Travel Checklist: Cooperation

Insuring a successful school year involves all at Red Bank Regional. Whether collaborating in the efforts for a school play or helping to raise class finances, cooperation is the essential component in the journeys of a school year.

Travel Checklist: Spirit

Cheerleaders at Homecoming. Maroon and White Day. Pep Rally. All these call to mind the trait that helps to bind a great school together . . . SPIRIT! Throughout the year, students express school spirit by supporting the Bucs at an intense football game, maintaining good grades and interacting with a variety of students which further instills pride in Red Bank Regional.

ABOVE: Seniors Monique Fuller and Jacqueline Hooks, complete with cabbage patch slippers, give it their all on Pajama Day '86.

TOP: Rousing the spirit of the crowd, senior twirler Arlene Hooks performs during the halftime period during the RFH season opener. ABOVE: "And I have naturally curly hair", explains junior nerd Dorian Reardon to fellow classmate Mike Flatley before homeroom on Nerd Day.

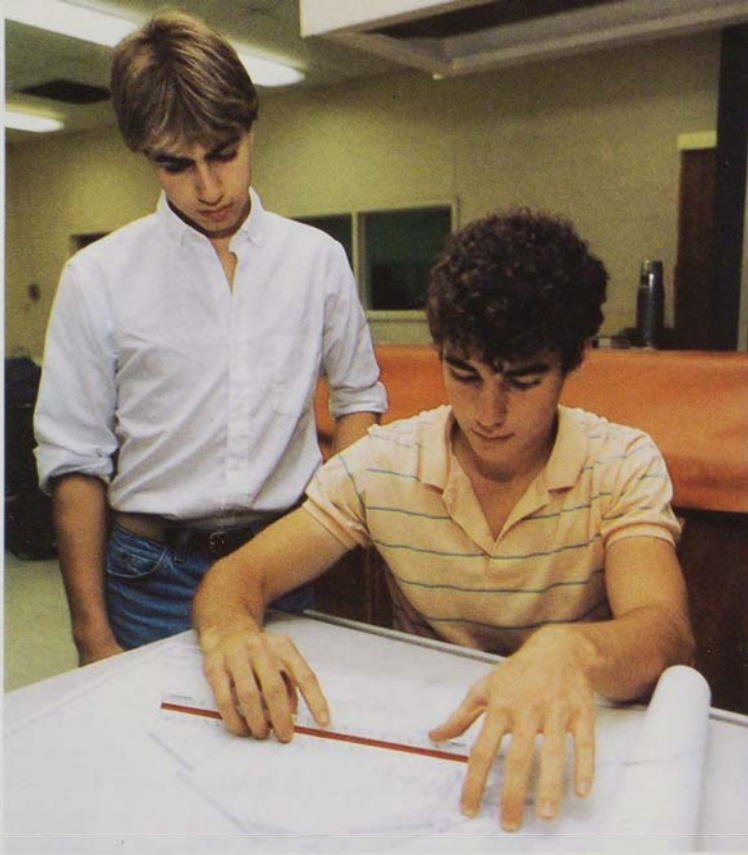

BELOW: "Who's the leader of the club that's made for you and-", it's junior Heather Butler showing her pride in RBR during a new Spirit Week event-Hat Day! RIGHT: Senior Lisa Willis dons the sacred vestments of her special duty at all football games; she is THE BUC!

Travel Checklist: Individuality

Imagine a high school where everyone wore the same clothes, liked the same sports, ate the same food, and had the same interests! Fortunately, the Red Bank Regional community is diverse, with students from the four districts of Little Silver, Shrewsbury, Union Beach, and Red Bank. As each student enters as a freshman with individual ideas and opinions, he shares these differences and similarities with others. In this way all students benefit by being enabled to blaze their own trails as individuals.

Travel Checklist: Motivation

For a student to act upon his own individuality or self-expression, he must be motivated not only by adults and his peers, but by himself. To be an active part in any organization or sport, there must be a "push" deep inside to achieve and overcome. The rigorous training for football and basketball, research for a term paper, or accomplishment on the Buccaneer and Log staffs all must be reinforced with self motivation.

Unity

United, a student body may accomplish the stupendous. RBR students act in support of one another by standing behind the Bucs at an intense football game, by hearing the opinions of the broad spectrum of students through Student Council, or by promoting interclass understanding through such means as STS. School unity provides safe travel during a challenging school year.

TOP: The Cannons-forever marked with the latest cheers and goals, bears a warning to any Buc opponent. ABOVE: Trumpets in hand, senior Mike Aderton and junior Joe Ashman practice a piece before the Pep Rally in September.

Travel Checklist: Knowledge

Knowledge and understanding are the most important goals of students as they progress through four years of study, a time for them to discover themselves as well as the outside world. With the aid of teachers and guidance counselors, students are enabled to define their goals and ideas, which ultimately will shape their future lives. As the knowledge students possess grows, so are they more able to choose their own directions for life.

Travel Checklist: Dedication

Following a tough physical program, improving a grade point average, or achieving personal success — these require one quality: dedication. Without it, goals cannot be accomplished, tests cannot be passed, and problems cannot be solved. With it, anything can be done! At RBR dedication in academics, sports, and extracurricular activities manifests itself in a student body working diligently to accomplish short term and long term goals.

BUCCANEER PASSPORT

Visiting a school as unique and exotic as Red Bank Regional can amaze even the most seasoned traveller. The diversity of the students, their fashions, goals, and activities all contribute to RBR's varied culture. There's no doubt about it: RBR has a personality all its own; from the way students and staff show spirit, to the way they celebrate, grow, and learn, the Bucs benefit in a challenging atmosphere.

ABOVE: Getting into the groove of things, seniors Marianne Moreira and Doug Brown take to the floor during the Rock Lobster number.

Students make it all worthwhile at Homecoming '86

Homecoming. A chance for the girls to get out their pearls and the guys to get out their ties. Although the game wasn't much to celebrate, everyone could finally cheer that it was over, and the music blared through the cafeteria as students danced to the beats of Word Up by Cameo, Throwing It All Away by Genesis, and the theme I Melt With You by Modern English.

As eleven o'clock drew near, senior Mike Czarnecki announced the Homecoming king and queen. Who would reign over the dance? The suspense was broken when seniors Harris Collins and Kirstin Cather went out on the dance floor for the traditional king and queen dance.

Special effects at the dance were nothing short of spectacular. A brilliant light show lit up the dance floor, and strobes proved to be great effects. At one point, special effect smoke burst from the disc jockey's stand—the eerie effect was totally unexpected.

Commented senior Melanie McMann, "The dance was really fantastic, I've never had so much fun at a Homecoming before; the effects were great.

The efforts of all the planners certainly paid off in the end as all students enjoyed themselves during the evening. Stated senior Doug Schnitzpahn, "It was fun; I enjoyed the atmosphere and really enjoyed myself."

LEFT: Homecoming king and queen Harris Collins and Kirstin Cather take the traditional dance alone on the dance floor after having received their crowns.

Lab Assistants Tackle Science Service

Ready to tackle the challenges of a busy year, the 1986-1987 Lab Assistants proved their vital importance to the functions of the Science Department at RBR. Preparing and cleaning up after labs, and carrying out necessary procedures for their success, the aides remained an integral part of the science/education process. Physics, chemistry, and biology labs were prepared by the students; most of their work was directed towards Biology and Tri-Science.

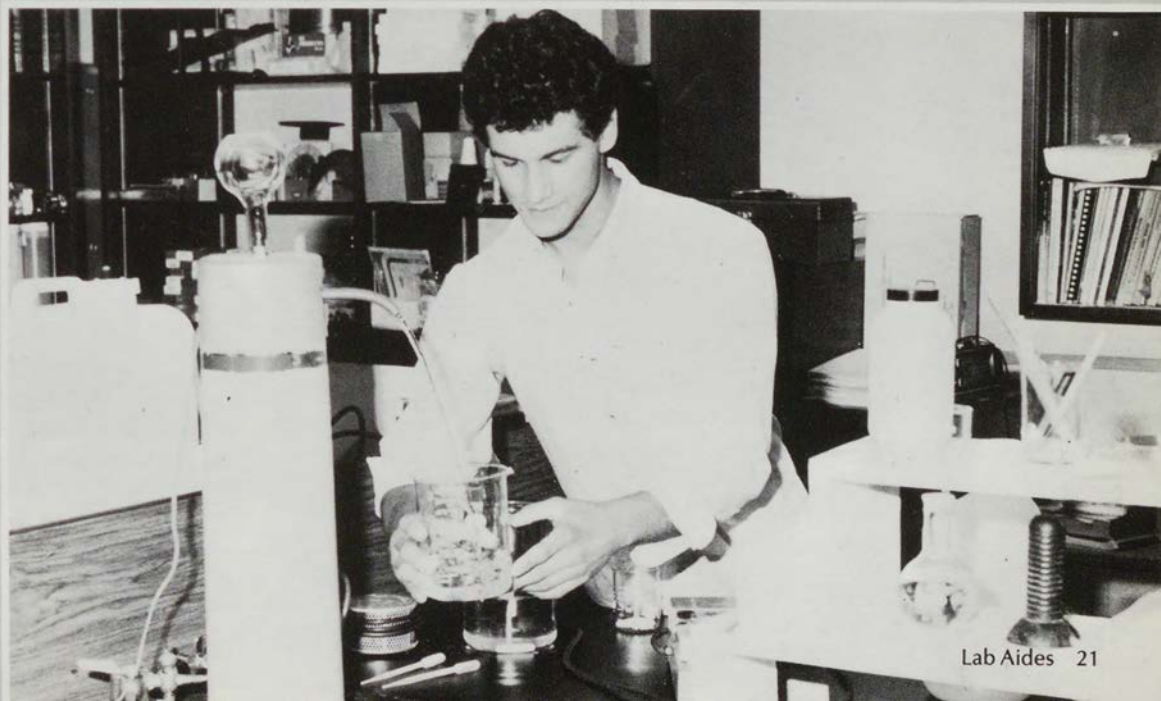

The aides completed a project during the year which involved moving and reorganizing glassware and lab supplies in the lab preparation room. The changes were expected to make science classes more efficient, providing teachers with quick access to unused or forgotten inventory. Lab assistants also worked with a new ditto machine. The high quality of the labs distributed to students made the work more enjoyable.

The selection process for the lab assistants continued to be a rigorous one. Candidates must have studied one year of high school science and be at least a sophomore. Completing two applications, the candidates were reviewed according to their responsibility and interest in science. This year's thirteen members gave 100% in making science studies a beneficial experience.

RIGHT: Purifying the water for an amoeba project, senior Mike Vespa completes the procedure in the lab preparation room.

Booster Club Seeks Recognition

Making its presence known at the Red Bank Regional community, the 1986-1987 Booster Club took steps to further improve its own programs and to institute newer ones. The Booster Club, whose fundraisers and donations funded sports awards dinners, scholarship programs, and other organizations requiring monies, has not been in the spotlight recently, but as President Mrs. Holly Kuhn stated, "We made an effort to gain more membership and volunteers; this way, we hoped to be able to aid more school organization's needs."

Club sponsors adopted their own jackets during the year with the Buccaneer emblem boldly displayed. To increase interest in the club, more fundraisers were held to raise the amount given in the current $500 scholastic scholarship. Trips to Atlantic City were offered, and the ever successful Chinese Auction was held in January. Merchants from the various sending districts offered merchandise to be raffled off to those attending the Auction. This year tickets to Broadway shows were raffled and a hi-fi stereo car radio was won by Miss Mary Larsen.

During the summer months, the Booster club donated funds to the school basketball clinic under the supervision of coaches Pizzuli and Johnson. Banners for the sports teams were also purchased.

To provide a communication link between coaches and parents, the Club organized the "Evening with Dick Martin" program in October. Coach Martin held a frank discussion with parents and many questions were fielded.

After the busy year of organization and new program orientation, the Booster Club members were happy with increasing their treasury and gaining new members. Commented Mrs. Kuhn, "Financially and overall we had a great year; there was a lot of cooperation and I really feel that people noticed us."

Behind the Scenes of The Skin of Our Teeth

Ah, the Junior play! This year it was The Skin of Our Teeth, a great production about the history of "the family" as shown through the trials and tribulations of the Antrobus clan, and on December 11-13, everything went smoothly. But what really goes on behind the scenes? What makes the junior play a "great production"? Is it really a junior play or a conspiracy led by Alex McMurray? We took our Log camera crew, Donna Rizzo, to probe behind the scenes, and a Log editor to get the real story.

Q: Miss Vera Vaughan, you were in the play, in fact you were one of the animals; was this acting or were you possessed by something to make you do such a great job?

A: (after a lengthy pause) My extensive research among snakes and lizards attending Red Bank Regional High School helped me to interpret the role of a prehistoric reptile.

Q: Next, Erin Acheson. You were on stage crew making props for the play, did you really make those sets or were they bought to impress your family and friends?

A: After spending much of my time at an off-Broadway theater, I was able to reproduce many of the necessary sets.

Q: Lastly, Alex McMurray. You seem to be the core of all this. Inside information tells us that the play is really a cult led by you. Is this true?

A: I . . . have no . . . comment . . . !!! (Mr. McMurray chose to use language which could not be printed in this article. Some of his answer has been edited for the discretion of our readers.)

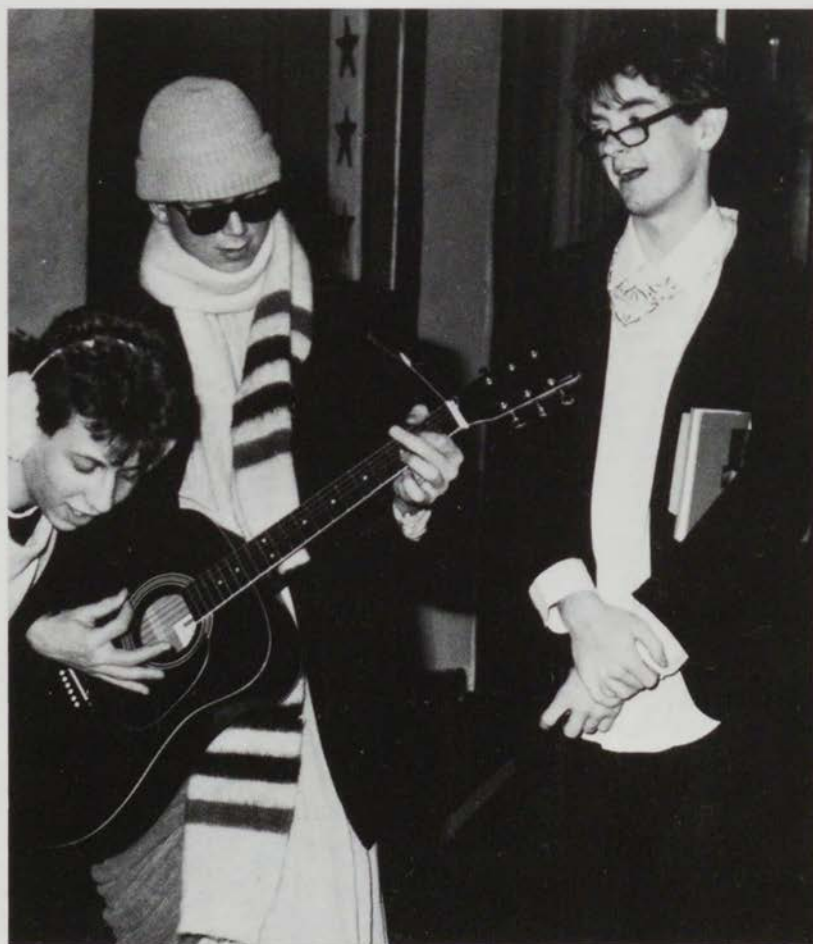

In any event, the play ran smoothly those three nights and provided entertainment for many. It was not all fun and games, though, there was hard work that went on behind the scenes to make it a great success. Actors and advisors spent long hours afterschool and at night practicing their lines and polishing up their performance. Working with a tight schedule, the stage crew had to complete the necessary scenery and props before opening night. "It wasn't easy to finish on time," said, junior, Jim Leavitt, "We had to work until the last second, but all in all we finished on time, and did a job we could be proud of." Another group who was proud of their success was the Junior Class for raising all the money and producing an extraordinary program for the play.

So, it was not all a celebration, but next time you see a play think about what really goes on at the cast party.

BOTTOM: Bellboy Brian Gaskill and animals Justin Berke and Vera Vaughan battle the Ice Age with a log and a match as Lynn Wilkens and Becky Flynn observe.

BELOW: Ha! The sleepover has ended, or is it just beginning, debate seniors Mary Keister, Ardist Brown, and Gwynn Davis as they prepare for Pajama Day. RIGHT: With a passion for fashion and a flair with hair, junior nerds Dorian Reardon and Mike Flatley model their polyesters. BOTTOM: It's a fight to the finish as Mr. John Brzostowski and Mr. Nick Pizzuli compete for the best hat on the second day of Pep Week-Hat Day.

Wouldn't You Like To Be A Pepper Too?!

With teddy bears and bathrobes, security blankets and stuffed animals, Pep Week started off with Pajama Day. Slippers were the main attraction ranging from Felix the Cat to Snoopy the Dog. And what better way to accent your flannels than with the right stuffed animal. Some brought Pooh, others brought their good old teddies, but regardless Red Bank Regional students showed their spirit.

Crazy Hat Day had many participants too, as students piled in with baseball caps, top hats, and hats with no names. As Kirsten Kather said, "This year everyone can participate, because everyone has a hat."

Nerd Day was a big hit and a chance for everyone to show their true selves. With pocket protectors, buttoned up plaid shirts, and four hundred page books on the anterior lobe of the cerebellum, nerds became the most popular people in the school. Who could argue? Galoshes and suspenders were fashion statements. Look out Calvin Klein, here comes Ed Grimley.

The last of the crazy days was Sunglasses Day where the students got one last look at summer. Whether they chose the cool look of Ray-Bans or the look of Mom's old Sophia Loren's, practically everyone participated.

Wrapping up a spirited Pep Week, Maroon and White Day remained a tradition for the Bucs. All teams wore their jerseys and all spirited students decked out their school colors.

So where did all this lead Red Bank Regional? Students went on a motorcade past the Rumson-Fair Haven School, conducted a senior pep train through the halls of Red Bank Regional and crowned a Pep King and Queen Mitchell Fink and Rochelle Lynch, for the Junior Class. But most importantly, we took our arch-rivals, the R.F.H. Dawgs, for a walk and that's what Pep Week was all about!!

