CLARK WOMAN BURNED BY BLAZING GASOLINE

Mrs. Geo. McIntosh Cleaning Dress Near Stove When Explosion Occurs

While cleaning a dress with a pan of gasoline, a few feet away from a gas stove, Mrs. George McIntosh, of Benjamin avenue, Clark Township, was severely burned on the arms and legs Saturday, when the gasoline exploded and sprayed her with the burning liquid.

With her clothes ablaze, Mrs. McIntosh, but the presence of mind to jump into a bathtub, turn on the water and extinguish the flames.

Neighbors notified the Clark Township firemen, and they responded quickly. A call was also sent to this city and Chief Walter H. Ritzman and Assistant Chief Joseph Mohr went to the scene. First aid was administered Mrs. McIntosh prior to the arrival of Dr. S. W. Lance.

The fire in the kitchen was put out with wet rugs. The room was considerably damaged.

Ornamental Lights Placed on Cherry St.

Ornamental lights are being erected today on Cherry street, the foundations for the fixtures being placed in concrete by a squad of Public Service employees yesterday. The underground conduits for the wires on the street were put in place many months ago and with the completion of the ornamental wooden poles will be removed from the street. The lights will be similar to those erected on Main street about two years ago.

Improved Transmission Key to Super-performance

As soon as motorists realize the term "performance" includes not only speed and acceleration but also economy, smoothness, quietness and long life, the complex problems of automotive engineering will be fully appreciated, according to N. E. Hadley, experimental engineer of the Chrysler Corporation.

"There is a marked trend in engineering circles to place the emphasis on economy and smoothness, not at the expense of speed or acceleration, but in addition to those features," Mr. Hadley said. "And by economy, we mean fuel and oil saving and long engine life. This together with smoothness were the reasons why the multi-range four-speed transmission and gear shift was designed by Chrysler engineers for the Imperial, "77" and "70".

"It is generally conceded that doubling the speed of any car without shifting gears results in four times as many destructive forces in the engine. Destructive forces are the pressures that cause wear exerted on moving parts such as pistons, connecting rods, valves, etc. A saving of 600 revolutions a minute in engine speed often cuts destructive forces in half, and vastly increases engine life.

"Transmissions in motor cars regulate the relation or ratio of engine speed to road speed. Chrysler four-speed transmissions provide a relatively slow engine speed for high car speed due to the fourth gear which means quieter and smoother operation and longer engine life. The rear-end gear noise is absent in fast driving, and owners are clear of possible the high speed registered on the speedometer, because of the quiet engine.

"In the Chrysler transmission, the third gear is for noiseless acceleration. And the four-speed design is for smoothness and economy.

"Actually, there is approximately only 10 to 15 miles an hour difference in the top speed available with these two gears, 66 miles an hour in second gear being possible in third. But there is a striking difference in smoothness and quietness when the driver shifts from one to the other. This is recognized as similar to the difference in the sensation of producing the same tone on a violin in third-speed transmissions."

Poisoned Oats Found and Eaten by Horses

Metropolis, Nev.—Squirrels, carnivorous, and a horse's natural desire for oats resulted in John Blake losing his best work team and a good saddle horse. The three animals were turned loose on a load of hay under which were three sacks of poisoned oats, procured for eradication of squirrels and gophers. Blake had forgotten about the oats when a thunderstorm broke through the sacks, and the oats worked so effectively on them as they were supposed to do on gophers and squirrels.

197 RECEIVE CERTIFICATES AT EIGHTH GRADE PROMOTION

Many Prizes Awarded at Exercises Wednesday Night; 1930 Class Shows Increase of 37 Over Last Year

An Eighth Grade class of 197, the largest in the history of the Rahway Public Schools, was presented with diplomas at the Eighth Grade Promotion Exercises Wednesday night at the Franklin School. More than 800 persons crowded the auditorium of the school for the exercises despite the intense heat. Superintendent William F. Little, in presenting the class for promotion, told of the amazing growth of the local schools since he became head fourteen years ago, saying that there were only 84 Eighth Grade graduates in 1917 compared with the more than twice that number this year. The 1930 class shows an increase of 37 over last year when 160 were graduated.

A meritorious commencement address was made by Edward D. Cray, personnel director of the Wall street Branch of the New York Y. M. C. A. His subject was "Five Milestones on the Highway of Life." These, he said, were: Being Physically Fit, Educationally Trained, Industriously Efficient, Morally Sound, and Unselfish Service for Others.

After the presentation of the promotion certificates by Frank W. Kidd, president of the Board of Education, Superintendent Little awarded the various prizes. These were: The Frank M. Silliman Prize of $10 for the highest average in the class was won by Vivian Gerber with a mark of 92 percent. Pettit Prize of $7.50 for second highest average, Robert Bunn, 95 percent; "A Friend Prize" of $5 for the third highest average, Margaret Lewis, 91.5 percent; Engelman Prize of $10, highest average in history, Robert Bunn, 93 percent; Rotary Prize of $5, Theodore Lewis, 91 percent; Rotary Club Prize of $5 for best essay on citizenship, Virginia Conner, 88 percent.

Essay Prize of $5, William Arbuckle; Rahway Library Association Reading Prize of $5, Virginia Conner; Book Worm Contest, First Prize of $5, Pauline Warga, Second Prize, $2.50, Harry Van Pelt, Third Prize, $2.50, Virginia Conner.

These awards disclosed an unusual condition of last 3 one-half percent standing in the three highest general averages in the class.

The graduation exercises were interspersed with delightful musical selections under the direction of Miss Margaret Gilbert. The graduates marched in to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance" played by the Eighth Grade Orchestra and Chorus, and they responded quickly. A call was also sent to this city and Chief Walter H. Ritzman and Assistant Chief Joseph Mohr went to the scene. First aid was administered Mrs. McIntosh prior to the arrival of Dr. S. W. Lance.

The fire in the kitchen was put out with wet rugs. The room was considerably damaged.

Chevrolet Trucks Daily Climb to Top Pikes Peak

Colorado Springs, Col., June 16—A concrete example of the tremendous strides made by automotive engineers toward the goal of mechanical perfection in the modern motor car is provided here daily on the Pikes Peak highway.

A few years ago, a car that would scale the Peak was a "freak" type feature throughout the country, while today, thanks to the automotive engineer, a car's ability to perform ably and satisfactory in the thin rarefied air and on the long steep ascents of the Peak is taken more or less for granted.

Despite a penalty—improved highway up the Peak, the long continuous climb and the high altitude which tend to make a hot radiator and an engine too hot to take the grade, provide one of the severest tests in America of the mechanical condition of a car.

Even more outstanding than the performance of those tourist cars and sedans which make the single trip up the steep incline is the record of a fleet of trucks used to maintain the highway in constant repair. Every day such service includes three Chevrolet trucks which are almost daily up in the region above the cloud levels.

Recently the fleet has been used to haul away huge mountains of snow to prepare the highway for the tourist season. With the snow cleared away, the fleet will continue to daily service doing whatever maintenance and repair work on the highway is necessary.

The Chevrolets used in this work have been in operation for more than a year. Then the cars are operating today with the same degree of economy and dependability on a year ago is a fitting tribute to the achievements in those engineers who work quietly behind the scenes in the interest of improved performance at lower cost.

French Used by Royalty

English was not habitually used in society or writing by the English king until Henry V's reign, 350 years after the Norman conquest, from research by Professor Wright.

Fifteenth century still wrote in French, and Chaucer's court at London, as shown by a letter in the British museum.

CAPT. JAMES THOMPSON

WANT CAPT. THOMPSON FOR CHIEF OF POLICE

Friends Cite Record As Qualifications For the Important Job

Another aspirant entered the already crowded field for the appointment of chief of police yesterday when friends of Captain James Thompson, of 14 Westfield avenue, announced that they would make every effort to name him permanent head of the department which has been without a chief since the death of John A. Smith last January.

At the present time the department is being efficiently run by Acting Captain Edward W. Stewart, but several attempts to have him given the permanent appointment have been blocked in the Council although Mayor Adolph Ulbrich, the name of Captain James Albert has also been placed before the Council which has also failed to recognize his good record and a deadlock ensued when—none of—these—has been taken. Trustee Sergeant George McIntyre is another applicant and is believed to be the choice of the Republican mayoralty candidate Alfred C. Brooks.

Captain Thompson's friends say that he has been in the department longer than what he has been stricken from the eligible list and was appointed a chairman on November 10, 1896. He has served as a member of the ballistary day he was named a patrolman. The late Mayor Thomas A. Fyffe made Thompson a captain on the force years ago, but was then regular chief detective under Mayor Frederick W. Martin.

Thompson's friends cite his outstanding record of accomplishments as his qualifications for the position. Their statement setting forth his record follows:

He was on the uptown post for five years. At one period during that time a fireman was taken ill while on duty and Thompson was ordered to drive the fire, but the former councilman came back in the second district 165 votes to Miller's 35. Thompson won by a margin of 130 votes.

An unexpected contest developed in the First Ward with A. J. McCoy being unexpectedly opposed by Bernard J. McGough for the Democratic councilmanic nomination. The Exalter Ruler of Elks won, however, by a margin of 25 votes, polling 47 votes to McGough's 44. Neither name was on the ballot.

The balloting in the Second Ward also proved interesting because of the entrance of Arthur F. Love, vice-president of the Rawlin Community Club, who made an eleventh hour decision to run for council as an independent. He received excellent support despite the fact his name was not on the ballot. He polled 16 votes, 3 Republican in the first district, and 13 Republican and 7 Democratic votes in the second district. Councilman Charles Schaefer, Republican, polled a vote of 246 in the ward. On the Democratic ticket Charles Ward Meyers resigned as treasurer and Edward Trussell was elected to fill the vacancy. President Schnabel, vice-president Arthur P. Love and secretary Edward J. Stokes were in charge of the meeting.

Many Awards Presented At Closing H. S. Assembly

The closing exercises at the Rahway High School were held in the auditorium of the school Wednesday morning at which all the awards for the year were made including the presentation of class, attendance ribbons, athletic awards, emblems and awards of the various clubs of the high school orchestra and the commercial awards.

The principal address was made by Principal Eugene G. Blesch. The annual contest among the Senior Class filling out and the Senior Class filing in the vacant seats were carried out. A new feature in the closing meeting was a large key by the Senior Class to the Junior Class. This will be an annual event.

The final assembly program was as follows: Processional, Senior Class; Invocation, Rev. Virgil Langdon; Address of Welcome, Robert Bunn; Class Song, Senior Class; Address, Principal Eugene G. MAN WHO STOLE MILLION IS FREE

R. J. Thomson, Liberated From Prison, Will Start Over Again.

Austin, Minn.—Runsome J. (Cy) Thomson, the former beer baron who made millions and made good, is out of prison.

Cy served eight and one-half years for embezzling $1,180,000 from one of the largest packing plants in southern Minnesota. Good behavior, plus short a 15-day vacation, ended now Cy is starting out again.

Leaving the farm where he was "growed" to get a job in the George A. Hormel company packing plant. He worked a while there and then went to business college to study bookkeeping. Returning he went to George A. Hormel, the president, and said: "I am back to make good and I want a job."

Started at $12 a Week.

He got the job and started out at $12 a week. To boost his weekly income he sold ground-mung-ola, 2,500 members of the plant. Using personality and ability to work hard, Cy soon was made the position of counselor of the packing company, holding the confidence of every one of the officials.

He needed $5 once and so took the company's money and then, despite his ability as a bookkeeper, he was unable to put the money back in the company without attracting the attention of the officials, so he took more. Within about eight years the new more than a million, all the time completely covering his operations with a series of checkwriting. He would draw on a bank in Birmingham and to cover that check would draw on St. Paul and to cover that would draw on Chicago and so on. He always had a stock of checks on hand so auditors couldn't check properly—they just took Cy's word that the money was in transit, feeling that it was not impossible. And Cy was a trusted employee.

Began to Splurge.

Before long Cy started to splurge. He had been left a 20-acre farm at La Crescent, not far from Austin and he started to develop this into a country ranch. He added other farms. He spent money like a trooper. Five thousand dollars to him was like five cents to a street urchin. In spending Cy found pleasure. In being a good fellow he found friends and Cy became Austin's outstanding Babbitt.

Even after he confessed to the embezzlement of more than a million dollars his friends stuck by him. Somehow to them it just didn't seem possible that Cy was a thief. And, then was the element of taking money from a capitalist.

