Eugene F. Daly of 15 Pearl street announced yesterday his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Common Council from the Second Ward in opposition to Councilman Otto F. Taylor who is a candidate for the nomination to succeed himself on the GOP ticket at the spring primary.

Mr. Daly's announcement marks the fourth effort on his part to procure the nomination. Although carrying three or four districts on two different occasions, Mr. Daly has yet to be successful in attaining the nomination. A life long resident of Summit Mr. Daly is a compositor in the Summit Herald shop where he is a member of the Summit Typographical Union 788, A.F.L. For many years active in sports, playing semi-pro baseball, he is affiliated with Summit Lodge of Elks.

Mr. Taylor, who this year will complete his first three-year term as a member of council, is presently chairman of council's finance and public relations committee. He is also a member of the Board of School Estimate.

Member of Accounting Firm
Since 1911, Mr. Taylor has been engaged in the practice of public accounting in New York, being a certified public accountant in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey. ## Four Noted Writers To Be Guests of Fortnightly Club

Faith Baldwin, popular novelist, will be featured at the Fortnightly Club's annual Book and Author program to be held Wednesday, March 1, at 3:15 p.m. at Summit High School. Appearing on the panel with Miss Baldwin will be Jeanne Wright, author of "Wedding Book"; Stanley Kaufmann, play and fiction writer, and George Marek, author of "Guide to Musical Enjoyment."

The Book and Author program is presented each year by the American Home Department of the club. This year the program is made available through the courtesy of Rhinehart and Co., publishers. There will be a book exhibit and books sold will be autographed by their authors. Guest tickets are valid for the meetings and the public is also invited.

Miss Baldwin, a resident of Connecticut, will discuss her latest novel, "The Golden Shoestring." She will have a new novel, "Look Out for Lisa," published on April 27. She has written numerous articles, short stories, serials and poetry in addition to her novels.

Jeanne Wright has enjoyed a successful career as a stylist and bridal consultant. She planned the weddings of the present Mrs. T. A. Song and the former Mrs. Joe DiMaggio. In 1942 she became director of women's welfare for Henry J. Kaiser and is now a merchandiser for R. H. Macy & Co.

Stanley Kaufmann has had more than forty plays published and several novels. His "King of Proxy Street" will be a future movie and his "This Time Forever" is being serialized by The Woman's Home Companion. He will discuss his recent book, "Hidden Hero."

George Marek's regular feature in Good Housekeeping magazine has earned him many friends. He has appeared on the Metropolitan Opera quiz show and is program annotator for the Opera.

Boys to Face Court For Smashing Lights

Two boys, aged 16 and 17, will face Juvenile Court authorities on a charge of breaking street lights, police said yesterday. The complaint was made last week by the Jersey Central Light and Power Co. after the boys were apprehended by Sergeant William Behre and Detective John Sayre. The juveniles were caught in the act on Llewellyn road.

James Traynor, Summit district superintendent for Jersey Central said that at least 34 street lights were broken since November 1 in the relatively small residential area north of Whitegrade road, Euclid and Woodland avenues.

"This means," he said, "that one third of the 116 street lights were smashed in ten weeks."

Four Above or Ten Below-- It's Still Too Darn Cold!

The cold wave which hit Summit Monday morning brought the Herald several reports of below-zero thermometer readings. A Mountain avenue resident said that on Tuesday her thermometer registered three below and a Berkeley Heights report stated that it was ten below in that section of the Township.

On Monday there were other reports of extremely low temperatures ranging from zero to 6 below from scattered sections of the city and New Providence.

Semi-official temperatures, as recorded at the Commonwealth Weather Co. weather station at their Canoe Brook reservoir, showed a low of four degrees above zero recorded for Tuesday.

The Commonwealth temperatures for a four-day period ending Tuesday are as follows:

Feb. 18	Max. 42	Min. 23	3:30 a.m. reading 18
19	46	24	36
20	42	24	33
21	15	4	10

The water company reported that on Tuesday morning its No. 2 reservoir was completely covered with ice—an event which does not happen too frequently. The Passaic river remained unfrozen although ice along the river banks extended for several feet. Practically all small ponds were frozen.

Also fearful of being frozen were numerous homeowners dependent upon coal and apparently getting nervous as the mine strike continues and stockpiles grow smaller. Both Eastern Fuel and Stephens-Miller companies reported extra heavy demands for coal and oil. Termed a "flash demand" the fuel firms stressed that there is no emergency here.

Firemen were alerted for the usual outbreak of fires from overheated furnaces and fireplaces but as of Tuesday night none were reported. The only damage reported was a broken window blamed on the high winds of Monday at Busch & Sons, Inc., Beechwood road and Summit avenue.

Fortnightly Car Lot, 88-Unit Apartment Okayed by Council

Approval of plans of the Fortnightly Club to provide an off-street parking area for sixty automobiles on its new property at Edgewood road and Springfield avenue and approval of an 88-unit garden apartment to be located at the corner of High street and New England avenue highlighted the meeting of the Common Council Tuesday night. The apartment development will be called New England Village.

The agreement with Fortnightly as executed by council makes provision for increasing the parking facilities upon request of the city should actual experience dictate the need. As originally conceived, the plan for off-street parking envisaged space for 50 cars. However, in conformity to the judgment of the Planning Board, Fortnightly agreed to space for 60 cars.

Property Use Protested
Mt. Prospect Association, a group of property owners in the area of the Fortnightly home, headed by E. Robin Little, met Thursday with the Planning Board and concurred "in the reasonableness of the parking facilities as indicated" on the plan approved Tuesday. "If any such facilities must be provided," Philip N. Trowbridge, chairman of the board, wrote council in a letter dated February 20. He further wrote that the Mt. Prospect group are "still protesting the use of the property in question for club purposes."

Mrs. F. B. Llewellyn, president of Fortnightly, who attended Council meeting Tuesday, met with Mrs. Montagu Hankin, a past president of the club and the Planning Board last November to submit and discuss plans for the off-street parking in accordance with provisions of the Zoning Ordinance.

It was at the November meeting that Mt. Prospect Association first protested the use of the Fortnightly property or any property located in a residential area for club purposes. The protesting group argued at that time that: The use of this particular property for club purposes would be damaging to surrounding property values. Such use would tend to commercialize a residential area and that it would eventually lead to an extension of the business district easterly on Springfield Avenue. Such use would create traffic hazards within the area due to parking on Springfield Avenue and Edgewood Road. The creation of any off-street parking lot for cars, no matter how well landscaped, would completely change the character of the neighborhood and create substantial traffic hazards and problems.

Name Change for Chamber Hinted At Annual Dinner

A possible change of name from Summit Chamber of Commerce to Summit Area Chamber of Commerce was suggested at the 12th annual dinner meeting of the Chamber held last Thursday at Canoe Brook Country Club by the organization's new president, Thomas Miller. Mr. Miller, in a brief address, stated that the name change would be more representative of the membership which includes several concerns located outside of the city.

He also reported that high on the list of projects for the coming year was an attempt to solve the parking problem.

Fun and fellowship was the keynote of the affair which was attended by 221 business and professional men of this area. The dinner was the most successful in the Chamber's history. In addition to Chamber members many out-of-town guests were present including city and county officials. Among these were Mayor Percival M. Bland, Council President Ernest S. Hickok, Freshholder Albert Benninger, Chief of Police Edward C. Egan, Fire Chief Thomas Murray and others.

The retiring president, Thomas W. Coleman, was presented with a silver cocktail shaker inscribed with the signatures of members of the board of directors. The presentation was made by Arthur Becker, also a past president. Mr. Coleman gave a brief resume of the activities of the last year and paid tribute to the directors, officers and committee chairmen who served under him.

Impromptu entertainment of singing and piano playing was given by Robert Sargent, Robert Reynolds, Ross Doyle, A. F. Leyden and William Opal. Following the dinner there was a program of professional entertainment.

Edward C. Holmes, chairman of the entertainment committee, was in charge of arrangements.

Scientist to View Future Education For Local Group

Dr. M. L. Crossley, retired research director of the American Cyanamid Co. and present director of studies of chemicals for cancer treatment at Rutgers, will speak at the next meeting of the Summit Association of Scientists to be held March 1 at the YMCA at 8:15 p.m. Dr. Crossley will speak on the topic, "Education for Tomorrow's World."

The speaker, one of the country's outstanding chemists, has indicated that he will discuss two divisions of education: (1) the discipline which provides proficiency in some special field of knowledge and (2), the discipline which strives to provide breadth of background. Dr. Crossley believes that at present there is a tendency to overemphasize the former at the expense of the broader education with substantial resultant loss to the nation.

Dr. Crossley's eminence in the chemical profession rests on his investigations into the molecular structure and color of organic compounds, dye synthesis, development of sulfadiazine, the chemistry of diseases, and the chemical treatment of cancer. Dr. Crossley is much interested in the inter-relationship of chemistry and biology and he feels that the answer to the cure for cancer may be found through such coordination among scientists as produced the atomic bomb.

Dr. Crossley is a graduate of Brown University where he took the bachelor's, master's, and Ph.D. degree. In 1940, his alma mater conferred on him the honorary degree of doctor of science. He was chairman of the department of chemistry at Wesleyan University before joining Calco at Bound Brook as chief chemist. As research director for Calco he stayed on after that company became part of the American Cyanamid Co. and two years later Dr. Crossley was made director of the entire Cyanamid Co. As a man who has directed and coordinated the work of the many scientists in the various divisions of this large organization, Dr. Crossley is well qualified to present the all important topic of "Education for Tomorrow's World."

At the brief business meeting which will precede the program, announcement will be made of the outcome of voting for the new executive committee. Roderick Macdonald, present chairman, has announced that this meeting is open to the public.

Mrs. Anna Hiatt Heads Youth Guidance Council
Mrs. Anna Hiatt of Edgemont avenue was elected chairman of Summit's Municipal Youth Guidance Council at a meeting held recently. Mrs. Hiatt replaces Harold T. Graves, Jr. who has headed the council since it was first established by state law in 1947. Mr. Graves will continue on the council as vice chairman. William R. Olson was re-elected secretary.

Area Industry Shows Big Rise in Power Consumption

Use of electric power by Summit area industry has increased 43 per cent in one year. "Total energy used last year by 16 of our largest nearby industrial customers was 24 million kilowatt hours, up 7 million from 1948," according to E. L. Huse, northern division power engineer for Jersey Central Power & Light Company.

"By any measurement this is an extraordinary one-year jump," Mr. Huse stated. "It exceeds, for example, the total annual electric consumption of all 4,600 of Summit's households. Moreover, this 7 million KWH increase was well spread among Summit's industries, 12 of the 16 taking more power, two being new additions and only two showing decreases. It doubled the 21 per cent increase of 1948 over 1947 for virtually the same industrial group."

Among the largest power users included in the utility's 1949 figures for the local area were: Air Reduction Company, Bell Telephone Laboratories, Celanese Corp., Ciba, Koppers Company, J. K. Smit & Sons, and North Jersey Quarry Company.

In addition to these industries, six municipal and public utility water pumping installations or close to Summit took two million KWH more in 1949 than in 1948. "It may be assumed that this 85 per cent increase reflects, among other factors, last year's drought conditions as well as population growth," Mr. Huse said.

Mrs. Diefendorf Named President Of YWCA Board

Mrs. Robert R. Diefendorf of Essex road was elected president of the Summit YWCA at a recent meeting of the board of directors. She will succeed Mrs. Thomas Walsh. The new president is active in many community affairs and has served the YWCA on several committees and as treasurer and chairman of the building fund.

