Advice To Reservists: Just Wait

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Air Force is still right out for the switch to the draft by 1970, an Air Force official said today, despite the withdrawal of the U.S. from Vietnam and its isolation abroad.

"There's no real change in the policy," said the official, speaking on condition that the name not be used.

The Air Force had been looking into the possibility of bringing officers on active duty to fill at least the first cadre for the draft. The Air Force also is considering a plan to train reservists for use in Vietnam.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

The recent upsurge in the value of stocks has attracted many investors who are not familiar with the complexities of the market. It is important to remember that investing is a long-term process that requires patience and a sound strategy.

Investment strategies

There are several strategies that investors can use to maximize their returns. One approach is to diversify your portfolio by investing in a variety of stocks, bonds, and other financial instruments. This can help to reduce the risk of losing money in any one investment.

Another strategy is to focus on long-term growth by investing in companies that are well-established and have a strong track record of profitability. This can be especially effective if you are looking to build a retirement fund or to invest for your children's future.

High-yield bonds

High-yield bonds, also known as junk bonds, are a popular investment option for those looking for high returns. However, it is important to be aware of the risks involved in investing in these bonds, as they tend to be more volatile than other types of investments.

It is recommended that you consult with a financial advisor before making any investment decisions. They can help you to understand the risks and potential rewards associated with different investment options.

In conclusion, investing is a complex process that requires careful consideration. By understanding the basics of investing and developing a sound strategy, you can increase your chances of achieving your financial goals.

House GOP Meets Today; May Change Leadership

By WALTER EDMUNDS

In Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leaders met today to talk of a change in leadership, but nothing specific about the program.

Primes, several of the House's ranking members publicly opposed to Speaker John L. McCormack, privately expressed the hope that McCormack would resign as Speaker in the wake of the recent internal Republican revolt.

The coup attempt by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., and others to topple McCormack as Speaker last month failed to win the support of the majority of the House, but the Republicans said the revolt had accelerated the Speaker's popularity.

In this category is long-tenured McCormack, whose deputies and administration have been weakened by the factionalism of the right wing of the Republican party in the last Congress.

However, the leadership battle for the Speaker's chair is not as serious as the Republican revolt against the Speaker's policies and administration.

For months, there has been an active social isolation of McCormack's Republican colleagues, many of whom have been critical of the Speaker's management of the House and his support of the Democratic party.

It is expected that McCormack will be named as Speaker by a vote of at least 21 days on Tuesday night.

In this leadership matter with the

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty years ago this month, the Battle of the Bulge raged on in the Belgium-Bavarian borderlands. The Germans, under the command of Gen. Erwin Rommel, mounted a surprise offensive that many believed would split the Allied forces and lead to a German victory. However, the Allies held firm, and the battle became one of the most decisive campaigns of World War II, with the Allies emerging victorious.

The Germans had hoped to take the position in the center of the Allied lines, but their attempt was thwarted by the Allied forces. The battle continued for three months, with both sides suffering heavy losses. In the end, the Allies emerged victorious, and the battle is often considered the turning point of the war in the West.

The battle was fought in some of the worst weather conditions imaginable, with temperatures dropping to below freezing. The Allies were able to hold the position in the center of the Allied lines, and the battle is often considered the turning point of the war in the West.

Landmark Decisions

1. The Dred Scott decision of 1857. This decision overturned the Missouri Compromise, which had prohibited slavery in territories acquired from Mexico. Dred Scott, a slave, sued for his freedom after having lived in free territories. The Supreme Court ruled against him, declaring that Congress could not prohibit slavery in the territories and that slaves were not citizens with a right to sue in federal courts.

2. The Civil Rights Cases of 1883. This decision declared the Civil Rights Act of 1875 unconstitutional, stating that Congress could not pass laws to enforce the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment. This decision, known as "Scopes v. United States," overturned the 1896 decision by saying that the right to equal protection was not explicitly granted by the Constitution.

3. The Plessy v. Ferguson decision of 1896. This decision upheld the "separate but equal" clause of the 14th Amendment, allowing for segregation in public facilities as long as they were equal in all respects. This decision effectively legalized segregation in the South and was not overturned until 1954.

4. The Brown v. Board of Education decision of 1954. This decision overturned Plessy v. Ferguson and declared that segregation in public schools was unconstitutional. It was a landmark decision in the fight for civil rights and set the stage for further legal challenges against segregation.

