

RAHWAY ADVOCATE

WEATHER REPORT.

As indicated by the Thermometer at George F. Brown's drug store for corresponding dates of 1891 and 1893.

1891	Aug. 1 A.M.	13 M	2 P.M.	10 P.M.	Weather.
19th	68	70	75	65	Rain.
20th	72	80	86	70	Clear.
21st	74	83	91	78	Clear.
22d	71	81	83	68	Clear.

LOCAL NEWS

Miss Mary Thorp, of Detroit, Mich., is visiting in Rahway.

Miss Farnham, of Chicago, Ill., is visiting in Rahway.

Miss Anna Marshall is visiting Miss Sallie Melick.

Mr. M. Goodenough, proprietor of the Hamilton Female Seminary, is visiting a relative, Dr. C. B. Holmes, in this city.

Harry Post G. A. R. No. 27 will hold a meeting Friday evening of this week, at the home of Mrs. J. H. Post.

We are informed that the enterprising firm of Grove & White, who have different pieces, medals, etc., and many other articles, are particularly interested in the part of the city five of charge.

Mr. Van Buren Martin this week will move in the new cottage he has had erected on William Street, built for him under contract by Tappan & Moore.

A freight train passed by this morning, and caused a delay of about half an hour to the passenger train that leaves Rahway at 12:30.

Saturday afternoon, Messrs. Grove & White exhibited a "display" of peaches, tomatoes, cucumbers, etc., arranged in a half watermelon. The arrangement was neat and attracted much attention from passers by.

A man who was pretty badly intoxicated Monday tried to get into the Grand Union Tea store, but was prevented by Mr. D. T. Honyake, the proprietor. The man, who called himself "Chief Thacker," told the man in which the Chief, assisted by other Congress, did.

The Church Sunday school excursion this morning, was regular in size, we think to say that have left this city this year. It is estimated that between 50 and 60 people attended the excursion, and the opportunity to take a sail on the Hudson.

Mr. C. E. Bunnison is erecting a new lot house, 80 feet in length, which has growing business prospects. The lot is owned by Mr. F. H. Hylbert, the architect and builder who is also erecting the other lot houses Mr. Bunnison has on his place.

Mr. George E. Moore of this city, met with a very painful accident recently at the machine works of Watta & Campbell, in Newark, N. J., by having the middle finger of the left hand caught in cog gears, mashing the end of the bone and tearing off the nail.

As will be noticed the pillars of two houses in this city were visited without invitation on Saturday and Sunday nights last. As the burglar, who probably committed by the same parties, it would be well for the police to keep a special look out for the burglars.

Three girls old enough to know better were noticed on Monday evening on Main Street, crowding other people from the sidewalk and acting altogether in an unladylike manner. They probably would like to have their names appear in print, but by their actions they invite public reproof.

Mr. Lansing Zabriskie is having an addition to his house of 20 feet erected. This new part will include the room for a heating apparatus which is being put to heat the entire hot house, a building about 100 feet long by 22 feet wide. The work is being done by Mr. T. G. Hylbert.

Mr. Fred. Eyer, the carriage manufacturer has just finished a depot wagon to accommodate four passengers for Dr. H. H. Hylbert, N. Y. The first work only is being painted black, the balance of the work being finished without paint, showing the natural color of the wood. It is handsomely done and no doubt will give good satisfaction.

The Messrs. Edgar, who recently purchased the fine French hotel house on New Brunswick Avenue, from Rev. J. A. Liggett, have had an extension built to it, and also two bay windows, with two stories high, attached, making a grand improvement in the appearance of the property. The work was done by Tappan & Moore, the new firm of carpenters and builders.

A match game of base ball will be played on the ball grounds in upper Rahway to-morrow (Tuesday) afternoon, between the Amboy club and "The Rahway." As this is the return game, it will no doubt be interesting. It will be ready to start at 4 o'clock. "Amboy" were victorious in the last game. The base ball player Hylbert, who we understand, a member of the Rahway club, being a resident of this city. All who like to see a good game should see this one.

Wednesday evening last Mrs. Elizabeth Moore in going from her residence toward Grand street, at the corner of Union and Factory streets, fell and bruised her right arm and left hand terribly, by stepping in a place that has been washed out near Simpson's carriage factory, now occupied by Ira Gelson, and where the wheels of the project fully six inches above the former level of the walk. The street commissioner should look after such places, for our city will be called upon to settle claims for damages.

