HANDLE

CARE

Directions: Open carefully. Read each page thoroughly and continue through to the end.

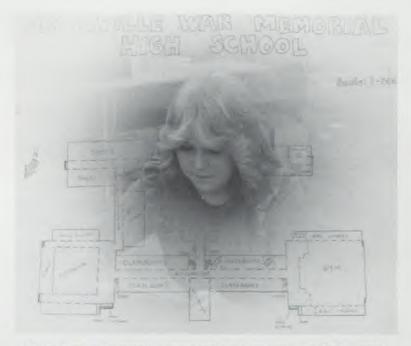

Even though it's not always asked for, someone is always giving directions: how to make Chicken Cordon Bleu, a guide to moneymaking, directions to put together a bike, etc . . .

What about directions? What directions are each of our lives taking? Are we going "south of the border" to become mercenaries in Latin America? How about north to visit Santa Claus? Maybe we could go west and follow the eternal sun to California. If we dig far enough east, we might hit China.

Every member of the graduating class of 1983 will follow his own personal path. We'll all just jump in our cars or on a Magic Bus and go in whatever direction we decide to.

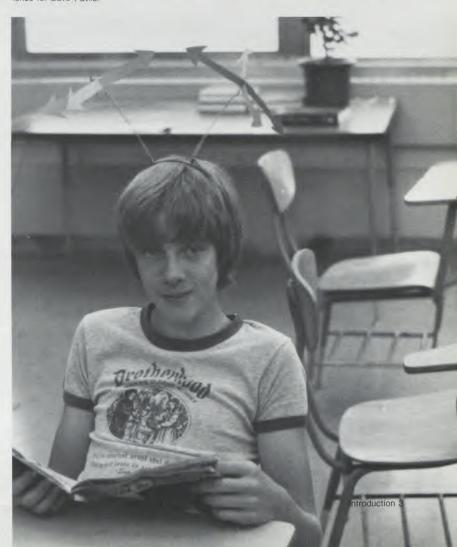

We have learned the formula for success and we will do the guiding. It's time for the class of '83 to be giving the directions.

Because the 1982-83 school year is so power packed, batteries are not included.

BELOW: Sophomore confusion or thoughts directed from another world could be the reasons for these unusual diddly-boppers. Whatever he's receiving, SWMHS seems to be a pleasant experience for Dave Pavlic.

IMPORTANT

High school is usually the first time in a student's life when he or she begins to seriously question the meanings of important things in life. SWMHS is no exception.

"When's this period over?"

"What time is it anyway?"

"How was that party Saturday?"

"Who's he going out with now?"

"Where did we come from?"

QUESTIONS

Where did we come from?!? "Our mommies' tummies," the recombination of DNA, our American heritage, and more?

A part of that heritage, the part that made thirteen years of education mandatory, gave us the high school. Our parents remind us that the years we spend in high school can be the best years of our lives. And it isn't only the academic part of course. Could that soggy, grinding feeling be . . . (gulp) love? And what about our friends? Friends are an important part of high school, often the part we dread leaving the most. Leaving? But where are we going-after we travel through the halls of SWMHS one more time?

ABOVE: Resting against the backdrop of spring, Mary Ellen Campbell and Bill Zrebiec share a smile that conveys the direction of their feelings.

LEFT: Would the traces of where we come from influence talent? The craftsmanship and style of Kathy Yin surely attest to that possibility.

BOTTOM LEFT: As Tim Coman directs Denise Santiago to the bookshelves, she discovers how much diversity even a library contains.

BELOW: From the map in his book, Tom DiBenedetto wanders north, south, east and west as his mind takes an imaginary tour of countries spanning the globe.

A CLASS WITH

This is our year, a year with more direction. While speaking of directions, the class of '83 wishes to give some helpful hints on how to achieve success in the high school to the classes of '84, '85, '86, etc...

- 1. Drop out.
 - No, no seriously now . . .
- Don't go into the bathroom without dark glasses and a can of aerosal spray.
- Spend at least an hour and a half a night on homework for each major subject. A half hour will do for gym.
- 3. Do not enter the B and A hallway intersection unarmed.
- Bribe teachers. This includes laughing at all of their jokes.

BELOW: Never at a loss for words, Mary Roma directs some after-school energy into yearbook revision.

BELOW: Every yard counts to the SWMHS Bomber defense. Coach Barnes demonstrates punting technique to ensure getting those extra yards.

MORE DIRECTION

- Buy shin guards and face masks for rainy day line-soccer games. And of course . . .
- 6. Join the yearbook staff.

The list could go on and on, but we wouldn't want to give all our secrets away, now would we?

The individual members of each class have been finding methods of surviving and even succeeding here at SWMHS. As each student finds out for himself, no one really needs to take our suggestions seriously. Yet it is no accident that the individuals in the class of '83 have grown through their years at SWMHS into something much more than the sum of their numbers.

And there's no stopping a class with that much direction.

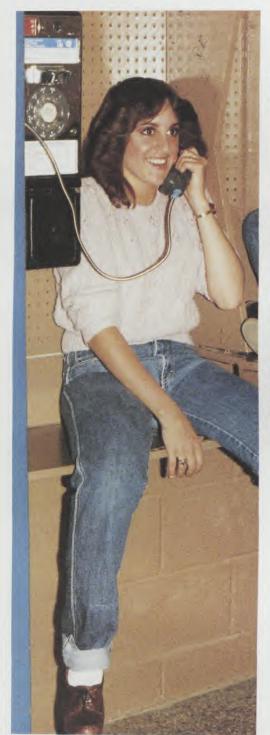

ABOVE: Why is Diane Poweska so happy? She thinks that she's enroute for a good grade in Driver's Ed.

ROUTES OUT OF SWMHS

LEFT: The smile on Connie Kalamaras' face indicates that she has somewhere exciting to go.

BELOW: The after-school help of Dr. Marotta catches Ted Wedekind and Frank Auriemmo on where their math class has gone.

"And where do you think you're going?"

Out, Mom. Just out."

Where do you think you're going? College, trade school, Madison Avenue, the moon. Anything at all is possible. In this world of ever-advancing technology, the moon is not such a big deal anymore.

The entire guidance department was busy all year assisting each senior decide the direction he or she should pursue. Many choose to attend a university after high school, but that's just one avenue. Hundreds of girls have graduated from SWMHS alone with their beautician's licenses. Computers, used in practically every job imaginable, are opening up many new opportunities for those entering the job market today. As long as people continue to drive cars, those cars are going to break down. Who is going to fix them? Good mechanics often begin in a school auto shop.

No matter what classes a student takes in high school, they can all help prepare him or her for the outside world and what it has to offer. And everyone knows SWMHS students go places.

INS, OUTS, AND UPS

ABOVE: Before striking up the band, the new director, Mr. Shaner, gives some pointers to the members of the brass section.

BELOW: Fashion direction is always on the move. Coincidentally, Liz Hall and Tina Kupsch buzz through study hall as look-alikes.

With her first day at SWMHS, now as a teacher, Miss Makwinski receives the standard equipment, an attendance book and an apple. As always, this school year began some new programs and altered others. Did we ever have early dismissal to attend a football game before September, 1982? Now that's increasing school spirit.

Readjustments are going on all over Sayreville. Dr. Parnell has become Superintendant of Schools with Mr. Bauer as her assistant. Closer to us, Mr. Reichenbach has just moved up from the junior high to become vice-principal. Within the school, new peer writing groups have been set up and Advanced Placement English has been added. It's becoming more evident that people are taking pride in their school clean-up committee.

If only there could be a world cleanup committee. The universe is going through its own disturbances. The recurrent crisis in the Middle East, Reaganomics, the football #1 strike; so what else is new? The tremors that jolt the most severely though, are what's happening here in New Jersey. The fact that the driving age may be raised to 18 doesn't bother those who already have a drivers' license, but it does concern the younger students. Something that does affect everyone in the school is in the raising of the drinking age to 21. If a night club has a bar inside, this prevents someone who may not drink from even getting in to see a band.

Who can predict what other innovations will occur? Like Bob Dylan said, all we know is "the times, they are achangin"."

ABOVE: The loneliness of the essay writer could be a thing of the past at SWMHS. Mike Shymanski, Linda Loughman, Lori Leccese, Scott Paul, and Walter Starzec enjoy each others' help with revision.

RIGHT: The transfer from the junior high to SWMHS gives Mr. Kitzke the opportunity to lead his students in a new educational direction.

BOTTOM: Female "Nine to Five" auditioners, move over. The somewhat unconventional Dennis Leary and Jim Kiernan direct their energy into Typing 1.

BELOW RIGHT: The Student Council led the school in a new direction in the spring of '82 when it kicked off a campaign to keep the school clean.

DAZE

The beginning of another school year, already. Sophomore stomachs are sloshing around inside sophomore bodies. Five minutes after the late bell, they are sure that they will be the only ones left in the hallway looking for room A-55. The incoming juniors are almost exuberant that there is now someone more vulnerable than they are. It's their turn to dish out the viciousness in line soccer. Seniors? They would rather just turn off the alarm and wait until June to graduate.

Everything we do has a beginning, ripe with anxiety and anticipation. This year could bring the beginning of a deluge of Steno I homework, the advent of U.S. History II chapter outlines, or the time to start shopping for a college. The 1982-83 school year at SWMHS is only one more beginning and it's just about to start!

The homeroom bell finally rings. And they're off! The trash compactor of a hallway is already in motion. Everyone passes from class to class in a daze today. That's because it's a dream. Yeah...it must be a dream. I'm still in bed. Summer just couldn't be over.

A-MAZE OF MEMORIES

"It's a poor sort of memory that only works backwards."

-Lewis Carroll from Alice in Wonderland

Oh, it's not really that bad. It's gratifying to look back to September and think about how great this year was. There was Homecoming, admission to the college of your choice, the prom, even graduation.

Now think back even farther. Remember how you cried on the first day of kindergarten? Well, maybe you didn't cry. How about grammar school with its frilly dresses and polyester pants? That was nothing like SWMHS, with its continuing maze of career days, SAT Saturdays, carnation days, and lab days.

Whether it's the last day of your senior year, 2:30 on a Friday, the last day of summer vacation, or the end of a three day weekend, each ending is followed by a beginning. See, it's not really that bad.

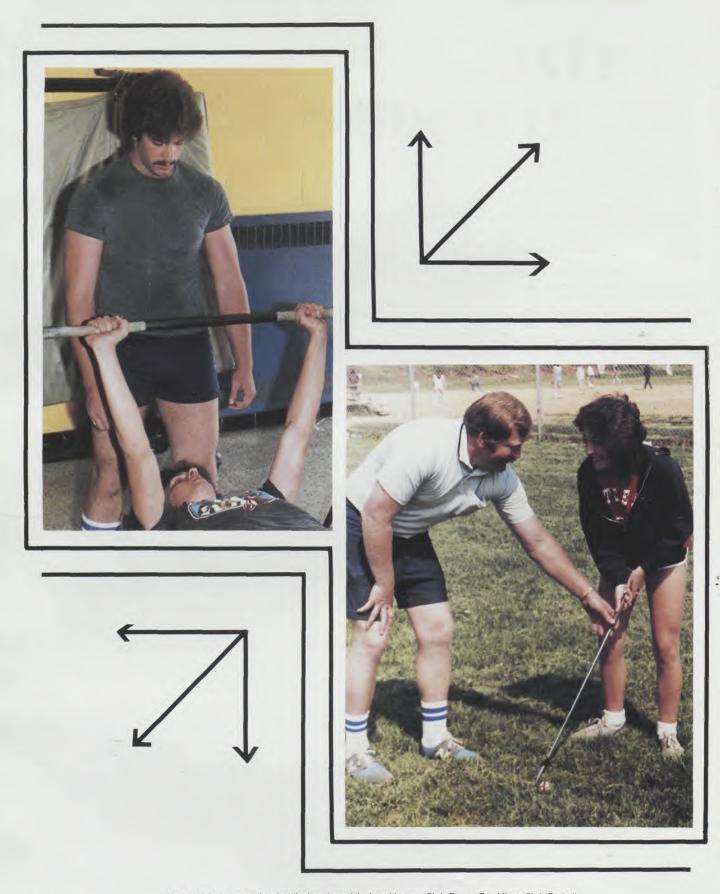

UPPER RIGHT: 10, 9, 8, . . . The period is almost over as Jim McCracken and Lisa Downes aim their thoughts in individual directions.

LOWER RIGHT: After the 8th period bell rings, each student goes in his own direction.

Spring backs out more than just the beauty and the beast in us as Chris Basso, Ron Miara, Chris Barbella and Coach Helwig demonstrate with their spring activities.

SPRING 1982 1 PAGE AHEAD

MAKING ZERO A POSITIVE NUMBER

Bang! And they're off and running! The Sayreville Girls' Spring Track team sprinted off to the All-Conference Championship with an 11-0 record. Coach Maurer commented on the victory by saying, "It's a nice accomplishment to win the conference, especially three out of the four last years."

Many school records from both on the track and in the field were set this season. Julie Brady holds the new record for 100 meter hurdles and the long jump. Gail Kupcha, an excellent distance runner, holds records in the 800, 1600, and 3200 meter runs while Lisa Mitrosky has maintained records in the discus and 100 and 200 meter runs.

Other strong team members included Jamie Unkel, Cindy Allman, Sharon Tremel, Ann Marie Macaluso, Connie Spolowitz, Kathy Drwal, Kim Brown and Joanne Esposito. Marybeth Jones showed promise but a leg injury kept her out of the proverbial "running".

Coach and team members agreed that their goals involved acquiring a sense of team concept, learning how to win and lose, as well as mastering the art of cooperation within the team.

Aren't reruns boring? Not if they concern the performance of last year's Boys' Spring Track team. The team mimicked the previous year's team by going undefeated and winning the conference and county titles. Although numerous injuries plagued the team, they still remained victorious.

Outstanding players elected to the All-County, All-Conference included John Kiernan, who ran the two mile, and Mike Wasko, who ran the 100 meter hurdles. John Kiernan achieved scholar athlete for the county and was a member of the All State Team. Tom Reagan, running the 800 meter and mile relay, Ted Wedekind, running the mile relay, Steve Biancamano, running the 400 meter and mile relay, and Brian Smith, for the high jump, were all winners in the All-Conference. Charlie Nieves, who ran the 100 meter and 200 meter, and Walt Tomkowski, who ran the 1600 meter, were two prominent runners who also contributed to the season.

According to Coach Doll, Steve Biancamano was the most improved player. New to the 400 meter, Steve was second in the county and third in the state.

As reinforced by Coach Doll, endurance, strength, coordination and mental fortitude are among the many skills required of the individuals in order to make such a team successful.

The 1982 boys Tennis team, which finished with a respectable record of 12-12, had to keep progressing from the start. First year coach Mr. Nicholiason was not disappointed, but felt the team's potential exceeded its performance.

The highpoint of the season was the 3-2 victory over Colonia which marked a defeat of Middlesex County's number one ranked team. The players of the day were Mike Chernow and Dave Defillipis.

The team finished with winning records in the first singles position (16-8) and first doubles position (15-9) which usually guaranteed two automatic wins for the team. It was the lack of consistency in the other positions that weakened the team's grasp of the "out of fingers length" matches. Within the conference matches, however, they came out ahead with 10 wins and 8 losses.

ALL FORE SUCCESS

By turning preseason hopes into realities, the Golf team broke through past domination by County opponents. Coach Helwig acknowledged the team's dependence on the experience of senior members during close matches. Balancing the team were three first-year players, Mike Eckstrom, Ralph Burnett, and Paul Platkin.

