

The above photo shows a number of tents that were practically torn from the flying shrapnel.

MORGAN EXPLOSION - OCTOBER 4, 1918

Here we see an injured woman being taken to a hospital.

THE MORGAN EXPLOSION - OCTOBER 4, 1918

At the time the Red Cross began assembling tents for the homeless, the injured and the dead, investigators were sent to all the hospitals which the injured were known to have been taken to, and made also to undertake the office of the Federal Compensation Commission to secure the names of the dead and injured. This had to be done in order that the Red Cross might be able to answer questions that were being presented by relatives, friends and neighbors. Information was given out at the Red Cross very early in the family aid or rehabilitation work and later at the family aid or rehabilitation work and later at the family aid or rehabilitation work.

On Sunday the problem of feeding the people was done in a generous manner and for the most part in the same manner as Saturday. There was not a great deal of shuffling in the refugees on Saturday so that more than half of them found their way back to Perth Amboy so that more than half of them found their way back to Perth Amboy so that more than half of them found their way back to Perth Amboy.

SCENES FROM THE MORGAN EXPLOSION - OCTOBER 4, 1918

REFUGEES FROM THE MORGAN EXPLOSION - OCTOBER 4, 1918

YESTERDAY AND TODAY

Yesterday and today the scenes from the explosion were repeated in many ways. The homeless and injured were still being cared for, and the search for the bodies of the dead continued.

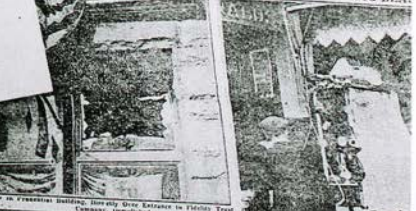

SEARCH FOR BODIES

The search for bodies of the victims of the explosion is continuing. Many bodies have been recovered, but many are still missing.

FATAL SUMMARY OF HOSPITALS

No. of cases treated	27
No. of deaths	24
No. of deaths from pneumonia	15
No. of deaths from tuberculosis	7
No. of deaths from other causes	2
No. of deaths from unknown causes	0

WINDOWS WERE SMASHED IN THE CITY BY BIG BLAST

WINDOWS WERE SMASHED IN THE CITY BY BIG BLAST

WINDOWS WERE SMASHED IN THE CITY BY BIG BLAST

The explosion caused significant damage to buildings in the city, with many windows shattered. The search for survivors and the care of the injured continued.