on hand to cheer both teams on.

The Rahway team displayed its best form of the season last Saturday when the Valley A. A. was beaten. Time and time again seemingly impossible plays were made that brought the packed house to its feet. With this brand of ball being put up by the team and with the good support being give by the fans the greatest year in the history of the institution is looked for.

Harry Orr, captain, put up one of his best exhibitions of the year and right now is in top form and he is bound to make plenty of trouble for Johnny Miller's Wacs.

In the preliminary game the Warinanco Jay Vees will meet the Rahway Reserves and the Rahway team is also out for revenge after the licking handed of them when they appeared at Moose Hall recently.

DELEGATES ATTEND

Three delegates from Rahway City Circle, No. 11, Lady Foresters, the Hospital Bed Fund Association meeting at Jersey City Saturday night were Mrs. John Crosby, Mrs. W. H. Branney and Mrs. Edward J. Best, the latter State custodian of flags. The circle will have a Christmas party on December 28 in charge of Mrs. Frank Murray and members of the good and welfare committee. Deputy Mrs. Elizabeth Stillwell, of New Brunswick, made a short address. Special prizes were won by Mrs. Elmer Bartz and Mrs. Edward Scheuer.

SERVES ON COMMITTEE

Miss Charline Edwards, of 169 Elm avenue, is serving on the committee of arrangements for the tea dance being given this afternoon at the St. Regis in New York for the Prosperity Shop. Articles of clothing and house furnishings will be sold at the Prosperity Shop and the proceeds divided among various charities.

REPUBLICAN CLUB JOINS PROTESTERS AGAINST RAILROAD

Complains of Inadequate P.R.R. Service, Small Train Crews, Etc., Etc.

The latest organization to forward a protest to the Pennsylvania Railroad, concerning inadequate service from Rahway to New York is the Herbert C. Hoover Republican Club, which decided at the meeting Friday night to enter a complaint. In addition to the train service, the railroad will be requested by this club to improve conditions at the Milton avenue elevation where water from the tenders sometimes coats the pavement with ice. It was declared also that trains are inadequately manned, the crews not having time to open the doors for commuters in the morning.

Americanization work will be undertaken by the club through a special committee consisting of John J. Hoffman, W. T. Steele, John D'Ambrosa, Knute S. Neilsen, Chris Mortensen, R. W. Veasey, Samuel D. Love, Henry Wimmer, Charles T. Drake, John Goegle. A letter commenting on the value of this work to the Italian-Americans was read from John D'Ambrosa.

Election of officers will take place the second Friday in January and a nominating committee was named by President C. A. Ward, including Councilman S. D. Love, William S. Bendy, James T. Park, Deputy County Register W. L. B. Helmstadter, William F. Veech.

Plans to send a delegation to the organization of the Common Council on New Year's Day were made. It was reported that arrangements are under way for a dinner and entertainment for the women of the entertainment committee.

Mayor-elect Adolph Ulbrich gave an informative talk on the making of wills and handling estates. The meeting was largely attended despite the passing of the political campaign. Attention was called by several members and councilmen to the over-expenditure of improvement appropriations by the preceding Democratic administration.

Elizabeth Lodges Win At Colored Elks Ball

For having the largest delegations in the grand march at the annual ball of Rahwack Lodge, No. 673, I. B. P. O. E. of W., colored, at Franklin School Friday night, Pride of Union Lodge and their Daughter Elks Auxiliary were awarded silver loving cups. It was decided to present a special prize to the Sigma Alpha Chi of this city, for its large delegation. The Rahway lodges were ineligible to compete for the cups.

During the awarding of honors Past Exalted Ruler John J. Moore, of Pride of Union Lodge, Elizabeth, served as master of ceremonies, while Floor Manager Samuel Van Dyke, of this city, served as marshal and escort.

The local committee in charge consisted of Exalted Ruler Charles Dawson, chairman; Harold Dickerson, secretary; Sidney Archer, treasurer; Ira L. Cromwell, Edward Johnson, Daniel Edgar, William Van Cline, Chauncey J. Samuels, Andrew Crawley, Roy Osborne, Howard Vanatta, Henry White.

Music was provided by Madame Arnold's orchestra, of Perth Amboy. Delegations were present from Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Newark, Red Bank, New Brunswick, Bloomfield and elsewhere. Plainfield was the nearest competitor to Elizabeth in the cup contest.

Juniors Elect, Confer 3rd Degree, Plan Party

Conferring of the third degree and the election of officers took place last night at the meeting of Union Council, No. 31, Jr. O. U. A. M.

Officers named were: Councilor, P. F. Corey; vice-councilor, Ray E. Blakely; conductor, Harold W. Taynor; warden, Wallace R. Coriell; inside sentinel, Walter Frederickson; outside sentinel, Oscar Beers; assistant recording secretary, Joseph H. Jennings. At the next meeting, on January 1, the first and second degrees will be conferred on a group of candidates.

A committee of the Junior Club, headed by A. H. Schaefer, is making arrangements for a Christmas party for kiddies in the clubrooms on Saturday, December 29. Announcement was made that the next meeting of the Union County Councilors' Association will be held with Winfield Scott Council, of Elizabeth, January 15.

MAYOR-ELECT SPEAKS

Mayor-elect Adolph Ulbrich spoke on civic affairs at the meeting of the Rotary Club last week. Plans were made for entertaining the Rahway college boys home for the holidays at the club meeting on December 26. The club Christmas dinner will be held tomorrow.
