City closer to settling lawsuit with Lee County

By KEVIN DUFFY
kduffy@breezenewspapers.com

Sanibel City Council voted Tuesday to dedicate its share of surplus revenue to reducing tolls on the Sanibel Causeway, providing Lee County does the same.

Council, by a 4-1 vote, moved to allow City Manager Judie Zimomra to continue negotiations with County Manager Don Stilwell in the hopes of reaching accord between the two governing bodies. Councilwoman Judy Workman voted no.

The agreement accepts the county's terms calling for Sanibel to apply its 21 percent of surplus revenue to reducing the discount program on the causeway and transponder fees. But the resolution that council approved stipulates that the city's contribution will remain in effect only for so long as the county dedicates its 79 percent share solely to toll reductions.

City Attorney Ken Cuyler will draft a preliminary stipulated agreement and present it to council for consideration during the 9 a.m. public hearing of Tues., Feb. 15 at MacKenzie Hall.

Some at the hearing wondered if a settlement would result in higher taxes for Sanibel residents or a decrease in city services.

"Our share has to be replaced to keep our budget in place," Bernie Lubetkin, a private citizen, said. "Am I as a citizen better off or worse off? That's what I want to know."

Vice Mayor Dick Walsh said the proposal amounts to residents and business owners paying $2.37 for every $100,000 of taxable value. Based on an average property value on-island of $500,000, most islanders will pay about $11.85 to make up the shortfall.

Another resident, Barbara Cooley, said the proposal isn't right for islanders because it puts tourists first.

"It sounds like you are asking me to pay more taxes so day-trippers' tolls can go down," she said. "I'm afraid it sounds like city council is giving up without a fight."

Others, like Workman, said the settlement terms simply aren't good.

"To me, when you negotiate a settlement there is some compromise involved," she said. "The longer we negotiate the more they take."

Workman said she was unhappy with the county's decision to withhold the second payment of surplus tolls to Sanibel from last year — $202,795 — and with the lack of protections built into the settlement proposal.

"I think this is a bad deal, we're not getting anything out of it," she said.

Lubetkin said that the amount of taxes that islanders pay to the county will go up as well because the county's typical annual portion of toll revenue — about $3 million — will have to be recouped as well.

Planning Commission Chairman Jack Samler urged council to seek a unilateral settlement with the county where both parties retain their shares under the interlocal agreement and agree to drop all claims against one another. Cuyler responded that such a strategy wouldn't work because the county has maintained in court that the interlocal agreement is invalid.

"I don't have faith in the interlocal agreements anymore," Councilmember Steve Brown said while predicting the county will punch holes in the city's proposal.

Walsh said he believes the county "won't stab us" because of Sanibel's status as a source of bed taxes through the resort

City to attempt to clarify referenda

By KEVIN DUFFY

The city will soon take a stab at making the intent of a handful of charter amendments on the March 1 ballot clearer to residents.

Voters on Sanibel will soon find a form letter from the city in their mailboxes that will attempt to dissect the five "people's choice" amendments to the City Charter that will appear on the ballot next month.

Brought forth by Vice Mayor Dick Walsh and other members of the community, the proposals address building heights, development density, the amount of vegetation removal and impermeable surface coverage allowable in development projects, alterations to the city's primary roadways and term lengths for planning commission members.

If approved, the charter would be amended to permit changes to those elements only through voter referendum.

Walsh said that the intent of the proposals is to allow voters, rather than a majority on council, the power to decide key issues that affect all residents.

The community waved goodbye to a longtime city official this week and will now set about the task of replacing him.

Rogers is also credited with creating Sanibel's interior wetlands conservation district, water surface plan, resort housing district and beach management plan.

Steve Brown (left) and Francis Bailey (right) join with a substantial percentage of the island population in wishing Bruce Rogers (center) well on his retirement after 27 years of service to the City of Sanibel.

Bruce Rogers, who began his career as Sanibel's planning director on Feb. 21, 1978 and held the position until Jan. 8, spoke to a packed house of residents and former elected and appointed officials at MacKenzie Hall Tuesday, thanking them for their kindness. He also thanked his wife of 37 years, Joan, who joined him by his side.

"I'm overwhelmed, so appreciative and grateful," he said.

After enjoying a coffee and danish reception outside city hall before council's public hearing, Rogers received a proclamation from council presented to him by Mayor Marty Harrity, as well as a framed copy of the city's Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

"You're the best, buddy," Harrity told him before Rogers received the first of two prolonged standing ovations.

In addition to molding Sanibel's growth in accordance with the city's land use plan and Land Development Code, ning department," said Ernie Klaudt, an eight-year planning commissioner who joined other commission alumni in wishing Rogers well. "They are all good people, and under Bruce's leadership they did well."

John Filchak, a 17-year island resident, said that Rogers' dedication raised Sanibel above other cities he and his wife, Mary, have visited, such as Jackson Hole, Wyo. and Cannon Beach, Ore.

"He's done a great job of planning for us," he said. "He's a very objective, honest person."

The city hasn't advertised for Rogers' replacement yet and is not close to soliciting for applicants, City Manager Judie Zimomra said.

Administrative Services Manager Jim Isom is currently conducting a job audit of the position to determine what duties

Candidates' forum at SCA, Tuesday, Feb. 15

Joined by The Sanibel & Captiva Islands Chamber of Commerce and the Sanibel Community Association, the Island Reporter will sponsor a Candidates' Forum at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 15 at the Sanibel Community House on Periwinkle Way.

All seven candidates for the Sanibel City Council have agreed to participate and each will have an opportunity to make a brief presentation which will be followed by questions. They will also have an opportunity for brief closing remarks.

The moderator for this forum is Dr. Douglas A. Landau, a newly appointed Associate Professor of Public Administration at International College. Dr. Landau will be teaching on the Cape Coral, Naples and Fort Myers campuses.

He arrived in Naples in late December after 14 years as an out-of-state university professor. Prior to teaching, Dr. Landau served as a city manager in New Jersey. Dr. Landau has a Doctor of Arts degree from Idaho State University and his MPA from New York University. He holds other graduate credentials from Yale and Cornell and has been a guest TV commentator on nearly 30 occasions in recent years.

Council continues EAR review to next meeting

By KEVIN DUFFY
kduffy@breezenewspapers.com

By the time they got to the Evaluation and Appraisal Report of the Sanibel Plan on Tuesday, city councilmembers quickly realized that additional public hearings would be necessary before signing-off on the document.

After conducting city business in the morning, followed by a closed-door executive session and then a lengthy public hearing concerning the Sanibel Causeway litigation, council quickly realized they weren't going to get through the 55-page summary before the sun set on the day — or maybe not even before dawn.

For that reason, council voted unanimously to discuss only a portion of the document this week, with the idea of picking-up where they left off the next time around. Thus, a third public hearing will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 15 at MacKenzie Hall.

"Planning (Commission) had 14 meetings on this and we're going to approve it in two?" Councilman Steve Brown asked as council debated how quickly they should complete the process.

Governing bodies are required by state law to conduct a minimum of two public hearings to consider EARs. But there is no provision to prevent them from conducting as many public hearings as necessary to iron-out the document before transmittal to the Department of Community Affairs. Council must approve the document and deliver it to Ken Pflazer, Sanibel's acting planning director, prior to the May 1 deadline imposed by DCA.

Council began with the question of high-rise development, and started on the ground floor by trying to find answers to elementary questions such as what constitutes a "story."

"No, really, I want to know," Mayor Marty Harry asked Pflazer. "I'm not being facetious."

Pflazer replied that a story equals the distance between the floor and ceiling of a structure. He said that he was not aware of any definitive measurement.

In considering the number of dwelling units that can be rebuilt following natural disaster, Pflazer said it "wasn't clear" what could be built back in excess of allowable density. The EAR says that rebuilt structures which exceed permitted density must be scaled-back to reduce the number of units in order to comply with the city's Development Intensity Map and Land Development Code.

Forty-two hundred multi-family dwelling units exist on Sanibel, Pflazer said, twice the amount of allowable density.

"I like to think there is room to accommodate existing density but it's not a slam-dunk," he said.

Council also deliberated ways to reduce water consumption, and Councilwoman Judy Workman suggested adopting regulations put in place by the South Florida Water Management District.

"The amount of water people are using is incredible," Vice Mayor Dick Walsh said.

Island resident Hazel Schuller said that the shared-use master plan is insufficient as presented in the EAR because it fails to address the allowable number of beach chairs that resorts are allowed to set up on Sanibel's beaches. Walsh replied that the problem is determining how to police it.

"Our ordinances become looser and looser," Schuller said.

Jennings defiant under pressure

By KEVIN DUFFY
kduffy@breezenewspapers.com

Councilman Jim Jennings was a frequent target for criticism at Tuesday's council meeting despite a packed agenda that included Sanibel's lawsuit against Lee County and the second public hearing of the city's proposed tweaks to the Evaluation and Appraisal Report of the Sanibel Plan.

Jennings, who was recently found guilty of 56 counts of election violations by the Florida Elections Commission, adamantly denied the findings throughout the marathon session as fellow councilmembers and city residents took turns lambasting him for compromising the city's election process.

Resident Marie Gargano referenced the historic elections in Iraq this week as an example of how important a "clean" process is, and how people have fought and died for the right to cast their votes.

"Clean elections in the state, in the country and in the world are something we all hold dear," she said.

Jennings, who repeatedly denied the allegations while pointing out that the commission's final report is due Feb. 15, said that the Florida Ethics Commission, a separate overseeing body, had determined there was no probable cause to believe that the councilman, who defeated Nola Theiss to secure his seat two years ago, had violated the code of ethics for public officers.

The ethics commission, who probed allegations that Jennings had solicited and accepted gifts from people who lobbied council and failed to file his gift disclosure form in a timely manner, dismissed all charges against him following their probable cause hearing.

Jennings invited his detractors to present proof of his alleged violations rather than engage in name calling and finger pointing.

"The Elections Commission findings are not final," he said. "What is stated in a hearing in November isn't always stated in a final order."

