Time for Courage

The voters in Middletown should be urged to accept the advice of professional planners who, when they voted against a $40 million urban renewal plan, left the borough — the rest of the county government — in a less than defensible position. This is a new frontier in the contemporary housing debate.

The borough, which is one of the most densely populated in the state, is also one of the most neglected in terms of public services. It has been left to its own devices, with the result that the future of the borough is in grave danger. The voters, in their wisdom, have decided to take matters into their own hands and to fight for a better future for their community.

To the Editor:

Your support is greatly appreciated.

Youths Take State Police Training

A couple of hundred students, including Monmouth County high school freshmen, are among the approximately 1,000 students who are participating in the 70th annual Tri-County Youth Work Camp, under the auspices of the N.J. Police Academy. The camp has been in operation since 1930.

The camp, which is sponsored by the N.J. State Police, is designed to acquaint young people with the various aspects of law enforcement and public safety.

Youths Take State Police Training

The camp is open to students from all over the state and is conducted in a series of sessions, each lasting one week. The students are divided into groups and receive instruction from police officers, firemen, and other public safety officials.

The camp provides a comprehensive understanding of law enforcement and public safety, giving participants a glimpse into the world of law enforcement and public safety officials.

Youths Take State Police Training

The camp provides an opportunity for students to learn about the various aspects of law enforcement and public safety, including police procedures, emergency response, and community policing.

Youths Take State Police Training

The camp is conducted in a safe and secure environment, and participants are supervised by experienced instructors.

Asman’s Mood of Antiquity

By ELEANOR MARKO

The Daily Register

The daily routine of the New York Telephone Company office was rich with an abundance of color and artistic expression. "Fishing Boat No. 2," a 1967 oil on canvas, adds to the mood, which the artist describes as "rituitu," a word he uses to describe his work. Asman’s mood of antiquity is manifested in the precision of craftsmanship, which projects a sense of nature freshly seen as a man in time and space. Asman’s instinct for color and mixed media was evident in his work, which was described as having an "antique" feel. The intimate work in powerful color and mixed media was given by the artist to the Art Auxiliary of Monmouth Medical Center, which acquired it as an important addition to the permanent collection. A distinguished award was given to Asman in recognition of his work.

There are no moral messages in Asman’s work. Aside from the pursuit of color and mixed media, there is a coincidence in the corridors of the medical center, which is on view to the public. Asman’s work Intriguing. His me-

Here's to Health.

When the Blood Gets Tired

By RALPH HART, M.D.

One of the primary obstacles to maintaining health is the frequent breaking down of blood. In order to understand this problem more clearly, we must first consider the way in which our blood is maintained.

The basic unit of the blood is the red blood cell. Each of these cells is approximately the size of a period at the end of a sentence. It is filled with a thick, sticky substance called hemoglobin, which contains the oxygen that the blood carries to the tissues. When the body's oxygen needs increase, as they do during physical activity, the heart pumps more blood to the muscles, and the red blood cells are stimulated to produce more hemoglobin.

There are various kinds of anemia. The most common is iron-deficiency anemia, caused by the lack of iron in the diet. Other causes include chronic infection, and protein-deficiency anemia, where the diet is low in protein. In all cases, the production of red blood cells is impaired, and the oxygen-carrying capacity of the blood is reduced.

Anemia is often a misnomer. For in anemia as advertised, the oxygen content of the blood is decreased, but the cause is not necessarily a deficiency of red blood cells. Often, the problem is with the hemoglobin, which is the protein that carries oxygen. If the hemoglobin is damaged, the blood cannot carry as much oxygen as it should.

In some cases, the damage to the hemoglobin can be repaired, and the blood will become normal again. However, in other cases, the problem is more serious. The blood may become so damaged that it cannot carry enough oxygen to the body's tissues. This can lead to symptoms such as fatigue, weakness, and shortness of breath.

Pregnancy is a particularly vulnerable time for the body. The blood volume increases dramatically during pregnancy, and the body must work harder to transport enough oxygen to the tissues. If the hemoglobin is already damaged, the problem can become even more severe.

However, there are ways to improve the blood's ability to carry oxygen. One of the best ways is to increase the production of red blood cells. This can be done by eating a diet rich in iron and other essential nutrients. Regular exercise also helps to improve the body's ability to transport oxygen to the tissues.

In conclusion, anemia is often a misnomer. It is important to understand the true cause of the problem and to take steps to improve the body's ability to transport oxygen to the tissues. With proper treatment, anemia can be overcome, and the health of the body can be restored.

What Route for Freehold?

BASIL V. PANE

FREEHOLD — County Under-writer John Neu of Freehold is convinced that as the work on the new highway between Middletown and Keansburg proceeds, the need for an official route map for Freehold, Keansburg and the area will become increasingly more apparent.

He feels that the highway will prove to be a valuable asset to all communities involved, and that the delays and confusion which now exist will be greatly reduced.

Mr. Neu has been working on the project for several years, and has been involved in the planning and design of the highway from the early stages. He feels that the project will provide a much-needed connection between the two towns, and will greatly improve the traffic flow in the area.

The highway will be a major investment for the county, and Mr. Neu believes that it will be worth the cost in the long run.

He hopes that the project will be completed as soon as possible,
and that the benefits will be seen simultaneously.

The freeholders are also very enthusiastic about the project, and are committed to seeing it through to completion.

The county will continue to monitor the progress of the project, and will seek to ensure that it is completed as quickly as possible.

The freeholders are confident that the highway will be a great benefit to the area, and will help to improve the overall quality of life for everyone involved.

A Sauce That Glorifies the Meat

Barbecue on the River's Edge

By MARQUET SMITH
LOST Lilly — During the hot summer we usually have little fun. They may be addled, and the river's edge seems to be an extension of the pool. All the excitement of our outdoor activities is still in the view from Nymo's Rd. Croquet is still a game. There is still a lot of freedom at the edge. The view from the coffee house seems to be a place to go for refreshment.

THE SAUCE MAKES THE DIFFERENCE — Especially in Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Jansen's barbecue sauce. Park City meets just about any kind of meat for barbecue cooking. While peasing with the paintbrushes, Jansen said, "I usually have it part of it for Free." (Special Staff Photo)

Mays Will Be Missing
In Starting NL Outfield

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays will be missing from the San Francisco outfield in the World Series because the players' manager is returning to the minor leagues.

Mays, 24, returned to his home in Orlando, Fla., on Friday night to care for his ailing mother back home. The seven-time all-star missed Monday's game after a grueling National League Division Series that ended on Saturday night.

On Sunday, Mays' family announced that his mother, Virginia, was taken to hospital in Orlando after suffering a heart attack. She has been in a coma since.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost the championship series to the San Francisco Giants, are now searching for a suitable replacement for Mays in center field.
