Board stays; Kubisz out

Former CROW executive director vows to keep fighting

By Matthew Miller
Staff Writer

The verdict is in and Kubisz is out.

Out of 1,379 CROW members, 303 voted to oust the board of directors at CROW's special meeting held Wednesday.

In order for the board to be ousted, a majority vote of the total membership was necessary. The votes accounted for a mere 22 percent of the 50 percent plus one required votes to throw out the board.

The special meeting was called by former executive director Dr. John Kubisz' attorney, Peter E. Kelly after Kubisz and his wife Deb were dismissed in September, 1994. The votes came after an hour-long session in which both sides battled over the governing rules of the meeting. Early sparks flew between Kelly and Dr. Phyllis Douglass, president of the board, over the proper method for tallying the votes and the actual operative meaning of majority vote.

Kelly contested that the majority vote was not the majority of the general membership but the majority of the membership that voted on the subject at hand either by proxy or ballot during the special meeting.

Steve Carta, CROW attorney, maintained the meaning of majority vote was that of the entire membership, not just the majority of those members that voted on this resolution amendment.

Kelly questioned the rules governing the meeting and asked why no amendments would be heard by the board during the special meeting.

"If Mr. Kelly were being honest he would tell you that we allow public discussion," Carta explained.

"What about amendments?" Kelly persisted.

"Under the bylaws no amendments are allowed. You submitted to the membership the call for the special meeting two resolutions that were sent out to call this meeting, no other business is allowed. In my mind, my interpretation you interpret the amendments because how in the world are the people who voted or the proxies going to be able to vote on the amendment," Carta pointedly asked Kelly.

"Our proxy holders have the discretion to vote on it that's why," Kelly returned.

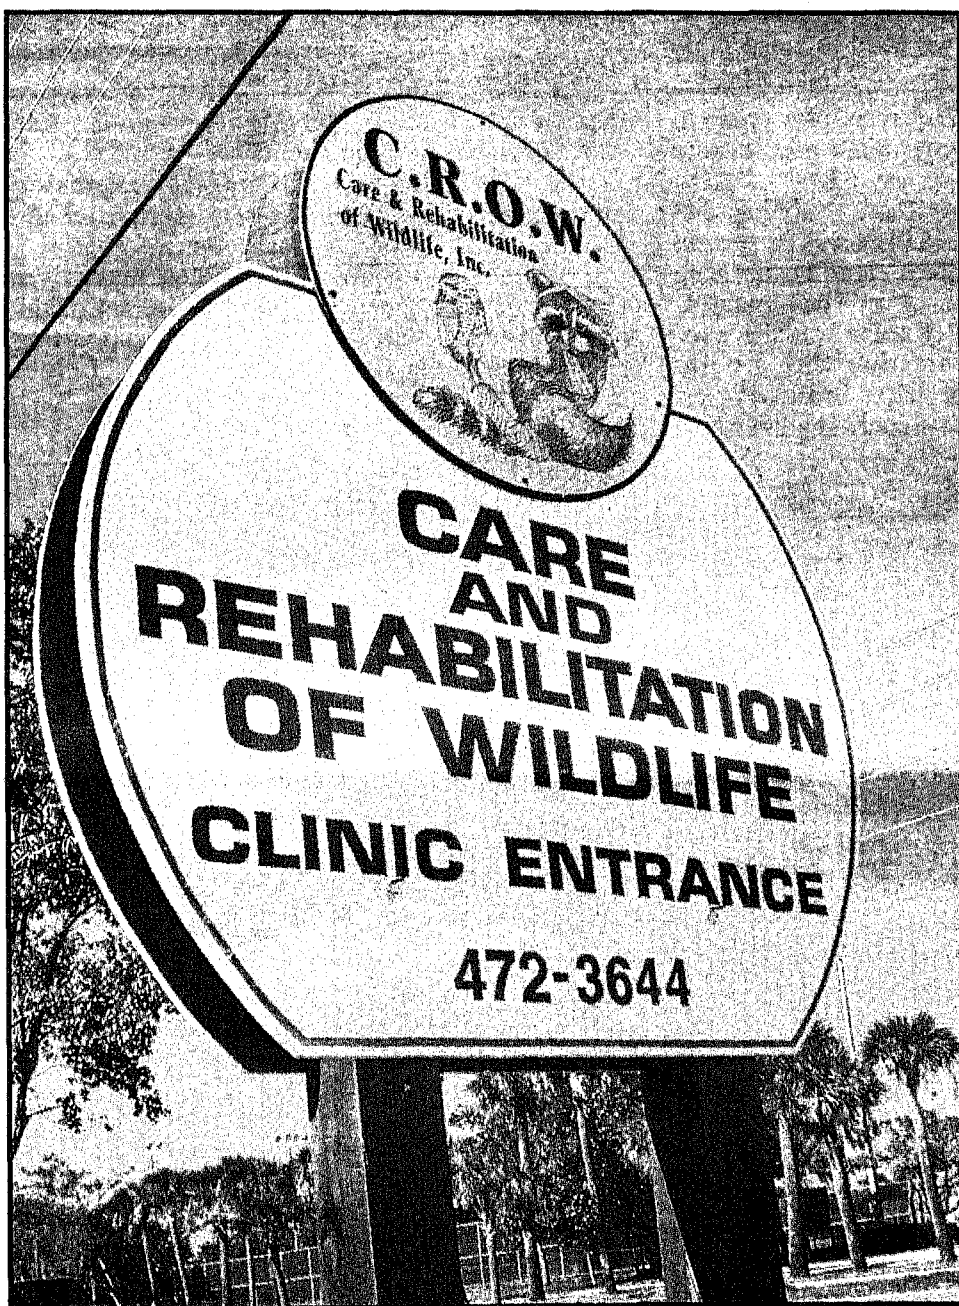

"In my opinion no amendments are allowed," Carta said.

Douglass took the microphone and informed the crowd that three people from each side would be allowed two minutes each to express their views.

Several members contested the procedures by which the meeting progressed.

"I'd just like to know what rules we are following, I've attended many meetings and held meetings and I've never heard of a meeting where the rules of the meeting weren't estab-

Council discusses beach management

By Mark S. Krzos
Staff Writer

Phase three of the Beach Management Plan met with approval of many islanders as the Sanibel City Council outlined the direction the city is taking in implementing the plan Tuesday.

"Phase three begins with an overview of the importance of beaches from an environmental and economic standpoint. The goals set are to restore the upper beach zone or dune system on an island-wide basis to better protect upland properties, stabilize sands and enhance disrupted habitat," Natural Resource Director Rob Loflin said as he launched into the basic outline of the plan.

"The overall philosophy of managing our beaches is not only for the residents and tourists of Sanibel but for our wildlife as well," Loflin said. "This includes a non-intervention policy by the city and encourages a retreat from eroding beaches by letting nature take its course."

Although some members of the standing room only crowd did not like the plan, overall it was met with strong approval.

"This is an excellent format for defining Sanibel's policy towards beach management," Planning Commissioner Louise Johnson said.

Resident Peter Pappas said he has never seen a better plan more suited for a certain area and the people who put this plan together should be commended.

Geologist Chet Smith disagreed with the way the plan was being handled by the city government.

"The people of Gulf Shores and Gulf Pines are being misled," Smith said. "Erosion is not cyclical, it's episodic at best. These people are being led to believe that the beach will come back in a couple years, but those couple years could be 10 years and that is simply not cyclical."

Smith offered an explanation as to why the plan is not the best.

"In order to have a valid beach management plan you have to know about the geological history of the island," Smith said. "Sand dunes have never been part of Sanibel's geological history. Dunes are made exclusively from wind blown sand. Something must be done to prevent further erosion because it will continue. All we

Drowned fisherman found near lighthouse

By Matthew Miller

More than four days after William Rios, 45, was reported missing in San Carlos Bay Tuesday night Jan. 31, the United States Coast Guard found his body Sunday morning.

The news comes to his family of eight and Juan Rios, William's brother and fishing partner on that fateful night, as a tragic ending to a typical night of fishing.

William Rios often fished in the waters that ultimately claimed his life. His family members pleaded with him on occasion not to take his small jon boat fishing, according to Juan, particularly since he was not a good swimmer. Rios ignored the warnings, Juan said.

William and Juan Rios were fishing the night of Jan. 31 when their engine stalled and left them to paddle. Soon the 10 foot jon boat began to sink.

Church gets six events permits after city shuts down fund-raiser

By Mark S. Krzos
Staff Writer

About 40 members of the Sanibel Community Church flocked to the Sanibel City Council to request an additional 20 special events that would fund youth missionary excursions to Russia and Jamaica.

According to the Land Development Code, only six special events are permitted at a given site per year, but the Community Church feels in order to raise enough money to support its charitable causes 20 events are needed.

According to Community Church representative Gary Sowers, on Dec. 10 the Community Church staged a car wash for youth mission trips and was operating in the normal fashion until a code enforcement officer came and shut them down for having a car wash without a permit. Sowers said they were informed they had to obtain permits for special events such as car washes and other fund-raising activities.

According to Council members, the car wash was shut down because the group had too many handmade hand-held signs and the ordinance prohibits more than one temporary sign advertising special events.

In the past, Council has granted additional special events in only three other locations; the Sanibel

Community Center, the Dunes Country Club and the Sundial.

According to City Manager Gary Price, with the exception of the Sanibel Community Center's events, the additional events granted at the Dunes and the Sundial do not involve signage or uncharacteristic uses of the property. The church's request is for events of a commercial nature. An approval of this request can set an unwanted precedent and therefore suggest that council hold firmly to the current restriction of six additional special events.

Council member Mark Westall said he was willing to grant the 20 extra permits but added that other groups would come in asking for the same.