Cy became the visionary on the farms he was developing. They had to be modern in every respect. And to be modern cost money. Cy spent $100,000 for one rooster to lead the flock of Oakdale farms. On another dairy farm he had electric lights to keep the cows cool. Vacuum cleaners to keep them clean. A powerful fan that drove flies into a corridor at the end of which was a screen door to lock them up, saved the cows a lot of energy. After the flies were "penned up" they were given a good dose of insecticide.

Club Rooms for "Hands."

For hired hands on his farms he had modern clubrooms. One featured a music room, liberty and billiard room. The bedroom rooms were the best to be bought.

On the Oakdale farm at Le Roy Cy even built a $10,000 children's barn. On the ranch a special fire department was kept on duty. Cy even had a veterinary physician and surgeon to care for the ailing members of the flock which numbered 20,000.

In Austin Cy built apartment houses and other big business properties. His diversified interests made it necessary to maintain an office downtown in which more than a dozen girls were employed. Once he needed a hotel to care for the many visitors coming to see his chicken ranch. "Build one," he ordered his manager. In a short time the hotel was completed and opened. This speed mania for doing things brought Thomson the name of "Cyclone," which friends shortened to Cy.

Down on the ranch Cy built an expensive dance hall. To make it outstanding he brought in some decorators from the Hippodrome in New York and they finished it up.

Rents Farm for Parking.

Another time Cy staged a mammoth celebration to show off his farm. Newspapers and magazines sent special writers for the event. And where only a crowd of 10,000 had been expected, 40,000 showed up. So great was the rush that in order to care for the cars that came Cy told one of his assistants to rent 60 acres of land adjoining the farm and turn it into a parking space. This he did. The 40 acres was packed with cars.

Hat makers have proposed a law that will make the wearing of a hat obligatory. Budapest—recent—fine—if—such—a—law passed they will wear their old hats.

Timer Are Changing; Boy Asks Farm Job

Terrell, Neb.—The times are changing, according to former Governor Morehead, David Lacy, "The other day a young man approached me and asked if I would hire him on a farm. I told him I knew many who were looking for jobs."

Tut! Tut! Egypt Loves Mother-in-Law

Cairo, Egypt—The famous bust of Queen Nefertiti, the mother-in-law of King Tut-Ankh-Amen, which recently has been exposed in the Berlin state museum, will journey back to Egypt. By exchange the Germans confiscated recently in Egypt will exchange other objects for the prized relic.

WORLD WAR HAS COST US $51,400,000,000 GROSS

Interest on Debt Will Run for Twenty Years, Says Treasury Department.

Washington.—The World war and its aftermath cost the United States approximately the gross sum of $51,400,000,000, according to figures compiled by the Treasury department.

The country is paying about $1,102,000,000 this year as a result of the war. Included in this sum is interest on the public debt and provision for the retirement sphere of the veterans' bureau, war risk insurance and compensation and the settlement of the claims of German and other former enemy aliens for seized property.

War costs and the annual bill for national defense cause about 80 per cent of all government expenditures. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, these expenditures amounted to $2,361,000,000. Individual taxes—less than three cents would be greater this year than last because of the increasing expenses of the veterans' bureau, the War department and the navy.

Including the present "value" of the war debts due to the United States from foreign powers $7,470,000,000, so-called war assets amount to $3,004,587,000. Some of these materials, other items and war assets brought the net cost of the war to the United States to $37,373,960,000 up to June 30, 1927.

Of the costs of war which will continue for years to come interest on the war debt will cause the greatest outlay. Up to June 30 last, the interest payment had been $8,748,088,000. This will decrease as the public debt is retired but there will be an important item of expenditure for at least 20 years.

Care of the veterans of the World war will cost the government $3,524,564,000 up to last June. The largest single item was in military and naval compensation, which amounted to $1,180,481,000. Other items were $500,000,000 for the adjusted service certificate fund, $903,085,000 for military and naval insurance, $402,000,000 for vocational rehabilitation and $250,463,000 for hospital facilities.

The War department's expenditure for the fiscal years 1917 to 1921, covering the period of actual conflict and the years of readjustment was $16,850,000,000, of which $8,873,420,000 was for army supplies, $2,310,350,000 for pay and $3,203,470,000 for armament of fortifications. The Emergency Fleet corporation spent $3,316,100,000. Operation of transportation system cost the government $2,747,872,000.

Eskimo Spitz Decides Own Case in Court

Cambridge, Mass.—An Eskimo spitz, heirhound and perfumed for the occasion, appeared in District court here and decided its own case.

Attorney J. Clark contended that the spitz was his dog Teddy, Mrs. Annie L. Ward claimed it was her dog Prince.

Judge John M. Maloney ordered three members of the Clark family and three members of the Ward family to line up on opposite sides of the courtroom. Then the fluffy white object of litigation was turned loose.

The Clarks shouted "come Teddy" and the Wards coaxed with cries of "come Prince."

The beast to the Clarks, then to the Wards, then back to the Clarks.

Members of the Ward family became hysterical when the judge ordered them to surrender the spitz to Clark and refused to do so until court had threatened to impose heavy fines on them. They said they would carry the case to the civil courts.

New England Doctors, Past 90, Still Practice

Boston.—New England has at least six family doctors who are still practicing despite the fact that they have passed the age of ninety years.

This was revealed in a recent survey undertaken by the New England Medical Center fund.

The nonagenarian physicians are: Dr. Francis Wayland Adams, ninety, Boylston, Vt.; Dr. George W. Gale, ninety-three, East Saugus; Dr. Hermon M. Hoyt, ninety-one, Middlebury, Vt.; Dr. Chester M. Perrin, ninety-three, Burlington, Vt.; Dr. Abner O. Shaw, ninety-three, Portland, Maine, and Dr. Ara M. Pulpe, ninety-four, Woonsocket, R. I.

It was also discovered that in New England there are at least eighty-seven 90ff family doctors ranging in age from seventy-one to ninety-seven years, two of whom are women.

Swarm of Bees Puts Automobile Into Ditch

Union, S. C.—A swarm of angry bees put an automobile carrying eight passengers into a ten-foot ditch. The only injuries sustained were painful bee stings.

The car struck something that apparently flew into a thousand different parts, buzzing, crawling and stinging. It was a swarm of bees crossing the highway.

DISCOVERS FIVE "BUGS" IN FRUIT WHICH AID HEALTH

Little Family of Germs Gives Human Body Vitamins We Must Have.

Norfolk, Va.—Five little germs—"a family of five"—discovered in fruits and vegetables such as apples, figs, oranges, beets, potatoes and turnips—germs that aid health instead of infecting poison into the human body, have startled the scientific world. The discovery was made by Quincy C. Tucker, laboratory assistant of the United States naval hospital corps school, Portsmouth, Va.

The United States Department of Agriculture has no name for the germs and had never heard of them until the discovery made by Mr. Tucker, who is an expert on germs.

These germs, according to Mr. Tucker, are vital to life. Unlike others, they "impart" health and strength to the human body.

"They are good germs, the kind we must have if we are to live," he said. "This family of five will be added to the human body vitamins that we must have. If it were not for these germs the human race would be poisoned and would soon fall to exist.

The family consists of five types of true germ cells, and are in the form of "germ vegetables." These are about two micrones in size. They resemble the ordinary germ, but causes disease.

"We consume them every time we eat certain fruits and vegetables. "These germs are easily isolated from a ripe apple in this manner: Sterilize the skin of the apple with 70 per cent alcohol, then flame the skin in a Bunsen, but not enough to cook the apple; then with a knife sterilized by flaming red flame cut the apple through the thickness just not to the core. From the cut surface of the apple obtain the juice in amount of serum and tissue. Place it on a sterilized glass slide; to this add a drop of distilled water; cover with a sterile glass slip and examine under high dry power of an ordinary three objective microscope.

"At first the germs are difficult to detect, but watch constantly as they develop and within 30 minutes from the time you locate the field you will detect the germ cells in active motion. Yes will see the germs grow and multiply in about eight-to-twelve-hours.

"They resist any amount of heat and cold.

"Apples and figs found to contain this family of cells were preserved in the ordinary way. The germs keep their action when sealed in a can, remain dormant until the can is opened, and then recover life and renew multiplying. There are millions of them in potatoes, apples, peaches, oranges and figs. We found them also in beets, and we believe they can be found in cabbage and perhaps squash."

He Flies Distance of 675,000 Miles

Paris.—The French aviator, Charles Corsin, commercial pilot for the Air Union, has rounded out the equivalent of his twenty-eighthtrip around the world.

He has had the unusual record of flying 6,017 hours, a total distance of 675,000 miles, and has carried 10,500 passengers, all without the slightest accident. His record is believed unique in the history of aviation.

She Fails to Get Auto for Her Unbobbed Hair

Detroit, Mich.—The glory and beauty of Mrs. F. A. Wickert's unbobbed hair will have to be, like mortal, their own reward. Mrs. Wickert, whose home is in Lincoln Park, had heard that Henry Ford, who likes the old fashioned things, would give one of his automobiles to any woman who had not cut or bobbed her hair by 1930. Mrs. Wickert hadn't, and she wrote a twenty-word newspaper asking for instructions on how to get her car. The paper answered, telling her the story was just another myth.

Old Newspaper Comics Bee Sells for $2,000

Seattle.—Merchants in the Orient, short of wrapping paper last year, purchased thousands of tons of old editions of New York, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia newspapers. Almost overnight a new industry was born. Enterprising dealers sorted through the papers and salvaged all the rotogravure and comic sections. These, bound in attractive Chinese covers, are being sold to large cities over there.

Mayor Boess of Berlin Is Fired After Scandal

Berlin.—Because his wife accepted a fur coat from the Silberch brothers at a "rock bottom bargain price" Ernst Boess, chief burgomaster of Berlin, was removed from office and his legal pension of $7,500 was cut to $5,000 by the Prussian interior ministry, it was learned today.

The court ruled that it could not prove that Herr Boess was involved in the graft scandals which shook Berlin recently, when the three Silberch brothers were arrested on charges of defrauding the city of Berlin. However, it censured him for "grave negligence" in the reports of untrustworthiness of the brothers' business associates, which, the court said, was "incompatible with the ideals of honor and respectability demanded by the high post entrusted to the mayor of the German capital."

Herr Boess was to the United States when the graft scandal broke and failed to reply to cables requesting him to return. The court found this ample proof of his lack of responsibility.

The court granted Herr Boess a pension of $5,000 instead of the $7,500 promised by his contract. Herr Boess plans to appeal to the Supreme court.

NOTED PSYCHOLOGIST SPEAKS AT BANQUET

Ten New Jersey cities were represented, including New Brunswick, Rahway, Orange, Elizabeth, Princeton, Trenton, Morristown, Plainfield, Westfield, Plainfield and Newark.

Mrs. Greschen, a former teacher in the Western Reserve, is herself admirable talk, told of her study of psychology at the University of Vienna where she studied last year and will return for further research on September 1. She spoke on the modern and long something of how each individual can help in the present trying and sensitive phase of human experience.

The first great principle is that all normal childhood develops according to definite laws of evolution, Mrs. Greenberg said. "That this development can be divided into phases which are marked by definite boundaries and significant characteristics," she explained. She said that the child at all-times is concerned with great fields of experience, the material or objective world and the social world or people. That the child's reaction to these two spheres is always positive depending always on his mastery of the situation." She spoke at length on this last principle.

"If we said that the child activities are always directed toward two great spheres—the material and social objects," the speaker continued. "Then we would be greatly related and always interdependent and we can trace the development, too, the tendency to find expression in both. That is, the young person of this age needs human contact as he needs to use material in a material way. These needs are equally valuable and salient and neither is to be underestimated. No human life is complete without a means of expression in both. When either is removed of course, the child suffers exaggerated importance and we have a psychopathic case.

"Besides this great need of human contact, or friendship there is a second great need in life-work. Every child must have work to do as long as we have either one or two hands. When both hands are removed, then hope dies, and we call persons. The child wherever wants work. He wants to do a real job—not trifles. He longs to show his ability, to prove himself. Only he finds it so difficult, often impossible, to choose alone.

"Study your child from every standpoint. His ability, his general intelligence, aptitudes," Mrs. Greenberg told her audience. "But do not forget you must also consider what he wants to do. If we cultivate and the wish are identical, then your problem is direct and simple. If not, then you must study the matter carefully and decide whether the child's desire is so strong that it is worth attending to. And that is not easy.

