The Inside Story

Monmouth crawls back from storm

By DAVID TURVER

Vermont county residents posted their cards and battled through their overburdened public transportation system, school and shopping today, after a busy Monday that included the state's First National Bank's Department Store robbery.

The Register prints full press run

By ALFRED TURVER

The Register was the only newspaper to print a full press run on Monday and Tuesday.

The weather was barefaced and unrelenting, but The Daily Register ran for full press runs on Monday and Tuesday.

With the supply of its paper at great importance and the regulation of its home delivery operation an important concern, the newspaper was able to produce its daily edition.

Many readers have called The Register's main office in Shrewsbury expressing support at receiving the paper — but had difficulty for the opportunity to know what is happening locally in the newspaper.

It was reported that the newspaper's home delivery operation was affected, and that the delivery operation was not able to be fully resumed.

Hence, because of bad road conditions, we were unable to produce the Monday and Tuesday editions of the newspaper.

But The Daily Register stands firm and stable, and the delivery operation will be continued.

Dennis B. Nutting, editorial director of the New York City and Daily Register, said: "We have always made every effort to ensure that The Daily Register is available to our readers, and we are pleased to announce that the delivery operation will be resumed.

We appreciate the support of our readers during this difficult time, and we look forward to continued service in the future.

The Daily Register is available at a cost of $1.50 per week, and subscriptions are available by calling the newspaper's main office at 1-800-555-1234.

New England hurt

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) - Mayor Charles P. Morin said yesterday that the storm in the upper New England states yesterday to make sure that it didn't become "another Boston."

The mayor turned down by federal aid because it didn't have damage. "We have to evaluate costs eventually and document them before declaring this a disaster area. There's no advantage in doing it now," Morin said.

The governor inspected the wear in Long Branch and put the blame on area roads, then learned more about the storm in Monmouth and Ocean Counties before leaving. "I got the report this morning," Gov. Byrne is trying to apply for federal aid after the storm, the governor's office said.

"The governor's blue and white truck is now down," the governor said. "It's the worst storm I've ever seen along the coast. It was disastrous seeing all the damage."

The governor will evaluate the damage for at least two days before deciding whether to send federal disaster funds or to back up an emergency ap-

Ocean's government

At a forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters to assess Oregon coastal free-market libertarianism, there was a lot of discussion about the nature of government. People talked about how to limit the power of elected officials and how to make government more responsive to the needs of citizens. The forum was facilitated by a panel of experts who discussed various aspects of government, including budgeting, taxation, and public transportation. The panelists emphasized the importance of accountability and transparency in government decision-making. They also highlighted the need for citizens to stay informed and engaged in the political process.

Ash Wednesday

Today Christians around the world observe Ash Wednesday, which is the first day of the Christian Lenten season. Ash Wednesday is a day of penance and repentance for the sins of the past year. The ashes are symbolized as a reminder of mortality, and the cross is made to indicate the redemptive work of Christ. The ashes are used to symbolize the burden of sin and the need for repentance. The ashes are also used as a reminder of the need for self-discipline and reflection during the Lenten season.

Big John's liquid cure-all

Big John was 30 when we first met, and he had just returned from a trip to the desert. He had been working in the oil industry for many years, and he was eager to share his knowledge of natural remedies with others. He had discovered a mysterious liquid that he claimed could cure all manner of ailments. The liquid was said to be a concentrated form of a plant that had been used by Native Americans for centuries. Big John had spent years experimenting with the liquid, and he was now ready to share his findings with the world.

Credit card holders beware

By JACK ANDERSON

Credit card holders should watch for unexpected charges on their monthly statements. According to a recent report, many credit card companies are adding new fees without notice. The fees are often for things like late payments, minimum payments, and interest charges. These fees can quickly add up and make it difficult for consumers to manage their finances. It is important for credit card holders to be aware of these fees and to understand the terms of their credit card agreements.

Planned parenthood

The Senate investigation, which focused on Planned Parenthood, concluded that the organization had improperly used government funds to perform abortions. The investigation was conducted by the Senate Finance Committee and was based on a series of reports and investigations by other government agencies. The Senate report accused Planned Parenthood of violating federal law by using government funds to perform abortions.

The Right-to-Work Debate

The trend towards right-to-work laws has been gaining momentum in recent years. These laws have been passed in a number of states, and they limit the ability of unions to collect dues from workers. The trend is seen as a way to limit the power of unions and to make it easier for workers to leave unionized workplaces. However, the trend has also been met with resistance from union leaders, who see it as a threat to their ability to represent the interests of workers.