"If a group of women want to wash cars on Periwinkle in bikinis, we'd have to grant them that right," Westall said. "We would be setting an unwanted precedent."

Concerned members of the public spoke in favor of the request for the additional special events.

"I have a 17 year-old daughter and I'm asking that overlook this permitting code and let these kids help others," said Billy Kirkland of Billy's Beach Service.

"Although we might not have 20 special events we want that leeway in case we need to raise more money for our youth missionaries," Barbara Nave said.

Steve Greenstein told the students and representatives of the Community Church that this issue is not about God, church or helping others, it's about the law.

"Kids, a legislative body is one of the last places you want to look for God," Greenstein said.

Under the Land Development Code, one special event can last up to 21 days, so theoretically one event can give you three straight weekends, Greenstein said.

"In law school they teach you about these sort of loopholes," Greenstein said as the room roared with belly laughs.

Council members wouldn't budge though and offered the Community Church a take-it-or-leave-it offer of an additional six events where one event can last an entire weekend or an entire week such as Easter break.

Council members voted unanimously to approve the Community Church's six events and also approved a request for an additional six events for the Dunes Golf and Tennis Club.

lished," one member yelled from the back.

"This is a special meeting of the board and there has never been a special meeting of the board and we are proceeding," Douglass retorted.

Kelly was the first person to the microphone.

"As for the determination of the vote I believe this is absolutely contrary to customary and proper procedure and never agreed to," Kelly said. "The language of the amendment as I modified it says a majority of all votes to the membership and a vote is a vote."

Susan Landle emerged from her seat and addressed the crowd.

"Let's look at it this way we asked for a vote, the voters voted, I doubt that any vote of any organization will ever get 51 percent for them or the other side, why don't we count the votes we have, how many they have, how many we have and that will be it," Landle said.

Carta explained he conferred with Timothy Murty and other lawyers all of whom agreed that a "pure vote," a vote of all members of a corporation, is completely normal.

More debate ensued over majority vote until ballots were handed out for both resolutions.

Proxy votes along with votes from the meeting were counted and results returned later in the day.

For amendment of resolution one, which would allow the general membership to vote out an executive director, 32 ballot votes and 304 proxy votes were for the amended resolution and 52 ballot votes and 19 proxy votes were against the resolution.

These votes perhaps bring an end to the controversial dismissal of executive director Kubisz when the CROW board of directors voted 11 to 1 not to renew Kubisz' contract which expired on Sept. 28, 1994.

But the battle is not over, Kubisz said after the special meeting of which he was excluded.

"When we first started we had 550 for removal, 50 to keep the board, 50 to abstain," he said. "It will be left up to a judge to make a decision."

Kubisz reiterated his lawyer's sentiments from earlier in the day that it is nearly impossible to get 51 percent of a group to vote much less to vote one way.

"There is nothing that said there was 51 percent of the entire membership necessary," he explained.

affair has gotten.

"There is not a single person that I have worked with in the past two years that worked with me that is not on our side," he said. "There were seven people responsible for the success of CROW, three have retired, three have resigned and one remains."

Douglass expressed her sentiment after the final count.

"I feel we have over 1,000 people, 3/4 of the membership supporting us, therefore I feel great."

Over 100 people gathered at the CROW grounds to determine the fate of the board of directors and Dr. John Kubisz.

need is one storm for the erosion and salt water to cut through the storm ridge and drain the freshwater from the wetlands."

Under the plan for critically eroding beach zones the city will provide no direct financial assistance, but may help affected property owners who approach the city with a specific proposal and a mechanism for funding by: providing professional engineering and environmental review of erosion problems and potential solutions by staff, assisting in permit application and preparation and coordination with regulatory agencies for projects acceptable from an environmental standpoint, aiding in the establishment of special taxing districts and special assessments where approved by at least 85 percent of included property owners, help with application to any local, state or federal grant programs available for structure re-location or removal, or for renourishment where beach involved has good public access and the relaxation of regulations such as setback requirements, vegetation protection, coverage and clearance.

Phase two of the Beach Management Plan will be discussed at the next City Council meeting Feb. 21.

Juan said he remembered his brother yell that the boat was sinking. The brothers were quickly submerged and forever went their separate ways. Juan spotted the shore and barely made it sinking four or five times. William was not so fortunate.

His body was found southeast of the Sanibel Lighthouse in San Carlos Bay nearly five days and several hours of searches after he was reported missing.

The searches were scaled back last Thursday morning, giving up Rios for dead.

An autopsy conducted by the Lee County Medical Examiner's Office indicated William Rios drowned.

Rios worked at Yoder Brothers in Fort Myers since 1986 to support his wife and eight children. His brother Juan moved from New Jersey a month ago to live with him.

Investigators of the Florida Marine Patrol are continuing investigation as to the cause of the accident.

TDC OKs $15,000 beach kiosks on island beaches

By Patty Jacobs-Bernardo
Staff Writer

Jim Lavender from the Department of Construction Services of Lee County showed the members of the Lee County Tourism Development Council a mock-up of a proposed beach kiosk with information about the beach environment on Sanibel.

At the Feb. 3 morning meeting in Fort Myers, Lavender explained the reason for the kiosks.

"There are so many rules and regulations about the beaches and other visitor areas that are environmentally sensitive," Lavender said. "Rather than have the visitor be bombarded with pamphlets, brochures and posted warning signs, the kiosks would provide the information, but also tell the reasons for the regulations."

"Most first-time visitors to the beach don't know about loggerhead turtle nesting areas" Lavender went on. "The kiosk will tell the story about the turtles and the regulations regarding the nesting and hatching areas. This will be done through big four and six foot storyboards, with illustrations."

Lavender showed a mini-version of the kiosk drawings to the TDC members. The panels will be in a three pronged panel configuration with each prong double sided, resulting in six boards for each kiosk. The kiosks will have roofs and the panels will have plastic coverings, which will enable the panels to be changed when needed.

Lavender said six locations have been potentially targeted: two on Sanibel, one at Bowditch Park on Fort Myers Beach, one at Lynn Hall Park on Fort Myers Beach, one at Carl Johnson State Park and one at Bonita Beach Park. Costs will run about $12,000 to $15,000 for each kiosk, Lavender said and the department hopes to have the kiosks built and installed by the end of the summer.

"Right now we are waiting for permits from Tallahassee," Lavender said. "We have to go through the same permitting process as if we were building a building because we are considered to be building on the coastline."

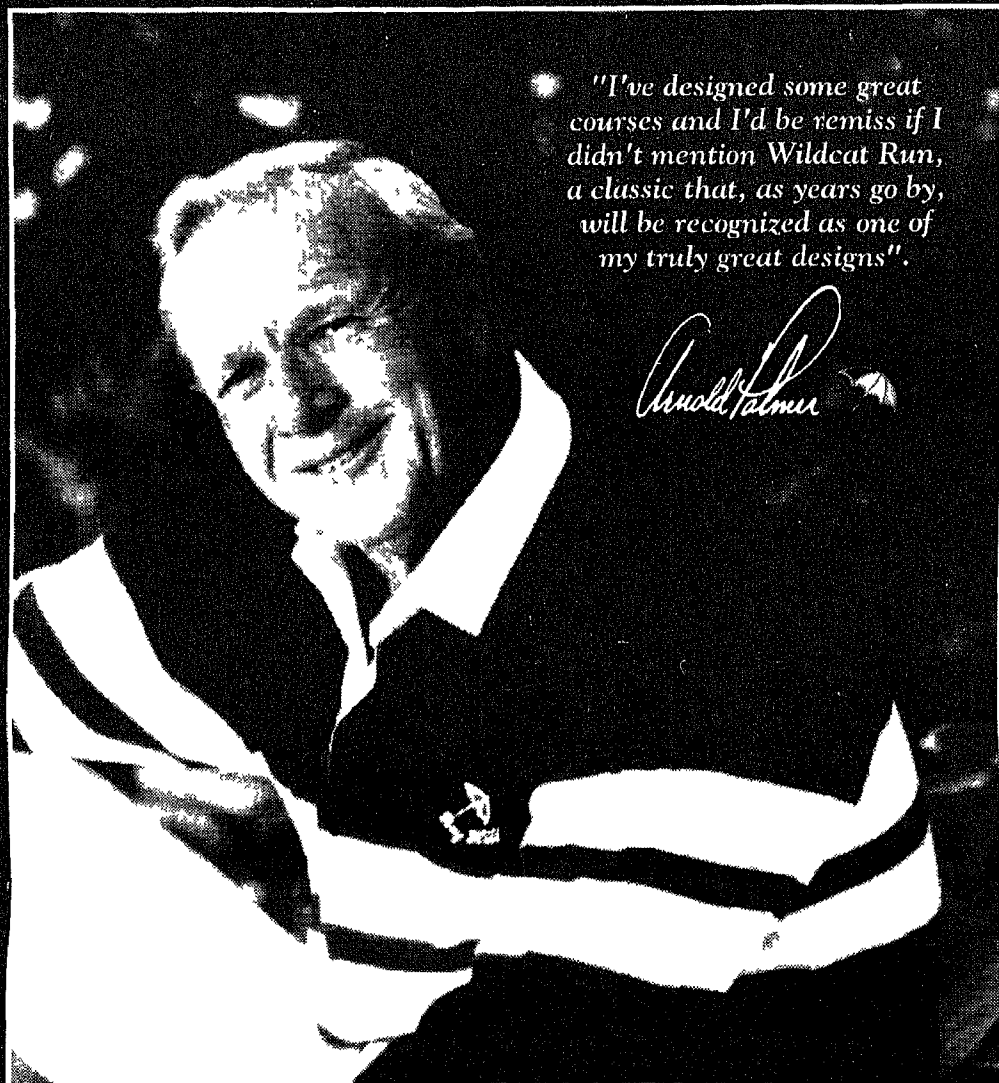

The TDC voted in favor of the concept, but no vote was taken on the $90,000 to $100,000 needed to build the kiosks.