Not everyone who spoke on the matter criticized Jennings, however.

Resident Steve Smith said that some of the people "conducting this witch hunt" are the same people who began the process of investigating Jennings.

"To me, false accusations, character assassination and innuendos destroy the character of the community more than any bridge," he said.

Council considered two resolutions directly connected to the allegations against Jennings, voting 5-0 to support non-partisan elections as per section 5.02 of the city charter and tabling another by a 3-2 vote that calls for censure on the part of council toward any elected official who fails to obey the city's election laws.

"While it's true that we don't have the right to remove or fine, we want the public to understand that we, as a council, don't accept or condone that type of activity," Vice Mayor Dick Walsh said.

"You defrauded the electorate in this community," Councilwoman Judy Workman told Jennings in a scathing appraisal. "It has never happened in the past and we don't want it to happen in the future."

"If it does continue, someone is going to speak out on it. It's not going to be swept under the rug."

Workman's volley also included Mayor Marty Harry, who accepted a $500 contribution from off-island sources when he ran for council. Workman lobbied for limiting donations in city elections to on-island sources as a discussion item, but City Attorney Ken Cuyler said there was no provision in state law prohibiting such practices.

"Maybe to some people $500 makes an impact, but not to me," Harry said.

While council unanimously decided to back the idea of enforcing the charter to ensure non-partisan elections, they couldn't decide on the matter of censuring councilmembers found guilty of violating election laws. They voted 3-2 to consider the matter at a later time, with Workman and Walsh dissenting.

Louise Johnson, a former mayor, told Jennings from should be required of applicants, she said. Part of the audit is contact with neighboring cities to find out what the position of planning director entails in those communities, Zimomra added.

Since Rogers held the position for 27 years, conditions may have changed and other responsibilities may have to be identified, she said.

Phyllis Bogen, who served on the commission for six years, said Rogers' eventual replacement should demonstrate a "strong commitment" to preserving Sanibel's character as a sanctuary island where residents can enjoy greenspace and wildlife unencroached by the spectre of development.

"Somebody who understands Sanibel," she said. "To bring in someone from the outside would make for a longer transition."

Nola Theiss, a former city mayor, took the opposite stance when asked what qualities the city should seek out in its new planning director.

"They have to be committed to the plan — we don't want them to be so ingrained in the community that they go to one side," she said of potential applicants. "It's crucial that they stand taller than any special interest group."

Klaudt, now a resident of Fort Myers, said he has watched Rogers' work closely and expressed optimism that the city will continue along the path that Rogers helped blaze.

"The city has done very well since I left, and I have the utmost confidence that it will continue to do so," he said.

GUEST OPINION

The high rises are coming! The high rises are coming! Or maybe not.

I have been following quite closely the present debate around the issue of the March 1 vote on Sanibel Charter amendments. I must confess I find myself both troubled, confused and somewhat amused at the case being made by supporters of the amendments. It would seem, on the face of them, that voting for the amendments would be the prudent, logical and timely thing to do. After all, how could anyone argue with the premise that protecting Sanibel from "high rises, over development and County road widening schemes" is the right thing to do? They make it sound so obvious, so democratic, so easy. Just say yes.

In the first place, I am confused by the case being made for the necessity of the amendments. Every single candidate for Council office is running on a platform of avidly protecting the character, scale and small town qualities of Sanibel. Where did all this angst about political deceptions, dark plots and "sky is falling" predictions that Sanibel is but one vote away from becoming Marco Island come from? If I ever saw a town that had a firm grip on controlling growth, this is the place.

It is somewhat amusing that the amendment proponents are telling Sanibel voters, in effect, you can't be trusted to vote for candidates that will protect the island's vision (you voters are not smart enough to see through their political plots) but you can trust us, the true believers in Sanibel, that we know best. Just vote for our amendments.

More importantly, I am deeply troubled that they are not telling the whole story and fabricating significant "facts" about what can and cannot happen in the form of land development on Sanibel. Their central premise is that "only three votes on the Council" are needed to usurp the Master Plan and Zoning Code and turn the island over to greedy developers who will promptly blanket us in towering high rises. To bolster their case, they remind us that only 35 years ago, County planners proposed a land use plan that would allow 90,000 residents on the island. Thus we must take that power away from government with these amendments. But they omit one little detail. The Sanibel Council can not change the Master Plan without approval of the State Department of Community Affairs. Chapter 163 of the Florida Statutes gives the State Planning Agency the power to veto local plan amendments that are not consistent with Regional and State growth policies.

Guess what? Since the 1986 adoption of the Local Government Comprehensive Planning Act, and in the wake of Hurricane Andrew's devastation of South Florida, Regional Planning Councils and the State have declared vulnerable coastal areas and in particular, barrier islands like Sanibel, to be Coastal High Hazard Areas. Rule 9J-5, the administrative code for evaluating Comprehensive Plan consistency with State Growth Policies, prohibits density increases in such High Hazard Areas.

In other words, the master planned population holding capacity of the island today is what it will remain. What you see is what you get. If you think I'm kidding, take a trip to Tallahassee and try to talk DCA into even a tiny increase in density. Be sure to call me and tell me what they said.

After the worst year in Florida's history for hurricane destruction measured in the billions of dollars and many lives, the pressure today to expand and further tighten such limits on growth is overwhelming. The county planner's once-upon-a-time dream of high-rising Sanibel is consigned to the dust bin along with draining the Everglades and bulldozing mangroves on the Caloosahatchee. This fact alone should make voters ask what is really going on here? Changing the charter to stop something that can't happen is not only dubious, it is reckless.

As for the amendments on limiting lot coverage increases or height increases, they are directly tied to the issue of density increases. Density drives everything. No density increases, no high rises and no wall-to-wall paving of lots with massive parking garages. Their scare tactics quickly unravel as so many hyped fantasies.

The other thing I find fascinating is the fear that Periwinkle Way will be widened. To what? Four lanes? Consider that everywhere the bike path crowds up the edge of the road such as at Casa Ybel Road, across from Hallmark Cards and in front of the Bookshop or several other places, the existing road right of way is barely wide enough for the existing road and bike path. To widen it the county would have to be prepared to buy not

GUEST OPINION

Dear Sanibel Council,

Discussion of tolls, bridges and settlements need to include a discussion of the County's possible role in changing the very nature of "the Sanibel we know and love today" and the fiscal future of Sanibel.

Please look at Lee County's $30,285,000 Bond issue proposal. This is an interesting document, containing several pages relevant to the current toll issues and the future of Sanibel.

Attached are these bond pages for your review:

- Page A-27 Direct your attention to the 100 percent increase in toll revenue between 2004 and 2005; $6,300,000 increasing to $13,500,000. This is a 100 percent increase. Please notice the significant toll monies earned in future years, ending with $20,600,000 in 2035.
- Page A-26 Direct your attention to the 46 percent increase in traffic to Sanibel projected over the life of the bond issue.
- Page A-6 Direct your attention to the phrase "a new emphasis on public transportation will reduce gridlock during the tourist season".

Several comments and questions are appropriate for this Council to consider in their deliberations with the county:

Sanibel has over 30 percent the beaches in Lee County. The county advertises and promotes the island beaches in their tourism promotions. The county plans over-passes along Summerlin to deliver more traffic, faster and easier, to the beaches of Fort Myers and Sanibel. The new causeway bridges add to this scenario of more cars and more people. Is it a given that "progress that is inevitable" and more traffic is perceived as good for business? Do you believe that?

Do the residents of Sanibel have the right and obligation to ask and expect answers from our elected representatives for the following?

1. What do we want Sanibel to look like in the future? Is "Sanibel as it is Today" in jeopardy?

2. What island natural systems are in jeopardy as this increase in people and cars happens?
3. What plans are contemplated or in place to protect the island's natural resources from this increase in people and traffic?
4. What are we residents being asked to sacrifice in what is termed "quality of life"?
5. Will the ambiance and economic niche that Sanibel businesses enjoy today be sacrificed?
6. Who benefits from this pressure placed on the island and its residents?

As we contemplate the future of our island's natural systems and our quality of life, we cannot forget the fiscal side of the future of Sanibel. The county projects huge revenue streams from future bridge tolls. Do we residents have the right to ask and get answers to these questions?

1. How much revenue does the County project as "yearly surplus" over the life of the bond?
2. We have been told that if Sanibel relinquishes its 21 percent, the County plans to use 100 percent of the surplus for maintenance of the causeway and bridges. Is this true for each and every year?
3. If not, what will the County use the surplus for?
4. How do you plan to make up the significant Sanibel budget shortfall from the loss of the 21 percent and the loss of overweight fees when the new bridges are in place?
5. Do you plan to first explain to Sanibel residents the effect on our tax rate of any proposed settlement with Lee County? If not, why not?

Thank you for your time and efforts on our behalf. I and any others will attend your next Council meeting to hear the answers to our questions.

only an additional 24 to 40 feet of land, but wipe out multiple commercial parking lots and the businesses that rely on them raising the cost astronomically — and for what? To rush cars to the two lane bridge or the two lane San-Cap Road? Please. This is but another case of too much imagination and too little analysis. Oh, and the amendment language is hopelessly vague. What is a "major Improvement?" No one knows. I guess we will have to ask the amendment authors as arbiters of what is good for Sanibel.

The truly upsetting thing that amendment proponents do not tell voters is that many applications made by homeowners on the island for hardship relief to build a pool, add a bedroom addition or any slight increase in lot coverage would require a referendum for final approval. A property owner could have a legitimate hardship and get approval from city staff, boards and the commission but still get turned down at the polls. Unfortunately, voters that do not understand an issue or see the relevance to their own concerns usually just say "no." Lose a referendum vote and you can kiss your bedroom addition goodbye, even if the law says you deserve it. Unless of course, after spending $5,000 dollars to get your appeal on the ballot, you then mount a months long campaign to "educate the voters" about your addition at significant additional time and expense, you might, just might win the vote. This is not protecting Sanibel. This is an invitation to a small group of people to meddle in your property rights and second-guess elected officials and professionals. Bad idea.