Elected first vice president was Mrs. Frederick Eberhardt who has been active on the board as chairman of the volunteer personnel committee. Mrs. Jacob Trapp was named second vice president. Mrs. Trapp has served as chairman of the young adult committee and was instrumental in planning the business girls' lunch program.

Mrs. Ralph Blank, who has served on the world fellowship committee, and aided with plans for the laying of the cornerstone, was elected secretary. The treasurer will be Mrs. Edwin Tomh, chairman of the finance committee and treasurer.

Mrs. Walsh stated that the membership has now exceeded 1,000.

Revolutionary War Items on Display In Library Show

Two original letters written by George Washington highlight the exhibit at the Public Library which honors the birthday of the first President of the United States. The exhibit which opened Tuesday night will be continued for several weeks under the auspices of the Summit Historical Association and the Summit Public Library.

depict the Battle of Springfield. These were done by Mrs. Alzaman W. Miller of Pine Grove avenue from the originals which hang in the New York Public Library and the Louvre, Paris. Other pictures of the Summit territory in the days of the American Revolution were loaned to the library by the Summit Trust Co. and the First National Bank. These are copies of ones in the bank.

A letter written by Washington from Mount Vernon in 1790 and addressed to James McHenry Esq. of Philadelphia, was given to the library in 1926 by Mrs. Harriet De Forest. Another picture on display is of the home of Sarah Ann Dickinson Shaffer, grandmother of Mrs. W. J. Hallack of Springfield avenue. Following the war the house was known as "Old Stone Fort" and was situated at what is now Milltown avenue opposite Lord & Taylor.

Goals for 1950 Told to Kiwanis By State Officer

"Aggressive Citizenship for the Safeguard of Freedom," the theme for 1950 of Kiwanis International, was the topic chosen by Arthur F. Messner, Lieutenant Governor of the tenth division, New Jersey Kiwanis District, for a talk before the Summit Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon meeting at the Beechwood Hotel, Tuesday noon.

In his 46th official visit this year to a club in his division, Mr. Messner described the objectives by which all Kiwanis clubs intend to translate the theme into action during 1950. An objective of Kiwanis, Mr. Messner continued, is to champion the teaching of the advantages of representative government, and the enactment of laws which will bar subversive elements from our government and schools.

Kiwanis will stress the importance of free enterprise as a condition which has given this country a higher standard of living than has been possible under any other type of economic or political system. Economy in government is another objective which must be reached this year, said Mr. Messner. Adoption of the Hoover Commission's recommendations, a movement which Kiwanis is solidly supporting, Mr. Messner showed, would result in immediate savings.

In the field of labor-management relations, the Lieutenant Governor said, Kiwanis stands for equal rights for both labor and management and the injection of human and spiritual welfare as guiding principles in all negotiations. It is the final Kiwanis objective of 1950 to promote world peace through such international understanding and the strengthening of the United Nations Charter to eliminate the abuses which have thus far hindered it in attaining its full efficiency.

"You have had the pleasure and satisfaction of serving your community for many years," Mr. Messner warned the Summit Kiwanians in conclusion, "but you are now face to face with the possibility of losing your freedom to continue this service. Only active participation in your Kiwanis program of 'Aggressive Citizenship for the Safeguard of Freedom' can forestall this possibility."

2nd Ward Contest

(Continued from Page 1) United Campaign in various capacities such as special gifts committee and the budget committee. Mr. Taylor was active for ten years in the work of the Summit Civic Research Group, a group which engaged in the nonpartisan analysis of civic problems. Born February 16, 1889 in Lawrence, Mass., Mr. Taylor received his B.A. degree, magna cum laude, from Dartmouth in 1910. The following year the Amos Tuck School of Administration and Finance awarded him a Master of Commercial Science degree. Councilman Samuel A. Smith is a candidate for the Republican nomination in the First Ward to succeed himself. City Clerk William R. Gilson, now completing his first term as city clerk, is a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed himself. To date no opposition has been indicated for either Councilman Smith or Clerk Gilson. Raymond Bonnell of Morris ave., who was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee for Common Council last year from the Second Ward, has submitted to Edward L. Whelan, county Democratic chairman, his resignation as chairman of the Summit Democratic committee. His successor is expected to be announced later this week.

Brotherhood Week Observed by Rotary Monday

Declaring that the day and the hour is here for us to think concretely—as Rotary International is thinking—J. Benjamin Schmoeker, general secretary of the Committee on Friendly Relations Among Foreign Students, a project of the International YMCA

Committee, made an impassioned appeal to the Summit Rotarians at their Monday luncheon to see that foreign students in this country be given the opportunity to learn and see more of the American way of life. He further declared that if more would do this it would "pay in big dividends to your child and my child."

The speaker said that the U.S. in the U.N. stands as a protector of all peoples everywhere but that this idea was terribly contradictory when such an incident as happened in Washington, D.C., occurs; to wit: an Indian student who was to speak in a Washington church was refused service in a restaurant because of his color. Peace, the speaker said, will not come through atomic bombs; it will not come through councils of foreign ministers, but peace can come to lift the nations of the world if it is wrapped up in persons, persons who know, understand and appreciate one another. He also said that if he had anything to do with teaching there are three subjects he would insist upon: have every citizen take a sound course in geography; insist that every boy and girl start the study of some foreign language—for how can one hope to understand another without knowing the language; and third, have every student of high school level take a sound course in comparative religion. Again, how can we hope to understand one another without this.

The speaker was introduced by Allan R. Devenney, chairman for the day and chairman of the club's education committee. President Peterson expressed the club's thanks to the speaker.

F. L. Crawford Tells Old Guard Washington Story

Introduced by Fred Lum, chairman, Frank L. Crawford of Ridge road gave another of his historical talks to his fellow members of the Old Guard Tuesday morning at the YMCA. Previously, Mr. Crawford had read papers on various battles and campaigns of the Civil and Revolutionary Wars on Abraham Lincoln and on the impeachment of Andrew Johnson. Last May he traced the development of the City of Summit and the following week that of the American Constitution.

On Tuesday he spoke of the "Youth and Early Manhood of George Washington," and especially as a soldier in the French and Indian War.

Before the address Stephen Collins, William Strong and George Rendall were reported as improving. William Hall's recent death was observed by Edward Herbert's special tribute and by the singing of the Old Guard memorial hymn. Roy Baker read letters by William Cravath of a club similar to the Old Guard which he had visited in Santa Barbara, Cal. and from the "Old Boys" of Bristol, England, their appreciation of many packages of food and clothing recently sent them.

H. Walford Martin of Prospect street was received into membership.

The Bell Telephone Company will present for next week a sound film, "Movie Telephone and Review."

Chaim Weizmann Chapter To Meet at Summit

Seymour Fromer, executive director of the New Jersey Zionist Youth Commission, addressed meeting of the Chaim Weizmann Chapter of the Zionist Organization of America at the Summit Jewish Community Center on February 23 at 8:15 p. m. The chapter includes Summit, Union and Millburn.

Mr. Fromer's topic, "Young Jews and Us" was devoted to a description of the problems and the results of creating organizations of young persons interested in Zionism. The New Jersey Zionist Youth Commission is supported by Hadassah and the Zionist Organization of America.

RESCUED from a possible death from exposure and hunger was the above two-month old female dog in the box. The dog, wearing a harness, was found early one morning last week in a wooded section off Morris Turnpike near Lenox road. When discovered the pup was covering and suffering from the cold inside the above broken crate. Because of the lack of footsteps in the vicinity it is believed that the box with the dog inside was tossed from a passing car. The cast-off was first discovered by the boxer on the left who was being exercised by his owner. The pup was taken to the home of Mrs. Frank L. Hughes, Ox Bow Lane, a member of the Summit Animal Welfare League, where it is being nursed back to health in hopes it will be given a new—and kinder—master. (Photo by Jay.)

Film Council to Discuss Library Fund Cut Tonight

Governor Driscoll's economy message and its possible effect on educational film use by schools and community groups will be one of the subjects discussed at the meeting tonight of the Suburban Film Council. The meeting is to be held at the Public Library at 8:15 with Henry R. Rogatz, chairman of the Council presiding. Glen Burch, executive director of the Film Council of America, as chief speaker, will outline developments in the use of educational and informational films throughout the country. The growth of Film Councils as contact points in promotion of such programs will be emphasized.

Because of its immediate interest, proposed legislation on State aid for audio-visual materials such as educational films and the relation of this development to the Governor's proposed budget will be the subject of panel discussion. Participants will be Edward T. Schofield, assistant supervisor, Newark Board of Education, department of libraries, visual aids and radio and president of the Essex County Film Council, Byron P. Stuart, principal, Roosevelt Junior High School, Westfield, and a member of the advisory council for the New Jersey State Museum and Mrs. Gerald H. Winsor, president of the Summit Library Board. The meeting is open to anyone interested in the state's relation to educational service and in progress in the use of audio-visual aids. Special invitations have been sent to the presidents of the library boards, the boards of education, superintendents of schools and the librarians in Union County.

CALLING ALL CHRISTIANS AND THOSE WHO LOVE GOD!
With the beginning of Lent, the world greatly needs a mammoth demonstration of self denial and self control that will be in the spiritual realm what the A-Bomb and H-Bomb are to the physical world. Such may be called the G-Bomb in which God is all and in all. The Infinite Power of God working in the hearts of men can generate the most powerful force the world has ever seen.
This G-Bomb will be set off when all Bishops, Priests, Rabbis, Ministers, Pastors, Rectors, church officials and laymen deny themselves the use of all products containing habit forming drugs such as coffee, tea, colas, chocolate, coconuts, cigarettes, cigars, tobacco, beer, wine, and whiskey. This "moving" of the soul will generate patience, generosity, courage, optimism, faith, hope, charity and a stamina that will enable the individual to stand high and survive amidst the trials and tribulations prevailing in the world today.
Just as the Geiger Counter can detect when an A-Bomb has been released so too will the cash registers in the stores selling additives detect the release of the G-Bomb.
A six weeks' exhibition of freedom from slavish habits will convince even infidels and communists that there is a better way of life and one that will lead to happiness and peace.
Join the forces of construction and stop being a demonstrator of waste, fear, greed and hate—the latter leading only to sickness, accidents, strikes, poverty, crime and war. So mote it be!

Man Returns Home After Second Vanishing Act

Police disclosed this week that Alexander Halod, 57, of 481 Morris avenue, missing twice within a month, returned home last Thursday. Police said that they were informed Halod had been visiting relatives in Long Island.

Halod was the object of a 20-hour search after he disappeared from Bonnie Burn Sanatorium in Watchung on January 15. Halod, a patient there, was picked up by a motorist 500 yards from a pond where police were dragging for his body. He said he was trying to get home.

His second disappearance occurred February 10 from his home where he was taken following the Bonnie Burn incident. Police at that time sent out a 12-state alarm.

The first Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America was Dr. James E. West who served in this capacity for 32 years.

The Red Cross Drive

The annual appeal for the Red Cross, which will open locally on March 1, will again be a cause for marshalling the entire community support in behalf of an organization whose day-to-day work helps bring closer the brotherhood of men and nations to which we all aspire. The Red Cross knows no color, race or creed. It stands ready to help all.

After years of worldwide war and after years of horrible domestic disasters, it is hardly necessary to tell people of the work of this organization. On a local level, this paper for the last few weeks has been printing a series of articles on the humane activities of our local Chapter.

