Workers on the rug

This is the 10th anniversary of the Captiva Rug a needlepoint master piece designed and made each year on the island.

Hibiscus surrounding the mocking bird — Florida's state bird — form the design for this year's rug which is insured for $1000. It represents 13 years of labors by a group of Captivians and the money raised by its raffle will represent a scholarship for a Captiva student and funds for the library. Last year the project made $7,500 said ticket chairman Lolly Cohen.

A needlepoint director's chair and needlepoint cushion both with the hibiscus theme are second and third prizes. Tickets are $2 each available on Sanibel and Captiva Islands and Woodsy's and on Captiva at Island Store, Gulf Coast First National Bank and the Mucky Duck.

Tonight is Needle point Rug Night at Tween Waters Inn Captiva when two free tickets will be given with each dinner purchased.

Drawing for the items will be at 7:30 p.m. March 26 at Captiva Civic Association and they may be shipped free to the winners anywhere in the world.

This year the first student assisted by the project Margaret Rossie grand daughter of the late Andy Rossie, an early Captiva graduate from a Florida business school Cohen said.

The Captiva needle point rug contains a chair and cushion, all with the hibiscus theme in pale lime and coral.

Early tarpon

Tarpon are in island waters early this year and Greg Smith who works at the Bait Box Sanibel, caught this 70 pounder off the causeway last week. What did he catch it on? A shrimp from the Bait Box of course.

Above: Nancy Turner of Nashville proudly displays the junonia she found near West Gulf Drive. Nancy discovered the shell while on the beach at midnight with flashlight. Right: Karen Hohn, of Sanibel, catches a junonia she discovered on her day off from the Children's Center while in a lagoon in the Gulf near West Gulf Drive.

The traffic survey at the Sanibel Causeway and Blind Pass Bridge will cause minimal delays a release from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Prevention District office this week stated.

The survey is to take place from Thursday March 21 to Sunday March 23 when drivers will be asked where they have come from, where they are going, how often they make the trip and the purpose of their journey.

The survey organized by the consulting engineering firm of URS Coverdale and Co. will be used to obtain data for the CEPD on travel patterns in order to justify increased rates for commercial establishments. It will use local residents as interviewers.

WOULDN'T YOU LIKE TO SAVE JUST A LITTLE BIT OF SANIBEL?

1 OPENING UP PANDORA'S BOX

(BAY BRIDGE REVISITED ROUND 3)

At the Council meeting of December 4, 1984 City Manager Gary Price presented the lowest bid ($42,857) for replacing Bay Bridge. I really recommend that we bite the bullet, go ahead, accept the low bid of Pittsfield Construction and get on with the darn thing," said Mr. Price.

The Council was on the very verge of voting when Councilman Klein asked, "Do we have to do this?" Mr. Klein suggested that the City could save money simply by giving the bridge and a bit of road (public property) to the owner of the property it serves (Sanibel Capital Inc.).

Following considerable discussion, Mayor Valtin urged the Council to go ahead and replace the Bay Bridge and referred to the recent referendum of 1982 when a majority of Sanibel citizens had voted against vacating the bridge.

MAYOR VALTIN'S PANDORA'S BOX SPEECH

I have to respectfully disagree with the proposal that we not go through with this. I think it will be interpreted by the public as manipulative, badly motivated. I think the people have spoken on this. We have assumed all along that we would go the route of doing it. It isn't that much more than the figure we've previously considered. I just feel the people have spoken. I agree, I think they were dead wrong, but that was their will, and for us now to almost gimmicky go back and vacate the bridge, is just not going to be understood. Discussion Mayor Valtin continued. I still feel that we're despite our best motivation, we are opening up a Pandora's box, public perceptions that are going to haunt us.

On February 5, 1985 the Council adopted an ordinance to vacate Bay Bridge. Now we must go to the polls again on Monday, March 25th to vote on a vacating ordinance that is very similar to the vacating ordinance that a majority already voted against in the fall of 1982.

2 BAY BRIDGE (ROUNDS 1 & 2)

Round 1. On November 4, 1975 the final judgment of the Circuit Court of Lee County was that Bay Drive to the east of the bridge, 4 feet of Bay Drive to the west of the bridge, and the bridge itself were public property.

Round 2. Special referendum of September 7, 1982. The City wanted to vacate Bay Drive and the bridge; a majority voted against vacating, thereby reaffirming the Court's judgment of 1975.

In the special election of March 5th (Round 3), the City's vacating ordinance seeks to circumvent both the Court's judgment (Round 1) and the will of the people (Round 2).

3 IF WE VACATE BAY BRIDGE WHO WILL GET IT?

Sanibel Capital, Inc. duly licensed in the State of Florida as a for profit corporation. Past owners of the property served by Bay Bridge were private individuals, the new owner is a corporation.

4 WHAT DOES SANIBEL CAPITAL INC. STAND TO GAIN?

A great deal. The ordinance calls for vacating Bay Bridge (56 feet) 4 feet of road on the west side of the bridge and 2 feet of road on the east side, a total of 62 feet. Since Bay front property currently sells for about $1,000 a foot, Sanibel Capital, Inc. would be given public property that is worth about $62,000.

5 WHAT DO SANIBEL'S CITIZENS AND TAXPAYERS STAND TO LOSE?

One of the last jewels of unspoiled undeveloped land in Lee County properties that the City has not yet given away.

Over the years, the City has vacated a great deal of Sanibel's public property through ordinances, resolutions, actions and administrative actions and at three specific locations of Ferry Road (portion of Saquarea Lane), portions of W. Gulf Drive, Conch Road, the Old Trail Cemetery Road, a number of dead end roads, a beach access that are no longer accessible; these are but a few of the properties once publicly owned that we have lost forever.

Why does our City Council want to give away public property on Sanibel at a time when that same Council strongly supports the State's proposal for a 2% tax on real estate transactions in order to buy property to keep and preserve in the public domain?

6 WHY ALL THE RUSH TO VACATE BAY BRIDGE?

On January 2, 1985 the State inspected Bay Bridge. The City has not yet received the report of the State's inspection and has been informed that they will not receive that report until well after the vote concerning Bay Bridge on March 25th. Thus on the one hand we are told that we should vote to vacate a bridge that must now meet state standards. On the other hand we are told that we will not know what the State recommends before we go to the polls.

Moreover the same Council that has publicly stated that we citizens did not fully understand the issue when a majority voted against the City in 1982 now refuses to cancel or at least postpone the special referendum until all the facts are available for the voters to consider.

7 WHY IS SANIBEL CAPITAL INC. CURRENTLY SUING THE CITY?

Sanibel Capital, Inc. recently acquired some 21 acres that are served by Bay Bridge. The Corporation subsequently applied for a permit to build a 208 foot dock (for the corporate canoe) to corporate birdwatching?

The City denied the request for a 208 foot dock, with the result that the Corporation to which the City wants us to give 62 feet of Bay front property is currently suing us for permission to build its 208 foot dock.

8 A VOTE AGAINST VACATING BAY BRIDGE TO SANIBEL CAPITAL INC. COULD COST EACH TAXPAYER $5.20

It would cost each one of Sanibel's 8246 taxpayers precisely $5,197,307 to pay Pittsfield Construction $42,857 for replacing Bay Bridge.

9 IF YOU WANT TO VOTE AGAINST THE ORDINANCE THAT VACATES BAY BRIDGE TO SANIBEL CAPITAL INC. PLEASE GO TO THE POLLS ON MONDAY MARCH 25TH AND PUNCH #10

for the record

MAIL THAT GLITTERS The gold leaf sign on the door of the First Independence Bank next to Three Star Grocery on Palm Ridge Road will have to be scraped off the door. City council decided to enforce the ordinance which limits businesses to only one street graphic Tuesday.

The wall mounted sign is fairly obvious, asserted Mayor Fred Valtin. Vice president of the bank, Jack Milner, said people still seemed to mistake the grocery for the bank and were in there looking for the tax collector more often than not.

DRINKS LIABILITY Those selling drinks to people already drunk should be liable for damages if that person causes injury or hurt to someone else, city council members said Tuesday. Council voted unanimously to ask the Florida Legislature to impose civil liability on dealers who serve people who are visibly intoxicated.

MARINE COMMITTEE A Marine Advisory Committee has been set up by the city to advise the council and to make recommendations for preserving the marine environment for boating, fishing and other water related activities.

Five members will be appointed by the city council and a council member will serve as an ex officio member of the board.

COUNCIL MEET FOR A DAY Student Government Day for Sanibel Elementary School fifth graders will be held Wednesday, May 15 at city hall. City council members will take part even though councilmen Francis Badie and Mike Klein cannot be present.

HOUSE WITH A HISTORY A tradewinds resident who wants to continue renting his house on a short term basis was granted a two month continuance of the hearing to enable him to contact the previous owners to attempt to establish that it has a history of being used for short term rentals.

Mike Palmer, a resident of Miami and owner of the four bedroom house, Cindy Bottoms in Tradewinds subdivision, said he was told by the owners when he bought the house five years ago that they used the house from time to time for spillover from the Tradewinds Motel which they managed.

About ten people in the community disputed that claim, however. Col. Millard Libby said he had intimate knowledge of the ownership of the house that he used to check on the security of the house and that at no time was that house rented to anyone.

If it was it was the best kept secret since the development of the atomic bomb, he said. The hearing was continued until May 21 at the request of Palmer.

AFTER THE FACT PENALTY SLASHED It's going pretty far to demand a contractor to saw off half the roof of the second story he already erected but nevertheless some punitive measures must be taken.