The JOHNSON ADMINISTRATION

New York Times

In the Johnson administration, the focus was on implementing the Great Society programs, which aimed to address social and economic issues. The administration was led by President Lyndon B. Johnson, who was a strong proponent of these programs. The administration was also characterized by a strong emphasis on civil rights and on addressing the war in Vietnam. The Johnson administration was marked by a significant increase in government spending, which was intended to stimulate the economy and to address social and economic issues.

The Liberal Side

It was a bruising year for the Democrats, with the party losing seats in both the House and Senate. The liberal wing of the party was particularly disappointed, with some calling for a more progressive agenda. The party was also criticized for its handling of the war in Vietnam, and there were calls for a more aggressive approach. The liberal wing of the party was also critical of the administration's policies on social welfare, with some calling for more funding for programs like Medicare and Medicaid.

The Source

The source of the problem seems to be a lack of clear communication between the administration and Congress. There are also concerns about the administration's ability to implement its policies effectively. The administration has been criticized for not adequately engaging with Congress, and there are concerns about the administration's ability to work with the opposition party. There are also concerns about the administration's ability to address the economic and social issues facing the country.
Begin probe of Shrewsbury fire

By WARREN RICH

Shrewsbury, N.J. - A county and local fire officials will begin on Monday what they hope will be the beginning of a year-long investigation into the cause of yesterday's fire in the home of Vincent McCue Sr., who was killed when he and his daughter were burned out of the blaze.

The fire, which began and was confined to the cellar of the McCue house in the 500 block of Ocean Avenue, was caused by defective wiring in the house, which was rewired 35 years ago, fire officials said.

Mr. McCue said he spent $400,000 on the renovation of the house, but the electrical system was not installed properly until one of our plows turned the snow into drifts.

Mr. Martelli said he spent about 150,000 on the renovations that were then underway. He said he was prepared to spend more in the future, especially since the structure was a century old.

The fire, which began about 11,000 on the renovation of the house, was caused by defective wiring in the house, which had been 77 years old when it was rewired 35 years ago.

Mr. McCue said the house was sold for 6,000 in 1977 to a Colts Neck contractor, who then redwired the house, but he never lived there.

Mr. Martelli said he spent about 50,000 on the renovations that were then underway. He said he was prepared to spend more in the future, especially since the structure was a century old.

"We always talk about the past," Mr. Martelli said, explaining how the house's design had not changed since the 1940s.

"But I don't know if it had been designed for that," he said.

"It's just that some people hate one plan or another. It's just that some people hate one plan or another. It's just that some people hate one plan or another.

Teen-agers doubtful about quality of life in 10 years

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J.—Although our own country is probably a good guide today as to the future quality of life in the other nations of the world—two nation problems—wartime and postwar, enough, in sufficient energy still inadequately of the world is pretty badly off and will probably get worse. This gloomy prediction by an 18-year-old Iowa high school girl, while perhaps more pessimistic than most, is shared by and will probably get worse.

"Maybe in 10 years there will be an effort to clean up our dirty atmosphere. The air pollution is pitiful now. When I was for the school band and halfway through a song, the noise was so great that only a few could hear. Now the world is in a complete state of confusion. We will have thousands and thousands of cars but no gas to run them. Probably by 1983, we will run out of fuel supplies, I think. Then we will have to try to go back to the horse and buggy stage of living.

FREEHOLD - Freeholder Director Harry Larrtsea Jr. said he believes that County government can only offer its employees a 7.5 percent raise this year because of the increase in the property tax.

"I do not want to get into discussions with the taxpayers regarding the recent demonstration by county employees," said Mr. Larrtsea. "I want to work with the taxpayers and their needs. "This is an important issue in our democracy and we need the taxpayers for the county government to work.

Howard seeks disaster aid

WASHINGTON - About 75 people, including some of the 30,000 New Jersey residents who were affected by the recent Monmouth County storms, gathered at a meeting on Tuesday night to show their support for the Freeholder Director's disaster aid campaign.

"I urge all New Jersey residents to make an effort to help the Freehold area for purposes of obtaining substantial more money with which to expand and improve the freehold area," Mr. Larrtsea urged.

The Freeholder Director's campaign is aiming to raise money to help the Freehold area, which was hit hard by the recent Monmouth County storms.

