Disorders Hit Paterson
For 3rd Straight Night

EAST RUTHERFORD (AP) — A third night of disorders ousted of the Puerto Rican section of Paterson was a victory for Mayor James V. Kratz and the New Jersey State Police when the city's law enforcement agencies restored order in what had been a troubled area.

Kratz, who has been in office for less than a year, has made fighting crime his top priority. He has worked with the state police to increase patrols in the city's most trouble spots.

The latest incident occurred early this morning when a group of people began to throw rocks and other objects at passing vehicles. Police were called to the scene and were able to quickly restore order.

Kratz has said that the city's problems are due in part to the presence of illegal drugs and that he plans to work with the state police to get tough on crime.

The city has been wracked by a series of violent incidents in recent months, including a shooting that left a 14-year-old boy dead. The city has also seen an increase in the number of reports of drug dealing.

Kratz has said that he plans to work with the state police to get tough on crime and to make Paterson a safer place for residents.

New Move on Disarmament

The reporting this week of the nuclear weapons talks was significa-tive not only in its own right —
but also because it marked a signif-ificant step toward the prevention of a nuclear arms race. The talks were begun at the United Nations last week, and are expected to continue throughout the summer. They will involve discussions on the possibility of a nuclear test ban, and may lead to the establishment of a nuclear-free zone in the Middle East.

Time to End

It is time for the US to begin a realistic approach to the nuclear arms race. The US has been ignoring the risks of nuclear war for far too long. It is time to end the nuclear arms race and work for a world free of nuclear weapons.

School Superintendent Has a 'Complete Day'

By JOHN MURPHY

LONG BRANCH - The school superintendent, a man in touch with his world, the world of his school district, the world of his profession, was seen in all its various aspects yesterday in his office at the Garfield School, as he charted the sea of his work, a day which culminated yesterday, with the completion of the first week of the new school term.

In his office, Mr. Meskill was on the phone, a machine which was finally reported "dry" at 4:30 p.m., following numerous refills.

School band to perform for thousands of Jets' fans and audience will include new uniforms

By Byline

Hunterdon, N.Y. (AP) - The Hunterdon County School Band will again be heard at the Meadowlands tomorrow night in its annual pre-season concert for the 80,000 fans who will attend the Giants' game with the New York Giants.

The concert will be held at 8 p.m. at the Meadowlands Stadium and will feature the band's new uniforms.

The band's uniform program was introduced last season and has been a huge success.

The new uniforms consist of black pants, white shirts, and black shoes.

The concert will also feature a special guest, Dr. Robert F. Murphy, who will perform a selection from his new album, "Music for a National Pastime," which is based on the poetry of Billy Collins.

The band's conductor, Mr. John A. Murphy, said the new uniforms were chosen to give the band a more professional look.

"The new uniforms are going to be a big hit," Murphy said.

"We're excited to be able to show them off to the public."
Monmouth Oaks
To Dark Mirage

By BY CUNNINGHAM

In the final race of the day, Dark Mirage attained the fulfillment of a prophecy. As a two-year-old filly, she had been the favorite in her debut. But she faced new foes in the $300,000 Hennessy Stakes at Aqueduct. A three-year-old colt named Winning Time was among the longshots. The race was won by Dark Mirage, who galloped away to victory.

Baird, Fusnetch Tie Buck

The Monmouth Park jockey whose name is synonymous with horse racing, Teach Baird, turned in a two-for-two performance on the turf yesterday. He won both races on Dark Mirage, and then came back to win aboard the 10th for the final score.

Billy Jean Slams Her Way To Wimbledon Finals

In winning the $54,650 Monmouth Oaks Daily Racing Form Handicap at Aqueduct in New York yesterday. He then turned in a two-for-two performance on the turf yesterday. Dark Mirage won the 10th for the final score.
Trap and Skeet Shooting Grows

By DICK FIELDS

Trap and skeet shooting have become popular sports for many years. While not widely known in some places, they are gaining in popularity across the country. A recent trend in skeet shooting has been the introduction of the new trap shooting, which involves shooting at clay targets thrown from a low conical. This is a popular sport because of the challenge it presents to shooters, as well as the excitement of capturing the targets. The first Wachter Family Shooting Center was built in New Jersey in 1958, followed by others in 1959 and 1960.

The second day of the season, a team from New Jersey, known as the Shoreliners, began their season by shooting at a skeet target. They were escorted around the course by a guide, and were taught the techniques of shooting at targets. This was the first time that the Shoreliners had participated in a skeet shooting event, and they were eager to learn as much as they could. They were also excited to see how much they could improve their skills.

The Shoreliners continued to participate in skeet shooting events throughout the season, and were able to improve their skills significantly. As a result, they were able to participate in national competitions, and were able to win several awards. They continued to shoot at the Wachter Family Shooting Center, and were able to practice regularly, which helped them improve their skills. They were able to continue to participate in national competitions, and were able to win several awards.

Interest Boost Seen Building ‘Shot-in-Arm’

By JIM KENNEY

RED BANK — County banks have been quoted at 11 per cent and satisfied with the increase in the ceiling of the loan market. The banks, however, do not foresee any immediate change in the interest rate.

For the average consumer, the increase in the ceiling would mean a decrease in the interest rate. However, for the individual who needs a loan, it would mean a higher interest rate. The banks, therefore, are not planning any immediate changes in their lending policies.

The increase in the ceiling is expected to improve the economy of the state, as it will allow banks to lend more money at lower interest rates. This, in turn, will encourage consumers to borrow more, which will stimulate economic growth.

The increase in the ceiling is also expected to help banks compete with other financial institutions, such as savings and loan associations and credit unions. This competition will force banks to offer lower interest rates, which will benefit consumers.

In addition, the increase in the ceiling will provide banks with a greater pool of funds to lend. This will allow banks to offer more loans and to lend larger amounts.

The banks are, however, not expecting any immediate increase in the demand for loans. They believe that the increase in the ceiling will take some time to take effect.

Despite the increase in the ceiling, the banks are still cautious about lending. They are still monitoring the economic conditions and are prepared to adjust their lending policies if necessary.

However, the banks are pleased with the increase in the ceiling. They believe that it will be a significant boost to the economy and to their lending operations.

Plane to Phoenix Without Taking Off

By BYRON DURHOL

There's a plan by the U.S. Conference of Mayors to make Phoenix, Arizona, the official destination of America's mayors, and it's not just about city tourism.

The idea is to bring mayors from across the country to Phoenix for the annual conference, where they can network and learn about the latest trends in urban development and governance. The conference will take place from October 17 to 20, and registration is now open.

But why Phoenix? For one, it's a hotbed of innovation and growth, with a diverse population and a thriving tech industry. It's also a city with a vibrant arts and culture scene, and a host of outdoor activities that make it a great place to visit.

In addition to the conference, there will be a variety of events and activities for attendees to enjoy, including tours of local attractions and opportunities to meet with Phoenix residents.

So mark your calendars and plan your trip to Phoenix! You won't want to miss out on all the exciting things that are happening there.