So agreed city council members in obvious sympathy with the plight of Dennis H. Jones, 1757 Venus Drive, whose contractor failed to obtain a building permit for an addition to a pool deck.

Jones, in his defense, claims that coverage with insurance on surfaces exceeds 30 per cent of the panel would like to make a claim to the Corporation Tax and Tax Plan after the fire.

At first reading, the council considered doubling of fees for amendments and development permits after the fact, at the suggestion of Councilwoman Louise Johnson.

A building permit costing $150 up in application before construction started would cost $300 if obtained after Klein said.

City Attorney David E. Cox suggested a provision for automatic doubling of the fee and Mayor Fred Valtin gave him the opportunity to try his hand at an ordinance for a second reading at 1:30 p.m. April 16 with Jones addition to the dock remaining intact during the interim.

RIGHT OF WAY The city has been given 25 feet of right of way along Periwinkle Way. The first name is a condition of the development permit for the 8 1/2 acre foot Periwinkle Shopping Center approved December 10 last year. Andrew Szuranski, general partner of Periwinkle Garden Associates, signed the quit claim deed, dedicating the land to the city.

Anderson seeks to break even on land

By Fran Nuelle

Developer Don Anderson would like to have some relief on his property fronting on Periwinkle Way, bounded by Vinca and Ardys Way.

The relief Anderson would ask for ever in lieu of the rezoning of the parcel from residential to commercial which Anderson claims it is any way could be at city council's suggestion, he said. He had already received the planning department's correction that no cemetery exists on the land as previously stated.

After questioning Island Realty about the feasibility of developing the site with five duplexes of 800 square feet each, the bottom line after ex (number of) years of expenses would be $63,146 and the ten units rented out would be a realization of $65,000 -- a break even point said Anderson.

He said he had had the property up for sale as a resident but it will never happen.

He said he had bought the property as commercial paid taxes on it as commercial and that Lee County had approved it for 12 units as well as granting permits for its development as commercial. He cited further a Johnson Engineering street map of 1981 which designated it as commercial.

But it was not within Lee County's but the

Lucy Armenia hurt in fatal accident on Gladiolus Drive

A Sanibel woman received minor injuries Saturday in an accident at the intersection of Gladiolus Drive and Vinca Road when she reportedly drove her car into the path of a car driven by Larry Shippey of Fort Myers Beach, according to Florida Highway Patrol.

Lucy Armenia, wife of John Armenia, one of the owners of the Sanibel Hilton and of the Jim Connors U.S. Tennis Center Panta Rosa, was accompanied by three passengers who also received minor injuries.

Shippey, a former golf coach at Edison Community College, died Sunday of injuries received in the crash. He was owner of Shoppes Sport Shop, Fort Myers Beach.

According to an FHP spokesman, the accident report had not been filed as of Wednesday morning and it was unknown if charges would be filed.

Town meeting next Wednesday

A town meeting to discuss commercial development, the rate of growth ordinance and intensity of use legislation will be held Wednesday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Association building. It is sponsored by the Committee of the Islands.

COTI members and residents of Sanibel will have the opportunity to present their views on the three issues.

The phasing out of the controversial ROGO system for single family homes is being considered by the city council. A commercial moratorium on building was passed March 5. Intensity of use of buildings on the island whereby more and more people are occupying the same space is another major concern.

City council members and planning commission members will be attending to answer questions.

Jim Hermes retires from BOTI, plans fishing, relaxation

By Wendy McMullen

Bank of the Islands resident Jim Hermes is set to retire from his position at the end of the month, the board of directors announced Friday.

It's time for a change, I used to do more of the things I've always wanted to do, said Hermes, 43, who has been in banking 23 years and with the Bank of the Islands since 1976.

I always intended to retire from banking around this age, he added. I want to pursue other business challenges and interests.

Hermes is not yet sure what other business avenues he intends to follow but said for the moment he was going to pursue relaxing fishing, boating, golf and go karting.

He moved to the Fort Myers area from Youngstown, Ohio in 1971 and after three years worked for the First National Bank in Fort Myers before joining BOTI as vice president. He was made president in 1978 when Robert C. Hayes retired.

In January this year he became a director of the Federal Reserve Bank branch board in Miami for a three year term.

Jim Hermes

Juanita

Hermes' wife Juanita is the senior vice president of Priscilla Murphy Realty and they have two sons aged 13 and 19.

Senior vice president Jim Lowman, 56, who has been a director of the bank for nine years is acting as the new president. Lowman is a graduate of the University of Florida School of Banking in Gainesville. He and his wife, a two month pregnant wife, live in Gulf City, Sanibel.

ROGO may be phased out by 1986

By Fran Nuelle

Will Sanibel see an explosion of single family homes causing premature build out and strain on city services if ROGO is abolished?

This and other concerns were expressed at a city workshop with the council and planning commission and staff last week to explore the idea of removing the much criticized Rate of Growth Ordinance which was designed to regulate the building of single and multi family dwellings to 180 a year.

ROGO would be phased out by Jan 1 1986 for all single family construction according to a plan ning department proposal.

Bruce Rogers planning director explained that the phase down would permit for each ROGO period in July and November an additional allocation of 75 single family dwellings until Jan 1.

When asked by the council why the number 75 was chosen Rogers admitted it was on the basis of "reasonable process" so as not to overwhelm the building department which had recommended the number.

Allocations granted in July and November would have to be carried through and building permits obtained he explained. Otherwise applicants would have to withdraw and reapply he said.

ROGO would continue to be in effect for multi family development which would include duplexes Rogers said. The number available 45 would be the same as available now.

Councilwoman Louise Johnson estimate 1 application for single family houses at 225 a year for today's applications ROGO allows for 180 dwellings a year whether single or multi family. She cited three possible problems of early buildout.

Rogers however had stated earlier that the original motivation on ROGO - that of slowing down multi family development along the beach - had been served. There is very little vacant land left in the resort area and we'll be seeing redevelopment of existing programs.

President Andy Seipos stated that 100 condominiums and 200 single family houses are presently for sale. So we need a lot more to sell? he asked.

merely problems that every restaurant runs into from time to time, and that the business had been discriminated against by city and county officials.

"I don't know of another business on the island with a concrete slab under its dumpster," she added and went on to suggest that professional jealousy and competition were the reason for the discrimination.

Officer Richard Kennedy claims that Guy has been convicted of theft and extortion, she said. In fact when Guy took over The Fountain it started to do well and have an impact on other supper clubs in the area.

Kennedy is actively pursuing my clients because he has a vested interest in Wil's Landing," she said, adding that Kennedy had come into The Fountain on the evenings of Thursday March 7 and Friday March 8 and told staff that he would personally arrest them if they attempted to serve food or drink.

"Kennedy is a sworn officer of this city and I take exception to your comments," said Mayor Villanueva angrily. "There is no evidence he was at ing other than properly as a sworn officer. He didn't say that the fact that Kennedy had an interest in Wil's Landing was not in question.

City Attorney David LaCroix added that Kennedy was acting on the authority of the city and that he went along with his request and the request of the city manager.

"To say we're trying to shut them down is ridiculous," commented City Manager Gary Price.

Commented after the meeting, Kennedy said the reason he was the one to go into The Fountain was that he had drawn the short end of the straw and been working nights.

He added that it was not true that he had a vested interest in closing it down, adding that everything he had done had been documented.

He declined comment on Weigert Martin's allegations that he was claiming Guy had a criminal background.

Price said he visited the restaurant after numerous complaints, violations and immediate requiring police action on March 7 with Kennedy, code enforcement officer Dick Baker in Lee County Health Department supervisor David Gilvin.

Following that visit, Lee County Department of Environmental Health issued a two page list of 49 items to be corrected.

Price also requested the business records to establish whether the regulated ratio of food to alcohol was being served. This Guy says was refused. He then gave a list of violations to the staff to pass on to Guy.

On the evening of March 7, Guy reports that Kennedy entered the restaurant and told staff that he would personally arrest them if they sold either food or drink. This despite no formal notice being issued against the restaurant by the Lee County Board of Alcohol Enforcements and Tobacco. The staff stopped serving him.

Kennedy, however, says he went to the restaurant with Sgt. Jim Colvin in town. Colvin said that there were problems with the liquor license and that there was the possibility they could be closed down.

■ SUNNING HIMSELF An alligator sunning himself in the yard of a Yachtsman Drive residence Monday was left unharmed. The alligator was not endangering anyone said Officer John Slater, who was called out so no attempt was made to remove it. A message was left for Steve Phillips, director of the Sanibel Captiva Conservation Foundation, 35 to the animal's whereabouts.

■ SMOKE BOMBS The sale of smoke bombs by Bucky's Store to minors was reported to Sanibel Police last week. Complainant was Gary Hill, whose sons aged 13 and 15 had purchased five sticks of smoke bombs and two cigarettes in hours from the store. Officer Kevin Morehouse told Bucky's manager Charles Skinner that although the smoke bombs were not in violation that the store might consider limiting their sale to minors in view of the area drive-in and finger of fire. Smoke bombs and some hand held sparklers have been removed from the shelves.

■ ASHBY COMMENDED Police Officer Scott Ashby was commended for his investigative techniques which resulted in the arrest of Joe Daniel Cox, 22, for thefts and burglaries on the island. The letter from Police Chief John Butler to Officer Ashby said that a large amount of stolen merchandise was returned to its rightful owners as a result of the arrest.