"I have tried to tell you this evening that adolescence is the last phase in the regular developmental growth of human beings. That includes all the functions, powers and ability reach a certain promise of attainment. He has reached physical maturity and he is ready and anxious to get that maturity to use—to try his strength. He is mentally not fully mature but he has a tremendous drive and need to express himself in work and to feel himself a part of a social movement. We all know how very important is every influence, every stimulus, every environmental factor in the life of a child. We are being taught these days that our whole life is molded and directed by our very first stimuli. Yet I dare to say to you this evening that no matter what errors have been committed in our education each one has at adolescence, a new opportunity, another chance. For there is at this time such an abundance of vitality, such a vigor, a strength, a daring to do, that no task seems to be difficult, no achievement impossible. If you will release the Somerstone that lives you; return that love and let it grow into a beautiful devotion. And if he asks you about work, study him—hard—and give your mind to helping him choose. It is all so tremendously worth-while."

The committee in charge of last evening's brilliant affair consisted of Mrs. Gertrude Heady Irving, chairman, Mrs. Minnie Bugg and Miss Susan O'Connor.

The club publicly extends its thanks to the public departments for affording protection at the dangerous intersection of East Milton avenue and Route 25.

Canada Best Customer of U. S. in Year 1929

Ottawa.—Reports of the United States Chamber of Commerce show Canada to have been the best customer of the United States in 1929 for the second consecutive year as well as the distributor of foreign products in the country. The reports show that Canada's purchases from the United States amounted to nearly $1,500,000,000, or over one-tenth of the total, exceeding those of 1928 by $33,783,000. The United Kingdom held second place with exports at $677,990,000 from the United States. Imports from Canada amounted to $500,000,000, or a gain of $14,000,000 over 1928. Japan came second in value of exports to the States for the year's volume being $431,000,000.

THREE ROTARIANS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Next Year's Program Discussed By Directors at Meeting This Noon

Announcement was made today that the Rahway Rotary Club would have the distinction of having three representatives at the silver anniversary convention of Rotary International which opens in Chicago on Monday and continues through Friday. The delegates will be President-elect Frederick Almstedt, Secretary H. T. McClintock and Frank Johnson, who will leave tomorrow evening on one of the two special trains chartered for the New Jersey representatives.

A special luncheon conference of the Board of Directors was held this noon at the Silver View Tea Room. Matters having to do with the policy and program of the club for the coming season were discussed at this meeting.

Vice-president Almstedt presided at the luncheon meeting Wednesday noon at the Rahway Woman's Club, with Mr. McClintock as secretary. With one or two slight exceptions, there will be no special programs in connection with the luncheons until September. There were three visitors, John Breckenridge and Andrew Keyes from the Woodbridge Club, and Harry Van Dorcver, of Westfield.

High School Year Book Memorial to Students

The Allegaroster, the Rahway High School year book is very fittingly dedicated this year to the memory of Ethan Allen, Kenneth Heckman, Charles Sallo, Ernestine Hamill and Yolanda Biddar, members of the high school who met an untimely death last September.

It is a volume of which the students and faculty can well be proud. The set-up is excellent, containing as it does some excellent articles, pictures and timely data. It is in several sections, the seniors, other classes, drama, sports, organizations, literature, alumni and patrons all receiving due consideration.

The senior section contains the history and prophesy and a photograph and write-up of each individual in the class. There are group pictures of the lower classes scenes from the class plays, pictures of the teams, one of which is the state championship basketball team.

"Tremendous strides have been taken during the past four years by the High School and the Allegroster is a fair sample of what the town may expect from it in the future. It must be perused to be appreciated.

V.F.W. AUXILIARY MEETS

The Ladies' Auxiliary to Melvey-Dilmore Post, No. 681, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held its regular meeting last night in the Roberts building. Mrs. Elizabeth Britt, president, and Mrs. Marion Bergen, secretary, were in charge.

A delegation to attend the encampment to be held at Camden June 26, 27 and 28, was chosen. They are: Mrs. Mary Britt, Mrs. Margaret Dilmars, Mrs. Mary Nolan, Mrs. Marion Bergen.

In celebration of the anniversary of the founding of the unit which will be July 2 plans were made for an old-fashioned picnic on Sunday, July 6th. The members will be taken to Holmetta in private cars.

The large hairs on either side of a cat's face are called "technically they are known as "vibrissae." Their cusps are provided delicate nerve endings of touch, thus enabling the animal to find its way through dark, narrow passages.

May Succeed Hughes As World Court Judge

James Brown Scott, president of the American Institute of International Law, is said to have been picked as successor to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes as American judge on the Permanent Court of International Justice. Scott is reported as having been already nominated by the Cuban committee. The nine-year term on the bench of the World Court begins in January, 1931.

MASS OF SEAWEED PILED ON 300 MILES OF TEXAS COAST

Believed to Have Been Set Adrift by Submarine Disturbance in South.

Point Isabel, Texas.—An unexplained phenomenon has caused the shore of the Gulf of Mexico, from Point Isabel to within 25 miles of the mouth of the Rio Grande river, near Tampico, more than 300 miles, to be piled up with almost a solid mass of seaweed. The influx of seaweed started the latter part of April and every incoming tide adds to its enormous volume.

In many places the shore is piled four to six feet high with the substance growth, and in some localities it has formed veritable floating islands in the shallow waters off shore. The debris has not only temporarily ruined surf bathing at Boca Chico, near Point Isabel, but has become the breeding place of myriads of flies and other insects.

It is the theory of persons who are acquainted with the whims of the ocean that the seaweed was set adrift by a submarine disturbance along the coast of Central America or South America, and that it has drifted across the Gulf. There is much discussion as to whether the seaweed has any commercial value. There are perhaps hundreds of thousands of tons available along the 300-mile stretch where it has accumulated.

Jilted Girl Hangs Self in Church as Rival Weds

Bekescsaba, Hungary.—As revenge on a man who jilted her, Anna Seefrion, a Bekescsaba girl, hanged herself from the balcony of the church in which the unfaithful lover was being married to another girl. Her body and a note explaining the reasons for killing herself were discovered by the wedding guests as they left the church.

Lessening Grief

Grief is no far from relieving a loss that it makes it greater; but the way to lessen it is by comparison with others' losses.—William Wycherly.

LACK OF CONTESTS RESULTS IN LIGHT VOTE

PRESENT INCUMBENTS RE-ELECTED IN CLARK

Thompson and Flamm Are Again Honored by the Voters in Township

Clark Township voters recently piloted the efficiency and service of Township Committeeman Thomas Thompson, Republican, and Tax Collector Samuel Flamm, Republican, and County Committeeman George Holland, Republican, at the Primary Election Tuesday and renominated them.

The local ballot caused more excitement and enthusiasm than did the Senatorial and Congressional contests. The highest vote was polled for Freeholder Holland who ran ahead of the Assembly ticket.

Thompson won over Thomas Tingley, Republican, by a vote of 109 to 62, and Flamm defeated Martin Seidel, Republican, 136 to 42. Mrs. Helen Albrecht, Republican, was given 138 votes to Holland's 158.

The result of the balloting was as follows:

Assemblyman—Muir, Rep., 155; Hand, Rep., 155; Ward, Rep., 152; Otto, Rep., 151; Ackerman, Dem., 19; Weltchek, Dem., 17; Maher, Dem., 13; Faul, Dem., 18.

Township Committee—Thompson, Rep., 109; Tingley, Rep., 62; W. E. Myrick, Dem., 16.

Tax collector — Flamm, Rep., 136; Seidel, Rep., 42; Theodore Lang, Jr., Dem., 19.

County Committee—George Holland, Sr., Rep., 155; Mrs. Helen Albrecht, Rep., 138; Edward Van Arsdale, Dem., 17; Mrs. Sadie Kolb, Dem., 12. There were 194 Republican and twenty Democratic votes cast.

K. OF C. GIVES FIRST DEGREE

A busy meeting of Kalaxy Council, No. 1145, Knights of Columbus, was held Tuesday night in St. Mary's School. An exemplification of the first degree took place and several members were initiated.

Refreshments were served in the clubhouse, Elm avenue, following the meeting. The social committee reported that plans for the "Old Timers" night were progressing rapidly and an elaborate program is being arranged. Frederick Haberle, Jr., is in charge of the committee on arrangements.

FOUR KNOCKOUTS FEATURE V.F.W. BOXING SHOW; RAMBLERS LEAD BY WIDE MARGIN

Initial Bouts Last Night Attracts Crowd of 300

Billy Van Kline Kayooes Opponent, While Callarni Gets Draw; Final Bout Over in Four Seconds

The initial attempt of the Mulvey- Gilmars Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, to stage a series of boxing shows at Hirsch's Open Air Arena, corner St. George and Westfield avenues, was made last night and turned out to be a complete success.

More than 300 Rahway fight fans filled the arena before the scheduled time for bouts to start. The fights in themselves were full of action and certainly worth the price of admission. In the final bout of the evening, Jack Green, 138, Rahway, opposed Jack McGregor, 266, Elizabeth, but, not for long. The sound of the opening bell had hardly reached the ears of those seated in the last row, when the fight ended.

Green came out of his corner looking confident, and met McGregor in the center of the ring. McGregor shifted to his left, Green blocked and with a quick right cross laid the Bridgeworker flatfooted on the canvas. Only four seconds had elapsed since the fight began.

Billy Van Cline K.O.'s Al Pino

Billy Van Cline, 135, Rahway, hit Al Pino, 120, Newark, so hard in the same round that it took nearly two full minutes to bring the Newark boy back to consciousness.

Van Cline, who is reputed to possess a left hook that is usually curtains for his opponents, proved this fact conclusively in both rounds of the battle.

In the first round the fighters met in the center of the ring and for the first minute exchanged blows with terrific speed and regularity. Then Pino left an opening at his midsection and the Milton terror took advantage of it, by planting a left hook to the solar plexus that put him down for the count of nine.

From that time on the fight was one-sided. Van Cline hit Pino with lefts and rights at will. However, the Newarker was a clever defensive fighter and managed to keep the blows being showered on him away from the vitals. He came out of the second round drew to a conclusion he looked tired and considerably the worse for wear.

Round two was a regular fight to spill the time it ended. Both fighters were striving for a knockout and paying little attention to blocking. As Pino led with a left jab, Van Cline clipped him with a left hook to the chin that lifted him off his feet and dropped him down with a resounding thud on the back of his head.

Carmen Callarni Gets Draw

The other Rahway boy to appear on the card was Carmen Callarni, 160, and after four rounds of a hot battle against Kid Cadillac, 160, Roselle, was awarded a draw by referee Harry Coplan.

Callarni, a tall boy with a long reach, showed a lot more boxing ability than did his opponent. Cadillac, a powerful fighter, was nearly a foot shorter than the Rahway boy, and, in the first round, in the third round when he allowed Callarni to poke him four times in succession without striking back. The Cadillac scored but one blow that could be remembered by these on the ringside. Round one was a draw. Cadillac scored the only knockdown and twenty two minutes and twenty-five seconds of the second round.

Other bouts:

Billy Van Cline, 135, colored, Rahway, kayoed Al Pino, 120, Newark, after two minutes and twenty seconds of the second round.

Carmen Callarni, 160, Rahway, fought to a draw with Kid Cadillac, 160, Roselle.

Billy Duffy, 148, Newark, kayoed Joe White, 146, Newark, after one minute and thirty seconds of fighting in the first round.

Jimmy Jerry, 140, Newark, was awarded a decision by Referee Lawlor over Al Gray of Elizabeth, 141, Newark. The fight was extremely fast one. The boys were of the evening. The fighters were scrapping all the time. The first rounds were an even battle, but Sidello showed all the aggressiveness in the final two rounds.

Joe Rizzi, 139, Cranford, won a technical knockout over Mike Red, 140, Cliffwood, in the second round after he had beaten him so conclusively that the referee stopped the fight.

Jimmy Jerry, 140, Newark, won a decision over Al Gray of Elizabeth, in the only uninteresting bout

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHT RESULTS

Final Bout—Jack Green, 138, colored, Westfield, kayoed Jack McGregor, 266, Elizabeth, after 4 seconds of fighting in the first round.

Other Bouts

Billy Van Cline, 135, colored, Rahway, kayoed Al Pino, 120, Newark, after two minutes and twenty seconds of the second round.

Carmen Callarni, 160, Rahway, fought to a draw with Kid Cadillac, 160, Roselle.

Billy Duffy, 148, Newark, kayoed Joe White, 146, Newark, after one minute and thirty seconds of fighting in the first round.

Joe Rizzi, 139, Cranford, was awarded a technical knockout over Bartlow Red, 140, Cliffwood, after one minute and fifteen seconds of the second round.