Entering for the first time in the County Tourney, the group swept through the opposition losing only to Wardlaw and Colonia (3rd in the state) to earn a 3rd place standing. Helping the team rise to this plateau was Ivan Ferro, who held the best average for the past two years and was elected a member of second team All-Conference. Also combining their techniques and knowledge were Tom Haltli who marked the lowest score at Tamarack with a 39 and Mark Newcomer who placed 8th in the County Individual Tourney.

As well as receiving the gratification of a 14-9 Golf season, Coach Helwig was given the Coach of the Year Award. Simultaneously surprised and honored, the coach credited the award to the efforts and dedication of the team.

DRAINING THE POWERHOUSES

"This was the best year we've had in a while," said Janet Ryan, coach of the Girls' SWMHS 1982 Varsity Softball team. The team compiled an outstanding record of 18 wins and 5 losses, including two victories over the reputed powerhouse, Edison. An All-County shortstop, Jeanne Holt, leading the team in batting and RBI's, was one of the team's three co-captains. Pam Poth, another of the team's co-captains and an outstanding defensive player, was second on the team with 17 RBI's. She made only one error while playing left field, giving her a field average of .976. Michele Garbowski, the third co-captain had an excellent year in the position of third base. Lori Blaszka led the pitching area, compiling a 13-3 record and 1.26 ERA, which is believed to be a school record.

The team averaged 8.5 runs per game and only gave up an average of 3 per game. As for next year, Coach Ryan hopes to have a repeat performance.

BATTING UP THE LINE

"This sport is so exciting because the score can change with each pitch and you are never really out of the game. I also like the teamwork aspect," Miss Popowski stated this about her 1982 J.V. Girls Softball team. This year's team finished the season with 11-7 record.

The greatest contributors to the wins were shortstop Vanessa Carney, Barbara Matthews and Cindy Kiyak. Vanessa had 11 stolen bases, a batting average of .467 and scored 27 runs. Barbara Matthews, playing first base, hit 3 doubles, 4 triples 6 homers and 25 RBI's which led to a batting average of .500. Barbara also led the team with a .979 fielding average and was voted most improved player. Cindy Kiyak was the team leader on and off the mound. She had a pitching record of 10-3, a batting average of .511, and a 62% on base average.

Miss Popowski feels that "the experience the girls gain will help them move up the varsity level." With a team of all-around excellent players, it was a year of records to be proud of.

Put together solid batting, exceptional fielding, and a resourceful coach and the result just could be the 1982 J.V. Baseball team. Mr. Demuth attributed the 9-10 season to "the inconsistent errors occurring during crucial periods of some of the games."

The team did not lack on-the-ball players. Keeping the blemishes off his pitching record was Brian Bielak with 5-0 season. The leading slugger, Jeff Shouldis, kept the SWMNS score moving in an upward direction. This combination of power in the batters' box and prowess on the mound, should put this J.V. team up to the varsity level next year.

'A man's wisdom maketh his face to shine' with the help of a few candles at the National Honor Society Induction ceremony.

PRIDE AND PRECEDENT

"It is written that a man's wisdom maketh his face to shine . . ." were the words that echoed through the high school auditorium on March 31, 1982. Many proud family members and friends were present as Mr. Dill inducted 60 new members to the National Society.

The opening procession of students carrying lit candles illuminated the darkened auditorium. Once on stage, everyone took their seats and simultaneously extinguished their candles. "The sight was just spectacular," proclaimed one of the elated parents.

The officers gave short speeches explaining the National Honor Society qualities of scholarship, character, service and leadership. President Chris Gronsky then offered her rendition of "It Amazes Me".

The 500 parents who attended were impressed by the sophistication of the ceremony. The mood changed, though, to informality as they enjoyed the reception afterwards which was presented by the Home Economics Department.

Remarking on the evening, Miss Sowa, National Honor Society advisor, claimed, "Every year I have the same emotional feeling because I think it's very touching... I thought it was beautiful."

6 Bye, Bye,

6 Birdie

The spring musical of 1982 got SWMHS hopping again with this year's production of Bye Bye Birdie. Sock hopping actually! Bye Bye Birdie gave the school a real "blast from the past." The play was the story of a 50's rock-n-roll idol and how his loyal fans tried to prevent him from being drafted.

Stars Ed Kosciewicz, J.P. Jones, Rosanda Strika, Andrea Spiegel, Judy Berardicelli and Warren Clark with the rest of the cast were absolutely vibrant and exciting with their many song and dance routines.

Aiding Mr. Piccuirro with the show were Mr. Shaner, Mr. Ketterer, Mr. Riker and Mr. Resh as they helped direct and produce the music, lights and set. They were only advisors, however, to the many talented students. Kelly Harrigan's leadership enabled the make-up and costume crews to work to peak perfection. As Director Piccuirro commented, "I was very confident because we had all the ingredients of a good show" and that the show was a hit because "success of the play has to do with the students."

Mr. Piccuirro, impressed with the quality of students' involvement, began a new tradition after the last performance of Bye Bye Birdie. Students who had made outstanding contributions to SWMHS theatre were permanently recorded on plaques to be put on display outside the auditorium. The first recipients of this honor were Rosanda Strika, J.P. Jones, and Sean Dunn.

Bored with all the attention going to Conrad Birdie, Patti Reynolds turns to her blocks for entertainment.

The bittersweet struggle of bringing up their kids is reflected in the faces and actions of Warren Clark and Judy Berardicelli.

Eyes bulging and mouths open, the two remaining shriners, Sean Dunn and Tom Hartman, stare in horror at the expose at their feet.

Young and old are brought together by the melodic sex appeal of Conrad Birdie.

A protective mother, Denise Malik, points out that her future daughter-in-law, Rosanda Strika, bears little resemblance to Marilyn Monroe.

Telephones are energized in Sweet Apple with the news of the pinning of Hugo and Kim.

The entire cast of Bye Bye Birdie joins hands to symbolize the teamwork effort put into the musical production.

A GLIMMER OF THE FUTURE

While the band takes a break, Kathy Rydzewski and Dave Schmidt sample buffet-style delicacies.

RIGHT: As exuberant as her performance of "Love is a Rose", soloist Judy Berardicelli glows with the success of the junior prom.

Captured by the romantic mood of the junior prom, Marcy Bailey and Scott Jurkiewicz seal the night with a kiss.

Although they danced all night, Andrea Spiegel and her date still have enough energy to flash zealous smiles.

The 1982 junior prom on May 8, held in the SWMHS cafeteria, neared perfection. The juniors were honored by the attendance of Mr. Counsman at his last prom as Superintendant, and Mr. Dill at his first prom as principal.

What was usually the school cafeteria had been transformed into a beautiful celebration of spring. It was a room full of the magical romance of the "Forever Young" theme. Real parachutes were rented and tacked onto the ceiling to improve the room's acoustics. Two of the attractions included the band "Kicks", with their continuous play and Judy Berardicelli's rendition of "Love is a Rose."

To make the prom successful, the four advisors, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Groncki, Mrs. Lasko and Mrs. Gola with approximately twenty dedicated juniors, started the necessary work as early as September, 1981. Terri Kellert, Bob Gullo and Valerie McVeigh worked "above and beyond the call of duty" according to Mrs. Moore, although many more members of the prom committee were involved in planning and decorating right up until the literal last minute.

Was the 1982 junior prom just a glimmer of the success of next year's senior prom? It may have been, as Mrs. Moore stated hopefully, "Our prom will set a precedent of excellence for the future."

A LETTER-PERFECT PROM

May 22, 1982

Hi Sue.

Jack and I had a wonderful time at the senior prom last night! Jack always insists on being on time so we arrived at the school promptly at 6:45. As we waited for the bus, we watched the parking lot begin to fill. Later I found out there were 620 of us there. Sue, you can't imagine the difference between school buses and the charter busses that we took. The luxurious 40 minute ride seemed to take only 10 minutes to Town and Campus.

When we got off the bus, I hardly recognized many of the people who I see every day. The prom began as the music of Trigger swept the dancers onto the dance floor. "Love is Forever: Face to Face" was a terrific choice for the prom theme. Everyone whirled off into a dream world. I never sat down all night! Even though it was drawn out, the meal was delicious. But the appetizers were the best part - cheese puffs, fried shrimp, and little weenie snacks.

One of my friends, Alden Camacho, went to the prom alone because his date got sick; even he had fun. The souvenirs were cute little brandy snifters and lavender silk roses.

Of course, no one wanted the evening to end, but 1:00 rolled around fast. I must say, though, that Miss Lamprecht, Mrs. Kaskoff, Mrs. McCormack and Miss Nowicki, the senior class advisors, did a terrific job on planning and carrying out the prom. And they looked so nice, too. I guess the only disappointment was finding out that some of the cars had been vandalized while we were out having fun. Well, there's one in every crowd. I'll fill you in on the juicy details later.

See ya soon, Sally

When The End Is Just The Beginning

June 24, 1982 was as much a beginning as it was an end. Due to the late graduation date, within a month of graduation at least one graduate entered a military academy and at least two others entered the armed forces. Mr. Dill presented the class at his first graduation as principal and Mr. Counsman bid the assembled group a farewell as Superintendent of Schools.

The hubbub that preceded graduation began weeks in advance as special preparations were made for special students to accept their diplomas. Valedictorian Celeste Delgatto and salutatorian Jim Conners spoke on each individual getting involved. As awards were distributed and each recipient was enthusiastically applauded, the appropriateness of the theme for this class was evident.

The jubilation of the class was expressed by the appearance of several decorated beach balls and the shining smiles of the graduates on the beautiful evening that bid a not so final farewell to the class of '82. Some of the graduates were not so pleased that they had to return to school to pick up their diplomas on the following school day.

As expressed by Miss Lamprecht, head class advisor, "The class accepted the responsibility involved in the graduation ceremony without sacrificing their own enjoyment. As usual, this class of very unique individuals responded to the occasion and presented itself as a caring and cohesive group."

A final peace with his SWMHS education is signalled by Steve Paskell.

Where are the thoughts of the class of '82? . . . leading the graduates in new directions.

The end can be a beginning. Mark Battiato's receipt of his diploma is a symbol of new direction in his life.

Senioritis, an affliction of American high school seniors, has hit Sayreville severely. Four of its victims are Steve Mahn, Rich Zimmerman, Mike Peters, and Dawn Spinola. But where are they going? The diversity of SWMHS activities gives them lots of options.

School Spirit Week 35

FRIENDS, ROMANS AND SPIRIT

Everyone looks forward to School Spirit Week and especially the Almost Anything Goes assembly. This year's week of Blue Gray, Hat, Toga, and Class Color Days made the hallways even more interesting than usual. The assembly on Friday not only got everyone out of class, but built a little competitive class spirit. Now for the big question—did every student get involved:

I always forget about Blue Gray Day. This year I wore rust. I did remember to wear a hat on Wednesday, though. My favorite was Dave Saltzman's Dog-Hydrant baseball cap. There was just no way I would wear a toga, but I really admired the pseudo-Romans who did, particulary the ones in Mickey Mouse border prints.

The week finished off in high spirits with the Almost Anything Goes assembly. A senior victory was inevitable, making a second victory for the class of '83. "It was an unbelievable rush for the spirit of the class of '83," concluded Jay Medlin.

Able to leap tall ladders in a single bound, Ralph Burnett was the perfect choice for the obstacle course.

The holiday season at SWMHS affected both students and faculty in varied ways. The spirit remained the same although the manner of spreading good cheer may have been different for each individual.

Student Council led the school in spirit raising with its annual tree decoration in the main foyer, its caroling at Oak View Nursing Home in festive costumes, as well as the distribution of cheer in the form of candy grams.

All attendants at the annual Language Festival enjoyed the holiday and cultural treats, with entertainment being just a preview of the spirited Winter Concert.

Faculty festivities were highlighted by Mr. Dill's annual reception, where Coach Breheney was chosen to recieve the centerpiece crafted by Mrs. Dill.

Of course, school activities just set the spirit for warm celebration with family and close friends. Vacation? As usual, SWMHS faculty and students agreed, "Too short."

The faculty support of Principal Mr. Dill is symbolized by the Christmas gift being presented by Mrs. Albanir.

As part of the SWMHS holiday festivities, Judy Berardicelli delivers a Student Council candygram to brighten Barbara Fullham's day.

As the holidays approach, the Student Council gathers together to share some holiday cheer.

The audience response to the fleet-footed wolf, portrayed by Don DePasquale, was all smiles, which broke into peals of laughter over General Grant's personal habits. A MOVING RIDE ON A "CAROUSEL"

This year's musical would "both move and inspire the audience," predicted director, Mr. Piccuirro. Carousel, a 1944 Rodgers & Hammerstein production and an old-style, traditional musical starred Kevin Ferguson, Lori Ann Foster, and Judy Berardicelli in its April 1983 production.

"I want this to be wonderful, and I think it can be if everyone works together as one big family," stated Judy Berardicelli. It will be, believed Mr. Piccuirro, who said Judy was just one example of a very dedicated and talented cast

The script itself featured a revisit to a New England shore town by a "heavenly" Billy Bigelow and a scene termed the "Carousel Waltz" in which there was no dancing! Perhaps the most challenging number was "June is Busting Out All Over" well carried out by singers and dancers alike.

This year's combination of a moving script, talented faculty members, and an outstanding group of talented students working together guaranteed Carousel's success.

Before beginning the Carousel Waltz, Cindy Hahn informs Ed Kosciewicz that she'll lead.

A PLUS TO THE MUSICAL

The pitband is an integral part of every year's spring musical. Many students audition, but only a select group are needed to perform the music for the play.

Band director, Mr. Shaner, views a pit band appointment as an honor for any talented student. However, talent is not all that's required of a pit band member.

They start to practice at least three times a week, as early as January, for the April curtain time. This year's group was supplemented by professional string players.

The running eighth notes in the score of Carousel make it necessary for the harp part to be played on the piano by Lori Leccese.

As the old saying goes, three clarinets are better than one, as exemplified by Pit Band members Joe Kawalec, Beth Kwiatkowski and Paul Caruso.

Dedication, practice and maybe a bit of instruction make Marc Weinstein's trombone solo near-perfect.

Music Unites Performers Break The Midwinter Slump

Winter is usually associated with gray skies, dead trees and miserable weather. But a Winter Concert by the Chorus and Concert Band served to alleviate this year's mid-winter slump.

Under the guidance of Mr. Tripold, Chorus Director, and Mr. Shaner, Band Director, this year's performers included members from the Jazz Ensemble, the Concert Band, students involved in vocal classes, and students who volunteered to sing after school. Perhaps the high point of the show was the combined effort of the Chorus and Concert Band with "Star Night."

"It is a rare thing to witness a performance so complete in that it moves both the artists and the audience. There was a uniting of performers in their concentration, energy and execution," Mr. Tripold commented about the concert, in an appropriate tone, of course.

Sound abounds at the Winter Concert. Joe Condiracci and Todd Fenstermaker hold out the final note of "White Christmas."

Vocalizing as a creative art form is just one way in which Liz Ullman, Cindy Hahn and Judy Berardicelli express themselves.

Practice after practice finally pays off as the Concert Band transforms air into holiday atmosphere.

On their way to spread "holiday cheer" at the East Brunswick Civic Center, chorus members Laura Ortiz and Annabel Samaniego plan a holiday get-together.

To Raise School Spirit

Do you know what I did on Friday morning, October 22nd? I froze.