There is a common acceptance of the Red Cross and the Summit Chapter drive for funds enjoy splendid prospects for success because of this feeling. While other organizations in the past have experienced difficulty or failure in reaching their yearly goals, the Summit Red Cross drive has always gone over the top.

The residents canvassers will contact for contributions will respond largely because of their own personal experience or observation of Red Cross activities. While the disaster service of the Red Cross deserves emphasis, the reaction of contributors is not inspired so much by a desire to provide insurance against the rather slight chance of becoming involved in a major calamity. Rather the all but universal acceptance of the Red Cross is founded on gratefulness for some personal service in time of emergency or on realization of the usefulness displayed by Red Cross workers in relieving stress afflicting a relative or neighbor.

The most astonishing thing about the Red Cross is the scope of its service. Here is a nationwide organization that functions on a local level. Although big and strong, the Red Cross is not detached or aloof from the community emergency. On the contrary, it is close to the family in need. It will provide transportation to a distant clinic or hospital; it will provide Braille books or recordings for the blind; it will provide companionship for the aged and bed-ridden. It does all these and many more for the people of this community.

The wide range of Red Cross services have made the organization a familiar one. By their response next week, at roll call time, the people of this community can show their appreciation for the Red Cross. There can be little doubt about the outcome of the 1950 appeal.

Rotary's 45th Birthday

Throughout the world this week Rotary Clubs are celebrating the 45th anniversary of the founding of the organization. On Monday the Summit club noted the event with a special program. The club, we think, has a right to be proud of being part of such a far-flung and respected group devoted solely to world-wide fellowship.

Service clubs are pretty much taken for granted today. They are also often the target for jokes but by their good works they have won a place in the American scene. And the Summit Rotary is among the trail blazers in the field. The first service club in this city, it pointed the way as newer groups came into being.

The record of Rotary in Summit is a splendid example of a whole movement. In their pioneering days all service clubs were little more than luncheon groups devoted to the purpose of widening acquaintances for business reasons. Some of the earliest gatherings frankly engaged in trading goods. Out of the association of civic-minded men of the community, however, grew the principles which perpetuated clubs.

By realizing that something more than financial gain is required to make their undertaking endure and by accepting the concept of service, the business and professional members of these clubs transformed their organizations. The Rotary Club is founded on friendship. It is dedicated to unselfish policy, to helping other people and to building the community.

Through its 27 years the Summit Rotary Club has been faithful in living up to the Rotary motto: "He profits most who serves best." Summit Rotarians have repeatedly demonstrated their concern for good government and have interested themselves in the welfare of the community. The club is a steadfast influence for progress, a union of representative men submerging personal advantage and stressing the betterment of the community.

One can understand that the club marked its parent organization's founding with great satisfaction. And the public at large will share in the feeling. Rotary has accomplished much. And in winning respect it has also come to merit confidence that its future years in Summit will be fully as productive as have been those in the past.

Better Days Ahead

For the first time this winter Summit residents can truly envy their neighbors vacationing in Florida. Until a few days ago the local mood was one of sympathy for all who traveled 1,500 miles or more to escape the rigors of a northern clime. Until Monday the winter here had been an open one, with rare and short periods of below freezing temperatures. But now the time when folks at home could say that the southbound people succeeded only in fleeing spring is gone.

The season's first really cold snap came Monday morning and, from what we felt and have read, Old Man Winter seems to be making up for his earlier defaults. Those holding all along that "we'll pay for this pleasant weather later on," doubtless find the cold less discomforting because their expectations have been realized. In view of the triumph of this segment of the weather conversationalists it is probably futile to argue any more. Nevertheless we can not refrain from observing that these prophets seized an unfair advantage. Unless the law of averages has been repealed they had to be right some day.

When it comes to weather prophesying there is another piece of unfinished business worth entering in the ledger. If the "we'll pay for this" faction is vindicated by the (belated cold spell), what of the groundhog devotees? It would seem that the Candlemas shadow watchers haven't a shred of excuse for heeding that tradition. The groundhog didn't see his shadow on February 2 and yet winter came, not spring. Hereafter whether Groundhog Day is bright or cloudy should not matter.

By trying hard enough one can usually manage to discover a silver lining to most clouds and the current situation is no exception. The cold is inconvenient and the predicted snow would be even more so. But there is a consolation. The calendar says spring is less than four weeks away. We see the sun more frequently and every day it stays around longer. The weather is bad just now but better days are not far off.

Maladjusted Pupils—Or Schools?

(Buffalo Evening News)

When a child maintains an antagonistic attitude toward his studies and his school, his teacher almost invariably begins looking toward his home life for an answer to his "maladjustment." Dr. Dean Schweikhard, Minnesota education commissioner, told a group of secondary school educators here recently that this approach to the problem is all wrong. There is no reason to think that a boy or girl is "maladjusted" merely because he drops out of school, Dr. Schweikhard said. Such students "may be poorly adapted only to school life. We have to find out what is wrong with the school—not with the student. . . . We are too inclined to find a pattern to lay down like a cookie cutter on dough."

The Minnesota commissioner has put his finger on one of the more lamentable aspects of our public-school system. Even in the best of times teachers have far too many duties and far too many students to give each one the personal attention he needs. And today with a shortage of teachers and a shortage of facilities, the problem is even more complicated. The teacher seldom can orient his classwork to the backgrounds and abilities of his students. The standards and patterns are handed down to the teacher from above and his duty is to impose them on his pupils. The natural result is that those who conform most closely to the pattern get the best marks.

The standards are those of mediocrity rather than excellence. The amount of learning to be imparted to any given class in any given semester is the amount which educators believe can be absorbed by a student slightly below the accepted "norm." The intelligent child who can do the prescribed work in a fraction of the time often becomes troublesome as he attempts to find additional vents for his spirit and imagination. Others may become interested in one or two subjects and spend so much time on them that the rest of their school work suffers.

Both types have above average intelligence, but are classified as "difficult" in many of today's school systems. Harried teachers have neither the time nor the training to deal adequately with either type. They tend to pattern the child who fails to conform to the pattern and it is not surprising that in return the child resents the teacher. When such a child drops out of school, the answer certainly will not be found in a "maladjusted" home life.

Dr. Schweikhard recommends a "clinic type" of counseling where "100 different solutions are given for 100 different pupils." That is the first step. But education in this country will not be the grand thing we like to believe it is until boys and girls can be educated in accordance with their own abilities rather than the abilities of some predetermined "norm."

In a socialist country, nobody ever comes into his own, only into somebody else's. (Morning News, Dallas, Texas)

Council Meeting

City as to reasonableness, and for the future protection of the City, it is desirable that the Planning Board immediately consider the advisability of amending the Zoning Ordinance and submit its recommendation for the consideration of your Honorable Body.

"Unreasonable Use"

In a February 9 letter to the Planning Board, Mt. Prospect Association protested the 60-car off-street parking lot as follows:

"It is the opinion of the Council of the Mount Prospect Association that the building by the Fort-nightly Club of a 60-car parking lot at 8 Edgewood road is an unreasonable use of the property and is definitely not within the meaning and intent of the Zoning Ordinance.

"The building of such a projected parking lot by a private owner of property in an A-15 Residential District obviously would not be permitted. In addition to being unsightly, no matter how well landscaped, it would completely change the character of the neighborhood and create substantial traffic hazards and problems.

"It is therefore respectfully submitted that the projected 60-car parking lot is an indication that the Club will have difficulty confining the uses of its property to those of a private owner and will be under the necessity to so alter the property that it will lose its residential character and become a commercial enterprise.

"The Mount Prospect Association therefore protests the building of such a parking lot by the Fort-nightly Club and respectfully asks your Board for a full hearing upon its protest."

Ordinances Introduced

Three ordinances were introduced at first reading.

One is an amendment relating to the Public Peace and Good Order ordinance which is designated to give the local magistrate's court jurisdiction over the offense commonly known as bookmaking. This particular amendment was requested by the Police Department.

The second action concerns amendment to the Hawkers' and Peddlers Ordinance which is designated to relieve corporations from the burden of obtaining licenses for each and every employee, agent or representative. The ordinance now provides that a corporation shall be duly licensed as heretofore, and that agents, servants and employees may obtain a license for the nominal fee of $5.

The third action proposes to return the property of Lager and Hurrel on Morris avenue to A-6 residential to business where it was placed last fall at the request of the owner when it seemed that an out of town firm might place a business building thereon.

The Board of Health was granted permission to have an X-ray trailer located at Beechwood road and Springfield avenue, March 12-15.

Council's Fairness Lauded

Wm. H. Doherty of 14 Waldron avenue wrote that at the public hearing at the High School on housing he was impressed with the "fairness and evident sincerity of Council and of several citizens who had supported Council's proposal" and "who had unselfishly given the housing problem much independent study. TO YOU—service means getting the electricity you want every time you flick the switch. TO US—service means a constant effort to give you that dependability at all times.

Occasionally this is a tough job. Gales whipping in from the Northeast...hurricanes from the South...snow, sleet and ice from every direction—these cause trouble! Especially in the Winter—emergency conditions can arise almost without warning. Temperatures change violently, placing unusual strain on service lines and equipment. Storm-blown limbs crowd one problem on top of another.

When these unpredictable emergencies come—you can rest assured that we're doing everything in our power to keep everyone in service. ### Lincoln YMCA to Send Delegates to Princeton, Trenton

The Lincoln YMCA's Suburban Hi-Y Club will send two representatives to the New Jersey YMCA Youth and Government program which will be held in the State House at Trenton on March 2 and April 1. The representatives are Albert Miles, club president, and Tom Mack Gallup. According to Robert Mack, Lincoln Y's executive secretary, the delegates will participate Saturday in a pre-legislative session at Princeton University where they will be trained in procedures and will be given information concerning the State government. Earl Nelson, Sr., advisor of the local Hi-Y group, will accompany the delegates to all the sessions. Dr. John F. Sly, director of Princeton University surveys and chairman of the Youth and Government committee, declared yesterday, "The purpose of the YMCA Youth and Government program is to prepare a selected group of young men for moral and political leadership in the American democratic process by providing guidance, training and experience in the theory and practice of determining public policy. "The program is essentially one for potential leaders in public life drawn from the student bodies of high schools throughout the state by standards established and developed by the Hi-Y clubs," he added.

Overlook Adds $28,000 in New X-Ray Equipment

Horizons of health protection in this area were broadened this week with the acquisition, by Overlook Hospital in Summit, of modern x-ray equipment which, for the first time, makes it possible for residents here to obtain deep ray treatments without traveling to more distant centers.

Arthur W. Smith, director of the hospital, reported that deep ray therapy apparatus of the most modern type which, together with new electronic equipment, represents an expenditure of approximately $28,000, is gradually being moved into place this week in a lead-lined room in the hospital's ground floor radiology department.

"The new deep ray therapy apparatus will, pending the completion of the enlargement program at Overlook, result in a certain amount of crowding in the x-ray department," Mr. Smith observed. "However, it is obviously in the best interests of the people who depend upon the hospital for this valuable and useful equipment to be put to work at once."

Facilities Doubled
The growing importance of x-ray equipment as a weapon against diseases is illustrated by the fact that the use of the limited diagnostic facilities at Overlook Hospital at present has more than doubled in the last ten years. The addition of the up-to-date therapy apparatus will, it is expected, result in even greater increases in the number of x-ray procedures carried out there.

