A story of a Prench girl lost far from her homeland in a maze of international intrigue who seeks to return to her native Prance, forms the basis of the feature presentation, "Marie Galante," showing Sunday and Monday in the Rahway theatre.

In this picture, a Fox production, Kettie Gallian, a European stage star, makes her screen debut. Spencer Tracy plays opposite her as the young American who at first tracks her down as a suspect, then comes to her defense. The setting of the story is laid in the Canal Zone and portrays the vivid life there with its mysteries and its secret streets. Other players include Helen Morgan, Ned Sparks, Siegried-Rumann, Arthur Byron and Robert Loraine. Loraine, an English stage star, came to Hollywood, it is said, especially to play the role of Ratcliffe, foreign emissary in the international game around which the story revolves.