To compound the problem, many homes and business structures on Sanibel were built decades ago and no longer conform to the current code — making them "legal non-conforming structures." It has been estimated that as many as 50 percent of the island properties have this non-conformity. Just imagine trying to rebuild after a disaster or a fire and seeking approval only to replace what you had? It's back to the voters. Good luck!

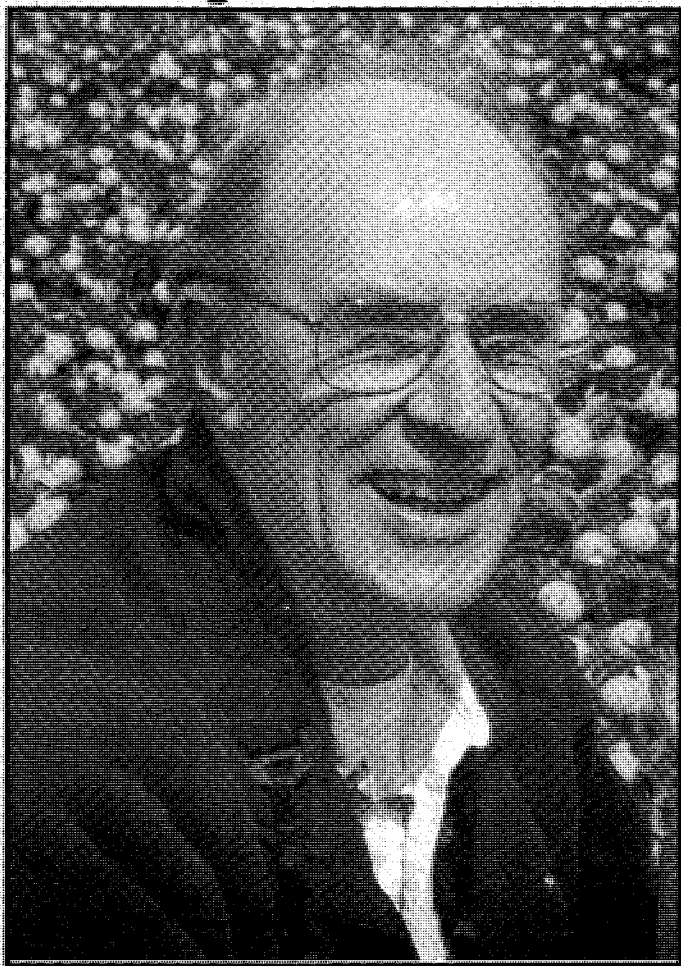

So, is there anything good on the amendment ballot? I really don't have a problem with limiting building heights. High-rises should never happen here. But the proposed "no increase in height" limit is shortsighted and much too constraining. Many older buildings were built with low ceiling heights that today feel cramped and out of date. Some new facilities like a gym or a ballroom could require a small adjustment in added height. New architectural designs that avoid the boxy, flat-topped styles of the 1960s and use high pitched roofs that have better storm wind resistance and more appealing roof lines would be stopped. Why? To protect our way of life? Hardly. This amendment, too, needs a lot more thought.

In my judgment, this rush to amend the charter is unnecessary, poorly thought through, fraught with unintended penalties on small businesses, homeowners and good design, and should be ditched, like the county planner's grandiose plans of 1970. Just vote no.

Letter from the Editor

As Election Day approaches the pace heats up. That is axiomatic for any election, but this one seems to be getting a bit warmer than some others. What with seven candidates vying for three seats and five referenda about who gets to decide what about the rules, it's way beyond tepid already and quickly heading for blistering.

These pages are ground zero for a lot of the activity and the Island Reporter intends to keep it as civilized as possible, while still giving a voice to everyone who wants to be heard.

We want to hear from you if you support a particular candidate or candidates. We are also interested in your opinions or questions about the referenda that will appear on the ballot.

We do not want to hear just how nasty, unprincipled or ignorant you might think anyone else might be, whether they are running for office or not. Please, let us know who and what you are for, rather than who or what you feel might be the work of the devil.

Election Day is Tuesday, Mar. 1 and in the week preceding we will not be printing letters to the editor concerning it.

We are also interested in what the candidates themselves have to say and are happy to publish press releases which outline positions and arguments which they espouse.

The Island Reporter does not take a stance in this election — we are not endorsing anyone or any platform. Consequently, we consider it important to provide equal opportunity to all points of view and to all candidates.

Please help us — don't let one side or faction do all the talking. At the same time, keep it positive — we are not interested in name-calling or speculation about hidden motives and we do not intend to help anyone else in that respect.

Thanks very much for your help and understanding.

To the Editor:

In your January 27 edition, Mr. Tom Gilhooley, President of COTI, explains his support for the charter amendments being presented to the voters of Sanibel on March 1. We would like to address some of the issues raised in that letter.

First, we would like to note that these amendments were not developed with public participation. There was no opportunity for the Planning Department professionals, the city attorney, neighborhood associations, or anyone else to have input to these proposed changes in the City Charter. These documents were written by six (or seven) private individuals and their private legal counsel. This does not reflect the Sanibel Way or good government.

The Sanibel Good Government Coalition has therefore asked experienced city planners and legal experts to assist in the review of these amendments. We support appropriate efforts to protect Sanibel and maintain its tradition of controlled change that keeps humans and nature in harmony. However, upon review it is apparent that the amendments as written create legitimate concern that they could have unforeseen consequences for the residents of Sanibel. In today's litigious environment, it is important to be sure that laws do not create more problems than they solve. The risks are great: property values, property rights and the financial security of the city. Furthermore, we fail to see the need to rush to judgment. Current local and state laws provide adequate protection from increased densities and high rises. The City Council cannot make any changes to the Comprehensive Plan without state approval. Even COTI admits that they know of no plans to increase densities or develop high rises. Why does COTI want us to rush to an uninformed decision to solve a problem that doesn't exist?

There is concern when referenda become the process of government. Referenda are often driven by special interests, subjected to "spin," and do not receive the learned debate and public input of the traditional legislative process. Mr. Gilhooley states that this is not "government by referendum." Well, with nine complex ballot initiatives that impact regulations, property rights and could result in significant potential litigation, that is very much Government by Referendum. We would be better served by the traditional governmental process.

The second misconception is the idea that a "single vote" of a City Council member can change everything on Sanibel. This is a scare tactic that is very disingenuous. As noted above, state law (Chapter 163 Rule 9J-5) prevents any changes to the Comprehensive Plan without state approval. Furthermore, Sanibel is in a coastal high hazard area and as such no increase in density would be allowed by the state. Again, there is no reason to rush to solve a problem that doesn't exist.

The height, impermeable area, and density charter amendments are all very complex issues that raise more questions than they resolve. It is apparent that there are many confusing issues that can be interpreted differently than COTI's advertised opinions. There are many questions: are referenda needed for variances? is a fire a natural hazard? how high is a "floor"? or "could" improvements in the bike paths along Periwinkle be prevented? The fact is that neither Mr. Gilhooley nor the writer has the final answer. The courts will be deciding the answers. This leads to uncertainty and long delays in real estate transactions. Ultimately, this can cause declining property values and prevent needed renewal and rebuilding.

Then there is Amendment No. 1. This is COTI Director Andrew Reding's personal initiative calling for more referenda on the causeway. It would require the City to have a referendum every time there is any issue regarding the causeway. And the City Council would have no authority to reach a resolution without exhaustive and financially disastrous litigation. It is conceivable that it could even prevent settlement of the current litigation.

We trust that Mr. Gilhooley and the six (or seven) drafters of these amendments are well intentioned. We also do not believe that because someone earns their living on Sanibel as a Realtor, contractor, or business owner, that they do not care about the character and lifestyle of the island. In fact I have not met a person who lives on Sanibel that would support high-rises or increased density. We need to trust that the current City Council members and Planning Commission members, just like those before them, will protect the interest of those of us who are fortunate enough to live on this beautiful piece of creation. Read the Amendments; trust your neighbors and join together for what is best for Sanibel. The real detriment to the character of Sanibel is the loss of trust and respect.

To the Editor:
Redevelopment

Redevelopment on Sanibel is an issue that we will have to face in the very near future. Although some commercial establishments are showing their age, it is the older and smaller condominiums that could present the real problem.

What is generally known

The four story height limitation on Sanibel is a myth. It can be changed by a development-friendly Planning Commission and a development-friendly City Council.

The profits to be made in tearing down older two and four story condos and replacing them with 15 or 20 story buildings would run into tens of millions of dollars.

What is generally not known

The identity of those who profit by this type of "redevelopment" would never be made public. Their privacy would be protected by law. Savvy real estate investors use Florida Land Trusts for many reasons having to do with taxes and ability to transfer property in private, but one of the major reasons is to keep their identity from being known. Only the "front man" must reveal his identity; all of the other investors have their identities legally hidden from the public. Typically, the "front man" is a law firm or one of their employees.

It is generally believed that this land trust scheme goes back to the bad old days when Florida politicians and developers worked together for mutual enrichment. It is modeled after the Illinois Land Trust concept.

What you can do

You can get together a group of friends and form a land trust. See www.warda.net/LTSC.html for details on a firm that specializes in helping you get started. The potential dollar gain is enormous.

If you find this type of profiteering offensive, you can vote to make sure it never happens. The upcoming election has candidates that say "trust me, I would never let that happen," and there are those who will make sure it never really would happen. Those who will truly protect Sanibel are Carla Johnston, Tom Rothman and Mick Denham.

To the Editor

As did all other Sanibel residents, I received a letter last week from a political action committee known as SGGC. It says that "The Sanibel community has an opportunity to once again, as they did in the election two years ago, send another strong message to the 'special interest activists' (etc)." My only "special interest" is to keep Sanibel the way I found it.