THINGS THAT GO BUMP IN THE NIGHT

The creepies, the crawlies, the hairy little beasties (and we're not referring to freshmen). Who were the people behind the masks? This Halloween, Red Bank Regional experienced what it was like to have the Addams family visit the school. With a Friendly waitress who was really a waiter, a monster who was really a chemistry teacher, and a Satan's helper who was really a yearbook editor, the school was faced with a new set of students. So, how does one adjust to a "new" lab partner? "All in a day's fun," said junior Chris Pack, "how many times do you get to be yourself?" Some people couldn't keep it to themselves. Mr. Gance's A.P. Chemistry class paraded through the school showing their true selves and dancing to the "Monster Mash." Ah, but the day does go on and students must be taught, but how do you teach a Vietnam Veteran, a Playboy Bunny, and a devil holding a pitchfork? Probably very carefully!!!

Nevertheless, the students found a way to keep the anarchy down and to have a fun and controlled Halloween. It also made some people exclaim, "Who was that masked man?" We all know it was-?????????!!

Free Fare ROCKS Regional

Rock music blaring through the halls of Red Bank Regional!! Is it anarchy or is it Free Fare!!? The answer is obvious. On January 21st and 24th, the Student Council contracted special assembly program materialized. Free Fare was here.

Free Fare is one of eight bands extending from Young American Showcase, Inc. from St. Petersburg, Florida. Four of these eight bands are titled "Free Fare"; the others, "Freedom Jam." In all, the bands perform over three thousand shows per year.

The Young American Showcase, which has been in existence for about seventeen years, strives to relate current problems of teens through the forum of popular rock music. The bands are all assigned to various regions across America, and even parts of Canada and Australia. When Free Fare visited RBR, they were on the road for five months and it was their third week in N.J.

The band consists of five members: Michael "Ski" Copen, on keyboards, saxophone, and vocals, Jamz Gardner, lead guitar and vocals, Mike Norman, percussion and vocals, Jeff Caldwell, on bass and vocals, and Tanner Stevens, lead vocals, keyboards and percussion. Also contributing to the band are manager Tyrone Banks and booking agent Jack Hall.

The members originated from different sections of the country, including Pennsylvania, Indiana, Michigan, and Georgia, and their ages range from eighteen to twenty six.

Free Fare appeals to today's young people because the members of the band were relatively young and related to problems faced by teens. Most of the musicians became connected with the Young American Showcase by seeing shows at their high schools, filling out audition cards, and, if thought to be good enough through audition tapes, go to Florida for a personal audition.

Each musician committed himself to eight months of touring and performing. Although it appeared glamorous, the general consensus of the band revealed, "It's hard work." Each band puts on about five hundred shows, fifteen to eighteen per week, for six day weeks.

Under the supervision of manager Tyrone Banks, the performers followed a similar show pattern as all of the Free Fare bands who tour schools, although each group added its own personal touches. All evening performances were completely original, consisting of Top 40 and heavy metal music, according to surveys and the tastes of the original band members.

Free Fare entertained its excited audiences with such popular songs as Kids Wanna Rock, Hip to be Square, Twist and Shout, and Don't Forget Me When I'm Gone.

Free Fare's personal involvement with the audience uniquely defined their feelings towards today's teens. Throughout the shows, various band members jumped off stage and joined the audience in the dancing, singing, or sitting among them. At the conclusion of their evening performance, guitarist Jamz Gardner and lead vocalist Tanner Stevens greeted their audience outside the auditorium by signing autographs and casually talking.

Through their music, Free Fare supported the concept that alcohol and drugs are not necessary to have fun. Keyboardist "Ski" Copen explains, "We're not here to give lectures, we're just a band concerned about today's problems." They urged everyone to be in control of their lives and not give in to the various pressures of peers. In short, Free Fare brought delicate topics down to a personal level.

Free Fare's message was not be soon forgotten in the minds of those who attended their performances. The lyrics of one of the songs which they sang, Never Surrender reinforced their message, "... when the night is cold and dark, you can see, you can see light, 'cause no one can take away your right to fight and to never surrender."

SADD and CO-OP Set Sail

A Cruise to Remember '87

"What do you remember best about a vacation? A breathtaking sunset? Friendly, helpful service? New sights and experiences? New friends? When you return from your cruise, we know you'll remember all these things, and more . . ." So reads the Chandris Fantasy Cruise '86/'87 brochure.

From February 15-20, 1987, 46 RBR students and 11 chaperones tested out the claims made by this brochure (and "Love Boat" reruns). Voyaging on a fun-filled five-day extravaganza aboard the S. S. Galileo, members of Students Against Driving Drunk and the Co-operative Education Program partied their way through Key West and Mexico.

They say that getting there is half the fun, but it was actually a lot of hard work for some of the cruisers. For months they roamed the halls armed with a veritable cornucopia of tasteful and useful objects such as brass candle snuffers, plastic unicorn key chains, goose-graced notepads, and jalapeno cheese food. Careers in sales were launched as determined cruisers convinced unsuspecting students that they truly needed a plastic orangutan picture guarding their house or car keys.

Most students funded the trip themselves in whole or part with commissions from such sales or from after school jobs. By February 15, at 5 a.m., the cruisers were off on their way to the Miami port with vague memories of snow and distant piles of homework.

Once on board, students began to plan their hours at sea with the help of the ship newsletter. Others explored the ship.

Two gym teachers and a hall aide were spied testing out some of the more amusing fitness equipment on board. Students found it difficult to adjust to the constant rolling motion of the ship, especially when it hit five-foot swells the first night. Suddenly, the students added a new word to their vocabulary: Dramamine.

Come daytime, the students hit the sunny — well, at least some of the time — ports of Key West, Cancun, and Cozumel. At Key West, the Conch Train Tour and Old Town Trolley Tour escorted cruisers around both the old and the modern Key West. Others optioned for independent exploration of the charming town with its art galleries, souvenir shops, and the infamous Bubba's Bikes. At Cancun, beaches and bargains were the order of the day. Colorful characters invited the tourists to "take a look at my junk. Hey! Let's make a deal." Rainy weather dampened but did not destroy the spirit of the cruisers as they searched for that one perfect souvenir of the island of Cozumel.

For the return voyage, students threw themselves wholeheartedly into a hodgepodge of thrilling activities such as soda-drinking contests, a Miss Galileo pageant, and great performances by such artists as Samurai, and Adam and Nicky Derrick. Student passengers could also be seen "boogeying their butts off" to the tunes spun by Ernest and Francesco in the late night disco or "pigging out" at the spectacular midnight buffet. The passenger talent show and costume parade provided further distraction for students who participated or merely attended. The students returned home tanned, relaxed, and still talking about their "cruise to remember."

Meet the Musicians

First, there was darkness, and plenty of silence. Then came from the deepest part of men's souls-sound. (Imagine 2001 playing in the background; this is pretty momentous, O.K.?) Yes, then there were people who made different sounds. Today in the world of 1987, there live such people; there are fantastic sounds. There are bands. And yes, there are bands at Red Bank Regional High School. You have just entered another dimension, a dimension of sight and s — (Rod Serling eat your heart out.)

Groups of musically talented students this year often jammed during weekends and after school during their free time. Among them were seniors Todd Minehardt, Harris Collins, Alex McMurray and junior Bill Simes. While Todd and Alex played bass guitar among other instruments, Bill and Harris utilized their drum skills in very professional entertainment.

The music world has not been a new experience for any of the band members. Most have practiced their instruments for at least four years; many since grade school. Whether getting started under the supervision of a friend or the lure of MTV, the members definitely achieved high levels of musical attainment. Commented Bill Simes, "I've been playing the drums for four years; older friends in bands got me interested in music."

All agreed that bands had their good and bad points. While being fun, constructive and a bettering experience, members also found practicing time consuming. Cooperation remained key. Stated Harris Collins, "To be a musician you have to work creatively with your friends, but at the same time be compatible with many kinds of people."

Performing for live audiences was one of the greatest perks the talents aimed for. Whether playing rock, fusion, New British, or jazz the members enjoyed the professional feeling of the live show. Explained Todd Minehardt, "Fusion is rock with a lot of funk bass, quick rhythm, and guitar background support. Performing gives us a real good team feeling."

Members were unsure of their future musical careers. Bill planned to attend a music college and Harris hoped to continue with the band scene. Todd looked forward to college, hopefully attaining band membership on the side. Stated Alex McMurray, "Being in a band helps us to improve ourselves for any future musical careers we may have."

New Editors Create Travel Log

Despite the fact that five of the six Log editors, along with the Log photographer, graduated last year, new editors and staff members successfully overcame this disadvantage to create a spectacular yearbook. "One of the major challenges," stated Advisor Mr. John Hird, "was to work with people who had never before been editors. However, because they are quality students, my role as advisor was an enjoyable one." The use of a new IBM computer and printer made the typing job a little easier this year, saving much needed time; stories, headlines, and captions were typed in and sent on a disc to the publisher.

Junior Tom Finan accepted the responsibilities as Editor-In-Chief, while section Editors Sally duLaney, Kim Hanley, Heather Weiss, Julie-

Anne Collart, and Alex Kennedy worked to bring the theme of "Travel Log" alive in their sections and meet frequent page deadlines. Dedicating at least two afternoons each week, and sometimes weekends or vacations, to the yearbook, editors assigned stories, cropped pictures, drew layouts, etc. "It's a lot of work and a lot of pressure, but when you're all done it almost seems worth it," commented Clubs Editor Heather Weiss. Seniors Donna Rizzo, Kerry Mulvihill, Melissa Apy, and junior Sherry Barber assisted by taking pictures for the Log, and a reliable group of students formed the rest of the staff. Said Editor-In-Chief Tom Finan, "I feel that after we got our act together, we were really able to get our priorities straight. We worked hard but had a good time doing it."

Buccaneer Wins First in Photography

In its 42nd year of publication, Red Bank Regional's newspaper, The Buccaneer, captured first place in photography in the Garden State Scholastic Press Association Journalism contest. Seniors Donna Rizzo and Kerry Mulvihill combined on the award winning picture feature on the Energy Show last year. The Buccaneer also received honorable mention for the "Teenage Pregnancy" layout, and a special commendation was given to Senior Laura Ross who did most of the work on that layout.

To join the Buccaneer staff, students had to conduct an interview and write an article about an assigned person, and then edit a set of short essays in order to determine the applicant's journalistic ability. The 25 staff members and editors, who were selected, met daily in homeroom to assign stories, work on layouts, select pictures, etc. Seven times a year, the Graphics Communications classes published the newspaper, and the staff distributed the finished papers to homerooms. Said Advisor Mr. Thomas, "The Buccaneer editors and staff were dedicated to making the 42nd edition the best yet."

Every staff member was required to go on three of four field trips. The two field trips in November were to Rutgers for Garden State Scholastic Press Association Day, and to Monmouth College for Asbury Park Press Day. In March, students traveled to Columbia University for a Columbia Scholastic Press Association Conference, and in April to the Asbury Park Press Building for a tour and a paper critique. According to Features Editor Cheryl Puerling, "The trips, especially the critique session, gave us good suggestions for future issues."

Crow's Nest Creates 1987 Calendar

What did the 1986-87 Crow's Nest have to caw about? Why, its new calendar! Members flocked together to produce the classy book of art and poetry, which was available free of charge to all students. Released in January, students enjoyed the calendar produced by their own peers; the creative abilities of RBR's students made it particularly special.

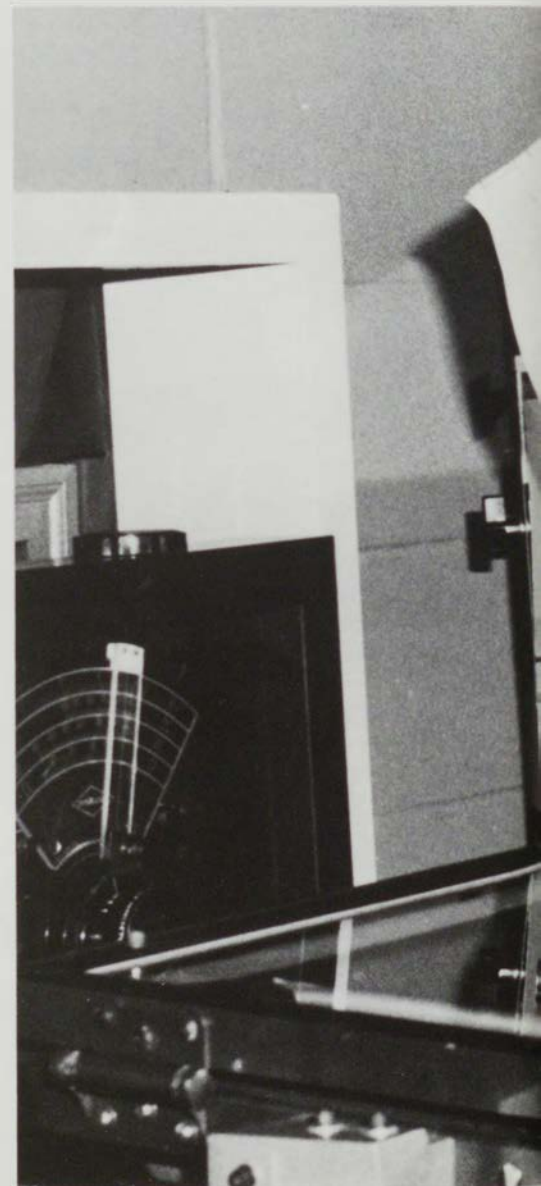

Crow's Nest members met regularly to discuss poetry and to share ideas. Under the supervision of Mrs. Pamela Farrell and Mr. Larry Perrine, the staff produced an additional edition of poems and artwork later in the year. Membership jumped in the second half of the season, as students wrapping up the popular school magazine flew into Crow's Nest activities. Responsible for calling staff meetings, working layouts, and all-around "everything else," Senior Editor Michelle Bessey took the reigns as the publication's student leader.

In deciding the final materials to be placed in both the calendar and the regular Crow's Nest edition, members followed "majority rule."

Artwork, short stories, and poems were decided upon by club members. After carefully reviewing each individual contribution, the staff voted, determining final acceptance or denial. The approved works went to the Graphic Arts room, where students published the edition.

Throughout the creative year, the Crow's Nest remained an important part of the vitality at RBR. Commented senior Michelle Bessey, "It has definitely been a very fulfilling year; we've learned a lot about the creative aspects of others."

Stage Crew Hosts "The Prize"

Ready to make theatrical performances their best, the 1986-1987 Stage Crew members dedicated long hours and hard work to make all productions at RBR a success. In October, the twelve members coordinated the lighting systems, sound, and projecting operations for the multi-media presentation of "The Prize." The spectacular use of three movie screens made the teenage film a super success.

Crew members didn't always receive as much credit as the performers in the plays, but certainly contributed as much effort. Participating in one of the most demanding clubs in the school, students under Advisor Mr. Roger Miller often worked late into the night crafting and designing sets, as well as insuring the proper lighting, visual and acoustic qualities.

In December, the Crew helped present the Junior Play "The Skin of Our Teeth" by creating elaborate scenery, including a mini-Atlantic City. The Senior Play in the spring was also successfully staged with the proper props. Members worked the stage during all of the Performing Arts productions which included dance presentations and open house for the Performing Arts program. Special productions presented by outside talents renting the theater were the responsibilities of the Stage Crew.

Throughout the year, the crew remained as dedicated as ever to promote the best possible productions at RBR. Commented crew member Scott Naef, "It's been a good experience. We learned the needed techniques; it was a great way to learn how to run a show."

Student Council Prepares Thanksgiving Baskets

Continuing active service to the community and student body, the 1986-87 Student Council prepared Thanksgiving Baskets for the MediCenter in Red Bank, largely from student donations. In December, Christmas gifts and carolers arrived at the Red Bank Convalescent Center to provide senior citizens with a happy holiday.

In the community spirit, the Council held the MDA Superdance February 7th at the school. The event, whose proceeds went to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, ran from 8 P.M. to 2 A.M. the next morning. Dance-a-thon mania swept the building as students searched for sponsors for the occasion. Commented junior Board member Kim

Hanley, "The MDA Dance was great; it really helped unite the student body."

Homecoming was an incredible success this year. Senior Melissa Apy coordinated the theme-based "I Melt With You" dance. A light show, elaborate decorations, and an excellent turnout made the extravaganza a major success.

Valentine's Day brought the return of the Computer Data Match fundraiser. Students answered questions and were paired with the perfect date, just in time for the successful Valentine's Day Dance.

Spirit was continually in the minds of the Student Council. The PepWeek kicking off the football season was fantastic; never before had so many participated. In an attempt to involve students in the school political process, Leadership Week was held in February. Freshmen became registered school voters and candidates canvassed the school for votes. The Council had another spirit-builder by receiving its own varsity jackets in the spring.

Including everyone and making Student Council accessible to all students, to make it a body easily approachable by all, became the goal of the innovative Council. Stated President Gina Barone, "We wanted to involve everyone. I am happy about our Executive Board; we work well together and continue a beneficial, unique relationship."

CIE Provides Job Experience

Students benefitted greatly this year through the Cooperative Industrial Education Club, or CIE. Started 20 years ago by Mr. James Dadenas, the club continued to be a beneficial organization for students participating in on-the-job training.

The 29 students, a record number, met during first and second periods at least once a month to discuss fund-raising and to plan activities. In the spring, the club went on a camping trip together. The CIE club also held a picnic and visited Great Adventure.

Many fund-raisers were held throughout the year. During Christmas and Easter, CIE club sold candy. Other fund-raisers that were held were the Battle of the Bands and a Silent Auction. The funds were used for trips; and an employer — employee banquet was held on May 14, where the employers were introduced to the atmosphere at RBR.

Many students felt the club was successful in its goals of promoting training and understanding with employers. As Secretary Tejada Williams said, "Cooperative Industrial Education was a great experience!"

Auto Club Makes Successful Repairs

The eight members of the Auto Club will never take their cars in for repairs; they can fix them themselves! Meeting every other Thursday, the Auto Club members took advantage of the auto shop's facilities and improved their mechanical skills. "The purpose of the club," stated Advisor Mr. Sefcik, "is to help pupils work on their cars." A major accomplishment of the club was the building of a kit car, which proved to be a success. Also, The club studied and repaired a Maserati, one of the most expensive cars and possibly the quickest 4-door sedan in the world. Auto Club members applied their knowledge and skills to make repairs on cars brought into the shop; owners paid for the repairs, adding to the club's funds.

To reinforce what they had learned and to give them information about auto-related jobs, the Auto Club took two trips. The first was to the Fort Dix Motor Pool, and the second was the GM assembly plant. "We learned a lot about jobs in the field," stated President Frank Woods. In addition, various speakers from the trade came in periodically to talk to these aspiring mechanics. The Auto Club was an excellent opportunity to improve auto-mechanical skills.