I sat on the bleachers by the football field during the annual fall pep rally. You could hear cheers of "R-O-W-D-I-E" and "S-U-P-E-R" blocks away. But you could hear "Seniors, seniors, S-E-N-I-O-R-S, Ia, Ia, Ia" for miles around. The seniors put their school spirit into the cheering and won the hard fought contest for the Bad Cat Award. Besides listening to people scream, I also heard the school band perform their halftime show. Then the Homecoming Queen candidates, Lisa Blaszka, Lori Blaszka, Terry Kellert, Jeanne Nehila and Mary Roma, were announced. As I was losing the feeling in my toes, the fall sports teams came onto the field. Each team captain introduced their teammates and wished the football team luck in the Homecoming game.

While I pondered the questions who would win the game and who would be the Homecoming Queen, I was rudely interrupted by a voice saying, "That's all folks. You may now return to class." I was so cold, I was almost glad to go in. Almost . . .

Directing his finger up, Spiro Mamaligas signifies the sky is the limit for the soccer team at the pep rally.

The five Homecoming attendants were Lisa Blaszka, Lori Blaszka, Terri Kellert, Jeanne Nehila and Mary Roma. Crowned Queen, a tearful Lori Blaszka shared the honor by giving her first hug to her twin Lisa. Later, she couldn't decide whether the ride around the field and particularly over the bumps or the suspense of watching the crowd assemble was the best part.

The best float was judged to be the Sophomore rendition of The Muppet Movie by a panel composed of Dr. Parnell, Superintendent of Schools, Mrs. Anderson, Board of Education President, Mr. Dill, Mrs. Fehrle, and Mrs. Kratinski, all part of the high school faculty. Although not winners, redhaired Suzi Palmer as "Annie" and the entire cast from "Alice in Wonderland" made for a wonderfully memorable "Saturday afternoon at the movies", the theme as chosen by the Student Council.

Miss Sowa

As a teacher, what was your most fulfilling experience?

"Teaching itself is a fulfilling experience, but the greatest experience a teacher can have is to see a student complete a task he/she did not think he/she could perform."

Miss Makwinski

Ms. Bittle

"What is most fulfilling to me is reading a letter from a past student expressing thanks for the direction in which I helped guide them."

Lives For Education

Dedication and leadership may be mere words but they specifically express the feelings of the approximately 400 people who honored Mr. Henry Counsman with a very touching retirement banquet on April 28 at the East Brunswick Chateau. In his 36 years as Superintendent of the Sayreville school system, Mr. Counsman touched the lives of every graduate and faculty member by maintaining one of the finest school districts in the state. The farewell speech delivered by Dr. Marie Parnell voiced the thanks of the district for a job well done.

LEFT: The high point of the evening was Mr. Henry Counsman's expression of appreciation for the retirement dinner and for the many years of fine support he has received from his friends.

A simple kiss and a small gift from Mrs. Goldkopf, President of the Board of Education, conveys her appreciation for Mr. Counsman's years of dedicated service.

Dr. Marie Parnell bids farewell to Mr. Henry Counsman for a job well done and reaffirms that the Sayreville schools will continue to strive in the direction of finer education.

Education For Life

"A superintendent has the administrative responsibility to see that a school system functions effectively so that students can learn and teachers can teach." Dr. Marie Parnell now has the chance to successfully demonstrate her ability to enforce this theory through a recently made transition into her new role as Superintendent of Schools.

In 1954, the high school was desperately searching for an English teacher. At that time Dr. Parnell was appointed to her first teaching position. Since then, she has taught courses ranging from history to philosophy. "I feel that my goals have not changed from those I had as a teacher or a principal. My overall goal is to provide the best academic setting for students. Only the scale in which I have had to work at these goals has been different."

Moreover, Dr. Parnell has a very firm attitude toward education. She believes that everyone uses his judgment in making his or her own place in our society, and that the starting point is, of course, education. She points out that "education for all young people should be a very sound base in which to pursue the rest of education, not just in college, but also afterwards, because all of life is an educating process."

Although Dr. Parnell enjoys such well-cultured activities as attending Broadway shows, reading, and traveling, she feels that one of the best "joys of life" is the daily contact with students she experienced as a teacher of philosophy in the 1980-81 school year. It is in the classroom that Dr. Parnell feels that her ideas can be best expressed to students. "Be all that you can. Find out what you want, and go after it." She concluded, "Your goals will be obtained if you keep striving in this direction."

Honored guests Mr. and Mrs. Henry Counsman enjoy the dinner to the utmost.

In response to the new directions of their respective careers, Dr. Marie Parnell acknowledges the success of Mr. Henry Cousman with a retirement gift.

Directors Of Success

"Without guidance comes chaos." This is probably one reason SWMHS retains a staff of experienced supervisors for its various academic, administrative, and guidance functions. Just under building principal, Mr. Dill, are vice-principals Mr. Weber and Mr. Reichenbach, who ably handle the daily grind of administering to our school's needs.

New SWMHS vice-principal, Mr. Reichenbach, with over 27 years in Sayreville school system, has had a number of administrative responsibilities. He began his career teaching history and is currently vice-principal of the high school. He enjoys his job because it provides the opportunity "to work with students and staff, to know both and work out any problems and improvements."

Longstanding vice-principal, Mr. Weber has 25 years teaching and administrative experience, 18 years of which were spent in Sayreville. Interested in the various personalities he meets, Mr. Weber likes "helping and seeing students graduate high school."

Who better to head the Science and Math Department than Mrs. Irene Arthur, with 40 years of experience? Since 1942 Mrs. Arthur has taught chemistry, biology, and various maths. She has been supervisor for the past five years, but claims that it wouldn't stop her from returning to the classroom if the opportunity arose.

Every student is affected by Mrs. Baumann as supervisor of the Language Arts Department since 1977. From the perspective of her twenty years of experience in the district, she believes the inclusion of Advanced Placement English and the stress being placed on the writing process are definitely steps in a positive direction.

Students always need guidance, and Mr. Newcomer is here to point the way. Mr. Newcomer has been counseling since 1965, and in the future would like to "see SWMHS head in a computerized direction in order to help students select a career or college."

As Humanities Department chairperson, Mr. Hudock is responsible for the social studies, music, and art courses. He would like to add more social studies courses because he feels that these not only teach critical thinking but also the rights and privileges of citizenship.

Similarly, Mr. Hefelfinger, who is in charge of Physical Education classes, sees his department as successfully stable over the past few years. The only change was the fairly new senior course, Family Life, which prepares students for future lifestyles.

Finally, Mr. Rupp, Industrial Arts chairperson, notes, "the advancement of teaching methods one uses is vital to train students for later education. The direction into which teachers guide students is where it's (teaching) at!"

Cooperating, the administrative staff leads Sayreville in the successful direction of secondary education. Each individual department contributes to the shaft of the arrow pointing to the future.

COMPUTER COUNSELING? Not For '82-'83!

To clear up a misconception, the guidance office is not just for students who have classroom problems. Actually, the guidance department members help seniors with college applications, plan discovery days and schedule the PSAT, SAT and the Achievement tests. They also take care of advanced placement tests and direct students in choosing their yearly class schedules. This is all done without a computer system. "The purpose of the guidance department," Mr. Newcomer revealed, "is to help, to guide, to direct all students in all aspects of schooling."

Mr. Newcomer, chairperson, feels that any college-bound student should try for admission to the college of his or her choice. Without help in obtaining, completing, and sending out college applications, the student may stumble into a major problem. The aid of a counselor has been the perfect solution for many SWMHS students.

One counselor can't run the whole department, so the high school has a guidance "team" composed of Mrs. Lake, Mr. Tewell, Miss Leone, and Mrs. Vlin. The "team portrait" (below) was originally printed in a newsletter to help new students identify their counselors. Mr. Newcomer stated, "One of the aspects of guidance is that a student can have a personal conversation with his or her counselor."

As for the future, Mr. Newcomer hopes that, "The guidance department will acquire a computerized college placement system that will enable us to match students directly with a college based on students' records, needs, and occupational interests." Computerized advancements will certainly help, but nothing can ever render the counselors useless. As long as students have problems, the kind of personalized help that counselors can provide will be useful.

New Faces, New Concept

This year the Special Services department developed into an ever-expanding, multi-functioning part of SWMHS. Many new faces and a new concept were introduced, resulting in a well-developed and innovative curriculum for the Special Education depart-

Miss Dolores Grudziecka, Miss Debbie D'Amico, and Miss Mary Ann Gordon joined the staff to have their hands full of enjoyable work. Miss D'Amico works in the resource room with students who need extra guidance in math or English. Miss Grudzieka had to spend much of her time at Truman School but also had to work with Miss Gordon to help create a new class, the pre-vocational education program. "I came into the school only to find a room full of old boxes and dust. I had to spend the first few weeks organizing my classroom with the help of my students," Miss Gordon reflected.

The new concept is the pre-vocational program which used to be run in the grammar schools and restricted from the high school. This program, similar to the high school's shop and business courses, is fully developed and is finally in the high school.

The room consists of a wood and metal shop, hospital, store, post office, and bank. "This part of the program is geared towards preparing these students for real life. Every student in this class and every student in the other classes will graduate prepared for the rest of their life, no matter what field they enter. My goal is to have the students feel as if they are already in a hospital, bank, or post office, and they will not only learn the concept of their work, but actual procedures," Miss Gordon noted.

Special Education students need the same amount of attention as other students, not more. Miss Gordon treats all her students with the best care possible. Maybe that's what makes them so

Elective Agreement

Students and faculty may not always agree on every issue presented in the classroom; however, in most elective courses, students and teachers have voiced an overwhelmingly positive response regarding the teaching and learning of the various electives offered here at SWMHS as recorded below. The question asked teachers and students respectively: "What is the best aspect of teaching/taking electives?"

"The course is useful to every student in the school because at some point in life everyone will prepare food."

Directed Driving

Taking students who don't know how to drive and transforming them into safe drivers is what Mr. Inman, full-time instructor, believes the Driver's Education program is all about.

The importance of directions in the art of driving is a point of agreement among all the instructors involved in the program. For instance, Mrs. Fehrle feels that, "proper instructions, instead of hit and miss, count as a major benefit for Driver Education students." Both she and Mr. Inman agree that the program offers students a solid basis on which to learn both the art and the skills of driving. She also feels that it is important to help students become "good sports" out on the road.

An update in the program a number of years ago brought simulator machines into SWMHS. Mr. Inman pointed out, "The simulators reduced the time needed for behind-the-wheel from 6 hours to 3 hours. This proves to be a great help," as the number of students involved in the program increased.

The transportation demands of the Sayreville area necessitate the training of student drivers and therefore the careful direction of Mr. Inman and the other instructors.

Learning can come through actual experience as Donna Barret and Kelly Bolton demonstrate through their experiments in Chemistry Lab.

Dr. Marotta: A Geometric Figure

High school math is hard for most students, but as a student himself, Dr. George Marotta often found himself helping classmates with Algebra and Geometry. He remembered, "At that time, I desired to become an accountant, but my involvement with other students made me change my goals to a different aspect of math."

Dr. Marotta received his BS, MEd, and Doctorate in Math from Rutgers University. He has taught every math course offered in SWMHS with the exception of Calculus, which he would like to try some year. He began his teaching career at Roosevelt school, but chose to move up into the high school. His work with elementary school students has made him more sensitive to the needs of all students, as supported by his comment, "Learning should be an enjoyable experience and no one has the right to make someone else miserable."

In addition, to teaching, Dr. Marotta is the advisor for the Games Club and tutors students varying from three to seven hours per week. When a student in Trigonometry, for example, works with identities and after countless failed attempts, says, "I finally got it!" Dr. Marotta feels he has accomplished a great deal.

A national figure, Dr. Marrota has aided in the publication of Modern School Mathematics, published by Houghton Mifflin. This series is the most widely used elementary math textbook in the United States. He is also the author of Learning the Metric System, Grades 1-Junior High, a very modern and widely used guide to metrics published by Continental Press.

Dr. Marotta enjoys travelling, Masterpiece Theater and collecting. In the future he hopes to return to Europe and Mexico, to replace certain decks of playing cards which his dog "ate", and to add to his art collections, which include oils, water colors, and bronze sculptures.

Armed with chalk and eraser, Dr. Marotta begins to demonstrate to his students how "beautiful" trigonometry can be.

Grins and giggles abound as Todd Fenstermaker begins to talk to his living specimen.

A solution for this difficult program requires some after school teamwork from Mr. Gilfillan and Mr. Brown.

While watching his track team set new records, an almost devilish grin crosses the face of Coach Doll as he plans the next day's pop quiz.

More Than History

History classes, whether Advanced Placement, Current History, or U.S. History are listed under Humanities, yet Humanities is much more than History. Music, Art, and even subjects such as jewelry are programmed into the SWMHS Humanities program.

A major purpose of these classes is to facilitate student understanding of their cultural backgrounds. "I provide 'roots' for a generation surrounded by impermanence", Mrs. Kadi, History and Art Instructor quoted. Music teacher, Mr. Shaner, added, "My music courses help students to realize the rich heritage of Western music."

Another important aspect of Humanities is the opportunity they provide for student expression. Lessons teach important concepts in Mrs. Kratinski's art courses, but student projects also contribute to learning. "The projects teach the element of design and allow students to use creativity in a variety of directions." The same idea is incorporated into Mrs. Kratinski's Jewlery classes. She sees "most students enjoying their projects, particularly those where the design leads to a product that can be worn or given as a gift." Self expression is not quite so evident in music, but at Mr. Shaner points out, "Music serves students' needs immediately by enabling them to speak out whether through their own voices or their instruments."

Finally, one of the most appealing and most pertinent aspects of Humanities courses is the opportunity they provide for group work. From developing skits in A.P. History to developing a shared art project, students who work together often enjoy the work more and learn together as well. Mr. Shaner summarized, "In music, students seem to enjoy playing and singing together." Maybe Mr. Shaner has pointed out why Humanities courses are becoming more and more popular. What are you signing up for next year?

Worldly Views

The Language Arts Department extends far beyond the traditional English courses and into the too-often overlooked realm of the foreign language program. Just as expository writing is incorporated into the English classes, Miss C. Kwiatkowski, Spanish instructor, notes that in her classes "writing is an important part of the curriculum. It is of equal importance as speaking and listening."

Across the proverbial borders, Mrs. Hazners, representing German instruction, and Mrs. Parks, from the French realm, agree that "writing is one third as important as the other two skills-reading comprehension and oral communication." Mrs. Parks stresses oral mastery, adding "It facilitates travel and enables one to see the world from a different perspective."

All the foreign language teachers agreed that there is no difference between the instructional benefits of French, German, and Spanish, and that all students can benefit from foreign language instruction. "Foreign or second languages are a challenge to students' ethnocentricity and a preparation for a bilingual world," summed up Miss C. Kwiatkowski.

A smile serves as a short break for Mrs. Lasko as she readies herself to mark yet another mound of A Separate Peace essays.

Besides challenging the sophomores in English 201, Mrs. Jardula also encourages the Junior class to meet the challenge of constructing the winning Homecoming float.

T.A.G. - More Than Just A Game

Many aspects of the academic program at SWMHS are always being revised, but this year students and faculty witnessed a complete revision of the Talented and Gifted program. Ms. Carla Sutherland, new TAG facilitator commented, "In previous years teachers referred to the program as Gifted and Talented, but now the program is known nationally as TAG. Personally I am excited about the program although it requires tremendous preparation. Also, a TAG facilitator is a resource person, not someone who has all of the knowledge with them at every moment."

Ms. Sutherland's philosophy is that the TAG program should benefit all students and teachers and the entire school in general. The ultimate goal of the TAG program is to direct students to informational sources and then the student will be able to pursue his or her project in a particular subject. Through the TAG program there can be a "better sharing between students and teachers, and teachers and students, which is very beneficial for a smooth running TAG program," Ms. Sutherland noted.