Referring to the Peoples' Choice amendments, they say "It totally eliminates the ability of Sanibel citizens and all of our property owners to appeal directly to our elected officials." They certainly didn't do their homework there. Under the three proposed amendments dealing with limiting building height, limiting the number of dwelling units on each parcel of land, and limiting how much non-vegetative structure can cover property, appeals for variances don't change from what they are right now. Sounds to me like the SGGC and the Realtors Association have the same philosophy relative to the amendments.

Once again it's a question of whom do you trust: those who don't care if we give up Sanibel's uniqueness, or those who like Sanibel just the way it is now. Remember, how high you can build isn't etched in stone. Only three of five city council members can change that regulation to permit high-rise buildings whenever they so choose. Once that vote passes, Sanibel becomes a Marco Island. You cannot take it back.

They also stated that five of the eight referenda up for vote on March 1 have been put on the ballot by a group, "by their own words, the seven smartest men on Sanibel." They even repeated it twice more. This is clearly calculated to rile the public. The fact is that no one on our charter committee ever said that; thus SGGC cannot document it. They even got the number wrong. There were six on the charter amendment committee, not seven. So it is clear that SGGC doesn't do its homework, they don't understand the charter amendments, and they are against the basic protections these amendments afford.

Sanibel's basic values, those that protect us all from overdevelopment, will be under attack. And basic values belong in our charter, just as the Bill of Rights amendments belong in the United States Constitution. Make no mistake about it, the developers who are now building high rises up and down Fort Myers have their eyes on Sanibel. If you honestly believe in keeping Sanibel out of the hands of those who would overdevelop this island simply for money, you must vote in favor of these amendments.

To the Editor:

Sanibel has been a paradise for Gillian and me since we chose to retire here. As we have learned the history of Sanibel's incorporation as a city to resist Lee County's grandiose development plans, we give thanks for those who established our city charter and gave the residents of Sanibel control of our island. We see the later development of the Sanibel Plan to control building height, density and footprint as a work of great foresight that has helped create this island jewel on the SW Florida coast.

For over 40 years there has been a planning commission and a city council that have honored the Sanibel Plan and made decisions based on its building code rules. Yes, Sanibel has grown, business has prospered, tourists in season are overflowing the streets, but we recognize that adherence to the Sanibel Plan has preserved this island's charm.

Last summer, we learned of the political change occurring on city council where we could no longer depend on a majority vote supporting the Sanibel Plan rules. So we provided two of the petition signatures that placed the Charter Amendments on the ballot.

These amendments simply move the Sanibel Plan rules (which have no legal authority) into the City Charter (which is legally binding). The rules cannot then be changed by a simple majority vote of council. Should council wish to change the rules, they will need to seek voter approval.

The following events convince us that the crisis in Sanibel government is real, and these amendments are needed: Last week we received Mr. Harrity's campaign flyer in which he promises that he will "continue to maintain the principles of the Sanibel Plan." Yet, last month, Mayor Harrity and two other councilmembers, on a 3-2 vote, ejected two members of the Planning Commission who had worked effectively for three years to support the Sanibel Plan, and, with the appearance of collusion among themselves, selected three new members who all have commercial interests on the island.

With this blatant precedent in council, we believe that the Charter Amendments are essential to give Sanibel voters, not council, the power to keep or reject the Sanibel Plan rules. This election may well be our last chance to save the Sanibel we love. Any majority on council that loosens the building code rules over the next two years will open a floodgate of development that cannot be reversed.

I will vote for Mick Denham and the other candidates who support the Charter Amendments.

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my support for Tom Rothman for City Council. A fellow engineer, Tom is a careful, independent thinker who examines issues in depth and carefully considers all angles before taking a position. He is always ready with a smile and is easy to work with. Tom feels great passion for Sanibel and will bring tremendous energy to our city.

As we know, Sanibel faces several challenges relative to our future. At this time, as never before, we need leaders who are trustworthy and transparent, with the interpersonal skills to work through problems to reach consensus. Tom is this person. Sanibel stands tall on the shoulders of the giants in our past who have protected Sanibel from overdevelopment. As we look around Florida, or drive down Summerlin, we must marvel at what has been preserved on our island. Our leaders in the past worked for the good of the many, as well as for the benefit of those to come. Help continue this preservation. Join me in helping secure our future, vote for Tom Rothman.

To the Editor:

This morning, during a lull in the day's activities, I pulled a copy (imaginary of course) of The Politicians' Guide To Dirty Tricks and turned to the chapter titled "What to do when you have nothing constructive to say." On page 7 I found the following advice: "When you have nothing to add to a debate on the real issues but want to create a diversion, think up a catchy slogan to discredit your opponents — It doesn't matter if it's true or not; the public won't know the difference anyway. One possible slogan is 'they call themselves the seven smartest men on Sanibel.' That will surely turn people off by making your opponents appear to be effete snobs (Spiro Agnew used that one) who think they are better than everyone else."

The slogan "they call themselves the seven smartest men on Sanibel" as far as I can determine, first appeared in an e-mail message from council candidate Bob Laswell to some of his supporters. It was then picked up in an island-wide mailing by Sanibel Good Government Coalition. Both the e-mail and the SGGC mailing were short on substance but loaded with shrill rhetoric.

As a member of the group of seven (actually it was only six, but who's counting) I feel compelled to speak out on the issue of our intelligence. If I had to, I would characterize us as a group of reasonably bright (no Einsteins here, but I once won a spelling bee in grade school) guys who live on Sanibel and just want to protect Sanibel from overdevelopment. Others may disagree with my assessment of our level of smarts, but that's the way I see it.

So let's keep The Politician's Guide To Dirty Tricks on the shelf where it belongs and focus this election debate on real issues like build-back, redevelopment and the future of the Planning Commission. The voters deserve nothing less.

To the Editor:

What do we need to look for from our city council? Let me offer these concerns:

Vision — What are our immediate, mid-term and long-term goals that will most affect our island's future?

Fiscal — Where are our funds coming from, where are they going, and how will our citizens' pocketbooks be affected?

Environment — What impact will council decisions have on keeping this island the sanctuary that makes Sanibel so special?

Council make-up — Have representation by members who have convictions but also have it in them to become team players, working for the best interests of our community.

Of the field of candidates looking to be on the City Council for the next four years, I recommend Mick Denham. I know him and have worked with him, and am confident that he is the best choice to make the right decisions regarding these concerns.

Concerns about Sanibel March Elections

On March 1, 2005 Sanibel voters will be voting on nine referendums and electing three councilpersons. My research indicates that these referendums are not a simple yes or no vote. The remaining referendums, mostly labeled "peoples choice", sound good at first read but are not that simple and appear to be solutions in search of a problem. These referendums deserve a no vote.

Sanibel has become Sanibel because of the forethought of leaders three decades ago who had a vision for the community and introduced stringent local zoning laws that work. This process has worked for decades and attracted like-minded people to live here. Anyone who has built or modified a building on the island knows that the codes are tough and fair. Property owners have confidence in the process because they understand that they will have a chance to present their case to dedicated volunteers and city professionals. In the event there is disagreement there is an appeal process to follow.

If the "people's choice" referendums are accepted, each zoning exception situation will be voted on at large. I do not believe the majority of voters have access to the wealth of knowledge it takes to make an informed decision affecting someone else's home or property. For that reason I cannot vote for any of the referendums that circumvent a process that is working and is not a problem. I urge voters to do the same.

Candidates who support a yes vote for the referendum have, in my opinion, a different view of Sanibel in the future. These candidates do not deserve our votes. If we begin the slippery slope of government by referendum, items more and more detailed are likely to be introduced developing governmental gridlock because we will be waiting for vote after vote on item after item. We have seen financially unsound examples of referendums here in Florida and throughout the country.

The council candidates have impressive resumes. I believe that candidates who demonstrate that the majority of their involvement is here in Sanibel deserve our consideration. My council decision criteria are down to candidates that have a majority of their involvement locally and reject government by referendum.

My conclusion is to vote no for "people's choice" referendums and influence voters to do their homework. I will vote for council candidates that will keep Sanibel's admired building process in place and rescue our city from governmental gridlock. I urge voters to do the same.

Bank Of The Islands re-launches favorite program

Bank Of The Islands is pleased to announce the re-launching of its popular "We Love Our Islands" program. The program was temporarily suspended following Hurricane Charley.

"During all the hurricane damage to our building the 'We Love Our Islands' vehicle decals, presentation check, and lobby signage were all destroyed," said Bank Of The Islands Manager Rob Lisenbee. "This provided us the opportunity to make it more fun for the winners and update the look of the program. Islanders will really like the new Dave Horton-designed decals."

To participate, you are invited to pick up a free decal during banking hours. Each week the bank staff will identify a vehicle bearing the program decal and the vehicle's license number will be posted in the bank from Monday through Friday. If the winner claims the tag number as their own, they will be able to choose an island charity to receive a $100 donation from

Bank Of The Islands. If the prize is not claimed, that $100 will be added to the winnings for the following week. The first tag number will be posted on February 14 — Valentine's Day — what better day to show the love for our islands!

"Up to this point, the 'We Love Our Islands' program has placed $11,400 in the hands of 18 worthwhile island charities," said Bank Of The Islands President Robbie Roepstorff. "We realized that, in the past, the winners chose the charity to receive the donation. To add to the excitement, now the weekly winner will also receive a limited edition silkscreen T-shirt bearing the 'We Love Our Islands' decal art. You have to win to wear one!"

All islanders are invited to stop by the bank at the corner of Periwinkle Way and Casa Ybel Road get a free "We Love Our Islands" decal and details on how you and your favorite charity can become our next lucky winners.

industry and as a heavily-advertised tourist destination through the Visitor and Convention Bureau. He also said that the working relationship between Zimomra and Stilwell could eventually lead to cost-sharing between the city and county for road maintenance.

The county, Walsh continued, might also eventually share in the cost of maintaining the Sanibel Recreation Center, whose users include about 29 percent off-

"Whose paying for those?" she asked.

Brown, who repeatedly said that the city was "outgunned" by the county, conceded the battle shortly before the vote was taken.