Notes from the city desk: CHR, IWA, on Council's agenda

By Mark S. Krzos
Staff Writer

• The City of Sanibel hired the law firm of Humphrey & Knott to represent the city in an arbitration case with Stinson-Head over the building of the city hall roof. Stinson-Head claims the statute of limitations has run. The city believes that it hasn't. City Attorney Bob Pritt said he doesn't feel fully competent in the area of construction law and therefore suggested the city hire Humphrey & Knott. Council members agreed by voting unanimously in favor of hiring the law firm.

• Representatives of Community Housing and Resources (CHR) met with the Sanibel City Council Tuesday to discuss the annual review of the Below Market Rate Housing Program point system and rent ranges. According to administrative assistant for CHR Cyndie Hoggatt, there are two types of criteria for Sanibel's BMRH applicants: those reflecting financial and housing need and those identifying length of employment on Sanibel. Council approved the annual review by a unanimous vote.

• The Island Water Association gained approval for the Cooperative Water Agreement by the City Council in an effort to reduce the cost, bureaucracy and control that is usually common in government controlled bodies such as the Lee County Regional Water Supply. The agreement provides the parties (IWA and other water supply authorities) to share information and develop a comprehensive plan.

"This is the barest bones of the plan and needs to be strengthened considerably," City Attorney Bob Pritt commented.

Sanibel Mayor Wally Kain commended the IWA for reaching out to its associates.

• A resolution determining the appeal of Donald and Alice Fehrenbach and Robert and Jean Bozich from a decision of the Planning Commission has been continued to a later date.

The Bozichs and the Fehrenbachs sought to remove an existing dock and install a new two-slip dock.

• Council member Daphne Miller was appointed to the Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council by Mayor Wally Kain

• Frida Burke and

Arthur Weissbach were both appointed to the Sanibel Vegetation Committee by Council members.

• Council members briefly discussed filling an alternate number two position for the Code Enforcement Board, but ultimately postponed the decision.

Goss to speak at CCA

U.S. Rep. Porter Goss will speak at an informal town hall meeting at the Captiva Civic Center Friday, Feb. 17.

Goss will be in town for the day and will answer questions about the latest events in Washington and how they affect Sanibel and Captiva.

The talk begins at 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served. Call 472-2111 for more information.

Board didn't win

To the editor:

Yesterday the board of CROW exercised its power to keep the organization under its perceived control. The truly sad thing is they think they won. They still didn't realize this is not about John Kubisz, but about the direction that the members want CROW to take. Why would anyone want to stay on a board that the members voted more than four to one to remove? Why?

On a personal note, my sister, Saralee Howell, worked for John for two years. She saw first hand the hard work and dreams that he had. Because she thought his contract not being renewed was unfair and contrary to CROW's best interest, she agreed to support his efforts. It was not easy, but taking a stand for what you think is right never is. I have always been proud of her and her achievements but I am especially proud of her today.

Fund-raiser a success

To the editor:

On Jan. 15 the Barrier Island Group for the Arts held a garden party as a part of a fund-raising effort for an addition to the present facility. In spite of the uncooperative weather, over 300 people came out to offer support. It was a most enjoyable afternoon. I'd like to publicly thank the following merchants for their support and generosity: Bailey's, Jerry's, South Seas Plantation, Sundial, Tarwinkles, Timbers, Hungry Heron, the Sanibel Flower Company, Periwinkle Florist, Sanibel-Captiva Flower Co.

Also, the many volunteers who made the event possible. To the community, your support is helping make the addition a reality.

A red flag to CROW

To the editor:

The Kubisz twins "riding around looking for someone to beat up!" reported in the Jan. 27 Island Reporter, should alert supporters of Dr. John Kubisz that he may not be the sainted, caring person they think.

Children who are violent have parents who are violent, statistics show.

I don't personally know any of the parties involved. But a red flag should have gone up for those CROW voting members who do.

Gail Carson,
Boston, Mass.

Who wins the erosion battle

To the editor:

Keeping in mind the vagaries of life and the independence of Mother Nature I feel compelled to relate to you a true tale of Old Captiva and Sanibel. This is a factual tale told to me by a man who has lived on Captiva for over 80 years.

Aprapos then, as it is now, in the mid '20s Mother Nature laid down dry sand from Turner's Beach to Bowman's Beach (Silver Key was then part of Sanibel).

The two folks who owned Turner's Beach and Bowman's Beach each claimed the accretion was their land. After months of bickering they finally had their day in court.

On that very day, Mother Nature stepped in and again separated the two islands. The judge dismissed the case but not before he made this statement. "The only one who won in this case are the two lawyers."

The difference today is that not only the lawyers win but the coastal engineer win also, and at what cost to all of us.

Compelled to comment

To the editor:

Again Jim Snyder is back and I guess I am compelled to comment. However, his recent offering is such a senseless diatribe that comment is almost pointless. He opens with a "We voted out a Cuomo." How did he become a part of the New York "We" from Illinois or even Florida? Obviously, he knows nothing about Cuomo except that he has a line of bull and is a Democrat. That is apparently enough for old Jim. Quality and accomplishment (or lack of same) means nothing to Jim. Does he care that he left New York State with a $5,000,000,000 deficit, which he concealed until after election? Or that he drove 300,000 jobs out of New York? Or brought Long Island the highest electric rates in the Nation, by sticking his nose into a purely local problem and bullying a settlement? Or that some of his fellow democrats have described him as a "bully" and "untrustworthy?"

Things like that do not matter to Jim, he is happy with his biases and his "facts" plucked from his fantasies. He cannot even get his so-called quotes right. His wise man quote was "History teaches nothing, just punishes those for not learning its lesson." Wise men do not talk that way. The actual quote was closer to this, "Those who will not learn from history are condemned to relive it." Not accurate, but much closer.

He also uses "deficit reduction" the way the former Democratic leadership did and the way Clinton does. It is a reduction from a proposed projected deficit, not a reduction of the actual present or past deficit. He tries to conceal the fact that Clinton's "deficit reduction" was leading to another increase in one trillion dollars in the National Debt. That is the important fact.

A few other things Jim overlooks or obfuscates: The Democrats had control of both the Senate and the House throughout most of the years of the Republican presidents; objective economists all agree that the turnaround in the economy occurred in early 1991, not after the last election; that more work is required today in order to maintain the same standard of living, as opposed to the '50s, '60s and even the '70s; etc.

His blasting of his allies, the talk-show hosts and the media, is only more evidence of his emotional break-down brought on by his disappointment that the public discovered what a fraud the Clintons are and reacted accordingly. Turning on his allies is something like the mad dog turning on its loving master. He does not seem to recognize that, overwhelmingly, they were/are on his own side. Could this be called incesticide?

Oh, well, we will always have Jim Snyders in all of the factions of our Republic-Democrats, Republicans, Perotists, Pro-Choicers, Pro-lifers, Environmentalists, etc. The wonder of the country is that we survive them all and only occasionally elect one of them to high office.

H.J. Campbell Jr.,

Dependency

Attitudes, behavior, feelings create belief system

Janice J. Caron is a certified addiction professional with a master's in counseling. Readers with confidential questions about addiction can call Caron at 395-2184. Her column appears monthly in the Island Reporter.

By Janice Caron

Our attitude, behaviors and feelings intertwine to create a belief system. This system helps us to construct a framework in which we can predict and survive our environments. As human beings, we are most uncomfortable in dissonance and seek to put our lives in order. Our students often lead insane lives that to outside observers seem an incoherent mess. If you talk with these students and their families, however, you will be astonished at the convoluted logic they have been able to construct. They must or they will crumble from the sheer weight of their problems. They construct a belief and denial system that helps them survive. Unfortunately, as new information presents itself they must constantly readjust. This readjustment keeps them from moving forward since all their energies are expended on merely surviving the turmoil and insulating themselves from their pain. They remain stuck with a system of beliefs, attitudes and behaviors that do not work anymore. As counselors, teachers and professionals, we must constantly observe our students and listen to what they say, but hear what they do not say. We can, as trained professionals, make some good assumptions about their belief system. This in turn should give us information that we can use to facilitate the student's reconstruction of his/her system. Their new systems must not only make sense in respect to reality, be constructive rather than destructive, but must also be flexible enough to allow to be integrated as our students grow.

Enabling: Unwittingly allowing behavior progress to a more serious maladaptation by preventing a student from experiencing consequences or his/her behavior by 1) Protection, hoping to help, 2) blaming—giving up, getting angry, sarcastic so student focuses on teacher behavior.

Intervention: Process by which a negative pattern is interrupted in a manner intended to bring about change.

Enabling:

1. See the problem as a pattern, but feel it will be outgrown.
2. Believe that the student has insight or understanding the nature of behavior.
3. Think student has control of his behavior and that by will power/reason alone he/she will change.

4. Believe student can be fixed quickly.

5. Feel responsible for the student's behavior—blame self, feel inadequate.

6. Feel anger, hostile and frustrated and dump on student for his/her inability to behave.

7. Derive good feelings from own reaction to student's behavior (superiority, one-down, one-up).

8. Moralize, judge and blame the student for one's own feelings and circumstances.

9. Deny student has a problem. Minimize, adopt a "what's the use" attitude.

10. Take responsibility for student's behavior or blame others, justify his/her behavior.

11. Protect students from his/her consequences—your need to be a nice person.

12. Continue to accept the student's excuses/promises.

Intervention:

1. See the problem as the student's way of adjusting to the world. At one time it made sense. How or what is your understanding of this rule (ask student).