5. The decision Monday. This is the decision of the Supreme Court on the 1954 Brown v. Board of Education case that overturned segregation in public schools.

6. The Court completely reversed itself, decreeing that the 14th Amendment only prohibited discrimination under state law or orders and did not provide for federal intervention in such matters.

Marine Lab Studies Pesticide Danger

By MARINELING ALLEN

Even small amounts of pesticides are poisons to fish. Despite all of our efforts to control their use, marine scientists are discovering how capable they are to do damage.

Wiribald Eisler, marine biologist at Sandy Hook Marine Laboratory, is studying the effects of pesticides on marine life. He is particularly concerned with the problem of salt water fish, the most susceptible of all marine life to the effects of pesticides.

His investigation is one of the most advanced types of salt water fish studies ever undertaken. Eisler's findings, to date, indicate that pesticides are indeed more poisonous to salt water fish than detergents.

Eisler's experiments have shown that fish exposed to pesticides excrete more protein, more fat and more cholesterol. This means that the fish are more susceptible to heart disease.

Eisler is also studying the effects of pesticides on the growth of salt water fish. His experiments have shown that fish exposed to pesticides grow slower than those not exposed.

Eisler's findings also indicate that pesticides are more poisonous to salt water fish than detergents. This is because detergents are not metabolized by fish, whereas pesticides are.

Eisler's findings are causing serious concern among marine scientists. They are recommending that the use of pesticides be banned in salt water areas.

The use of pesticides in salt water areas is believed to be the cause of a number of problems in marine life. These include the following:

1. Pesticides are more poisonous to salt water fish than detergents.
2. Pesticides are more poisonous to salt water fish than other chemicals.
3. Pesticides are more poisonous to salt water fish than other pollutants.

Eisler's findings will be presented at the American Society of Environmental Scientists meeting in Chicago next month.

Did you know that the tradition of Christmas trees comes from Germany? It was first introduced in the 16th century by Martin Luther, who decorated his own home with a tree. Over time, this custom spread throughout Europe and eventually to the United States.

In the 18th century, German settlers brought the tradition of the Christmas tree to America. Today, the tree is a cherished part of many homes, especially during the holiday season. The tree is decorated with lights, ornaments, and often candles, which are said to represent the light of Jesus. The tree is also a symbol of peace and goodwill among people.

This year, when you are shopping for your Christmas tree, consider the history behind the tradition and the cultural significance it holds. Happy Holidays!

Lyned, who homes here with a "Mathematical Christmas

Steel workers and management are pushing industrial production at near record rate.

NEW YORK (AP) - While the steel and auto industries are back performing at a record level for the long run, comparatively high wages and high material costs are still creating problems for the two giant industries.

The steel and auto industries have been expanding, and taking cases even allotments, and the demand for their products. Many customers are planning to build up inventories through the first months of 1965. The steel output has been running at more than 2.4 million tons each week, and last year has been the high mark of steel production. On the auto side, the two giants are helping swell the demand for their products.

In steel the long run of high money for wages and materials. Steel's customers have been pushing the industrial output to new highs. "Steel's customers have been pushing the industrial output to new highs," Steve Nason, chairman of the National Commission.

The wage talks themselves have also taken on new dimensions, and the parties are working as a team. The labor-management talks are more friendly and constructive.

Curriculum Evaluation Discussed

The Daily Register - Dec. 16, 1964

Curriculum Evaluation Discussed

The curriculum evaluation and the various weaknesses that have been responsible for its loss of appeal have been the subject of discussion at the school district meeting. The board of education, in a comprehensive review, has identified several areas where improvements can be made. The evaluation has been conducted in three main areas:

1. Educational Standards
   - The current standards have been found to be outdated and need updating.
   - There is a need for more standardized testing to ensure consistency in education.

2. Resource Allocation
   - The distribution of resources is uneven, with some departments receiving more support than others.
   - There is a need for a more equitable distribution of resources to ensure all students receive a quality education.

3. Teacher Development
   - There is a lack of professional development opportunities for teachers.
   - An increased focus on ongoing professional development is necessary to keep teachers up-to-date.

The board has also discussed the need for more parental involvement in the curriculum evaluation process. Parents have been invited to provide feedback and participate in the decision-making process. The goal is to ensure that the curriculum is relevant and responsive to the needs of today's students.

The board will continue to work with educators and community members to address these issues and improve the curriculum for the benefit of all students.
