PRODUCTION THE KEY TO INCOME

Throughout the nation, and right here in New Jersey, we have heard much about increased wages or "take home pay". Almost any place where people are gathered together the conversation eventually drifts to the discussion of wages.

Here in New Jersey we have had one strike and there have been rumors and threats of others. All have been based upon the problem of wages. However, in all of the talk for increased salaries and wages, hardly a word has been heard relative to increased production, which, in the overall picture of the problem, is the very foundation upon which wages and salaries are based.

In competitive economic systems such as ours—and where in the world is there a better one?—the only thing that really determines wages is what the public will pay for that which is produced by the worker.

No amount of vote-swearing oratory or legislative sleight-of-hand can or will change that truth. Pay depends upon production, whether in the factory, the corner grocery, or on the farm.

That does not mean that wages cannot be increased in our factories. For, by working harder or using better methods, output can be increased, then, and only then, can pay be increased.

But, it must be remembered, there is no way in the world to justify higher pay for less output. For the only way industry can pay more wages for less work is to increase prices, and that would benefit no one, least of all the wage earner who would have to bear most of the burden of higher prices. The workers, collectively, make up the largest percentage of the consumer market, and even if they receive more money for their work, they will pay more for the things they buy with a net result they will be no more than they had in the beginning.

The solution seems apparent that greater productivity will produce greater earnings and keep consumer prices at a reasonable level.

THE THOUGHT HE WAS SAFE

The erroneous idea that fire escapes, nearby doors and ground level windows will assure escape in case of fire, has led to the tragic death of thousands of people. Recently, the owner of a small yacht was asleep aboard his boat. In the dead of night, fire of unknown origin broke out. The unconscious skipper arose—only to find a half asleep, toward a door not more than six feet from him. He never made it. He collapsed, overcome by fumes, on the floor of the cabin. The boat burned to the waterline and sank, carrying with it a mute jumble of heat-seared bones.

Similar tragedies are repeated daily, in homes, hotels, auto courts, apartments, everywhere. Fire prevention experts preach constantly that the one sure way to be safe from fire is to remove the cause of fire. Bureaucrats and antics stuffed with refuse, improperly installed or faulty heating and cooking equipment, frayed wiring—these are but a few of the causes of fire. The most common causes, and the easiest to correct, are matches and cigarettes. Never lay a lighted cigarette down carelessly; never toss away a match without being sure it is out. If these two precautions alone were religiously adhered to, an incalculable amount of destruction and suffering could be avoided.

A few weeks ago the nation observed Fire Prevention Week. During that week, press, radio and billboard, the fundamentals of fire prevention were broadcast far and wide. Those who forget the urgent message of Fire Prevention Week are putting their lives and property in jeopardy.

Remember, there is no sure escape from fire—except to prevent it before it starts.

Try to Swap Labels

Reactionaries in America today are smart. They have learned one lesson well. They are very sure of one thing: they have a bad name. They know also that the "word liberals" is an asset. Accordingly they have adopted the term "liberalism" and call themselves liberals. This is the same political element that supports more government rules and less liberty for individuals.

By the same strategy, this political element has begun to call people reactionaries who hold properly to the liberal tradition. This is Thomas Jefferson. Don't let anybody tell you that.

THANKSGIVING

We, as Americans, have many reasons for giving thanks, tomorrow, on our Thanksgiving day, and this year we have more reasons than ever before.

Germany's collapse came soon, and not long thereafter Japan gave up. It was a fine demonstration of the fact that a free people, when they are united, can do anything.

Our feeling of gratitude and thanksgiving should be real and genuine for we have much for which to be thankful. We are more fortunate than any other nation on the face of the earth.

Our feeling of gratitude and thanksgiving should be real and genuine for we have much for which to be thankful. We are more fortunate than any other nation on the face of the earth.

It was the terrible tragedy of the first World War, that has left its scars on the minds of the men and women of this generation. The idea was very widely held at that time, that the empire was fighting in order to end all wars.

It could not be said that all those sacrifices were in vain. For devotion to a great cause always brings some reward. People learn something from it, and make some sacrifice that will help to progress, even if the main end is not attained.

When World War II broke out, it did seem as if the great sacrifices made in the previous war and the devotion offered by the home people in that conflict, had been very largely in vain. The main result, that of stopping war, was not achieved. A new and far more terrible result followed in the second war.