2. Realize that although student's behavior may cause pain, it's also a protection or defense against pain.

3. Recognize the student's needs concern and specific guidance to address pain.

4. Change takes time. It's usually not what you think it is.

5. Feel responsible for your feelings and behavior.

6. Acknowledge feelings, but express them in a way designed not to provoke defensiveness.

7. Derive good feelings from dealings with self.

8. Maintain a tone of care and concern. Focus on one's own feeling without blame.

9. Willing to act in a specific way to assist

10. Expect student to act in a responsible manner.

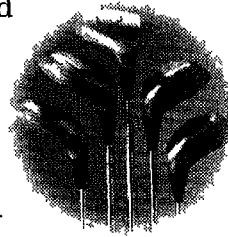

11. By protecting student, it prolongs the inappropriate behavior.

12. Every time you take away a harmful consequence, you are depriving him/her of an opportunity to see the problem

Police explorers learn to take a bite out of crime

Mark S. Krzos

READY FOR ACTION—Police explorers spend their Saturdays at the Sanibel Police Department.

By Mark S. Krzos
Staff Writer

High school students are working closely with the Sanibel Police Department in a program called police explorers, in which the students spend each Saturday learning the ins and outs of standard police work.

"The police explorers program is affiliated with the Boy Scouts of America and it gives high school students the chance to see first hand exactly what we do from day to day," Officer Kurt Schulte said.

The students spend each Saturday learning various tasks that each officer must know while on duty.

Jennifer Valiquette, one of the police explorers said they learn about such things as fingerprinting, crowd maintenance, special events, crime scene investigation and firearms training.

"The training that the explorers do is basically the same as what they teach at the police academy," Schulte said.

After spending some time as explorers, the students already have a good idea as to what they like and don't like about police work.

"The paper work has got to be the only drawback," explained explorer Rick Mendes. "The best is the two week explorer academy training at the Southwest International Airport where explorers come from across the state to train and learn more about police work."

Chris Hunter, the newest explorer, said he doesn't like getting up on weekends, but enjoys the insight he's gained since becoming an explorer.

"I don't think I'll become a police officer," Hunter said. "I would like to get a scholarship to somewhere in the Midwest where I can major in chemistry."

Justin and Jennifer Valiquette both said they plan on pursuing a career in law enforcement and with any luck will someday be an addition to the canine division on Sanibel's police force.

Explorer Candice Merkle said she wants to go to the U.S. Naval Academy for college and eventually would like to return to police work as an undercover officer.

"To me that would be the most exciting police work," she explained. "It would really be exciting because your job is always changing."

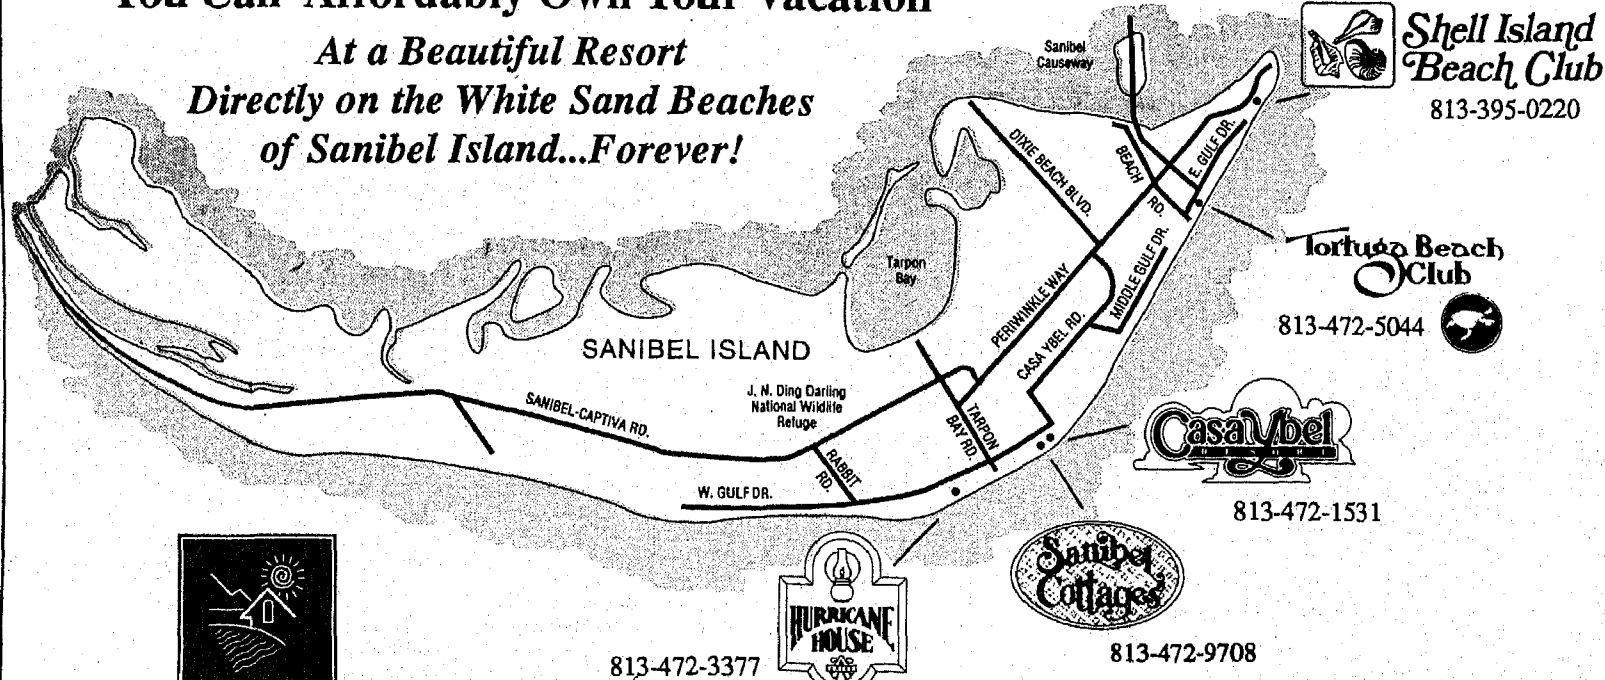

On the agenda for the explorers is a field trip in February to Tallahassee for a state-wide shooting competition where they will face off against other explorers.

"The competition is what the explorers really prepare for. They spend all year getting ready for it and it really is a lot of fun," Schulte said.

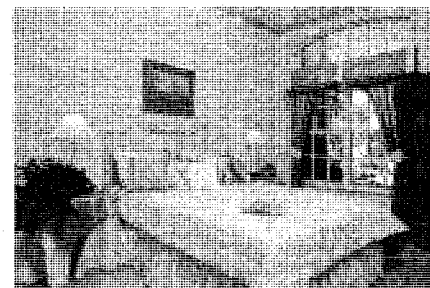

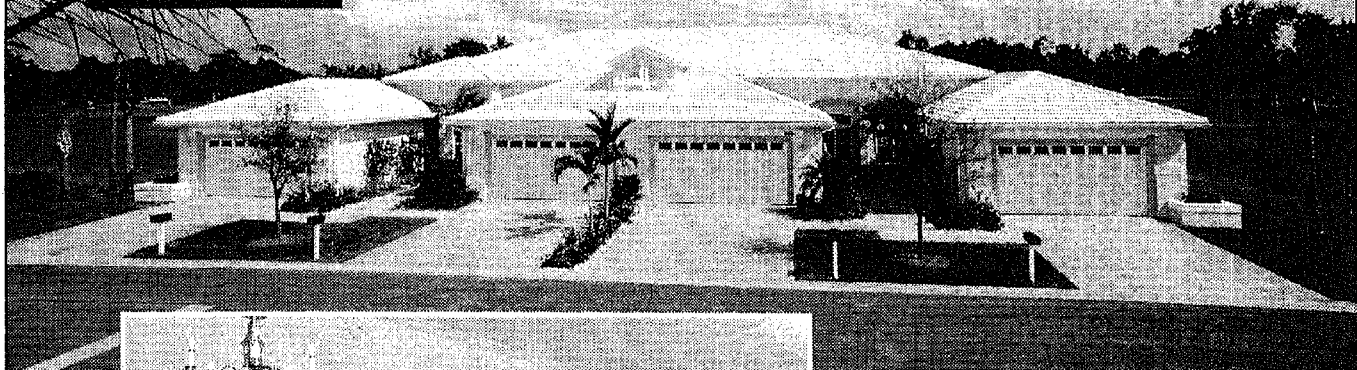

Explorer Merkle said the supervisors do an excellent job teaching them everything they need to know.

"The kids are really great to work with, they're all really cooperative, willing to learn and lucky for them we haven't had to shoot any of them yet," Schulte joked.

City contracts designer for emergency operations center

By Mark S. Krzos
Staff Writer

The Sanibel City Council took a giant step forward, Tuesday, by approving a contract with Gora, McGahey Associates for the building of an Emergency Operations and Recovery Facility (EOC).

According to City Manager Gary Price, the step will bring the city up to a point at which a decision can be reached to design a facility, where it would be located and under what conditions it would be built.

Gora, McGahey Associates will define the concept of the facility and the need for the EOC by defining the potential user group, review of regulations, budget analysis, determine future growth needs, site characteristics and location parameters. According to Price the total cost of this first task is $28,199.

Task two includes determining space requirements, furnishings, a communication system, engineering systems such as water supply, sewer, phone and emergency power. Price said the total cost of task two is $35,829, bringing the total to $64,028.

Price said the city received a $50,000 grant from the state to explore possibilities of an EOC after Hurricane Andrew unleashed its ferocity on South Florida. Price also said that a clause has been added to the contract where if the city decides to not go ahead with the project the $50,000 will be refunded.