Mike Sledello, 130, Cliffwood, scored a decision over Tommy Fisher, 131, Newark.

Frankie Olivo, 120, Kerry Head, kayoed Frank Cherry, 120, Cranford, after two minutes and twenty two minutes and twenty-five seconds of the second round.

Duffy Defeats White

Billy Duffy, 148, Newark, with a straight right to the stomach, put Joe White, 146, Newark, out for the count after one minute and thirty seconds of fighting in the first round. The fight, although it lasted such a short time, contained more action than any other battle of the evening. The fighters were both aggressive and willing to mix it.

Glover flew back-and-forth-faster than the eye could keep track of. Duffy concentrated his blows on White's midsection, and White kept shooting hard lefts and rights to the face and head.

The deciding blow came as White was in the act of swing a right to Duffy's chin which was exposed at the time.

Sidello and Rizzi Win

Mike Sidello, 130, Cliffwood, was awarded a decision by Referee Lawlor over Tommy Fisher, 131, Newark. The fight was an extremely fast one. The boys were evenly matched. The first two rounds were an even battle, but Sidello showed all the aggressiveness in the final two rounds.

Joe Rizzi, 139, Cranford, won a technical knockout over Bartlow Red, 140, Cliffwood, in the second round after he had beaten him so conclusively that the referee stopped the fight.

Jimmy Jerry, 140, Newark, was awarded a decision by Referee Lawlor over Al Gray of Elizabeth, 140, Elizabeth.

Carmen Callarni, 160, Rahway, fought to a draw with Kid Cadillac, 160, Roselle.

Mike Sledello, 130, Cliffwood, scored a decision over Tommy Fisher, 131, Newark.

Frankie Olivo, 120, Kerry Head, kayoed Frank Cherry, 120, Cranford, after two minutes and twenty two minutes and twenty-five seconds of the second round.

Large Entry List Assured For Fourth of July Meet

With a large entry list already received for the Fourth of July athletic carnival additional interest has been created in the affair by the acceptance of a challenge by the Rahway police to meet the firemen in a special relay at Riverside Park on the morning of July 4th.

Martin F. Gettligs, treasurer of the Elks' general committee which is arranging for the city-wide celebration on Independence Day, reports that $358 in contributions have been received during the past week, bringing the total to $628.

The fire department officially challenged the police at the meeting of the general and athletic committees Tuesday night and this challenge has been accepted by the police. It was announced today. A beautiful trophy will be provided for this special relay event and the winner of the silver cup must win it two out of three years to gain permanent possession of the trophy.

All indications point to the greatest all-day Fourth of July celebration ever staged in this city, Captain Jay Eight years ago. All the preliminary details have already been completed and with a large entry list assured all that is necessary to make the day a memorable one is perfect weather. Abe Waltz, chairman of the athletic committees, stated today that those planning to enter the track and field events should send in their entries at once as the entries will positively close at midnight on June 28, one week from tomorrow. Only entry blank appears on the sporting page in each issue of the Record.

Earl H. Winter, physical director in the Rahway schools announced at the meeting that in one school assembly this week he discussed the track meet that is every year. Only five boys stated they intended to enter the carnival. With an entry list of about thirty from the Rahway A. C. and relay teams and individuals from the many industrial plants in Rahway and vicinity, the final entry list should contain close to 200 names.

Tuesday night were Abe Waltz, Earl H. Winter, Fire Chief Walter Gu, Sitzman, Albert Jeambey, William Kay and Martin F. Gettligs.

Treasurer Gettligs stated today that the contributions list to date has been encouraging but that many hundred dollars more will be needed to make the athletic carnival, band concert and fireworks display a financial success.

Also the committee would welcome contributions from as many as possible and small contributions would be most acceptable. Contributions received during the past week were as follows:

Oars as Heirlooms

By Hardin Burnley

TWENTY-NINE years ago this June T. Gray Blagdon pulled a widely rowed No. 4 oar in a race which all but set the nation afire. Harvard, in the rowing infancy of the sport, had challenged Yale to a contest to be held on the Thames at New London. Both crews were undefeated and the race was looked forward to as the greatest event of the year.

By all the thrills ever provided in a rowing contest, the race was a thriller. Blagdon and the Yale crew "pulled" to victory by a scant length, after a nip-and-tuck battle from the moment the starting gun was fired.

Blagdon, who was coxswain of the Yale crew that beat Harvard, in the first race ever rowed between the two universities, is now a member of the Yale faculty and is coaching the present crew which will meet Harvard in the annual classic on the Thames this year.

Blagdon and Charley Whiteside, Harvard coach, are fighting hard to keep their crews undefeated this season. Both crews have won all their preliminary races and will meet for the first time in the final contest of the season.

Blagdon, Jr., a "chip of the old block," is following in the footsteps of his father and is rowing in the No. 4 position in the Yale boat. Whiteside is a former Harvard oarsman and is rated as one of the best coaches in the country.

Famous Racers Who Will Meet Sunday at Woodbridge Bowl

For the third time Fred Frame, fourth national ranking driver, and Herman Schurch, the German veteran will strive dunder-and-blitzen at the Woodbridge Board Speedway when they compete along with thirty other, big-time drivers in a program of "partner" races. The meeting will determine the superiority between the two.

Frame and Schurch have faced off against each other twice at Woodbridge—on the first occasion on the opening meet of the season. Frame won with Schurch taking second after overcoming a big lead sustained early in the race when he went into a double spin.

In their second meeting two weeks ago, the German took first place when Frame after driving strong for twenty-eight laps was forced to withdraw when his car "blew" a connecting rod.

Bob Robinson, who has been active since that last race. Frame established a new Canadian record at Toronto last week in the races held in connection with the National Shrine convention. Schurch's performance was confined to riding behind Shorty Cantlon in the 200-mile champion ship event at Altoona, Pa. When Cantlon's transmission went wrong early in the race, Schurch stepped in and drove. He took fourth, although considerable loss was sustained when two tires blew out on the last lap.

While indications are that the feature event, the twenty-five miler, will prove another duel between the pair, several other drivers give promise of changing the complexion of the race. The entry list, which closes tomorrow night, includes Billy Winn, Detroit; Bill Albertson, Swedish star, and the signing of Bob Robinson, dirt track star, assures plenty of competition for Schurch and Frame.

Others entered who are regarded seriously are Billy Wilson, Jimmy Patterson, H. B. Larrerlee, Jr., and Charlie Ganung.

After considerable dickering Ralph A. Hankinson, Woodbridge Speedway promoter, has signed "Wild Bill Cummings" sensation of the dirt tracks to ride Sunday at the half mile bowl speedway in a series of "grudge" match races. Cummings will compete against a strong field.

Up until this year riding as an "outlaw" Cummings bucn the circuit under their blue ribbon division. But upon an ousting from the association for driving in daredevil fashion made him a big attraction wherever he raced.

In his first race, a 100-mile championship event at the Kingshorse, Pa., track he took first, finishing ahead of a field that included Peterson, Shaw, Hopkins, Dalton, Litz, Jim Gleason, Fred Frame, Herman Schurch and other big-time performers.

TO ENTER PREP SCHOOL

Two graduates of the Rahway High School who have been consistently prominent in athletics will enter the Hun School at Princeton, while Ted Seidel, guard, will matriculate at the New York Military Academy.

Good Advice to Smokers

The English magazine Punch recalled with the origin of the pirate, "Learn to smoke slow. The quickest way to keep your smoke from people's faces."

1DERAN TO PLAY CANOE BROOK TEAM

Local Netsters Meet Strong Summit Combine Here Tomorrow

The Ideran Tennis team will meet the Canoe Brook team of Summit in a Northern New Jersey Tennis League Match at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the courts on Milton avenue and Pleasant street. The initial match last week was won by East Orange by a 4-to-1 score but the local netsters expect a victory tomorrow.

Captain W. Dickson Cunningham is expected to use the same team as last week although he has been considering making changes placing Newell Chase No. 3 in the singles instead of Alcott, and pairing Thomas Wier and Grant Jones in the first doubles, Last week the two were paired with Cunningham. Trained Lindsay and Alcott in the singles, and Jones and Chase, and Bob Lindsay and Leichtner in the doubles.

The visitors boast of a strong team. Christensen, Taylor and Milburn are the singles players. The first two players were members of last year's championship Summit H. S. combine. The

Ramblers Down Robins, In Extra Inning Game

One of the most unique ball games ever played in a Rahway Twilight League took place at Riverside Park Wednesday night when the Ramblers A. C. defeated the Robin A. C. by a 10 to 8 score. An extra inning was necessary to break an 8-8 tie.

For the first five and one-half innings the Ramblers played superb and errorless ball. Then three scoring happened. Three errors and a triple coupled with a single, gave the Robins four runs in the following inning they scored three more on a freak play.

The bases were loaded, one man was out and a short Texas leaguer was hit into right field. At the time Batts was playing in that section for the Ramblers. Crowell was covering second base. Both Crowell and Batts ran for the ball. The right fielder reached it first but in an effort to throw it home quickly, but Crowell, who was just behind Batts made a perfect recover it three men had scored, tieing the score. Crowell was injured in the blow he received.

In the first five games with a series of strange mishaps. Willard Batts managed to get to first base on

The same was won in the eighth inning, however when Batts managed to get to first base on

Dixie Giants Oppose Ramblers Here Tomorrow

For the attraction at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon the Ramblers have secured the Cranford Dixie Giants, considered one of the fastest teams in the league. The Dixies will have Scott pitching for them, according to Manager Jake. The Ramblers will have Bowie working on the mound with Clif Smith covering the centerfield.

Doubles will consist of Richard Bauer, Brooks, corner inning street and Russell Jones, Brooks, corner Irving street and Farrell place, and Earl H. Walter, Rahway High School.

ises in Wall street go "ivory hunting"—as they call it in seeking young men and women best fitted for the positions they have to fill. "There are openings for men from six months to two years ahead they might well avail themselves of these concerns. They find it profitable to pay these young men while they are learning in order that they might be well fitted for their position. On the highway of life it is sometimes better to be a little green like bananas, for like the fruit, a person who is a little green and is thereby willing to learn has a better market value than one who knows it all.

The third is the keystone of the business—Being Industrially Efficient. This means doing the combined work of the "engineering" the speaker declared. He told the life of Sergeant Alvin York, a famous individual hero of the World War, whose practice in hitting the mark of turkeys in the Tennessee mountains enabled him to save himself and 20 others of a German machine gun nest in the Argonne forest—not 132 Germans alone handed. "I hope a crisis will never come to you boys and girls," he said. "This will enable you to be ready for it. You will react to an opportunity to accept opportunities by unconsciously building up within yourself the reserve that will help you to meet it in success."

School—Registration 3,014

Superintendent Little in his presentation address said that every year for the past fourteen he has been before an audience and each year that it would be the largest in the history of the school. This is the first class that ever came to the platform and it is only because we have a large class to graduate in front that all the pupils could be seated on the stage. The class is—Graduate class of 314, Junior class of 346, Sophomore class of 346 and Freshman class of 346 in 1928 and reached 1650 last year. Our entire school system is 15 and 15 were in school while 55 percent were in school in 1920, 75 percent were in school in 1930. Seventy percent were in colleges in 1930 and 90 percent were in colleges in 1930."

Superintendent Little stated that the graduating class consisted of 22 pupils taking the commercial preparatory course, 32 general course and 260 commercial course. Fifty-nine pupils going to college have been awarded the Fidelity Fund Scholastic Key. Dr. Rutgers, New Jersey College for Women, University of Michigan and New Jersey College for Women each have the following: Normal School 2, nurse school 1, School of Music 1, Art School 1, Commercial field 25, positions in the city 32 enrolled in

Building for Success

Dr. Walter S. Sidere, of Washington, D. C., chairman of trustees of the National Education Association which has a membership of 200,000 and also representative of the World Federation of Education Associations, was the commencement speaker last evening. He outlined to the graduates a few principles which would help to build their lives for success.

The speaker stated that the success of the public school has been due to the fact that it has been a democratic institution in the United States, "Every boy and girl in the land has the opportunity to go to school and to college. Some of the most prominent men in the country have come from the humble homes of the world. This is the only country in the world where such opportunities are offered.

Thousands Expected at Washington's Tomb

Washington.—A constant stream of thousands of automobile tourists is expected to visit Washington in 1932 under plans being developed by the George Washington bicentennial commission.
Over the eight-month period between the anniversary of Washington's two hundredth birthday on February 22, 1932, until Thanksgiving day that year, the commission visualizes a continuous procession of tourists here. Most of them are expected also to visit Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon.
Automobile caravans of tourists are being organized in each state to send 25 separate pilgrimages to the city to which Washington gave his name. Many national conventions are expected to be held here also.