Mature white bird of paradise can't be cut in half

Dear Ron: I have a white bird of paradise that is about 25 feet tall now. My question is: Can I cut it down to about 10 feet without harming the plant? The previous owner didn't really take good care of it and it only has a few leaves at the very top and a very unwieldy trunk — it's not very attractive at all. I'd like to keep it but I'd like to keep it smaller and fuller.

— Elizabeth Garrett, Estero

Dear Elizabeth: At 25 feet, your white bird of paradise (Strelitzia nicolai) has exceeded the typical mature height of 20 feet. As a herbaceous plant, it is related to the banana and the traveler tree, it cannot be cut back without disfigurement and likely harm to its health.

I think you have two choices: 1) remove the plant; or 2) wait until March, feed it with palm fertilizer, allow it to grow out, transplant a pup from the base, and discard the mother plant.

By the way, both the white bird of paradise and the orange bird of paradise (Strelitzia reginae) are natives of South Africa and were introduced to the New World in the 1770s when they were discovered in the Cape of Good Hope by explorers sent by King George III of England.

The king named the orange bird of paradise "reginae," or queen, in honor of Queen Charlotte, and the white bird of paradise "nicolai," in honor of Czar Nicholas I of Russia.

The white bird of paradise has long green leaves that may reach nine to 12 inches in width. It produces flowers that are white with a blue tongue and emerge from a reddish bract, and may be up to a foot wide and tall.

Birds of paradise are adaptable to hardiness zones 9B-11 and are not salt-tolerant.

Here are some care tips for gardenias

Dear Ron: I have a gardenia plant that has grown quite large. When and how do I trim it, and how should I care for it?

— Richard Johnson, Fort Myers Beach

Dear Richard:

Where do you have the gardenia planted?

For best growth, it needs full sun most of the day to promote blooming and light shade during the rest of the day to keep the leaves green. It should be fed with a quality palm fertilizer, applied every other month from March to October, because the leaves of gardenias quickly turn yellow without adequate nutrition.

You can trim your gardenia — but by no more than one-quarter — after the threat of frost has passed (around the first of March), again after flowering has ended in May, and then in late summer or early fall. Keep the ground mulched to minimize water loss and maintain a stable soil temperature.

The gardenia (Gardenia jasminoides) is adaptable to all Florida hardiness zones, is native to China, and has low salt tolerance.

Surinam cherries are category 1 invasive exotics

Dear Ron: I want to plant some Surinam cherries in front of my house. How should I plant them and maintain them?

— John Walker, South Fort Myers

Dear John: First, I need to point out that the Surinam cherry is considered a category I invasive exotic by the Florida Exotic Pest Plant Council. Such plants are defined as "altering native plant communities by displacing native species, changing community structures or ecological functions, or hybridizing with natives."

That said, here are some general guidelines for planting and maintaining fruiting shrubs used as hedges.

Place the plants three feet on center. The planting hole should be twice as wide, but no deeper than the shrub from its soil surface to the bottom of the container.

Island Gardening

Enrich the soil with liberal amounts of peat moss and composted cow manure, set the plant, then water it in thoroughly, adjusting the plant as you go so that its soil surface is level with the ground in your garden.

Mulch the ground and water the plants daily for a week, then four times a week for two weeks, then once a week after that. Fertilize the area spring, summer and fall with a quality palm fertilizer, at which times you can lightly trim the plants into hedge form.

The Surinam cherry (Eugenia uniflora) is native to Brazil, grows in zones 9B-11, and is not salt-tolerant.

Landscape consultant Ron Simpson publishes Florida Garden magazine; the current issue is "Florida Flower Gardens" ($34.95 annually, $11.75, single issue). To ask a question or place an order, go online at www.TheFloridaGarden.com; send an e-mail to ronsimpson@earthlink.net; or write to Ron Simpson, 11691 Dawn Cowrie Drive, Fort Myers, FL 33908.

Zonta's 'Peek at the Unique' house tour coming Mar. 12

Kris Ritts, event co-chair; Gini Jones, sponsor co-chair; Jan Egeland, home owner; Susan Dunn, event co-chair; Peggy Newell, sponsor co-chair; at the house on Ferry Road.

The Zonta Club of Sanibel-Captiva is proud to present a sneak preview of the first two homes on its fourth annual Peek at the Unique to be held on Saturday, March 12. This popular house tour features intimate views of four unique island treasures.

The first stop will be on Ferry Street at the east end of Sanibel. This charming hideaway was built in the 1940s and was the residence of the postmistress in what was the original town. The post office was located next door and the ferry landed down the road. When Jan Egeland bought the house, she totally transformed it from a plain box of 900 square feet to a lovely airy home of nearly 1600 square feet. This is an excellent example of introducing charm to an historic structure. Comparison with the "before" pictures illustrates what an exceptional job of blending old and new was accomplished. Zonta's fourth time supporter Barrier Island Title will sponsor this home.

The second home is that of Kathy Boone who was the director of the native plant nursery at Sanibel Captiva Conservation Foundation for 17 years. The main focus of this stop will be to view the extensive native plant oasis created in the backyard. Boone will be speaking about the effects of Hurricane Charley on island vegetation and how native plants fared better and in many cases actually protected our island. The sponsor of this house also in the fourth year of sponsorship is Bob Wigley.

Eglend and Boone are co-owners of Periwinkle Cottage at 16640 McGregor. Truly an eclectic mix of old and new, the shop specializes in home and garden décor and gifts. Stop by and say hello but make sure you have more than a few minutes because there is so much to see! Their phone number is 454-5200.

The proceeds from this year's Peek at the Unique will support three service projects:

SanCap Audubon lecture series

Warblers, lemurs and bees that tweet, screech and buzz high in the tree tops are sharing their once hidden domain with ecotourists and scientists who have begun to wander along walkways that lead from the ground all the way up into and across the tree top canopy. Diane Kelsay and Bob Harvey, renowned nature photographers, educators and creators of "tree top trails" will present "Forest Canopies: A Bird's Eye View" at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 10 at the Sanibel Community House. This is the sixth program in the SanCap Audubon lecture series.

Kelsay and Harvey launched the company that became Egret Communications in 1986. The company was designed to serve the conservation community and the nature and culture tourism industry. Egret has been especially involved in designing infrastructure and programs to get visitors on guided experiences THROUGH forest canopies. They believe that canopy tourism can offset other, more damaging, forest economic activities and can build a relationship that protects the forest

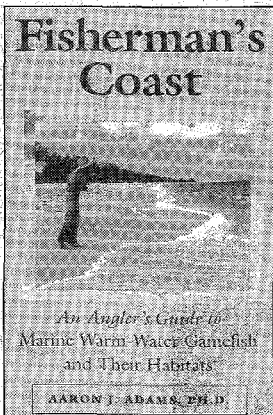

Secrets to catching local fish to be revealed at 'Ding' Darling

Dr. Aaron J. Adams, PhD, author of Fisherman's Coast: An Angler's Guide to Marine Warm-Water Gamefish and Their Habitats, will make a guest appearance at 1 p.m. on Feb. 10 in the Education Center at J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge.

Adams, a marine researcher for Mote Marine Laboratory's Charlotte Harbor Field Station, shares his knowledge about sea grass, mangroves, salt marshes, oyster bars, shorelines, beaches, sand flats, and coral reefs from the Caribbean to the Carolinas, the Gulf of Mexico to the Florida coast.

He tells you what you need to know to fish for tropical, subtropical, and warm-water species, including behavior, life cycles, and fishing tips for 25 marine game fish — red drum, spotted seatrout, permit, bonefish, snook, tarpon, barracuda, snapper, ladyfish, weakfish, bluefish, striped bass, cobia, cero mackerel, Spanish mackerel, jacks, and more.

A book-signing session will follow Adams' fishing presentation. Admission is free; the event is sponsored by the "Ding" Darling Wildlife Society as part of its 13-week Thursday Afternoon Lecture Series. For more information, call 472-1100 ext. 241.

Accompany these extraordinary conservationists as they pass over suspended walkways, glide down connecting ropes and reach elevated platforms that are hanging from towers on the branches of trees. In this "tree trekking" adventure you will be able to look canopy dwelling wildlife in the eye and see flowers that bloom a few hundred feet closer to the sun. Venturing into the canopy opens up a whole new world for people, allowing us to see the forests and ourselves in new ways. Join us as we explore forest canopies — from within the canopies — and learn how your exploration of canopies can help save the forests.

There is plenty of parking at the Sanibel Community House, 2173 Periwinkle Way, and additional parking across the street. Donations of $4 per person will be appreciated. For additional information contact program chair Elaine Jacobson at 395-1878.

LET'S TALK REAL ESTATE

Presented by Margie Davison

LOW STRESS REAL ESTATE SALES

Making a housing move gets high marks on the stress scale, whether you are buying or selling a home. Not only is there a lot of money involved, there are also many factors that can complicate or delay a real estate transaction.

A real estate professional works to minimize the stress involved in the process and to make your transaction as problem-free as possible. Your agent will facilitate the transaction by monitoring the loan, coordinating inspections and repairs, facilitating relocation issues, and working to solve any unforeseen difficulties that arise during the whole process. Once these types of issues have been appropriately handled, the agent will also help ensure a smooth transition by reminding the sellers to arrange for final utility readings and the buyers to set up new utility accounts.

Margie specializes in Sanibel, Captiva and Ft. Myers real estate. She was named Realtor of the Year by Sanibel and Captiva Assn. of Realtors in 2000 and 2002. Her new book, "How To Make Your Realtor Get You The Best Deal--South Florida Edition" is must reading if you are thinking of buying or selling. Call Margie at PMR 472-1511, or e-mail her at Margie@MargieDavison.com.

Sanibel Music Festival readies for 19th season

The Sanibel Music Festival, an island tradition, will begin its 19th consecutive season of bringing outstanding repertoire and artists who will entertain and stretch one's musical experience on Tuesday, March 1. Under the new artistic leadership of James Griffith, concerts will be performed at 8 p.m. throughout the month of March on Tuesdays and Saturdays at the intimate setting of the Sanibel Congregational Church, 2050 Periwinkle Way. Don't expect the ordinary. For ticket information and a detailed brochure, contact the Festival's Hot Line at 239-336-7999 or visit the Web site www.Sanibelmusicfestival.org.

