Krebiozen
Survivors' Still Fight

By RAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The "Krebiozen survivors," as they call themselves, are holding their annual meeting Friday in New York. The group was formed in 1973
after several patients who had been treated for cancer with a drug called Krebiozen died. The group has been fighting for the release of Krebiozen to all cancer patients.

The group has been meeting for the last decade, discussing the latest developments in cancer treatment and trying to influence legislation that could help patients obtain Krebiozen.

The group has also been involved in a number of lawsuits against the manufacturer of Krebiozen, claiming that the drug was not properly tested and that it caused unnecessary suffering.

Despite the setbacks, the group remains hopeful that Krebiozen will one day be available to all cancer patients.

We've Handled Our Pocketbooks Well

By Dr. Charles N. Haven

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans are handling their pocketbooks well, despite the recent increase in the cost of living.

"The economy is strong, and consumers are spending wisely,"
said Dr. Charles N. Haven.

The economist noted that consumer spending has been stable over the past year, even though the cost of living has risen.

"This is a good sign," said Dr.
Haven. "It shows that consumers are spending more, even though they are paying more for goods and services."

TODAY'S BUSINESS MIRROR: Silver Price Firm Despite Shortages

DAWSON
By SID DAWSON
AP BUSINESS NEWSPAPER August 12, 1965 (New York) — Silver has held a tenuous position of late, but its value probably has been overestimated. Silver's continued strength will be affected by several factors.

The price of silver has risen sharply in recent weeks due to increased speculation and a shortage of bullion. This rise has been fueled by strong demand from investors and by the expectation of a higher price in the future. However, if these factors are not sustained, the market may be vulnerable to decreases in demand.

Some children are handicapped with disabilities or in other ways. When this happens, they may be assisted by the services of a trained professional, such as a speech therapist, occupational therapist, or educational therapist.

Children who have not been able to enter school, or who are not being served by a regular school, may benefit from the services of a skilled professional. The professional may be able to help them overcome their handicaps and to achieve their goals.

Desirability of Electrolysis

Electrolysis is a procedure that has been used for many years to remove unwanted hair from the body. It is a safe and effective method of hair removal.

The procedure involves the introduction of a small current of electricity into the skin, which causes the hair follicles to contract and the hair to be removed. The procedure is performed in a series of appointments, usually every few weeks, until all of the unwanted hair is removed.

The procedure is relatively painless and is performed in a clinical setting. The professional may provide instructions on how to care for the treated area after the procedure.

Conclusion

Electrolysis is a safe and effective method of hair removal. It is a procedure that can be performed by a skilled professional to help children overcome their handicaps and to achieve their goals.
