Democratic Post Goes To Burkhardt

TRENTON (AP)-The Democratic state committee has named Richard J. Burkhardt, 45, of Trenton, its new chairman.

Burkhardt, who has been active in New Jersey politics for many years, is a former Democratic state committee chairman who was defeated in the last election. He has been involved in several key campaigns and has held various positions in the party organization.

Burkhardt replaces John J. Meyner, who resigned last week after a long political career.

The Democratic state committee, which is responsible for running the party's campaigns, has been divided in recent months. It has been unable to agree on a platform or a set of candidates for the upcoming elections.

The committee has been dominated by a group of moderate Democrats who favor a more centrist approach to politics. However, there is a growing faction of conservative Democrats who are calling for a more conservative agenda.

Burkhardt, who is known for his moderate views, is expected to bring stability to the committee and help to unite the party.

Again, at the new committee meeting, The Daily Register, Trenton, will be held in the afternoon at the Mill Street Building.

The committee will discuss the state of the Democratic party and its plans for the upcoming elections.

Gite Conflicting Testimony

By WILBUR MARTIN
WASHINGTON (AP)-Sen. Goldwater's surprise appearance on the Senate floor yesterday to deliver the explanation he has given to the Securities and Exchange Commission in his role in the campaign finance scandal raised questions about the credibility of the commission's investigation.

Sen. Goldwater, a Republican from Arizona, has been accused of violating campaign finance laws by receiving and using funds from a third party, the Committee for the Re-election of the President, to finance his 1964 presidential campaign.

Goldwater, who was a leading figure in the anti-communist movement, has denied the charges and has said he did nothing wrong.

But yesterday, Goldwater took the stand in his own defense, saying that he had turned over all the documents to the SEC.

However, the SEC has not been able to verify the accuracy of Goldwater's statements, and it has asked for more information.

The SEC's investigation has been criticized by some for being too lenient on Goldwater, who was accused of a crime for which many other politicians have been punished.

But Goldwater's appearance before the commission has raised questions about its ability to conduct a fair and impartial inquiry.

Goldwater's testimony has also raised questions about the motives of the anti-communist movement, which has been accused of promoting policies that are contrary to the interests of the United States.

The SEC's investigation continues, and it is expected to be completed in the near future.

The Shoplifting Problem

It is unfortunate that at this time of year Red Bank's merchants have to concern themselves with the economical problem of shoplifting.

The festive season is a time when shoplifting very often hits its peak. Without going into the details, the Red Bank Community Chamber of Commerce has undertaken a campaign to help combat the situation. This has been a wise move, one in which all merchants are urged to participate.

Shoplifting is a growing problem. In Monmouth County, millions of dollars of merchandise are stolen through the year, and, in a number of cases, the thieves are hard-pressed in the face of stiff competition. They find their profits dwindling as they lose their stock and install expensive devices and add personnel to keep pace with the competition.

Those who shoplift need help and special attention. Many merchants have an excellent record as a consequence. It is a fact that, in some of the better stores, the honesty of the clientele has kept the shoplifters away. But, we cannot let the season go without a word of praise for the many who are working hard to make their record a better one, while, at the same time, they are getting the alarm systems, which have been placed all over town.

During the season merchants in the state are retiring a program designed to help, although several hold offices in the local business community.

The Local Business Scene

A look at police reports and accidents in the state reveals that shoplifters are on the move not only in Monmouth County but also in other county commercial areas and shopping centers.

A recent accident involving a car and a bicycle is a case in point. The situation is grave, and the merchants have to concern themselves with the problem.

Ocean Plans New Controls for Apartment Building

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — The Ocean Township Council is planning to begin making small amendments to a long-standing zoning ordinance to curtail the number of rental units in apartment buildings.

The council will vote Tuesday, March 2, on whether to amend its March 2, 1970, ordinance.

The ordinance would prohibit changes in the gross area of apartments in buildings that were under construction in 1970. It also requires the total number of people in an apartment to be within the zoning limit for that area.