Some of this year's projects included a documentary on the 60's in the form of a slide presentation by Jay Medlin and Mary Roma. Linda Loughman worked intensely on a book compiling Bob Dylan's poetry to which she is adding illustrations and criticisms. More "dramatically", Andrea Spiegal and Kathy Grau prepared for a two character theatre performance and Steve DiAngelis and Dave Saltzman produced "Claymation." This project involved animating movies with clay figures.

Finally, the program published TAG Tales, an innovative student project. "This newsletter will help students and their families better understand the program because it will be directed to the home," Ms. Sutherland concluded.

New SWMHS teachers Miss Makwinski and Miss Gordon share the end of their first day here.

Home At SWMHS

If you have ever pondered over the simple question, "Where do teachers come from?" the answer is often, "Here". Although many faculty members are of varied backgrounds, more than a few have graduated from the Sayreville school system. Those interviewed included Dr. Evanovich, Mrs. Whalen, Miss Makwinski, Ms. Carosh, and Mrs. Lake.

Being involved in the varied aspects of school is very important to these returnees, both times around. For instance, Dr. Evanovich was once a member of the boxing team. He commented on the experience, "Boxing required months of training, but during the first tournament, one boxer was knocked unconscious for ten minutes." As can be expected, the boxing team was disbanded.

Miss Makwinski spoke of her experience, "When I attended SWMHS, I was very proud to be a member of the NHS and Student Council."

Finally, eleven years ago, Ms. Carosh was Faculty Editor of Quo Vadis, President of FTA, as well as a member of the Biology club.

Over the years, these alumni have seen the introduction of more sports, courses, and activities to meet the ever-changing needs of the students.

Mrs. Whalen, experienced from other school districts and the junior high noted about SWMHS, "Since my graduation, I have seen a definite expansion of student's rights and concerns in the school which prompts the students to have a good interest in their school."

Most of all, these teachers note a shared warm feeling about being back "home" at SWMHS.

What Would We Do If There Were 'No Substitutions Allowed'?

Did you ever wonder why the one time you stayed up all night studying for that big math test, when you dragged yourself into first period and cleared your desk, a substitute appeared in front of you?

Did you ever wonder why the teachers leave the substitute assignments like: page 98: 1-114 and page 134: 1-3; to be collected at the end of the period?

Finally, did you ever wonder who those substitutes are? One of them, a frequent visitor to SWMHS this year, has been Mrs. Brenda Piccione. In the beginning of the year, many students in the science classes had daily encounters with Mrs. Piccione while Mrs. Romano was on a leave of absence. Mrs. Piccione related, "Student contact is very important to me. I enjoy 'subbing' here because I've gotten to know many students."

Another of the many substitutes is Mrs. Suminiski. The former teacher turned substitute mother feels that

"Substituting for certain classes can sometimes be a new adventure in life."

So there you have it. Only two of your favorite kinds of people with different backgrounds, but both occupying the same niche in education.

Did you ever wonder why the menus in some Chinese restaurants say, "no substitutions allowed"?

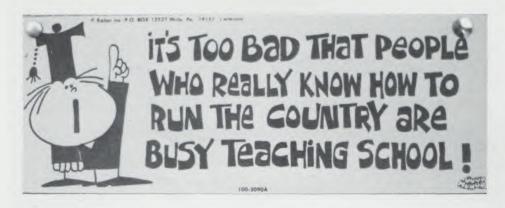

To demonstrate that a substitute's day isn't all drudgery, Mrs. Piccione flashes a smile.

The individualized help from Mrs. Suminski demonstrates a substitute's job involves more than sitting behind the teacher's desk.

The daily schedule of classes, duties, and paperwork offers little time for daydreaming, but Mrs. Whalen takes advantage of a peaceful moment between classes.

Miss C. Carosh

"Working on the plays each year is rewarding. All of the students involved work hard at their job; none are fooling around or causing problems."

Mr. A. Riker

"It was a rare privilege for a teacher to be with a class from grades 7 to 12. We laughed together; we cried together; we rejoiced together. Most importantly, we grew together.

And I'll never forget the beach balls that appeared at Graduation '82."

BAND-ing Together

What group added color, melody, and spirit to every SWMHS football game? What group actually began preparation for this school year the second week of August? What group has sold bumper stickers, household items, M & M's, even diddly boppers in order to help sponser their many activities? What group, in and out of school, "stays together" as well as "plays together"?

The 75 member SWMHS Marching Band had an eventful year of beginnings and endings. The tragic end of the life of ninth grade clarinetist Ken Hesterhagen in December not only brought the group closer together, but its empathic response spread throughout the school and community in expressing condolences to the Hesterhagen family. Mr. Shaner summed up the feelings of the band members, "We are truly saddened by this loss. We know that he loved our band, and we loved him."

Earlier in the season the feeling had been one of anticipation. When would the new uniforms be delivered? Much of the football season passed with the band still impatiently sporting the old outfits. However, late October competition in Elizabeth, N.J. gave the band the opportunity to show off in those new uniforms. "We earned a score of 63; our goal being 60. I had told the band that if thay got 60, I would shave my beard off, and they held me to it," reminisced an almost clean shaven Mr. Shaner. The goal set for their next competition is, as yet, indefinite, but the band is in agreement, "We'll go for the moustache next year.'

First Impressions

First impressions can be very important. The first notice an observer takes of the SWMHS Marching Band is very logically its "impressive" band front, composed of the American section, the flag squad, the rifle squad, the drill team, and the twirling squad, with a total of more than 60 members.

A group that size demanded strong leadership which was provided this year by Lori Kocsic, captain of the American section, Moira Norrington, overall guard captain, Beth Sparendara, rifle captain, Linda Tynan, flag captain, Nancy Gerard, drill team captain and Stacie Lee Wong, twirling captain. Just above these high steppers were drum majors Kathy Pashley and Karen Carstens, responsible for the final coordination of band and band front maneuvers.

Advisor Mr. Shaner attributed the accomplishments of the year to having an instructor for every part of the guard. Student marching instructor, Peter Skarzynski, cited the EMBA Championship as this group's best performance. Adding sparkle to the season were the guard's 1st Place in Class Award at the West Windsor competition and the arrival of the new uniforms.

Always full of energy, a third of the members of the band front elected to take on off-season jobs. They performed as an indoor winter guard from January to April with advanced routines during basketball intermissions and competitions. Guard member Paige Lany summed up her involvement with the winter guard as being fun, interesting, hard work, and worth-while.

It may be below freezing outside but Drill Team captain, Nancy Gerard, keeps warm during the halftime show with the fast paced routine of "Star".

"The organization of the winter guard definitely will improve future squads." Paige anticipated, "we're aiming for a Superior rating next year." That's more than a first impression.

Cheerleading Not Just A Spectator Sport

Cheerleading, both an activity and a sport, "helps develop personality, leadership, service, and scholarship," commented thirty-four year veteran coach and adviser Mrs. Fehrle. These spirited girls support the teams and boost both attendance and spirit at athletic events throughout football and basketball seasons.

Mrs. Fehrle maintains a great interest in athletics, and encourages the cheerleaders to share that interest. Besides being the most active spectators at the games, these girls perform feats requiring gymnastic skills, coordinated dance movements, and just plain yelling that require regular practice, up to four times a week and two and a half hours per session.

This year's cheerleaders were led by JV captains Barbara Fulham and Sheri Szarvas, Varsity co-captain Elissa Unkel and Varsity captain Jeanne Nehila. This year's Homecoming festivities were special for the girls because they had something extra to root for as Jeanne Nehila was also a candidate for Homecoming Queen. Go, team, go!

THE ACTIVE LINK

If you don't read the Student Council minutes posted in your homeroom, you should. The members of the Student Council are the link between the student body and administration, as well as often between school and community. The Student Council constitution states, "members of the . . . Student Council . . . will provide for . . . and promote school spirit and improve school conditions."

For several years the Student Council has held fundraisers for charity. Halloween flower money has gone to Unicef, Candy-grams and Valentine proceeds have gone to the Leukemia Foundation, and lollipop sales are sent to the March of Dimes. The Student Council also attends three meetings a year to talk with other high schools as part of both the National Association and the Middlesex County Association of High School Student Councils. In fact, Sayreville has been an Honor School in the state of New Jersey for the past 20 years.

Finally, every SWMHS student has seen a Student Council member filling the soda machines. That seems like a great way to improve school conditions to most of us.

This year they broadened our cultural horizons by offering T-shirts and sweatshirts that speak German with such expressions as "Ich liebe Deutsch" or "Deutscher Verein." The profits from these sales sent the club to New York to enjoy a look at Broadway at the end of the year.

The German Club holds its meetings on the third Wednesday of each month. Joanne Zarick, president, hosted this year's Christmas party at her home where refreshments included typical German foods as knockwurst and sauerkraut.

Mrs. Hazners, advisor, feels the club is beneficial and helps "broaden the students' horizons," as well as teaching them about "German customs and food."

Sometime in the future, the club and the German Honor Society plan to visit the elementary schools to tutor underclassmen in the language.

¿HABLA ESPANOL?

First on the calendar for the Spanish Club was the annual Christmas party with everyone invited guaranteed good eating. The highlight was, as always, the breaking of the pinata.

Miss Kwiatkowski feels that the main reason for the Club is to reinforce interest in Spanish. President Jim McCracken, Vice President Vickie Laikowski, Secretary Lisa Klein and 150 plus members just think it's a good opportunity to gather and come in contact with the Spanish language. Two second semester highlights included the viewing of Man of La Mancha and their own performance of a bilingual play.

This year's Spanish Honor Society consisted of approximately 30 elected members with high grades in Spanish.

The group led by Carol Kowzan, Rohit Shah, Anna Kottaras, and Andrea Spiegel designed and presented a program to interest and inform elementary students in the language. It included teaching student to make the Mexican good luck symbols called "Ojos", or Eyes of God.

The group's plans for the future include a national newsletter toward which they will contribute an article on their progress, and their annual dinner to a Spanish restaurant.

SCHOLARSHIP

National Honor Society AN EXTRA-ACADEMIC EFFORT

Members of the National Honor Society recognize their positions as an honor, a privilege, and a responsibility. Vice President Rohit Shah reaffirmed, "Membership in NHS has in one sense meant, 'Congratulations for that extraacademic effort.'"

Recognizing his role as leader, President Matt Pachkowski encouraged the group to get involved with a two year Peace Corps project, probably centered on improving education in Thailand

This year's fund raisers included two M&M sales and funded both the fall and spring receptions and four graduation awards to students who have contributed to the school.

Advisor Miss Sowa, former SWMHS NHS member herself, enjoys teenagers, but felt that working with this group had special meaning. "It was always interesting because their ideas were so new and different," she concluded.

COMPLEX AFTER SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

Rummaging through interwoven pine branches, Biology Club members Mark Przybylowski, Jon Persons, Tina Castello, Jeff Hollender, and Marge Gochangco get a head start on the holiday season with the traditional construction of the school's wreath.

Mrs. Romano, advisor to the Biology Club, has been at it for 20 years. She enjoys this extra-curricular job because she feels it "extends interest in biology." It also gives students a chance to do extra-curricular experiments. This year the club will work with dissections and also plant genetics, things not in the school curriculum.

Members of the club met at least once a month, often more when working on a project. During the year, the Biology Club visited the Island Beach State Park on some Saturdays to hear the NJ Wildlife Education Department.

Rather than taking a trip like most clubs, the Biology Club raised money for a $100 scholarship to be given to the senior who had the highest achievement and at least three years of science including Advanced Biology.

Ecology Club: Front: Anna Samaniego, Tracy Janco, Deborah Gorman. Back: Renee Golla, Souzy Sawiris, Janet Dell, Margaret Gochangco, Mrs. Mackin.

The Ecology Club's advisor, Mrs. Mackin, enjoys being with the club. She feels that the Ecology Club makes students more aware of life's beautiful things, and how each person can help improve his or her community. They made and contributed flower arrangements to the local nursing home at Thanksgiving time. The club planned an "Ecological Feast" where they served mainly natural foods which the members referred to as "wild." Besides a typical candy sale, the Ecology Club cultivated plants to be sold at the Arts and Crafts Fair. The '82-'83 club has accomplished much in the nature department; two $50 dollar scholarships were granted to graduating seniors compliments of the Ecology Club.

"The Science League is an extension of classroom work," stated Mrs. Albanir, advisor to the club. She sees another reason for its existence as providing an arena for discussion of contemporary issues.

Members of the Science League take tests to compete with local high schools. One hundred twelve schools throughout the state have Science Leagues. SWMHS competes with Madison Central, Cedar Ridge, Marlboro H.S., and Raritan H.S. Sayreville has 3 teams, 4 students specialized in Biology, 4 in Chemistry, and 4 in Physics. Mrs. Albanir was very pleased with the League members' scores in these competitions and awards will be given to the team and individually.

Challenging Through Creativity

Olympics of the Mind consists of "a variety of problems and skills to solve them," according to advisor Ms. Sutherland, whose main purpose is to "channel students' ideas and smooth them out."

While putting their creativity to good use, OM members compete against some of the state's and country's best minds.

Some of this year's noteworthy projects included the Super Structure which supports a weight and moves periodially due to a billard ball hitting it, the Leonardo da Vinci Spring Car, which must be kept moving in all directions by the power of the spring, pushed only once, and the battery operated Miner's Helper, a robot which must follow a path and pitch tennis and ping pong balls. Finally there's Humor from Homer where members acted out "Odysseus' Encounter with Circe and His Descent into Hades" using robots and puppets.

Last year there was the Rutgers' Bowl; this year there's the Tournament of Excellence. Ten students were chosen to represent Sayreville in the competition.

To be chosen for the team, the students just had to answer 160 questions which limited the competition to 20. From there, Round 2 consisted of spontaneous oral questions. This decided, of the 20, the nine members and the two who tied for the tenth position.

Sayreville competed against other New Jersey high schools as a part of a national competition of academic excellence. During each meet, questions were asked and had to be answered within 30 seconds. The stakes were high.

Between April 12 and May 12, the team traveled to Bridgewater Raritan High School East for a series of competitions, ending in a Final. Sayreville also participated in the Perth Amboy Decathlon of Knowledge for individual prizes.

Advisor Mrs. Sutherland sees the competition as a "challenge for Sayreville High School students to compete against the best students in other high schools."

OGGLERS

As in the past, the Math Club centered around monthly tests which demanded mathematical ability and creative thinking. Surprisingly, this year's club membership more than tripled that of last year. This increase led the club to try something new: they started a tutoring service which was open to all students who needed arithmetic assistance.

Advisor Dr. Evanovich cited one purpose of the club as to provide recognition for those who have a talent for problem solving. Next year, he hopes the club will be more active with "doers," rather than "joiners." Some students are drawn to the Math Club because annually the top four scorers receive $25 awards; however, for many, the Math Club means having a little fun while meeting a challenge.

DISTRIBUTING PRIDE

Distributive Education classes, along with the DECA program, were designed to prepare its members for competition and future positions in distributing. Marketing and Distributive Education classes combine in-class instruction, on-job training, and DECA competitions to reach these goals. Mrs. Carosh, DECA advisor, has been there to help students on their way.

All DECA members participated in competitions which provide students a chance to use the skills learned in class. On January 12th, Sayreville participated in the Regional DECA conference for the first time. Of 32 participating members, 16 won awards. Eleven students received honorable mentions and five placed either first, second, or third in different phases of the competition. One member, Georgina Macaluso, came home with four trophies. Ms. Carosh was enthusiastic about continuing to the national level.

At the Regional competition, the judges complimented Mrs. Carosh on how nice the Sayreville students were. This only added to the pride Mrs. Carosh already felt. She admits, "I love seeing them in competition. It's a lot of work but it's worth it. I just love it."