Moslem Must Give Up One Wife or Business

Budapest.—A Moslem who has two wives in his native Bosnia, but wants to become a Hungarian citizen because he has a shop in Budapest, must decide between his shop and one of his wives.
He must either give up his shop and go back to his native country, because he has overstayed his time limit, or become a Hungarian citizen and give up one of his wives. His advertisement for a Hungarian to take over one of his wives has failed.

Clairvoyants in Winter

While chipmunks hibernate during the winter, they apparently do not become dormant in most cases, like bears; rather they store up food in their burrows during the summer and subsist upon this.

HUNT CACHE OF WATER BOY KING

Afghan Officials Seek Fabulous Loot Hidden by Usurper.

London.—Up in the rock-girt mountain fastnesses behind the Afghan capital of Kabul a group of Kipling treasure is being ferreted out, as Afghan soldiers and government officials, aided by a host of hill dwellers, feverishly seek some clew that will lead them to the secret hiding place where Bacha Sekao, the ex-water carrier who usurped the throne of Afghanistan, concealed the gold and silver and other loot he acquired during the few days he was master he set on the throne of Afghanistan.
Bacha was skilled in the art of looting. There was a time when in his colorful career as a bandit he was known throughout Afghanistan as "Bacha the Terrible."
It was a title given him for the fiendish skill and ruthless ferocity he displayed wealthy victims to disgorge whatever money or valuables they possessed. Reluctance to do so was natural, but Bacha had made something of a study of tortures and had a variety of them. The examination of which quickly secured immediate compliance with his demands. Those who still hesitated to part with whatever wealth they possessed suffered horrors indescribable.

Stored Loot in Cave.

All this loot from years of banditry was stored in the caves in the Kabul mountains by Bacha when his star was in the ascendant against Amanullah. The location of the cave remained the bandit chief's closely guarded secret, for his shrewd knowledge of human nature and rapidity left him no illusions on the dangers of such a golden secret being shared.
He had selected half a dozen picked men from his band to help him secrete his treasure in a natural hiding place—a cave, the only entrance to which was a small hole in the jumble of rock barely wide enough to permit a slim man to wiggle through to a narrow junket along which it was necessary to wriggle many yards in pitch darkness before reaching the cave proper.
When the work was done Bacha, with his own hand, slew all but two of those who had helped him. To make sure of their "silence," he cynically explained to the two who were spared, a boulder was rolled to the little entrance and it would take a magician to find the treasure cave. Bacha made no map of his secret cache. The only others who knew his secret he intended to keep well under his own watchful eye.
And so he marched with his men down to Kabul to meet and defeat the hosts of the king. Since that time Bacha, the bandit chief of Kafiristan, has known that even though "the earth is full of thy riches: The glory of the Lord shall endure forever: the Lord shall rejoice in his works" (Psalms 104:24, 31).

fire alarms being sent in. Jim decided to "get them." One night he pretended to go to sleep in the lower bed in a yard at the corner of Westfield and St. George Ave. nues. Not sleeping but watching, he saw a man break the glass in the alarm box, then another man pull the signal. He caught and arrested both of them, thus ending the annoying false alarms.
"All remember the night a colored man murdered his wife on the corner of Milton avenue and Main street. Jim through his detective instinct, located the murderer at a railroad camp in Philadelphia and, with the aid of the late John A. Galatian, gathered all necessary data and left for the camp where he identified the murderer.
"Another outstanding case proving his ability was that of his solving the mystery of the Tuscan-Roberts safe-robbery. Jim, after thorough investigation, followed to New York, found the thief and recovered some antique jewelry and other valuables.
"He was detective-sergeant and chief of police once in which positions he managed all details so well that not a single error appeared in the records.
"Now acting chief under Mayor-Purcher for seventeen months during the suspension of Eschief Ramsey. He was also acting chief during the illness of the late John A. Smith. During those periods he proved his ability as a chief.
"He has repeatedly proven that he can efficiently fill any position in the police department.
"He has never had any charges preferred against him. Never suspended or reprimanded in the slightest degree.
"He is as physically strong and able as when first appointed on the force and, because of his experience and knowledge, is even more competent than ever.
"It is amazing to hear Jim tell of one of his experiences when a phone call would come in. He runs to mount his bicycle and hurry to the spot only to find some poor fellow who had been a victim of a thug but without a license.
"The action of the Police and Firemen's Pension Fund was due to Jim's influence. Jim was the first member of the force to represent the police in that body.
"He has served two terms as president of the P. B. A. Jim is a member of Elk. He was an active volunteer fireman for twelve years, now an honorary member.
"James Thompson's bravery was never more in evidence than on the night when Patrolmen Joseph Lynch and Jacob Kraus were shot and killed at 10 Main street. When he arrived there were three officers and a large crowd of people in front of the building, but no one had entered to find the gunky one. Jim rushed in, found Officer Lynch dead; officer Kraus dying; but the gunky one had fled. Jim hurried out in search of him and caught him. After words of searching he found the gun in the Rahway River, which was used in the double murder. Jim's reason for the force has a cleaner or more efficient record than is it. It would seem this such a record ought to be recognized and rewarded.
"If it is not, what incentive is there for other officers on the force to emulate his example and strive for higher honors?"

IF JOHN D. TURNS SPENDER HERE'S WHAT HE COULD DO

Writer Presents Some Dizzy Figures on the Power of Rockefeller Fortune.

New York.—A new book on John D. Rockefeller and his stupendous fortune has been published by the Institute of Public Service. It was written by William H. Allen, director of the institute.
This is what Mr. Allen says Mr. Rockefeller could do if he were to go on a spending orgy, his calculation being based on a billion-dollar fortune, whereas the Rockefeller family wealth is estimated at over two billion dollars:
"After giving away a dollar bill on 10 seconds every half-minute for ten hours a day every day of the year he would have more money than he started with."
"Had $500 a day been credited to Adam in the Garden of Eden for every day of these 6,000 years his credit account today would be less than Rockefeller's."
"It would pay 20,000,000 admissions a day for a whole year to the country's public lectures. It is $2 a minute from Christ's birth."
"If the fortune Rockefeller has given away were laid end to end in $10 bills they would reach round the earth at the equator three times without using a cent of interest. With part of the interest added the line of bills would reach to the moon."

Texas, Mexico Ranches Swapped, Sight Unseen

San Saba—Forty-eight-section ranch trades that have been made none has attracted more attention among the cattlemen of Texas than that of the even swap, sight unseen, of two ranches of 68,000 acres or dry grazing land near here for a ranch of 68,000 acres in Mexico, reported to be located within 50 miles of Mexico City.
The exchange of ranches was made by W. A. Hicks, owner of the Texas land, and E. M. Lawson, owner of the Mexican property. Both ranches are stocked with cattle, the number upon the Mexican ranch being approximately 3,000 head. It is reported that the men met in San Antonio and made the trade in a few minutes.

Potash Mines to Make America Free of Trust

Washington.—United States may become independent of the German-French potash monopoly through explorations of the Bureau of Mines in Texas and New Mexico, the department announced today.
Estimates of production cost indicate potassium sulphate can be produced at a treatment plant for approximately $16 per ton.

Fur Medicine Stains

Almost any medicine stain may be removed from linen by dipping it in alcohol, rinsing with water and placing in the sunlight.

Brothers Make Motor Trip of 18,700 Miles

Detroit.—Good road enthusiasts are the guests of a paved highway extending from the United States south through Mexico, Central America and into the South American continent will do well to consult Adam and Andrew Stoessel, famous Aires brothers, who recently completed the 18,750 mile jaunt from their home to Detroit.
The brothers, who arrived in a dusted and worn car, were two days en route.
From Buenos Aires, where they loaded their car with spare tires, extra parts, a tent, and a supply of food, the tourists passed on into Peru, and thence through Bolivia, Ecuador, and Columbia in South America, into Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador, and Guatemala. Then through the states of Mexico and into the United States.
Jim through his detective instinct, located the murderer at a railroad camp in Philadelphia and, with the aid of the late John A. Galatian, gathered all necessary data and left for the camp where he identified the murderer.

GIVEN BON VOYAGE PARTY

Miss Ruth Dean and Miss Mary Kiernan were joint hostesses at a bon voyage party for Miss Phyllis Reed, of Central avenue, on Wednesday. Luncheon was served by Miss Dean at her home, from whence the assembled company moved to Miss Kiernan's home for bridge. The motif for the decorations was, of course, ships. Prizes were won by Miss Doris Stamm and Miss Mary Furry. Gifts presented were: Mary Furry, Lillian O'Connor, Margaret Sandani, Saying "Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep," writes Shakespeare, and he got that from proverb, "Still waters run deep." Silent men, like still waters, are deep and dangerous." The Greeks said: "Dumb dogs and still waters are dangerous."

Enemy of Plant Lice

Of the wasps there are some who pack away moths, some who eat flies, some who capture leaf hoppers—and some who hunt aphids, says Miss Mabel Osgood Wright. The aphid hunters are the most numerous. They are the Pompilidae, the insidious collectors of plant lice.

New Jersey's Delegates To National 4-H Camp

NEW BRUNSWICK—Representing New Jersey's 6000 4-H Club members at the Fourth National Boys' and Girls' Club Camp at Washington, D. C., are (1) Erma Riddle, Belvidere; (2) Ida Amelia Hamont, Sparta; (3) Roger L. Merrick, Farmingdale, and (4) George A. Wheaton, Bridgeton. They were chosen in recognition of their outstanding 4-H club records. The camp dates are June 18 to 24.
The 16-year-old Ida Hummel has represented both New Jersey and Sussex County on home economics demonstration teas, and she has successfully completed 4-H club projects in food preparation, home management, and clothes-making.
Erma Riddle, another 16-year-old delegate, has carried on projects in home management and clothes-making, besides being active in club work. She is a member of the Belvidere 4-H Dairy Club, and has been active in the Belvidere 4-H Poultry Club.
Roger Wheaton, 16 years old, has earned $2,400 as a result of his club activities in the last eight years. He owns eight purebred Guernseys, which he proudly shows at fall fairs. Last year at the Bridgeton show he won $108 in prize money.

"WHERE'S EMILY?"
by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

ON the eve of her marriage to Rodney Sayre, Emily Dunne disappears. She had left her Hillside Park home, "Knollwood," to visit the hospital, but never reached there. Foul play is feared when Jim Pennington reports his wife, Pauline, and Emily's best friend, also missing. Pennington says he left his wife at the ravine, a short distance from the Dunne home. When he returned she had vanished. The police find Polly's body in the ravine.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI.

"MURDOCK and Lawlor are standing by, but I must get back. There's a deal to be done. And no doctor or anybody could get down there, you see. You know how steep and crazy it is, and maze's fifty feet deep. We've got to get the lady up, and that's a problem of itself."

"Well, Jennings, you get along, then." Lamb was alert enough now when he had something definite to do. "I'll stay with Mr. Pennington—of course, he can be of no help—he'd best keep him here for a while. You—you saw nothing of Miss Dunne?"

Rodney Sayre turned to Jennings with his haggard face still dazed at the news he had heard.

"No, sir, nothing at all. But I'll mark me Mr. Pennington before I go. You see, it's his wife—"

"Yes, yes," Lamb returned quickly. "He must be consulted, though of course he'll not be able for anything."

"That he won't. It was all Murdock could do to get down, I dunno how he'll get up again, or get the lady up."

"Is there water in the ravine?" asked Mr. Pennington now.

"No, sir, it's dry just now. It's never very wet, anyway. Can we get Mr. Pennington home?"

The three returned to the bungalow, and as Rodney sank down in silence on the sofa, Lamb went to Jim Pennington and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Bad news for you, Jim," he said, slowly, with a compassionate look.

"For me? What is it?"

"They've found Miss Pauline, and she's dead, I'm sorry to say."

"Dead! How? Let me go to her—" Jim Pennington started to rise again; but Lamb restrained him.

"No, no, he's dry just now. It's never very wet, anyway. Can we get Mr. Pennington home?"

The three returned to the bungalow, and as Rodney sank down in silence on the sofa, Lamb went to Jim Pennington and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Bad news for you, Jim," he said, slowly, with a compassionate look.

"For me? What is it?"

"They've found Miss Pauline, and she's dead, I'm sorry to say."

"Dead! How? Let me go to her—"

"Well, she did," Lamb's nerves were giving way; Jennings's lying at the bottom of the ravine, badly hurt—"

Pennington rose and his face went white.