While the x-ray services will be hampered for the present by lack of space, the new department which will function on a broadened basis, in the enlarged hospital will be ample to meet the needs of this area for some time to come. Occupying the southwest corner of the new wing's first floor, it will contain special rooms for both deep and superficial therapy, a film office and viewing room, radiography and fluoroscopy rooms and necessary dressing and waiting rooms. The equipment being installed this week will be used in the new department.

Expansion of the x-ray department and other services at Overlook is part of a $2,000,000 enlargement program for which subscriptions are to be sought in a public campaign to be conducted throughout this area in April under the chairmanship of Woodruff J. English of Summit.

Mr. English will announce the names of those who will head the campaign effort in the various communities served by the hospital in the near future. It is expected, on the basis of present indications, that the number of volunteer workers taking part in the subscription campaign will exceed 1,000.

Clippers Obeyed League Rules

BOROUGH—In a recent basketball game between the Clippers and the Boys Club of the Recreation League, it was reported that the Clippers were out of order in using John Filma of Summit. Council President Robert Badgley, chairman of the Recreation Committee, explains that the Clippers were adhering to league rules agreed upon at the start of the season, that two out of town players could be used. In case there was a shortage of players, an out of town player could be used by agreement of the captains. Mr. Badgley explains that this rule was followed in the game in question.

At a meeting Tuesday of the league captains and Director Michael Allocco of the league a further rule was established that no additional out of town players could be used unless they had worked at least a full week in the borough or else closely associated with some group here. It is believed this rule will continue next year.

In a recent Saturday night game at Summit YMCA, it was the Legion team of the borough league and not the Clippers that lost the game as was reported in the box score.

The league has completed plans for a triple-header basketball benefit for Joe Coviello on March 16. The recipient was injured a few weeks ago following a basketball game by having a wrist cut by glass.

Change of Name For Boys Club Set for Action

BOROUGH—The annual spring meeting of the Boys Club was held Thursday evening in the recreation room of the home of Carl Ehns. Several changes were moved upon at the meeting.

Inasmuch as some of the boys are getting out of the "boys" classification in athletic participation it was decided by popular vote to change the name of the club to the New Providence Baseball and Basketball Club, with the club advertising itself with the proper sport name in the proper season.

The new name will be used starting March 1 when the club will begin to draw up its baseball schedule for the 1950 season.

The officers who have led the club for the past three years will be retained for the following year with one change: Chandler Coddington was selected to succeed Charles Vignali as club treasurer. Ehns remains as president; Larry Brydon, vice president, and James Stortz secretary. Roger Behre will co-operate with Ehns in the drawing of the baseball schedule.

It was announced that the New Jersey Street Sign Co. of Newark, intends to furnish the club with a sign announcing coming games, said sign to be displayed somewhere near the center of town. A committee composed of Ehns, Brydon and Coddington was selected to approach Borough Council in the future regarding possible objections to the sign being displayed on the side of Behre's Hardware store at the "Four Corners." Arthur Barry stated that with the cooperation of his father, Tom Barry, he will help construct a scoreboard on Oakwood Field.

A motion to admit two new members was set aside for further discussion at the February 23 business meeting.

Aid to Veterans Still an Important Red Cross Role

During the last month former prisoners of war from Summit and vicinity have been frequent visitors at the home service offices in Red Cross Headquarters at 22 Elm street. There the young men, who spent a goodly portion of their years in service in the dismal quarters provided for prisoners by the Nazis and Japanese, receive aid in filing claims through which the government intends to make at least token payment for the discomforts they suffered at the hands of their captors. Less frequent among these visitors, but more tragic, are representatives of the families of servicemen who died in prison camps.

Once the applications for these claims reached them, Home Service (which, together with other veterans' and service organizations, has been authorized to distribute these forms) contacted all men of this vicinity known to have been prisoners of war, or their families. Through numerous letters and phone calls, they explained these benefits and urged the men to file their claims as quickly as possible. Since three-quarters of those approached responded to their correspondence, the Home Service office is busy handling a major portion of the claims for men of this area.

War claims, however, are only a small portion of the work undertaken by home service to help Summit veterans become adjusted to civilian life. Authorized by Congress since 1906 to serve as a liaison between the serviceman and his family, home service has found its duties diminished only slightly by the end of World War II. There was, for example, the veteran who found it hard to shake off memories of his grueling experiences in the South Pacific and who sought forgetfulness in the age-old but never satisfactory antidote, alcohol. Formerly a model husband, he became a changed personality. Life for his wife and two small children became a constant dread of his periodic apress and the climax was reached when his wife returned to their home one evening and found that he had left their daughter with a neighbor and had taken their

Fifth Square Dance To Be Held Saturday

The Adult Community Square Dance committee will offer the fifth in the series of monthly square dances this Saturday night, February 25, at the Y.W.C.A. Dancing will be from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. Everett Totten will be the caller, and there will be an orchestra as usual.

The Board of Recreation and the Y.W.C.A., the sponsoring agencies, have been very pleased with the enjoyment of the activity has brought to all who have participated. Attendance has increased each month with January's dance attracting the top of 120 people.

The committee feels that one of the primary reasons for the fine response to the dances is the fact that the beginner as well as the veteran is always welcome.

At St. John's Church New Shades Dedicated

Eight parchment shades for the wall bracket lights at St. John's Lutheran Church were dedicated yesterday at the Ash Wednesday service in the memory of Walter A. Trautner. The shades are the gift of Mrs. Trautner.

Each shade is handmade and hand-painted with ecclesiastical design and enables the church to have subdued lights during services instead of the bright ceiling lights.

A Suckling Pig Can't Stump Us

The Home Economics adviser listened intently. There was excitement in the voice which came over the wire. "My husband brought home a suckling pig. He wants me to cook it for dinner," the woman ran on. "He must have been reading those intriguing cook books. Now, how do I do it?"

"I'll call you right back and tell you," the calm girl promised. She, too, had read those intriguing cook books. She knew just where to locate the information the customer needed.

A turn to her bookshelves and there was the book with the sought-after information. Her eye ran down the page quickly. She dialed a number and gave explicit directions to a grateful listener.

This is just one of the services our Home Economics department supplies. They have every kind of cook book on hand; they keep thousands of recipes on file; they are ready to furnish information on any phase of cookery or house-keeping. Hundreds of questions are answered every week. This is a neighborly service we furnish without charge.

Money can't buy a laugh like this... but it helps!

The important thing is — the outside world remembers. Your way of saying this is through the Red Cross worker who every day visits military as well as veterans' hospitals throughout the country.

The Red Cross provides the magic that makes the best medical care even more effective — a friendly face, a pleasant word, a new book to read.

These are little things, yes, but mighty big things, too — especially when you've been in a hospital for five or more years, as many have. Money alone can't buy the cheering effect of a Red Cross worker's visit. But money does help to make this visit possible.

During the next 365 days, your Red Cross contribution says, "Thanks for the job you did — I haven't forgotten."

You, too, can help through Your RED CROSS  Give Now!

 I have received your several letters of the 5th, 6th and 8th of June. You do well to consider the spot of West Point as the capital spot of your attention and every other as secondary. This is particularly necessary.

WASHINGTON PENNED this order from Military Headquarters in Summit, June 10, 1780, to General Howe at West Point, urging alertness there against a British trick to attack up the Hudson while endeavoring to lure the American Army off the Watchung bastion for a flatland battle at Springfield. By rejecting "Short Hills Near Chat" and substituting as address "Heights Above Springfield", the Commander-in-Chief's quill left this indisputable evidence that Summit was command headquarters after the Battle of Connecticut Farms (Union), June 7, 1780.

LUBRICARE
 keeps your Buick livelier longer

JUST realize one thing, good madam, good sir—as you pilot your Buick down the highway past the parade of lesser cars, you're the secret envy of most other drivers. So you owe it to this admiring audience to keep that wonderful Buick of yours purring at its proudest—gliding over the roughest roads like a car on a cloud, with never a squeak—lively, long-striding, and staying that way longer! And one of the easiest ways to do that is to wheel into our shop once a month—ask the man for our LUBRICARE—and here's what will happen:

- 1 One of our trained Buick mechanics will lubricate your car as the factory engineers specify—covering many points never touched elsewhere.
- 2 While he goes over your Buick, he gives you an extra service only a Buick man can render. He inspects the entire car with a trained Buick eye—making sure you get lubrication plus Buick care.
- 3 When you get your bill, you'll find a wonderful surprise—our LUBRICARE costs no more than a routine "grease job" but, not alive, what a difference it makes!

Republicans Seek Renomination to Freeholder Board

Renomination in the Republican primary, April 18, will be sought by three members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders — George W. Herlich, Hillside; Donald M. Pearsall, Westfield, and Albert J. Benninger, Mountainside — they have announced. Herlich has been a member of the board since 1947; Pearsall is completing his first three-year term, and Benninger is ending a two-year term.

Without formally setting up a platform, the three said they based their candidacies on the board's record in reducing the county debt to less than one-half its peak and achieving the lowest county tax rate in New Jersey.

As chairman of the finance committee, Herlich, a retired industrial executive, devotes practically full time to county business. Employed by the Crucible Steel Co. from 1906 to his retirement at the close of 1947, he was chief engineer, in charge of production for the Navy in World War I and later of the steel producing division of the company. In World War II he directed maintenance and operation of the Harrison plant employing 12,000 employees in ordinance production.

A township committeeman in Hillside 15 years, he also worked in bond, Community Chest, Red Cross, and blood bank campaigns in his home community.

Pearsall is a partner in Pearsall & Frankenbach, realty and insurance brokers, in Westfield, where he was graduated from the public school system. Later he studied accounting and business at New York University and was with Henry L. Doherty & Co. prior to opening his own business in 1922.

Pearsall is chairman of the bridges, drainage, and flood control committee of the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Also engaged in realty and insurance business, Benninger has an office in Mountainside, where he has been the local magistrate. During World War II he was with the First Infantry Division.

For several years he was active in the Young Republican movement and has been county chairman of USO, judge advocate of the American Legion, a director of the Springfield Savings and Loan Association, and a member of the Mountainside Borough Council, and vice-president of the Union County Insurance Agents Association.

Among his other activities are Kiwanis, YMCA, Watching Council of Boy Scouts, and the Reserve Officers' Association.

Benninger is chairman of the insurance committee of the freeholders.

Public to Attend Bridge, Canasta Classes at YWCA

Bridge and canasta are the subjects of the newest classes to be offered in the young adult department of the YWCA. Sessions will be held Thursday evening from 8 to 9:30 p. m. beginning February 23 and continuing until March 30 for bridge. Canasta classes will follow with two lessons on April 6 and 13. Separate registration for the two classes will be accepted.

The class is open to all men and women in Summit and nearby communities. Registration may be made at the Y in person or by telephone, Summit 6-6261.

Mrs. Robert H. Carson, young adult committee chairman, announced today that the YWCA was fortunate to secure the services of Mrs. John M. Ericson as instructor for the bridge classes. Mrs. Ericson, who is a national master, was the New Jersey woman's state champion to play in New York in 1948 and in 1949 her team won runner-up honors in the same tournament play.

Mrs. Ericson will teach the Charles Goren point count and use his latest book as a text which will be included in the price of the course.

Cotton Fashion Show Displays Calico, Red Flannel, Crinoline and Gingham

The latest styles in cotton, garments featuring old and new types of materials were presented Friday, February 11, in a "Cottons for You" fashion show at the Methodist parish house. More than 150 women attended the affair which was sponsored by the American Home department of the Fortnightly Club.