Mrs. Dulemba, advisor of the Future Secretaries of America, viewed the club as means of personal development through the experiences of working in the business field.

FSA members sold candy to finance its banquet in May. The girls, their employers, administrators, and guest speakers from the business field attended. At the dinner, the girls received pins and certificates to signify the successful completion of the course.

Final highlights of the years included a get-together with groups from other schools at Middlesex County College in March and attendance at Broadway's new production, Merlin.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

Cooperative Office Education, more commonly termed COE, was designed to provide its members with a feeling of social leadership. Most of its members also belonged to FSA; therefore, the girls actually worked as one group most of the time. The girls view their work experiences and skill oriented classes as aids to their vocational goals of becoming professional secretaries. One of the more interesting special classes featured a guest speaker who discussed on-the-job dress and behavior.

The COE programs sold Reese's Pieces for profits. With their money, they planned a trip to Manhattan primarily to observe the stock exchange. The year's end was commemorated by the COE banquet of the Raritan Bay Chapter on May 4th. Each girl invited her employer and awarded him or her a certificate of appreciation. In return, each COE member received certificates for the successful completion of the program.

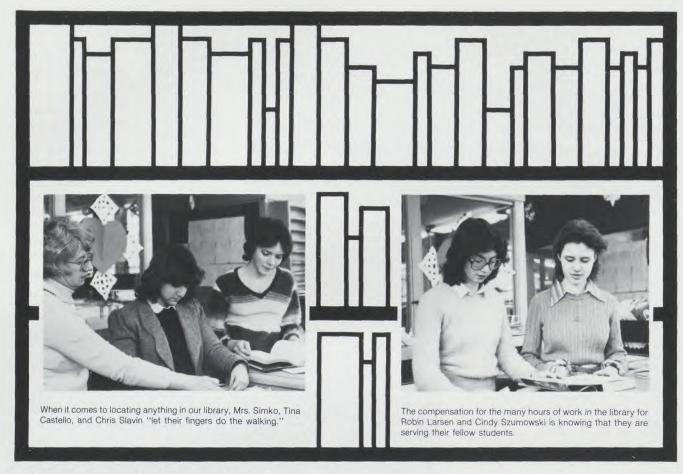

The Future Business Leaders of American under the guidance of Mrs. Whalen, have truly "gone places." First it was to the Oakview Nursing Home where they conducted bingo games, and provided snacks and refreshments and good company for the residents.

Another group trip took the club to a computer center to supplement the school program of computerized accounting. The club will be donating materials to the business department from money made by out-of-school candy sales.

Finally, the twenty-five members planned a spring picnic.

Already looking into the future to aim the FBLA in new directions, Miss Whalen anticipated, "I hope we can get involved in the fall '83 leadership conference and enter various competitions next year."

School Book-ies

This year's 26 member Library Council, under the supervision of Mrs. Simko, has been working hard to get students and library materials together. They help Mrs. Simko save everyone's time by taking care of the loan desk, going on errands, and repairing books. They also take inventory and keep the bookshelves in running order.

Seniors in the Library Council work during homeroom, and underclassmen take care of things during the day. And the work extends beyond the library for delivering overdue notices, selling candy and even helping with the coffee and bake sales on parent visitation nights. The profit financed a trip for council members to enjoy broadway play and dinner in New York together.

Mrs. Simko's memories are many and varied. One of the more unusual was the book returned...seven years late! However, she considers every day of hard work with the council members memorable. She boasted that this year's group elected the first male

Council President, Daryn Hanson, and that each year more "fellas" seem to join. Finally, she renamed the group "the high school's unsung heroes." NEW ADDITIONS

Every new school year brings a few new organizations. This year's new addition to the SWMHS collection was the Girls' Basketball Club. The club was started to give more recognition to SWMHS girls' sports. The 24 members who constitute the club are not only some members of the girls' basketball team, but also some of the boys who support them. Meetings are called once a week by the advisor, Miss Lamprecht, where current fund raisers are discussed and future ones are planned. The money that is brought in goes towards new equipment or jackets.

The success of the club was ensured by the attitude of its members as expressed by Gina Rispoli, "It's the kind of thing you don't have to be forced to do, but you do it anyway because you enjoy it. You're not only pleasing yourself, but your teammates."

The members of the Deer Club greet each other in a manner somewhat like the one being demonstrated by Ed Kosciewicz and Mike Jaffe.

A230 IMAGES AVE.

"Images is an avenue for creative expression, and it also broadens students' views of their peers and their peers' creativity,'' defined Mrs. Mischne, enthusiastic first year advisor. She decided to take the job of Images advisor because she felt it was important for a school to have a literary magazine.

This year's edition began soliciting the student body for contributions and selling Powerhouse candy bars, both in the late fall. All students were encouraged to submit material and/or to attend meetings.

Art Editor Linda Loughman and Photography Editor Andrew Maze considered individual projects and defined the perimeters of printable matter. Writing Editors Andrea Spiegel and Coleen Bloodgood led the group in considering all contributions. As early as January, selections were finalized by Typing Editor Joann Carr.

Images put Mrs. Mischne in "closer touch with the students" at SWMHS, but more importantly, it provided the students with opportunities to learn about and to enjoy each other.

Deep contemplation and a lot of reading are all a part of successful edition of Images, as demonstrated by Mrs. Mischne.

A group meeting allows Mrs. Mischne to get Images staff members to respond to submitted material.

As a member of the short story committee, Rich Butchko analyzes the upcoming work prior to the beginning of the meeting.

ECHO-LITES

SAYREVILLE WAR MEMORIAL H.S. WASHINGTON RD, SAYREVILLE NJ JUNE 1983

Echo-Lites the school newspaper, has continued its duty to inform the students of SWMHS as much of the pertinent news as possible. Almost everyone reads the newspaper and knows what they've read, but what's behind that black and white piece of paper?!?! Well, Quo Vadis '83 has taken the time to find out!

Fundraisers were a big part of any activity including this one. Echo-Lites sponsored two candy sales, but probably their most magical sale was that of Cupid love messages.

This year's Echo-Lites underwent many changes. One very evident instance of change was the banner of the paper. Another modification that was popular from this year's first edition was the movie review column, "Reel to Reel." The largest innovation for the staff was to the once-a-month staff meetings which helped prepare staff members become next year's editors. Obviously, this system worked as described by Editor-in-Chief Bill Post, "This is the best staff Echo-Lites has ever had. I am pleased with the quality of the relationships that have developed between the staff, editors, and the advisor."

Complete With Directions

In spite of all you may have heard to the contrary, the yearbook staff really is a lot of work. Most of the year, meetings are held every day after school to discuss and work on the finished product you're now reading.

The work begins with an interview The editor of a given department will interview a subject. The interview is then turned into an article. After the article is done, comes headlining and typing.

Then there's pictures. Each picture must be captioned, cropped (Yearbook lingo for "cutting down to size,") and then laid out on a sample page.

The layouts of each page are sent to the publisher. Then in June . . . there's your yearbook! Or rather, here's your yearbook.

Being a good detective comes in handy for Jeff Zajac as he identifies faces referring to last year's underclass section.

Have you ever seen this person before? She's Managing Editor, Coleen Bloodgood, and she's probably seen you, as she sorted out the pictures of the student body.

As Assistant Copy Editor, Chris Slavin had many opportunities to get in the proverbial "last word," her grateful smile appears at the approval of her last Quo Vadis '83 assignment.

Even Rohit Shah, Sports and Layout Editor, takes a little time away from his regular duties for some humorous captioning.

YEARBOOK; FROM A TO Y

An assembly line situation all eviated some of the boredom, if not the difficulty involved in captioning pictures.

Being caught relying on Roget's Thesaurus for the best wording causes John Darroch to hang his head in shame.

Yearbook work isn't hard; it's downright dangerous! Ms. Bittle's radio antennae actually attacked Editor-in-Chief Jessica Bauer. She was sitting under it, and all of a sudden it just went wild in her hair! Of course, Jessica was so shaken up, all she could reply was "Yucky barf!"

Then it came off right in Ms. Bittle's hands. Twice! That's not surprising, though, since it only seems to work when pointed in the DIRECTION of a human body. But then Rohit's "got the beat," so maybe it should've fallen for him instead.

Speaking of colored markers, it seems Coleen Bloodgood can't function without them. Maybe it's those sex-ed reviews she's been conducting on Ms. Bittle's blackboard after school?

Remember those Snoopy and Bomber shirts that were for sale around Homecoming? They were always hanging on Ms. Bittle's blackboard. Well, ya wanna buy one? There's plenty left.

It's a good thing Ms. Bittle didn't put them on her desk. We'd never find them again. Papers get lost for days on top of that desk. They just seem to go in all kinds of DIRECTIONS.

And then there's Bob Damato. His camera just doesn't seem to want to let go of that lens cap while taking pictures. Say, Bob, where are those pictures?

Pictures? Who cares! Where's my layout editor? Oh, well, you see . . . the first one's gone and the second one had a car accident and the first 16 pages are due for the deadline tomorrow and . . . oh, "yucky barf."

E.T. candy: What a great idea for a

E.T. candy: What a great idea for a fundraiser. A yearbook editor was overheard to be mumbling, "I am not normal. I am not normal . . . " What everyone has known all along has just been confirmed.

And of course there was the year-book policy of "out-patient copy." Because this year's copy editor, when put in a room with other yearbook staff members and a radio, did more talking and singing than writing, she was forced to do the work at home. The copy would be wheeled into the emergency room at home and then returned to A-207 to recover.

Yearbook work? Hard?

GO FOR IT!

Bomber Power-

The Bomber Football team fell victim to a 1-8 season in the always tough Middlesex County Athletic Conference. Coach Barnes attributed the poor record to inexperience in the second and third teams and injuries to key players.

The team was not without its leaders, however, beginning with "quad" captains Dan Prevoznak, Glenn Brego, Tom Battaglia, and Paul Ortiz. Dan Prevoznak was named as most improved offensive player while Glenn Brego and Carlos Ince developed notable defensive skills. Not lacking in the exhibition of talent, the team was led in actual performance by quarterback Craig McCoy, who threw for 936 yeards and wide receiver Paul Ortiz, with 42 receptions for 585 yards.

The season had its bright moments, notably the Friday afternoon season starter at Perth Amboy that merited an early school closing and the win over Cedar Ridge with the score of 20-12. Coach Barnes felt at this game the Bombers demonstrated the toughness and potential they needed.

Strength Behind The Record

This year's JV Football team had a difficult season. Their 0-6 record does not reflect the amount of work put in by the new coach, Mr. Breheney, and the members themselves. One of the season's memorable moments was the goal line stand at Edison.

Although inexperience marred the season's success, the team had many outstanding players. Cliff Repetti was the team's top quarterback and safety while Bill Peschler sided the team in the positions of defensive end and offensive guard. Jim Bartkowicz, was outstanding as tackle and Joe Mascali excelled in his position of center.

These outstanding players aided the other players by teaching them the art of the game. Some of the most improved players include Joe Dino, Dave Donnamaria, Butch Hoover, and Darren Locklin. More team members and more experience should aid the Bombers next year.

Inevitable Success

This year's Varsity Field Hockey team went all the way. The victory at the County Championship was definitely the highlight of this season in which a new record of wins by a Sayreville Field Hockey team was set. As Coach Sunski stated they are, "A team Sayreville can be proud of." Senior Carol Kowzan admitted, "We realized we could do it and that we wanted to do it."

"This year's team played together longer than the previous ones had." stated Miss Sunski, even long enough to gather a small following of fans. These facts and the two hour practices five days a week made their success inevitable. The girls on the team gained the abilities to run almost forever and to both win and lose graciously.

Outstanding varsity players this year were seniors Patti Lynch, the leading scorer, and Chris Mormak with 109 saves. Miss Sunski felt that everyone improved and is most proud of the fact that, "The girls never quit."

When played properly, field hockey is a very fast moving game, requiring endurance, agility, speed, and eyehand coordination. When applied to stickwork, passing, and shooting, these skills become helpful strategies, as they did in this year's JV Field Hockey season.

JV goalie Joyce Winkler did an outstanding defensive job aided by foward Elaine Fedor and halfback Laurie Wedekind. Coach Popowski noted that these girls worked hard to improve their skills throughout the season.

Ms. Popowski's JV squad had a good year, ending with a record of 2-4-4. She cites Sophomore Vanessa Carney, and Juniors Arleen Clark and Dana Connors as a big part of the team's momentum. "There is always action," according to Ms. Popowski.

Enthusiasm, Talent . . . Success

"The JV soccer team worked like a well oiled machine," was Coach Ciszewski's comment. It was Coach Ciszewski's first year as a soccer coach, yet he led his team to post an 8-6 record for the season.

The well-balanced mix of talent and enthusiasm are responsible for the team's success. Under the leadership of veteran players John Mazurkiewicz, Jim McCracken, and Ken Rosenblum, the team earned the respect of many area coaches and teams. Many first year players such as Pat Brennan, Dan Mowery and Spiro Mamaligas proved to be strong defensively. Halfback John Mazurkiewicz and forward Shawn Scherer were the key scorers with 4 goals each. South River was defeated 2-0 with Spiro Mamaligas providing the leg work for both goals.

Coach Ciszewski really enjoys the season and he regrets the ending of his first year in the soccer program. Nevertheless, "Coach C," is optimistic in saying, "Soccer is an up and coming sport. I hope the interest for the sport spreads so the Sayreville soccer teams will be successful in the future."

Powerful strides by Ken Rosenblum brings him an advantage against the opposition.

With the opponent practically nipping at his heels, Spiro Mamalingas still manages to direct the ball down field.

The Blue Wave

The Bomber Varsity Soccer team began the season with a change in leadership. Mr. Inman, last year's J.V. coach, moved up to replace Mr. Hudock as head coach. Because Mr. Inman assumed the position and most of the team had played J.V. for him in 1981, the name "the Blue Wave" rolled in.

"The season was disappointing. Injuries, poor turnout, and a late start just put a damper on the team's winning potential," explained Mr. Inman. During this transition year, the rough MCAC took its toll on the Bombers, yet

Mr. Inman was pleased with the senior members, who managed to provide an excellent defensive squad.

Offensively, John Krall controlled the middle field at many key points, allowing other team members, often Mike Brady, to score. Coach Inman named Tony Viola most improved player for securing the fullback line.

The high point of the season was SWMHS victory over South River with a score of 2-0. Unfortunately "the Blue Wave" lost some of its power later in the season.

Undisturbed Tradition

The Cross Country teams have traditionally been successful here at SWMHS, and despite few senior members, this year's teams finished with respectable records.

Sophomore Tim Newsome was a bright spot to the boys' team that finished with a record of 6 and 3. The first loss, which came after 54 consecutive victories was to Madison Central, the previous team to have beaten Sayreville 6 years ago. Tim Newsome was "outleaned" in this meet, suffering his only dual meet loss all season.

The team as a whole, led by captains Tom Reagan and Walter Tomkowski, placed well in the County and Sectional meets registering third and seventh standings respectively. Even with the team's three losses, the squad did manage to shut out 3 teams during the season.

The girl's team brought their record up to 5-3 for the season. Coach Doll feels that the girls reached their potential since all have shown individual improvement. The coach felt that Doreen Genua, the only senior on the team, was their most improved player. Among the other accomplishments, Junior Gail Kupcha managed to break the school record by one minute. She was also selected to the first team all Conference and All County. The girls participated in the Raider Invitational in Lakewood. Coach Doll found this competition to be one of the best memories of the season. "Each team member received some sort of medal or ribbon for their efforts. Every girl came home a winner."

