Hughes Seeks Rapid Action On Boat Tax Exemption

Hughes’ goal was to stimulate the economy and employment in New Jersey, he said, and he hoped the plan would be approved in time for the start of the boating season, which begins in April.

The legislation is being sponsored by Senate President John J. McKeon, D-Union, and Speaker of the Assembly Joseph J. Roberts, D-Atlantic. The bill is expected to be introduced in both chambers this week.

The proposed tax exemption would apply to all boat owners who paid their property taxes in 2023. It would also apply to owners who paid their property taxes in 2022 but have not yet applied for the exemption.

The bill would establish a $50 million fund to provide grants to local governments to offset the loss of revenue from the tax exemption.

The legislation is supported by the New Jersey Manufacturers Association and the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce, which have praised Hughes for his leadership in addressing the state’s economic challenges.

Hughes said he expects the bill to pass easily in both chambers, with a strong majority of support from both Republicans and Democrats.

The bill is expected to be voted on in both chambers within the next few weeks, and it is likely to become law before the end of the legislative session.

If signed into law, the tax exemption would take effect on July 1, 2023, and would apply to the 2023-2032 tax years.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and House Speaker John McCormack turned back the threat of a Federal prize for the astronauts aboard the Apollo 11 lunar landing. If the landing were delayed beyond July 20, as expected, the award would be offered by the Apollo 11 program.

Mansfield and McCormack agreed to meet with the astronauts in the White House Rose Garden on July 20, the first day of the mission. They would present a white flag symbolizing the mission's success.

The two leaders also announced that they would present a letter of congratulations from Congress to the astronauts if the landing is successful.

The letter is a sign of the growing support for the mission, which was launched on July 15, 1969.

The letter is to be presented to the astronauts at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas, where the mission is headquartered.

The letter reads:

"To the Apollo 11 crew:

We are proud that you have completed the first lunar landing. It is a remarkable achievement of human ingenuity and courage. We are grateful for your service to our nation.

Sincerely,

[Signatures of Mansfield and McCormack]

Mansfield and McCormack also said they would present a copy of the letter to the President, Vice President, and Speaker of the House.

They also announced that they would present a copy of the letter to the astronauts at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, where the mission will land.

Pace Slows As Steels Sell Late

FARMINGDALE - With the recent news of the steel industry, it is no wonder that the pace of buying and selling has slowed down. Steel companies have been selling their stock at a slower pace than usual, due to the uncertainty in the market.

"We are seeing a lot of selling, but not as much buying," said one stockbroker. "The steel industry is a bit volatile, and people are waiting to see how things will turn out."

Republicans—Which Way?

The Republican Party—from the presidential campaign on—is the National Committee—is in the throes of reorganization and rebuilding. The Republican President John Johnson election landslide, Republican candidates were not what hit them with an impact of the kind of which they never felt before. But even in the wake of overshooting and regrouping—the answer is clear, especially in New Jersey. It was Sen. Barry Goldwater, who injected campaign issues and his campaign tactics that brought about the devastating Republican defeat. For the GOP, the election was not just a defeat. It was a Cow Palace in San Francisco when Sen. Goldwater was nominated. It was lost when Sen. Goldwater selected a presidential candidate who could not—and did not want to—handle the key segments of opinion that make up a political party. On the surface, after all, the attempt at unity was there. But those who knew—those who were selected by Barry Goldwater's nomination—knew that the wounds would never be healed and the result would be humiliating defeat.

Those who made the great effort to sew up the 1964 split in the Republican Party will receive great criticism. Perhaps this was unfortunate—for under our two-party system, it would seem to be mandatory. But the voters, even the disillusioned, were not rebellious—but were bemoaning the defeat of their own party. The voters, and this was the point, are bemoaning the defeat of their own party. It was those who stood up to express their true feelings who became the political martyrs in the wake of the Golden Boys, but the respected ones in the long run.

Monmouth County is an example where some Republican incumbents and new office seekers—who although long associated with good government, have been, by the same token, a winner for the GOP. They tied their campaign to Goldwater's theme: "Are you better off?"—and the voters rejected this. Even at the local, county, and state levels in many counties—many Republicans, and those who vote for Republican candidates, did not want to in the Republican Party from Tuesday's disappointment. This was the price that they paid.

Where does the fault rest? It rests with those who were at least at San Francisco, and those who jumped on the bandwagon knowing what it would mean in political terms. One who promised his own political and personal philosophies to support one party, knowing what it would mean in political terms. And the voters, and this Was obviously the way to go. The voters, and this was the way to go.