"What have you trying to tell me? If she's at the bottom of the ravine, she's not—she hasn't—she's dead—"

"Yes," Lamb assented, glad to have the sad ordeal come to its climax at last.

"Pauline—dead—it can't be—"

All of Jim Pennington's careless, debonair, nonchalant manner fell from him like a garment. He seemed suddenly old, suddenly helpless.

Everybody in the room was intensely sorry for him, but what could be done?

It was hard to say any words of comfort or condolence to a man of Pennington's type. He was so cynical, so impatient of spoken sympathy, that any speech seemed banal.

And Rodney Sayre, though seemingly not so much by way of condoling, beat with a cry wrong from the depths of his tortured heart—

"Jim, I'd rather know where Emily is, even if she's dead, than to suffer this unbearable suspense."

"Yes, yes, so would I," Pennington returned with his quick insight. "You can't think you mean that, but it isn't true. Come, Mr. Jennings, take me to—to the place. Will somebody go with me?"

He looked round the room with a pathetic air of appeal that they never had seen in his eyes before.

"I'll go," said Pete Gibby, "I'm the best one to go. Rod, you and Lamb stay here. If there's any news of Emily—I'll come straight back and let you know."

The three men started, Gibby packing his brain to think of something to say to the man beside him.

"Don't try to help, Gibby," the other said, with understanding. "There's nothing to be said, you know. Which ravine is it?"

"The little one, sir," answered Jennings, turning his head. "Just past the Miller place."

Leaving Emily's home, the path ran picturesque, being purposely left rough and stony and lined on either side with flowing wild growths.

The Dunne house lying on a hill, the path led slightly downward, but crossed the big ravine by means of a rustic bridge.

Soon after came the Miller place, a big house, also on a sidehill. This place was between the two ravines, but what with trees and rocky spots, it was scarcely visible at night.

The stony, winding path went on, and after crossing the little ravine, passed the Pennington home.

But, of course, our two men stopped at the bridge of the little ravine, where a group of people were already gathered.

The scene was weird, for the Middleby lights were not numerous, though ordinarily sufficient.

The flashlight of the police were here and there, and there seemed to be more people coming.

The first words Gibby heard were from the lips of stolid, unmoved helper, who was saying:

"Yep, I know, but how'll we get up? Murdock's no hand to climb."

"Come away, Jim," Gibby said. "Let's go on to your house."

"See here," said Pennington, "I'm not a weakling, though I know I acted so when you first told me. I nearly went under. But the situation has to be faced, and as the boss of the ravine, badly hurt—"

Pennington rose and his face went white.

"What have you trying to tell me? If she's at the bottom of the ravine, she's not—she hasn't—she's dead—"

"Yes," Lamb assented, glad to have the sad ordeal come to its climax at last.

"Pauline—dead—it can't be—"

All of Jim Pennington's careless, debonair, nonchalant manner fell from him like a garment. He seemed suddenly old, suddenly helpless.

Everybody in the room was intensely sorry for him, but what could be done?

It was hard to say any words of comfort or condolence to a man of Pennington's type. He was so cynical, so impatient of spoken sympathy, that any speech seemed banal.

And Rodney Sayre, though seemingly not so much by way of condoling, beat with a cry wrong from the depths of his tortured heart—

"Jim, I'd rather know where Emily is, even if she's dead, than to suffer this unbearable suspense."

"Yes, yes, so would I," Pennington returned with his quick insight. "You can't think you mean that, but it isn't true. Come, Mr. Jennings, take me to—to the place. Will somebody go with me?"

He looked round the room with a pathetic air of appeal that they never had seen in his eyes before.

"I'll go," said Pete Gibby, "I'm the best one to go. Rod, you and Lamb stay here. If there's any news of Emily—I'll come straight back and let you know."

The three men started, Gibby racking his brain to think of something to say to the man beside him.

"Don't try to help, Gibby," the other said, with understanding. "There's nothing to be said, you know. Which ravine is it?"

"The little one, sir," answered Jennings, turning his head. "Just past the Miller place."

Leaving Emily's home, the path ran picturesque, being purposely left rough and stony and lined on either side with flowing wild growths.

The Dunne house lying on a hill, the path led slightly downward, but crossed the big ravine by means of a rustic bridge.

Soon after came the Miller place, a big house, also on a side-h

The Coming Fourth

The Fourth of July will soon be here. And according to the precedent set in other years, it will leave behind a toll of destroyed lives and property due to carelessness with fireworks.

Fireworks, except when used under proper conditions by experts, are a great fire hazard. Blindness, lockjaw, mangled limbs, fatal clothing burns, property damage and crippled bodies have always followed Fourth of July celebrations.

Many cities, and a few states, have prohibited the use of fireworks except in supervised public displays and under permit from the proper authorities. It is unfortunate that our time-honored manner of enjoying the Fourth must be restricted—but conditions in our modern crowded cities are such that to promiscuously allow the use of fireworks is to court injury, death and destruction of property.

Children, especially, are endangered. Not a single Fourth has passed without a tragic waste of young lives throughout the country.

Of late years Rahway has been fortunate in this respect. The restrictions thrown about the sale and use of dangerous explosives by the local authorities has materially lessened the danger to the younger generation. This is as it should be. Though this curtailment in a measure may mean the reduction in the amount of money derived from the sale of such dangerous articles, yet this small loss to local merchants in dollars and cents is greatly offset by the safety thrown around the boys and girls of our city.

Local residents should be in deep sympathy with this movement and for the sake of the younger members of the community, should work in hearty accord with the mayor, police and firemen to aid in this humane work.

Another feature and a very important one in connection with the coming Fourth of July celebration in Rahway is the proposed safe-and-sane-Fourth parade, sponsored by the local lodge of Elks, added to which heretofore a liberal response from public-spirited citizens in a financial way has made possible.

This year this movement is before our citizens. The Elks have started the "ball to rolling," while numbers of those interested in the idea of a safer display of fireworks for Rahway on the night of the Fourth, are already enrolled in the financial roster as was revealed by the publication last week in the Record of the list of contributors.

While the contributions to date are encouraging, yet if the standard of the display is to be up to that of previous years, considerably more money than is in sight will have to be subscribed. Rahway has received considerable favorable notoriety for its fireworks display of late years, and our Fourth of July Fourth has witnessed a greatly increased number gathered to enjoy the spectacle. Thousands of persons nearly congregate at Riverside, many coming for miles to witness the show.

The committee in charge of this year's celebration is working zealously to further the project, and it is hoped that proper encouragement will be given them by the citizens in general in a financial way.

In conclusion, the Record urges that our people will make the Fourth "safe and sane," and when fireworks are used by individuals that every possible precaution will be taken to guard against misadventure.

Pajama parades are getting more and more popular at shore resorts. The informality of life in the open is most enticing.

Sense-In-Nonsense

It is not recorded who declared that a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men." But whoever it was he might with equal truth have observed that a great deal of nonsense is relished any time by most men.

In business or pleasure, a laugh is as hungrily sought as anything else that may be on the program. The business of living is involved in so many worries and hardships that the trivial nonsense helps to lighten the mind.

Comedy fills the heart and serves as a tonic for many ills, and that is the reason the public has been upon the words of men like Artemus Ward, Bill Nye and Mark Twain more readily than the words of a serious-minded statesman.

People love to lose themselves in nonsense. That souls cry out for laughter. It is their antidote for sorrows and troubles. The greatest tragedies of the stage have produced some of the greatest comedy of all times.

Clever war-correspondents in satire when he recarked "There is nothing which can be spoken or written that is might not be spoken by some one of the philosophers." Did he not mean that there is sense in all nonsense?

The tornado is another hit-and-run performer that had to regard for the public.

Why High Taxes—Answer It Yourself

Between 1922 and 1928 the cost of operating all city governments of this country increased $1,316,000,000, or 26.6 percent. Since then the cost has undoubtedly continued to mount rapidly.

Here is ammunition for those who rail against the tax burden without taking definite action. The Federal government has, in the main, made a good record of economy since the war. High taxes are the result of waste, duplication of effort, government ventures into business or unnecessary extravagance in the matter of public improvements on the part of local units of government.

The much-talked-about increased cost of living and increased taxation are due to one simple cause—extravagance. We may not like to admit it, but it's a fact nevertheless—extravagance in family life and extravagance in government activity. We judge and jury in our own case and see what answer you get.

Gas scooterigers have appeared in Indiana and Illinois. Motorists have found that their automobiles simply won't run on diluted Jamaica ginger.

Mental Culture

Your intellectual power grows through use. You cannot acquire knowledge by proxy. You must store your mind with fundamental truths and work out your own mental problems. Develop a habit of clear, logical thinking of first-hand depth to foundation truths and principles. Have a direct, definite, daily plan for mental culture. Feed your mind upon the thoughts of the world's greatest thinkers.

Make use of spare moments to develop new and useful ideas. Books give you the materials of knowledge, but wisdom must come largely from within yourself. Meditate upon what you read. Daily reflect upon what you have done, and intend to do. Carefully examine your present methods, and seek to improve them. Cultivate the student habit.

In one hour a day, for a period of one year, you can read the best that has been said by such writers as Plato, Aristotle, Marcus Aurelius, Bacon, Carlyle, Ruskin, Buckle, Macaulay, Newman, Washington Irving, Lowell, Hawthorne, Emerson and Thoreau.

A carefully planned course of reading of the best authors will, in that comparatively short time, give you the essentials of a liberal education, in classical and modern thought. Read Addison for clearness, Lamb for simplicity, Bacon and Emerson for epigram, Carlyle for ruggedness, and Ruskin for rhythm and word-painting. Read for knowledge, cultivate power, satisfaction and relaxation. A few fine literature is one of the noblest pleasures.

Almost 124,000 bird-study clubs have been organized by the Audubon Association, chiefly in schools of the United States and Canada.

More British Advice

J. G. Pearce, of Birmingham, England, attending the Foundry Show at Cleveland, O., gave out a statement to the effect that protection against European low wages was unnecessary in the United States, because the purchasing power of wages in Europe was so much greater that "the workers live more sanely and have more comforts and luxuries than American workers."

The American government has collected official statistics as to the purchasing power of wages at home and abroad. Measured in purchasing power, wages in European countries are approximately half those prevailing in the United States, and England has a higher wage scale than any other European country.

The answer to such statements as this is found in the American total of deposits in savings banks, of home ownership, of distribution of motor cars, radios and other comforts and luxuries entirely out of the reach of the masses of British workingmen. Another answer is found in the fact that in order to prevent European workers from emigrating to the United States almost enmasse, the United States has had to pass stringent immigration laws. There is no movement of population the other way.

It is surprising to note how unanimous our foreign visitors are in their belief that the protective policy is a bad thing for the United States. Such testimony may not be entirely disinterested, since it comes from the representatives of commercial competitors keenly alive to their own interests.

A folding ribless umbrella, which can be put in one's pocket until needed, is a novel invention.

Newspaper Advertising

In an address delivered before the Advertising Federation of America in Washington, R. W. Lyons, executive vice-president of the National Chain Stores Association, said that last year sales of chain and other allied interests spent $200,000,000 for newspaper advertising. He added that "no retail merchant who wants to be sure of his profits on perishable or style items can afford to ignore the advertising columns of the press," as it is improbable for any retail business to have an immediate contact with the customer.

Business men long ago discovered and took advantage of the value of newspaper advertising in order to get in direct touch with customers, and General Advertising Manager McQuiston, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, told the Federation members of its worth as a means of creating an audience. It is certainly the most valuable form of gaining effective publicity.

Gasoline Tolls

One good way to think of gasoline taxes is to consider them as tolls.

If a car runs 12 miles to the gallon of gas, its owner pays one cent for every six miles when a two-cent tax is in effect; one cent for every four miles when a three-cent tax; one cent every three miles with a four-cent tax; one cent every 2.4 miles with a five-cent tax, and one cent every two miles with a six-cent tax.

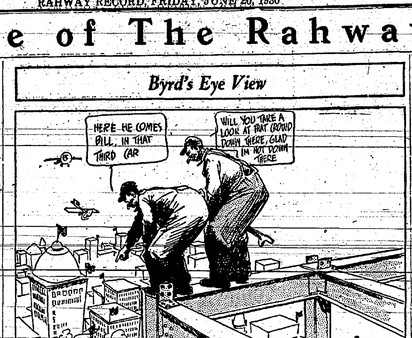
A person who drives only 6,000 miles a year must pay $10 to $30 in "gasoline tolls" in addition to licenses and other levies on his car.