New York Cultures FNHS

In order to obtain a knowledge of French culture and language, the French National Honor Society took trips to New York City. Students received a tour through the United Nations, at which French is one of the official languages, to learn of international affairs. In addition, various museums including the Metropolitan Museum of Art were visited in order to expose students to the art and culture of France.

New FNHS members were inducted into the club at the annual Induction Ceremony. Brief speeches, live music, and dinner prepared by the previous club members made the evening enjoyable for the incoming members and their parents.

Approximately 35 students with excellent averages in French and with teacher recommendations comprised the 1986-1987 FNHS. Senior President Sharon McCarthy led the meetings, at which trips and the fundraisers were discussed. Fundraisers included bake sales and the sale of notecards; the club's goal was to raise enough money to offer a scholarship to a student who would continue French in college.

According to Advisor Mr. McCormack, "The FNHS is not a club but an academic society that is recognized by colleges and universities throughout the country. This honor society recognizes the students who have excelled and demonstrated knowledge of the French language."

SNHS Travels to the U.N.

"Hola Amigos!" is what you would have probably heard if you had been a member of the Spanish National Honor Society. This society, according to Senora Dacey, gave the member a chance to associate with people who excelled in Spanish. In order to become a member, a student must have taken high school Spanish classes for two years and maintained an average grade of 80 or above. Over the years, more and more students have fulfilled these requirements as the society's membership grew to an all time high.

At monthly meetings plans for bake sales and trips were discussed. This past year the members took a trip to visit the United Nations where they saw a film pertaining to the importance of translators. Mrs. Dacey felt this to be a valuable experience and said that she hoped to take the trip next year. Junior Lee Gardiner, a member of the SNHS stated, "The Spanish National Honor Society offers the member a chance to augment Spanish skills because it offers field trips which take Spanish beyond book reading."

Dedicated Trainers Apply New Knowledge

Working with incredible enthusiasm and dedication, the ten members of the Athletic Training Club learned many skills that enabled them to treat the injured athletes throughout the year. The club met everyday after school and on Saturdays; and attended all varsity and J.V. football games, in addition to other selected home and away sports events. When an athlete was injured, the trainers were there to apply their newly acquired skills.

Certain days were set aside each week for learning about the care and prevention of athletic injuries. "The teaching-learning process," said advisor Mrs. Carle, "includes the study of Anatomy, First Aid, CPR, and specific athletic training skills." The club was like a 9th period class to these students, but the learning didn't stop here. In July, the members will attend the 1987 Cramer Athletic Training Workshop. Said Mrs. Carle, "This is a career oriented club with outstanding students who are enthusiastic and eager to learn."

Organizing to promote community service and "good citizenship," the 1986-87 FHA-HERO Club remained a positive influence on its Buc membership. Nearly thirty students participated in the club's activities, meeting every month to discuss tentative schedules for the year. President Laura Petry, Vice President Ann Cazella, Secretary Jeanne Gallman, Treasurer Cortney Wooley and Historian Sandy Sturn led the meetings to discuss the activities planned for FHA-HERO.

In November, the traditional Thanksgiving basket was destined for the "Lunch Break" program in Red Bank. "Lunch Break," which began operations in full force over the summer months, aids people by providing a hot meal to the needy.

Before Christmas break, club members organized the Holiday Faculty Tea. Teachers and administrators were invited to the Tea during lunch periods for delicious treats. While some club members worked on presentations for the State Leadership Council held in March, others planned Easter Baskets for hospitalized children. The baskets were distributed to local hospitals by the club members and by advisor Mrs. Hollywood.

Club members continued in their excellent efforts year round. Stated advisor Mrs. Hollywood, "With a higher enrollment than in any other year and enthusiastic attitudes, the students were eager to grow and compete."

S.T.S. Provides Enthusiasm

The dedicated Student to Student club leaders spent the year helping to make the freshmen confident and enthusiastic about high school. On their retreat to Brown Mills, NJ, in September, the leaders discovered more about themselves and each other in order to be successful at helping the freshmen this year. At the retreat, the leaders also learned tactics to make the incoming freshmen feel more comfortable and ways to help them meet new people. They used these new skills at their meetings throughout the year.

Miss Betty Nicholson, the S.T.S. advisor, was excited about the year. She said, "The first meeting was very positive. Freshmen and leader enthusiasm have provided us with a most promising year." Junior leader Kim Hanley summed up the aim of S.T.S. when she said, "It gives you a good feeling to know you are helping others. You just know after one meeting you have helped."

Band Front Thrives Under New Advisor

Early on the year, Mrs. Barbara Krzywiec replaced Mr. MacLean to become the new advisor of the band front. She worked with the Twirlers, Color Guard, Tall Flags, and Swing Flags throughout a successful year. The thirty members of the band front met three times per week, and on weekends during the football season to practice various routines. The practice was reflected in half time shows during the nine varsity football games, in addition to the performances at three parades, two concerts, and two festivals including the All Shore Band Festival.

Twirling to "In the Mood", "Light My Fire", "Peter Gunn", and other songs played by the band, Captains Donna Rizzo and Christine Cain (Twirlers), Gwyn Hill and Cindy Davidson (Color Guard), Kerry Mulvihill and Jen Fraser (Tall Flags), and Arlene Brooks and Crystal Johnson (Swing Flags) led sections of the band front routines. "Swing Flags are the best that I've ever seen in any Monmouth County band," remarked Captain Arlene Brooks. Talent and practice resulted in fantastic halftime shows and commendable performances at the other events. Said band advisor Mr. MacLean proudly, "Our band front is one of the best in Monmouth County."

D.E.C.A. Adds Electronic Signs in School

Early in the year, you probably noticed the addition of electronic signs in the Buc Stop's window and in the commons. D.E.C.A., the Distributive Education Club of America, purchased these signs to display the morning announcements in the commons and to attract attention and advertise for the school store.

D.E.C.A. attended various conferences and participated in competitions throughout the year. Activities began in October with the D.E.C.A. Orientation at the Monmouth Mall. In November, the club officers (Theresa Stubbs, Pres., Michael Paris, V.P., Stacey Smith, Treasurer, Susan Hammer, Secretary, and Kelli Savino, Historian) traveled to Washington, DC to attend the NARCON leadership training meeting. The club also participated in the Regional Conference in January, and the State

Leadership Conference in March.

The 17 D.E.C.A. members were juniors or seniors who took Distributive Education. Meeting 4th period every day, members worked in the Buc Stop and were taught retail marketing. Said Advisor Mr. Beadle, "As a requirement, students work with the school store and have co-op jobs of their own."

The National Honor Society officers — seniors Michele Martinelli, Chris Bonfiglio, Kevin Johannen, and Eileen Reardon — review the program and rehearse their speeches for the induction ceremony.

NHS Obtains Record Membership

The National Honor Society started the year off with a bang when it inducted 45 new members, making this society the largest it's been in years. To be in the club, a student needed at least a 90 grade point average and a recommendation by two teachers. At meetings throughout the year, plans for activities and services were discussed.

The National Honor Society played an important role at RBR during the past year. As usual, honor society members helped fellow students by volunteering their time to tutor in needed areas. They also showed the eighth graders from the various sending districts the school and explained what it has to offer to the student. The society also put on a special evening for senior citizens who came to see the senior play by setting up refreshments for a special reception afterwards.

The Honor Society reached out in the school and the community. As President Eileen Reardon said, "The National Honor Society gives students an added opportunity to improve their education by helping others through tutoring and community activities. The members donated their time to help those around them."

Interact Serves Community

Interact means exactly what its name says: it interacts the members with their peers and their community. It consisted of about fifteen active members who worked together to do volunteer work and fund-raising. The club met every Thursday.

During the past year, Interact contributed time and money to worthy causes. The members supported an orphan by raising money and sending it monthly. They also helped run the Special Olympics for handicapped children.

Members enjoyed being active in their community. As President Tim Trainor said, "The members of Interact had a good time. They grew from their experience of helping others." The year was both productive and rewarding for Interact members.

Key Club Adopts Child in South America

Dedicating much time and effort to the community, the Key Club, under guidance of Advisor Mr. King, raised money with the goal of adopting a South American child. Money for this came from a successful St. Patrick's Day flower sale. The club also helped junior Alex Kennedy raise money for the MHA Queen of Hearts. Through various bake sales, the club raised enough money to attend a dance at The Mooring in Point Pleasant for the District Governor.

The Key Club helped the community by volunteering their services at community events and at the school as well. Working for the Mini Mall in Red Bank, the club raised money for the pediatrics ward at Riverview Hospital. Through mug sales money was raised for various hunger projects in the area. The Key Club also helped the school and the Student Council by working on the MDA Superdance. President Jacque Dwyer stated that the motto of the club was "understanding is the pathway to progress." By volunteering their services to the community and school, the Key Club promoted understanding and did much to increase the progress in the area.

SADD Travels To Mexico

During the February vacation, members of SADD enjoyed a fun-filled luxurious cruise to Mexico. A large part of the trip's cost was raised by each participant. To raise money for the club, members sold chances to a raffle of a trip for two to Cancun, Mexico at their exhibit in the Central Jersey Auto Body Expo. The trip, donated by Kay Motors, was won by Red Bank Regional typing teacher Mrs. McConaghy. Fund raising dances were also held at Trade Winds in Sea Bright.

Much of the money raised was put into service projects. In conjunction with the Monmouth County Task Force, SADD contributed to the Ronald McDonald House project near Monmouth Medical Center and to Riverview Hospital to help pay for car seats which the hospital provides for parents of infants who don't have one. Other projects included visual displays at prom-time and during the holidays.

The club was given "Honorable Mention" in a scholarship contest in Reader's Digest. SADD changed quite a bit during the past year. As Jennifer Butler said, "SADD this year was such a dramatic improvement in comparison to past years. The neatest part about it was that not only has the group tremendously increased in size, but also there was diversity among the members. We were really able to get our message across to all types of students."

FBLA Generates Leadership

Future Business Leaders of America, or FBLA, was a club that met once every marking period during period 4 with the purpose of gaining leadership abilities that would help in work after graduation. There were approximately 15 members in FBLA. President Jackie Hooks and the other officers led the meetings with the help of Advisor Mr. Pizzulli.

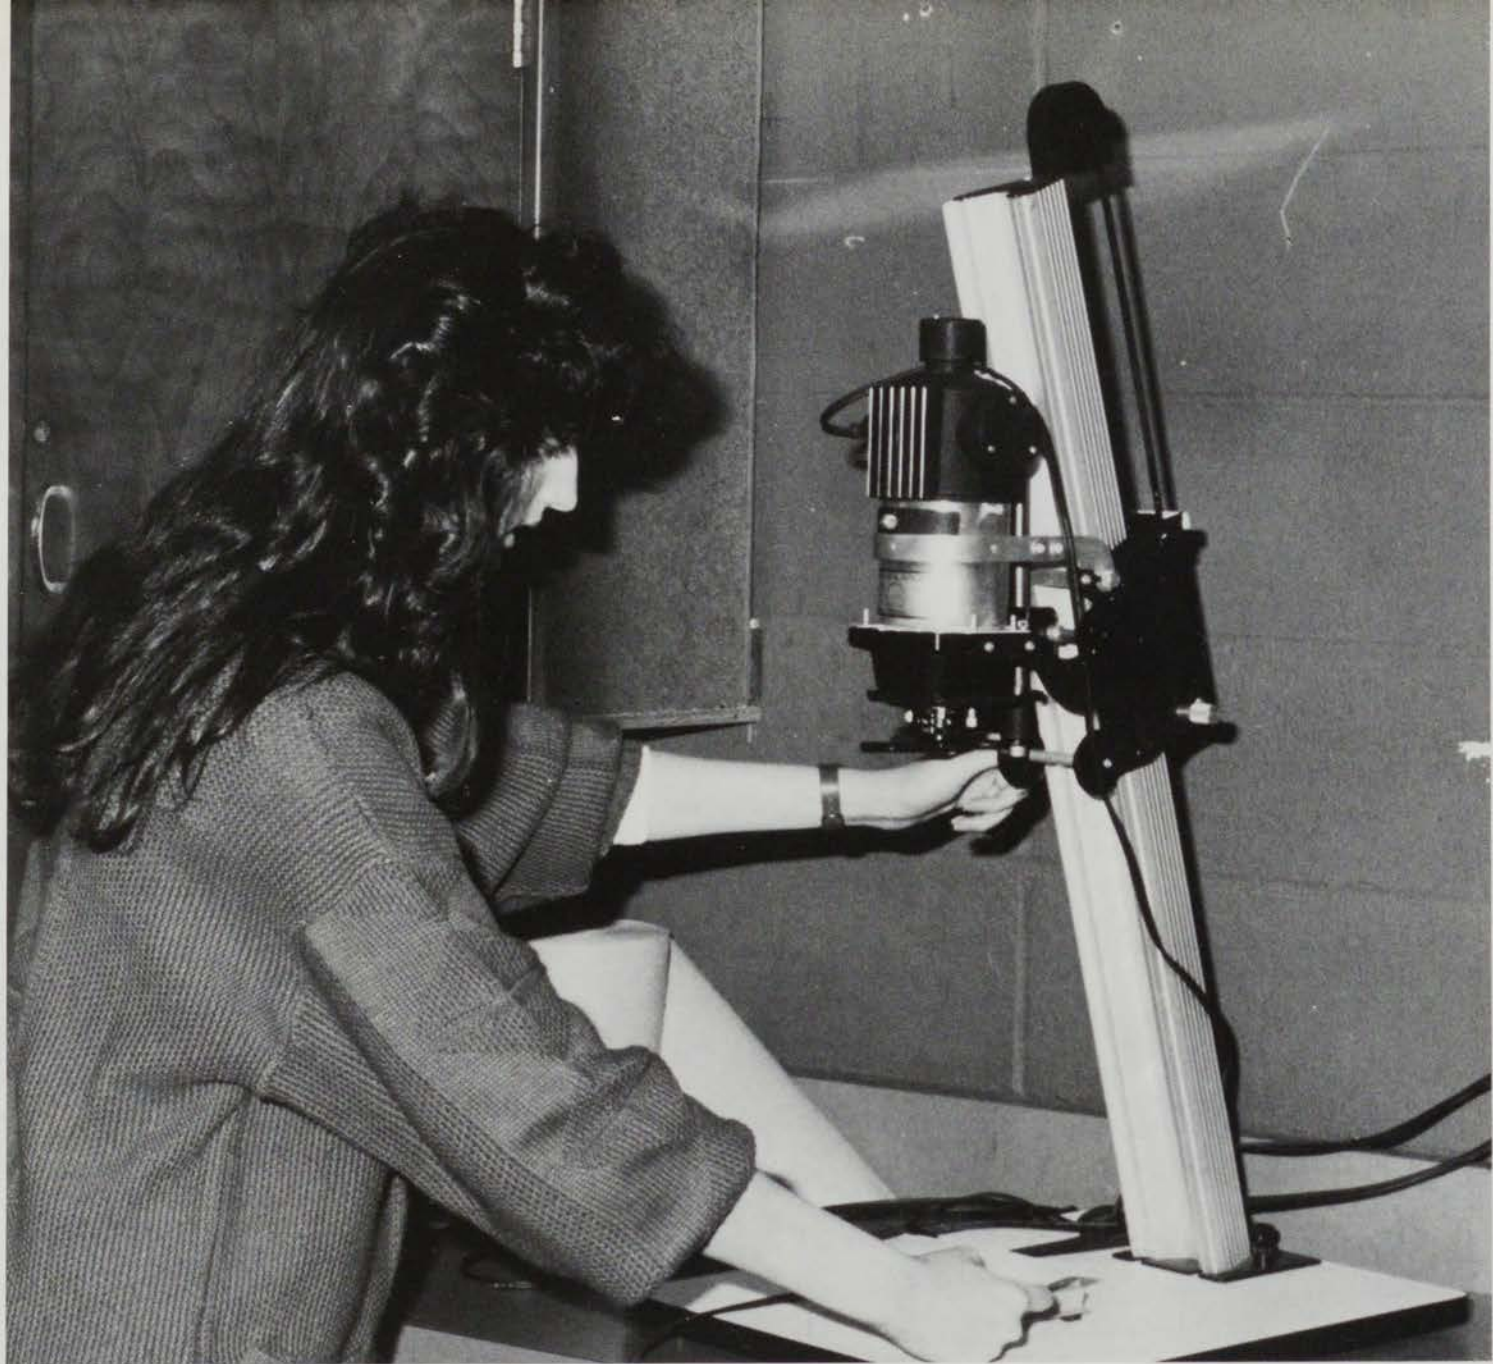

Throughout the year, FBLA was active in various conferences and competitions. The FBLA Leadership conference was held at Rider College in October, and also at Rider College was the FBLA Regional Competition during January. In addition, members attended the FBLA state convention at Great Gorge in April. Mr. Pizzulli, club advisor, summed up the aim of FBLA when he said, "Future Business Leaders of America provides the students with direction and support to facilitate the transition from school to work."

This year the Vocational Industrial Club of America welcomed for the first time Performing Arts students in its membership, adding a new dimension to the club. As co-Advisor Mr. Lock explained, VICA is "a social organization for the vocational students," where leadership was developed at leadership training meetings and vocational skills were improved with the goal of getting into Co-Op. At meetings, students listened to guest speakers from various professions and prepared for competitions.

The club's major activity was competing against other vocational schools in the New Jersey VICA Skills Olympics in March. At the local level, 31 VICA members competed, and students who won first place could go on to the state level. The many competition categories included auto mechanics, carpentry, photography, shop skill demonstration, and small engine mechanics repair. Many RBR students did well at the competition.

Instant Action Celebrates 29th Year

In an effort to aid the school and community, Instant Action club members performed many services throughout the year. The returning juniors and seniors instructed the incoming sophomore IA members as to the various procedures for which they were responsible. Led by President Donna Rizzo and the other officers, the club proved to be a success.

One of the responsibilities of the Instant Action members was the collection of attendance cards each morning. Divided into groups, the members covered every homeroom and brought the cards to the attendance office, where Vice President Joe Ashman checked them.

As an "extra precaution" during fire drills, IA members, equipped with walkie-talkies, aided in the evacuation of the building. By communicating to various groups with radio contact, IA members announced when their assigned area of the building was clear and assisted in attendance outside. In case of emergencies, IA members were there to radio help.

Throughout the year, IA club members served as guides during special meetings or activities held at the school. These events included the open house, the Adult School, a New Jersey State Student Council meeting, and an STS meeting which RFH attended. At each activity, members were present to direct visitors to the proper room.