The Republican party may appear to be in ruins—but this view comes naturally after the Johnson victory. The party—and it was this view—will only be made up for the conservative, the middle-of-the-road, and the liberal. Goldwater's attempt to create a party, just as there is room for them in the Democratic Party. So far ahead of U.S. capitalism in the sense of the future as a small group of ideals and principles that make up a political party. There are lessons to be learned by the party that was defeated.

What should come out of this is a stronger Republican party that could not—and did not want to—handle the key segments of opinion that make up a political party. What should come out of this is a stronger Republican party that could not—and did not want to—handle the key segments of opinion that make up a political party. And one that all candidates and voters alike gave the loyalty they deserved.

The 1965 Economy is a Clash to Top 1963

By SYLVIA PORTER

The 1965 economy will be one of the most challenging years in recent memory, particularly in the area of wages and labor. The national average wage has been increasing at an average rate of 4 percent per year for the past 10 years. The Labor Department projects that this rate will continue in 1965.

The economy will continue to grow at a healthy pace, with inflation holding steady at around 3 percent. Employment is expected to increase at a moderate rate, with the unemployment rate declining to 4.5 percent. The economy is expected to grow at a rate of 4 to 5 percent in 1965.

Inflation is expected to remain moderate, with the consumer price index increasing at a rate of 3 to 4 percent. The Federal Reserve is expected to keep interest rates low, with the discount rate remaining at 2 to 2.5 percent.

The U.S. dollar is expected to remain strong against most other currencies, with the exchange rate for the dollar against the euro expected to remain around 1.5 to 1.6.

The housing market is expected to remain stable, with home prices increasing at a rate of 5 to 6 percent. The median home price is expected to reach $200,000.

The stock market is expected to remain strong, with the Dow Jones Industrial Average expected to rise to 1,100.

The 1965 economy will be a challenging year, but the economy is expected to perform well, with growth and stability expected.

Hong Kong's Problem: Surplus Money

BY JIM McGREGOR

Hong Kong (AP) - A few years ago, the Chinese mainland was the biggest financial wasteland in the world. Now, the People's Republic is a billion-dollar-a-year borrower with a budget surplus of several billion dollars, a situation that's causing a headache in Hong Kong.

The trouble is that the $1 billion of today is being replaced by $1.5 billion of tomorrow - and what are you going to do with that extra $500 million? It's a problem because most of the surplus comes from the finance sector, which has been a driving force in the economy.

The government of China, of course, has been helping out, but people are pouring money into the free port, where products arrive duty-free. Now tourists swarm in at a rate of half a million a year.

Why Death Costs Are High

By MARY TRILEY

Today's problem: Why death costs are high.

Dear Miss Triley:

Can you help me find a place where I can buy a casket? I have a brother who will be five years old in six months. I want to know how much it will cost and what kind of casket I should buy.

Dear Mrs. Triley:

I would like to know what the average costs are for a funeral. I have a mother who is over 80 years old and I don't want her to die alone. I also want to know if there are any services that are more affordable than others.

Dear Miss Triley:

I am planning a wedding and I am concerned about the costs. I want to know if there are any ways to save money on the wedding and if there are any places where I can get discounts.

Dear Mrs. Triley:

I am a single parent and I am trying to figure out how to afford my child's college education. I want to know what options are available and if there are any scholarships or grants that I can apply for.

Dear Miss Triley:

I am a business owner and I am worried about the high costs of doing business. I want to know if there are any ways to save money on utilities and how I can reduce my expenses.
GOP State Senators Have Problem: To Pick Leaders

TRENTON (AP) — All their other problems, New Jersey's eight Republican state senators are facing the most crucial of all: How to select leaders for the body they will soon be in charge of.

They must choose leaders from their own ranks or let Majority Leader Charles W. Sandman Jr. of Cape May take over the job on his own. Sandman is the only senator who publicly opposes the creation of a leadership team, and he has thrown his hat in the ring in a big way.

On the surface, the problems of the Senate leadership are simple. The Republican senators have a majority of 26 to 18 over the Democratic faction, and their goal is to solidify that majority into a powerful team that has a clear agenda.

But beneath the surface, the problems are complex. The Senate is a highly competitive body, and the competition for leadership positions is fierce. The senators are young, ambitious, and hungry for power.

``It's a tough job, but someone has to do it,'' said one Republican senator. ``We need a strong leadership team to guide us through the legislative session and ensure our program is implemented.''

The senators have already held several meetings to discuss the leadership issue, but they are far from reaching a consensus. The most likely candidates for the top spots are Majority Leader Charles W. Sandman Jr., Minority Leader Sen. Robert C. Frasher, and Appropriations Committee Chairman Charles B. Deschamps Jr.

``We need a leader who can unite us and guide us, not just a powerbroker who seeks to dominate,'' said one senator.

Meanwhile, the Democratic faction is watching the Senate leadership battle with keen interest. They are hoping to capitalize on any divisions among the Republican senators and make gains in the coming session.