Tuesday, March 1

Opening the season will be the Musicians from Marlboro, a touring extension of the famous Vermont Marlboro Festival. More than 25 artists travel each year representing the festival with concerts throughout the country. Many of today's leading solo and chamber music artists to American audiences including Yo-Yo Ma, Jaime Laredo, Murray Perahia, Paula Robison and Harold Wright had their careers launched in this series as well as artists now heard in the Emerson, Juilliard, and Tokyo quartets. Master cellist Marcy Rosen performs at the Sanibel Music Festival with Min-Young Kim, violin; Joseph Lin, violin; Harumi Rhodes, violin; Michi Wiancko, violin; Hung-Wei Huang, viola; Richard O'Neill, viola, and Clancy Newman, cello.

The focus of the Musicians from Marlboro is to present chamber music of rarely-heard works and masterpieces of varied instrumentation. In keeping with that spirit, living French composer Henri Dutilleux's Ainsi la Nuit for string quartet will be part of the offerings at the Sanibel Music Festival. The ensemble will also perform Mozart's String Quintet in B-flat major, K. 174, and Mendelssohn's String Octet in E-Flat Major, Op. 20.

Saturday, March 5

Quartetto di Venezia was born more than twenty years ago when its members studied together at the Venice Music Conservatory, "Benedetto Marcello." Their artistic training and philosophy was influenced by two important schools of string quartet interpretation: the famous "Quartetto Italiano," under the guidance of Piero Farulli, with whom the members studied for three years at the "Accademia Musicale Chigiana di Siena," and the Central European School of the renowned Hungarian "Vegh Quartet," under the influence of Sandor Vegh and Paul Szabo.

Members of the quartet include Andrea Vio, violinist; Alberto Battiston, violinist; Luca Morassutti, violist; and Angelo Zanin, cellist. What makes this group unique is their concentration on the quality of sound, bowing technique and vibrato, and their emphasis on the individuality of each instrument. They will perform Boccherini's Quartet in D Major, Op. 52. No. 2, Malipiero's Quartet No. 8 "Per Elisabetta," Wolf's Italian Serenade, and Verdi's Quartet in E minor.

Tuesday, March 8

Pacifica Quartet is one of today's more dynamic string quartets. The New York Times has called the Quartet "brilliant" and "astounding." Celebrating its 10th anniversary, the members of the Pacifica Quartet share a unique history of personal and musical friendship. First violinist Simin Ganatra, born and raised in southern California, initially played with cellist Brandon Vamos and violinist Sibbi Bernhardsson while they were all teenagers. Bernhardsson later brought his good friend Masumi Rostad to the group. Originating on the West Coast, where it played many of its earliest concerts together, the Quartet took its name from the awe-inspiring Pacific Ocean. Wu Han returns to the Festival to join the Quartet for an unforgettable performance of the Shostakovich Piano Quintet in G minor, Op. 57. Other works to be performed are Haydn's Quartet in D Major, Program 71 No. 1, and Carter's Quartet No. 5.

Saturday, March 12

As a teenager, Orion Weiss stepped in with less than a day's notice in March 1999 to replace Andre Watts in a Baltimore Symphony performance of Shostakovich's Piano Concerto No. 2. He was immediately re-invited to perform the Tchaikovsky Concerto with the Symphony in October of that same year. Now 24, Weiss has established himself as an extraordinary young talent who exhibits maturity, depth, and remarkable technical skills. "Every so often, a talent comes along that is so natural, genuine and exciting you can hardly believe your ears," said the Cincinnati Enquirer about Weiss.

In addition to his solo work, Weiss has developed a keen interest in chamber music repertoire. In June 2003, he attended the Amelia Island Chamber Music Festival on a fellowship and performed with cellists Lynn Harrell, Alisa Weilerstein, and Christopher Rex and clarinetist David Shifrin, among others. Weiss currently studies with Emanuel Ax at the Juilliard School in New York. He will perform Liszt's Mephisto Waltz No. 4, Scriabin's Piano Sonata No. 9, Bach's French Suite No. 1 in D minor, and Beethoven's Piano Sonata No. 29 in B flat Major ("Hammerklavier").

Tuesday, March 15

The Amadeus Trio, considered a world-class ensemble, "Yes, world-class!" proclaimed the Los Angeles Times, has celebrated 15 years of rave reviews to enthusiastic audiences throughout the world. The trio occupies a position among the foremost piano trios in the world. Recognized for their virtuosity and superb musicianship, the three artists — pianist Marian Hahn, violinist Timothy Baker, and cellist Jeffrey Solow — also enjoy award-winning solo careers.

The Amadeus Trio has appeared with regularity in major cultural centers and summer chamber festivals throughout the United States and Europe. During the spring of 1992, the trio gave its Lincoln Center debut in Alice Tully Hall, a performance that elicited spontaneous applause and shouts from the audience between movements, a treatment rarely accorded any debut in New York. They will perform Ravel's Trio in A minor, Op. 70/1, Korngold's Trio in D Major, Op. 1, and Piazzola Tangos.

Saturday, March 19

The Prazak Quartet, established in 1972 when its members were students at the Prague Conservatory, is considered one of the leading international chamber music ensembles today, arguably the finest group operating out of the Czech Republic.

Known for "melt in your seat" gorgeous music, the Prazak Quartet consists of Vaclav Remes, 1st violin; Vlastimil Holec, 2nd violin; Josef Kluson, viola; and Michal Kanka, cello. All have dedicated their careers to perfecting their ensemble. They play largely from memory and live and breathe the repertoire they play. Their program honors themes of homeland, independence, and folklore by composers from their native Czech Republic — Dvorak, and Janacek. At the Sanibel Music Festival they will play one of their signature pieces Janacek's autobiographical Quartet No. 2. "Intimate Letters"

In addition, they will perform Haydn's String Quartet in G-minor, Op. 74, No. 3 "Rider", and Dvorak's Quartet in G-Major, Op. 106.

Tuesday, March 22

The International Sejong Soloists, a New York-based ensemble, was created in 1995 under the musical direction of Hyo Kang, a renowned violin professor at the Juilliard School. A conductor-less string ensemble, it is comprised of today's leading young soloists performing orchestral works, solo, and chamber repertoire. Back by popular demand, the ensemble last appeared at the 2001 Sanibel Music Festival.

To Kang, the fact that the Sejong International Soloists perform without a conductor is not such a remarkable feat. What does strike Kang as impressive is that each member must be an exceptional player. Collectively the ensemble must develop a group creativity and cohesiveness which is a rare accomplishment. "As artistic director, I select music and give directions," said Kang, a native of Seoul. "But I value their creativity. Not only do they have to be excellent technically, but they have to know how to work together, how to be excellent chamber players." The ensemble will perform Penderecki's Sinfonietta for Strings (1990/91), Bach-Stokowski's Air from Overture No. 3 in D Major, and Tchaikovsky's Serenade in C Major, Op. 48.

Tickets may be purchased for the seven concert series at $165; three Saturday series at $75; and four Tuesday series at $110 by contacting the Sanibel Music Festival, P.O. Box 1623, Sanibel FL, 33957-1623 or by calling 239-336-7999. Single tickets may be purchased by mail or phone and are available by check only at Bailey's General Store and Sanibel Bookshop on Sanibel.

The Sanibel Music Festival, celebrating its 19th season, presents world renowned artists during the month of March at the Congregational church on Sanibel Island. Incorporated in 1987 as a non-for-profit organization, its mission is to present classical music of the highest standard at affordable prices and to promote the careers of young artists through performance opportunities.

Music coming to BIG ARTS

The Pontremoli Trio

The Pontremoli Trio will be on stage at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 10, at Schein Performance Hall, BIG ARTS. Anita Pontremoli, pianist; Lawrence Angell double bass; and Ray Gniewek, violinist; join together to create a memorable evening of beautiful music. The program will include works of Haydn, Strauss, Schumann, Ravel and Ginastera. Familiar to Sanibel music patrons, Ms. Pontremoli is an active performer, recording artist and a member of the Cleveland Institute of Music Conservatory faculty for 25 years as well as Head of the Collaborative Piano Department. With special studies in piano literature and chamber music at Yale University College of Music and the Giuseppe Verdi Conservatory in Italy, Pontremoli collaborates with two seasoned artists for this special concert.

Lawrence Angell who is the retired principal bass for the Cleveland Orchestra, has appeared with many orchestras including the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra, where he also leads the double bass section in a series of coaching, private lessons and master classes. He is a frequent performer of solo and chamber music and was Music Director of the 1997 Scotia Festival of Music, in Halifax, Nova Scotia. He has been a guest artist of the Sarasota Music Festival and currently performs with various chamber groups. He is an active teacher and was appointed to the faculty of the Hawaii Contrabass Festival in 2002 and 2004 and has been head of the double bass department of the Cleveland Institute of Music.

Ray Gniewek, violinist, retired as concert master with the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra after service for more than 40 years. Gniewek was just 25 years old when he joined the orchestra in 1957 as its first American-born concertmaster. When he retired at the close of the 2000 season, only three of his fellow orchestra members had been at the Met longer.

This concert is sponsored by the West Wind Inn. Tickets available at $26 per person.

Jon Weber - Best New Star, 2005, Jazz Album of the Year

It will be a wonderful night when Master Pianist Jon Weber takes the stage at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 15 at Schein Performance Hall, BIG ARTS.

A spectacular solo pianist, Weber brilliantly crafts spontaneous improvisations that easily place him in the rarefied company of today's elite jazz musicians. Weber's musical passion, plus absolute pitch and recall, surfaced at age three on a toy organ. Growing up he internalized 2000 standards from his Grandma's piano rolls, reharmonizing, improvising and constantly shuffling the deck rhythmically and harmonically. By age 19, his jazz quintet (all original music) had opened for many big names at various major summer jazz festivals. Since 1989, Weber has performed a solo gig at Chicago's Four Seasons Hotel.