Cotton costumes in the newest weaves and patterns included clothes suitable for all seasons and all occasions, street wear, play clothes, lounging apparel, coats and suits, and evening gowns.

An old stand-by, red flannel, was shown in a sophisticated version of lounging pyjamas designed by M. C. Schrank. Simple in line, they were trimmed with simulated leopard print on cotton. Memories of the 20's were called forth by a town dress of green and beige.

A matching coat and suit ensemble in natural color gingham chambray was described as being the perfect all-weather traveling outfit. Both rain and sun-weather proof, it was styled by Adler & Adler. The suit had a plunging neckline and a novel button arrangement. The full length "outer coat" could well be used over cottons.

Corduroy, now enjoying great popularity according to the commentator, was chosen by Kerri of California for a slim skirted suit with a musketeer coat, lavishly flared. A brilliant "Josephine vest" of many colors is worn under the coat.

Several beach and bathing styles were featured including Frances Sider's two-piece ruffled calico bathing suit and her new terrylined "paudron," patterned after the little dress worn over suits of armor in the Middle Ages.

Other costumes exhibited included a corduroy raincoat, a ski suit, a graduation dress of white embroidered organdy, and a printed cotton formal worn over an old-fashioned crinoline petticoat.

Nature Club Acts To Aid Rescue Of Bald Eagles

The plight of the bald eagle in Alaska was described to members of the Summit Nature Club at its meeting on Thursday night at the YMCA by James W. Hand, Jr., president of the club. Mr. Hand quoted the public press and Audubon Magazine, saying that a bounty of $2 a head has been placed on the bird by the Alaskan government resulting in the slaughter of 2,100 eagles within a few months.

"Although the bald eagle is our national emblem and is protected in the United States, with a penalty of $500 for its destruction, we have no power to protect it in Alaska, a territory," Mr. Hand stated. Mr. Hand explained that two bills are now in committee in Congress planned to extend protection to the bald eagle in Alaska.

An audience of about 125 attended the program, an illustrated lecture by Dr. Erling Dorf of Princeton University on Paricutin Volcano in Mexico. He said that the seven year old volcano, now 1,500 feet high which is small as such phenomena go, has laid waste an area of 14 miles radius with a lava bed thirty miles square, and two inches of ash cover towns forty miles away. Following his talk questions on the volcano continued for a half hour.

"Mary Dugan" Benefit Monday Open to Public

The "Trial of Mary Dugan" will be presented Monday evening at the Playhouse as a benefit performance for the March of Dimes polo fund after its week's run for its own members—the public is invited to attend Monday evening. The play begins at 8:30 after a preliminary scene providing courtroom atmosphere.

Although the play is frankly called a melodrama on the program, the quality of the acting puts it into the category of drama, for the rough handling of the reasons by the court attendants is not considered.

Betty Kaus as Mary Dugan gives a fine, convincing portrayal of the girl who is accused of murdering her lover. Her scenes with her brother Jimmy (Donald Steinberger) who takes over her defense are gripping in their naturalness and beautifully done.

Frank Daniels does well with a long and rather unsympathetic role as the district attorney, George Kanouse, Jr., as the attorney for the defense, sets up an adequate smoke screen. J. Campbell Howard makes a delightful judge.

The necessary humorous interludes in the tense action are provided by the three chorus girls, friends of the accused, Betty Dederer, Anne Rechter and Betty Case. Their interpretations of "Follies" dancers and their costumes show great variety as well as individuality. Anne Rechter as "May Harris of the Scandals," gives a marvelous performance of the slightly morose type, beautiful but dumb.

Each one of the large cast contributes to an exciting evening, leaving the audience somewhat worn out by emotion.

Art Association Show Includes Prints, Sculpture

A large audience turned out for the opening tea at the Summit Art Association exhibition of prints and sculpture, Sunday afternoon. An over-life size figure of Leda and the Swan, by S. F. Biotti, of 115 Kent Place boulevard, brought forth much praise and admiration. This figure is the original study for a marble carving later done by Mr. Biotti, which is now in the permanent collection of the Whitney Museum of Art, New York City. The marble figure was on display last summer at the Philadelphia Museum of Art international exhibition.

Other sculpture exhibited by local artists included several portrait heads by Gina Plungian; woodcarvings and driftwood sculpture by Dr. Jacob Trapp; woodcarvings and a portrait by Lillian Bass Johnson; woodcarvings by Isabel Neel; figures and animals by Kay Holm Pershing, and a portrait relief by Henrietta Van A. Wells.

Two of the exhibitors, Lesley Crawford, and Hartwell Priest, are members of the Summit Art Association. The prints, in black and white, and color, along with the sculpture, will be open to the public Saturday and Sunday from 3 to 6 p.m. through March 5 at the gallery, 497 Springfield avenue.

Dorothy Turnbull To Be Bride of Archdeacon's Son

At a tea on Sunday afternoon announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Dorothy MacDonald Turnbull, daughter of Mrs. Barton P. Turnbull of 78 Hill Crest avenue and the late Mr. Turnbull, to Arthur Osgood Phinney, Jr., son of Archdeacon Phinney of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts and Mrs. Phinney of Winchester, Mass.

The prospective bride is a graduate of Kent Place School and of Wellesley College, Class of 1948. She is on the faculty of Far Hills Country Day School, Short Hills.

A "Square Meal" Costs Three Cents Juniors Told

"Multi-purpose Food, a powder or cereal developed recently for relief shipment to Europe, contains in three cents worth the equivalent in food value to one square meal," said Mary W. Armstrong, home agent for Union County and a member of Rutgers Extension staff, speaking before the Junior Fortnightly Club last week. This food, which is 42 percent protein, is used more as a supplement to a meal rather than as a substitute in this country, she added.

Mrs. Armstrong's topic, "What's New in Nutrition?" traced the growth of interest in nutrition since World War I, when governments, realizing the important role food plays in world politics, forwarded experiments in that field. The United States government laboratories developed enriched bread. Italy, under Mussolini, established the first government-supported school lunch program. Germany carried on many food projects. The United Nations places great emphasis on the importance of good diet.

In recent years there has been a decline in interest among the layman concerning nutrition. He feels that the new drugs will make up diet deficiencies. Mrs. Armstrong said that no artificial food replacement can take the place of natural enrichment. She urged the study of correct cooking to preserve the vitamins contained in natural foods.

SHS Cagers End Season in Two Extra Period Win at Chatham, 50-48

All-Time Scoring Records at Both Schools Are Established

Sonny Dennis for Summit High and Frank Paterson of Chatham set a new all-time basketball score record for each of his schools in a Friday night tilt on the latter's court which was won by the Hill City outfit, 50-48, in the second overtime or "sudden death" period on Chet Cornog's set four free shots to 20 points to run his season's total to 241 for a new Summit record, breaking a record set by Roger Pott three years ago. Paterson had 14 field goals and for the first time this season not one foul goal, for 28 points which gave him 298 for the season. This total is one better than his and the school's previous high mark which was established last year. Chatham blew a 37-33 lead in the fourth quarter and was behind by a point until sub Tom Carr slid in a foul with three seconds to play sending the game into the first overtime.

In the fifth canto Chatham quickly took a four-point lead on a rebound by Carr and a lay-up by Paterson but successive goals by Dick Bovit and Bill Diakoe for the game. John Redmond drove for a swinging lay-up putting Chatham ahead again 48-46 but Sonny Dennis kept Summit in the game by dropping in a brace of fouls tying the game at 48-48 sending the game into the fifth period and at the same time setting the stage for Cornog's climax shot. The preliminary heat also was a thriller as Chatham won it 44-44, from Summit's seconds.

Sports' Sidelights

WHAT IS A SPORTSMAN?

It is written, as the guy says, that the American follower of sports is a sportsman. He may give vent to his prejudice on occasion but, it is written, deep down he is fair-minded and quick to resent foul play. It is written so often that we have come to believe it. We prefer to believe it, so we do. But, unfortunately, it is not true.

The American follower of sports is not a sportsman. Generally speaking, the American follower of sports is a biased and, a good part of the time, utterly insane spectator, so strongly intent upon victory for the men or the team he favors that, even if he wanted to, he would find himself unable to do justice to the opposition.

FINANCIAL AND FANATICAL

Betting is supposed to be a horrid word, but betting supplies a good part of the answer. The American follower of sports likes to bet. He likes to have "something riding" on the result of practically any event that attracts his interest. When he has placed his bet, he has a vital interest—a vital interest in winning.

Betting, though, isn't the entire answer. Some of the wildest-eyed, most blood-thirsty and most completely unreasonable spectators at sports events are people who have absolutely nothing at stake financially. These are, for the most part, followers of high school athletes. They are rooting for their team, and for them, there is no other side to see.

It is with deep regret that we write that the American follower of sports is not concerned greatly with the manner of winning so long as the man or team he so fiercely desires to win—whether the desire be born of financial or fanatical reasons—wins.

THE RESULTS THE THING

The result, in other words, is the thing. Not the play—the fair play or the unfair play—but the result. If his man or his team wins, the American follower of sports is satisfied, usually regardless of how the aim was achieved. If his man or his team should lose, the American follower of sports, generally speaking, is extremely unhappy and, quite often, bitterly disillusioned and resentful. He is resentful at the losing man or team. Or he is resentful at the officials.

The man or team he has bet on might have given his or its very all, to coin a phrase. But, in the mind of the rooter who has rooted in vain, there is no excuse for defeat. He placed his faith in this man or this team, or he put his dough on this man or this team. He was let down.

THAT REFEREE! PHOOIE!

Or perhaps an official called a penalty against his team—the team he was supporting, financially or fanatically. An officious official, undoubtedly—a guy who felt a penalty coming on and just naturally had to call it. And it had to be at a time when HIS team could ill afford it. A bum! A robber! Or worse. Usually worse.

That, we are very much afraid, is the American follower of sports. Not always, of course. There ARE real sportsmen. You meet them, here and there, and you always are surprised. You are pleasantly surprised when you meet a real sportsman and you want to shake his hand. He is a rarity. He is almost too good to be true.

THE VANISHING AMERICAN

There is no proof that Diogenes was successful in his search for an honest man but if you look long enough and far enough you'll meet a man who, having wagered and lost, blames himself rather than the man or team on whom he bet. When and if you do, by all means shake his hand. He should be encouraged. He is the vanishing American.

But for real, catch-as-catch-can, deaf, dumb and blind partisanship, we give you the high school sports spectator. (And in this connection—we write this between sobs—the female of the species is more deaf, dumber and more blind than the male.)

The man or woman, young or old, who is rooting for his or her high school team, regardless of the branch of athletic endeavor, can see, hear or speak nothing but evil of the opposing side, generally, that is. The guy with a buck or two riding on the outcome may be too worried to have much to say during the course of the contest. But not the deaf, dumb and blind partisan! Sit next to him if you must . . . but if you have a choice, take thumb-screws.

OH YES—HE'S FAIR-MINDED!

The American follower of sports deludes himself into thinking he is fair-minded. Hear him cheer at a football game when an injured player is carted off for repairs, regardless of which side the player's on. Hear him applaud at a boxing show when one of the contestants, refusing to take advantage of an opponent who has slipped and thus afforded him an opening, steps back. Or hear him growl menacingly when a low blow is struck. These things appeal to or offend, as the case may be, his sense of sportsmanship, he thinks. Or maybe that should read, he has been led to believe.