"We intend to start working on this project later this month to determine and analyze the needs of this plan," Bruce Gora of Gora, McGahey Associates said Wednesday. "In order for the city to qualify, we have to come back before the City Council and present our findings in the late spring."

The debate over the location of the Emergency Operations and Recovery Facility heated up in recent weeks with some residents calling for the center to be built on the island. Jon Liljequist one proponent of the on-island Emergency Center said if it is built on-island it would give residents the opportunity of immediate clean-up after the storm has passed and give home-owners a chance in securing their homes against possible looters. A location, either off-island or on-island has yet to be determined.

Florida Archaeology Week celebrated with lectures at island libraries

By Priscilla Friedersdorf
Staff Writer

Annette Snapp, archaeologist with the Southwest Florida Archaeology Society spoke to a large audience at the Captiva Memorial Library, Wednesday. Snapp is vice president of the society and its motto for the year is, "Architecture is About People". Her lecture was based on her graduate school essay.

Thomas Jefferson was the first known archaeologist in America. Snapp said that the years from 1492 to 1840 was a speculative period and most enthusiasts were only armchair archaeologists.

The discovery of the beautiful serpentine mounds built by the mounds builders in Ohio created speculation that these structures could not have been built by savages. However that myth was dispelled when research showed they were built by ancestors of Indians and not a race of people who vanished mysteriously.

Snapp's lecture focused on the excavation of a Key Marco Calusa Indian site by Lt. Col. Durnford, a retired British military man. He was from Elmshurst Shooter Hill, Kent, England. Durnford came to southwest Florida in 1895 to go tarpon fishing. Durnford had met the owner of Key Marco and learned that workers had found artifacts while gathering mulch for fertilizer.

Durnford became interested in the find and went to Key Marco and made two small excavations. He found rope, netting, gourds, float pegs, small wooden cups and shell tools.

He took the artifacts to Philadelphia where he met Frank Hamilton Cushing. Cushing offered to go to Florida to do further research and convinced the University of Pennsylvania to sponsor him.

Cushing's relics were divided between the Smithsonian Institution and the University of Pennsylvania's Philadelphia Museum. Cushing died before he was able to publish his notes, which were later found, according to a member of the audience, in a big barrel behind a house in Lockport, N.Y. They were rescued and were the basis for a number of books and research articles.

Durnford took his collection back to England and donated it to the British Museum where it remains as a part of the Museum of Mankind. There are more than 200 artifacts from the Key Marco site located in the museum at this time. Of particular interest is a deer head replica with the eyes, nostrils and ears outlined in white.

In response to a question as to where the most extensive collection of Calusa Indian artifacts can be found in the local area; Snapp named, the Fort Myers Historical Museum, the Sanibel Historical Village and Museum and the Ding Darling Wildlife Refuge.

The talk at the library was one of two on the islands in celebration of Florida Archaeology Week. The next talk is tonight at the Sanibel Public Library. Fort Myers resident and author of Florida's First People Dr. Robin Brown will speak at 7:30 p.m.

Fire destroys Singing Wind Drive home

By Mark S. Krzos
Staff Writer

Flames engulfed a Singing Wind Drive home Feb. 2, causing approximately $135,000 in damage according to Sanibel Fire Chief Charles Frederick.

"We received a phone call from a neighbor at 8:47 p.m. last Thursday night and by the time we arrived two minutes later the 3007 Singing Wind Drive home was almost completely in flames," Frederick said.

Frederick estimated that the home had been on fire for several hours before the Fire Department received the emergency call.

"Fortunately, no one was home at the time of the fire and along with the home many personal belongings were lost," Frederick said.

According to Frederick the home is completely destroyed and the fire had burned the roof and the floor off its foundation.

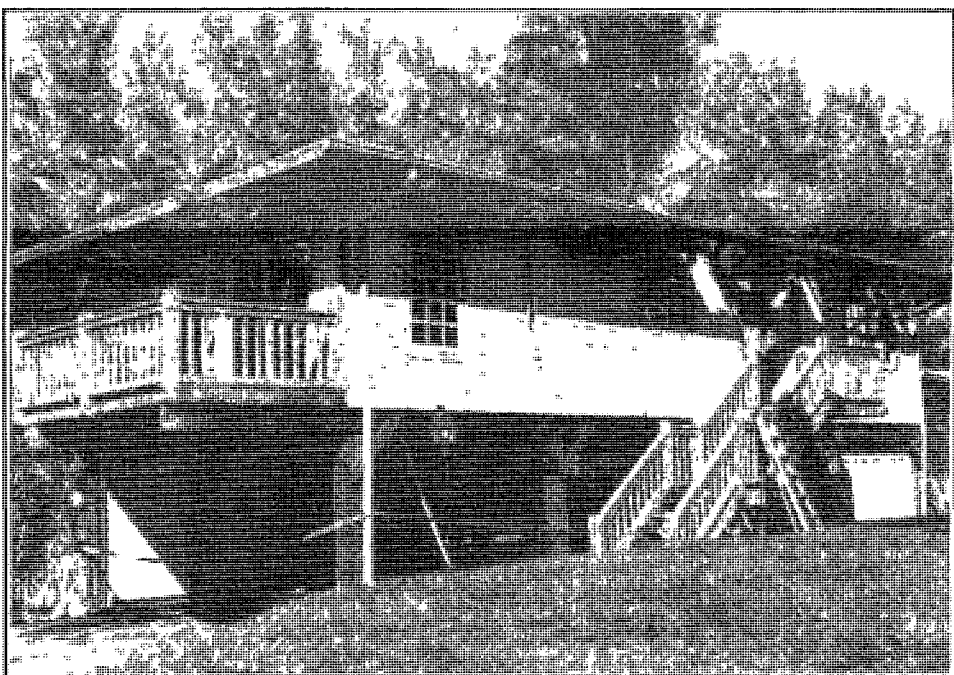

Frederick said the cause of the fire was a toaster oven that was accidentally turned on and nearby combustibles ignited and sent the house into a raging inferno.

"The fire got a good head start on us and by the time we got there it was too late to save the home," Frederick said.

Frederick said by 11 p.m. the fire was out and the trucks were back at the station.

A fire went undetected for hours Feb. 2, destroying the house.

Police nab two for DUI

By Matthew Miller
Staff Writer

On Saturday night Feb. 4, police arrested Percy A. Corbiere, 22, of Toronto, Canada for driving under the influence.

Corbiere was seen driving off the roadway and crossing the center line on two occasions while driving west on Sanibel-Captiva Road. The man pulled to the side of the road at 45 mph, slowing from 52 mph. When police approached the car, alcohol was immediately apparent on his breath. He fumbled for his license, slurred his speech and on three occasions during the field sobriety test, Corbiere extended his wrists to be handcuffed. He violated the .08 legal blood alcohol content (BAC) limit by nearly three times after he blew a .228 and a .239.

He was transported to the Sanibel Police Department and then to the Lee County Jail.

Police transported Gunn to the Sanibel Police Department for processing and then to the Lee County Jail for incarceration.

High tech mutual funds: Investments in the future

By Ralf Kircher
Editor

Prospective investors gathered at the behest of island resident and Merrill Lynch financial consultant Candice Gifford Feb. 1 to hear of an investment opportunity for the future: high-tech mutual funds. The talk by David Meyncke, regional vice president of Seligman Financial Services, took place over lunch at the Putting Pelican Restaurant.

The funds themselves are not high-tech, but rather the company stocks included in the funds are at the cutting edge of today's consumer technology.

With some of the fly-by-night companies out there, one might immediately assume investing in the forefront of technology could prove a volatile risk. But Meyncke assuaged those concerns by beginning his talk with a bit of background.

Meyncke pointed out first that Seligman has 134 years of investment management experience. Seligman's Science Technology fund was the number one performing fund for the one- and 10-year period ending Sept. 30, 1994. Meyncke also made it clear Seligman seeks out companies who produce technologies people are already using, but that are still relatively expensive—cellular phones, for instance.

"As technology becomes less expensive, usage goes way up," Meyncke said. "The key is to own technology stock when the use goes way up."

Carrying forth with the cellular phone example, Meyncke said the present monthly bill for a heavy user of a cellular phone is about $150. Currently in the United States, 5 percent of the populous owns a cellular phone. In five years, Meyncke said, that figure will soar to 60 percent, and the average heavy use monthly bill will drop to somewhere in the neighborhood of $30.

Jumping on the bandwagon now, at a time when cellular phones, or other technologies such as computer networking are definitely a fact of life—but before their use has become too commonplace—can make for a great investment opportunity.

Meyncke gave the audience a financial history lesson to prove his point.

"Remember when there used to be the saying, 'What's good for General Motors is good for the country'?" Meyncke said. "From the 1940s to the 1960s, your best investment was automobiles. That term of growth is gone. There's now a new industry called technology."

Meyncke argued technology is the fastest growing industry in the world, accounting for 20 percent of all new stocks, and adding up to a $1.4 trillion market-place.

"It is an incredibly large growth arena that's happening right before our eyes," Meyncke said.

However, many of the eyes before him had begun investing during the days when what was good for GM was good for them, and some members of the audience appeared somewhat leery of all the high-tech mumbo jumbo. Meyncke was quick to catch on to their apprehension and admitted his children sometimes knew more about computers and technology than he did.

"You don't need to be an expert," he said, "but you should be a part of it as an investor."

Financial advisor Candice Gifford agreed.

"These are going to be the blue chips of the future," she said. "I only put people into something I'd want to invest in personally."

Meyncke will be speaking twice more this month on the island, on Feb. 14 and 28. To find out about the next seminar, call Gifford at 337-8980.