Weber is also a musical historian and raconteur and accompanies his playing with interesting tidbits of musical history. He has released many CDs, the most recent, Simple Complex, has been voted by critics as 2004 Best Jazz CD. The piano-trumpet duet "No More Words" with Roy Hargrove recorded Simple Complex was named by JAZZIZ Best of CD this month, February 2005.

Jon Weber is a virtuoso pianist with outstanding technique plus boundless imagination and enthusiasm who is bound to make a big impression on the international jazz scene.

This concert is generously sponsored by John and Mary Jo Boler. Tickets available at $26 per person. All concert ticket holders will be invited to a reception following the concert. BIG ARTS, (239)-395-0900, at 900 Dunlop Road.0

Beachview Men's Golf Association

By Ed O'Neil

The calendar is moving a whole lot faster than your average pool cage replacement company. If you get lucky now you won't get one in time for hurricane season this year.

Anyway, time is flying and the big reminder came this week when the Beachview Men's Golf Association reached the mid-point of what may be its most interesting season.

At the end of January, 61 different players — three quarters of the membership — had won prizes in what has been a balanced set of tournaments and a lot of razor-thin victories.

On top of that, half the members (42) had scored at least one first-place finish.

Many members are just arriving and getting active so the competition should heat up more in the coming weeks.

Dean Henderson is one of the recent arrivals and he joined Tom Ware, Chuck Bye and Bob Ritchlin in winning the Jan. 29 variable better ball event with 104 points.

Dun Hummel's team of Philip Jones, Guy Tober and Jim Gorman won a scorecard playoff at 112 for second place. They nosed out Ken Gillett, Ken Karasin, John Moores and Dick Grant.

Winter in South Florida? You can sum it up in a couple of sentences.

Temperature occasionally drop into the 33 to 49 degree range.

Housewives bring in their orchids and pets but permit their husbands to go out at sunrise to chase a golf ball. Priorities!

The windless chill of Jan. 25 did not bother a couple of hearty men of the soil from Indiana, Bill Blankenship and Bud Ristow, who joined forces with Don Hummel to pile up 41 points in the Beachview Men's Golf Association nine-hole outing.

This was another one of those Very Modified Stableford point tournaments which award prizes for proof that you are alive, adds stuff for bogeys and lets in count from there.

Stu Mertz, Joe Hoffmann and Ken Karasin came in just a point behind at 40. Bob Mooney, Tom Ware, Dave Bugby and Dick Arnould were third with 38.

LCEC lends ospreys a hand

Scott Robertson of the Lee County Electric Cooperative attaches an osprey platform to the top of a strangler fig in the Native Plant Nursery on the grounds of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation.

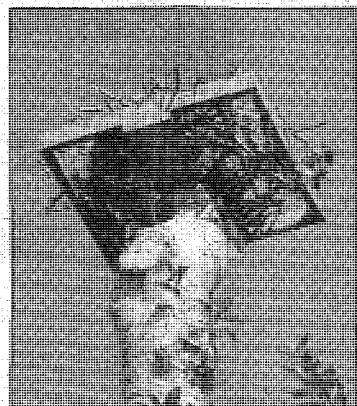

A pair of ospreys had been trying unsuccessfully for some weeks to build a nest in the tree, said Beth DeGrauwe of the Nursery. Watching the pair carrying twigs in a futile effort to establish their nest caused concern at SCCF and among passers-by on the Sanibel-Captiva Road. SCCF put out an appeal for help to LCEC, and Robertson showed up when he had a break between customer service calls.

Photos by Jenny Burnham

Jim Williams, bird-watcher and member of the Osprey Society, praised LCEC technicians for their commitment to helping island wildlife. "There's only a few of them," he said. "They don't seek a lot of recognition for what they do. It's their island, too."

Once the platform was up, the ospreys made good progress with their nest.

Sanibel is not a destination shopping area:

City Council

A shopping destination for daytrippers, either now or in the future or when the areas of San Carlos Boulevard and Miner's Corner are further built up, is not in Sanibel's interest if public policy prevails.

Summing up discussion of commercial growth on the islands at a special meeting last Friday, Mayor Fred Valtin said: "I gather there is concurrence that we wish to reaffirm previous public policy that Sanibel not become a destination shopping area and to the extent that we legally, feasibly and practically can do so, that we come to grips with this (policy)."

Causeway tolls reveal tourism stats

The Sanibel tolls are the true measure of tourism in Lee County, according to Lee County toll director, Carol Goldwasser as she broke down the monetary figures as to who paid the full three bucks and who purchased the discount stickers to enjoy the sand, surf, and sun of Sanibel.

According to Goldwasser, 1,311,004 drivers paid the full $3 round trip toll. The figure represents 40.8 percent of the total traffic crossing the causeway in 1994.

"That adds up to nearly $6 million in revenues for Lee County," Goldwasser said.

According to Goldwasser, the number of people who paid the $3 toll is down slightly from the previous two years that posted 1,315,307 in 1993 and 1,282,963 in 1992.

However, the decrease does not show the total number of cars that have passed through the causeway gates. "3,209,764 vehicles passed over the causeway in 1994 and that is an increase of 1.3 percent over 1993 which shows that 3,169,915 vehicles passed over the causeway," Goldwasser said.

Visitors and residents alike are entitled to purchase the six-month stickers at $15 and annual stickers at $25 which allows for those to pass through the tolls with only a 50 cent fee.

"Typically, visitors don't pay for the stickers, so the number of people who paid for the $3 toll is a good indicator of tourism traffic," Goldwasser added.

Stormy skies at Council

More than 60 people gathered in MacKenzie Hall Tuesday for the second reading and public hearing on the controversial "Dark Skies" ordinance. After more than seven and a half hours of intense debate, often turning caustic toward the end of the afternoon, the council voted 4-1 with Councilmember Steve Brown dissenting, to continue the discussion at a future date.

Much of the morning discussion centered on clarifying details of the proposed ordinance, as questions regarding bulbs, dock lighting, holiday decorations, security, and the turtle lighting ordinance emerged once again. Councilmember Andrew Reding, sponsor of the proposed ordinance, reiterated that the "Dark Skies" ordinance does not change existing dock, holiday, or turtle lighting ordinance language, and that the Sanibel Factory stores had recently changed their parking lot lighting to full cut-off fixtures at the request of the shopping center's security. Reding also gave a brief presentation depicting "the good, the bad, and the ugly" in outdoor lighting in Sanibel, citing some locations, such as Sun Trust Bank and Colonial Bank as examples of good, aesthetically pleasing, full cut-off lighting.

Island resident wins geography bee

Canterbury 8th grader Sarah Hart Fishburne knows her way around the world figuratively. Her knowledge helped her win the school's National Geographic Bee championship. During the difficult 40-minute competition, Fishburne out-answered nine other contestants. She will now complete a written test and hopes to answer enough questions correctly to assure a berth for the next level of competition.

Sarah Hart Fishburne is the daughter of Rev. Donald and Mrs. Sarah Fishburne of Sanibel.

example, can be enacted through a super majority vote of four councilmembers.

"Four people can change it and I think it needs to be protected," Councilwoman Judy Workman said.

The action came at the request of Sanibel resident Armand Ball, who suggested City Attorney Ken Cuyler draft a letter explaining the consequences of implementing them. Council voted 4-1 Tuesday to direct Cuyler to do so, with Councilman Jim Jennings voting no.

"Certain items on here are confusing people," Ball said. "The city attorney could put in simple language what would be the effect of those items."

Councilmember Steve Brown hesitated to endorse the suggestion, saying such a letter might be misconstrued by voters.

"A mailing from the city might be interpreted as the city giving support to the referendum," he said.

Mayor Marty Harrity suggested including a disclaimer on the form letter, informing voters that it should not be seen as an endorsement by the city of the proposals. Cuyler said he would submit a draft letter for council approval during the public hearing scheduled for 9 a.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 15 at MacKenzie Hall.

City Manager Judie Zimomra said the letter should educate the public but not take a position on the matter. The city has done this type of mailing before, she pointed out, mentioning the referendum on the purchase of Pond Apple Park in November 2001 as an example.

Mayor Marty Harrity said discussion is required before making changes to the city's Land Development Code. But resident Barbara Cooley responded that council acted to cut off debate when it voted 3-2 not to include the amendments on the March 1 ballot. Walsh and his co-authors had to circulate petitions throughout the community in order to get them on it, she said.

"I am not concerned about a lack of debate," said Walsh, who is not seeking re-election. "I think we'll have debate coming out of our ears, which is wonderful."

Sanibel resident David Berger said that most people in the community don't know what the amendments are and don't want to take the time to read them to find out.

"Yes it's on the Internet and looks lovely on the (city) Web page, but then you have to get a magnifying glass to read it," Ball said.

Students from Denmark and Indiana at CROW

The Clinic for the Rehabilitation of Wildlife on Sanibel recently welcomed two new externs to join the other four students currently working at CROW and learning about wildlife medicine.

Kirsten Homkjaer, traveled from her hometown of Jutland, Denmark, which is in the city of Vejle, to Sanibel and will be at CROW for two months. While she has been to Florida for holidays, this is her first visit to Sanibel, and she is excited to learn more about wildlife medicine and care. Kirsten is a fourth-year veterinary student at the Royal Veterinary and Agricultural University in Copenhagen, Denmark. The veterinary program is a five year program and upon graduation, she hopes to work in small animal practice. Kirsten wanted to expand her knowledge in the area of wildlife medicine and searched the web for education programs, such as CROW's. There are very few opportunities to learn about wildlife medicine in Denmark, and with as many different species being cared for at CROW, and Kirsten is very excited about the next two months.