For the first time in years, the Instant Action club correlated a project to weed and plant flowers on the patio. This was done a few years ago on a smaller scale and was a success, as it was this year. As Advisor Mr. Moses said, "This is the 29th year of continuing service to the school and the community."

Ski Club Goes To Colorado For Fun, Sun, and Snow

Swoosh . . . Ahhhh . . . Thud! — the typical sounds of a Ski Club member flying down the slopes of the Poconos, of Vermont, or, new this year . . . Colorado. For approximately 650 dollars per person, Red Bank Regional Ski Club members enjoyed 6 days of incredible snow and skiing at Steamboat Springs in Colorado. In addition, members could participate in any of the 3 overnight trips to Vermont in quest of great skiing. Three to four 1-day trips to the Poconos were planned for the year as well. The many trips gave all 240 members of the Ski Club the opportunity to work on skiing skills (or falling skills) throughout the winter.

Seniors Mike Czarnecki and Gretchen Mindich, co-Presidents of the club, helped plan and organize the trips. To help allay the costs, which ranged from $175-200 for Vermont trips and were about $45 for the Poconos, many Ski Club members sold Christmas candy; the sales went well this year.

"Everyone in the Ski Club is always going downhill," stated Advisor Mr. Gance, "but it's still one of the top clubs in the school. Our motto is Fun, Sun, and Snow." Judging from the enthusiastic turnout for the trips, it seems the Ski Club carried out its motto successfully this year."

“Skiing in Colorado was the best experience. If it wasn't for the Ski Club I never would have gone.”

Art Club Relaxes Creatively

Stressing a new, informal, and unique atmosphere, the Art Club attracted a large number of students this year. At weekly meetings, members took advantage of the available art supplies to draw and paint. However, despite the club's name, Advisor Mr. Brzostoski commented that "it is not necessary to be an art student or have artistic talent to join the club." Junior

Leslie Beebe remarked, "It's a great opportunity to develop your artistic skills even if you don't have the time in your schedule to take an art class."

The relaxed atmosphere provided a perfect place to be artistic and at the same time have fun. According to Mr. Brzostoski, the point of the club was "relaxation and creativity. We are informal and unstructured."

Gospel Choir Spreads Cheer to Community

The Gospel Choir, consisting of thirteen Red Bank Regional students, kept the gospel style alive throughout the year. President Tina Clark and the other officers lead this group during after school meetings each Thursday. The choir performed in many scheduled school programs but as Mrs. Forehand, the club advisor, related, "The Gospel Choir is sometimes asked to perform at community functions such as church functions, other religious related programs, and ground breaking ceremonies."

During the year the Gospel Choir participated in the Gospel Choir Extravaganza, the Martin Luther King Assembly, the Teen Arts Festival, and the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Music Program. During the Christmas season the choir spread holiday cheer by singing at nursing homes and at the Holiday Arts Festival.

German Club Holds Oktoberfest

The German Club, a club open to any student interested in the German language and German culture, boasted a membership of about 15 students this year. Led by German teacher Miss Hazel, the club held meetings during the year to plan and carry out various enjoyable activities.

Early in the year, the club held a miniOktoberfest in which students looked at German culture, listened to German music, and enjoyed refreshments prepared by the club.

Other activities included the exchanging of gifts called "Secret St. Nikolas," an examination of German

Forensics Club Speaks Out

Throughout the year, the five dedicated students of the Forensics Club proved that they could deliver speeches with emphasis and expression to several judges with great success. These members met as a group once a month, in addition to their individual meetings with Advisor Mr. Thomas to prepare their speeches. They then delivered speeches at monthly tournaments throughout New Jersey, giving up hours of their time on Saturdays in order to participate.

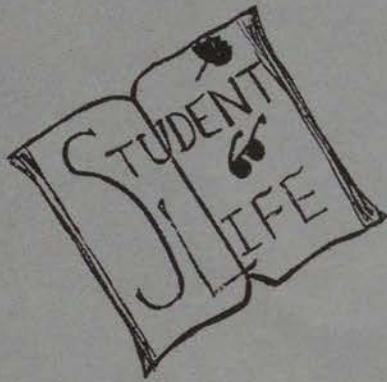

The Forensics Club worked hard throughout the year to achieve two basic goals. One of these goals was to develop self-confidence; the other was to develop the ability to speak in front of an audience. The practice the members received through the club helped them develop this ability. "The rewards of the Forensics Club," stated Mr. Thomas, "were membership in the National Forensics League and trophies won at individual tournaments."

Forensics Advisor Mr. Thomas checks junior Jim Leavitt's poem choice and provides suggestions for his presentation of it, as juniors Julie-Anne Collart and Dan Klahre observe.

BUCCANEER PASSPORT

Traveling from school to school, the Bucs challenged all opponents; whether it was by running, kicking, swinging, tackling, or shooting. The Red Bank Regional athletic program gave students the opportunity to develop physical skills as well as discipline, sportsmanship, and determination. Athletes discovered the importance of teamwork while getting in shape and enjoying themselves. On all levels, the Bucs proved that no matter where they ventured their dedication, pride, and skill was exhibited.

Teamwork Improves All

Struggling to overcome the hurdles of a young team, the 1985-86 Boys' Track members dedicated themselves to improving their own skills as well as those of their teammates. Outstanding achievements were made by senior Richard Aderton who reached twelve feet in the pole vault. Junior Melvin O'Neal had a strong performance in the high jump with a record of 6 feet 2 inches. Commenting on the overall season, sophomore Jeff Joo said, "It was a good experience; it not only taught me how to work as an individual, but as a team."

Filling the important positions of hurdlers on the team were senior Bob Callinan and junior Andy Murphy. Although new in the event, Murphy stated, "Once we became familiar with the hurdles, it was like flying!" A student with a promising future on the team was freshman Geoff Harrison who ran competitively in the two mile and one mile. A 4.50 in the mile was an impressive mark for this rookie.

Working cohesively, the group improved throughout the year. Said Coach Reed, "I do not think they were working at their full potential at the start of the season. They are a young team, but they will improve."

Girls' Track Places Second in C North

Winding up a sensational year, the 1985-86 Girls' Track Team captured second place in the C North Division with many talented athletes contributing to the overall impressive record of 5-2 for the regular season, and 4-1 in the highly competitive conference.

Outstanding team members included senior Shantee Hooks, who placed first in all of her events, often quadrupling. Her best times included 12.1 for the 100 meters and 25.6 for the 200 meters. She also participated in the long jump and the mile relay.

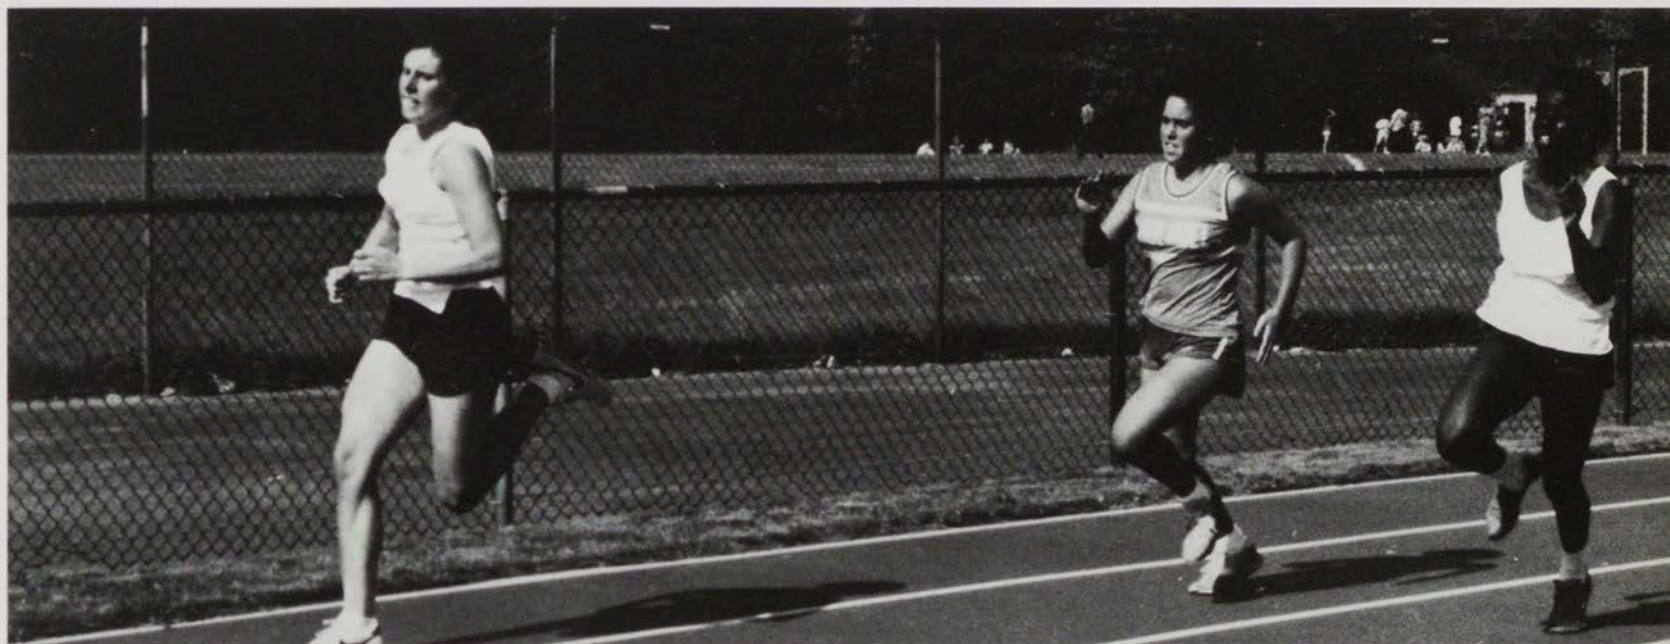

Shantee placed third in the Shore Conference for the 100 meter dash.

Senior Monyetta Moorer captured first in the shot put consistently with a 33'7" throw. Both Monyetta and Shantee qualified for the state meet. Other powerful team achievers were sophomore Jennifer Hurtt who ran undefeated in the 400 meters, and Sherry Barber, another sophomore who performed excellently in the hurdles, relay, and long jump. She is expected to be a vital asset to the team in the future.

Despite these successes, the team was short on members throughout the year and this sometimes wore out team members. Said sophomore Margaret Burgener, "We had a lot of fun and put in a lot of effort; with more players we'll have an even better record next year."

Coaches Mr. Booth and Mrs. Forehand were extremely pleased with the accomplishments of the team. Said Coach Booth, "They are a very young team; they have learned a lot this year and as a result will be a powerful team next year. Overall, I'm very happy with their performance."

Lady Kickers Set New Goals

The 1985-86 Girls' Soccer Team was selected from an astonishing number of 63 girls. This amount lent itself to an additional six freshmen games and a competitive but disappointing season. Junior Gina Nicoletti proved to be very instrumental during the season by scoring 14 goals and aiding with 5 assists. Nicoletti was chosen for a soccer tour to Europe for five weeks during the summer. During this time, she represented the Mid-Eastern States in competition.

The season's honorable MVP award was given to senior Joanne (Beefer) McCain.

Throughout the season, the team had to deal with constant injuries, many of which were serious. The team also lost time during spring vacation when practice and games were missed.

The team, however, did have high moments. Several games such as the ones against RBC and St. John Vianney were tied in regular play, but despite aggressive offensive moves, the team lost in overtime in both cases. Stated junior Nicoletti, "We really did our best, and we had fun; I guess luck was just against us."

After a year of ups and downs, Coach Ms. Gaze expects a much improved season next year. Said Ms. Gaze, "The team should do well because we have many members coming back and are losing relatively few seniors."

Cremeans Leads Netters to Shore Conference

Senior Mike Cremeans, captain of the 1986 tennis team, set a personal record as he led his talented team members through a successful season. Cremeans, playing first singles, won his fiftieth match in high school. His skillful playing and excellent record qualified him to play in the state Singles Tournament, but he lost the first round in three sets. Unfortunately, Cremeans will not be returning to the team next year; he will be taking his talent to Rutgers where he will continue to play tennis.

The team, with its new coach Mr. Joel Kahn, included such excellent players as senior Rick Horn at second singles, freshman Dave Chouinard at third singles, newcomers Thor Hansen and Harold Aderton at first doubles, and Brad Brokaw with Jason Levine at second doubles. The team went to the State Tournament where it won the first round, and then qualified for the Shore Conference. Although the team lost the first round, the fact that they made it to the Shore Conference was a significant accomplishment. Coach Mr. Kahn stated, "We'll miss Mike Cremeans and Rick Horn, but we're getting back a lot of experienced players for next year."

Mike Cremeans, a senior, gives his forehand his best shot as the Bucs roll over RFH, 4-1.

Young Bucs Come Back to Conquer Caseys

"It was a learning experience; we were a young team and we worked hard together, but we had a lot of fun doing it." That's how sophomore John Doherty described the 1986 Bucs baseball season. The many players contributed individual strengths to the team which led to a 9-11-1 record.

In an outstanding performance, sophomore Jamie Mazzaco maintained a batting average of .377, an exceptional achievement for such an early presence on the team. Senior Rob Hanley contributed greatly to the Buc's team spirit by making six sacrifices during the season in addition to playing a phenomenal second base. All team members supported each other, even if injury interfered. Although junior Tom Nelson broke his foot early in the season, he was out to support the team at many practices and games.

During the season, the Bucs made some incredible comebacks. In the last confrontation of the season, the Bucs were down 8 to 12 in the seventh inning against RBC. By the ninth inning, they had topped the Casey's 13 to 12. Stated sophomore Jamie Mazzaco, "I think our ability to come back in those last few moments of each game was really impressive; with the experience from this year, the Bucs will be great next season." With the many contributors and strong team spirit, the Bucs are expected to be major competitors next year.

Said Coach Nick Pizzuli, "For such a young team, they've really played beyond their capabilities; if anything, they have overachieved."

Softball Season Spells Success

The 1985-86 Girls' Softball Team finished their season with an 11-7 record. Coach Andrew Russo summed up the year as "a good one, especially considering there were many inexperienced ball players in key positions." With a team batting average over .300 and a team fielding average over .950, the players tackled their opponents with "the hard work, the dedication, and the desire to win" that resulted in many exciting victories for the Bucs.

Co-captains Linda Homefield, first base, and Nina Johnson, shortstop, as well as catcher Nancy Hankins proved to be a driving force in the team. Linda Homefield threatened the opposition with a .530 batting average as Nina Johnson and Nancy Hankins joined forces in a strong defense.

The highlight of the season was the game against Freehold Borough. By the fourth inning the Bucs were taking a beating 3-14. However, the team roared back in an amazing turn-around to win 17-15.

This season, the team tackled such tough opposition as division winner Henry Hudson, Ocean Township, who reached the state semifinals, Keansburg and their eight returning lettermen, and Mater Dei and their eight returning lettermen. Nevertheless, the Bucs' team playing took RBR to the state playoffs and the toughest competition of the season. After a tense game, the Bucs lost to Watchung Hills 2-0.

Lee Places Second in Shore Conference Golf

With amazing skill and previous tournament experience on the state, national, and international levels; senior Mike Lee led the golf team to a successful 15-5 season, while capturing additional awards for himself. Lee came in second place in the State Regions with a 72, missing first place by 1 shot. He then captured second place in the Shore Conference with a 76.

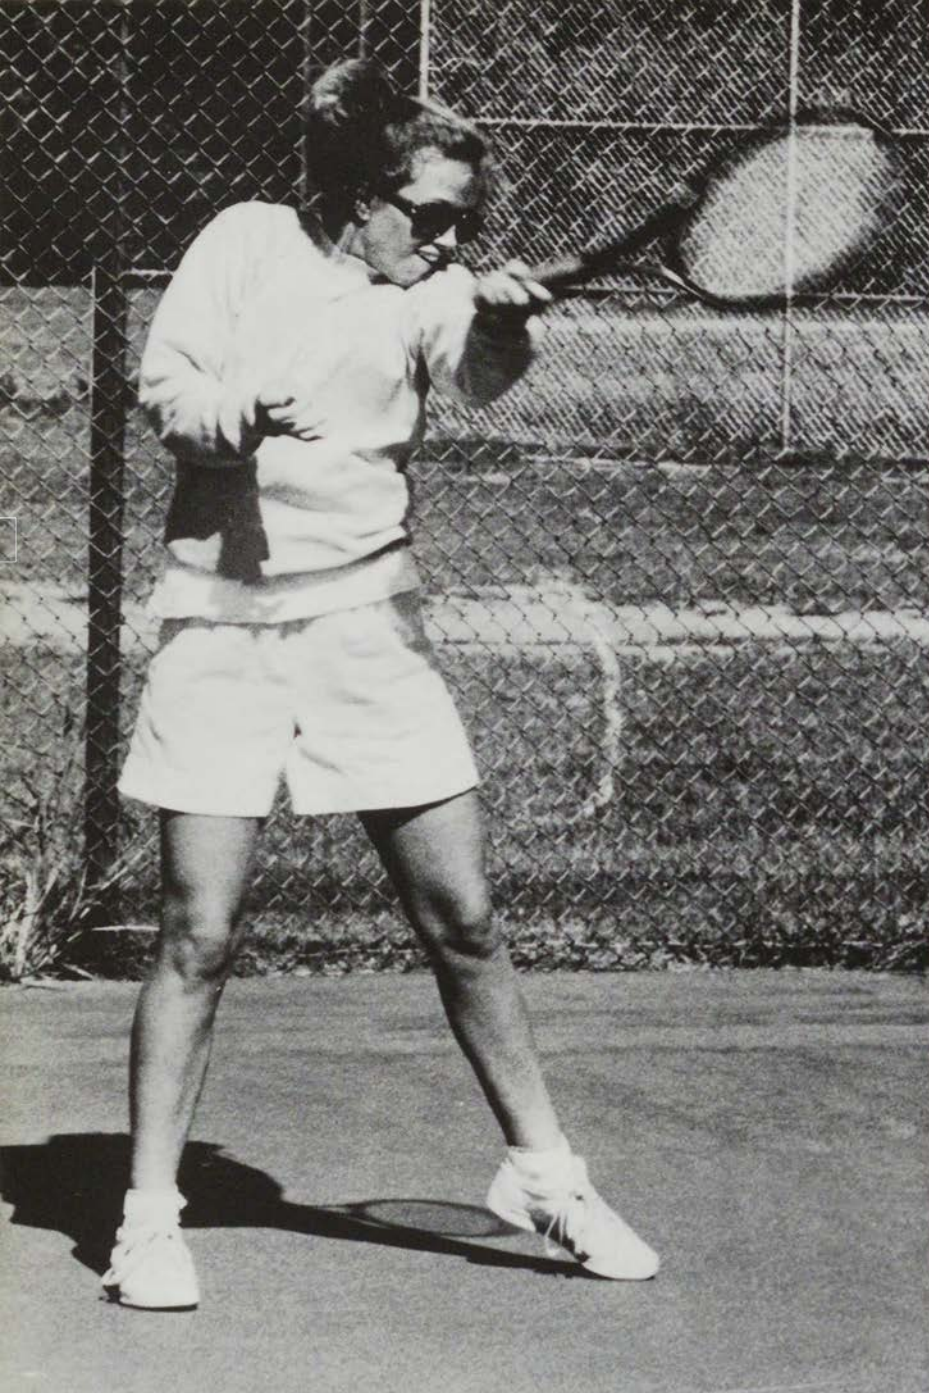

Junior Harris Collins, another outstanding golfer on the team, played well in the State Regions, receiving a final score of 79. He went with Lee to the State Tournament Finals, where he shot an 84. Other talented golf team members included Chris MacLaughlin, Chris Olsen, Jason Waldman, and Mary Jude Cox, who contributed to the team's successful season. Under Coach Leo the team placed fifth in both the Monmouth County and State Regions tournaments, and went to the Shore Conference where they again came in fifth.