REBUILDING ON THE RUN

Despite the presence of outstanding new runners, this was a year of "rebuilding" for the Winter Track team. As the team sustained only 2 losses, Coach Doll pronounced the season, "Not bad for rebuilding."

Senior Tom Reagan was one bright spot among the runners. Tom ranked third in the state and first in the county for the 1600. Another senior, Lisa Mitrosky, was county champ in the hurdles, second in the 55 meter, and fifth in the shotput. Coach Doll named Gail Kupcha and Ron Miara as most improved members.

The entire team scored its most impressive victory against J.P. Stevens. Mr. Doll explained, "They were undefeated, and looked like a shoe-in for the conference, but we beat them without one of our best runners."

Consistent Adaptability

If awards could be given for effort, Coach Nicoliason would have gladly given each member of this year's Girls' Tennis team a first place. Bringing in a near first place for performance was freshman Joann Chudkowski, with a 16-7 throughout the season and 13-3 for conference matches. The coach noted, "Joann usually guaranteed the team victory at first singles." Also holding their own against tough competitors were senior Pat Murray and sophomore Janie Serrano with 4-16 and 5-16 records respectively.

The season had its inconsistencies, many caused by the repositioning of players from singles to doubles matches and vice versa. These changes were often necessitated by players' injuries and, according to Coach Nicoliason, will create a more experienced and adaptable 1983 team.

One step forward brings Sue Bufano ever closer to that bouncing ball.

A powerful overhead swing plus a Rockette dance step gives Jill Yurewicz's tennis a new style.

Twists And Turns

Just as twists and turns are part of each gymnastic routine, the 1982 girls' gymnastics team executed a roundabout route to come to their season record of 9-2. The season started out strong with the Bomberettes crushing competition after competition. This season looked like another county crown. Then the girls top competitor, sophomore Diane Garbowski, was out for the season with torn ligaments in her ankle. Various other injuries further dampened the team's potential.

Yet once again, the Bomber spirit came alive. The girls, though suffering a great deal without Diane, all banded together and made it an exciting year after all. Junior Joni Mayer led the way with strong all around performances and an 8th place in the State Finals in the balance beam. Other highlights were senior Denise Marsch who advanced to State competition on vaulting bars and Lisa Kennedy who competed in the State on vaulting. According to Miss Rudge, sophomore Reyne Borup promises to be one of Sayreville's top scorers next year. As for this year the girls' gymnastics team proved that no matter what, a great Bomber always lands on its feet.

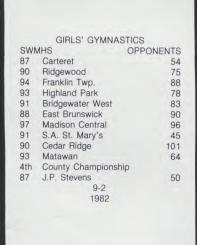

The eloquence of gymnastics is in the combination of dance and tumbling to music. Here, Laura Sullivan cheerily executes a graceful sequence.

The Russian split may seem to be a troublesome task to some, but is a part of Joni Mayer's daily routine.

With her back straight and hands firmly on the horse, Diane Garbowski proves she is a well-balanced student.

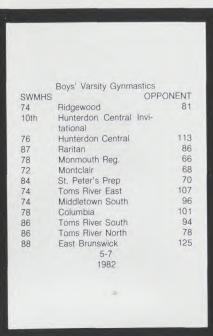

The powerful arm muscles of gymnast Denise Marsch are needed for a seemingly simple-looking straddle position on the uneven bars.

When the team is in need of crucial points, Artie Almeida is called on to perform the challenging iron cross on the rings.

To remain in a straddle hold position, John Moran must face up to his feet.

Is Shaun Cochran really auditioning to be the next Superman? His routine on the rings certainly gives this impression.

Starting Over

Last year's Boys' Gymnastics team was a tough act to follow. Despite the inexperience of some members, the team qualified for the State Team Tournament and finished with a satisfying 11th place.

At the State Sectionals, all-around performer Tim Wiamer finished his high school career with a memorable 5th place finish on the high bar. Also qualifying for the State Sectionals was parallel bar specialist Tim Coman.

A major setback for the team was a shoulder injury to Art Almeida keeping him off the rings. According to Mr. Hefelfinger, Tim Wiamer and Shaun Cochran were the most improved players. Shaun progressed from being last year's manager to successfully competing on the rings, high bar, and pommel horse.

IMPROVING ON ABILITY

The ever-improving J.V. Wrestling team completed their best season thus far with a 9 and 5 record. Coach Fischer explained, "There were more wrestlers this year than last year, resulting in fewer forfeits and a better wrestling ability being developed by the entire team."

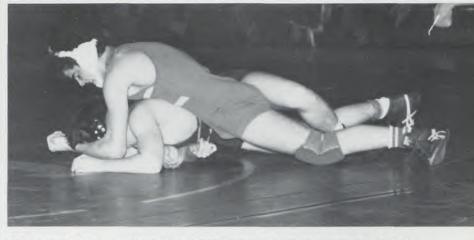

The most notable wrestlers this year were sophomores Rich Lucas, at 170 pounds who received first place, and Lorenzo Fernandez, at 115 pounds who won third place in the Novice Tourney. Junior Jeff Reagan, at 158 pounds, also placed third at the Novice Tourney.

The win over South River served as a memorable one for the team as attested to by the coach, "We gave up four forfeits and still won the match by one point!" However, the competitive spirit of this JV Wrestling team predicts a successful varsity season next year.

With two important team members out with injuries, a pensive Coach Fischer considers the options.

A WEIGHTY RECORD

Sayreville Wrestling history has been made! For the first time ever the Bombers had a winning season culminating in a win at the Woodbridge Christmas Invitational Tournament.

Stated Coach Zaleski, "Last year the Bomber wrestlers were within 12 points of a winning season; this year they did it." A driving force during the season was the tri-captain Rob Anthony, and District Champion, Tony Viola. Seniors Ed Mahalick and Matt Pachkowski, too, were instrumental with their 1st place awards at the Woodbridge Tournament.

Another credit to their outstanding season was their premiere defeat of J.P. Stevens. According to Coach Zaleski, "This season was the most successful and satisfying I've had because of the quality of the young men on the team and the support of the administrators, faculty, students, and parents." He believes that next year will be at least as successful due to the competitive spirit of the team members and the stronghold the wrestling program has taken in the high school.

OUTSHOOTING THEIR GOALS

Using the best of their skills, the Girls' Varsity Basketball team finished the season with a record of 13 wins and 8 losses. The oustanding players and the agressive team's desire to win contributed greatly to Coach Sunski's vast satisfaction as she commented, "My team this year played better and accomplished more than I expected."

Although the height averaged 5'5", the speed of the defensive players more than compensated for this physical handicap. The leader of the team in assists in Caryn Lukie who averaged seven per game. With a total number of 51 assists, Caryn also scored high with an average of nine points per game as does Kate Briody. Following close behind Caryn in assists, Kate averaged six per game and has a total of 48. Last but far from least was high scorer Chris Mormak, averaging 10 points and 12 rebounds per game.

Coach Sunski felt that knowing this was her last coaching season spurred the girls on to win. "I thoroughly enjoyed my last season and am proud of my athletes."

OUTSTANDING OFFENSE, DEVASTATING DEFENSE

Girls' JV Basketball: Front: Sue Whiteford, Lisa Grankowski, Vanessa Carney, Joyce Winkler. Back: Gina Rispoli, Terry Lockwood, Coach Ryan, Stacy Gardner, Heleen Hogan.

Pre-game drills and rigorous practice helped the SWMHS Girls' JV Basketball team to finish up the year with a 7 and 10 record. The team's effort and desire to win along with the outstanding skill of point guard, Vanessa Carney, and forward, Terry Lockwood, also aided the team in overcoming the opposition.

During each game, a different captain was appointed in order to provide all the girls a chance to build their leadership abilities. Most of the time the Girls' JV Basketball team outscored their opponent in the fourth quarter, an asset to any group moving to the varsity level.

Coach Ryan explained their most exciting game by saying, "With the score tied at 26 and three minutes remaining in the game, the tenacious Sayreville defense held Perth Amboy scoreless and went on to win the game 32-26." With their outstanding offense and devasting defense, the Bomberettes always "bounced back."

A bounce pass by Vanessa Carney to the open teammate puts the Bomber offense on the move upcourt.

Some smooth dribbling and a fast cut to the right provided Terri Lockwood with an opening through the Woodbridge defense.

GOOD SPORTS

The JV dribblers this year played tough but couldn't overcome their opposition. Coach Ciszewski commended his team on their ability to abide by good sportsmanship, particularly when their opponents did not.

Wins and loses though, can't describe the "good sportsmanship, drive, and skill" displayed by the basket shooters according to Coach Ciszewski. "Forward Jim Harvey and center Phil Esteves who averaged 14 points per game were the most productive players this season," cited the coach. Their excellent performances, however, weren't the only ones. They had the help of other team members such as co-captain Steve Czacker and Stan Grabowski who averaged 12-15 rebounds per game.

The Bombers defeated J.P. Stevens in double overtime in their most exciting game of the season. On this success, Coach Ciszewski commented, "They never gave up and played hard to the buzzer."

SPIRITED SHOOTERS

BELOW: Looking for an opening in the tough Cougar defense, Mike O'Hare gets ready to score two more for the Bombers.

"Team members gave a 100% effort as they played as hard as they could every game," boasted Coach Breheney. That effort and outstanding teamwork might have added up to a more impressive record if the team had not been handicapped by a lack of height," the coach added.

The team may have been a bit "short" of their "goals," but it certainly wasn't short on leaders. Leading scorer was center Paul Ortiz with an 11.6 points per game, followed closely by Scott Jurkiewicz with 10.6 points per game and Mike O'Hare with 10.4 points per game. Defense leaders included Senior Frank Szukics and Juniors Craig McCoy and Steve Bulla. Finally, Captain Mike Veronsky caught the attention of the fans at the victory over St. Mary's with his overhead long shot (see photo on p. 193). The distinctive shot became Mike's trademark several years ago, when he played informal games with players much taller than himself.

With the score often as hard to follow as the proverbial bouncing ball, the season's high points also included the close loss to St. Joe's in the second half of the season and the two-point win over Edison.

One of the Bomber's most aggressive players, Scott Jurkiewicz, uses many defensive tactics including ''the stare'' demonstrated here.

With meters to go, Patty Borbully expels both energy and air in order to maintain her lead in the 200 meter freestyle.

Team members shout their support as Chuck Foschini gets into position for a somersault.

The end of the pool and the culmination of a lengthy race give Billy Anderson enough energy to keep swimming.

Striving for excellence, Reyne Borup executes an almost "picture perfect" inward dive layout.

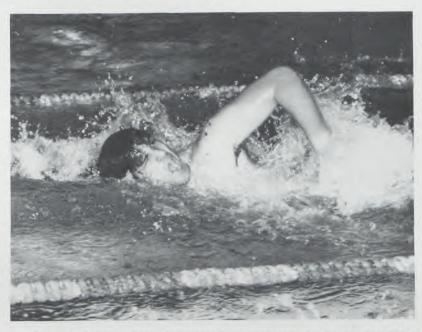

BUOYANT BOMBERS

Can a successful team be a "family affair?" This year's swim team included three family pairs which aided the team greatly in their efforts to win.

Getting their opponents "all wet" was what the Bombers accomplished as they splashed their way to their first winning record. Combining practice and experience with determination, this year's team swam and dove to a 7-5 record.

Along with the record came the individual effort of the team members. Sophomores Reyne Borup and Stacy Jablonski qualified for the State Tourney, while junior Chris Bloch went undefeated in the 100 meter freestyle and butterfly. Between these three, five records were broken during the season.

An exciting victory was brought to us over our crosstown rival, Cedar Ridge. Although three swimmers were out of commission, the team used everything they had and overcame their opponents. Declared Coach Tice, "I think everyone gave 110 percent. They did just great."

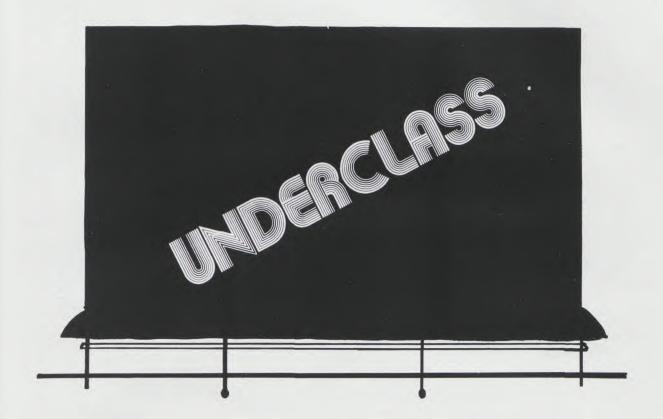

Powerful strokes are made by Chuck Foschini in an effort to propel himself to another victory for the Bomber team.

SOPHOMORES

A new teacher at SWMHS, Miss D'Amico has taken on the other new-comers: the class of '85. This enthusiastic group of sophomores has proven to be an easy match for their advisor. She is pleased and states, "We have a good group of officers and a good group of students."

Having been a class officer and Student Council member herself Miss D'Amico decided to become a sophomore class advisor because it "gave me a chance to be active in something and to show the sophomores how much fun it can be."

The job is far from all fun and games, however, Miss D'Amico devotes time before homeroom and an average of two days after school a week to the class. This average was increased during construction of the award winning "Muppet Movie" float. The success of the float was a great help in lifting the class spirit.

The next thing to be lifted was the sophomore bank account, through the selling of candy, jewelry, holiday hats, stockings, and gift wrap.

The sophomores are a cooperative group, affirmed Miss D'Amico; "They're all outstanding."

Where Will You Be

Did you ever just think about where you'll be twenty years from now? When asked, tenth-grader Joanne Esposito submitted the following an-

I'm really not sure about what I want to do in twenty years, but here are three different ideas I've had.

I would like to be a truck driver, speeding around the country and dodging in and out of "smokeys". Driving my eighteen wheel conventional, I'd go from state to state with my hubby. I'd enjoy my life on the open road with the wind blowing in my face, the radio blasting, and my foot pushing "the pedal to the metal".

Or I would probably be all settled down with a family and friends and a lot of kids in a little house on a hill with a white picket fence.

But most of all I would like to be a nurse in a hospital where I could help the young kids, especially the mentally retarded and handicapped.

Where will we find Joanne in 2003?

Opening Night

Twenty years is more than a lifetime to most high school students. If you decided right now to be an expert in computer technology, a black belt in karate, or even President of the United States and you concentrated all, or even most, of your energy into that one goal, would you make it?

Eleventh grader, Lori Ann Foster, is headed for a career in performing arts, she hopes. Here we are on opening night, 2003.

I guess everyone on opening night always gets a few jitters, but I still feel great! In every aspect I feel fantastic! LOOK AT ME! Here I am doing what I've always dreamed of doing. I know it's real because I can really feel it!

Now I can show everyone what I can do, and I can make them see how much I enjoy entertaining them. This is a feeling that no one would be able to hide. Ever since I was little the only kind of attention that satisfied me was the thought of just making people happy, and the only way I could do it was by putting on a different face and acting differently. I've always had this feeling that I was born to do this so I'm gonna get up and do what I do best! Hold the applause, now, for 2003.

Lunch period allows Georgina Macaluso to send a friend a carnation, through the Student Council

A devilish junior, Gina Rispoli, demonstrates mild antagonism every underclassperson feels toward the exiting seniors around 12:08.

Juniors

Not only is the class of '84 positively oriented and enthusiastic, but they also gave much time and energy to class activities this year. The main objective this year was to raise as much money as possible to prepare for senior expenses next year. This Junior class has sold cookies, candy, and decorative shoelaces.