Megan Stockberger, also a first time visitor to Sanibel, arrived at CROW recently and will be working and learning about wildlife for a month. Megan grew up in Sullivan, Indiana and graduated last May from Oakland City University in Oakland City, Indiana with a major in biology. She has been exploring masters programs in animal behavior, and felt an experience at CROW might help her make some decisions in this area of study. Megan loves animals and is excited about learning at CROW with Dr. PJ Deitschel and Dr. Amber McNamara, who also grew up in Indiana.

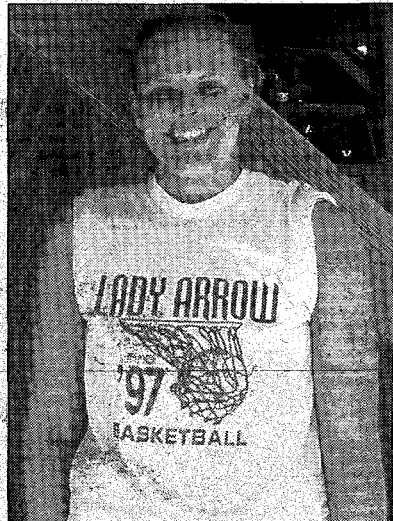

During 2004, CROW had 42 students visit, work and learn for periods of time ranging from four weeks to one year. They represented 34 different educational institutions, including Ireland, Scotland and Peru. The challenges are many in treating the ever-growing wildlife patient load at CROW and the students are an integral part of caring for CROW's 3,500 patients each year.

Established in 1968, CROW is one of the nation's leading wildlife rehabilitation hospitals for tropical native and migratory wildlife. A nonprofit veterinary hospital, CROW provides medical care for 3,500 injured, sick and orphaned wildlife patients each year from all of Lee County, seven days a week, 365 days a year.

CROW relies exclusively on private donations to operate. Gifts can be mailed to CROW at PO Box 150; Sanibel, FL 33957. For more information about CROW, contact Birgie Vertesch, Director of Development at 472.3644, or via the web at www.crowclinic.org.

REDstart fingerlings arrive at Marine Lab

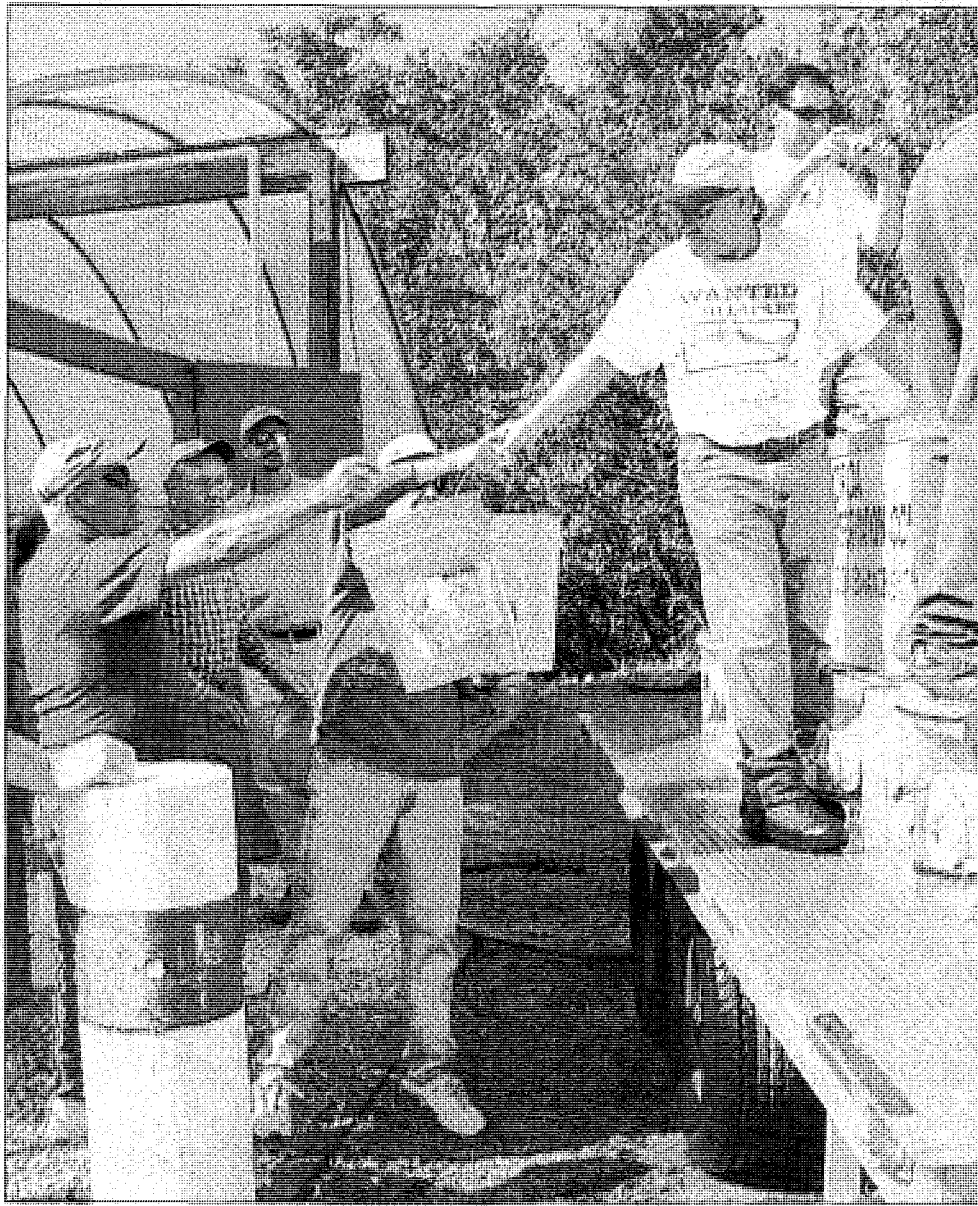

By Jenny Burnham
jburnham@breezenewspapers.com

An excited crowd of volunteers and staff welcomed the arrival of between 5,000 and 7,000 redfish fingerlings at the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation's Marine Laboratory.

The fingerlings are part of the lab's REDstart habitat study, a project that surveys redfish habitats to determine optimum environments for the species. When they have grown to a suitable size, the juveniles will be tagged and released into Pine Island Sound.

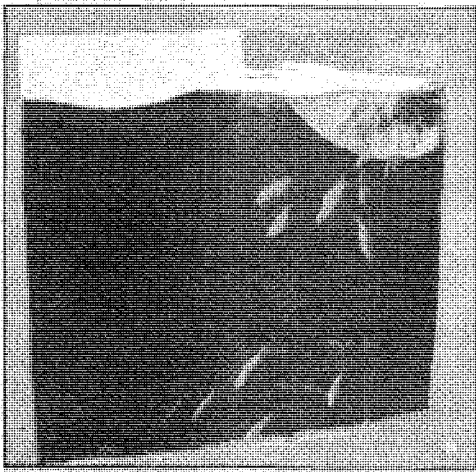

Florida Fish and Wildlife transported the fingerlings to the lab from a state-run hatchery in Port Manatee. On their arrival, the fish were acclimated to water conditions in the vats where they will live by gradually replacing the water in the travel containers with water from the project system.

Once the juveniles adjusted to temperature and salinity conditions, the volunteers moved them to their new home using what Florida Sea Grant Marine Agent Bob Wasno called with a smile, "a high-tech system:" a bucket brigade.

SCCF's Marine Lab project REDstart volunteers form a bucket brigade to transfer juvenile redfish from a travel container to the vats where the fish will live at the Marine Lab. When the fish reach a length of approximately 10 inches, they will be tagged and released into Pine Island Sound.

- Programs aiding local efforts to combat human trafficking in Southwest Florida, as well as support to Zonta International's anti-trafficking project in Eastern Europe.

Peek at the Unique sponsors are featured in the event program and publicity. This year, Zonta is encouraging sponsoring business to offer ticket-holders discounts that will encourage attendees to eat or shop on the day of the Tour. There are a range of sponsorship opportunities ranging from house sponsorships at $1,500 to program sponsors at $250 and $100, and food sponsors. For more information on sponsorship opportunities, contact Gini Jones at 699-4545 or at ZontaPeek@comcast.net.

Tickets for the event, which will go on sale in mid-February, are $45. Peek at the Unique has been sold out all three years since its inception. Attendees from past years will soon be receiving a post card reminder. The reservation phone line will be included in an upcoming article.

The Zonta Club of Sanibel-Captiva is a service organization of professional women working together to provide hands-on assistance, advocacy, and funds to strengthen women's lives on the islands in Lee County and around the world through Zonta International. Listen closely and you'll hear the sound of chaos.

First, there was Hurricane Charley. Now, chaos strikes again. This time in the form of proposed amendments that are presented in a less than orderly, muddled kind of way.

Proposed Charter Amednments 4, 5 and 6 focusing on building density, height and land coverage could require that, in the event a non-conforming building is damaged more than 50 percent, rebuilding will be put to a public vote. What would happen if people voted against your wishes to rebuild? How woould your home or business be affected? What are your property rights?

- Did you know that more than 70 percent of the homes and condos on Sanibel Island don't conform to Code? That virtually ALL homes built before 1979 are nonconforming?
- The amendments would take away governing responsibilities from city council and do away with public hearings.
- Waiting for costly special elections would make rebuilding a time-consuming chore.

These amendments do not provide for an orderly build-back after an emergency, so your property could lie in disrepair - unusable - for who knows how long and at what cost. A real rat's nest.

Now, proponents of these amendments and others from Camp Chaos will tell you that the change will protect our island from over-development or high-rises. Not so. That's just a scare tactic. Sanibel Island is already 90 percent built out, and present laws and zoning will not permit high-rises or over-development.

As it stands now, our city council, through staff recommendations and public-hearings, votes on rebuilding procedures that are required to conform to all flood zone and building requirements.

Let's stick to what works to maintain our fabulous Island lifestyle.

Read the amendments very carefully, if you can actually make it through the mumbo-jumbo. Do it today.

Defeat the proposed Charter Amendments 4, 5 and 6 on March 1.