Sanibel Shell station gets new owner

By Mark S. Krzos
Staff Writer

Ken Kasten and his wife Dana are the new owners of the Sanibel Shell station located at Bailey's Shopping Center.

Kasten moved to the island in 1980. Since then, he has gained the respect and friendship of numerous island residents and visitors while assisting them in their automotive needs during his years managing service stations on the island.

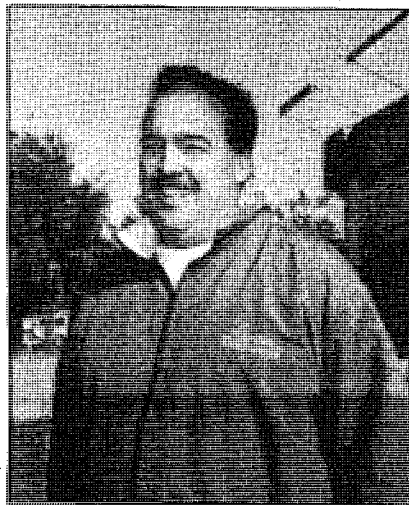

Dana Kasten had been employed by NationsBank on Periwinkle Way as a commercial teller.

Keith Ellsworth will continue as head mechanic with Lou Tursi assisting him in automotive repairs. Ellsworth and Tursi have had many years experience repairing cars on Sanibel and both are well known for the expertise and admired for their ability.

Kasten is the son of island residents Gloria and Robert Kasten.

Kasten and his wife have two children, Gregory Nelson and Emily Marie.

The Kastens look forward to a long lasting relationship with all the residents and many visitors on Sanibel.

Discover a gem of a house on Emerald Lake

By Priscilla Friedersdorf
Staff Writer

An old canoe is pulled up on a palm shaded beach next to a crystal clear lake. Where could this quiet paradise be? Mark Anderson found this little known spot on Sanibel seven years ago and has been formulating the plan for its development during those years.

Anderson is owner of Benchmark General Contractors and his new project is Whisperwood Cove on Emerald Lake. The 11 acre lake is part of a 27 acre parcel and is nestled among native vegetation. Whisperwood Cove has only six home sites from one-half to 1 1/2 acres in size. They are situated on the 22 feet deep, well-stocked lake, and each has its own natural sandy beach and boat dock. The six homes will also have a community tennis court for residents.

An eight acre preserve with nature trails has been dedicated to the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation and gives each of the six homeowners views across the quiet lake into woods and dense natural vegetation.

Every room of the model has a view of the lake and opens onto a wide connecting terrace. The 12 foot ceilings with crown molding and the many wide glass terrace doors accentuate the breathtaking views. The style of the home is accurately described as "island country." It has all the charm of old island homes with glass transoms diffusing the light through every room,

Learn to die rich and tax free with the financial wisdom of Barry Kaye

By Ralf Kircher
Editor

Die rich and tax free. The phrase is more than just a lifelong goal of many. It's the title of a book by Barry Kaye, founder of Wealth Creation Centers.

Kaye advised an audience of 60 at the Sundial Feb. 1 how to optimize their assets and to discount their estate taxes.

Kaye's ideas, which are deemed unconventional by many of what he calls "tunnel visioned" financial advisors, are based on using life insurance as a part of one's investment portfolio.

"Life insurance can be the funding mechanism for estate taxes," Kaye said. "Upon death, not your attorney, not your investment advisor, only your insurance man will give you a check."

Simply put, life insurance can replace the taxes incurred upon death. Current tax laws require a 55 percent tax paid within nine months of death on all inheritances over $600,000. For instance, if a person dies with an estate worth $20 million, $11 million goes straight to the government, and the family inherits only $9 million.

Figures like these are only in the dreams of many, but the fact is, inheritance taxes can actually force complete liquidation of smaller, and in some cases larger, estates.

Like the estate of Miami Dolphins owner Joe Robbie, his family, faced door molding detail copied from the last century, a metal roof with wide eaves supported by carved rafters and planked overhangs of beadboard, reminiscent of the interior of the Clarence Rutland home in the Sanibel Historical Village and Museum. Wooden ceiling paddle fans, use of stained glass insets, the open raftered ceiling in the master bath and thoughtful choices of lighting fixtures which replicate earlier eras complete the old island aura.

No detail of contemporary comfort has been neglected. The handsome functional kitchen with electric appliances and a gas cooktop has a pass through to a separate dining room. The kitchen has a small office area with built-in desk for a home computer. The adjoining laundry room is fitted with three bins for recycling plastic, paper and metal.

The home is designed into three zones: activity, guest and master bedroom suite. The master suite has a separate den or study in addition to a large closet with built-in wardrobes. The guest zone is on the second level and contains two bedrooms, bath and an adjacent wet bar with a small refrigerator in the cabinet. The guest rooms have a balcony with stairs to the pool.

The swimming pool appears to be carved from a natural rock formation and has a two tiered waterfall spilling into it. The surrounding pool decking is the work of a California designer who sculpts the surface into freeform patterns resembling natural stone.

The living room has as its focal point a fireplace and views of the pool and lake. The built-in cabinetry surrounding the fireplace can accommodate a 40 inch TV and bookshelves.

Anderson involved the Florida House Foundation in the design of the home to make it an earth friendly house. The lighting, roof overhangs, reflective roof coating, 1.8 gallon toilets and three zone air conditioning system are examples of environmental concern. Pest control treatment can be accomplished from outside the home by tubes placed in the walls.

The design of the home and the marketing has been the result of research by John Adler, a real estate analyst for 27 years who researched the local market to determine what type of home was desired. He found a profile that indicated there were people new to Sanibel and also local residents who had been looking for years for a home which incorporated a great room, a large master bath and a dream kitchen in which the woman did not feel isolated. The maximization of the waterfront concept was also a feature of the profile.

Adler is director of sales for Whisperwood

Cove and has identified and inventoried all the available lots on Sanibel from 136 current listings. Adler says, "There is a wonderful variety of lots available on the island but that is not going to last very long." Anderson adds, "We will help clients select a lot, design, permit and build. We will take the client through the entire process."

Anderson has been in the building business on Sanibel for 11 years and his other projects include in addition to homebuilding, additions and remodeling work; the construction of the Community Bank of the Islands, Foxworthy's Furniture Center, The Beehive Center in Periwinkle Gardens and the Seascope, Royal Tern, Lantana, Angler's Key Condominiums. He has also recently completed a 24,000 square foot multi-purpose gymnasium and fine arts center for Saint Michael's Church in Fort Myers. Prior to his forming his own company, he was project director for the Mariner Corporation for nine years.

The Whisperwood Cove model home is priced at $795,000 and can be constructed on any of the lakefront sites still available for a cost from $515,000 including lot. It could also be built on any suitable lot on Sanibel. The base price of the home for a customer with their own lot is $285,000.

The Whisperwood Cove home is included in the yearly Parade of Homes beginning the middle of March. The architect, W.A. Lawrence of Fort Myers, won the award for Home of the Year in 1993 for a home he designed in Bonita Bay. The interior decorating designs are by Robb & Stucky and the stained glass is by designer Larry Casola of Fort Myers.

Whisperwood Cove is located on the right of Dixie Beach Boulevard 0.3 miles from Periwinkle Way. Benchmark has constructed a model home on one of the six building sites and it is presently open for inspection from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. On Sunday. Sherry Anderson of Benchmark Real Estate Associates, Inc. is the real estate broker. Her number at the model is 472-0129 or 466-1590.

Priscilla Murphy Realty opens new West Gulf Drive sales office

By Priscilla Friedersdorf
Staff Writer

Rebecca Reid, sales manager and vice president of the island sales division of Priscilla Murphy Realty announced the opening of a new office at 2807 West Gulf Drive.

This new location will be for the convenience of customers along the beach and brings the total of PMR offices to four on Sanibel and Captiva. The other offices are: Causeway Road, next to the Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce, 1019 Periwinkle Way and the Captiva office at Andy Rosse Lane. PMR is a member of the Multiple Listing Service and also has offices in Fort Myers, Cape Coral, Kelly Greens and Sanibel Harbour.

The staff at the West Gulf Drive location will be Wendy Humphrey and Dorothy Sprouse, sales associates. They invite everyone to an open house on Thursday, Feb. 16 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

In addition they encourage those who are biking or walking by to stop and see them anytime.

Reid observed that 1994 has been the best year in the history of their company. She said beachfront homes have sold very well and overall sales improved in the past year. Condominiums in the $250,000 to $350,000 range seem to be moving well; those that have two week rental availability are very attractive to investors.

Al Williams, vice president and rental manager indicates rentals have been up slightly in January and it looks like they will continue to be strong for the rest of the season.

PMR is currently marketing The Wedgewood, a new gulf front condominium at 3127-3135 West Gulf Drive. These condominiums are priced from $650,000 upward. There is a model open every day from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The phone number of this location is 472-6500.

Sanibel resorts achieve national recognition

Lighthouse Resort and Club and Sanibel Beach Club II were recently named Gold Crown Resorts by Resort Condominiums International, the international vacation ownership exchange organization. The prestigious award recognizes resorts that have attained the highest level of excellence in resort accommodations and hospitality.

A multinational corporation, RCI provides travel and vacation exchange services for more than 2 million vacation owners. Less than 10 percent of approximately 2,600 resorts affiliated with RCI are recognized as RCI Gold Crown Resorts.

Selection into this group of resorts is based upon ratings from RCI member comment cards, which are submitted by members after vacation exchanges, and an independent on-site evaluation. Members rate the quality of resort facilities and services in five categories: unit, hospitality, housekeeping, maintenance and check-in/check-out. Resorts that achieve outstanding ratings then undergo an evaluation by an outside consulting firm which rates resort facilities, amenities and services as well as on-site recreational opportunities and access to area entertainment, shopping and attractions.