The fact that gasoline taxes are expected to reach $250,000,000 this year and represent 20 to 30 per cent of the retail price of gasoline, presents a problem for consideration.

The public does not oppose a reasonable gas tax even though it is class taxation, when all the revenue is used for road purposes. But unless American motorists resist exorbitant taxes or the diverting of special tax funds for general state purposes, we may look forward in a line not far distant when a gas tax of ten cents a gallon will be proposed.

Last Sunday the usual quiet of this vicinity was very noticeably disturbed by the hum of airplane motors from nearby airports. When these 200-pound, $900 airplanes are put on the market, the Sunday drivers, horseback riders instead of bumping into you, will be falling all over you.

Byrd's Eye View



THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS
(Exclusive to The Rahway Record.)

GENTLEMEN, THE TARIFF!

Better days are ahead for the American sweatshirt, navel, silk-to-pear, firecracker, Christmas tree ornament, pistache-nut, belt-buckle, artificial fly, straw hat, patent chair clamp and, last but not least, the black-eyed corpse industries. The Smaller-Hoof, or rather the Hawley-Smoot, tariff bill has been passed and the United States should now become automatically freed of business depression, droughts, floods, labor troubles, spots before the eyes, chills, fever and sunburn.

It's duty on all imports of the above necessities of life is the average of 50 per cent, which is increased—and don't forget to include oysters and oyster juices. Oysters and oyster juices have been taken off the free list.

* * *

Asked to explain the removal of oysters and their juices from the free list, Senator P. Jarvis Finch said today: "We haven't driven American oyster foreign oysters as yet, preferring to let the country try for years."

"Oysters don't creep," the Senator was reminded.

"These did," insisted Senator Pinchbeck.

"Was there any particular foreign oyster that menaced America?" he was asked.

"The Swiss oyster" declared the Senator. "Congress had secret information that the Swiss are working on an oyster that would have revolutionized the oyster industry. It is the first mountain oyster ever developed. Instead of getting out of trees it would have required no fleets of specially equipped vessels for its harvest. The Swiss planned to ship it to America with the crowed. Do you know what it would have meant?"

"No."

"Instead of five oysters in a 60 cent oyster cocktail the restaurant would have been forced to give the customer six!"

* * *

Study of the tariff bill as passed shows that happier days are ahead—too—for the—gill—netting—and—fish manufacturers of the United States. Foreign competition has made it pretty tough for the gill netting business. The opera hat, canned clam and belt buckle manufacturers will get a break, under the tariff increases, too.

* * *

Of course there have been a couple of reductions. Broken glass and waste glass has been cut from 50 to 20 percent. Umbrella handles of pyroxylin will also come in cheaper, but they are hard to eat.

* * *

Was nothing on which there was a duty been shifted to the free list? Oh, yes. Yes, indeedy. Truffles, for instance. And fruity leaves, too!

* * *

Tariff Impression
(After Lewis Carroll, by a mile.)
'Twas gymsum and the soy-bean oils
The cusk and pollock in the cheese;
All chickpeas were the fleaxen nolls
And the fishgonds, eggs and teas.

* * *

"Beware the Hawleyamoot, my son,
The jaws that bite, the teeth that catch!
That boost the tax on vanilla,
The turnip, oyster juice and match."

* * *

The suppliting with a sword in hand—
Long time the Idvalorem sought
They tested on a grain of sand
And stood depressed in deepest thought.

And as in stiffish thought he stood
The Hawleysmoot with flaming eyes
Came whirling through the glass and wood
And upped the artificial ties.

One, two! One, two! And through and through
The vorpal blade went snicker-snack
But—there were—lacking blades enough
To put the creature on its back.

And has thou slain the Hawley-smoot?
Oh, not a chance; they had the votes
And boosted rates on overshoes,
Corsets and zippers, bay and oats.

Returns from the Chinese war show that nothing but extreme caution by both sides will prevent a trouble.

* * *

"Does $2,500,000 stand as your best offer?"

"Yes—indeed. I think it is a new record for a lady golfer."

"Isn't it even a little?"

* * *

"What do you think helped most in getting the two million five hundred thousand?"

"Well, I suppose perfect timing. I was co-ordinating perfectly and at no time inside my mistakes."

"What stance did you use?"

"I employed a rather close stance, playing the property off my right foot."

"Did you use a compact swing?"

"I always do. In getting anything above a million dollars I believe a golfer should go back slowly and carefully, taking care not to get off the beam and have a bad cut of the grooves. And above all, be sure to keep up in the swing to be avoided."

"There are millions of golfers in the United States, Miss Hollins. None of them has been able to make $2,500,000. What message can you give them? What advice can you give them and them in attaining this goal?"

"My advice would be, 'Don't press,'" said Miss Hollins. "It's no time with the wrist, you know. Why don't more golfers make a couple of million dollars? I'll tell you. They're too hasty."

"The more thought of $2,500,000 makes the average golfer overanxious, you think?"

"Yes—it's a mental hazard."

"One more question: do you think $2,500,000 gives a player more confidence?"

"Unquestionably," concluded Miss Hollins.

The Record Scrapbook

Here gathered from all places and all time, the waifs of wisdom and of folly meet.

It Is Spring!

The brook frets babbling, babbling by;
We hear the whip-poor-will's far-off cry;
Larks in the treetops now are singing;
Closes to the rocks are clinging;
Gems in the morning the flowers
Are peeping up like tiny towers,
And the humming of the bees!
We see the tall and stately trees—

For it is Spring!

Spring Is Here!

The robins sing from every tree,
And look as happy as can be.
The crickets chirp their song so queer,
I'm sure they say, "Sweet Spring is here!"

The sky is shiny, clear and blue
And the grass smells sweet with glistening dew.
The lake and river both are clear,
You'd know at once that Spring is here!

Antiquarians Puzzled

Antiquarians of Scotland are puzzled over a recent find in Stirling during the demolition of old tenement buildings. They could determine that an old draw well had been under a house built 275 years ago and that under stones with the inscription "A. R." in fowing letters probably dated from the reign of Queen Anne. But a legend on a window is causing them to scratch their heads for they have no record or anything like it. The legend reads "I. B. IN."

MICKIE'S CORNER

Gee by Tuesday's comment of the old home town newspaper that the Hawlin Community Club has what the lawyers call a writ of certiorari again the recent action of the home town city fathers in appropriating the sum of $5,000 for help finance whatever action is needed for the Section 2 of the Rahway Valley Trunk Sewer in a non-leakable condition.

* * *

Well, lein a little guy of a one-track mind, I slat in a position to offer any criticism of these city fathers actions. I know as they master help pay the bill, it comes within their constitutional rights for oppose the appropriation ordinance. Course $5,000 is $5,000. Yet on the other hand, a leakin sewer is shure bound to be a damnable nuisance. Maybe the hometown citizens has enough nuisances ter contend with now without adding any more ter vex our human systems.

* * *

Ter me inexperienced mental mechanism seems as though it would shear be aboard that pay who receives a big fat salary as executive secretary of the Rahway Valley sewer ter see that the job is done right. Maybe the city fathers is afeard if they appoint a big salaried executive ter supervise the job they'll think he was hired as an ornament, nor ter befriend an unscrupulous contractor who tries ter do a job, But maybe he did. Yer can't tell nowadays what some fellers will think is about.

* * *

Then again—that there inspector who was sposed ter be lookin after the home town taxpayers interests. I wonder where in the blazes he was? Maybe the contractors sold him sheeks which has ter be watched, and as far as they was concerned he could go fly a kite or somethin else. I'm tellin yer these are dozens tricky times, and when least expected some guy is puttin the fix in a fresh piece of human nature cad ding for me and that helped us.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings
By GEORGE DORSEY, Ph. D., LL. D.

"People Don't Do Such Things"

THERE is no knowing man without knowing men. "Everybody's doing it," and "People don't do such things"—these are the reactions bloraphinally useful in herds and early human society, but they persist in countless forms today and extend their influence in such unlike portent biological factors in modern life as fashion, fears and the pattern of trousers. "Everybody is" and "People don't" become potent factors in modifying the environment to which individuals are conditioned to respond.

Almost before the youngster has learned to respond in the facts of life, he is compelled to learn submittance to the theories of life. Human behavior as adjustment is unintelligible without understanding the forces which, whether they be real or illusory, enforce its limited responses upon it. Everybody knows that you don't easily change its mind, because to change is to acknowledge defeat; it hates to run. Its mind being its own, it tries to make the world conform; it rents its hate on "Don'ts" and much of its energy in enforcing taboos.

But there is almost no limit to the pressure that a group of individuals can stand if the pressure is applied gradually; we get educated to odors, sights, sounds, and boodoo or teapings, and the horrors by which we draw our birdens. And well for us that we can become educated to the burdens of things, people, and situations that we must bear. Pity man is not by nature a beast of burden or fitted by nature to bear his own burdens alone. And the man so yoked or chained is one more human being lost for activities that might be human.

As one recalls some of the monstrous situations under which human beings have lived and live their lives, one marvels at man's tenacity and complacency. It can only be explained by the power of habit to become calloused to situations that if freed suddenly would provoke blisters and revolt.

Men's inheritances is all right and is his only inherently valuable asset. It is human behavior—individual, communal, national—that can be changed. But not by cut-and-dried programs expressed in concept nor by reformers, codes, ideals, or by our present "system" of education. Life itself is not systematized or standardized. It wants to live, it wants to enjoy life. It has a pain reason to responds to love; loves to fell, it can learn. We have with that sentiment.

CHARLES FARRELL GAYNOR ALL TALKING

Blue in "Isle of Escape" and "A Royal Romance," starring William Collier, Jr., with Pauline Starke. As these two features are unusually entertaining tonight should witness a capacity house.

"Only the Brave," Gary Cooper's second starring picture, which comes to the Rahway Theatre tomorrow for one day only, is one of the two features, in Mary Brian's seventh all-talking production. Her earlier pieces were "The Man I Love," "Street of Romance," "The Virginian," "The Kibitzer," "The Melody Playground" and "Burning Up."

In "Only the Brave," an adventure tale of the Civil War, Miss Brian plays the part of the comely daughter of a Southern planter who falls in love with Cooper, a captain of cavalry in the Union Army.

Among those in the excellent supporting cast are Phillips Holmes, Virginia Bruce, Morgan Farley, Elda Voelkel, James Neill, Guy Oliver, William LeMaire, Freeman S. Wood, John H. Elliott and E. H. Calvert.

Virginia Valli, who plays the leading feminine role in "Guilty"—the Columbia all-talking drama, the associate feature for tomorrow, one day only, admits she was nearly struck from infancy. In 1917 she began to campaign the Chicago Essanay studio for extra work. After a year of this, she obtained work in stock on the stage. Pictures were her forte—for—believed, and she soon found her way to Hollywood. After a brief sojourn as a small part player, Miss Valli's talents were recognized, and she was married in one production after another for all the big companies in the business.

How can Dr. Fu Manchu appear again in the movies when he was killed off by poison in the very first picture in which he appeared?

The answer to this interesting question is found in "The Return of Dr. Fu Manchu," thrill-drama which comes to the all-talking screen at the Rahway Theatre, Sunday and Monday.

It is true that Dr. Fu Manchu appeared to have killed himself in the first picture, "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu"—but did he really take poison? If he did take poison was it capable of bringing death? Why didn't officials of Scotland Yard perform an autopsy to make sure that he was dead?

These are the questions, these and many others, which are answered in an absorbingly entertaining fashion in the sequel picture.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday William Powell will be seen and heard in "The Benson Murder Case."

In Three Weeks Konjola Performed Wonders

Lady Who Suffered Four Years Freed of Stomach And Kidney Trouble

MRS. BELLE CHAGUE

"I suffered untold agonies for four years from stomach trouble," said Mrs. Belle Clague, of 17 Exchange street, Binghampton. "Every meal was followed by gas bloating and wild heart palpitation. My kidneys were so weak that I had to rise many times a night, and dizzy spells and headaches, too. I was disgusted and worried over my inability to find relief.

"I was advised to try Konjola so I bought three bottles. The first bottle worked wonders. The gas bloating disappeared and night rising ceased. At the end of three weeks I was freed of stomach and kidney trouble and dizzy spells and headaches. I feel years younger, and a great deal stronger. I am glad to indorse such a wonderful medicine."

Let the experience of others be your guide in your search for health. All that is asked for Konjola is that it be given a trial.