The officers have their own responsibilities, but the rest of the work is handled on a voluntary basis. Their advisor, Mrs. Jardula, states, "I think it is a privilege to work with other dedicated advisors and class officers as well as the class members. I think they are all great." She became class advisor because, "I enjoy the kids in class and even more after school."

Mrs. Jardula knows that it's difficult to divide time between teaching and being an advisor, but with efficient people, it's easier. She felt that the success of the prom in May made all the work seem worthwhile, so much so that she almost wishes the class of '84 would never graduate . . . almost.

Junior Class Officers: Ralph Howardson, Treas; Sue Kraivec, Pres; Chris Barbella, Sec'y; Michele Dzergoski, Sec'y; Jeff Reagan, Executive Council Member.

Junior Class Advisors: Mrs. Jardula, Head Advisor, Mrs. Carosh, Mrs. Ludlow. Miss Johnson not photographed.

My Friend

I have tomorrow in my dreams of today.

I am the future I'll find my way.

You are yesterday Gone like our sun.

You are the memories Fading one by one.

Today when I saw you I remembered our past.

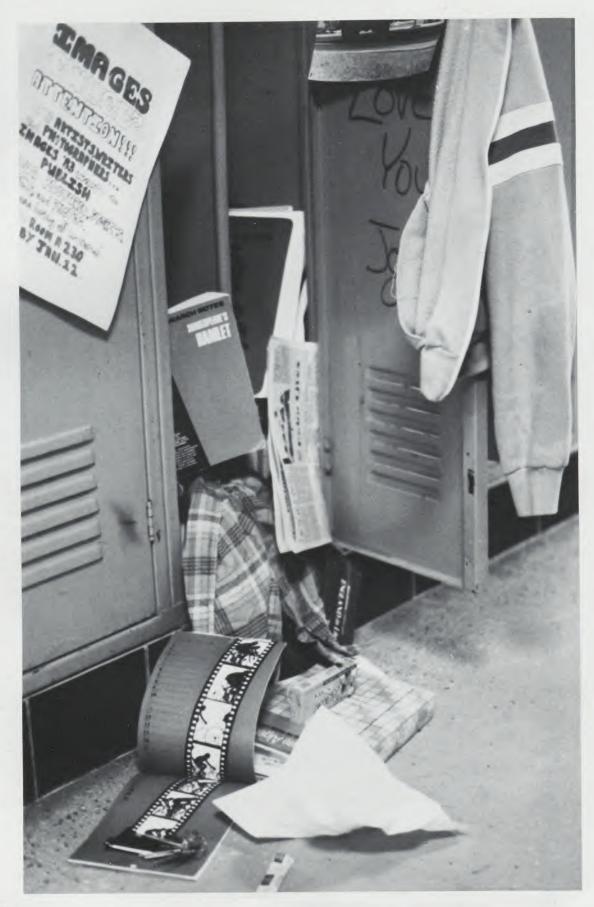

We shared something wonderful It just didn't last.

I can't stay any longer I have to move on.

To look for the future Yesterday is gone.

SENIORS

Runner Lisa Mitrosky shows that boys aren't the only ones who benefit from "pumping iron."

On The Track To Success

"I love to win." Everyone does, but for Lisa Mitrosky, it's practically an everyday occurrence. Her zeal to compete has given her both motivation and victory.

Lisa's long line of track meets and relays began in 9th grade when she joined Spring Track. From there on her sneakers led her to 11th grade and the State Sectional championship. Since that goal has been attained, Lisa now sets her sights on winning in state competition.

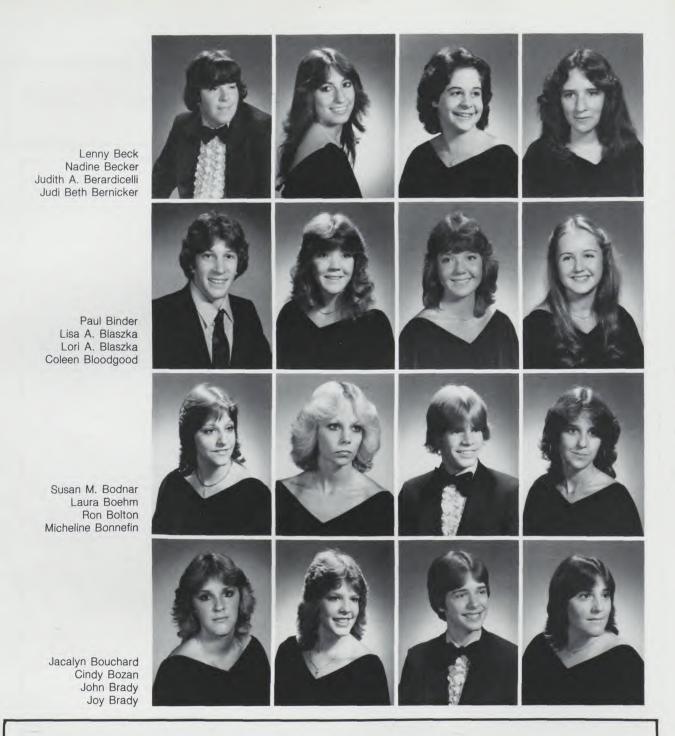

"I love to run, really. You get to travel to different towns and meet a lot of people," explains Lisa. But running isn't the only event she participates in. The long jump helped her to win the state sectionals. Besides that, Lisa takes part in shot put, discus, and javelin event.

Knowing graduation isn't so far off, Lisa has a good idea of what she's going to do after high school. Hopefully attending either Villanova, Perdue or Colorado State, she will major in Chemistry and join the university track team.

Setting goals and reaching them is one thing Lisa Mitrosky enjoys doing, but she realizes you have to "learn how to win and lose, especially lose." Having both won and lost some, Lisa still keeps reaching high and proving that she is a true athlete.

Reflecting Images

Imagine yourself looking into crystal clear waters and seeing yourself. To you it's only a reflection, but for ten seniors here at SWMHS, this image may be a real person. The five senior sets of twins are: Lisa and Lori Blaszka, John and Mike Brady, Jeannie and Patti Harrison, Ray and Ron Miara, and Jean and Joan Targonski.

For Lisa and Lori, there's always someone there to talk to. Jean and Joan can even share their clothes. After a while, the only problem is whose are whose?

But things are not always twice as much fun in twindom. There is always competition, for example, between Ray and Ron, who both play football. Jeannie and Patti admit that they're extra close, but dislike having to share everything, especially birthdays.

Names getting mixed up, unfortunately, happens quite often. Right, John . . . I mean, Mike? All in all, though, our twins agree that they are lucky to have a live-in best friend.

They can also have a little fun by switching places and driving people crazy. That's something most of us couldn't pull off.

Clear your desks and prepare to take a visual test. Examine the pictures on this page and count the number of people in each photograph. Your choices are A) 1 B) 2 C) 3 D) 4. The correct answer is "B" for binary. Actually, pictured left to right are the binary pairs Ron and Ray Miara, Mike and John Brady, Jean and Joan Targonski, Lisa and Lori Blaszka, and Jeannie and Patti Harrison.

PROFILE -

Jack-Of-All-Sports

The sports teams of SWMHS are represented by a many average players, but it is only once in a while do we find an outstanding player like Paul Ortiz. Reflecting upon his earlier years, this senior sensation comments, "The best feeling I've ever had was winning my first high school football game."

A native of Newark and in a family of six, Paul first started playing organized sports with the Sayreville Leprechauns and eventually advanced himself to the junior high football and freshman basketball. He's been making SWMHS history ever since. Being an all county wide receiver, Paul leads the Bomber football team as safety and wide receiver. He also keeps the Basketball Bombers in the "hoops" as a strong forward. In the future, he plans to help out other teams when he attends Montclair State, Rutgers University or Lehigh University as a Business major.

Disappointed by this year's football season, Paul left this comment for future SWMHS players: "I have never seen a team that wanted to win as much as we did. There is no doubt in my mind that if the players keep the same attitude, our time of winning football will come." He also feels that more spectator participation, assemblies and pep rallies could boost the school spirit of the Senior High.

Summing up all the years at SWMHS Paul feels he developed a sense of responsibility and self-motivation. He concluded, "Going here gave me a good experience."

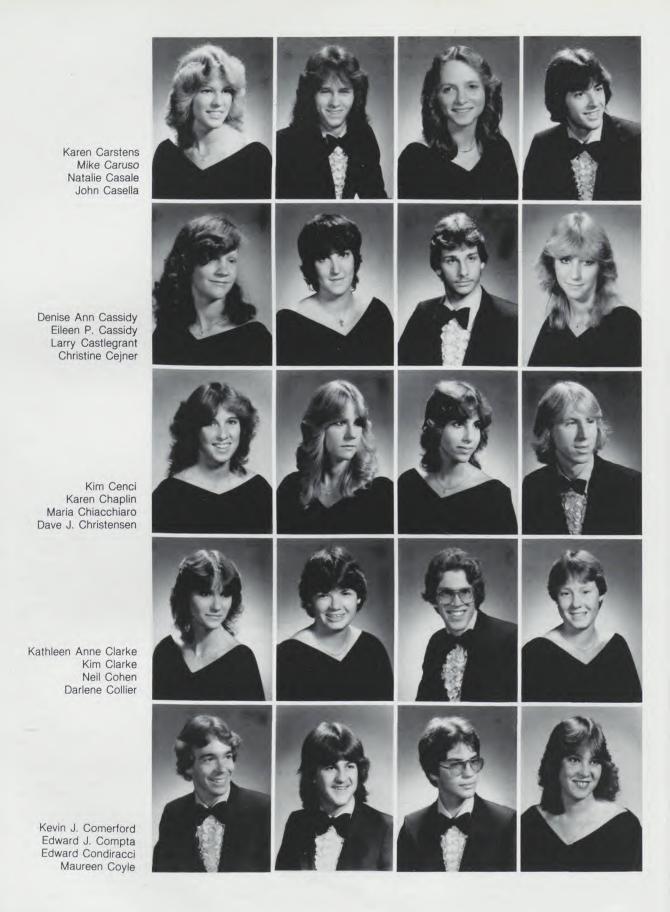

Does athlete Paul Ortiz really enjoy the academic aspects of SWMHS?

SWMHS Name Game

"Wharf Rat," "Edwin," "Figbert," "Dude," and "Bean" are all respectable members of the senior class, but who are they? Nicknames came from varied and strange sources, as the yearbook staff learned when they polled the class of '83 on the subject. Here are some of the more interesting examples:

Debra Ann Antonides, alias "Pipes":

I don't really know if you can call it a nickname, but in 10th grade Health class we were discussing poisons around the house, only I wasn't paying attention. Anyway, Mr. Helwig asked me what was under my sink and I said, "Pipes". The whole class cracked up including Mr. Helwig. By the next day everyone I knew, even some people who weren't in the class that day, were calling me "Pipes".

Ray Miara, alias FDR:

FDR means Full Day Ray. The Football team gave me the nickname because I was the only senior player on a full day schedule.

Matt Pachkowski, alias Skip:

I was thumbing through the Preppie Handbook, one day, when I came across a listing of all preppie nicknames. I thought it would be neat to adopt a new nickname, just for the heck of it. "Skip" had a certain ring to it so I asked my closest friends to call me it. Once "Skip" was published as my byline in the newspaper, the name stuck as everyone, students and teachers alike, began to call me it.

Voice Judy Berardicelli, a senior here at SWMHS, is an accomplished vocalist and guitarist. She began her singing career as a fourth grader at Eisenhower Grammar School in their annual talent show. Now Judy is a member of the SWMHS Chorus, St. Mary's Folk Group and the Diocese of Metuchen Festival Choir. Last year she attended the Middlesex County Arts High School, where she was honored with the Outstanding Vocal Student Award. She also sings at weddings, banquets, and other affairs.

She names the high point of her career as her last performance with a close friend. They often sang together at mass. For this occasion they were singing their favorite song for the last time. "The song was so perfect that we cried as we sang. When we had finished, we looked around and saw that the whole congregation was crying with us." The beauty of Judy's story is truly equal to the power of her voice.

Judy hopes to continue her musical endeavors by attending Georgian Court, Kean College, or Westminster Choir College. She would like to be a professional performer and eventually settle into teaching.

SPIRIT OF '83 With prices climbing and condominiums going up in your once favorite spots, is there anything good about inflation? Well, there is the rise in school spirit to consider. According to the answers to questionnaries this past September, more than half the seniors said their school spirit had increased since sophomore year.

When the profound question of "Why?" came up, the responses varied. "Because I'm a senior!", "high school only comes once - you should enjoy it," or "our teams are getting better." A more visible answer could be in the actions of the members of the Class of '83. Many of these seniors go to their favorite sports events and "root" the players to victory. There seems to be a rise in volunteers for preparation for class activities. When tickets for a dance or prom go on sale, the quota is quickly filled up as class members eagerly prepare for another get-together. The class of '83 seems to enjoy getting groups together after school activities and just celebrating being a member of a "Bomber" team. But is school spirit really needed? Can we survive without it? The SWMHS Student Council came up with the definitive answer, "School spirit provides the vitality to make school a more rewarding experience." The class of '83 has set an example to attain this ideal.

ACTING DUO

Being called Greasers hasn't bothered Barbara McDonald and Kathy Grau because it reminded them of their involvement in the community theatre, a direction they chose in order to extend themselves beyond the boundaries of high school drama.

Both Barbara and Kathy decided theatre was for them after performing in the high school production of West Side Story in 1981. By January, 1982, they had joined the St. Lawrence Playhouse in Lawrence Harbor. Both girls performed in the community version of Grease and have helped with scenery in several performances. In community theatre "the cast is the crew," they agreed. Kathy also directed A Christmas Carol in which Barbara performed. Barbara was enthusiastic about being directed by Kathy: "Communication was better with someone my own age. She really listened to my opinion more than anyone else would have."

The senior actresses plan to continue activity in the theatre; Kathy has set her short range goal attending Mason Gross School of the Arts and a longer range one on becoming an Equity member. Barbara plans a career in physical therapy but will "keep going on" in performing for the personal satisfaction it provides.

Not Just Clowning Around

Juggling is something every successful high school student does well, what with homework, extra-curricular activities, friends, part-time jobs, and family commitments. However, Dave Saltzman took on juggling in a more literal sense in the spring of 1980. Inspired by a television demonstration and beginning with tennis balls, Dave invested at least five hours of self-directed practice per week. His best experience thus far has been stopping passers-by with an impromptu performance on Madison Avenue.

Dave recently invested in some professional juggling materials, but part of his current act involves some personally designed props and jokes that always make him a hit at informal gatherings. He hopes to begin his sideline entertaining career with children's parties. Only then will he consider exploring the professional opportunities. From his experience, Dave assuredly declared, "Now I know that real clowns do exist."

NOT A DRAG-RACING

Hardly touching the ground, this Camaro is capable of speeding Vinnie Kjersgaard toward the finish line.

A talk with Vinnie Kjersgaard about drag racing turned out to be a bit of a "racy" experience. First he discussed his Super Pro car, a '69 Camaro, built primarily by his father with help from Vinnie and friends. Already a meet winner at Raceway Park, Vinnie admitted he'd been a regular visitor there since he was seven years old, and refers to it as his "home track." Known to his fellow drivers and fans as "Raritan Vin", he indicated, "I knew what I was doing," with regard to his first win.

Vinnie acquired his knowledge from on-the-track observation as well as reading up on what's happening on area tracks. Of course, the hands-on rebuilding and customizing in his father's shop, Raritan Speed, where Vinnie is employed, must have helped. Vinnie averaged 28 hours per week there in his senior yeat at SWMHS.