■ CORRECTION Mrs. Mary Ann Goffey wishes to correct the impression in Police Watch last week that police were called unnecessarily to their home to attend her husband, Jim Goffey. Mrs. Goffey said that her husband had been heart surgery the previous week and that he had passed out and urgently needed medical attention when she called the police. The medics were afraid there when police arrived and it was therefore not necessary for the police to stay.

■ INTOXICATING SCENT Two underage youths were found early Tuesday morning passed out in their maroon BMW parked on Captiva Island Road. Officers stated that a strong smell of alcohol and other drugs alerted them to the boys' condition. The boys stated they had been drinking at area restaurants. The birthday of one of the boys had been the day before. His father was summoned by police and a check of one of the restaurants apparently the boys had used false IDs.

STATEMENT BY THEODORE CROSS TO THE VOTERS AND TAXPAYERS OF SANIBEL REGARDING BAY BRIDGE REFERENDUM

Before you vote on the March 25th
Bay Bridge referendum, please consider these facts:

- Several months ago, the City of Sanibel asked me to accept responsibility for the Bay Bridge because the City did not want to spend approximately $50,000 to build a new state-approved bridge that would benefit only one property owner. I thought this was a prudent decision regarding the use of public funds — something you don't see happen very often these days. So, I agreed to the City's proposal.
- Despite what a few people have been saying, the City's proposal is in no way a giveaway of public property. The bridge is a liability for me to maintain and provides no beach access to the public, since both ends of the bridge are completely landlocked by private property. (You are cordially invited to go down and look for yourself.)
- In order to keep the present bridge and save this unnecessary expense to the public, I am perfectly willing to accept responsibility for the old bridge and to relieve the City of the cost of maintaining it.
- I am one of the leading environmentalists on Nantucket Island in Massachusetts and much of my life has been devoted to protecting habitat for birds in Nantucket and Sanibel. If you are to check this, the City Manager's office has a brochure published annually by the Nantucket Conservation Foundation, Inc. that lists and locates each of the properties I have donated to the Conservation Foundation during the past several years.
- If I intended to commercially develop the Bayshore property, wouldn't I be in favor of having the City build a new bridge sufficient for commercial use?
- At a time when public money is scarce, why should the voters and taxpayers of Sanibel be stampeded into spending $50,000 of Sanibel City funds on a new bridge for my sole benefit when the same money could go a long way towards the purchase of additional wetlands by the City for preservation.

Residents protest noise, chemicals at helipad

By Wendy McMullen

The Bowman's Beach Helipad issue has taken off again. This time it was raised at the Sanibel City Council on Tuesday by nearby residents concerned about the noise of helicopters taking off and the danger of toxic chemicals being stored near their homes.

The helicopters land and refuel with insecticide. There is jet fuel and other toxics stored there. The entire operation is hazardous, commented Umbrella Pool Road resident Robert Thompson.

The prevailing winds from the Gulf mean they spray all over my house every time they take off, said another resident. That surely can't be healthy.

The noise on take-off is also immense, says residents.

There is no way you can talk on the telephone when they are taking off, claims a resident who owns property north of the helipad.

It was disconcerting enough to meet zonies on the beach, she said, referring to the characters in The Day of the Dead, a movie recently shot at the helipad. Now this.

The helicopter pad, which is used by Lee County Mosquito Control for refueling, is built on county-owned land not within the city's jurisdiction.

Nevertheless, city council members said they would like to do something about the problem. They agreed to write a letter to the Department of Transportation asking for continuation of the April 2 hearing on the issue to give enough time to investigate the problem.

A helipad is currently being sought for the helipad even though it has been in use several years, according to city message. Gary Price, the mosquito control board were under the impression that they did not need a license because the landing pad was used only sporadically.

As a result, the board had been operating with a license for some years.

Lee County Mosquito Control director T. Wayne Miller said the landing pad was used at most once or twice a week and that no increase in intensity of use was intended.

According to aviation engineer George Williams at the Department of Transportation in Bartow, Fla., the board should not have had the helipad until it got a license.

The license was applied for by Thon as I. Klein, chief pilot, with the board in October last year but owing to residents' complaints could not be granted without a public hearing. A hearing was scheduled for December 4 last year but was not advertised properly and had to be rescheduled. Williams said. Meetings must be advertised in the Fort Myers News-Press.

The next public hearing is scheduled for April 2 at 7 p.m. in room 3717 of Lee County Courthouse.

Williams will be at the meeting to hear residents' complaints and he will report to Richard Greenup, chief of the Division of Public Transportation in Tallahassee.

in any way or used for parking.

We have a deep appreciation for this gift and your generosity which makes it possible for us to enjoy this land in its unspoiled state. Mayor Fred Lollar told Mrs. Bock at Tuesday's council meeting.

The land is located at the end of Dixie Beach Boulevard near an existing city parking lot.

This bread is well bred

By Wendy McMullen

The croissant — currently consumed with passion throughout America — can be made right in your own home. But producing that flaky, buttery yet tasty pastry may be made easier by classes in the art and these classes are now available on Sanibel.

Classes break down the awesome time-consuming process of creating delicate flaky butter-drenched croissants into surprisingly manageable steps over the busiest person can handle, claims instructor Claudia Burns who is offering classes in croissant and rye bread making in her home on Seagrape Lane.

Classes teach you technique you can't learn from a book, said Burns. Things like working with yeast, kneading dough, the amount of flour to use — all of these vary according to the situation but once you've been shown the techniques for dealing with them, you don't forget.

Burns says that she often hears people say that they tried making bread and it was a disaster. These same people consistently make bread without any failures after the classes she gives.

Burns limits her classes to four people because she wants everyone to be able to observe and participate fully. Classes are taught in her own home and last from two to three hours depending on the bread being baked.

Claudia Burns, Breaking Fresh, is teaching bread-making classes.

Frances see the whole process from beginning to end when they sit down to enjoy the fresh, baked croissants and breads.

They usually like to take part home to the families to taste, she adds.

Burns thinks breadmaking should be fun and a relaxing experience and dispenses with machines I long used to knead or mix the bread.

Kneading bread is sooth'ng," she said. "There should be a Bread Therapy set up. If you're mad at your boss, you can take it out on the dough. The more you mistreat the dough the more wonderful the bread.

In Milwaukee, Wis., where Burns spends most of the year, she teaches five classes in making French, whole wheat, Italian breads, French and English muffins. She has also set up a program for teachers of breadmaking.

I discovered that I couldn't handle the number of students so I started teaching them to teach others," she recounted.

She also set up her own company.

Breadwinners

Burns says that giving classes in breadmaking is a good job for women because they can do it in their own home, write their own schedule, create their own hours and still make a good profit.

"Nobody's going to get rich out there's a minimal capital investment and low overhead and it's nice for a woman to have money she can call her own," she explained.

Burns has put together a comprehensive system of tapes and inventory to go with her classes. The videotapes explain the techniques of baking French, whole wheat, broche, Italian, English muffins and white bread. Each lasts two hours and covers two breads. Each tape costs $200 for all six breads. She also has tapes on making rye bread and pumpernickel for an additional $100. They are available also in some library systems around the country.

In addition, she has aprons, pans and other accessories which trainees will often purchase when they take the class.

Burns says the interest in baking bread is growing in America. There's a lack to business trend with more leisure time available. Plus it's fashionable to be able to say at your dinner parties that you made the bread or the pasta yourself," she said. It's a very positive and desirable trend.

Superb lot in one of Sanibel's most exclusive subdivisions. Gulf Ridge offers two large swimming pools, three tennis courts, beautifully landscaped roads, and the quiet and seclusion secured by a gatehouse. Don't settle for the much smaller building lots being offered at the same price by a developer.

Charles Frederick complained about boxes blocking the fire escape at the back. Later that weekend a complaint was filed by city attorney and nearby resident David L. G. Cox about noise in the city park at 12:17 a.m. Sunday.

There were four boxes out by the back door and it took five seconds to remove them and put them in the dumpster. That's all there was to it, commented Gus.

The week beginning March 11, the restaurant was almost closed down again this time by Lee County Health Department Galvin said on Wednesday, March 13 that since he found they had complied with about 50 percent of the items he allowed them to stay open.

That same week Sanibel police received four separate complaints from restaurant staff that they had not been paid since mid January and were owed up to $500.

This was because the previous managers took the time sheets. Gus said last week at the restaurant. And it was only a couple of them most of the staff have been paid.

Late reports have been filed with Sanibel Police Department on the restaurant in the past week alone. Three of them came from Gus who reported Sunday that two employees had removed the cash register from the restaurant and that items had been removed from the kitchen Tuesday day while he was attending the council meeting

He also called to claim that the whole of the Sanibel Police Department was corrupt in a variety of harassments.

The cash register was brought to the police department by two of the employees to end the dispute about salaries. The employees claimed they had not been paid for up to two months and were owed between $300 and $400.

Other complaints came from a resident of Roseate Lane, Marsh Wagner who said last Friday was coming from the restaurant at 1:30 a.m. Tuesday, and from two local businessmen Allen Batten who said that Gus had not paid him

Let's learn from history

To Island Reporter In the 1950s and earlier the State of Florida divested itself of great areas of so-called worthless land — marsh and wetland areas. Private interests were encouraged to take the areas off the state's hands for little or no cost.

Now the state has come to realize how valuable those lands are and it's been frantically trying to find funding to correct the mistake that was made. Millions of dollars are now needed to acquire those areas in order to save them from development.