At any rate, it's part of the show. You're supposed to applaud when an athlete shows sportsmanship and you're supposed to register disapproval when he doesn't. And at times like these, the American follower of sports never will be caught with his sense of sportsmanship undisplayed.

New Library at St. Teresa's Ready to Open

The nationwide observance of Catholic Book Week, Feb. 19 - 23, will be noted locally with the opening of St. Teresa's Church new parish lending library by Rev. John P. Lenihan, pastor.

Books from the library will be made available to parishioners after devotions on Tuesday and Friday evenings and after Sunday masses. Members of the Outer Missionary Cenacle and the Book

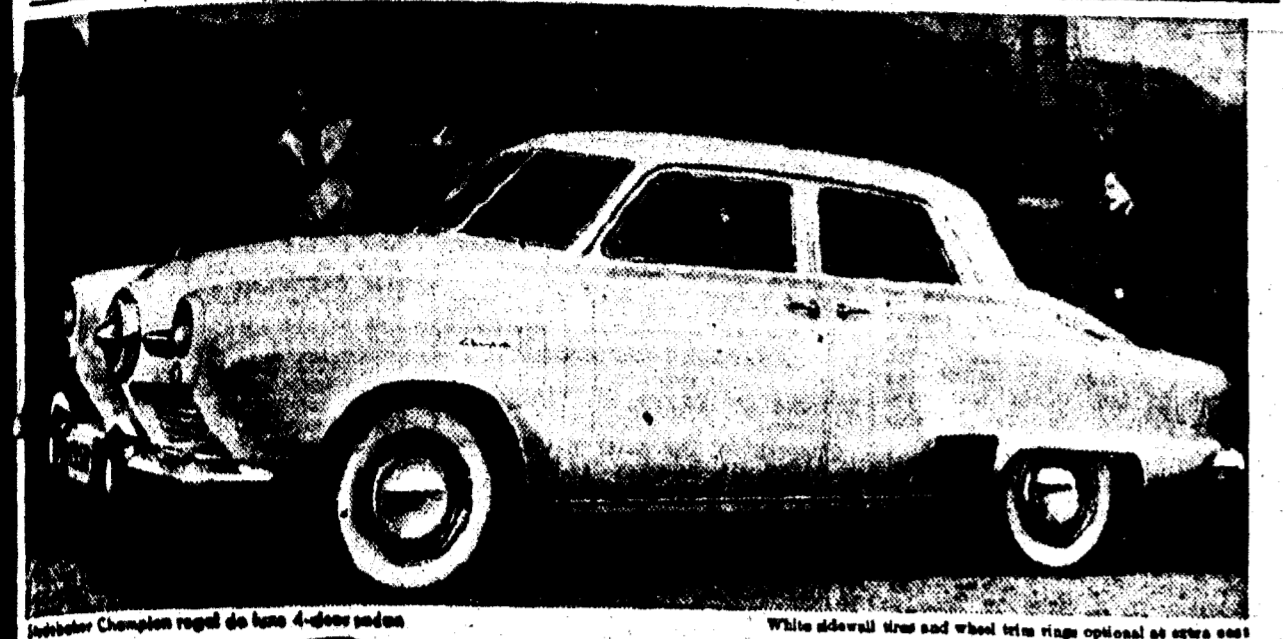

Discussion Group have assisted Sister Elizabeth Marie, M.S.B.T., in the organization of the library.

The Book Discussion Group will discuss Maria A. Trapp's book, "The Trapp Family Singers" for their March 14 meeting. Members of the group are planning to devote the April meeting to a discussion of Rome in the Holy Year. Mrs. Anton Joss, now en route to Rome in the pilgrimage conducted by Cardinal Spellman, will give an account of her trip. In preparation for the meeting, copies of the "The Vatican" by Ann Carnahan are being circulated among members.

Summit Jeweler Gets Custom-Seized Gems

Busch & Sons, local jewelers, were successful bidders last week at a government auction of 438 seized diamonds. The gems were taken by custom agents three years ago from a Belgian sailor at Weehawken after they were smuggled into this country.

George J. Busch, Jr., president of the company, bid $15,650 for the gems, which the government valued at $31,580. An effort to auction them off two years ago failed because the bids were not considered high enough. The diamonds total about 123.77 carats.

The Fight to Make Education Meet Practical Needs

Reporter Sums Up Observations On Our Schools

By JOHN COAD
(Last of a Series)

For some six weeks now, this reporter has been observing the educational scene in this suburban area. In this last of a series of articles dealing with our high schools and the means by which they are attempting to fit their students for the practical necessities of the every-day world, it would seem appropriate for a summing up. The summing up will be partly personal observations, and should be taken as such, and partly a digest of the material which we have obtained during our observation period.

As for personal impressions. First of all we have been consistently impressed by the sincerity of all the educators, both administrators and teachers, with whom we have talked. Their intense interest in the welfare of the student and their liking for their job has never been doubted by us for a moment. Secondly, we have been impressed by their attitude towards education. Almost without exception it has been open minded. If there are new theories of seeming value on the market, their minds are not closed—sometimes cautious, but seldom do they shut the door completely. And lastly, they have been exceedingly cooperative in giving information and in working with this reporter.

It was perhaps best exemplified by one teacher who remarked genuinely, "You are welcome to sit in during class at any time without previous notice. It's a public school, isn't it?" It might be added here, that this writer attended a private school which was of the classical tradition. Latin, algebra, history and English—all of which were presumed to prepare for college. After spending some time in the public school system, we now almost wish that our education had been in the public rather than private schools.

"Life Adjustment" The spark-plug for this series of articles, as you know, was an educational philosophy called "Life Adjustment Education." In brief, this educational philosophy attempts to supplement the usual high school curriculum with training, guidance and attention to individual needs to make education square more nearly with the realities of everyday living, and to help the youngsters lead fuller, happier adult lives.

Some of the schools in this area, for instance, are practicing "Life Adjustment" in name as well as practice. But others, and they are in the majority, are not practicing it in name, but, rather, subscribe to many of the tenets of the concept and daily put them to use without using the name. Some of the schools, naturally, seemed to be further advanced in using and adapting new educational techniques than others. But in every school, there was an undecurrent of testing and experimentation.

"Golden Age" We heard one educator remark that the next decade could very well be the "Golden Age of Education." This is, perhaps, a symbol of the hope and vitality that many educators feel—a feeling that many of the ideas and techniques of the past 50 years will come shortly to full blown maturity in the secondary schools. It is a widespread hope that education will become less and less mechanical drudgery and more a "living experience" which in turn will prepare the greatest number for the greatest adjustment in life.

It is evident, for instance, in the classrooms where an increasing attempt is being made to bring life situations into the school, or, if not that, sending the youngsters out to observe practical living. The cloistered walls of theoretical knowledge are being torn down to let some of the so-called "harsh realities of the world" penetrate and integrate with theoretical learning.

One of the techniques we found, by which the youngsters get a taste of real life while in school is through forums at which the current controversial problems of the world are aired, pro and con, in the high school rostrum or in the history class. Some of the discussions in the schools have centered around "The Spread of Communism in Asia," "The Welfare State," and "How Far Should Government Go?"

Controversial Issues Most of the social studies teachers tried to integrate current history with past history. Controversial issues, the teachers claimed, were seldom subject to censor in the classroom.

There were courses in human and family relationships. Specific courses which dealt with the practical problems of the consumer, family housing and budgeting. On the other end of the scale we found strictly vocational courses in typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, and auto-airplane mechanics.

But the essence of education in the schools in this area, we felt, was to be found in the guidance departments. The guidance department seemed to be the symbol of a broad educational philosophy. It was not in the mechanical testing to find aptitudes and abilities, but in the spirit that penetrated the teaching ranks which aimed at not fitting the individual to a rigid educational pattern but fitting education to meet the needs of the individual student.

It was evident among administrators and teachers who talked not in terms of pure techniques but, rather, in terms of how learned techniques could be applied to practical problems. It was evident in the expression of one high school principal who told us, "We are trying to make education a living experience." And it was expressed by the social studies teacher who summed up the situation this way:

"We have done a pretty good job of teaching facts," he said. "Now the problem is to find ways so that the student may put the facts he has learned into practice."

Much to Be Done It is in this realm—that of fitting pure knowledge into everyday application, and in helping the student to understand himself and the world around him—that the greatest emphasis will probably be placed in the future. Much work in this nebulous realm yet remains to be done.

That there is a need for this type of education in its broadest sense was emphasized in last week's article. Both authorities in college and industry, while admitting that subject matter preparation was good, noted that many of the students seemed to lack motivation. It was evidenced, they said, in the inability of the students to adjust to changing situations. Many of the recent high school graduates, they claimed, didn't seem to know where they were going. In short, the youngsters had the "know how," but were unable to apply their learned knowledge.

Our high schools are putting increasingly greater emphasis on the integration of practical and learned knowledge. Education in secondary schools is expanding in an ever-widening circle to meet the needs of the individual as a whole.

It is not perfect, there remains much to be done. And, significantly, most educators realize that fact.

New Jersey College For Women Adopts 3 War Refugees

Threeteen-year-old European war refugees will be "adopted" by students of New Jersey College for Women, the State University of New Jersey.

The sum of $540 has been pledged to Foster Parents' Plan for the support of these children from contributions to a $5,000 foreign and domestic relief drive which begins Tuesday at New Jersey College for Women. One is a 15-year-old Czechoslovakian boy refugee of Ledice, Vaclav Hanf, to whose support the students have contributed for 3 1/2 years. The others are 13-year-old twins, Josette and Liliane Levit, Rumanian war refugees now at a Foster Parents' Plan colony in Belgium.

The N. J. Relief Drive opened formally with a dinner Tuesday in Cooper Hall. Guest speaker for the event was Gretta Riddell Dixon, traveling secretary for the World Student Service Fund.

A one-month solicitation of students and faculty began Wednesday. In addition to the young refugees, other allocations will be made to: World Student Service Fund, 30 per cent; American Friends Service Committee, 20 per cent; CARE, 5 per cent; N. J. C.'s Scholarship Fund established to enable a D. P. to study at the College next year, 20 per cent; New Brunswick organizations of the Red Cross and Community Chest, 3 per cent each.

Also, United Negro College Fund, Inc., 2 1/2 per cent; National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, 2 1/2 per cent; United Jewish Appeal, 5 per cent; and 3 per cent to each of three disease prevention organizations, American Cancer Society, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and National Heart Foundation.

The drive, under the general chairmanship of Miss Eleanor Doremus of 51 Plymouth street, Montclair, will end March 22.

Life Insurance Payments Rise

New Jersey families received $71,631,000 in life insurance death benefit payments during 1949, compared with $68,993,000 in the previous year and $52,599,000 in 1947, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.

"The death benefit payments in this state last year were made under 76,853 policies, compared with 79,258 policies in the previous year and 67,901 policies in 1947," the Institute reported. "Of the aggregate 1949 payments in the state, $43,243,000 was under 17,503 ordinary policies; $13,675,000 was under 5,744 group life insurance policies; and $14,413,000 was under 53,606 industrial insurance policies. These payments were $18,732,000 greater than the corresponding payments in 1947, representing increased funds for family income, educational needs, mortgage payment, retirement income and other protection uses. In addition, an even larger amount was paid to living policyholders by their life insurance companies."

Rutgers to Honor Johann Bach with Music Festival

In commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the death of Johann Sebastian Bach, the State University of New Jersey will dedicate a three-day Bach Festival to the composer on April 7, 8, and 9 in the University Gymnasium.