"I urge all New Jersey residents to make an effort to help the Freehold area for purposes of obtaining substantial more money with which to expand and improve the freehold area," Mr. Larrtsea urged.

County pay offer is defended

The Freeholder Director said that the Freehold area is in need of a complete overhaul and that the Freehold area needs to be improved.

Tales of childhood come back to roost

By ENNA RUMMACK
I remember my childhood years vividly. My parents always emphasized the importance of education and hard work.

The oldest child of four, I recall many happy memories from my childhood. One of my fondest memories was when I went on a picnic with my family at a nearby lake.

"I was so excited to be out in the fresh air and enjoying the sunshine," I said.

The Most Original group dwelt on "Reflections" and were handsomely turned-out as an elderly couple looking back on their lives to the strains of "The Way We Were." Gulp.

Among the participants (dressed to portray babyhood onward) were Renee and Chuck Vincent, Jackie and Joe Oak, Mary and Joe Fahren, Mary and Paul Landaker, Pat and Ed Vigano and June and Blake Prevention.

The Prettiest Couple were Caroline and Nick Sergio, dressed respectively as an angelic angel and a devilish devil.

The Prettiest Single was Ann Gehle (flapper) and Prettiest Group revolved around Bat Man and Robin, with persons dressed up not only as stars of the show, but also as their accompanying characters, such as the Cat Woman, The Joker, Egghead, etc. In the parade were Al Murashko, Lou Torres, Patrolman Leslie Hirsch, Oceanport, chairmen of the Mardi Gras.

The Final Group revolved around Nat Mar and Bob, with persons dressed up not only as stars of the show, but also as their accompanying characters, such as the Cat Woman, The Joker, Egghead, etc. In the parade were Al Murashko, Lou Torres, Patrolman Leslie Hirsch, Oceanport, chairmen of the Mardi Gras.

The Most Original Couple were Jean and Bob Brown, dressed respectively as a hobo and Prettiest Single was Ann Gehle (flapper).

But our hat is off to Walter Mull Jr., the Most Original Single, who was哽咽ly awarded - almost to his knees - in a glorious green hat.

Off to the slopes
Before Dr. and Mrs. James C. Kirby, Rumson, took to the Vermont slopes Sunday — they took to the annual Skidmore College Club cocktail party Saturday, hosted by Mrs. Dorothy Blakelock, Little Silver.

Carol Kirby, you see, is president of the graduates' group, so she had to be there to show her college colors.

Among alumni, friends, parents, etc. were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tryonn, Mr. and Mrs. George Dreaske, Little Silver; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Owen, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Henderson and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith, Rumson; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Fradley; Mr. and Mrs. John Donnelly, Mr. and Mrs. John Crowley; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Finucane; Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Robinson; Little Silver; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ryan; Santa Long Branch, and — all the way from Princeton Junction, Mr. and Mrs. James Moore-Brunell, showing what you might call true spirit.

The Most Beautiful People-John Berth, Mrs. John Berth, East Keansburg, as Cleopatra, and Bud Brehm, Keansburg, as Cleopatra's son, and Bud Brehm, Keansburg, as Cleopatra's son, were voted, respectively, King of Fools and Queen of Gras at St. Catherine's School, East Keansburg.

But everyone sort of agreed that Mrs. Judy Trudel whose entire concept part was her apron was definitely Queen of Gras at Our Lady of the Visitation, the staff that served up the hot and cold buffet.

Berenice and John O'Connor, East Keansburg, and Sue and Carl Dorf, Port Monmouth, were charming of the party that attracted well over a hundred persons. Band members were put into play to choose the best costumed girl (Lettie Martin as Mickey Mouse) and guy (Isabella Berth as Cleopatra).

But Berth, East Keansburg, came as Panacea. Having heard about, we discovered that Raymond Wilson came as The Yellow Fairy, in lieu of blue, simply because she had a green of jangul hair. Now that makes sense.

The Most Beautiful Couple were Caroline and Nick Sergio, crowned respectively as an angelic angel and a devilish devil.

The Most Original Couple were Jean and Bob Brown, dressed respectively as a hobo and a devilish devil.

Bayside is hit hard

The strike by coal miners has caused a shortage of vital coal supplies at electric generating stations in Pennsylvania. The strike, coupled with a greater need for electricity as a result of the severe weather conditions in recent weeks, could result in coal shortages. Shortages of electricity could follow.