Lighthouse Resort and Club is a 30-unit resort with more than 800 vacation owners, while Sanibel Beach Club II house 29 units. Both resorts are managed by Interval Resort Property Management.

with $45 million in estate taxes, were forced to sell their NFL franchise—and pay a capital gains tax on top of the sale.

On a smaller level, closer to home for most, Kaye pointed to America's heartland. When a farmer dies, he said, he probably won't have much money, but he may have a farm and equipment worth well over the $600,000 exemption. To pay the estate taxes, the family would have to sell the farm and risk losing their livelihood.

Insurance is the way to avoid this costly pitfall, Kaye said.

He is, however, quick to disassociate himself with the word insurance and the whole notion of the traditional views of life insurance.

"This is based on more than just the lousy word 'insurance,'" Kaye said. "If you use insurance as a noun, you're in trouble. If you use it as an adjective, you may get somewhere."

Kaye drew a medical analogy to explain his point.

"We are doctors of finance—we give prescriptions for your wealth," he said. "Life insurance happens to be [one of those prescriptions]."

When first hearing Kaye's suggestions, it is easy to call his method a rich man's way of avoiding taxes. But Kaye argues that the government still gets its money. In addition, he said, the insurance money goes back into the economy, whereas without it, only the government benefits.

In his literature, Kaye likens the conventional approach to estate taxes to working 27 years of a 50 year career just to pay taxes or to the stock market taking a 2,000 point plunge upon one's death.

If combating estate taxes through insurance is not enough, Kaye recommends donating assets to a charitable remainder trust. In such a trust, it is possible to avoid the capital gains taxes incurred upon the sale of one's assets and to specify exactly the beneficiary of one's estate. Before one's death, it is possible to donate one's assets to a charity tax free. A trust is then established, out of which one's income is taken until death. Upon death, the entire trust goes to the charity, free of estate taxes. By using the tax credits received from the establishment of the trust to buy life insurance, an amount equivalent to the original trust ostensibly can be inherited by one's family.

This method almost entirely circumvents estate taxes, in effect giving one the power to tell the government exactly how to spend his estate.

One might argue the government loses in this deal, but according to Kaye, the money that is kept in the economy will go on making money for the government to tax. In addition, the charity of one's choice and the inheritors benefit in the end.

If this sounds too good to be true, read Kaye's book, Die Rich and Tax Free! or set up an appointment at a Wealth Creation Centers affiliate. The local affiliates, and the sponsors of Kaye's talk, are Michael Kilbourn, at (813) 261-1888, in Naples, and Carl Grissom, at 482-4400, in Fort Myers. Grissom is presently establishing an office on Sanibel.

Celebrate Valentine's Day the old-fashioned way

Historical village Valentines on display throughout the month

By Priscilla Friedersdorf
Staff Writer

From the strains of "Be Mine" by vocalist Ann Shelton on the old Silvertone Victrola to the peach satin chemise and tap pants temptingly arrayed on the antique bed, nothing romantic is missing at the Sanibel Historical Village and Museum's month-long tribute to Valentine's Day.

The foyer display cases exhibit sailors' valentines made by the intricate placement of tiny shells of pale colors. These valentines are of a type dating to the 1830s and favored by seamen as gifts for their sweethearts back home. Jean Karabin made four of those displayed and Eileen Nash donated the other. In the same case is a group of antique music boxes collected during the past 50 years by Sarah Fallert.

A white wedding dress from 1911 with a valentine red rose is draped on a chair in the living room of the old Clarence Rutland home. Nearby is a gray silk wedding dress from 1876 and a white apron from 1840. These are on loan from Dee Kaiser whose own wedding dress has been made into a wall hanging.

The high ceilinged dining room has a table set for a Valentine's Day dinner. A red cloth enhances the delicate pattern of the Haviland Limoges China loaned by Jody Brown, the special events chairman of the museum. The china, which she inherited from her grandmother, is over 100 years old and was at that time a complete service for 24; the years have diminished the place settings to eight, including such oddities as bone plates and lemon dishes. Brown believes the pattern is called "Princess Patricia," but would welcome any other collector's opinions.

The crystal stemware was loaned by Milbrey Rushworth, display chairman and director of exhibits. Tropical scenes with birds of paradise, butterflies and tropical vegetation are etched in the exquisite goblets. These were owned originally by Rushworth's mother who first visited the island in 1902 and came here to live permanently in 1949.

On the sideboard is a silver iced tea container circa 1890 which has an insulated lining for ice. Iced tea was considered Florida table wine even in the last century.

Schoolhouse's 'Anything Goes' an accomplishment of sorts

By Ralf Kircher
Editor

The Old School-house Theater has bitten off more than it can chew with its latest production of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes." The show is simply too big for such a small theater.

This said, however, it should be noted that director J.T. Smith has done a remarkable job with staging the cast of 22 and a dog—it is akin to the achievement of staging the "Pirates of Penzance" on a ship in a bottle. And, of course, the music of Cole Porter alone is enough to redeem any production.

Smith's Encore Productions took the modern book of "Anything Goes," rewritten by Timothy Crouse and John Wiedman from the original 1934 version. The latest revival was seen recently on Broadway and in London's West End. In addition to the original standards, the new version throws in such Porter favorites as "It's De-Lovely," from "Red, Hot and Blue!" and "In the Still of the Night," from "Rosalie."

The plot of the new book thankfully adheres to that of a traditional musical: boy meets girl, boy loses girl by the end of the first act, boy gets back girl, and every unattached character gets married in the finale. Like all old-fashioned musicals it is an incredibly simplistic plot, made entertaining only by the zaniness of the characters and the penchant of even the most curmudgeonly of characters to break into song and dance at a whim.

The hero, Billy Crocker, played by Roger Seyer, chasing his beloved Hope Harcourt (Jennifer Wydra), stows away on an ocean liner bound for England. Also on the ship are Billy's friend and a nightclub singer, Reno Sweeney (Angela DiCicco), Hope's fiancée, Lord Evelyn Oakleigh (Mark Agnew), Hope's mother, Evangeline Harcourt (Helma Reynolds), Billy's boss, Elisha Whitney (Bob Brown), Public Enemy No. 13, Moonface Martin (Robert Zanfini), Moonface's promiscuous traveling companion, Erma (Trudi Posey) and a host of sailors and other extras.

From the formidable number of named cast members as well as extras, it is easy to imagine the claustrophobia that ensued in the tiny theater.

From the opening "I Get a Kick Out of You," sung by DiCicco to Seyer in a bar in Manhattan, the tight quarters on stage are immediately apparent, for the audience gets as many kicks out of Reno as Billy.

Opera fashion show filled with familiar faces

By Ralf Kircher
Editor

As debate rages over adult clubs in the Fort Myers and Cape Coral city limits, Sunday Sanibel audiences were witness to the city manager's wife parading about dressed as a courtesan and a respected newspaperman's wife prancing in a skimpy bustier.

Were Nora Price and Marsha Wagner trying out new routines for Sanibel's own Moulin Rouge?

Alas, no.

Their alluring costumes and coquettish gesticulations were all in the name of art. Price and Wagner were two of 28 familiar faces modeling opera fashions at the Sanibel Music Festival's "Love Makes the World Go 'Round: A Opera Fashion Show," the proceeds of which benefited the festival and WFSP Concert 90 public radio.

The Valentine benefit, which highlighted the theme of love in operas from "La Boheme" to "Aida," was sponsored by Northern Trust Bank.

Crowds packed the Pirate Playhouse Sunday afternoon for the two performances of the fashion show.

The concept of the show, conceived by Maurice Oshry, gave patrons of the arts a tantalizing taste of well-known operas and their costumes.

Of particular note of the 20 operas represented were Marj Nordstrom as Puck in Britten's "A Midsummer's Night Dream." Nordstrom appeared particularly impish and sprightly in her bright costume. Hal Pantinkin stole the show in comic appearances in Verdi's "Falstaff" and Mozart's "Abduction of the Seraglio."

The costume that brought down the house, aside from those

Juried art show winners announced

There was standing room only at the opening of the Sanibel-Captiva Art League's members only show at BIG Arts Sunday.

Of 108 entries, juror Janeen Jankowski chose 70 pieces to hang, and only six to hang ribbons next to.

The six winners were: First place, Mary Keogh-Stringer's "Peter the Great;" second place, Sylvia Pettit Fox's "Dualities;" third place, Carol Hagerman's "Green Eyes;" merit awards, Liz White's "La Noche," Gordon Coughlin's "Woodring Dock" and Sheila Tardosky's "Cat Nap."

The show will continue in the Founders and Phillips galleries until Feb. 27. Gallery hours are 1-4 p.m. daily.

The case in the dining room contains an exhibit designed by Merrill Taylor of old candy dishes she owns. The dishes are from World War II and are clear glass in the shapes of tanks, planes, trains and old autos. The glass was called "Victory Glass."

A "Storybook" Valentine doll brings back memories and was donated by Sigrid Akers. The doll is in a case with 19 beaded evening bags from the early 1900s and old valentine cards on loan from Lorraine Anderson, Eileen Nash and Marj Nordstrom.

In the airy front bedroom, complete with antique iron beds draped with mosquito netting, is displayed some of the trousseau items which were a gift from Jay Halcrow. The antique pastel quilts on these beds are a "double wedding ring" patterned quilt on loan from Jane Hale and an "endless chain" patterned quilt on loan from Marj Nordstrom.