Featuring the New Jersey College for Women Choir, Rutgers Glee Club, Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, and five distinguished soloists, performances of "The Passion According to St. Matthew" will be given at 7:30 p.m. on Good Friday, April 7, and Holy Saturday, April 8, under the direction of Erich Leinsdorf, conductor of the Rochester Philharmonic.

On Easter Sunday, a program of Bach's orchestral music will be presented at 3:30 p.m. by the Rochester Philharmonic, with Leinsdorf conducting. The program includes the rarely-performed "Art of the Fugue," Suite No. 3 in D Major, "Brandenburg Concerto No. 4," "Double Concerto in D Minor" and the chorale-prelude "Before Thy Throne I Stand," transcribed by Leinsdorf.

Dr. Howard D. McKinley, chairman of the Rutgers music department and director of the Bach Festival, will round out the Bach commemoration with two illustrated lectures on the music of the festival on Monday, April 3, and Wednesday, April 5, at 8 p.m. in Kirkpatrick Chapel.

34 New Programs in Federal Budget

Analysis of the Federal budget is said to reveal no fewer than 34 new spending programs. The cost of these programs for the first year was estimated at $1 billion, but analysts say that eventually they will cost $4 billion a year as they get under way.

Junior High Students' Contests Aid Handicapped

Forty thousand of the state's public and parochial 11th and 12th grade students are entered in the New Jersey Employ the Physically Handicapped Committee's essay and poster contests, State Chairman Russell J. Eldridge revealed yesterday. The contests are a part of the group's year-round effort to focus the public's attention on the advisability of giving gainful employment to handicapped workers. The contest theme is "Hire the Handicapped—It's Good Business."

In addition to prizes awarded by the 36 Community Committees, valuable state and national prizes are given to winners. A luncheon which Governor Alfred E. Driscoll will attend, will be tendered the six top prize winners. Winners of the national essay contest in which the state winners will be entered, may win as much as $1,000 which will be presented by President Truman, in addition to free trips to Washington.

The chairman of the state contest committee is Mrs. R. W. Cornelison, president of the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs. Halsey Stickle of the American Legion; Rev. Bernard de Coste for parochial schools; Joseph Burke of the Disabled American Veterans; Miss J. Margaret Warner of the N.J. Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs; Robert W. Watt of the N.J. Manufacturers Association; Harry F. Vergosen of the State Chamber of Commerce; Raymond Capozzi of the N.J. State Industrial Council; CIO; Aylin Pierson for the Rotary International; Joseph Landgraf for the State Federation of Labor; and Colonel E. B. Thorpe for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, are also members of this committee.

Additional information about the contests may be obtained from any office of the New Jersey State Employment Service.

Employers Provide Free Cold Tablets

To promote the health of employees, a number of business and industrial establishments are providing free tablets of a cold preventive in workrooms. The employees are instructed how to use the tablets, and a dosage is administered at the first hint of a cold. Employers believe prompt treatment may cut down the half billion colds which impair the health of workers every year.

THE TEEN-AGER LOOKS AROUND

By BRYNA LEVENBERG I am in a dilemma. I have invented something, and I don't know what to do with it. When a scientist makes a discovery, he can tell the whole world about it and receive his due acclaim. When an explorer discovers a new land, the people praise him; but I will receive no acclaim, and people will never praise me—for I have invented a new word.

I am sure it is a new word because I have searched through several huge dictionaries, and it is nowhere to be found. It is a combination of "wit" and "satirical," hence—witerical. I think it is a rather nice word, and I sit for hours thinking of ways in which to use it. "That is a very witerical remark," "He has a witerical way of saying that." I consider anything witerical to be the highest form of humor.

Sometimes I worry about my word, I am fearful lest someone should find out about my invention and attach a new meaning to it. Somebody might even change the spelling! I shudder when I imagine a change in its spelling. Half the pleasure of my new word is that he is a witerical, because I can spell it any way I so desire.

Some day when I write that "he is a witerical person," someone will say, "That's not the way to spell witerical; ya don't know how to spell." No one will ever know that it is my own word, and that's the way it was meant to be spelled. At some future date my word may appear in a dictionary. I suppose that is the highest honor any word can expect, but I don't believe it will be comfortable there, especially when so many other words are crowded around it. I can see it now: "witerical" (witerical-adjective; combination of witer and satirical; to be considered witerical; if no one wants to use my word, the dictionary may decide to leave it out of future editions; and it will be lost forever. But then again, if my word doesn't make the dictionary, I shall never be able to use it, for people will mock me and say that there is no such word as witerical. And it will integrate in the archives of my cob-webbed brain. Furthermore, when a witerical writer or speaker becomes famous, no one will know that he is a witerical, because there will be no such word.

Teen-Agers to Give Fashion Show

The entire board of 35 members from the various high schools in Union County, will take part as models in the two hour show which will place on view the latest styles from "slickers" to evening gowns.

Small Businesses Show Big Growth

There are 3,900,000 business concerns in the United States now, as compared with 3,300,000 in 1939, according to Commerce Secretary Sawyer.

Mr. Sawyer said recently that the plight of small business is not as "sad" as some people say it is. "Often we have heard stories about the tragic decline of small business in America," Mr. Sawyer observed. "A brief look at the facts, however, indicates that we can do more cheering and less weeping about small business."

Gay Flower Beds Replace Outmoded Landscape Style

"Foundation planting," long considered a first step in landscaping American homes, is being rapidly outmoded by the disappearance of the foundations which they were formerly planted to conceal.

When most homes stood upon a belt of brick or stone, out of harmony with the superstructure, the landscape architect advised that this belt be hidden by green plants, to "tie the house to the ground."

Since high building costs, and modern heating plants have caused basements to be omitted from most new homes, the visible foundation line has disappeared, and the houses sit close to the surface with nothing to conceal.

In front of modern houses, shrubs and evergreens planted in the older fashion, quickly grow so tall as to screen the house from view, and shut off the outlook for the picture windows.

Landscape planting about a house should be a decoration, carefully planned to enhance the beauty of the building, completing an attractive picture, as it is viewed from the street.

When tall trees dwarf the house, and over-large shrubs and evergreens hide it, and prevent the occupants from seeing out of the windows, the planting has not achieved its purpose.

Only low growing plants should be planted in front of low homes; and the brightly colored annuals and dwarf habit are becoming popular as the most suitable plants for this purpose. Their color gives a welcome touch, and they leave the view from windows unobstructed. Seed may be started early in seed-boxes indoors, and grown to a size suitable for transplanting by the time the soil can be prepared. There are many varieties which will grow quickly from seed sown directly in the border where the plants are to grow, and they will bloom until freezing weather comes in the fall. Besides providing a decoration for the house, many annuals are suitable for cutting, to be used in the house.

Schools, Welfare Groups Offered Surplus Foods

Dried eggs and nonfat dry milk solids from the U. S. Department of Agriculture's price-support stocks are being offered free to school lunch programs and public welfare agencies in New Jersey.

This is announced by Charles A. Collins, chairman of the State Committee of the Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration. The law under which surplus foods are offered sets up priorities on distribution and provides that agencies receiving such food must pay handling charges and transportation from points of storage.

Private welfare agencies and institutions administered by private welfare and not eligible to receive dried eggs and nonfat dry milk solids under this plan, says Collins. "However, it is possible for private welfare groups to work out arrangements with public welfare agencies, on a local basis.

Uncle Sam's surplus potato stock, on the other hand, is available to private agencies.

Government stocks of dried eggs total about 73 million pounds and of non-fat dry milk solids about 169 million pounds.

School and welfare officials in New Jersey who wish further information about how to get surplus commodities are invited to write to U. S. Department of Agriculture, Food Distribution Program Branch, 641 Washington street, New York 14. Information for public institutions is available from James King, Department of Conservation and Economic Development, 610 Calhoun street, Trenton.

Rotary and Unesco Grant Fellowships

Rotary International has joined the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (Unesco) in sponsoring special fellowships by means of which social workers of four war-devastated countries will study techniques of therapy for psychologically handicapped children.

The awards provide tuition fees, living expenses and transportation for social workers of Finland, Poland, The Netherlands and the Philippines to pursue studies in England and the U.S.A.

Upon completion of one year of study, each fellow will return to his own country to apply the knowledge gained during his studies.

Junior Red Cross to Be Featured in Broadcast

The role played by the Junior Red Cross Chapters of New Jersey in the State Forest Fire Service's fire prevention program is the subject of a dramatized broadcast the week of February 26. The program is featured on the "This is New Jersey" series prepared by the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development and presented a total of 28 times by radio stations in the Garden State's listening area.

The State's 15-minute dramatizations are widely used in classrooms as a supplement to required New Jersey history courses.

The current program dramatizes the procedure used by the Junior Red Cross in educating the public in the prevention of man-caused fires in the state. The steps taken by the chapters in achieving their goal are outlined in the broadcast by scenes in classrooms, at PTA meetings in New Jersey and finally in a mock forest fire demonstration on the school grounds.

New Jersey Voters Think President Truman Will Run for Re-Election in 1952

By Kenneth Fink

Even though Mr. Truman has not committed himself on the matter, as of the present moment a good majority of New Jersey's voters expect him to run for re-election in 1952.

Of late there has been considerable speculation about the President's plans. A number of commentators profess to see evidence in Mr. Truman's recent moves that he is laying the groundwork for 1952.

And just last week a White House visitor reported that the President had told him he might run if the same team gets together again—meaning the same voters who supported him in 1948.

To find out how New Jersey voters feel about this New Jersey Poll staff reporters put this question to an accurate cross-section of the state's citizens:

"Regardless of your own personal choice, do you think President Truman will be a candidate for re-election in 1952?"

The results follow:

Think he will run 63%

Think he will not 29%

No opinion 8%

Two interesting sideights in today's survey are that (1) About equal numbers of Republicans, Democrats, and Independent voters throughout the state—three in every five—are of the opinion that the President will run for re-election.

And (2) The belief that Mr. Truman will run again is found to be strongest among labor union members and voters under 30 years of age. In both these groups, nearly seven out of every ten expect him to be the Democratic Candidate in 1952.

Will He Win?

No one can foresee, of course, whether the President will win if he runs again. Much will depend on the popularity of his Republican opponent and on what happens between now and 1952.

But at this moment perhaps significantly New Jersey voters who think Mr. Truman will lose outnumber those who think he will win.

Here's how New Jersey voters divide in answer to the question: "If he is a candidate, do you think he will win?"

Will win 37%

Will lose 49%

No opinion 14%

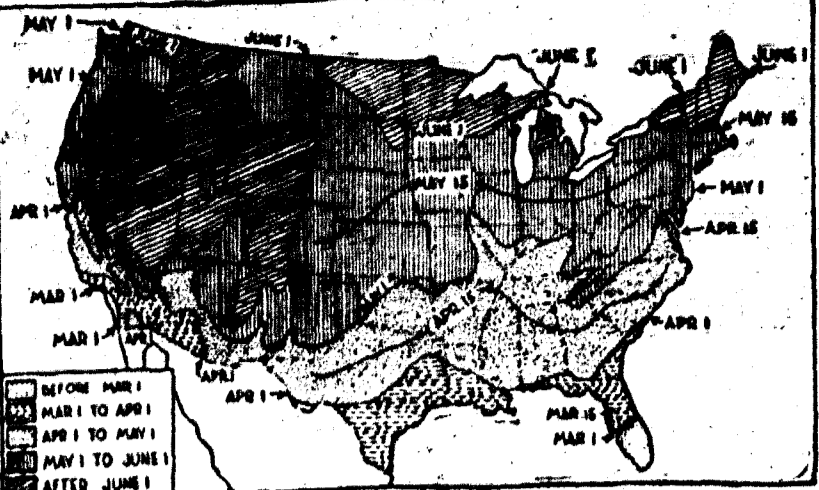

Surprisingly, even among New Jersey Democrats, those who believe Mr. Truman will lose outnumber those who believe he will win.