The City of Sanibel could learn from history and not make the mistake of giving away any public land in sensitive environmental areas lest the taxpayers find they may be called upon to raise large sums of money a few years hence to prevent development of adjoining sensitive areas.

Why give Bay Bridge which spans a waterway through an environmentally sensitive area into an adjoining intensively developed area?

I hope that Sanibel taxpayers will vote against this give away at the referendum March 25.

W. T. "Fritz" Stoppelheim
Sanibel

Read fact sheet says mayor

To Island Reporter Under the existing ordinance as he decided upon it by the voters in referendum on March 25 the public loses nothing except to talk the bridge itself plus two feet of roadway on the east and four feet of roadway on the west.

The rest of the roadway remains in the same status as right now, including the fact that both sides of the roadway are private property and thus cannot be legally used to give to the public portion of the Bay Beach.

I urge all voters to read the three page Fact Sheet on this issue prepared by the City Manager. It constitutes a factual and objective summary of all the questions that have been raised in connection with the Bay Drive Bridge issue.

Anticipating the controversy that might result, I originally opposed reopening the vexing question. Not having prevailed and firmly believing that what the public loses is not worth the forty some thousand dollars that will have to be spent on the bridge replacement, I have since fully supported the city to keep the bridge is to maintain control over the use of the adjacent areas and waterway.

Once in private hands it will just be a matter of time until a creative developer will find a way to develop the property.

The city should be willing to bear the minor expense and possible inconvenience to a few city employees in order to save the property for future generations.

Fred W. Yalton,
Mayor

Bay bridge serves public interests

To Island Reporter The September 1982 referendum proved that Bay Drive and Bridge serve public interests and not just one property owner. Therefore Island Reporter is misrepresenting and omitting facts when it repeatedly states as in the article February 21, 1985 — give the road and bridge to the owners of the only property it leads to.

The road and bridge lead to public waterfront access and is an extension to Daisy Mayer Park. A bench on or by the bridge would be nice to mark it as a destination for people going to Daisy Mayer Park.

Many reasons have been cited in the past as to why the city should keep the area that lends itself to solitary nature pursuits. However the prime overriding reason for the city to keep the bridge is to maintain control over the use of the adjacent areas and waterway.

The city should be willing to bear the minor expense and possible inconvenience to a few city employees in order to save the property for future generations.

Lars Schuller,

commentary

How to slow commercial development

By William Constantine

Gl Bursley chairman of the Committee of the Islands has taken the admirable initiative to organize a town meeting on Wednesday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the SCA Community Center and has asked for input from Sanibel residents to slow down the rapidly escalating commercial development on our island. Since I contributed to raising the issue to begin with I feel obligated to follow through with a proposed solution of the problem.

Definition of the problem. First there should be agreement on the nature of the problem and its causes. This is essential to make sure the causes of the right problems are eliminated instead of its symptoms merely alleviated. I have studied the Burton Administration Report, commissioned by the City of Sanibel and have concluded that the methodology and the information on the report are basically sound and still valid. Only the assumptions have changed. The original assumption was that the projects of commercial development under the current CLUP ordinances would only be supported by residents and short and long term visitors. It did not assume that Sanibel would be developed as a shopping destination for daytrippers. If free enterprise based its projections on the buying habits of residents and short and long term visitors there will be little commercial overdevelopment. However if developers assume that daytrippers must justify their commercial ventures then Sanibel will be in deep trouble. The problem then is how to reduce the inflow of daytrippers who want to make Sanibel their shopping destination.

Proposed solution

(a) Principle

The City of Sanibel owns all public roads on the island. These roads and public parking lots are maintained with taxpayers' funds. It stands to reason that all Sanibel taxpayers should have free use of the city's public road system. All non-taxpayers should pay for this privilege. Using Sanibel's public roads and parking spaces.

(b) Implementation

First at the end of the causeway which links the beginning of Sanibel's road system a booth to collect a road tax fee. Taxpayers are allowed to pass free through a special lane. Non-taxpayers will have to stop and pay a $20 road tax per vehicle for each entry to Sanibel.

Taxpayers will be issued annually free of cost colored window stickers (different for each vehicle) to be affixed on the inside of the car's front window. Taxpayers include Florida Sanibel Captiva residents (two stickers per family) all other property owners on Sanibel and Captiva (one sticker each) and individuals who are permanently or partially full time, part time on Sanibel or Captiva but live off the islands (one sticker each). All others have to pay the $20 vehicle registration entry in Sanibel.

(c) Advantages

The $20 vehicle entry tax will definitely discourage daytrippers from visiting Sanibel Island Captiva.

■ Loss of the daytrippers market potential will force the market to slow down commercial development since the feasibility of additional projects will become highly questionable.

■ Taxpayers can still do their shopping on island if they so desire without any financial penalty.

■ Non-taxpayers (i.e. short and long term visitors) will be motivated to do their shopping on the islands to be the left of various business establishments.

■ Revenue from the proposed road tax will easily support the systems in place. Excess funds could be used to lower property taxes.

■ For a long term visitor (one month or more) proof of rental payment entitles him to one annual sticker at $5.

■ A legal precedent could be found in the incorporated city of Jupiter Island (Hobe Sound, north of Vero Beach).

■ The solution is fairly easy to implement on a short notice starting September 1985 when the commercial building moratorium expires.

■ Politically the solution is acceptable since daytrippers do not vote for the elected city officials.

■ Commercial vehicles may pass the extra cost to their customers. The road tax will justify their heavy use of Sanibel's roads and their maintenance.

I do not think that any changes under the existing CLUP ordinances are required, provided however that the city council is making exceptions which overrule the room conditions of the planning department.

Bottle bill works and makes sense

To Island Reporter I read with interest the city endorsement of the proposed Bottle Bill with a lone negative vote by Francis Bailey. It's interesting that Mr. Bailey is concerned about increased cost to the consumer since he was never concerned before, at least that is until Jerry's came to the island.

As a Michigan resident and a Sibibel property owner I have not understood why Florida has not had a bottle bill and can deposit law long before this. We were on Sibibel in January and I picked up no less than seven trash bags full of cans and bottles in about a 100 foot stretch of beach. Those who think that a Bottle Bill won't work have obviously never been to Michigan. You would be hard pressed to find litter in our state. Somebody somewhere's going to collect it.

It works and it makes sense. It's putless for the consumer and with the price Mr. Bailey charges, he can afford to add one person to handle the cans. Florida and a Nobel need the Bottle Bill. Write your Representative.

Give away doesn't make sense

To Island Reporter The city wants to give away over 60 feet of our choice Gulf front property to a corporation that is currently suing the city in order to build a 208 foot dock on the bay. This just doesn't make any sense! Therefore it is up to us citizens to put an end to this nonsense and vote against Sibibel Bay Bridge and a portion of the road to Sibibel Capital Inc.

Nuclear bomb: 'I am ashamed'

To Island Reporter As a senior citizen I am part of the generation that won the war with the nuclear bomb forty years ago. We should be proud but I am not. The development of nuclear power was outstanding, I am ashamed to say we stopped there.

As an engineer I learned that when one develops a new process a new machine, a new chemical one must immediately develop a method of containing this new discovery. Our Hiroshima explosion opened up a new method of waging war. But we stopped there.

This new discovery was stolen from us and fed up in the hands of the Soviet Union on one who could not be trusted then or now. They are now the atomic, our very existence with the monster that we developed. I am ashamed that we will be leaving this deadly missile for my 12 children and 45 grandchildren to try to control this monster. We are now taking the DO NOTHING position of controlling this horrible night mare, the awesome Soviet nuclear missile that it is.

We still refuse to spend any of our money to investigate possible avenues of control of the monster that we developed. Wouldn't it be better to save lives than to avenge them?

The challenge issued by our President was not only to the scientists and engineers of America. They already know how to do the job. Let us take these positive, non-nuclear peaceful steps to eliminate that threat for ourselves, our children and the children.

Let us investigate, help sustain non nuclear deterrent. Know us as Project High Frontier. Let us know if you would like a copy of a pamphlet called High Frontier. This pamphlet tells us of this new project and what we can do to develop it. I will be glad to send you a copy.

A special thanks to all the people who donated many articles. Most of our workers who made it possible to sell what had been donated. And an extra thanks to my cousin Marie and her husband for their hours spent in transporting, donated items to the church plus many unseen things they did. There are two more people to give thanks to Doris Platt president of our Guild and Fred our janitor who, even after the sale was over and helped to put things back in order. God bless you all.

Dr. Robert Zollinger: "I don't have your Sanibel gas-low rot. What I do is quite normal." Dr. Zollinger is here on vacation writing about Dr. Elliott C. Cutler, the first surgeon to perform open heart surgery.

With Dr. Elliott C. Cutler and most recently with his son, Robert, the world-respected manual of surgery, "The Atlas of Surgical Operations" which has been translated into many different languages, most recently, Japanese.

As a leader, Dr. Zollinger has been president of the American College of Surgeons for a year, and is a member of the American Surgical Association and the Board of Surgeons. He is also an honorary member of the Royal College of Surgeons in England.

But despite his lofty distinctions and remarkable achievements, Dr. Zollinger remains a very practical and warm human being.

One of his major hobbies is gardening because, he says, "it gives me something to do in the evening." He is, in fact, a cactus and rose grower of some distinction and is a frequent judge and exhibitor at state fairs.

"I think old people like agriculture because what they want to be alive next year to see what happens to what they plant this year," he comments.

Asked how he remains so remarkably sagacious and alert at 81, Dr. Zollinger is characteristically whimsical. "You ask me why the hell I'm still living at 81," he jokes.