The exhibit extends to the Old Bailey Store on the museum property where gaudy old candy boxes like those they would have sold in the store are in the display case. These were donated by Eileen Nash and the satin ribbons, bows and fabric roses set your heart fluttering even now.

One of the old postcards on loan from Marj Nordstrom and mailed originally from Salim, Iowa, has a message which coyly states, "Write me a letter and tell me you know what." Some of these cards date to the Civil War era.

The exhibit is a yearly event and will continue through February. The next exhibit, "Shellseeking on Sanibel," which is in the planning stages, will commemorate the opening of the Shell Fair and the completion of the new Bailey-Matthews Shell Museum.

The Sanibel Historical Village and Museum always welcomes new docents and a new training session will take place in mid-March. Applications are available at the museum and for further information please call Kay Strong at 472-3877; Mary Bell at 472-1813; or Laura Cope at 472-1348.

The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday.

—'ANYTHING GOES'—

The cast members seem bubbling over with theatrical energy they just can't let loose because of their proximity to the audience. Instead of thriving on the energy normally gleaned from a live audience, the cast appears almost hampered by an audience packed in too close.

This is not to say the performance is a failure, or that it is not entertaining. Taken on a song-by-song basis or on the basis of individual performances, the production overall can be considered successful.

DeCicco obviously took notes from the woman who made Reno familiar to modern Broadway audiences, Patti LuPone, rather than from Ethel Merman, whose appearance in the original production led her to stardom. Modern day listeners, who do not remember exactly why Merman's brash, boisterous voice made her a star, would probably thank DiCicco for her ever-so-slightly more delicate handling of the part.

Seyer's portrayal of Billy starts off a little too boyish, but by play's end, he matures quite comfortably. Seyer handles particularly well "Easy to Love," a piece that it is hard to imagine Porter wrote sober. The song, by most performers, drones on and on and lacks the kick and energy of Porter's better work. But Seyer's rendition hardly lapses into the inescapable drone of the written notes.

For comic relief of four different varieties, witness the performances by Agnew, Brown, Zanfini and Posey.

Agnew's portrayal of Lord Oakleigh is superb. His absolutely daffy Oakleigh, a Miss Malaprop reincarnated as an English gentleman, steals the show on more than one occasion.

Brown as Elisha Whitney and Zanfini as Moonface would have stolen equally as often were it not for Agnew.

But perhaps the single most convincing actor of the bunch is Trudi Posey as Erma. Her incessant wooing of the crew and her high-pitched, squeaky bimbo voice are right on the money. And her performance of "Let's Fall in Love" had more than one male member of the audience agog at her undulations.

All in all, the show judged on the individuals in the cast and the individual numbers has more pluses than minuses. It is tough, however to reconcile these positive attributes with the feeling that they try too hard to pack too many on the stage. In addition to this drawback, Saturday's show curiously and disappointingly omitted the finale, a reprise of the eponymous favorite, "Anything Goes."

J.T. Smith's production of such a grand musical in such a tiny theater is certainly an accomplishment, but, to paraphrase the late William A. Henry III, it can be called an accomplishment to put a bone through one's nose, but that can hardly be compared with the accomplishment of putting a man on the moon.

mentioned worn by Price and Wagner, was worn by Aimee Bedard in a scene from Delibes' "Lakme." The gown was a shimmering golden Indian wrap, and Bedard carried herself beautifully as Delibes' music played in the background.

For those who are not fans enough of opera to recognize immediately Delibes' "Lakme" by name, the music is quite familiar. To the layman, and in layman's terms, it sounds rather like a bunch of women singing all at once—beautifully, mind you. The piece has been in several national TV advertisements lately—for cars or toasters or the like. At least one audience member came away more enriched Sunday, knowing the next time a certain car or toaster ad comes on, he will turn and say, "Ah, Delibes' 'Lakme.'"

Also enriched from Sunday's performance were the volunteers who modeled the costumes from the London Royal Opera, the Cincinnati College Conservatory, the Cincinnati Playhouse in the park, the Opera Theatre of Connecticut, the Philadelphia Temple University Opera, and from Masquerade of Fort Myers and Naples.

According to the show's organizers, it would not have been possible without the help of Jone Schlackman, Nell Schaenen and Andrew Kurtz.

And, of course the models: Patrick O'Donovan, Priscilla Friedersdorf, Marj Nordstrom, Erica Dean, Celia Hoggatt, Mary Ellen Tiffany, Fred Nordstrom, Mary Mitchell, Nancy

Cain, Marsha Wagner, Joy Schein, Bill Griffin, Diane Rondina, Vicky Bailey, Beverly Bowman, Nina Orrell, Mary Marino, Hal Pantinkin, Jeanna Will, Bill Schlackman, Nora Price, Lee Ann Bombardier, Beth Waldrop, Joan Becke, Aimee Bedard, Judy Friedman and Elizabeth Mossman.

Good fishing: A torrid romance with Lady Luck

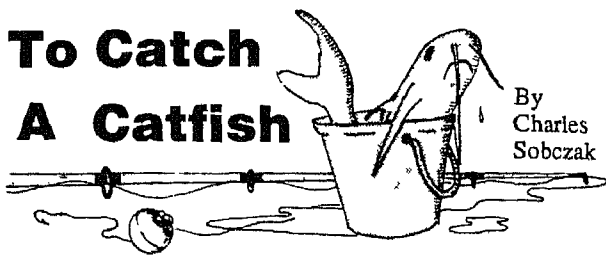

Now I have not exactly spent a lifetime on the water. There are many guys out there that can pull rank on me in less time than it takes me to tie a bimini twist, which in my case could be 35 to 40 minutes with an excellent diagram. But my guess is that there isn't a guide out there, nor any angler worth his salt that won't tell you that there is one great uncontrollable factor when it comes to angling. That this Lady is called Luck.

I have seen it time and time again where you are doing exactly the same thing as your fishing buddy on the other side of the boat when wham, his bait gets hit four to one over yours. I have even gone so far as asking to switch rods and wham, he still outfishes you three to one. Switches sides, four to one. Change locations, three to one. The entire day can go like this and there is absolutely nothing you can do about it. It is this thing called luck.

After all fishing is, regardless of all the tackle, gear, electronics and 1-800 help lines in the world, a sport of chance. If you are in the right place at the right time with the right bait and gear, your odds are 100 percent better. But they are still not foolproof. If you are after foolproof fishing, simply buy fresh fish fillets. I have often observed that by doing so it is far less expensive and time consuming. You can simply decide on your way to the market in your comfortable car if you would like to rig for tuna, or mahi or perhaps some snapper. All them so neatly displayed in that large glass faced cooler.

You can imagine yourself putting out the outrigger

To Catch A Catfish

in that three foot chop as you reach for your wallet. And as the clerk puts his hand out for the $20 bill, think of it like that huge bull dolphin coming up to nail that ballyhoo rig. Hooked up once again. Wasn't that easy.

I guess that sort of proves my point. We don't fish to necessarily catch fish, although it is far more fun if you do so. There is one thing I just cannot instruct you how to be, and that is lucky. Given a choice I would rather be lucky at fishing than skilled. You hear about it all the time, some meandering tourist out bottom fishing with squid in the wrong place at the wrong time and winds up with a new world record for tuna. Which, coincidentally, has never been seen in this part of the ocean before.

But in the end, your luck will improve as you reduce the chances of being unlucky. You can't control which line is going to get slammed, but you can increase your odds tremendously of that occurring. You might want to join the Sanibel Fishing Club for some tips, (an article about them is forthcoming, but for now they meet the first Monday of every month at

Mark Howard, the kitchen manager at the Timbers Restaurant, had a brush with Lady Luck to get this 35-inch snook.

6:30 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Center), or use a guide several times to get the gist of it, or ask around your local tackle shops. But the more you learn, the better your chances.

In the end however, and trust me completely on this one, nothing can fill your cooler faster, make that rod tip bend harder, and spool your line easier than Lady Luck. Good fishing this week, I hope she comes to join you.

(Charlie Sobczak is a local fisherman and a Realtor with Priscilla Murphy Realty.)

Police advised the fishermen to take their poles elsewhere. They said they were leaving anyhow.

The man was apparently in dire need of some help as he lay on the sidewalk outside the shopping center. Police arrived and found the subject confused and incoherent. The man said he had low blood sugar and the medics were called. The man was treated but refused to be transported to the hospital.

NO TELLIN' WHAT TIME IT IS—A man staying at a Middle Gulf Drive resort reported a watch missing from his room Saturday morning, Feb. 4.

After placing the watch in a secret compartment of his briefcase, the Indianapolis, Ind., man attended a meeting and did not return to his room until four hours later.

On his way to the manager's office to report the incident, the Orkin man asked him how he was doing. The man said not too well since his watch was missing. Once at the manager's desk, he reported the incident with the intent to prosecute.

GET OFF THE PHONE—A man wanted harassing phone calls reported for the record so he could order a tracing service Friday afternoon Feb. 3. He could tolerate no more calls from a man who would call his residence at all hours of the night and day, failing to identify himself and then hang up.

CALL ME—A woman requested the police department to contact her daughter Thursday night Feb. 2. The woman wanted police to tell her daughter to call home.

BUSHWHACKED—A motorcycle was found in the bushes off Sanibel-Captiva Road Thursday night Feb. 2. The owner of the motorcycle said he had lost control of the bike when a bag strapped to the rear seat came loose and became caught in the rear tire.

ALL TREED OFF—A man began cutting down a pine tree at Poinciana Circle Thursday morning Feb. 2, claiming that the tree was not on private property. A city official was contacted and said the tree was indeed on private property and that the man needed to obtain the almighty permit to cut down any more trees.

WHY CALL A CAB?—Police picked up a drunk man attempting to walk home Wednesday night Feb. 1. He was taken home for his own safety.