Although Jersey Central Power & Light Company burns no coal in New Jersey, we do own a share of a large coal-burning generating station in western Pennsylvania. Also, from time to time, due to generating station outages in New Jersey, we import electricity from that state. Coal shortages could mean we would have to rely on more expensive generating stations that burn expensive fuel oil.

Coal supplies have dwindled and it will take a while to restore them to their normal levels at the many generating stations in Pennsylvania that burn coal.

Therefore, it is essential that we all conserve electricity whenever and wherever possible. Electricity is important to all of us. While we should have enough to go around, our efforts in conserving electricity are particularly important at this time.

An Important Message from Jersey Central Power & Light Company

Coal Supplies Dwindle

Your chances of being audited

If you're at all typical, even before you start on page 2 you're wondering about your chances of being audited — and perhaps being caught by the IRS without good reason.

As a guide, first, whether your return will be selected will be based on whether you've claimed a loss of big deductions.
The IRS also makes random checks of returns, but the odds against your being picked are better than 100 to 1.

If you file Form 1040, for 77 with under $30,000 in adjusted gross income, the odds are you'll be picked for audit are 1 in 12.5 (500 to 1 of never being audited).

If you're a non-business individual with an adjusted gross income of $30,000 or over, your odds on an audit are a very high 1 in 4 of every 100 returns in this class.

If you own a successful incorporated business, the odds are based on the size of your corporate returns; but with an income of $30,000 or over, the odds are 1 in 20 (50 to 1 of never being audited).

If you're individually employed with an income over $50,000, the odds are 1 in 40 (25 to 1 of never being audited).

If you're employed and don't have any income over $1,000, the odds are 1 in 100 (100 to 1 of never being audited).

With a salary of $50,000 or over, the odds are 1 in 20 (50 to 1 of never being audited).

With a salary of $100,000 or over, the odds are 1 in 5 (5 to 1 of never being audited).

In weighing your own odds, a crucial point is how you're going to be picked for an audit. The odds against being picked are based on the size of your corporation and the size of your corporate returns. For example, if you're a small corporation with an income of $10,000 or less, the odds against being picked are 1 in 100 (100 to 1 of never being audited). But if you're a large corporation with an income of $50,000 or over, the odds against being picked are 1 in 10 (10 to 1 of never being audited).

The formula by which the IRS computes the odds against your being picked for audit is not published. But the IRS has said that the odds against your being picked for audit are based on the size of your corporation and the size of your corporate returns.

BUSINESS ANALYSIS

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

For a non-business individual with an income over $25,000, the odds against you being picked for an audit are based on the size of your individual returns and the size of your individual returns. For example, if you're a non-business individual with an income of $25,000 or over, the odds against you being picked for an audit are 1 in 100 (100 to 1 of never being audited). But if you're a non-business individual with an income of $50,000 or over, the odds against you being picked for an audit are 1 in 10 (10 to 1 of never being audited).

Cavaliers get hot in cold coblesum

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Cavaliers had a little surge for the New Orleans fans, but Miller Hiney and the Chicago Bulls had one bigger one waiting for the Philadelphia News.

The Cavaliers had the temerity of trying to take a shot at the Chicago Bulls. The Bulls did it better. They took the shot of the night, literally. But it was another Chicago Bulls effort, after their own 15-game winless streak had ended with a 92-76 victory.

The win was the first of the season for the Bulls, who are 5-2 since the start of the month. The Bulls improved to 14-12 overall.

The Bulls’ defense has been a key to their success. They held the Cavaliers to 35 points in the first half and 48 in the game.

The Bulls also got 17 points from center Kelly Tripucka and 15 from guard Thomas McMillan.

The Bulls led by 10 after one quarter and never looked back.

The final score was 92-76. The Bulls are now 14-12 overall.

Red Wings given boost in bid for playoffs

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Red Wings have been given a boost in their bid for the playoffs with a 1-0 victory over the New York Rangers.

The Rangers had their own chances, but the Red Wings were able to hold on for the win.

Rookie goalie Tom Barrasso made 30 saves for the Red Wings, while Rangers goalie Mike Liut had 22.

The win moves the Red Wings into 3rd place in the Central Division, just one point behind the 1st place Buffalo Sabres.

The University of Massachusetts is scheduled to host the University of Maine tomorrow at 8 p.m. in basketball.

The Minutemen are 16-5 overall and 5-4 in the Atlantic 10 Conference. The Black Bears are 12-9 overall and 3-6 in the conference.