"Is there any surgical advance kept me alive? Hell, no! I've had no surgery, no antibiotics. I've got no secret recipe; I drink coffee, tea, booze, I use the lot."

"They say the ways of sin are many and most of them enjoyable but well worth it," he said, adding that his wife of 56 years, Louise, is a nutritionist and makes sure he eats well.

Dr. Zollinger was raised in Ohio on his father's farm and both he and his brother went to medical school, his brother to Harvard and Robert to Ohio State University.

He graduated from Ohio State in 1927 and was interned to Harvard under the great neurosurgeon, Dr. Harvey Cushing, in 1932.

When America entered the second world war, Zollinger was sent to Europe working first in Northern Ireland, then in Salisbury, England, and finally, after the Normandy invasion, in Carenton, France, where he was made commanding officer of the Fifth General Hospital.

At the end of the war he returned to his alma mater, Ohio State University, where he entered the Department of Surgery. He retired as chairman of that department ten years ago.

Dr. Zollinger's son, Robert, is a graduate of Harvard Medical School and Associate Professor of Surgery at Western Reserve University of Ohio, and a daughter, Myra, who is a graduate of Wellesley College and a realtor in Chapel Hill, North Carolina. He also has five grandchildren.

He has been visiting Sanibel since 1939 staying at various resorts on the island.

"Why don't you write about what makes people keep coming back to Sanibel for more than 40 years? You won't be able to write more than two paragraphs about me," he challenged.

MASTER SURGEON

At 81, Dr. Robert Zollinger keeps a hectic pace, but still finds time to get away to Sanibel — for more than 40 years

By Wendy McMullen

"It's not work, it's fun. I wouldn't do it if it were work. I've never worked in my life."

From Dr. Robert Zollinger, master surgeon, teacher, editor and rose grower who at 81 follows a schedule which would defeat most people half his age.

Even here on Sanibel, ostensibly on vacation at the Island Inn, he is at work writing about the first surgeon ever to perform open heart surgery, Dr. Elliott C. Cutler.

And despite having supposedly retired ten years ago, this for midlife man is still chief editor of the American Journal of Surgery published monthly, has travelled more than 46,000 miles throughout the United States and South

America in the past year speaking on surgery, and has produced a fifth edition of his internationally-known handbook of surgery, "An Atlas of Surgical Operations."

But the self-effacing,

perspicacious, witty surgeon

dismisses all this with an airy wave of the hand. "I don't have your Sanibel go-slow rot," he comments playfully. "What I do is quite normal."

But then Zollinger is a master of understatement. For example:

On surgery: "Believe me, it's simple. You think all this would be going on if it wasn't?"

On his handbook of surgery published in every country in the Western world: "It's just a picture book on surgery ... a sort of how-to book."

On teaching: "Sure I like teaching. I like to harass people."

But beyond the humor is a distinguished man of letters who has contributed tremendously to the medical community as a scholar, a teacher, a disseminator of information and a leader.

As a scholar, it was Dr. Zollinger, along with Dr. Edward Ellison, whose discovery of what is now termed the Zollinger Ellison Syndrome led to significant further discoveries relating to tumors in the pancreas.

As a teacher, reportedly the medical equivalent of Dr. Kingfield in "The Paper Chase," and by his own admission "dominating" and "unable to be pleased," Dr. Zollinger is so highly regarded that his former students founded the Zollinger Club with 125 now very distinguished members who meet each year.

As a disseminator of information, Dr. Zollinger has been a guest speaker at conferences throughout the United States and abroad.

He has also authored, edited or

FAMILY STROMBIDAE
Genus Strombus
Species S. gigas L 1758
Common Name Qua conch

This member of the large family Strombidae is not found on Sanibel but is native to both the Florida Keys and the West Indies and Central America. Over-shelling, for food and souvenirs has severely depleted this species in many areas where often even immature shells are taken, leaving few to reproduce.

The mature shell is large and heavy, varying in height from 6 to 12 inches and is characterized by its large flaring outer lip which is sometimes higher than the spire. Rich shades of pink, orange and yellow, occasionally in checkerboard, are inside the lip and aperture. The inside of the shell is yellowish-white with a thin tan or grey stripe which flakes off easily when dried. It has a high, strongly angled spire with three pointed lobes on the last three whorls. Like others in this family, gigas has a strong band of teeth at the lower end of the flaring outer lip.

and a small, shallow depression which is the a siphon opening. The animal is a hermaphrodite, feeding on small organisms which it picks up with its siphon and eats as pearls or by oysters.

Immature shells called "nipples" have a quite different appearance, the body is relatively high, the siphon is short, pointed nose and the expanded lip of the mature shell.

Worldwide there are about 70 species in five genera with approximately 11 in the Americas. Only two of the genus Strombus is found in the West Indies. S. gigas and S. pulcherrimus have previously been included in this column. They are shallow water species which has helped lead to their rapid decline in the West Indies and Florida Keys.

Habitat is in the sand and rubble, also in seagrass and in the grass in water five to 15 feet deep.

Range is from southeastern Florida to the West Indies and as far south as Venezuela.

The Samoyed: a delight to behold

By Marion Smith

When the famous Norwegian explorer Fridjof Nansen was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1922 one wonders if his thoughts went back in time to the monumentally grueling undertaking he and his companions underwent in 1893 to reach the North Pole. At age 32, he overcame many perils and hazards by his determination and zealous ambition to fulfill his dreams. The journey was to last a long three years with many difficulties. Nansen and a big team insuring the success of the expedition was the team of his 28 Samoyed sled dogs.

Many other famous explorers such as Scott and another Norwegian called Roald Amundsen, to name just two, were to use Samoyeds to pull supplies, often twice their own weight, joyously and tirelessly.

The magnificent Samoyed is a delight to behold with his dazzling white coat seeming to symbolize the Antarctic snow and icebergs.

Originating in Siberia with the nomadic Samoyed Indian tribes, this dog was originally bred to guard herds of reindeers and is one of the oldest northern Spitz breeds.

When the breed was first taken to England more than a hundred years ago, the color was often black or brown, but gradually the predominantly white became the officially accepted color.

Admitted to the American Kennel Club in 1908, the Samoyed has been a consistent contender and many times winner, in the show ring.

The height of the Samoyed is about 23 inches, with a medium length muzzle and black lips. If ever a dog was to be described as smiling, it is certainly the Samoyed which in reality has a slight curve at the corners of his mouth.

Ears should be strong and thick, erect with lots of hair covering inside as well as out. Dark animated eyes which always look lively and sparkling are indicative of the breed.

Tail should be fairly long and well feathered, sometimes carried over the back or side, and straight sturdy legs. A large, hare-like foot with arched toes, having a protective covering of hair, and thick tough pads, are characteristic.

The Samoyed is double-coated with an under coat of short soft hair, while the outer coat consists of longer harsh hair. This weather resistant coat should have no curl or waviness to it whatever, with the male having a longer coat than the female. A ruff around head and shoulders frames his head with a glistening, silver-like sheen.

For a docile, devoted, intelligent companion one could do no better than having a Samoyed for a lifelong companion.

Wayne Taylor's island images: with panache

By Fran Nuelle

If the look of an island — any island — has a certain panache, it is certainly reflected in the work of Wayne Taylor, whose watercolor paintings will be exhibited from March 2 through April 6 at the G. David Thompson Memorial Gallery, 362 Periwinkle Way.

A reception for the artist will be held from 1-3 p.m. on March 24 at the gallery.

What Taylor paints in a style he calls "representational" has such nuances of place that two paintings of sunrises and sunsets are identifiable as Sanibel while one other is definitely Pine Island. Similarly, other paintings in the show bespeak Indian and Colorado.

I don't paint a scene unless I have some feeling about it," says Taylor. "I like to paint on the scene, it might be at my daughter Amy's home in Colorado gazing out over a mountain range or at the end of Dixie Beach road looking onto San Carlos Bay. A native hoosier as he calls himself, Taylor is a graduate of Indiana State University and the Famous Artists School in Westport, Conn., an army artist in World War II and a teacher for 30 years.

He and his wife, Alice, now make their home in Fort Myers.

Living portrait of a star

Actress Eugenia Rawls will appear in "Tallulah's Memory," a living portrait of her legendary close friend at 8:10 p.m. on Sunday and Monday, March 24 and 25 at the Island Theatre and Entertainment Center.

Tickets are $21.50 for the show and dinner at the Coconut Grove Restaurant or $12.50 for the show only. They are available in advance by calling 472-0550 or at the door of the theatre.

How to use a potter's wheel to make cases, bowls, mugs and oil lamps will be demonstrated by Tim Smith picture 1 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23 at Tim's Studio, 30 Periwinkle Place.

Her close friend, godmother to her children and mentor on the stage and off.

During these years, Miss Rawls kept journals and even rescued scraps of paper. Blank head thrown into the wastebasket, material she has since used in her fascinating portrait of the late actress.

A noted actress in her own right, Miss Rawls set the record for the most consecutive performances by any feature artist at the Kennedy Center. Her performances have included the following credits: The Glass Menagerie, Mother Courage, The Lion in Winter, The Shrike, Sweet Bird of Youth, and others.

Her trilogy of one-woman shows is her most outstanding accomplishment, however.

"Tallulah's Memory" is the most famous of the others are well known and include Alice, Timonely Yours, Funny Kemble and Women of the West.

The art of Sumi

How the artist in watercolors can handle painting on rice paper — the art of Sumi — will be demonstrated by Cape Coral artist Peggy Carbin following a meeting of the Sanibel Captiva Art League at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, March 28.