Jason Waldman reflected on the season and said, "The 1986 golf team was very successful. I enjoyed playing for the team."

7-11, Ho-Hos, and Victory! 86' Lady Netters Rack Up Outstanding Record

"Melissa, when are you going to 7-11?" and "Don't eat my Ho-Hos!" was what tennis coach Joel Kahn felt displayed the fun-loving, enthusiastic attitude of the 1986-87 Girls' Tennis team. This does not mean that there was not any hard work and unity. The team's outstanding record of 10-6 represented the talent of first singles player senior Eileen Reardon. She was a strong foundation for the team, filling the top position for four years. "This year's team was really fun, we were very enthusiastic, and it was nice working with Mr. Kahn, our new coach," commented co-captain Eileen.

One person does not make an entire team, and the tennis team was no exception. Junior Kim Cremeans's ability and determination placed her in the second singles position with senior co-captain Gretchen Mindnich in the third slot. Senior co-captain Melissa Apy and sophomore Mary Jude Cox pulled in critical wins for the lady netters. Freshman Cara Petruzella and sophomore Kate Semple, new members of the team, gained experience through their success as a second doubles team.

Injuries to several key players caused a temporary set back; however, the arrival of junior Katie Cremeans, with her fantastic serve, saved the team. She was able to fill necessary positions and carry the team to the close of a successful season. The hard work of the players was exemplified by senior Nancy Richmond, who put in extra hours of practice, which paid off for her in a starting position in critical matches. Junior Amy Darrah, a returning player, displayed her talent on many occasions. Sophomores Kara Gaetano and Karen Gibbons exhibited their ambition by winning doubles matches.

With so many great contributors on the team, it's no wonder this tennis team season was so fulfilling. Returning members look forward to much fun and success in upcoming years.

Season Opener Yields High Expectations

Buc Football 86' Means Remembering Rumson

What's better than going to a football game on a brisk Saturday afternoon? Grab a candy bar and hot chocolate and watch a friendly rivalry between Rumson-Fair Haven and Red Bank. Oops! Did I say friendly? Well ... The Bucs are friendly, especially since Red Bank won the "Battle of Ridge Road" this year, upholding the standards set by Red Bank's previous victorious teams. This year the Bucs defeated the 'Dawgs' in style! With the wild support from their screaming fans the entire game, Red Bank's 12-2 victory lived up to all pre-season expectations of this team. When commenting on the season opener, new Coach Richard Martin exclaimed, "I'm looking forward to the games that lie ahead of us. If the team continues to play as tough as they did today, Red Bank will be a feared competitor to all opponents."

Unfortunately, the games that followed this superior season opener were nothing more than a string of disappointments for the fans, the players, and Coach Martin. Following Red Bank's victory over Rumson, the Bucs played tough against Shore Regional. However, in spite of offensive advances by senior tailback Melvin O'Neal, Red Bank lost, 28-14. The 42-0 defeat that occurred the next week when the Bucs confronted Red Bank Catholic destroyed the team's morale, and one loss led to another. Halfway into the season, the Bucs stood with a 1-4 record.

When reminiscing about Buc football 86', the game everyone will talk about is the outstanding effort that stopped the Bulldogs. Led by seniors Dave Drawbaugh and Dave Mueller, the Buc defense literally shut down the Rumson offense. The Buc defense dominated the entire game, and the only Rumson points (all 2 of them) came by way of a safety. The Buc offense also shined, with senior sensation Melvin O'Neal running with the ball play after play, always gaining yards for the Bucs. Although the passing attack was not at its best, the great running ability of tailback Melvin O'Neal pulled Red Bank to victory. The offensive line, including junior Bill Amann, and seniors Frank Cittadino and Mike Fortier, blocked especially well, revealing holes for senior Rodney Vann to plow through as he lead the way for O'Neal.

After the victory the jubilant fans could not control themselves. Exclaimed ecstatic senior Michelle Martinelly, "The Rumson game is the most important, and we won it!" In celebration, the Buc fans piled into their cars and formed a twenty car motorcade which wound its way through the community proclaiming the big victory. Said senior quarterback Harris Collins, "It's great to make our fans happy, but nothing is better than the satisfaction the team feels after a victory. I hope we continue to have a real game-winning season."

Buc Defense Denies 'Wave' Washout

As giant balloons of Kermit the Frog and Garfield floated down Fifth Avenue in celebration of Thanksgiving, loyal Red Bank Regional fans filled the home stands to watch the last football game of the 1986 season. Despite the cold and wind, and the fact that the Bucs had not won their previous seven games, the stands were filled with a variety of Red Bank supporters. The optimistic players and fans were "psyched" at the thought of crashing the Long Branch Wave and making Homecoming '86 a memorable event. After all, the Long Branch football team was ranked # 1 in Division B North, and beating this team would clearly make the season.

The 10:30 A.M. kick-off was followed by 24 minutes of incredible effort on the part of the offense to penetrate Long Branch's defense. The offensive line provided ample protection for sophomore quarterback Steve DePolo; however, he just could not connect with any touchdown passes. Unfortunately for the Bucs, the Wave defense also shut down Red Bank's running game, and at the end of the first half the score was Long Branch 7, Red Bank 0. During halftime, Red Bank students quickly forgot that the Bucs were losing when a parade of candidates for Homecoming King, Queen, and Court made its way around the track. With renewed spirit, the determined Bucs started the second half of the Long Branch skirmish.

The Buc defense struggled to hold the Wave to a mere seven points in the first half of the game. A series of powerful defensive tackles, led by senior Dave Drawbaugh, in the early part of the second half gave hope to Red Bank. Unfortunately, a touchdown scored by Long Branch near the end of the game determined the winner of the battle. When the clock ran out, the Wave had drowned the Bucs, 14-0.

Red Bank's final defeat with Long Branch was symbolic of the entire one win, seven loss season. Junior Bill Amann stated, "I was disappointed with the season because so much talent went to waste. Hopefully, more team members will develop their football abilities, and next year will be a more fulfilling season."

86' Boys' Soccer Battles B North Competition

Kicking Their Way to the Top

The 1986 Boys' Soccer Team was promoted from a tough year in the C North Division to an even tougher year in the B North Division. Included in this division was Raritan, which was labeled sixth in the state of New Jersey. Although the Bucs lost to Raritan early in the season, their spirit was not defeated. This year in the new division the team, with its twenty-three players, performed with ups and downs. Freshmen Steve Lewandowski and Peter Dougan proved to be positive additions to the team. Steve assisted the team by scoring three goals in the first half of the season, but due to an unfortunate injury he was unable to perform the second half of the season.

Goalie was a strong position this year with outstanding keepers Michael Czarnecki and Chris Lewandowski. These seniors helped the Bucs defensively in conquering teams in their new division.

Senior co-captains Mike Czarnecki and Kevin Curtis agreed that, "Considering we lost some good seniors last year and we moved up in division this year, this season was a good one. We had to do some rebuilding, and the team should be a success in the future." Along with Mike and Kevin, co-captain senior Scott Hillyer helped coach John Knodel lead the '86 team to a fulfilling season.

One of the most valuable players was junior Alexandro Bryan. "Alex is respected as one of the top scorers in the league," commented Coach Knodel. He has made numerous goals and assists throughout his years at Red Bank Regional and hopefully more goals to come during his senior year.

To add to the success of the Buccaneers, seniors Luis Linares, Scott Darragh, Tom Nelson, and Tim Trainor helped pave the way to an enjoyable season. Coach John Knodel added, "It was tough moving into the B North Division. I wish we could have won close games that we lost, especially a killer against Freehold and two tough confrontations against RBC."

Field Hockey Fighters Stick It To Division A

"The switch from Division C to Division A forced us to play some very experienced teams," stated Coach Wendy Patterson when commenting on this year's Field Hockey team. Her comment reflected the difficulty the team encountered in attempting to make the State Tournament. Hampered by a young team and lack of experienced players, the tenacious Bucs fought their way to a 4-8-3 record. In an effort to improve on last year's season, many team members attended Princeton Field Hockey Camp prior to the season. This enabled the Bucs to gain a sense of unity as well as improve their skill.

With only four returning seniors, Kirsten Cather and captains Melissa Bowie, Daria DiBlasio, and Gina Nicoletti, the Bucs often relied on underclassmen to come through in rough situations. Junior Deidre Williams led the team in scoring, and freshman goalie Diane Fortier excelled on the defensive end.

The team, nicknamed "The Animals" because of their aggressive style of play, also suffered many injuries, most notably to senior Melissa Bowie. However, Melissa's play was not hampered. She stated, "The team suffered some heartbreaking losses. However, the underclassmen gained experience, and if next year's team plays with the same amount of intensity, they will be tough to beat!"

Cross Country Team Runs Uphill

Plagued by lack of participation, the Red Bank Regional Cross Country team, coached by Miss Onnalee Gaze, had a disappointing season with a 1-10 record. Much of this fate was contributed to the move from Division C to Division B, where competition was more fierce.

Four senior runners led the team this year. Andrew Murphy paved the way for the Bucs while Doug Schnitzspahn added strength. Colin Campbell and Andrew Phillips added the leadership necessary in order to keep the team united. Freshman David Hurlbutt produced some good times and is expected to carry the team to success in the future along with sophomore Joe Hanily. All the Buc runners worked hard to reduce their times and, "get in shape for other sports," as stated by freshman Jamie McAllister. Senior Andrew Murphy felt that, "Although we didn't have a winning season, the team shouldn't be put down but praised for staying together and working hard."

The girls' team got off to a rough start this year with only four members. Sophomore Christine Mulvihill and juniors Sherry Bartowsik, Tess Conlon, and Tracy Tokanos were disappointed because a team requires at least five members, so meets were not official. As the season progressed, the girls were struck by injury until the team was obsolete. "It was too bad we couldn't find another girl to run for us this year," said Tess Conlon about the team.

Freshman Jamie McAllister strains to finish ahead of his Ocean opponent in the Bucs 45-17 defeat.

Red Bank Regional's Best Brings SPIRIT TO ALL SEASONS

"We got spirit, yes we do! We got spirit, how about you?" This inspiring chant could be heard throughout the stands when the Red Bank Regional varsity cheerleaders entertained fans and encouraged athletes throughout the football and basketball seasons. Always maintaining a high level of enthusiasm, these talented girls dedicated themselves to spreading cheer among Red Bank Regional players, parents, and fans. This fall the varsity squad, consisting of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, strived to keep Buc morale strong during a season of disappointing losses. With the help of new coach Ms. Karen Cook, the girls always had a bright smile and cheer of encouragement for the trying football players. The transition from fall to winter cheerleading brought about many changes, including a new coach and an entirely new squad. In spite of these changes the basketball team was always kept highly motivated. This year's winter squad created some original, energetic cheers which proved to boost the morale of the successful Buc basketball players. All in all, Buc cheerleading maintained high levels of spirit throughout the athletic field and basketball court this year.

Bucs and Buc-ettes Shoot for First Place

This year's Buc Holiday Classic started off with a bang! Both the boys' and girls' teams exhibited quickness and skill, which enabled them to reach the final round of the three day tournament.

The second-seeded Buc-ettes, led by senior co-captains Melissa Bowie and Gina Nicoletti, surprised everyone in the tournament opener with a 54-27 demolition of the Ocean Township team. The girls continued on their rampage by sending the Rumson Bulldogs to the puppy pound, with sophomore Kerry Lunz acting as chief dog catcher. With these two victories tucked away, the Buc-ettes were on their way to the finals. Melissa Bowie scored ten points in the first half of the championship game against Middletown-North, getting the team off to a great head start. Sophomore Kerry Lunz and junior Erica Wright each sank the ball for the Bucs in the opening minute of the fourth quarter and this lead was never lost. Kerry Lunz pulled through in the clutch by making two foul shots to wrap up the game, 51-48. Lunz was named the most valuable player and a member of the All-Tournament Team, along with Erica Wright.

The boys' team, led by junior Greg Lewit and seniors Bill Lewit and David Holden, easily defeated Middletown-North on opening night. The Bucs went on to beat Shore Regional, in a game where key defensive moves secured the victory. The stubborn victory would never have been achieved without the scoring drives of seniors Melvin O'Neal and Nate Sheard. Reaching the final round against Mater Dei, the Bucs came out strong and were ready to take control. The game was in their hands when they had a fourteen point lead with only three minutes and twenty seconds remaining. Unfortunately, the team could not hold on to this lead and in the last minute of the game Mater Dei pulled ahead to win, 58-57. Although the Bucs did not clinch the tournament, team members Nate Sheard and Bill Lewit were honored to be named to the All-Tournament Team.

Bucs Blast B North

Playing against such opponents as Monmouth Regional, Freehold Township, and St. John Vianney, our Bucs, with a charged effort, produced a winning season. With experience and cooperation, the Bucs clinched their opening game at Monmouth Regional with a 74-57 victory; this game was followed with three more consecutive wins. Although height should have been a problem, nothing could stop our mighty team. The team's competitive attitude and ability to work together proved to be two valuable assets which resulted in repeated victories. Senior captains Bill Lewit and Nate Sheard led the 78-58 Long Branch slaughter. Experience really helped the Bucs, who had four three-year varsity players—Bill Lewit, Nate Sheard, Melvin O'Neal, and Dave Holden. With outstanding underclassmen such as Greg Lewit, "Peewee" Reeves, and Mike Tinley, the Bucs captured the B North Division Championship for the fifth time in the last six years.

Overall, the season was more than a success, and Coach Nick Pizzuli commented, "In spite of our competitive schedule, the team qualified for both the Shore Conference and the State Tournament. This is a great accomplishment and I am proud of the way the team toughened up during close games. It was those victories which qualified us for the upcoming tournaments." Showing their fans that they would not be beat, the Bucs avenged their loss against Red Bank Catholic; the final score of the second RBC game being 70-54. Captain Bill Lewit summed up the season by saying, "Although we did not get down to Brick Township, sight of the Shore Conference Semi-Finals, and we did not attain all of our goals, the season was still a success and I am proud to be part of such a winning team."

The Casey defense can not stop senior Dave Holden as he looks for a teammate to pass to in the Bucs 70-54 win over RBC.

Indoor Track Team Hurdles Over Opponents

Despite small numbers, the Red Bank Regional Indoor Track Team had a miraculously successful season. Because the Indoor Track program fluctuated in the past, expectations at the start of the season were grim. Head coach Dave Gandy, a newcomer from Red Bank Catholic, expressed his views by saying, "Coach Betty Forehand and myself knew we had a few class runners in junior Jim Powers, sophomore Geoff Harrison, and juniors Tess Conlon and Sherry Barber, but the rest of the team was unproven. Call it luck or fate, but we started to win."

The girls improved their record over last year's season to 6-3 and the boys to 5-4. In addition to this fantastic team effort, individuals also experienced winning seasons. Freshman Michelle Samuels captured first place at the Shore Conference meet in the 400 meter run and sixth in the Group IV Championship in the 55 meter sprint. Junior Jim Powers placed third in the 800 meter run at the Shore Conference Championship Meet. Not only did the individual team members break personal records, they also broke school records. Jim Powers broke the 800 meter record with a time of 2:03.7, Michelle Samuels in the 55 meter, being clocked at 7.2, and Sherry Barber in the 55 meter hurdles, with a time of 9.3 seconds.

The unexpectedly successful season satisfied not only the coaches but also the team members. The team was well-rounded in both running, sprinting, and field events. Many athletes were compelled to compete in several different events in each meet, and some even volunteered to participate in events they were not trained for when the need for a runner arose. With that kind of dedication, the Indoor Track team's season could only be the success that it was.

Swim Team Bubbles to the Surface

Red Bank Regional swim team coaches Dana Giblin and Joyce Mingo experienced the benefit of a successful season, in spite of the constant worry of who was going away on vacation and when. However, through all the schedule problems, the Bucs still came out on top. The immense depth on the girls' team proved them superior to others. The boys' team, consisting of only eight members, also produced many fine performances.

The girls' team, with a combined effort, stole eight out of the team's nine meets. "We were really a team effort this year," commented Coach Mingo. Juniors Tracy Tokanos and Ann Marie Talerico racked up many firsts for the team. Both girls qualified for the state competition. Junior Joanna Pescatore, a new addition to the team, proved herself successful as an efficient backstroker. Sophomore Dana Mannello had many fine performances in freestyle and breast stroke. Senior diver Kathy O'Sullivan, who won first place in the county competition, consistently put the Bucs in the lead with her many skilled accomplishments. The girls' team led by captains senior Melissa Apy and Tracy Tokanos, finished first in Monmouth County and second in the Shore Conference.

Losing junior Jamie Mazzacco, due to a knee injury, did not contribute any help to the boys' team's effort. The boys' team surely had the talent, but they just did not have the depth that was needed to win many of the meets. "No deposits, no returns," sophomore Wyatt Ulrich commented on the situation. Ulrich, strongest in freestyle and butterfly, captured a first place in basically all of the meets. Ulrich also qualified for the state competition in freestyle. Senior Mike Anderton blew his competitors away with his amazing backstroke. Senior breast strokeurs Andrew Murphy and Kevin Curtis pulled in first and seconds for the team. The boys' team, led by senior captains Dave Drawbaugh and Mike Anderton, placed fourth in the Monmouth County Competition and eighth in the Shore Conference.

