THAT MONETARY CONFERENCE

Mystery of mysteries! What happened to the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference? Forty-four nations agreed to meet at Bretton Woods, N. H., for the purpose of perfecting a plan for an International Monetary Fund of $8,000,000,000 to stabilize the currencies of every nation of the world, with a United Nations Bank, having a capital of $100,000,000, to loan out on long terms for reconstruction purposes, and to establish a permanent international organization to maintain the stability of the world's economy.

Why has there been no comment editorially, to speak of, and only a few words of unfavorable comment? And why has it been side-tracked until after election? Could it be possible this is one more of the long list of philanthropic dreams of President Roosevelt for the purpose of giving his name another boost just before election, but which plan the President would not care to have discussed in public print just before a fourth term presidential election?

Like the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Conference, held at Atlantic City last winter for six weeks, it is that conference, that little, if anything, will again be heard of. That conference heralded the coming of President Roosevelt throughout the earth as the world's greatest benefactor, who would see that all nations of the earth would be fully fed after peace was declared. This impression was greatly magnified when Vice President Henry Wallace said that the U. N. R. R. C. would guarantee a quart of milk daily in the home of every Holstein. It advertised President Roosevelt as the outstanding Santa Claus of all ages and of all time.

Why has not this international monetary stabilization plan not received general recognition and generous approval by our leading bankers of New York, Baltimore, Memphis, Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati, San Francisco and Los Angeles?

The conference did make a concession in favor of the United States, when it was announced that this international bank would be located in the United States and probably in New York City. But are the bankers, are senators, are big business in favor of this plan? Evidently not. Why?

This bank located in the United States, will have $750,000,000 contributed by the United States, only $1,300,000,000 by Great Britain, $1,500,000,000 by France, and by other nations from a half billion down to $100,000,000. And this international plan will endorse the United States' gold standard, which will require that each nation must borrow its share of the $8,000,000,000 fund of gold from the United States or Russia, the only two nations gold-producing countries, or, if silver is finally included as a secondary basis for stabilizing currency, it must come from the United States, Mexico or China. The United States and Russia, with their votes, can, therefore, control all exchange rates as they may desire, on the basis of one vote for every $100,000,000 contributed. Each nation will be allotted 250 free votes, thus the United States will have 27,500; Great Britain, 15,250; and Russia, 12,250. This does not appear to be what the nations want—even though perfectly just—from such a philanthropic nation as the United States.

But how does this effect the bankers? It is the privilege of any nation to reduce the value of its currency at any time and in any way it might choose; and if conditions make that seem necessary, even a penalty of the 42-man Monetary Executive Committee could scarcely prevent it, and, at a great loss, undoubtedly, to the international bank, the United States suffering the most. In the end, as one economist puts it, it is "like pouring money down a sewer."

And will this bank stabilize the currency of China, that today is worthless, primarily, because President Roosevelt withdrew his support from China at the beginning of this war? This support given to Great Britain will enable Great Britain to recover more quickly after the war and be able to regain its lost world. And what of Greece, Italy and Yugoslavia? Their money is also worthless, but, as members of this international organization, their currency would have to be stabilized. What if the plan does not work? Who loses? Who loses? The most in every instance. And not only its money, but its gold, its silver.

And who would presume that we have any bankers, Senators or Congressmen who would give their consent to the United States putting $8,750,000,000 into another world pool for foreign nations to utilize to their advantage, when these Americans know only too well that the leading nations in this pool would be the very nations that repudiated a claim of the United States that, in 1923, totaled $11,261,176,716, with interest, in loans made to those nations during, and just after the first World War? Evidently only the "fourth term" would consider the American people so glib.

Is such a plan feasible? Certainly it is needed by practically everyone of the participating nations. But why should the taxpayers of the United States be asked to wink and taken for it? It will be discussed in Congress at length, no doubt, but it would appear that the plan just between you and me

Perhaps no campaign has ever been waged, with the determination to remove from any office of election, all who oppose, as that of the CIO in the present election. President Sidney Hillman, with his Political Action Committee, and $1,600,000, which he is collecting from the CIO members, for political propaganda, quietly assisted by William Green, head of the A. F. of L., has determined to control the 600,000 votes represented by these two organizations, in order to accomplish three things in the next election: First, the reelection of the "indispensable man," second, see that the high wages brought about by the high prices paid manufacturers in the manufacturing of war materials, are maintained; and third, to prevent any change being made in the Wagner Act or other legislation passed for the benefit of labor during the past 15 years.

While there can be no criticism of anyone desiring to secure the highest wages possible for his labor, yet it ought not to be a tax on a child to realize that when this war is over wages must be reduced radically in this country. American wages are altogether out of keeping with the ability of world or home markets to purchase our goods, if made according to war market standards.

With conversion of industrial plants to peacetime manufacture, and the Government no longer guaranteeing cost-plus returns, all major industries will be forced to reduce their own, as before the war. Their supreme task then will be to compete with each other to get new business, marketing their products at the very lowest possible prices, with but a fair profit, which will mean a readjustment of wages downward, probably as much as 25 per cent, and there is no other way out.

For any organized group of labor to refuse to permit the nation to sit down with them to determine the wages that can be paid, based upon cost of operation, is a species of holdup, it would seem, should neither be countenanced, nor recognized as being American, nor considered as either just or right, nor at all in accord with our democratic way of life.

The concert and picnic at the residence of the Rev. H. P. Thomas, of Bond street, which was postponed on account of the storm will take place on Labor Day. Those who attended through the inclement weather begged to have it repeated. Over twenty-five persons from Brooklyn and Newark were present, and sixteen of them were so pleased with our city, they have decided to purchase property and settle here. We need something to draw strangers to Rahway, as many suppose it to be only a farming village, sparsely settled and without a post office.

Sullivan, of Levee avenue, arrived Saturday at Camp Merritt after two years of service in foreign lands, serving with the Marine Division and later with the Army of Occupation in Germany, being stationed at Andernach since November 20. He was still handling the mails when his parents visited him at Camp Merritt, where he is temporarily stationed, but expects to be transferred to Camp Dix from where he will probably be honorably discharged in a few days.