Carbin studied art at Penn State and also at Djakarta, Indonesia. She has been involved in numerous studies of Oriental brush painting but is a specialist in Sumi. Presently she is instructing a workshop at Cape Coral.

Eskimo art

Canadian Eskimo carvings and Alaskan ivory Eskimo and Indian carvings — some one hundred in the newest collection — will be in the Stone Walrus and the Jade Butterfly show at 3711 Periwinkle Way beginning Tuesday, March 26.

The carvings are the largest in native art exhibited on Baffin Is. and in Frobisher Bay in the Northwest Territories of Canada.

Grouper, snapper, sea bass bag limits should apply to all

By Fritz &amp; Norma Stoppelbein

A press release issued by the Marine Fisheries Commission (MFC) states that the commission temporarily withdrew its rule recommendations for grouper, snapper and sea bass from governor and cabinet consideration to allow the commission time to study unintended impacts of proposed bag limit regulations.

The rule was withdrawn because Florida League of Anglers (FLA) representing the interests of Florida's recreational fishermen strenuously objected to having the primary burden of conserving the fisheries placed once again on recreational fishermen.

Although the proposed rule would have limited the number of hooks that could be used on commercial longlines, it put no limit on commercial catches. Longlines are little used in state waters, but drift nets and sink nets are proliferating in the keys. Those nets take not only the target species but bonito and other gamefish. No restrictions were proposed for the net gear.

FLA argued that if the problem with the grouper snapper fisheries is great enough to warrant bag limits on recreational fishermen, big limits should also be placed on commercial fishermen.

Further, the definition of a recreational fisherman as one who does not hold a license to sell fish would be ineffective in conserving the resource. Anyone who purchased a $25 saltwater products license would not be subject to the bag limits nor would a businessman in the seafood industry who possessed a seafood wholesaler's license.

The impact of fishing on Florida's economy surpasses that of citrus and cattle.

Saltwater recreational fishing pumped nearly $5 billion a year into Florida's economy, while saltwater commercial fishing contributed only $288 million — and that was back in 1981 '82 when an extensive economic study of Florida's marine fisheries was conducted by Dr. Frederick W. Bell and Associates at Florida

State University.

The university's Research in Review Bulletin in 1984 summarized Dr. Bell's conclusion: "No matter who is to blame for the alleged ill health of Florida's fisheries, Florida's government officials would be foolish to consistently favor commercial interests over ports interests in deciding how Florida's saltwater fisheries should be managed."

The time is long over due for those charged with the responsibility for managing Florida's saltwater fisheries to grasp the reality of Florida's saltwater fishing and that reality is that recreational fishermen produce many times the revenue generated by Florida's entire commercial fishing industry (the major part of which comes from shellfish harvesting — not finfish).

Over the years the economic impact of recreational fishing in Florida has grown until it far surpasses that of commercial fishing.

Over the years, recreational fishermen have willingly accepted restrictions on sizes and bags imposed on advice of fishery managers as the best way to conserve fish stocks and preserve the resource for future generations. Put recreational anglers see no justification or equability in releasing their catches to comply with big limits while commercial fishermen are permitted to make unlimited catches (and profits).

Recreational fishermen are still willing to accept restrictions deemed necessary for conservation of the resource, but the time has come for fishery managers to consider the economics of fishing and decide where each species will have the most value to all the people of the state — as a commercial species or as a recreational species.

For those species determined to be of primary economic value as a recreational fish commercial harvest should be curtailed or prohibited.

Recreational anglers no longer should be asked to continue to pay for the past sins of users of exploitative harvesting gear.

Most local anglers feel that redfish should be immediately named a gamefish with no sale permitted and netting for trout should be prohibited.

'Porgy and Bess' from Met

The Metropolitan Opera broadcast premiere of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" will be broadcast live in stereo from the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, March 23, at 2 p.m. over WSFP-FM 90.1 Concert 90.

Roberta Alexander, in her Met broadcast debut, will sing Bess, and Simon Estes will be heard as Porgy, with Marvin Martin as Clara and Florence Quivar as Serena. Making their Met broadcast debuts will be Charles Williams as Sportin' Life, Greg Baker as Crown, and David Arnold as Jake. James Levine will conduct and Peter Allen is the announcer. During the first intermission, Robert Jacobson, editor-in-chief of Opera News and Ballet News, will talk with Francis Gershwin Godowsky, the sister of George Gershwin about Gershwin and "Porgy and Bess." "Texaco's Opera Quiz" returns for the second intermission with panelists Alfred Hubay, the Metropolitan Opera's box office manager; Robert Jacobsen; and David Reuben, press and public relations director for the Met.

The Metropolitan's production of "Porgy and Bess" celebrates the 50th anniversary of the work, which had its premiere in Boston on September 30, 1935. Gershwin was first attracted to the work after reading the novel "Porgy" by DuBose Heyward in 1926. Heyward provided the text for the opera, and he and Gershwin spent much of 1934 in Charleston, S.C., the setting for "Porgy and Bess," observing the local people and customs. It was at this time that Otto Kahn, chairman of the Metropolitan Opera's board of directors, approached Gershwin about presenting "Porgy and Bess" at the Metropolitan, but Kahn died nearly in 1934 before these arrangements could be completed.

"Porgy and Bess" received only mixed notices at its 1935 premiere, but extensive performances since then, including U.S. State Department sponsored tour from 1952 to 1953 to Europe, Asia, and South America, featuring Leontyne Price, William Warfield, and Cab Calloway, led to its great popularity today. It was during this tour that it became the first American opera to be performed at La Scala.

For many years "Porgy and Bess" was presented in compromised versions. Cuts were made, recitatives were replaced by spoken dialogue, or less than the full orchestra was used. The Met's production is being performed without cuts, with recitatives as composed by Gershwin,

Modern works by CSO

A fascinating program of 20th century works under the direction of guest conductor Leonard Slatkin will be featured on the Chicago Symphony broadcast concert scheduled for 9 p.m. Sunday, March 21 over WSPF FM Concert 90.

Bach's Organ Prelude and Fugue in D Major in an orchestral transcription by Ottorino Respighi will open the program which continues with another work new to the Chicago Symphony repertory, Reflex, a concerto for amplified double bass and solo wind ensemble piano and percussion, was completed in January 1972. According to the composer, the title suggests a flowing back and forth of the tide.

The concluding work on the program will be the Symphony No. 2 by Edward Elgar which the composer was fond of calling his "Spirit of Delight" symphony. Reflex, a concerto for amplified double bass and solo wind ensemble piano and percussion, was completed in January 1972. According to the composer, the title suggests a flowing back and forth of the tide.

Tosca live from Met

The Metropolitan Opera's new production of Tosca, directed by Franco Zeffirelli, will be simulcast live in stereo on Wednesday, March 27 at 8 p.m. over WSPF FM Concert 90 and WUSA-TV Channel 16. It will be subtitled in English.

The cast features Hildegard Behrens in the title role, Plácido Domingo as Mario Cavaradossi, Cornell MacNeil as Baron Scarpia, and Italo Tajo as the Sacristan Giuseppe Soprano, who made his Met debut at the premiere of this production on March 11. The conductor Peter Allen will be the innovator.

Piccini's inspiration for Tosca reportedly came from a performance by Sarah Bernhardt after seeing her in the title role of Victor in Sardou's La Tosca in 1889. Piccini wrote to his publisher Giulio Ricordi that La Tosca was an operatic subject that suited him exactly.

In the first intermission feature, Tosca Zeffirelli and Riccardo Zeffirelli visits the orchestra pit and offers fascinating insights into his conception of the work and its characters. The second intermission will feature Hildegard Behrens, Plácido Domingo, and Cornell MacNeil talking about Tosca and their characterizations.

'Micki and Maude':
fluff but fun

By Wendy McMullen

Despite the cliches and corn Micki and Maude is fun. But don't expect anything new or in sightful from this movie. The plot centers on the old familiar love triangle with a television newsman called Salinger played by Dudley Moore in love with both Micki a young cellist and Maude his successful lawyer wife.

Racked by guilt because he doesn't feel guilty about the affair Moore can't decide which woman he wants because he wants them both. But when Micki becomes pregnant he wants them both to divorce Maude and marry her. But so at the appointed rendezvous at which he had intended to break the bad news Maude announces that she too is pregnant.

The dilemma is deepened by Micki's father to whom the wedding plans have been announced being a championship wrestler with some very large friends and Maude going into hysterics and through false labor at every suspicion of infidelity.

So he does the only thing he can do — marries Micki without first divorcing Maude. And the two of them share the same gynecologist and just happen to be in adjoining rooms in the hospital and — well you could guess it all. But predictable though it is the movie is still funny. Dudley Moore is charming, gentle and witty as the errant perplexed bigamist in love with two women. Amy Irving is lovely, lively and warmly funny as Micki and Art Reinking aptly plays the cool career wife turned emotional mother to be.

Some of the freshest moments of Micki and Maude come not from the love triangle inter actions but from Moore's situations as newsmen for the trivial morning TV show America. Hey As satirical commentary the interview between Salinger and the naked vigilantes who insist on their constitutional rights as American citizens to both carry guns and go naked can hardly be bettered.

Produced by Tony Adams and directed by Peter Edwards this picture is a nice bit of Hollywood fluff. Not particularly memorable but a fun evening.

Micki and Maude will be shown at the Island Cinema from March 28-31.

NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK

A place for wildlife to live

This week, March 17-23 is National Wildlife Week. Each year the private, non-private National Wildlife Federation highlights a specific aspect of the environment. This year it is soil.

By Kristle J. Seamen

SOIL — We Can't Grow Without It is the theme of National Wildlife Week, March 17-23. Upon first look at our own Sanibel soils, we wonder where it is. Everywhere we look we see sand or muck that gets covered by tides. Just sand and muck? — it may be underestimated. Are there plants and animals thriving on Sanibel soil? Does rainwater get absorbed? The soil may not be the thick, moist dark brown substance of our mind's eye, but nonetheless many plants are specialized for growing in Sanibel's soil and provide a place for wildlife to live. The J.N. Ding Darling National Wildlife Refuge is where people can learn more about this substrate for life and the wildlife that honks if it fits it.

The refuge is named for political cartoonist Jay Norwood Ding Darling who portrayed the sufferings of wildlife resulting partly from the mismanagement of soils — cause of the Dust Bowl Era of the 1930s. Six of Ding's more famous cartoons are on display in the visitors' center of the Refuge. A poster of these cartoons Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In honor of National Wildlife Week, the J.N. Ding Darling National Wildlife Refuge will offer "The Duck Stamp Story," a 15-minute film on the development of the Duck Stamp Program. Come learn more about Jay Norwood Darling, the Dust Bowl Era, Duck Stamps and the beginning of the national wildlife refuge system. This film will be shown Monday through Friday at 3 p.m. in the Visitor Center, though off Monday at Captiva Island.

National wildlife refuges are set aside for the benefit of wildlife. Many times setting aside the land is a concern, but from people's souls.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has been working to restore the naturalness of the Everglades, which one generation turns over to the next generation, and more, due to a poor decision.

Legislative action established the National Wildlife Refuge System, National Parks and U.S. Forest Service, among others, to ensure that future generations will be able to enjoy these watered-to-green wetlands.

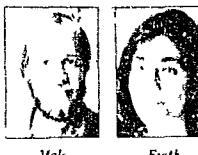

Fortunately, the leaders of the conservation movement during the 1980s took to task the refuges' institutions. Increasing the value of natural resources they would turn over to our generation.

All told, there are now 100 national parks and 54 refuges, as well as 194 federal forests, 145 fish and wildlife refuges, 45 national forests and 15 national grasslands.

Return of the osprey

Ospreys are back again. And it was to celebrate the return of these majestic birds and to give recognition to some of the people responsible for their come back that Michael Male and Judy Fieh made their film "Return of the Osprey," shown at Sanibel Community Center.

sociation building Sunday night. In the early 50s there were some 1,000 osprey nests between New York and Boston but the use of DDT in the fifties and sixties nearly wiped the population out," said filmmaker Michael Male, who was on Sanibel last week with partner Judy Fieh filming birds for their newest film.

The northeast was the hardest hit area of the country and by the end of the sixties there were only about 100 osprey nests left," he added. It was only after the Environmental Defense Fund got DDT banned that they began to increase again.

It was natural that Dr. Alan Poole who first encouraged Male and Fieh to document this remarkable recovery. He told us about the come back that ospreys were making and first suggested the idea of making a film about it. Male said. And the more we found out about it, the more interested we became.

The end result was a film which world

Learning to live with a gentle creature

By Christine M. Olsen

Grazing to gray black in color, nearly hairless with thick wrinkled skin, this 10 to 14 feet in length and average of 10 to 12 pounds, however, some which as much as 200 pounds. This describes the endangered manatee, manatee that numbers about 1,000 in Florida. More than 100 are still winter in the waters of southwest Florida.

This gentle and fascinating animal is yet has been listed as an endangered animal since 1967. It has been protected by Florida laws since 1907. While still in danger of extinction, manatees are now being taken to save the manatee.

Manatees are found in tropical and subtropical waters from the South Beast Coast United States through the Caribbean and down the eastern to Central and South America to live with the Amazon during the winter. The United States manatee population aggregates in warm Florida waters between 60°F to 70°F according to Tim O'Shea, biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Gainesville. The one state is the state where a large portion of the Florida Manatee is found.

Manatees are Endangered because they lack natural enemies. Their only defense is to swim away or to change the flow of the tail. Yet when faced with fast moving boats, barges, and oil tankers, these defenses are often of little help. If a manatee is found in the U.S., this gentle sea cow is hunted if it is a source of food. Threats to this manatee survival are mainly in human population help.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is the federal agency charged with the responsibility of taking endangered species from the brink of extinction to the point where they no longer need assistance for survival. Measures now being taken by this agency to save the manatee include:

• The manatee salvage program which provides a network for reporting and recovering dead or injured manatees. A manatee hotline operated by the Florida Department of Natural Resources and reporting can be made by calling 1-800-342-1921 according to Kipp Erlich, manatee researcher with the Department of Natural Resources.

Injured manatees are rescued and taken to Sea World or the Miami Seaquarium where they are given medical care and then released.

churches

GROUND BREAKING Sambel Congregational United Church of Christ will hold a groundbreaking ceremony Sunday, 3:30 p.m. prior to building the new church.

The congregation, founded by Dr. James Leibhart in 1977, has met in various locations over the years, including the Lighthouse Condo miniums, Sambel Community Center and The Dunes Clubhouse, where worship was often accompanied by the ringing of the cash register in an adjoining room. In the fall of 1981, Father James D. B. Hobbs and the parishioners of St. Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church invited the group to use their building. Since that time and under the leadership of the Rev. Richard Stein, the congregation has grown to 116 members.

In March 1984, the building fund drive was held. Architect George Tuttle of Captiva was hired to design the building, and contractor George Parker was hired as builder.

The structure of old Florida design includes a sanctuary seating 250 people, a fellowship hall with space for 180 people to sit at tables, a full kitchen and an office/library wing. It will be located 350 feet from Petunia Way in a grove of native vegetation.

Window walls along two sides of the sanctuary will allow the building to be open during a large part of the year. Wide screened verandas and ceiling fans will circulate cool air through the open clerestory windows at the eaves, making it energy efficient and allowing worshippers to be a part of the Sambel native environment. Completion date for the building is expected to be December 1985.

The Rev. Richard Stein and members of Sambel Congregational United Church of Christ extend an invitation to the public to join them as they dedicate the site.

WOLF BRAIN EDUCATION Dr. Gabe Campbell, senior minister of the First Congregational Church, Akron, Ohio, will present a workshop entitled "The New Mystery—Whole Brain Education for People of All Ages," Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the parish hall of St. Michael of All Angels Episcopal Church.

sponsored by the Sambel Congregational United Church of Christ.

The workshop will stress the implications of mind-brain structure in cognitive learning and the importance of understanding the individual differences in left-right brain relationships in marriage, parenting and business, the need for art, music and physical education in learning, math, reading and writing, the reasons some persons work well with people while others do better with paper, and will describe the intuitive dimensions of consciousness including gifts through meditation and prayer.

While in this area Dr. Campbell will speak in LCC churches in Port Charlotte, Naples and Fort Myers. He will also be guest speaker at the 11:15 a.m. worship service of the Sambel Congregational United Church of Christ, Sunday, March 23.

Dr. Campbell received a Ph.D. from New York University in 1980. Master of Divinity from Vanderbilt University in 1962. B.A. from the Ohio State University in 1954. He served churches in Stamford and Greenwich, Connecticut, Columbus, Ohio, and Miami, Fla.

One of the founders of the Mead School of Human Development in Greenwich, an elementary school using modern learning techniques for hemispheric awareness, he has drawn national attention.

The public is invited to attend the March 23 workshop. A donation of $3 is requested. Tickets are available from members of the Sambel Congregational Church or at the citizen of it. This implies respect for fellow members and also respect for the natural environment.

One hundred years ago the Plains section of the United States was being purchased from Indians and opened to homesteaders. Native Americans had little concept of land ownership. They believed land was not a commodity to be bought and sold, but a gift to all living things. One young chief tried to describe their land to the Great White Father:

Our land is more valuable than your money. It will last forever. It will not ever perish by the flames of fire. As long as the sun shines and the waters flow the land will here give life to men and animals. We cannot sell the life of men or animals, therefore, we cannot sell this land. We cannot sell it because it does not belong to us.

But the land was sold. Farming began in earnest without regard to the natural community. Nutrients were taken without being replaced. Moisture holding native vegetation was stripped, soil was tilled and open to the erosional forces of wind and rain.

Poor farming practices dried up wetlands and windblown tops of tall cedars up to the Great Thirties. Cedars failed, wealth took flight and dust and winds blew all the way to the Atlantic Ocean. With these losses, the cost went to the wildlife, particularly waterfowl.

Problems were well known by President Franklin Roosevelt to devise a restoration project for the vanishing wildlife effected by the Dust Bowl. Eric Farn Peck of Collier's magazine, "A Long-Handed Duck" and Newbold Darling, famous political cartoonist, formed the Beck Committee to evaluate existing wildlife programs and make their recommendations.

One of their findings was that the Office of Biological Survey, forerunner to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that administers the national refuge system, was in need of effective leadership. Darling accepted this leadership challenge.

The Ding Darling Refuge is just one of 421 refuges across the country. Come see what a refuge is all about and then ask yourself who are the Ding Darlings of today?

renowned bird expert Roger Tory Peterson has described 58 species and the best bird survey photography ever seen.

But filming ospreys was not an easy task. It took several years to make it and which could well have defeated less determined wildlife filmmakers.