Buc-ettes Experience Brings Success

Tenacity, hustle, determination. These ingredients, in addition to the aid of a year's experience, led to the success of the Red Bank Regional girls' basketball team. Because the starting team remained basically the same from last year, the girls were able to complement one another, and this reflected in their performance. The team persevered through a tough schedule to triumph in the Buc Classic, to place second in the "B" North Division, and to be continuously ranked as one of the top ten teams in the Shore Conference.

Led by leading scorers and rebounders Erika Wright, junior, and Kerry Lunz, sophomore, the Bucs were often able to compensate for their lack of height and beat teams of greater size. Senior co-captains Melissa Bowie and Gina Nicoletti were the floor leaders, and often made the crucial plays. Senior Elizabeth Sims worked her way to a starting position, and greatly aided with her rebounding ability. As Melissa Bowie explained, "Hard work, determination, and the friendship among the players aided in building toward this successful season."

When asked about the season, Coach Steven Johnson commented, "Coach Russo and I felt this year's team improved greatly from last year. The team's attitude led to this year's success because they never let down or gave up during a close game." This was evident as the Bucs triumphed in a thrilling contest to beat Middletown North in the Buc Classic, and they captured second place in the "B" North division. Summed up Coach Johnson, "Hopefully, the girls will be able to maintain this success next year."

Travelling On Their Own

Most athletes at Red Bank Regional take pride in being a member of a varsity team for a school that upholds a tradition of sports excellence. However, there are students who have ventured out into the world of athletics by themselves. These students take pride in upholding individual standards of excellence in specialized areas of sports. Because they pursue interests other than varsity sports, something must be said about these special individuals who conquer their own corner of the athletic world.

Many people cringe with fear at the thought of mounting an eight-foot horse and then jumping fences while riding on it. However, junior Andrea Stone is not one of those people. Andrea has been riding, jumping, and racing horses since early in her childhood. Twice a week Andrea spends the afternoon at her horse farm in Freehold, where she rides regularly. In addition to riding her horse, Andrea also cares for it by grooming, bathing, brushing, and feeding it. "Caring for my horse is a welcome chore, when I know that when I am done I will ride like the wind on her," comments Andrea.

Although Andrea likes to do jumps

while on her horse, senior Tami Cobbs prefers to do the jumps herself. Tami's interest lies in the world of gymnastics, a world in which she is a major competitor. Many years of practice paid off for Tami when she travelled to Texas for a year to take part in gymnastic competitions. Tami returned to Red Bank Regional this year after receiving awards and recognition while in the Lone Star State. These days, you can find Tami at the Red Bank YMCA three nights a week, where she twists and flips in preparation for upcoming meets.

Unlike Tami, junior Bill Simes's interest lies in the world of outdoor sports, more specifically surfing! Bill gets 'psyched' to catch the 'killer' waves in the wee hours of the morning. In the middle of the winter, when the water is a chilly 50 degrees, Bill pulls on his wet suit to protect him from the icy water. Once he's covered with rubber, Simes heads for the surf with his board tucked under one arm, hoping for some eight-foot waves to conquer.

Bill Simes, however, is not the only Buc who enjoys the water. Bill Amann, also a junior, fishes regularly at nearby ponds and rivers. Bill's interest in fishing began when he was a child, and he, his father, and his brother would grab their tackle boxes and poles at four in the morning and spend the day catching fish, or at least trying to. As Bill got older his fishing outings became less frequent; however, Bill still enjoys baiting a line and catching a fish whenever he has a morning to spare.

While Bill Amann casts his rod, senior Mike Czarnecki chalks his cue stick. An avid pool enthusiast, Mike enjoys competing with his friends in friendly games of 'solids and stripes' and '8-ball'. Even though Mike has no plans to be the next Minnesota Fats, you can find him in the basement of his father's home some weekends, brushing up on his trick shots. "After seeing The Color of Money," explains Mike, "I've been playing pool more frequently. It's a game I enjoy and a little friendly competition never hurt anybody."

Red Bank Regional's student body has always been a diverse one, and in 1987 the situation was no different. On or off the varsity playing fields, the Bucs travelled from sports site to sports site, always reaching individual goals.

Students prepared for careers, built a foundation for future education and learned more about outside interests through the wide selection of classes available to them. # Board of Education Adopts Student Guidelines

Dr. Nogueira Named Top Principal in the State

Recognizing changing trends in future careers, Dr. Warner cited, "The need for a new emphasis in education in the areas of science, math, and future economics" as a basis for the changing state curriculum requirements. Efforts on the part of the Board of Education and the Administration as well as statewide education geared to prepare today's student for the not-so-distant future. Students were urged to participate in rigorous classes and to be involved in school activities to promote growth and interaction with others.

The school continued to receive many distinguishing awards. Principal Dr. Nogueira was recognized as the top principal in New Jersey in the newspaper USA Today. His recognition gained him the honorary title of "Buc of the Month" in January.

Board and Administration officials sought to involve themselves in problems concerning personal crisis. Family tragedy, alcohol and drug related problems and any other roadblocks to student progress were recognized and efforts were made to aid these students.

The "Expectations for Student Behavior" were adopted as the guidelines for promoting student progress throughout the year. The goal of the Administration was to stimulate positive attitudes to further develop a balance between the students themselves and their work habits. The guidelines further testified to the excellent standards maintained at the school and the outstanding aspirations for which students strove.

The Board insured the quality of courses and existence of those that students demanded. In the Foreign Language Department, Spanish 5 and French 5 were improved as more and more students joined the courses.

The Performing Arts Program, incorporated several years ago, was in full swing by the 1986-1987 school year.

The school was in the process of preparing for the Middle States Evaluation during the year. Every department looked introspectively into its curriculum and determined their own strengths and weaknesses. The on-site evaluation, which occurs every ten years, was scheduled for the 1987-1988 school year.

The outstanding criteria for students remained strong and many took advantage of its offerings. Red Bank Regional remained a unique community for learning. Commented Board of Education member, Mrs. Janet Gardiner, "The diversity of not just the programs-Vocational, Performing Arts, A.P. and College Prep, but the diversity of the people gave RBR its specialness."

Art Students Utilize Poster Talents

For the second year in a row, the art students supplied an important service to the school with their talent for poster art. Students contributed their interpretations of the theme for the SADD poster contest, "Drunk Drivers Destroy Dreams." Junior Dave King took the $20 first prize, Sophomore Shirley Mounayer won second prize for $15, and a tie for third with $10 each went to juniors Heather Weiss and Heather Colahan.

The art classes also advertised the school's No Smoking Clinic on December 14th with posters. Individual students contributed their talents to clubs such as the Interact Club, The Log, and The Crow's Nest with posters and drawings.

Student artists displayed work at exhibitions as well. The Red Bank Public Library exhibit from January 12 through March 1st showed works from approximately 100 Red Bank Regional art students. The annual Teen Arts Festival at Brookdale also received contributions from the students.

Art classes have distinguished themselves with a wide variety of artistic expression available at all levels. Weaving, cartooning, sculpting, and painting were all major parts of the art curriculum. According to Mr. Brzostoski, his classes this year "concentrated more on oil paintings, clay, and ceramics." Mr. Forte's crafts classes included jewelry, creating tie-dyeing, marionettes, and silkscreening as part of the year's activities. Commented Mr. Brzostoski, "Even though the program is not vocationally oriented, many graduating seniors will pursue art as a career. Others will keep art as a hobby for the rest of their lives. This year we had an unusually high number of talented students."

BSIP Prepares For Challenging HSPT.

Gearing up for HSPT preparation, the Basic Skills Improvement Program tackled the difficult job of providing increased aid to students in the areas of reading, writing, and math. The MBS test, or Minimum Basic Skills Test, was replaced by the High School Proficiency Test, a more demanding exam, as the requirement for graduation. More students needed remedial help, especially in the math area as the test contained more demanding concepts. As the HSPT's standards were adopted, more students needed individual programs for study. Based upon their scores, students were placed in courses that helped them in their weakest areas. "The classes were geared according to the student's scores-this helped formulate the best possible program for each student," explained Department Supervisor Miss Mary Johnson.

Several new members were introduced to the BSIP team. Mrs. Lynn Prestia and Mrs. Diane Bertelson aided in math studies, while Mrs. Caroline Hogan and Mrs. Ellen Prozeller sought to improve students writing skills. In February, Mr. John Hird replaced Miss Johnson as the BSIP Supervisor.

During the school year, the Department continued to make the school environment a more beneficial one for all students. Commented Mrs. Ward, "If we can get through to a student and make his job in school a more pleasant one by bettering his or her study skills, then we've done our job."

CO-OP Encourages Top-Notch Skills

Encouraging students to explore career opportunities while still at school to promote beneficial work experience for the future, the Cooperative Education program this year witnessed a dramatic increase in enrollment. Business and vocational areas grew rapidly, challenging both students and teachers as they sought to foster required skills that would further education in the workplace. CO-OP revised its curriculum for the year, emphasizing the basics of business management while also promoting the need for creative input on the job. Commented senior Debby Eastmond, "CO-OP is an opportunity to learn how the real world is — I continue to get knowledge I need as a CO-OP student."

The Department promoted participation in various competitions throughout the year for the clubs which represented the various sectors of the CO-OP program. FHA-HERO, which represented the home economics branch, participated in the Future Homemakers of America Spring Competition. Students raised funds through various sales to pay for expenses. At the event, students prepared baked goods and were present at seminars discussing the values of home life. The business branch, represented by FBLA competed similarly in typing, stenography, and office management relays.

Computer systems continued to play an important role in the CO-OP program. Such up-to-date equipment, including the Sun 2001 computer and CRT word processors, provided classes with machinery that will play major roles in technological future careers. The diagnostic auto computers allowed students to calculate problems with shop cars and to take steps to properly correct them.

The expanding achievements of the CO-OP program continued to be a success for all students. Commented Supervisor of Vocational Education Mr. Allan Morrison, "CO-OP is a great motivating program; student's interest grows and they learn top-notch skills."

Poetry Week Sparks Creative Writing Enthusiasm

Beginning the '86-'87 school year at Red Bank Regional, the English Department introduced "Poetry Week" from October 6th through the 11th, during which poets held "give and take" sessions with students and students were given an opportunity to recite their poems over the PA system during morning announcements. In the middle of the week, Madeline Tiger, a well known poet, shared her poems with interested young writers after school. She suggested ideas to improve styles of creative writing. The week long activities culminated when all the Creative Writing students visited Waterloo Village for a poetry convocation where students from all over the state met. Upon their arrival, students attended workshops with Pulitzer Prize winning poets including Galway Kinnell. During these workshops, the writers discussed poetry and other aspects of writing. "It was worthwhile," commented sophomore Tammy Carr, "because we learned a lot about poetry that we didn't know before." Added freshman Megan McCartin, "I enjoyed the convocation because it gave us a chance to read our poems to other people."

Pursuing greater knowledge among staff members, Dr. Cone and Mrs. Farrell attended the National Council Teacher Association seminar in November at San Antonio. Dr. Cone discussed opera works in literature with many other teacher representatives from all over the nation. Dr. Cone also attended the Teacher Advanced Placement Convention with Mrs. Ulbrich later in the year.

While freshman English teacher Mr. Mark Kreidler was away in France, Mr. Joe McGinty took his place. Throughout the school year, the RBR English Department remained one of unique qualities.

Yah, Oui, Si, Foreign Language Students Expand Knowledge

Even with the cancellation of the trips to Europe, foreign language students shared in many cultural learning experiences this year. At school, the German students put on their own "Oktoberfest" in early October to celebrate German customs. Other language students went on trips to New York to see exhibits in such museums as the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the United Nations-where people of all languages meet for peace.

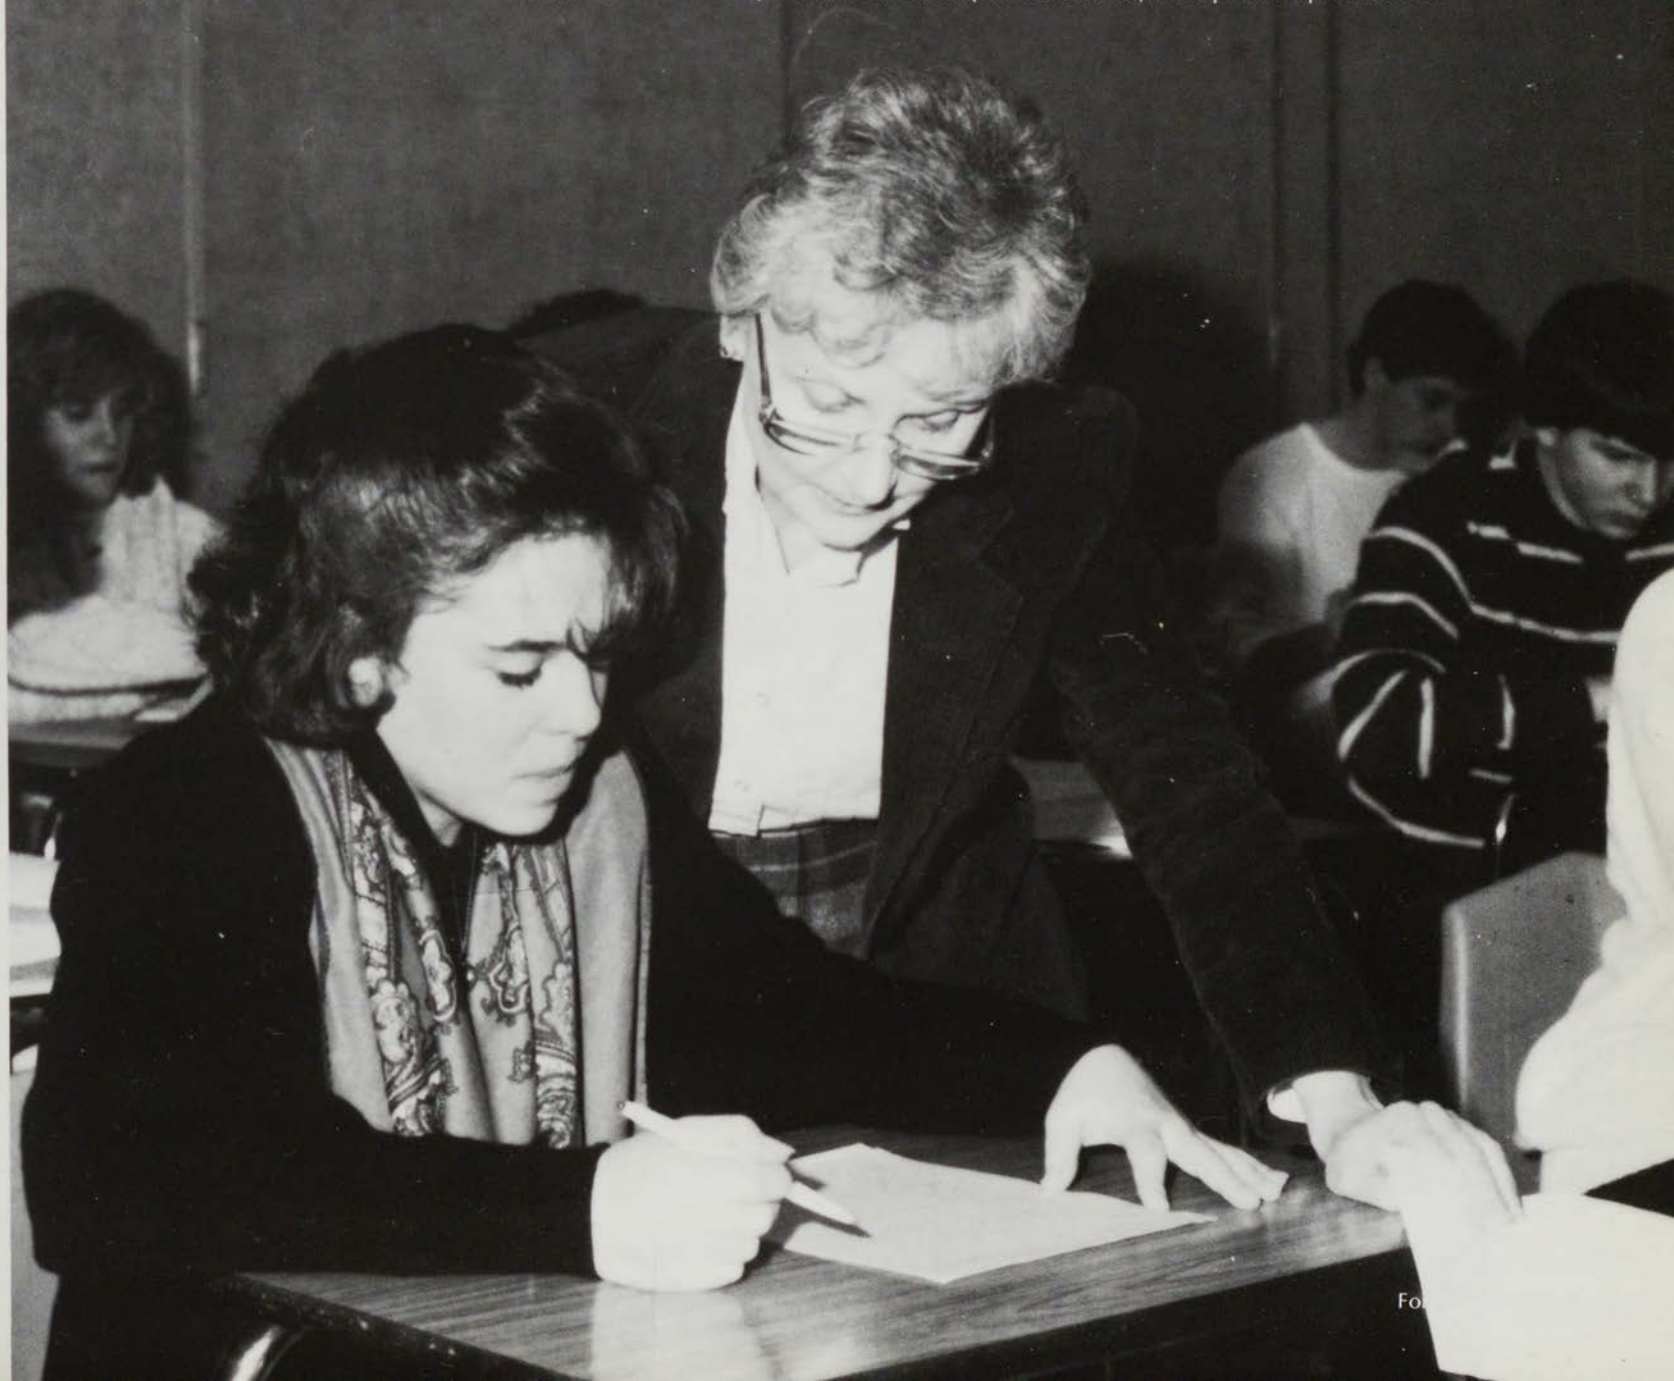

The Department went through a self-evaluation this year to examine its curriculum and to seek new ways to help students benefit from their language studies. The Department continued to offer a diverse spectrum of languages at many language levels. Part of the improvement came this year with the arrival of new textbooks for first and second year French students. Dr. Cone pointed out that more students adopted Spanish as a course of study as they realized that there is an increasing opportunity to use the language in their own communities. "The growing number of Spanish-speaking people along the shore provides a great chance for me to put my Spanish into use," stated

As always the foreign language teachers stressed the basic value of learning a second language. During the year teachers encouraged student participation in activities and trips to reinforce their studies. The members of the Department felt that knowing a second language will aid students in future travel, future jobs, and in understanding other cultures. Commented French teacher Mr. Richard Stock, "Knowing a foreign language can definitely help in employment; it is certainly a feather to have in one's cap."