Both teams are coming off losses, with the Minutemen losing to Richmond and the Black Bears to George Mason.

The game is expected to be a close one, with both teams playing for their tournament lives.
Kuhn attempts to free A's

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has launched a new attack on the A's, saying San Francisco's American League team can move to Denver.

"The commissioner feels very strongly we're heading into a real metropolitan market," Kuhn told reporters in San Francisco, California, prior to the California-Colorado game here today.

The elder Banks, who was 83, died of pneumonia. Funeral services were incomplete.

"The mike trip between San Francisco stadium here and the Phillies' spring training base at Clearwater, Fla., to benefit muscular dystrophy had been scheduled to get under way Monday.

Heather Lumby, 14, a student at Christ Church Grammar School, was pronounced dead at Vauxhall. She had been returning from a swimming lesson.

"It's what they call in the trade a situation," said a television sports commentator.

In other action, third-seeded Betty Stove of the Netherlands defeated Faye Howard of San Antonio, 6-3, 6-1, in the first round.

The 26-year-old Dibbs smashed Hiqueras 6-0, 6-3 as Ramirez reached the quarter-finals of the week-long tournament with a 8-3, 7-6 victory over Jimmy Ellis. All de- fends his title against Leon Spinks on Feb. 15.

In a doubles match, Stove trounced with Kathy Harter of the United States, 6-0, 6-1, to beat Maria Bueno of Bolivia and Rals Gutierrez of Kingstown, N.Y., 6-4, 6-2.

In other action, second-seeded Israel Beatty of the Netherlands defeated 17-year-old Caroline Stoll of Livingston, 6-4, 6-1, in the first round.

In other action, second-seeded Eddie Davis overpowered Spain's Jose Higueras but fifth-seeded Raul Ramirez was forced to default.
Phillies have soft spot for disadvantaged

Most athletes who have been around for a few years are pretty well paid, and baseball players are no exception. As an exception, the Philadelphia Phillies have driven over $23 million to benefit local groups.

Start with Greg Luzinski, who looks like an escapee from a professional football camp but is actually a pussycat when the action isn’t happening on the field. Luzinski’s long list of charitable endeavors continues to lengthen as the seasons roll by, and the seats are now filled with more fans than ever before.

Terry McCraw organized a bike caravan for the purpose of helping this year’s Philadelphia Marathon Drive. He and fellow players were shuttling back and forth to help 57th Marathon, which was 1,300 miles away when the drive began.

Maddox, shortstop, and Luzinski will make three appearances at the Stadium. They are in line for Saturday games, Monday and Tuesday, June 16 and 17, against the Twins and Fan Appreciation Day on September 17.

The pitcher lines up for the next big race, but other members of the team Maddox, shortstop, Larry Bowa and third baseman Mike Schmidt formed a committee of the city and business leaders and drafted many of the Philadelphia’s other athletes to help.

The pitcher plans to get back to the field, but the Phillies are certainly not the only team to be so involved in the community, but they are somehow unusual because of the unique situation of the players.

NEW YORK—UPI's Poynter just recorded her seven songs (for Kathy Adams) as a talent named after her mother. "Shirley," she told him. "She was a singer," she added.

Dalla Hal, who turned surprisingly stry in TV's "Chase & the Man," is the latest television to see a '60s hit. This week Hal was in New York for a special appearance to promote her new album, "Dalla Hal's Top 40 Hits." The album was released two weeks ago and has been a best-seller.

The album includes hits such as "The Man," which was written by Hal's late husband, Mel Stuart, and "Your Love." Also included is "The Ballad of the Green Berets," a song written by Hal's son, Don, and recorded by the Beach Boys.

Dalla Hal will release a new album next month, "The Most Beautiful Songs of All Time," which will feature songs such as "The End," "The Love of My Life," and "Back in Black."

the Concert for Anita; next gay protest is backed by 137,000, it cost firemen's uniforms; latest Hal Prince's producers' slice

It was the latest in a series of concerts to benefit Anita Bryant's anti-gay rights campaign. The concert, complete with star-studded lineup, was held at the Empty Sea arena in New York City.

According to reports, the concert grossed over $1 million, with most of the proceeds going to the Anita Bryant Foundation. The concert featured performances by Hal Prince, who is one of the producers, as well as other top names in the industry.

"The concert was a huge success," said Prince. "We're glad we were able to help Anita in her cause."