Konjola is sold in Rahway, N. J., at Bell's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

One Texas County Jail Never Has Had Prisoner

Quail, Texas—During the 30-years that Quail has been the county seat of Bordon county only one person has ever been convicted of a felony in the county and he was given a suspended sentence. The county here has never sentenced a man to the penitentiary or even to the county jail.

Although the jail has stood in the courthouse yard for many years it has been used only as a place to store various kinds of products. The situation may be changed soon, however, for the reason that at the recent session of the grand jury indictments against three persons were returned.

They were charged with minor offenses and there is much speculation among the people of the county as to whether the accused persons will be convicted and given jail sentences.

Some of the other remarkable facts which apply to Bordon county are that it has no railroad, that there is not a preacher within its confines and that neither is there a physician. The only justice of the peace in the county is C. W. Taylor, seventy-five, and he has always found business so slack that his regular employment is as a cowboy on a ranch near Gail.

Shot by Soldier He Had Sworn to "Get"

Tacoma, Wash.—Returning to Fort Lewis with the avowed intention to kill the soldier who testified against him in his recent trial, Charles Riley, escaped prisoner, was shot and seriously wounded by Private Harry A. Stephens, the man he had sworn to "get." On April 10 Riley and another private, John C. Linn, were sentenced to a federal prison for stealing arms. They threatened to "get" Stephens for his testimony, and escaped soon afterward.

Fife and Drum Corps Planned by Veterans

Plans for a fife, drum and bugle corps were made at a meeting of the Mulvey-Dimon Post, No. 483 Veterans of Foreign Wars Tuesday night.

The committee consisting of John Britt, chairman; Charles Johnson, Walter Stoll and Charles Crowell was appointed to investigate the cost of such a project and make plans to carry them out at once.

Leslie Hunt was named as color guard for the Fourth of July Sunrise Service at the Elk's Club. Final instructions were given to the delegates who left Wednesday morning for the State Encampment at Camden. They will return tonight.

Style Has Lasted

In the days when cops were worn instead of clubs men frequently carried swords, hung at the left side under the cape. The cape was held down from left to right so that the right hand would be free to reach for the sword when necessary. When coats were substituted and swords were not necessary, the left side was still lapped over the right because men had become accustomed to it.

Public Service Wins the Charles A. Coffin Medal

At the annual convention of the National Electric Light Association in San Francisco, Thursday, June 19, Public Service Electric and Gas Company was declared the winner of the Charles A. Coffin Medal for the year of 1929.

The medal, and $1,000 for the employes' benefit fund of the winning company, is awarded each year by the Charles A. Coffin Foundation to the electric light and power company which makes a distinguished contribution to the development of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the benefit of the industry".

Public Service Electric and Gas Company won the 1929 medal in a competition open to all the electric light and power companies of the United States, and participated in by nineteen companies.

Its accomplishments, of which ninety-five were listed by the Committee of Award as outstanding, represent efforts to improve service to its customers, to maintain good morale among its employes, and to extend and improve its plant to meet public requirements for light and power.

The Company is gratified by this recognition of accomplishments, which reflect good service, and pledges itself to a continuation of the policy which prompted it.

...tyrants are several thoughts which I wish you to remember above all things," the speaker said, "and they are these: First, remember there is a God; second, remember your country; third, never forget your parents or guardians, and last, take care of yourself, by maintaining a high self-respect and a careful observance of the golden rule of "treat others as you wish them to treat you."

One of the interesting parts of the program was a speech by Staub Trembull, Jr., a member of the graduating class, who spoke on "Preservation of America's Natural Resources." In this address the necessity of forests, lakes, parks, wild game and fish was explained.

John Seibert also spoke on the "Progress of Aviation," and in this spoke the history of aviation was reviewed and notable inventions in aviation from that time to the present were noted.

Frank E. Brown, superintendent of schools, presented the class, and Herman A. Grevtes Chairman of the class's committee, presented the diplomas.

The Valedictorian was Mary Tomasovic and the Salutatorian was Miss Knoll. Bank books were presented to each member of the class by Mrs. Miranda Abbey, secretary of the Clark Township Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Elizabeth Seibel, president of the association, was in charge of the bank books, but could not be present because of illness.

The program closed with Reverend Berman A. Grevtes giving the benediction and the singing of the class song. The words of which were composed by Helen Olsen.

The class motto was "Strive to succeed," the colors were blue and white, and the class flower was a red rose. Those who graduated were:

Girls—Mary V. Pabich, Elizabeth Barbara Dolan, Alice K. Gilkinson, Margaret Jenny, Anna Sheriff, Eleanor Lee, Anna Labenska, Ruth Watson, Marion Alvino, Mary Violet A. Olsen, Vivian B. Gilbert, Helen S. Olszewski, Anna Veronica Mary Ritter, Anna Tomasovic, Melvina B. Hiller.

LEGAL NOTICE

The following Supplement to the Code of the City of Rahway has been passed by the Board of Health of said City, and passed, and is now in law:

Section 1. FRED H. WILLIAMS, Supt. of Health, Director of Health.

A Supplement to the Sanitary Code of the City of Rahway, N. J., relating to the keeping of horses, cattle, goats, swine, sheep and other animals within the limits of the City of Rahway.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Board of Health of the City of Rahway, N. J.:

Section 1. That it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to keep any horses, cattle, goats, swine, sheep or other animals within the limits of the City of Rahway, except in accordance with the provisions of this Supplement to the Sanitary Code.

Section 2. Any person, firm or corporation desiring to keep any horses, cattle, goats, swine, sheep or other animals within the limits of the City of Rahway shall first make application to the Board of Health for a permit therefor, setting forth the location, kind and number of animals, or cattle, goats, swine, sheep or other animals to be kept by the applicant. Said application shall be made in writing, signed by the applicant, and shall contain such information as the Board of Health may require. Said application may be rejected at any time for cause by the Board of Health, and any permit may be revoked at any time for cause by the Board of Health after a hearing before said Board.

Section 3. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this Supplement to the Sanitary Code shall be punished by a fine not exceeding Two Hundred Dollars ($200) and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment in the County Jail for a period not exceeding ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the Court.

Section 4. This Ordinance shall take effect immediately.

Passed June 16, 1930.

ALBERT E. NORTON, M.D., President.

A PEST? YES, BUT 'COMMON SCOLD'? NOT MAN CONTENDS

Cursed His Neighbors and Roared All Over the Place, "But What of It?"

Pittsburgh—Charley Rizzo admits he may have disturbed the peace of Dunleith Street; he often blusters and may have been contentious, obstreperous, pugnacious, and pestiferous; he may have been piteously in his square inward his neighbors, have injured their feelings by hard words and threats.

But Charles Rizzo is ready to fight to the end to prove he is not a "common scold" and will carry his case to the United States Supreme court, if necessary, to set aside the verdict given in Municipal court by a jury of eight men and four women.

The affair goes back to last winter. The good people of Dunleith Street claim that every day and every night during the winter Rizzo came home shouting and cursing.

The neighbors ceased to be interested against Rizzo, the old colonial law, adopted in 1682 and still extant on the statutes of the commonwealth. And they did so they went to court to answer to being a "common scold."

A dozen neighbors testified that Rizzo would swear at them every time they saw one there, and that his conduct at all times was unseemly. They insisted he would stand to his yard and would curse them until they left.

Questions by counsel failed to develop answers as to why Rizzo reportedly did not exercise the great American privilege of sailing into court.

Eventually Rizzo was convicted. But he appealed from the decision. His lawyer, P. L. Lagerio, cites the wording of the scold statutes to prove biologically that Rizzo could not be convicted under it, for the law defines a scold as "a glib woman with a too active tongue."

FIREMEN COMPLETE FIRST AID TESTS

Instruction Given by Acting Police Chief Stewart to Class of 13

Thirteen members of the Rahway Fire Department, including Chief Walter St. Sitzman, completed the first aid course given by Acting Chief of Police George W. Stewart on Friday with an examination. The results of the test were:

Chief Sitzman, 90.4 percent; Captain James Stevens, 75.8; Lieut. William Brenner, 83.2; Firemen Robert Brennan, 76.4; Arthur Cavanaugh, 84; Paul Fort, 82.4; Albert Reitner, 81.8; Frank Murray, 86; James Schumann, 87; Charles Bodgers, 86.6; Charles Post, 84; Harold Schweitzer, 79.8; Thomas Walsh, 78.8.

Those passing the course will be awarded certificates by the Colonial Red Cross as the instruction in the first aid work is given throughout the United States under the direction of registered instructors.

The firemen were taught and given an examination in bandaging, dislocations, fractures, wounds and hemorrhages, stopping contusions, bruises, hits and carriers, the action of fractures, use of dressing and antiseptics, removal of foreign bodies, insect bites, punctured wounds, sunstroke, heat exhaustion, fits, sprains, rescues from electric wires, burns, use of inhalators, artificial respiration and resuscitation, shocks, use of stimulants and similar treatments.

Acting Chief Stewart has given the course as instructor to the about 350 persons in Rahway and with this large group as a nucleus he is planning a first aid and disaster relief organization for this city, chairman of the local Red Cross committee on first aid and disaster he is working on the mobilization of all the doctors, nurses, equipment, etc., in a central place for use in such an emergency. It is expected that this work will be completed by the time the next executive meeting of the Rahway Chapter of the Red Cross next September.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL HAS GRADUATING CLASS OF 53

Impressive Service Held in Church Last Night; 98 Awards Presented; Rev. Buchman Speaks on 'Aspects of Education'

The graduation exercises of St. Mary's School were held in St. Mary's Church last night with Rev. C. J. Kane, pastor of St. Mary's; Rev. M. F. Boylan, curate of St. Mary's, Rev. J. B. Zellar, of St. Mark's and Rev. John O. Buchmann, A. M., of St. Luke's Irvington, conducting them. Approximately 900 friends and relatives of the fifty-three graduates were present at the services which were very impressive. Besides the diploma nineteen ninety-eight awards were made for various proficiencies and punctuality.

All the singing was done by the graduates as the junior choir was absent. Sister Adalbert's Church Orchestra accompanying. The effective opening "Processional" was being played by the church orchestra. They then sang two hymns, "Lead Thou Me" and "Come Holy Ghost." The address was given by Rev. J. A. Buchmann, who spoke on "Higher Education." The graduates then sang "Sweet Savior Bless Us Ever We Go," and the certificates were presented by Father Kane and Father Boylan.

Following the singing of "The Angelus," Solemn Benediction was held with Father Buchmann as celebrant and Father Zellar, Father Kane and Father Boylan as deacons and sub deacon. The altar boys who assisted were Thomas J. Loughlin, Jr., Joseph O'Connor and Albert Allen.

The Adoremus, Act of Consecration, Litany for the Holy Souls and Prayers were charged by the graduates.

All the girls were dressed in white dresses and carried a corsage bouquet of sweet peas. The boys were clothed in blue serge suits with white roses in the coat lapels. The class motto was "Nothing Without Divine Guidance," the class flower is sweet pea, and the class colors are blue and white.

Members of St. Mary's Alumni Association acted as ushers, and the medal and award committee was composed of the following: St. Mary's School Alumni, Class of 1930; Council No. 3, A. O. H., Rahway County Council, Rahway Council, Knights of Court Victory. No. 419, C. D. of A., Children of Mary Sodality, Rosary Flower Bridge Club, John Mulvey Memorial, A Friend, T. J. McCue, J. J. Coffey, M. F. Quinn, Mrs. Mary A. Cartey, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cartey, Patrick Monahan, Catherine Monahan and Agnes Brennan.

In his address Father Buchmann paid the graduates a high tribute for their past education of the graduates and commended them for their future educational endeavors. He dealt on four important aspects. They were as follows: Who has the mission to educate; Who are the subjects to be educated; what is the environment should education be sought, and what is the end and object of Christian education.

In his answer to the first question Rev. Buchmann said, "Jesus Christ gave to the entire mankind mission to teach all nations and this command has been observed by the churches. Therefore, has the Church ever with full right promoted letters, science, art, and has always been necessary or helpful to Christian education; founding and maintaining schools adapted to every branch of learning and degree of culture.

"The establishment of schools has ever been the great work of the Church. Where Christianity has made new inroads, we find her schools, in a sense more essential than the work of saving souls than the churches. In fact even today education belongs primarily to the Church.

"The family and the state have their rights and duties relative to education, but the Church's mission of education is in wonderful agreement with both. We see that two facts established, the Church placing at the disposal of families the means as long as the family needs them, and the family is perfectly by her offer." Father Buchmann spoke at length on the third aspect of education.

The head of education is the supreme knowledge, not social and cultural knowledge, but the Church's