Mr. James B. Laing, of Lohrsville, Kan., called at the Advocate office, and gave a few days since, and many other things spoke of the immense crops in Kansas this season, and the remarkably high quality of the same. Mr. Laing was born in this city, and in his school days was a student of Mr. David Hanks, who is now in the Treasury Department at Washington. He was familiarly known as "Jimmy Laing." His father was at one time one of our largest carriage manufacturers. The many friends of "Jimmy" were pleased to see him, and sorry to part with his joyful company.

We have received the following official notice and publish it for the benefit of those who may be interested:

OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION, STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 17, 1902.

Teachers and school officers will please take notice that two days will be allowed candidates for teachers' certificates this month. The examination will be held at Westfield, on Friday and Saturday, the 20th and 21st.

Candidates for third grade must appear for the first or second and grade will be allowed both days.

N. W. DEASE, County Superintendent.

Rev. G. W. Pendleton has placed a lamp in front of his residence on Irving street, in which naphtha is burned.

Mr. Wm. H. McGrath, of the firm of Wilson & McGrath, has gone up in New York state on a two weeks vacation.

Naturally afternoon Policeman George Gungler took to the County Jail at Elizabeth, Warren Gorman who was committed, by Justice Tunison for stealing clothes from Geo. Miller the Tailor.

City Clerk Marsh and wife arrived home from their wedding trip Monday morning, after an absence of nearly three weeks. They visited many points of interest East, including Boston and Martha's Vineyard.

One day last week a party sitting at a table, at the Atlantic House Hotel, County Island, noticed a lady carefully examining the "bill of fare," and were completely conversed with laughter, when the lady, after a thorough examination, told the waiter that she desired "a plate of overtures, please."

Yesterday afternoon a little daughter of Wm. Hylbert, the colored man who was in the county jail at Elizabeth waiting trial on the charge of murdering young Thompson, died in this city. The family are very sad, and some of our philanthropic people will find their case one of charity of any assistance which they can give.

Considerable complaint is heard in different parts of the city, especially in upper Rahway, at the condition of the streets, many places having been washed out by rain, etc., and nothing due to repair them for a long time. Ladies avenue and Factory street especially need attention. The street commissioner's attention is called to these facts.

We return thanks to Grove & White for a fine large watermelon, which was sent to the residence of the senior member of the firm last Saturday, and recounted at the store of good melons to call at the store of these enterprising goals on Cherry street, west of the Postoffice, where they will find an excellent assortment, from which they cannot fail to obtain what they want.

The "Hens of Three Wives," is the title of a book published by Hubbard Bros., of Philadelphia, for which a lady agent is canvassing our city. She has succeeded in obtaining a fair number of subscribers. She is a well understood, for instance, and is a good canvasser, and if she can't talk young men into becoming subscribers, she will because she does not try. We understand she intends returning in town a few days longer.

The Sunday school of the Church of the Holy Comforter, in upper Rahway, had a picnic yesterday in the woods belonging to John A. Hylbert, Esq., adjoining Taylor's Grove, and had a day of rest pleasure. This school is rapidly growing under the care and earnest work of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bawton, whose success in this work has been very gratifying to him, as it is to the members of the congregation and friends of the church.

We have been shown a postal card received by Mr. H. C. Wilson, of this city, from the new firm of Sexton & Jacques, Hattiesburg and Sultana, successors to Sayder, Sexton & Co., 51 North Pennsylvania street, Indianapolis, Ind. The announcement of the same is of interest to many of our citizens from the fact that Mr. John B. Jacques, the new member of the firm, who has been in the city, and brought in a printed in the office of the Rahway Democrat, under the name of Judge J. S. Hyatt. He was formerly a partner in the West with Mr. H. C. Wilson, and is a thorough business man. He has some years been in the office of the Indianapolis Courier, but has published that position to embark in business.

Friday night between 8 and 9 o'clock a man walked up to a dummy upon which was a suit of clothes in front of the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor and putting his arm around the "dummy" started off to walk toward the carriage factory, where John Van Pelt, a clerk in J. P. Thorp's grocery store who had been watching the fellow's movements, saw the man in the dummy and went to the store of Miller the tailor