Fieh and Male filmed the ospreys over three summers from atop a 40 foot tower which Fieh built each spring. "It was a bit rocky," said Fieh. "I don't think it could have withstood winter winds."

Atop the forty foot tower, the couple devised a blind—a shelter from which they could film without being seen by the birds. And they sometimes spent days or even months shelter waiting for a particular shot.

"You couldn't predict what the birds would do," commented Fieh, "so we just stay there until we got the shot we wanted."

But the worst part for them was getting the funds to make the film in the first place. Raising money was the most difficult and frustrating part. We spent days writing letters to corporate Take high Definition stereoscopic motion pictures. It is the first time these are performed.

A team of Kipp during the experiment which took place as long as eight hours the last of this examined the external internal injuries to salmon bones and did a series of dissections to determine further causes for more detailed clues.

In 1973 80 manatees perished in 1974 131 manatees died and in 1975 more than 100 of these died due to the cold weather experienced that winter. Nearly half of all manatee deaths are human related.

Counting, or taking a census informs those working with the manatees how many in total there are, where they are, and will hopefully one day tell theologists that manatees are not of the extinction danger zone.

A team of a dozen of the best biologists in the field are involved in determining manatee reproductive rates and determining manatee water factors to determine the life history of manatees.

Trapping a technique that has been developed for the past few years is a method which researchers can be followed using telemetry equipment.

One pressing question remains. Why are the manatees? A number of possible reasons exist. They are highly fascinating and can be economically beneficial in areas where people go to view them. Manatees are one of the few marine species that can help control aquatic plant growth in coastal rivers.

Island girl 1st
Carrie Weaver
tours for a chance balance beam

GYMNASICS CHAMP

11 year old Carrie Weaver earns a chance to compete in a state tournament

By Karen Forester

She charges the springboard with light on speed and performs her vault with one thing in mind: stick it.

Some day I might want to make it to the Olympics, says island gymnast Carrie Weaver who will be competing in state championships this weekend in Tampa.

The 11 year old earned her spot in state competition after placing first overall in the Class II sectional tournament in Miami on March 9 where she captured first places in both uneven parallel bars and floor exercise, second place in the vault, and fourth on the balance beam.

Her consistent scoring won her top honors overall in the intermediate level of the nine state group.

A sixth grade student at Canterbury or Fort Myers, Weaver practices at Gymnastics World in Fort Myers where foam and spring floors cushion the bumps and bruises encountered by a serious gymnast.

Her four foot seven and one half inch 115 pound body is covered with chalk dust as she grips the parallel bars swinging into a giant circle followed by a handstand then a full pre-curtain drop to the lower bar.

You can really do anything it just depends, says Weaver who will soon be in college, double fulls and double backflips on the bars. She started in gymnastics at the age of five when Romanian gymnast Nadia Comaneci was winning the hearts of the world in Olympic competition.

I was watching Nadia on television and I told my mother I wanted to do it, says Carrie and she has been tumbling, twisting and flip flopping ever since.

A native of Columbus, Ohio, Carrie's family moved to Sanibel when she was four years old and since the age of six she's been tumbling at Gymnastics World where her coach Matt Contino has noticed her talent in improvements in Carrie's technique and adds.

She's a very hard worker and has a real good attitude, says Contino and adds. The higher level a gymnast achieves, the more you'll find they're a so very good schoolgirls.

Contino is proof of Contino's statement. She maintains a straight A average despite her hectic gymnastics schedule involving three hours of practice daily from Monday through Saturday each week.

I learned how to get the job done, says Carrie who also enjoys her physics and tennis classes although she's quick to add.

Gymnastics is better.

State championships are the highest level of competition. Carrie can enter and she had to be successful in two qualifying meets to earn her spot on the floor this weekend in Tampa.

A successful performance there will bring the dedicated young gymnast even closer to her dream of someday being an Olympic star.

After landing a shot ten feet from the cup, Audrey Derleth concentrates and drives past.

Derleth won the title versus Milie Ford. She survived a sudden death play off but says she nearly went into shock when she realized she was in contention.

I had no idea I was even in contention, said Derleth who contends she really wasn't playing that well. I looked at the scoreboard and was very surprised to find I was in the playoff, continued Derleth who won the club championship in the second hole of sudden death.

A previous champion at Blue Hills Club, New Jersey, Derleth contends she is still very new to the game although her birthplace in Scotland is near St. Andrews, the home of golf.

Other results on the 18 hole course were: first and flight: 1. Dorni Yagge, 174, 2. Art Sutherland, 183, third flight: 1. C. V. 193, 2. Ann Bumer, 203, fourth flight: 1. C. V. 193, 2. Ann Bumer, 203, fifth flight: 1. D. Yagge, 174, 6. D. Yagge, 174, 7. 211, 8. 185, 9. H. H. Baskin, 191, 10. 177.

sanibel sightings

Rare rail and black-necked stilt seen in Bailey Tract

By George Weymouth

Allen Riske tipped the nose of the rental Piper up and his friend Barbara and I were airborne from Pine Field. I was about 3:30 p.m. Thursday, March 11 and they had invited me to help them look for rarities.

We flew over Cape Corn and were awed at the immensity of this huge development and then on to Pine Island Sound and its barrier islands including Sanibel and Captiva.

Though we failed to spot any rarities we did see schools of bottlenose dolphins and, for this area, very clear water around Boca Grande Pass. Since my article mostly covers bird sightings etc. of this area, the plane trip did confirm one hunch I had for a while: the white pelicans have departed this area. Earlier that morning I conducted a tour through the J.N. Ding Darling Refugee's Memorial Day. Just after a song over the traffic count we looked back towards the eastern end of the floodplain over the terms court near the public school. On a flight through my Bushnell Spotting Scope we sighted the western kingbirds and a sora, a rare species that have been sighted near that area now for about three weeks. So they were still there.

The next day the 13th Barbara, Joe and I saw just down river for east of the lower along the Sanibel/Captiva Conservation Foundation nature trails the glossy ibis has been here for about three weeks usually being seen also in the Bailey Tract.

That same morning I thought I saw an eastern kingbird near the refuge headquarters but failed to confirm it. However the next morning KC Emerson did see an eastern kingbird. He also saw a Cooper's hawk past the tower along the Inlet. On Saturday he sighted in the Bailey Tract a black rail, an extremely small rail, and a very rare black rail, a very small rail. He also saw a red-necked phalarope. Normally they return to Sanibel as summer residents to just about St. Patrick's Day (which was Saturday). This year (from a number of sources) they were seen about one week earlier.

This last weekend I had the pleasure of meeting down Pine River near Aransas with a group of young people and their parents. We ran about six miles and would check out the herds where there were gravel bars, for to sit. We all found some and I had the added pleasure of pointing out a number of swallow-tailed kites courting above us. If I were reincarnated into a bird I'd either pick a frigate or this species of kite because they're the total masters of the air.

When the Everglades seemed like the Neverglades

By Fran Nuelle

It was hardly the top of the lifetime list the other one.

Nor was it of 32 days duration with some question of making it.

Neither of the sailors got bruised from being knocked about in their ketch on the ocean. They did not have to worry about keeping the sharks at bay.

And there certainly wasn't any problem of spotting dry land.

No dry land was everywhere. Too much of it. Such was the latest trip for outdoorsman nature lover sailor Cal Gardener, who sailed to England with Sanibel policeman Tom Applegate two years ago, but slugged by canoe for three days last week in the Everglades with retired dentist Bill Trimarco. It was his first trip since the historic trans-Atlantic journey by 36-foot ketch Kabiby.

Without any champagne send-off but with 10 compassing six peaks, Gardener and Trimarco set out from Sanibel in a Volkswagen camper with a 17-foot canoe on top for Flamingo in the Everglades some 150 miles away. They went east on the Tamiami Trail to Homestead then took U.S. 27 south and then west to Flamingo which is headquarters for the Everglades National Park.

This time Gardener was well prepared with enough mosquito repellent for the whole Everglades. But there weren't any mosquitoes he says laconically.

The reason was that it was so dry. It looked like Death Valley with big banks of mud curled up the way they do when they're parched.

You have to walk a couple of hundred yards to get to the water from the usual shore line, he said.

Two years ago he and Applegate sailed 200 miles a day but the three day trip last week

Gardener and Trimarco pushed and pulled paddled and poled to make ten.

While the Atlantic can be fathomless the lakes in the Everglades were sometimes only three inches in depth. That meant a lot of ribbing on the bottom.

In three days the two went about 20 miles — ten to get there and ten to get back. After canoeing all day they camped the second night at a primitive camp site an area cleared of mangrove 20 feet square. Here they pitched their tent and tossed a rope over a tree to act as pulley for pulling their provisions to a top most limb.

A child had been bitten by a raccoon the day before so we were taking no chances, Gardener said. If they can't find any food they won't bother you though.

The concentration of wildlife around their canoe while in the water was much greater than normal because animals and birds seek what ever water remains.

environment

We saw thousands of different birds but the most striking sights were as many as 50 roseate spoonbills in one tree and anhingas with their young all over the place," Gardiner said. He and Trinuccio journeyed in a region of the Everglades where few normally go and they did not see a soul the whole three days. Despite that they had plenty of company.

Alligators

There were hundreds or more each day, Gardiner said. You get within a few yards of them or they're lying out there on the surface. You see many more than you do normally.

The alligators looked sort of bulbous, he said. Everything else was mating down there — anhingas and storks and all that stuff — I imagine they were too.

While Cal went for the adventure, Bill wanted to fish and he caught trout, lady fish and redfish.