``We need to keep the Senate on the defensive, not on the offensive,'' said one Democratic senator. ``We need to be prepared to take advantage of any weakness in the Republican ranks.''

The Senate leadership battle will likely continue throughout the coming weeks, as the senators work to find a way forward. The stakes are high, and the outcome could have significant implications for the state's legislative agenda.
Sears—Red Bank To Middletown

For Mary Meeker
A Store’s Closing
Stirs Memories

The bath was the scene in 1950 when Sears opened its doors to new arrivals at the price of $2,000. Boy, we used to get dirty," said Meeker, who has worked for the store for 31 years.

She is now closing for the last time tomorrow night.

"I still remember the day I sold my first radio," said Meeker. "I sold a radio for $40 and it was worth $60."

The store will be closing for the last time tomorrow night. The management has decided to pull out of Red Bank.

Mrs. Meeker belongs to the Women’s Auxiliary of the Red Bank chapter of the American Red Cross.

The store is located at 140 White St.

Here's the Answer

QUESTIONs: The middle of each of our minds is a puzzle, wouldn't you say? Sometimes it seems as though we're not even trying to solve it, just sitting back and watching it happen. Is there a reason for this?

No, there is no reason. It's just a naturally occurring process. It's all part of the puzzle. Now, if you could just solve it, we might be able to understand it better.

ANSWER: When dry rot appears in a wooden structure, it is an indication that there is unsatisfactory moisture and/or deterioration. This can lead to the development of a fungus-like growth that will weaken the wood and eventually cause it to collapse. It is important to address this issue as soon as possible to prevent further damage.

Fall Seeded Lawns Need Mowing Now

If you're planning to plant a new lawn this fall, it's important to mow the existing lawn before planting. This will help prevent the new grass from becoming too established before it can take root. It's also important to mow the lawn regularly to keep it healthy and prevent weeds from growing.

Revenue-Shy New State May Vote in Off-Track Bets

In Newark—New Jersey legislators—now having the votes to do so—will have the issue of legalized off-track betting put to a vote of the people in the first week in January.

The state senate today passed a resolution authorizing Governor Brendan Byrne to call an election to vote on off-track betting. The House will vote on the resolution Wednesday.

Byrne has said previously that he favors off-track betting.

"This is a decision the people of New Jersey need to make," Byrne said today. "They have the right to vote on this issue if they wish to do so."
LEADING BROWN'S TO PRO HONORS — The Cleveland Browns continue their drive for the divisional crown of the National Football League, and inside the world's life, as they go into the home stretch of the season with a five-game winning streak. The Browns last lost to the Dallas Cowboys at Chicago Stadium in Week Four. Since then, the Browns have averaged more than 30 points a game, and with a perfect record of 10-0, the Cleveland faithful are reaching for the sky. The Browns face the Los Angeles Rams next Sunday at the Coliseum, with a chance to clinch the divisional title. The Rams are 8-2 and need a win to keep their playoff hopes alive.

Blue Chip Riders in Gardenia Race

The Gardenia, one of the most prestigious races of the season, is set for Saturday, November 6th, at Gardenia Racetrack. The race is a Grade I event and is typically a test for the best older horses. The field is expected to include several top contenders, including the defending champion, Blue Chip Rider. Other top horses expected to compete include Gardenia Belle, Gardenia Gold, and Gardenia Star. The race is a stakes race, and the winner will receive a purse of $500,000.

Neptune Wins Crown in South

As Southern Freehold is Beaten

Freehold — Neptune High School fell on a penalty kick to the Southern Freehold Regional, 2-1, in the South Jersey B Group final on Monday. Neptune, who was seeded first, has not tasted victory in a South Jersey final since 1989. The hosts were full of footballs tonight at Freehold Regional, for the title.

TOMORROW'S GAMES

Football

FAIR HAVEN — Posting a 3-0 record, the host Blue Devils will have to stop the Blue Devils' passing attack to win. Neptune 4, Long Branch 5, Asbury Park 6, Lakemont Regional 10, Southern Freehold Regional.

LAKEWOOD — While Freehold hasn't tasted victory, on a hunch, we'll go for the host Rockets. Raritan 2-3-1, Pleasant, which is 2-4 on the seaibtt. Raritan is 2-3-1.

RARITAN TOWNSHIP — Ship — A tough one to pick. We haven't seen Point Pleasant but based on their 1-5 record, they should be full of footballs tonight at Freehold Regional.

KEYPORT — The Colonials. Other scorers for the Middletown 5-0 team have lost five in a row. Those two figures give Middletown just too big and too though a RBC win would salvage something out of a disastrous season.

Piners (5-0-1) to win. LAKEWOOD.