Guidance Department Hosts Realtors

The multifaceted Guidance Department extended itself into the community this year. During October, realtors representing local real estate companies were invited to a breakfast at the school with Superintendent Dr. Donald Warner, Principal Dr. Robert Nogueira, and Guidance Department Supervisor Mr. Arthur Albrizio. Mr. Albrizio commented, "The realtors were impressed by the organization, order, and facilities the school had and the courtesy of the students. It is an important consideration in buying a house that there are good schools in the area, and this school is exemplary."

The department continued to help students make decisions regarding their futures. For the student interested in higher education, the department organized three mini college fairs which involved a total of over one hundred institutions. The representatives of the various colleges offered the students pamphlets and advice, and they answered questions. Students saw a selection of the gamut of possibilities open to them.

The Guidance Department was not only concerned with the normal academic programs. Counselors worked diligently to insure that incoming freshmen would have a smooth transition to high school. Orientation programs familiarized students and parents with the school. Similarly, post-high school planning was very important to the department. Achievement, occupational aptitude, and armed services vocational aptitude tests were administered during the year to aid in future decisions. Spring conferences and career seminars were held for juniors, while college students returned for a peer-counseling day to answer questions from future college students.

Throughout the year, Guidance acted as a link between parents and teachers, and each month the counselors kept night hours for the parents who could not come in during the day.

The department helped to sort out the facts to aid students with the decisions they had to make during the year, but they allowed students to decide for themselves their personal goals. Mr. Teeple felt, "This gave the students the advantage to grow as individuals."

In December, the Guidance Department helped students interpret their PSAT scores. To better inform the students about their results, a special slide show was used. The department believed it would be more consistent on figuring scores by use of the film. The department maintained its high principles during the year. Mr. Albrizio explained, "Programs were updated to keep focus on the students' changing needs and to make the programs as effective as possible."

Math Students Battle for Honors in National and State Competition

Students from the Math Department vied for top spots in state and national competitions in addition to the challenges presented daily by RBR teachers. The New Jersey Math League grilled students statewide with six competitive testing sessions on algebraic and geometric skills. According to competitor Heather Weiss, "I laughed, I cried, I racked my brain." The Annual American High School Competition presented a formidable challenge for math students throughout the country. Described by Dr. Seip as a vigorous exam, department teachers selected a handful of students to participate in the challenge. For high academic achievement in math, the George Washington University Award rewarded the efforts of a chosen student in the department program.

A major part of this year's department program, the applications of computers to daily life, prepared students for the future. Teachers strove to familiarize students with the computer language and its programming and problem solving capabilities. Students learned the skill's practicality when teachers integrated the computers into their teaching programs. The familiar sight of Miss Larsen's computerized worksheets took on a meaning other than "homework!" as Geometry students saw the effect of computers on their daily life. The Computer Math program taught students how to write computer programs and master the BASIC language. Through "hands-on" activities at the microcomputers, the students gained experience with the widely growing field of computer technology.

Students selected from a large variety of academic courses designed to meet their needs. The department offered courses providing such pragmatic skills as computation to all students. For the conceptual crowd, such courses as Geometry, Analytical Geometry, Trigonometry, Pre-Calculus, and Calculus offered the opportunity to increase logical reasoning ability and improve conceptual thinking. Chairman Dr. Seip summed up the department's purpose saying, "The math courses provide logical reasoning skills enabling the student to solve situations encountered in the future. Our curriculum is designed to help math students gain more from experiences in life through math."

Whether preparing for a term paper, or taking time out to study, the Bucs found the Media Center was ... Not Just A Library

Do you ever wonder why it's called the "Media Center" and not "the library"? Well, the answer is very simple. The Media Center is more than books and magazines, it contains a vast array of audiovisual and special instruction materials! Filmstrips, movies, booklets, projectors, all were handled by the Media Center. Mr. John Hird, Media Center Supervisor, commented, "We're a service organization, dealing with media in many diverse forms, both print and nonprint; our goal is to meet the needs of teachers and students of the school."

Keeping up to date with literary changes, the Media Center purchased a new series of literary criticism called, "Modern Critical Reviews." The works contained in-depth responses to both contemporary and classic works. Improvements were made in materials available for the science department. Upgrading the Science/Technology areas, the Center ordered new print materials for circulation and reference. Similarly, three new sets of encyclopedias were purchased to further increase student accessibility to information. The Center improved and increased its current number of VCR's and videotapes by ordering newer ones and getting the responses of teachers to them.

The Media Center was subject to the Middle States Evaluation held during the year; the Center continued to prove its excellent standards. A new security system was introduced at the school, with the hope that fewer materials would be lost from Media Center shelves. Overall, improvements during the year benefited all students through better communication with teachers and the students themselves. Commented senior Beverly Ayers, "I can find the reference materials I need here, I can concentrate-it's simply a great place for quiet study."

The Music Department

A chance to give a concert performance in Moscow doesn't come along to the average American high school student every day. However, for one very special week in March, senior Maureen McNally performed in the Soviet Union with a youth exchange orchestra. Stated Maureen, "It was a really great experience; it's an offbeat thing to go to Russia, and I really enjoyed myself!" The rigorous selection process auditioned musicians throughout for a few coveted spots as part of Trenton's "Sister Cities Cultural Exchange." Music Director Kenneth MacLean remarked of her ability, "Maureen plays virtually every kind of clarinet that exists." She certainly got the chance. Maureen was also accepted for the All-Eastern Honor Band, and with them she performed in Baltimore in the spring. Sophomore Liz Kahn qualified as well for this honor as a flutist. Maureen McNally, Scott Darragh, Warren Green, Rich Kennedy, Vera Vaughan, Amy Brunski, and Liz Kahn all procured spots in the regional competition. Christina Emrich and Betsy Wetzell performed in the County Group. Senior bass clarinetist Scott Darragh commented, "The experience of being in these honor bands is one of great value. It's worth all the effort and hard work."

With the addition of new equipment and new faces to the Department, most students in the Music Department walked through the halls with gleeful smiles on their faces. New music stands, chairs, drums, keyboard instruments, and yes, even a new tuba appeared as part of a long list of new additions to the department. The Band Parents provided new rain ponchos, hats, and a lot of hard work for all events. Finally, a new Band Front Advisor, Beverly Cryzic arrived and helped the success of the marching band. With approximately 60 musicians and 25 band front members. "The marching band is becoming one of the best in Central Jersey," said Mr. MacLean.

The whole Music Department continued to grow in enrollment and enthusiasm to become one of the largest activities in the school. Classes grew more demanding as they tested students on a weekly basis, forcing them to practice and subsequently improve.

Mr. MacLean noted, "Suddenly it is becoming a popular thing to be part of the band. I'm very grateful it's going so well and I appreciate the strong and continuing support of the Administration and the Band Parents."

Tools of the Trade

In addition to its outstanding faculty, the Performing Arts Program continued its emphasis on the use of practicing professionals to introduce students into the performing arts as a career. The Drama, Dance, and Creative Writing majors all experienced the opportunity to work with an exciting program of guest artists visiting the school.

From Steve Kazakoff's "Stage Combat" to Randy Lilly's "18th Century Movement," the visiting professionals led Drama students through a wide spectrum of drama-related techniques to enhance performance. The Drama program's continuing special relationship with the McCarter Theater, one of the leading regional theaters in the country, brought its own professionals in to work on technique with the students.

The Writing program enjoyed visits from poet Madeline Tiger, playwright Rosemary McLaughlin, and novelist Gary Goshgarian. Mrs. Farrell noted, "It's very difficult to bring busy novelists in to work with the students. This year we had Gary Goshgarian and he brought the galleys of his next book!" A continuous stream of writing contests such as the NJCTE and the Scholastic Writing Awards kept the word processors humming in the writing center. Students attended the College Press Association Convention, an unusual accomplishment for writers in high school.

The Dance program included a seven day residence with the renowned Alvin Ailey repertory ensemble, ballet workshops with Lea Roth of the Princeton Ballet, and Tan-nis Michaels from the Broadway hit "Sweet Charity." The latest introduction in the Television Production program was the creation of a news program for the school, "The Buc Update." TV Production students put the weekly shows together; and during Friday lunch periods, they were shown in the commons to the student body.

The program's four majors of Drama, Dance, Creative Writing, and Television Production enrolled students selected at the competitive auditions and approved by the Board of Education. Students came from all over the county to participate in the special experience this unique program continued to provide. Supervisor Ms. Midge Guerrera explained, "The Performing Arts Program is designed to acquaint young artists with career opportunities and the appropriate training for their chosen artistic area. We also feel committed to developing N.J. audiences by bringing guest artists into the community."

"Give me three laps and hit the weight room!" This was the commonly heard exclamation in the Field House as several changes were made during the 1986-1987 school year. An upgraded weight room, complete with a new squat bar and safety features for athletes was installed to make physical improvement as safe as possible. The Physical Education Department purchased a new Driver's Education car to deal with an increasing number of students signing up for Behind the Wheel Training. Meanwhile, several new activityelectives were offered, including a cardiovascular course and a class to improve casting and fishing skills. On Fridays during the second and fifth marking periods, gym instructors, including Mrs. Carle, offered an aerobics class for interested students. Mrs. Cook, who left on a six month sabbatical in February, was substituted by Mrs. Margaret Brown. Mrs. Brown, a former member of the National Field Hockey Team, competed at the national and Olympic levels.

Continuing its traditional role of introducing the student body to interscholastic sports and encouraging good physical fitness, the department held several workshops dealing with alcohol and child abuse. Commented junior Eric Flaherty, "I was moved by the programs; learning about these abuses can help prevent them."

Overall, the department continued to maintain the excellent goals it had set. Said Department Supervisor Mr. Robert Strangia, "Red Bank Regional facilities are the best in the east."

No Bones About It!

There's a nine foot skeleton in Mrs. Friedman's room! AAAAAHHH!!! No, it's not the attack of the living dead, but is a great hands-on learning experience for students participating in biology labs. Studying the skeletal system, students constructed the "monster" out of paper mache over a one month period to reinforce their studies of human anatomy. Working together on the project, classes focused on the physiology of the human body; the skeleton was a vital part. Explained Mrs. Friedman, "There were a lot of benefits; learning anatomy and better understanding bone structure became more fun by working as a group." After its completion, a chiropractor visited the classroom to discuss and examine the skeleton.

The department's goal was to enable students to relate the learning acquired in the classroom to experiences in everyday life. Students chose from a variety of classes: Everyday Science, General Science, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics. Selected seniors took Advanced Placement Physics or Chemistry.

Students became more involved in the academic world of science through the hands-on experience given by examples of the scholarly principles. Mr. Gance's Chemistry class became intimately familiar with atomic structure through the construction of atoms with dyed styrofoam balls and toothpicks.

Department Supervisor Dr. Larry Seip commented, "By maintaining an attitude of scientific curiosity and a spirit of learning, students should be able to excel in their understanding of the importance of energy sources for the future. The courses we offered should aid in the educational, social, and emotional development of students to prepare them for our rapidly changing society.

The Science Department introduced its students to the world of scientific wonder with various seminars catering to students interested in various fields of science. One such program was the Junior Science Symposium, attended by juniors Cosmas Giallourakis and Sherry Barber. The program, a two day conference in Fort Monmouth and Monmouth College, spotlighted eminent scientists from such fields as Physics and Chemistry. Each participating student selected a topic for independent scientific research as a part of the seminar. Although Cosmas and Sherry planned separate papers, they both worked under the general heading of bacterial contamination of water. "I can't describe the feeling of exhilaration I experienced while gazing at those germ samples," remarked Sherry. Although such setbacks as "freshwater failure"-Sherry's bacteria became too old and thus useless-occurred, the educational aspect continued. Cosmas managed to submit his research successfully and awaited hopefully the results from the judging scientists.

Other competitions tested the scientific aptitude and interest of RBR students. The department chose four students to take a chemistry examination at Monmouth College's American Chemical Society program for students throughout the state. In addition, students attended the State Science Day Program also held at Monmouth College, where the performance level of students in various sciences were studied. They were selected based on academic performance in the school's science program.

Social Studies Department Celebrates Constitutional Bicentennial

An exciting series of commemorative programs surrounding the bicentennial anniversary of the Constitution was initiated by the Social Studies Department during the year. Besides films and guest speakers, the department participated in various national bicentennial celebration contests. Students wrote essays showing, as department head Mr. Strangia said, "that the Constitution is a living document." The commemorative program concentrated on today's issues as they relate to the Constitution such as the abortion controversy and the balanced budget amendment. U.S. History 1 teacher Mrs. Virginia George felt, "Students will become better citizens by being more aware with the workings of the government."

Getting students involved and interested was a major goal of the social studies department this year. Teachers used such various approaches as current event reports, discussions, debates, and creative projects to gain this interest. U.S. History teacher Mrs. Moira Molloy explained, "To understand the modern world, we have to know the past." Current events of the world was the focus of Mr. Stephen Johnson's Contemporary Issues class. Students learned through their extensive use of mapwork, geography, and such publications as U.S. News and World Report. Each day a student gave a five-minute report on a current news item. Although the class was only one semester long, it was open for a second semester to those who found it interesting.

The Social Studies Department also offered Advanced Placement History for honor students who found the history of the twentieth century fascinating. After U.S. History 2, prospective students had to take a test and only the top scorers were allowed into the class. With the use of many outside readings, the class focused on interpreting the effects of historical events and on delving deeper into historical situations. Together with the cooperation of the Advanced Placement English and Humanities classes, the students honed their writing skills in preparation for the end of the year achievement test. Senior Jennifer Butler said, "It's a worthwhile experience and if you like history, it is a good choice to make. Advanced Placement History gets behind what was done and shows its effects on yesterday and today."

Students interested in political science participated in the mock trial competition sponsored by the New Jersey Bar Association. This was the third year for mock trial in the school. Mr. Strangia was the advisor for this year's team consisting of Jay Howard, Erica Horowitz, Michelle Goodall, Simone Woodward, Sherry Barber, Doug Schnitzpahn, Jeff Senkeleski, Brad Brokaw, Nancy Richmond, and Tim Trainor. Participant Sherry Barber said, "It's given me a feel for the legal circuit and it's helped me to decide that I really want to be a lawyer."

U.S. History 2 Honors student Tom Finan commented, "History continues to be my favorite subject; all of the students had a positive attitude toward learning, and I found the emergence of the 20th century fascinating."

Vocational Education Enrollments Soar

The highest amount of students that we've ever had! That's how Department Supervisor Mr. Morrison described the 1986-1987 Vocational Education Department's dramatic growth of active students in its classes this year. In response to the sharp increase, a new course was offered known as "Principles of Technology." While a pilot program at Red Bank Regional, it combined a variety of instructional approaches including videocassettes, special experiments, and newly tried math labs. The new science/math course was enthusiastically adopted by the students.

Computers continued to play an important role in the department this year, allowing automotive, technical drawing, and word processing students to use developing technologies in the classroom. In this way, students actually experienced real life occupational problems and challenges.

While enrollment in Vocational classes shot upwards, so did enrollment in the school's Child Care Service. Home Economics students continued to work the center open to parents from the four sending districts. While students gained knowledge, youngsters were provided with fun and friends.

The department welcomed Ms. Margaret Lutz, a new Business teacher. Mr. Beadle also took the position as Marketing Education Coordinator for the year.

The department continued to excel throughout the year. Stated Supervisor Mr. Morrison, "I'm very pleased with our talented staff. They provided an outstanding program for all students to participate in a hands-on educational experience; with incredible equipment and instructors, the students certainly benefitted."

Cafeteria Aides Add to School Menu

"What's for lunch?" "Is there a salad bar?" "Get back in line!" These were just a few commonly heard exclamations this year in the lunch room, where dedicated members of the Jayce Company continued their excellent efforts in the preparation and the serving of food for the students. Three new employees joined the staff; Mrs. Victoria Cooke, Mr. Gene Pendich, and Mrs. Lily Yao, entered the Jayce team to improve cafeteria efficiency.

The staff made several changes in the school menu, attempting to create more enthusiasm over the servings offered. The new "Egg McLunch", courses of pancakes and sausages, were enjoyed by all members of the student body and staff. Mrs. Patricia Fedorko, extremely pleased with the staff, commented, "They're fantastic; we couldn't do the job without them!"

Also of great importance to the cleanliness and safety at RBR, the Coastal Corporation provided the custodial staff for the school. Setting up for special functions, transporting out-of-school lunches, and maintaining a clean environment for students, the custodial staff continued to improve upon its high standards. Throughout the year, hall aides ensured the safety of the student body by enforcing discipline and preventing the flow of students between classes from becoming hazardous.

BUCCANEER PASSPORT

Red Bank Regional students must traverse many different highways, leading to many different destinations. As they voyage through the brightly colored halls, students experience athletics, the courses of scholarship, performing arts, community service and personal goals to achieve. The route of each student, subject to constant change, is completely unique. This unique plan contributes to the vitality of RBR. The Bucs give a first class effort in all their endeavors.

Seniors Fundraise "Like Crazy!"

We have a prom. We have class trips. We have no money. We have a problem. But, would this fact at the beginning of September stop the class of 1987? No way! Senior Class Advisors Mr. Lock and Mrs. Carroll quickly coordinated very successful fundraisers for the seniors. A wrapping paper sale was launched shortly into the year; a group of dedicated seniors pitched in together and made an enormous profit. While gaining from concession stand sales at season football games, the track meet became the site of a new fundraiser. Refreshments were sold all day during the meet, giving one big shot in the arm to the senior class treasury. Commented Carol Patterson, "The paper sales were a big boost, it was both fun and rewarding; we had a really good group of people working."