As the servicemen return from their recent mighty efforts, their hearts are filled with hope that this time their sacrifices will not have been in vain. It would be the bitterest kind of a tragedy if all their efforts and suffering were followed by the outbreak of a new conflict, which would probably be even more disastrous than the one that has just finished.

Somewhat the mistakes which made the results of the first World War so futile are to be avoided. They can be avoided, if the people are determined to do everything possible to keep any new war from happening. The people should learn the lesson by studying the reasons why the first war failed to stop the habit of fighting.

Switzerland, according to new reports, is in the process of adopting a constitutional amendment empowering the government to set standards to which all business would be obliged to conform. The purpose of the move is to "restrict wasteful competition and to maintain remunerative prices, above all in agriculture."

According to other news reports, Sweden, long an apostle of medical neutralism, is also moving toward increased "government protection" to eliminate wasteful competition. Nationalization of the boat and shoe industry seems to be the immediate objective.

Here in our own country the OPA has conducted a survey which claims to show that a majority of business men are in favor of price control. The OPA is still another form of "government protection." Government-guaranteed full employment is yet another.

Finally, the government protection has reached morbid proportions. The political and economic liberties of millions, gained through centuries of bloody struggle, are being abandoned at the scratch of a pen.

Gradually the American people are being brought face to face with the question of whether they must decide whether in the immediate future they wish to maintain artificial material values at the risk of suffering permanent political oppression, or whether they wish to preserve our traditional form of government and long-range progress at the possible risk of short-range hardship.

ANOTHER MAN WITH AN IDEA

The imagination of the progressive retailer knows no bounds! A fruit and vegetable center in Pennsylvania is pushing sales of "air fresh" produce. Under an arrangement with the eastern retailer, the produce is grown by a Salinas, California, grower, then transported by air twice a week to a nearby airport where it is re-loaded and whisked air express to the east.

Strawberries, plums, seedless grapes, honey-dew melons, cantaloupes, lettuce and tomatoes have been tested to date with satisfactory results. The enterprising courage of this retailer is as refreshing as his airborne fruit. Here is further proof that the age of new ideas, of pioneering toward new horizons, is not in the past. As long as individual opportunity for profit exists, new ideas will continue to appear. And generally the consuming public is the greatest benefactor of every workable idea.

There is quite an oyster war among the Jersey street dealers. The prices ranging 25 cents for two quarts, 15 and 20 cents a quart respectively.

Dennis Boice, the veteran gateman, says he will be fully prepared the next time he is molested at his Shanty to make the aggressor so there will be no doubt of his identity.

There will be six regular shows for the season, not counting the burlesque. Says Captain Henry Decker, of Fulton street, one of the local weather forecasters, who adds: "I don't say anything further what the winter will be until later."

One of the pleasant functions of the season at the Y. M. C. A. was the provided Friday night for the men of the dormitory. C. G. Saal of the dormitory served as toast master. Remarks were also made by Joseph Simon and James McCollum.

The R.K.O. Radio Auditorium Elimination for the finals in the contest will be held on the stage of the Railway Theater Monday night. The leaders in the contest so far are Olga Hrudka and Arthur Coogan, both of Railway.

Further action toward the construction of a dog pound in this city was taken by members of the S.P.C.A. when they met at the home of Miss May H. Macann, 34 Irving street.

The Rev. H. W. Hanson has accepted the call to Zion Lutheran Church, Campbell street. Installation services for the new pastor will take place within the next few weeks.

Adolph Baumann, class of 1917, was elected president of the Railway Rutgers Club during the annual meeting in the clubhouse of the Ildersan Club.

Lester R. Randolph, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Randolph, Sr., has returned from Los Angeles, Cal., where he has been a resident for 22 years. Mr. Randolph will be general in Railway and make his home with his parents.

Frederick E. Gussmer, a senior at Blair Academy this year, is a member of the Academy Players, the school's dramatic club, and has taken part in the fall production. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gage Gussmer, 259 Maple avenue.

George Benson, Newark, N. J. Editor, Railway Record

WANTING? A farmer friend of mine, accompanied by small son, took his well-used truck and drove over the river to the county seat on a far-away community, hand-picked to represent their neighbors who elected them.

It was just a year ago now that I was told they most of all public servants, want to hear from home. They don't consider themselves rulers, merely units out of a far-away community, hand-picked to represent their neighbors who elected them.