His involvement in drag racing is still a hobby to Vinnie, but one that is interesting, fun, and demanding. His long range plans include building his own Pro car. The project cost of this car is $80,000.00. Its potential with an ET (elapsed time) of seven seconds would be an acceleration of 180 mph in the quarter mile. Vinnie's diversified preparation and experience are speeding him toward his goal.

SENIOR YEAR: A WRINKLE IN TIME

Senior year . . .

It means different things to different people. The sophomore dreams with nervous longing of the prom, a car, and a job. Mom and Dad seem to develop wrinkles just saying the words. College admissions personnel and military recruiters welcome seniors with a kind of greed. But how did the members of the Class of '83 feel?

Typical responses were the predictable "great", "old" and able to boss around underclasspeople. Elaine Michel couldn't understand anyone not loving it. Eileen Himey compared her high school years to World War II. Jean Baumann did not look forward to leaving. Kelly Ann Harrigan compared her situation to being in shock.

Perhaps Stephanie Skibicki spoke best for the class: "You're no longer a follower, but a leader."

SERVICE BOUND SENIORS

A trend increasing each year is that more of our young people are becoming a part of this country's armed forces. Two enlistees for each service were interviewed about their motivations and predictions regarding the services.

Both Joe McCartney and Reynaldo Roldan chose the U.S. Army. Joe will serve as a paratrooper in the 82nd Airborne Division, full time. He chose this route as a result of careful consideration of the possibility of unemployment, the economy, and the opportunity for adventure the service might provide. A future student at either the Marion Military Institute, West Point Prep, or West Point, Reynaldo hopes to become a lawyer. After graduating from one of these schools, he looks forward to a career with officer's benefits.

Senior Richard Blackford plans to make the U.S. Air Force his career. He wants to become a pilot by serving full time. Matt Pachkowski has enlisted in the U.S. Air Force ROTC program as a way of paying for college and establishing his medical career. This program will pay tuition for medical school so that Matt can become a flight surgeon.

John Brady feels that his enlistment in the U.S. Navy full time is right for him, and that the benefits later on will be great. Brian Flaherty also foresees benefits, the most important one being the respect his military status will merit. Brian has joined the U.S. Navy and plans to become an electrician on a ship.

The benefits of a military career as viewed by Joe, Brian, Reynaldo, Richard, Matt, and John were as diversified as the boys themselves, yet all seemed to recognize that their attitude toward their enlistments was crucial to their satisfaction and success.

SELF-MADE

Over the years, SWMHS has produced many car mechanics, and this year is no exception. Jim Buckalew, a senior, has extensively worked on a '66 Mustang by rebuilding the engine, restoring the interior, replacing body parts, repairing the exterior and adding customizing touches. John Scanlon, also a senior, has completely rebuilt the engine of a Dodge van, as well as customizing it, inside and out.

Surprisingly neither has ever taken courses in mechanics. Both cited their best training experience as the work they have done on their own and their friends' cars.

There is always the element of danger when working with cars which both Jim and John recognize. Jim was once showered by acid when a battery exploded. John's most perilous experience involved turning on a compressor with a lift already in a raised position. This resulted in the car turning onto its side. Fortunately both Jim and John learned from their experiences.

Like most seniors, Jim and John are undecided as to their careers, but are considering the automotive field as one possibility. John emphasized that he has already saved himself quite a bit of money by doing his own work. Jim has even encouraged others to take up car repair: "Cars are always going to be around. It can only help you to know something about them."

MECHANICS

Having the know-how to rebuild cars could build a bright future for Jim Buckalew and John Scanlon who pause here for a moment on their way to work.

Memories, Pressed Between The Pages . . .

Is there such a thing as a good high school memory? After three years of trying to remember locker combinations, homework pages, and when and where the next quiz is going to "pop up," could one happily reminisce about their high school days?

Sports events often make memories. For instance, Ivan Ferro will remember that 1982 was the year the golf team came in third at the championships. The undefeated track team will always provide Doreen Genua with a fond memory of high school. Joy Brady will think of victorious plays in line soccer against the sophomores. Finally, mention of the sophomore float still brings a smile to Stacie Field's face, as she recalls portraying a pig.

The sporting fields are not the only terrain for memory-making, however. A not so enthused Ken Dempkowski would rather not remember high school, but admitted to enjoying the "snow days." The marching band trip to Virginia will stay alive for Linda Meyer. Dan Prevosnak will always wonder if the "Super Bomber Combo" is still alive. Kathy Burns feels the agony of falling down in front of the "whole" school at the Almost Anything Goes assembly. Finally, John Casella will always hail Julius Caesar.

No doubt, every SWMHS senior can hail some fitting reminders of their high school "daze."

An ET (Extra Terrific) Year

As the Class of '83 leaves behind their high school years, they'll "fer sure" remember to "phone home", inspired by this year's personalities, the fast talking, slow-witted Valley Girls and the extraordinarily lovable ET.

Also a permanent guest in most homes by '83 was an Atari system. Its bleep-bleeping, however, was no competition for the Who Farewell Concerts or the invasion of new wave-rockabilly by the Stray Cats. Compliments of the Monroes, this year's musical question had to be, "What do all the people knew how to dress, choosing sweatsuits, long polka-dotted tops, mini skirts, leg warmers, and last but not least, deer sweaters.

Yet, '82-'83 was not all a year of fads and entertainment. It brought the tragic Tylenol poisonings and a two month plus pro football strike. Much closer to home was the Sony Walkman controversy.

Leaving behind their friends and school, the Class of '83 will always retain memories of a sensational senior year. Without some of these fads and fashions, perhaps it would have been just another year.

Although Jean Marie Baumann displays the garb of today, she is thoroughly absorbed in a discussion of the world literature of the past.

"Take me out to the ball game. . . "

So many little boys grow up dreaming of the day when they'll be old enough to play big league baseball. But what about all those little girls who also dream about the big leagues? What happens to them?

Well, as it turns out, right here in Sayreville lies the answer. No, it's not a date with a season ticket holder; it's the Sayreville Girls Softball League, one of the many which have spread across the country.

Most of the girls have been playing for three or four years; however, Patti Lynch has been playing since the third grade. This kind of experience pays off. By now Doreen Savona feels that "some of the players have the ability to compete in the boys' leagues."

Every girl in the league had memorable experience like hitting a homer which won a championship game. Lisa Firestine can also remember when hers, like every other team, messed up a game. The worst feeling for everyone is having to graduate because the playing age ends at 17. Finally when asked if they planned to continue playing, Carol Kowzan summed it up for all the rest of the big leaguers: "Of course!"

SAYREVILLE TROUBADOUR

"The worst day of my life had to be when I was sick, had to take my SAT's, and audition for All State Chorus in the span of a few hours." It looks like Kevin Ferguson's worst day may have turned out to be one of his best. He is now a member of New Jersey's All State Chorus. Everyone should have such bad days!

Kevin became a recognized singer when he won the lead in SWMHS's West Side Story as a sophomore. After that his career took off. He went on to perform in Bye Bye Birdie in his junior year and in Carousel as a senior. Kevin also developed and starred in the TAG production of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream-coat.

He travelled with the All State Chorus to the NJEA Convention in Atlantic City where he had a memorable time. Kevin described the best part of his experience: "To sing with those people for a receptive audience and to realize the beauty of the music I was helping to create sent a thrill through my body." And Kevin promised that he'd always remember that SWMHS gave him his start.

A feeling of accomplishment overcomes Kevin Ferguson as he reminisces on attaining All-State status.

E-SPECIAL-LY BUSY

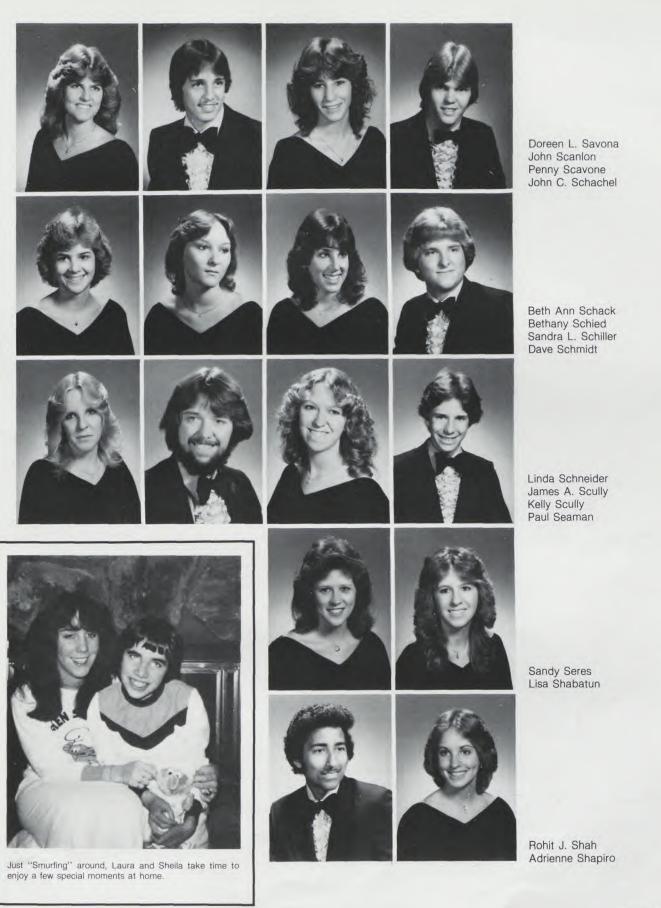

"Special" takes on new meaning when used to describe Laura Sullivan whose background and current interests made her a very special senior this year. Active in class activities, the Spanish Club, the Spanish Honor Society, and the newspaper staff, Laura also found time to manage the Boys' Basketball Team, participate as a member of the Girls' Gymnastic Team, and edit the senior section of this yearbook. A busy girl, wasn't she? And there was one more thing-Laura spent a minimum of fifteen hours per week giving her younger sister, Sheila, the special kind of attention she needed.

Sheila is truly a special person to Laura, her family, her friends, and to anyone who meets her. At thirteen, she is so severely brain damaged that she will never walk or talk. Laura has been caring for Sheila for seven years now, and felt a strong attachment to the "baby" since the day she first came home from the hospital. "I thought she belonged to me . . . that my mother had her so that I could have a real baby," Laura admitted.

In November, 1981, Sheila returned home from the hospital again, this time after a high risk operation in which her spine was fused to a metal rod. Without the operation, Sheila's physician had predicted within a year she would succumb to pneumonia. Laura described that homecoming as the best day in her life.

Laura's TAG project this year aided individuals less handicaped than Sheila. She helped the high school's Special Education Department tape various pieces for use by blind and other special students.

In the future, Laura plans to become a Special Education teacher, and later she hopes to help amend the laws regarding the handicapped. A bubbly smile from Sheila makes Laura's day worthwhile, a feeling she'd like to share with others. "Most people just don't appreciate the special people God gave us," Laura concluded.

PICTURE PERFECT MEMORIES

Many of us would like to paint our memories to ensure their lasting a lifetime. Then there are people like Diane Poweska who take this statement more literally.

Interested in art since the 6th grade, Diane has been exploring her talents through such courses as Introduction to Design, Advanced Art and now Art Workshop. She has attended the Art Institution School for two years in preparation for art school after graduation.

Diane has made many projects over the year. She has dabbled in charcoal pencil, pastels, wire and airbrushing, but painting is her favorite medium. Her original ideas come from books, magazines, and even Mr. Resh. Once they're completed, she says they stay at home in her room.

After months of hard work Diane Poweska can finally smile in relief as she proudly displays her project.

After three months, Diane has finished this year's project, one of her last works. She has drawn free hand, and then painted a Judas Priest cover for her boyfriend, Ken Festino. The project was detailed and she admits, "I would never have finished without help from my friends."

TEN TO ONE

WITH THE ODDS IN THEIR FAVOR

Being among the top ten in the graduating class is a great honor, but, of course, only one can be first. Number seven, Mark Przybylowski admitted, "I am content with being number seven, but I feel that class rank should not be overemphasized because it detracts from the real purpose of a high school education." Suzie Bufano, number eight, agreed, "The friends and experiences I've had during my three years at Sayreville High School are just as important to me as the education I've obtained."

Why is it great to be number three? "It's a prime number, get it?" said Andrea Spiegel. A little more serious, but just as proud, number nine Janet Wos felt that "By doing by best these past years, I have accomplished this goal and feel that it was worth it."

Number four Jessica Bauer responded, "I'd just like to thank the four people who helped me get here: my parents, Ms. Sutherland, and four, but not last, me!" To Jeanne Harrison, number six, "I'm six times better than one." Helen Freid, number five, quoted Jefferson Airplane: "To be any more than all I am would be a lie." Dave Saltzman number ten, dreamed, "Bo Derek and I

A preview of Matt Pachkowski's valedictory speech included, "To" be the valedictorian of the Class of 1983 of SWMHS is indeed an honor I am very proud to hold. It is an academic goal that took a lot of hard work and determiniation, but the satisfaction and rewards made the effort worthwhile. Salutatorian Carol Kowzan simply replied, "The hardest thing in my high school career was thinking up a quote for this article. No, make that an acceptable quote!"

A smile on Salutatorian Carol Kowzan's face expresses her sense of achievement.

The 1983 "sign of success" consists of this year's numbers 3-10: 3-Andrea Spiegel, 4-Jessica Bauer, 5-Helen Freid, 6-Jeanne Harrison, 7-Mark Przybylowski, 8-Suzie Bufano, 9-Janet Wos, 10-Dave Saltzman.

A WELL-DIRECTED CLASS

With all the time required for planning new activities, it's a wonder the Senior Class officers had time to organize and successfully execute these activities. President Jay Medlin, Vice President Terri Kellert, Secretaries Jeanne Nehila and Kim Pancurak, and Treasurer Lori Blaszka have also managed to raise school spirit. They all think that the class spirit has grown since sophomore year and that it had peaked during senior year.

They also feel that the class was very supportive of most activities. There was a great turnout at last year's Junior Prom and at this year's Homecoming game. Without their advisors, Mrs. Groncki, Mrs. Lasko, Mrs. Gola, and Mrs. Moore, though, things might not have been so successful. Terri Kellert says the advisors to the Class of '83 were "the best" and were a great help through the years.

The officers planned a St. Valentine's Day dance as a final fund-raiser. They also promised a great prom, the annual Almost Anything Goes assembly, and an Easter candy sale.

Significant accomplishments behind and goals for the future, Jay Medlin still says, "It's hard work, but in the end, the rewards are greater than the task."

DIRECTING ALL THANKS

"I'm so glad we've had this time together. Just to have a laugh . . . " Actually, we had plenty of laughs. In fact, if there was a prize for the silliest bunch of yearbook members, we'd probably win hands down. Unconventional though we were, we still got our work done. It has once again come time to thank those people who helped us in the DIRECTION of success for this year's yearbook.

Thank you . . . to the lady with the abundance of orange cropping pencils, and nearly all the answers, Miss Donoghue . . . to Ms. Sutherland for a place of refuge for one harried Editorin-Chief . . . to Mr. Geletei for our special passes . . . to Miss Sowa, Mrs. Jardula, and Mrs. Lasko for their food donations to near ravenous staff members . . . to Mrs. Dulemba for the FSA pictures . . . to Greg Costich for his personal picture delivery service . . . to Bob Damato for some lovely printing . . . to the A207 custodians who let us stay late and never complained about the Reese's Pieces on the floor . . . finally to Mr. Dill and all other faculty members for their constant cooperation and support.

We'd also like to thank Ms. Bittle for keeping A207 a lively place, while being serious enough to help us put out a yearbook that we are truly proud of. We seniors hate to leave her because she always kept us laughing. A tear comes to the eye, but then we think of her in that disposable graduation cap.