Improving class spirit throughout the year was also a goal of the senior class officers. "Getting out to the football games, participating in Spirit Week, even maintaining our goals became challenging," commented senior Jim Humphreys. Class officials continued to instill a sense of pride in the class, gaining an increasing number of volunteers as the year progressed. Senior funds raised helped to support the yearbook, providing a great senior prom for the year, and helped buy boosters for various school works, including playbills and sports programs for the football season.

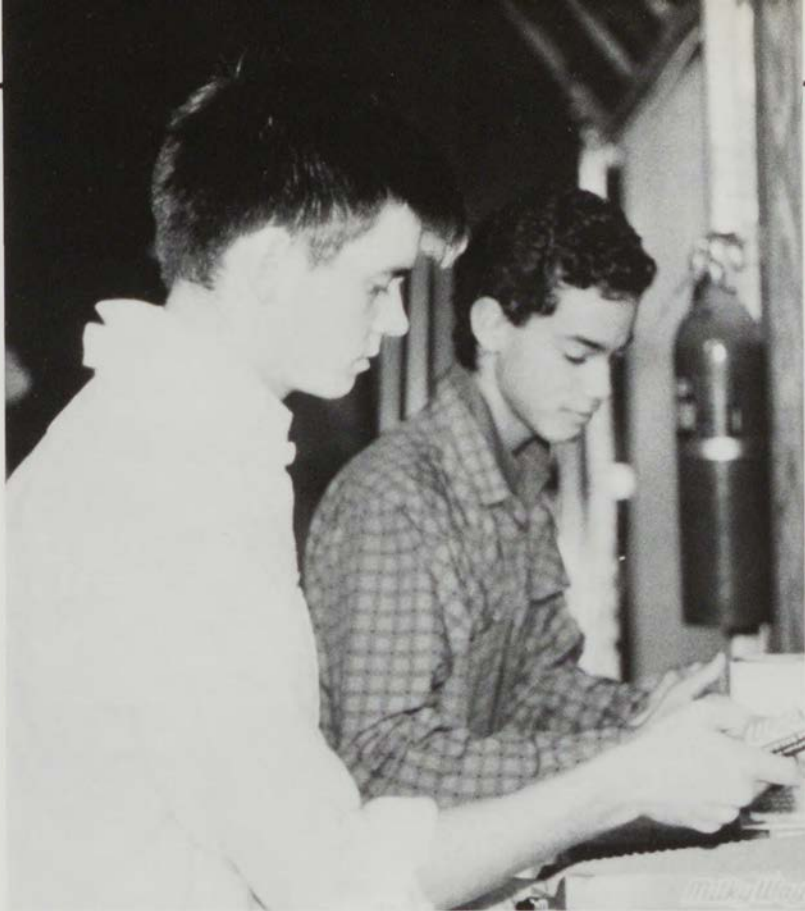

In January, seniors psyched themselves for the class group picture. The second time such a picture was taken, the class of 1987 clearly was continuing a soon-to-be valued Red Bank Regional tradition.

After a fantastic year, the class looked forward to a hectic pre-college or pre-career world summer. Raising the necessary monies for a successful prom as well as the benefits from a fantastic senior play A Funny Thing Happened On the Way To the Forum the class met and overcame its obstacles. Stated Class Advisor Mr. Lock, "Though in the beginning of the year we had some difficulty in promoting class involvement, they have certainly pulled through."

Senior officers Andrew Phillips, Marianne Moreira, and Charlie Popper are only too happy to hear of the success of a recent fundraiser from advisors Mrs. Carroll and Mr. Lock.

IF I KNEW THEN WHAT I KNOW NOW

Every year, the school is bombarded with students, new and old. The freshman rush through the halls being careful not to hit anything alive, while the seniors play see-how-many-freshman-we-can-deceive-misdirect-and-generally-degrade. Remember being a freshman, when a certain muscly senior named Spike told you all Biology classes were held on the stage? Now, as the halls are filled with the frightened, lost faces of timid freshman, it's time for revenge. Now is the time to tell them to take the elevator to the third floor field house.

Now hold on a minute, shouldn't the wiser, more experienced populus of Red Bank help out these poor, less fortunates; or should we let them just run the course of having LFS (Lowly Freshman Syndrome) just like everyone else? "It's a vicious cycle," says senior Andrew Murphy, "everyone goes through LFS when their in high school. Let them rot."

Do these natives have any pointers for those less experienced students? "Firstly, don't take Calculus," said senior Doug Schnitzspahn. Never ask directions from someone named "Butch" or "Killer". Everyone knows, if you want to be a social goddess, join the yearbook staff. To keep out of trouble, read your handbook thoroughly(esp. Inappropriate Display of Affection). To sum it all up, listen to Bon Jovi at all times; and, remember, in a couple of years, you'll be at the top of the classes.

Juniors Tackle Term Papers

For two years you ignored the ominous mutterings of older siblings and students. Your freshman English teacher even mentioned it once, but the possibility seemed too far off even to consider it. Then suddenly, it was your junior year . . . IT was upon you, and for a while it seemed your whole life was falling apart before you.

For a junior at RBR, IT could strike at any time, (depending on your English teacher) and few, if any, could escape IT's clutches. IT was the dreaded junior term paper.

Though the term paper did not prove fatal to any students, it did leave some lasting scars. Many students who had conquered the term paper claimed they would never again be able to read the works of authors such as Hawthorne, Melville, and Hemingway without first reciting the Dewey Decimal System. Others complained of attacks of dizziness or nausea when words such as "thesis" or "footnote" were mentioned.

In its early stages, the term paper caused only mild feelings of uneasiness which could be soothed by small doses of primary source materials. As time progressed, these feelings often developed into sheer panic, which could cause an irrational desire to jettison pens or index cards from the second tier of the Media Center. (or, on weekends, the Eastern Branch of the Monmouth County Library) Students had nightmares involving burial beneath huge piles of periodicals, and one student became rather hopelessly entangled in microfilm for a matter of hours. (She was eventually freed with the assistance of a sympathetic librarian.)

In spite of its many grueling hours, the junior term paper was eventually conquered by each student, and it did offer many rewards. Many students learned excellent study habits which will serve them through college. And, as senior Cheryl Puerling pointed out, "There's nothing to compare with the feeling you get when it's finally finished."

Sophomores Gain Valuable Experience

Although they got off to a slow start, the sophomore class, under the guidance of Advisor Miss Hazel was at last able to improve their financial status. An early attempt came in November, with a Masquerade Ball; unfortunately, the ball was sparsely attended, and proved to be a financial failure, something any class treasury can ill afford. Nevertheless, the class rebounded with a more successful fundraiser, the traditional sophomore magazine drive. Students diligently offered subscriptions to various magazines to family, friends, and neighbors. Some of the most popular subscriptions sold were to Sports Illustrated and Reader's Digest. Although the drive was not the overwhelming success they had hoped for (few fundraisers were), it did add limited, but much needed, finances to the sophomore class treasury. The success of the drive could be attributed to many hard working sophomores, particularly Bill

McGough and Jeff Cadman, who received prizes for their impressive sales. Throughout the year, numerous bake sales augmented sophomore monies; the innovative class discovered that "pizza sales" were often the most profitable. With such valuable experiences and knowledge gained, the sophomore class prepared to build a solid financial foundation for their senior year expenses.

FRESHMEN:

Lockers, Lunches, Lifestyles: The Class of '90 Makes the Transition

Freshmen: they could be seen in the hallways, desperately seeking their first period science class ... in the English open space; or congregating in the commons and cafeteria; or just sitting ... frequently on the floor of the school's busiest thoroughfare. This year, the class of 1990 (YES, 1990!) was introduced to Red Bank Regional; and, like freshmen throughout history, they adapted to strange surroundings and new routines with typical freshman aplomb.

In addition to the task of selecting their courses, including three electives, from a wide range of options, freshmen faced the task of adjusting to student life at RBR. If RBR wasn't a shock to the entire system, it was certainly a shock to the eyeballs. Our gaily striped walls and intensely orange rugs sometimes proved distracting to unaccustomed viewers. Other joys of freshman life may have included: 1.) asking an upperclassman for directions, 2.) discovering that your locker is the brightest shade of orange that can possibly exist in nature, and that it's located exactly SIX minutes away from each of your classes, 3.) swallowing pride to employ the aid of an older friend or sibling to open the above locker everyday until you determine the exact, highly technical series of taps, kicks, and curses required to open it, and 4.) battling older and larger fellow students for chairs in the cafeteria and commons.

Undoubtedly, the freshman class suffered other colorful misadventures too numerous to be listed here, such as meeting Homecoming King Harris Collins ... by tripping over him. Freshmen also received some unique advantages, such as a newly UN-leaky roof (more or less), and the entertaining lighted sign which graced the commons. By late fall, the class had elected its officers, and most were able to find their classes with minimal frustration. They adjusted admirably, and when they graduate at last, it'll be a brand new decade.

The HSP Test brings a uniquely freshman-like pleasure into the lives of Mrs. Carroll's students.

Students Tackle 1987

Several changes and new events at Red Bank Regional greeted the students this year. A waterproof ceiling kept most dry, although in some areas, the hallway was still an accurate indication of recent weather. The Key Club introduced the advertising sign in the Commons. The flashy machine caught everyone's eye and helped keep the student body informed. Another addition to the school was the laying of brand new carpet in the entrance area, Commons, and the "A" corridor. In September, a water main along Branch Avenue broke, cancelling school for all the Bucs. Disbelieving students enjoyed the unexpected holiday.

The Bucs continued to excel athletically throughout the year. Despite the disappointing football record, students rallied around the New Jersey Giants as they soared to the Superbowl, defeating the 49'ers, 49-3. After crushing the Redskins, the Giants captured Superbowl victory over Denver. Senior Melvin O'Neal was our own superstar, scoring in almost every football game during the season. Another outstanding Buc athlete was senior Melissa Bowie who scored 10 points in the first quarter of the Girl's Classic Basketball Championship game, encouraging the team throughout the year.

Academically, the Bucs scored as well. Students responded favorably to the new HSPT testing for freshmen. SAT scores continued to be on the rise and juniors ranked remarkably well on the PSAT.

As the year wound down, the student body continued its great accomplishments. In all areas, the Bucs strove for a common goal — personal and team accomplishment, giving 100%.

Bucs Thrive In '86-'87

The Buccaneers continued to strive for excellence this year in the ever-changing world around them. United, they overcame the challenges of everyday life and were drawn closer together.

The racial turmoil in South Africa continued with hundreds being killed. An almost complete news blackout kept most of the world in darkness about the white minority's discriminatory policies of apartheid. At home, the Iran scandal shook the Reagan Administration into the new year as details about illegal U.S. arms shipments to Iran were uncovered. Controversy over the President's role continued for months.

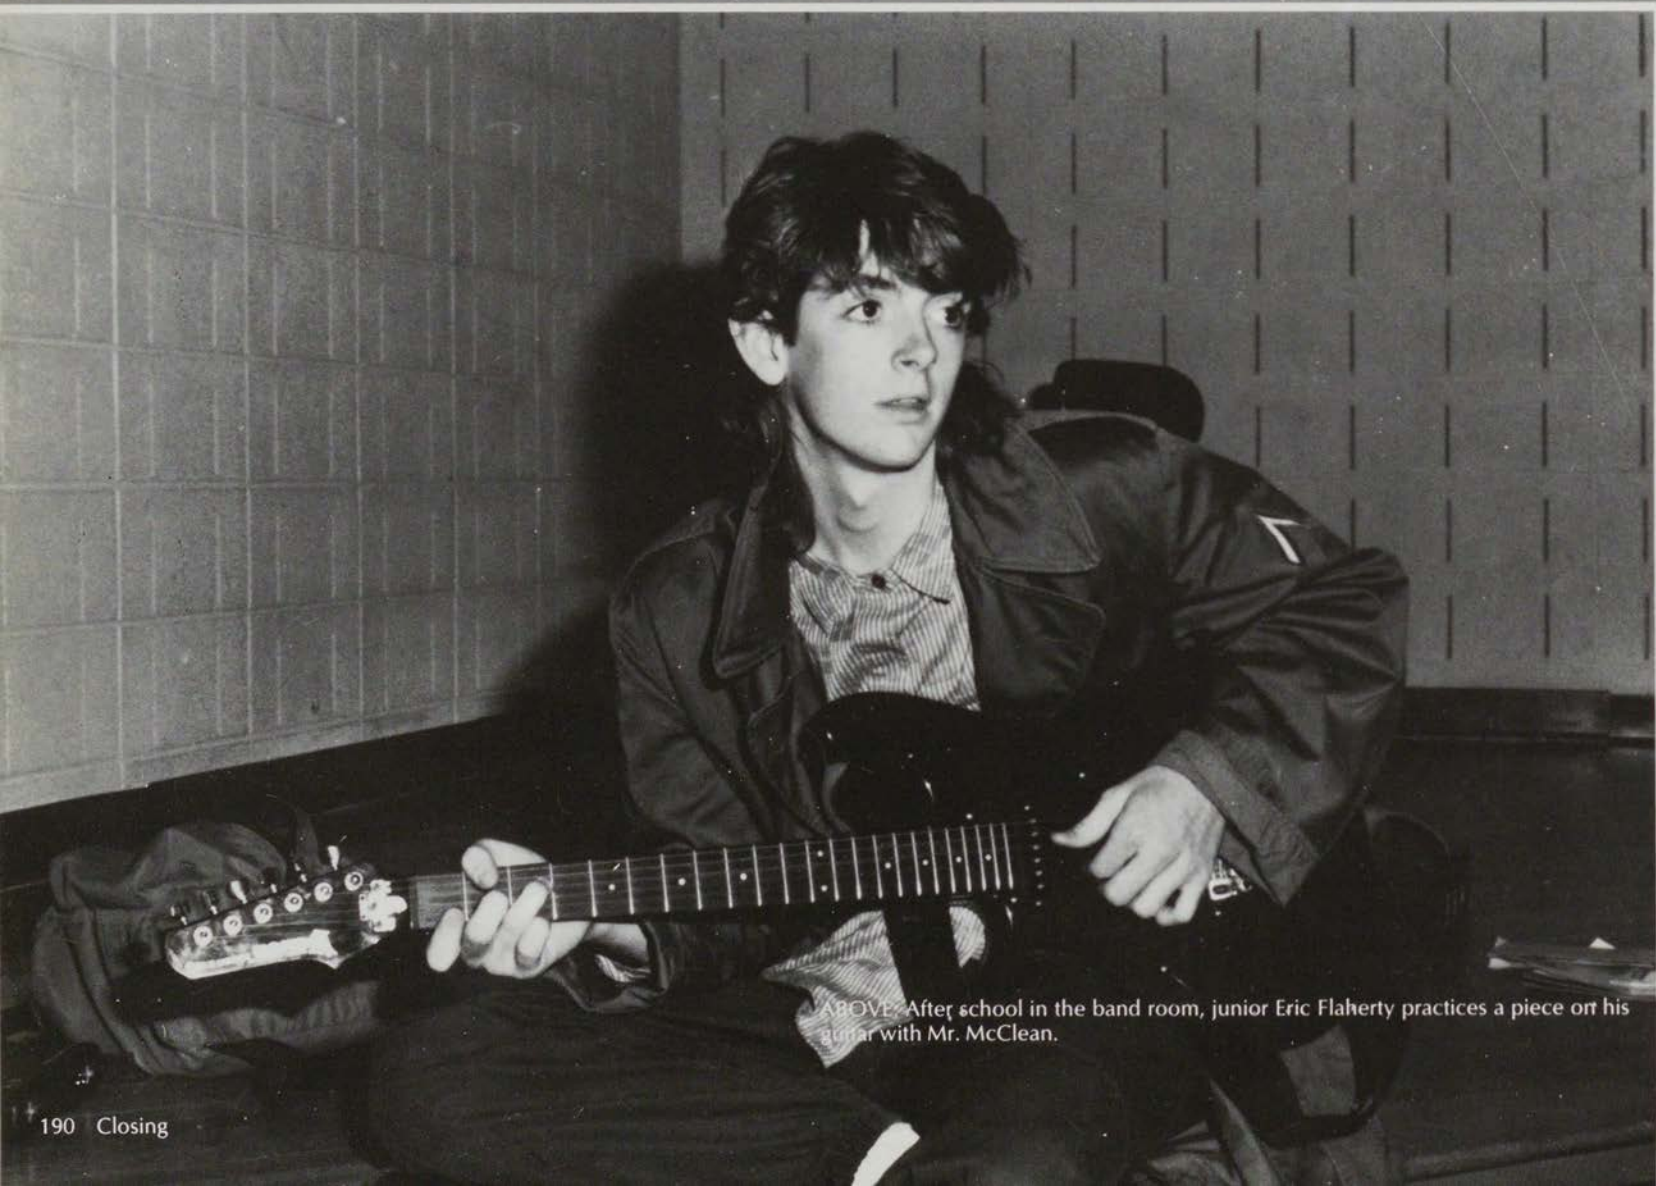

Good news and new discoveries were made during the year. Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev met in November to discuss arms control at Reykjavik, Iceland. Serious negotiations were undertaken, but Soviet insistence on a ban on SDI research prevented progress. Terry Waite, the Anglican Church hostage negotiator, was successful in obtaining freedom for several Frenchmen and American Reverend Lawrence Jenco. In a stupendous show of human ability, the Voyager aircraft circled the earth without refueling and landed at Andrews Air Force Base in California in December. It was the first such trip of its kind.

Reviewing the entertainment scene, students enjoyed such movie blockbusters as Little Shop of Horrors and The Golden Child, an outrageous Eddie Murphy film released in early January. For Trekkies, Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home entertained audiences as the "Big Seven" Uhura, Kirk, Spock, McCoy, Sulu, Chekov, and Scotty returned to 20th century Earth to save the future!

Musically, the Bucs exhibited diverse tastes ranging from Phil Collins to Run DMC. "You be 'illin'" became the catch words of the day. Janet Jackson, youngest of the Jackson clan, climbed the charts with her hit, "Nasty Boys." The Boss Mr. Bruce Springsteen released one of the most popular records of all time in December dubbed "Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band Live 1975/1985." The album sold like wildfire as students tuned into unreleased live versions of "The River" and "I'm On Fire."

Overcoming hurdles and enjoying the good times, the Bucs united during the year as they learned alongside each other. From different backgrounds and sharing different ideas, they nevertheless became friends and strove for perfection in all their endeavors.