The vote by political party follows:

Will win	Dem.	Rep.	Ind.
Will lose	44%	24%	38%
No opinion	10	18	18

Republican Choices

Among New Jersey Republicans, the most popular choice as G.O.P. nominee for 1952 is General Dwight D. Eisenhower, as the New Jersey Poll reported last month. Worthy of note, too, is the fact that at that time New Jersey's Governor Alfred E. Driscoll was used for third place with Senator

This U. S. Department of Agriculture Map Shows Dates on Which the Chances of Damage From Frost Are Only One to Ten.

Temperature is the most important limiting factor in all outdoor horticultural activities. Soil can be improved, water can be supplied artificially. But plants are at the mercy of the temperature.

A key-day in the spring, which governs all operations, is the date when in your locality it becomes relatively safe to set out tender plants. In other words, the frost-proof date. This does not mark the beginning of gardening, because seeds of hardy vegetables can be sown as soon as the ground has thawed out and become dry enough to work. This is usually 30 days before the frost-proof date.

The term frost-proof, moreover, is hardly correct. The weather is too uncertain for that. There is always the chance that in an exceptional year, a frost will occur long after the average time and many tender things will be nipped. But some risk must always be accepted in gardening.

On the basis of long experience, the weather bureau has prepared a map which divides the country into plant hardiness zones, and established for each zone a date on which the chances are 10 to 1 against a killing frost occurring in the spring. The map accompanies this discussion. Look up your location and talk to your gardening neighbors about their practice, and you will find it easy to decide on the date to accept as safe from frost in your garden.

Of course some years you may win with a long-shot and get a crop from an early planting of a tender crop because of an exceptionally warm spring. If you want to figure the odds against this kind of chance taking, you may estimate that the risk of losing tender plants is exactly doubled, when they are set out two weeks before the frost-proof date.

There is nothing to be gained, moreover, by taking this risk with plants which have been started indoors, since they may be seriously injured by a hard frost which does not kill them, and always do best when they continue growing without a check.

Playing the Cards

By ALEXANDER SPENCER

Bill Dermody of Roselle made a nice play to bring in the contract in today's hand.

♠ A K 9 6
♥ 8 4 2
♦ J 5 3
♣ K Q 7

♠ 7 3 2 N ♠ Q J 10 5 4
♥ K Q ♠ 6 5
♦ 9 8 W E ♠ A Q J 6 2
♣ 9 5 3 S ♠ 4

♠ none
♥ A J 10 7 3
♦ K 7 4
♣ A J 10 4 2

With both sides vulnerable the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1♠	pass	2♥	pass
3♥	pass	4♠	pass
4♥	pass	pass	pass

When Dermody bid two hearts over his partner's spade opening, North realized he should have opened with a club, not a spade, because he had no good rebid. He chose to raise the hearts without adequate support as being the lesser of evils. If he had opened with a club he could have bid one no trump over one heart to indicate he had opened on minimum values, thus warning South to proceed with caution.

West opened the nine of diamonds, small from dummy, and East took with the ace and shifted to his only club. Bill won in dummy with the queen, cashed a spade for a diamond discard, then led a small heart and went right up with the ace, refusing to finesse. Another heart lead took East's last trump and assured the contract. Two hearts and a diamond were the only tricks lost.

Now go back to the fourth trick, and assume the ten of hearts is finessed. West wins with the queen, returns a club which East ruffs, and West has the setting trick in the king of hearts. The trick here is to realize that you can afford to lose two heart tricks, in addition to the diamond already lost, but you must plan the play to avoid losing two heart tricks and a ruff too. That's just what Dermody did when he played the heart ace at trick four. To see how effective the play of the ace of hearts is in this situation, divide the five outstanding hearts between the East-West hands in all possible ways, and you'll be surprised at the results.

CANASTA

Ely Culbertson, is out with his first book on Canasta, CULBERTSON ON CANASTA, just published by the John C. Winston Company of Philadelphia. Ely frankly says that he gathered material from the best Canasta players and writers and, in that sense his book is more the product of collective wisdom than of his individual thinking.

Here are some probabilities in a Canasta hand taken from Ely's book. The number of significantly different hands that can be dealt is about two and a half million.

On the average you will be dealt one wild card per hand (actually 1.27) and you are better than a three-to-one favorite to be dealt at least one wild card. Your whole hand, on the average, will be:

Wild cards	1 plus
Aces	1 minus
High cards	5 plus
Low cards	3 1/2 minus
Black threes	1/2 minus

Total 11

Your hand will have two natural pairs (or longer sets) and will, for example, be:

2 A K K Q J 10 7 7 6 3

The most disconnected hand in Canasta is one containing no matched cards and no wild cards, but you'll get one of these only once in three thousand deals. Such a hand is by no means hopeless, either. If partner holds and you draw a deuce you have an excellent hand, because you can hardly miss grabbing the heap just about when you want it.

Theta Chi to Hold Conference

Nearly 250 student representatives of ten colleges and universities are expected at Rutgers University March 18 when Region 3 of Theta Chi fraternity holds its annual conference in New Brunswick. Beta Delta Chapter, 7 Bartlett street, will be host this year.

A full calendar is planned for the visitors. The morning schedule includes classes for chapter officers and leadership conferences conducted by fraternity officials. Following an informal luncheon at the Bartlett street chapter house, the men will attend lectures in fraternity practices and discussion groups covering such subjects as fraternity problems and fraternity objectives.

Saturday night the scene of the conference will shift to "The Pines" in Metuchen where the delegates will dine and dance.

A leading member of the Rutgers staff will be the speaker along with members of Theta Chi's national office staff. New Jersey College for Women will provide dancing partners for the visitors.

Member chapters of Region 3 which will attend the Rutgers conference are from Dickinson, Penn State, Delaware, Lafayette, Lehigh, Drexel, Susquehanna, Bucknell, Washington College, and the University of Pennsylvania.

March 15 Deadline for Contest Entry Blanks

Entry forms for the Dual Art Competition to be held in March by the Museum Art School of Montclair in cooperation with the Montclair Art Museum must reach the museum by March 15. Blanks may be procured through the art departments or secondary schools or by contacting the museum.

Entries, due at the museum between March 21 and 25 will be judged April 1 by Mrs. Mary Cooke Swartwout, museum director.

The major prizes are two one-year full tuition scholarships, each worth $480 to be awarded one girl and one boy. They must either be high school seniors or have had a comparable education.

The second competition is open to high school juniors and seniors with three cash awards of $18, $10 and $5.

Quicken Housecleaning

When washing floors or woodwork, try using two galvanized steel pails. Fill one pail with soapy water and the other with rinse water. Then there won't be any need to run back to the pump for additional water before cleaning is finished.

Astronomy for the Amateur

Flowing down the sky in a slant from northwest to southeast, through most of the constellations we have written, about, is the Milky Way. On very fine nights, we can see the Milky Way as a faint, light haze running across the sky. It was, for centuries, believed to be a distant cloud, but the first telescopes which were turned upon it showed it to be made up of countless millions of stars, so far away and, hence, so faint, that they could not be resolved without instruments.

The center of this great stream of stars marks, roughly, the equator of our Local Galaxy. I described that galaxy a little while back, as being shaped like a cookie with a nut in the center. To give us better points of reference, let's try another simile. It's like a wagon wheel, an old fashioned wooden wagon wheel that had an iron tire around its rim and a heavy hub in the center. This wheel is made up of about two hundred billion stars, of which our sun is one. The sun and its little family of planets is located about one-third of the way in from the rim to the hub of this gigantic wheel that is 100,000 light-years in diameter, and is revolving upon its hub once in about 250 million years.

If, from our little perch within it, we look toward the rim of this great wheel, we see more stars than if we were to look out toward the side of the wheel. What we see when we look at the rim is the Milky Way. In winter, we are looking at that part of the rim that is nearest to us, say, roughly, from 15 to 20 thousand light-years in extent. In the summer, when the other side of the rim is in the sky, we look past the hub to the far side, and what we see is, therefore, even more thickly sown with stars than is the winter sky.

All of the 200 billion stars within this great island of stars are moving at terrific speeds in all directions, but ultimately, according to the currently accepted theories, they will move away from each other. That is the theory of the expanding universe, and it includes not only our own galaxy, but all the other countless similar galaxies which are scattered throughout space. Each one is moving away from every other one, and the stars within each galaxy are moving away from all the other stars within that galaxy. If, at times, stars seem to approach each other within our galaxy, we are told that this is because of the varying curves of their paths, and that such a condition is illusory and temporary.

There is, I am sure, a fraction which would indicate the relationship of matter to space, but I have no idea how to go about expressing that fraction. One great astronomer solved the problem, practically, by saying that the amount of matter in space could be considered as nothing. Dr. Donald H. Menzel has described the universe as placed in a vast building, cubical in shape, covering an area equal in size to the United States and Canada. If we were to enter this building, which contains all known space and everything in it, we should see nothing. It would take a microscope more powerful than any that now exists to show us even the most massive and wide-spread of any of the islands of stars.

Our galaxy, and all others like it are called Spiral Nebulae, because so many of them look like coiled springs when we chance to see those that are lying most nearly at right angles to our line of sight. Views of others that are at different angles have given us enough knowledge of their outlines to build up the conception of a great wheel with a hub. Many of them have arms that trail out from their rims, sweeping back along the direction of their rotation. All of those that present this aspect to our sight are seen to have a dark rim of obscuring matter which shows black in photographs taken through the great telescopes. This matter is present, we know, in our own galaxy, and is called cosmic dust. It is said to be matter in its original and most primitive state, and its collection, in some manner not yet surely known, is responsible for every celestial body that exists. There is enough of it in our own galaxy, and probably in every other galaxy, to account for as many stars as we can now see. In other words, half the matter in the universe is cosmic dust, and from it, stars are probably being born constantly.

Teen-Age Televues

By BOB LAMBERT

A few weeks ago I was fortunate enough to obtain four ducats to "Twenty Questions" (WOR-TV, 8:00-9:30 Sat.), so accompanied by my family I left Newark about 5:00 on a high-powered bus. Our '39 Plymouth was left quite alone in a parking lot. Arriving in New York we supped at the Automat and then proceeded to gaze with awe at the many signs which lit Times Square.

I was more than a trifle excited as I boarded the elevator in the "New Amsterdam Theatre" as this was my first television broadcast.

Upon entering the studio, which was smaller than I had expected, I found my seat immediately. Since I'm an adventurer at heart I excused myself to see what I could see. I descended a flight of stairs and was confronted with a large room in which was a lot of machinery and at least five television sets. I deduced from my limited knowledge that this was the room in which the picture to be sent over the air was chosen.

Finding little interest here I went upstairs in a vain attempt to find a golf program which I had seen earlier on a monitor. I succeeded in getting lost in a tangle of previously used sets. After finding the stairway once more I hurried downstairs where I saw a small room with a sign which said NO VISITORS ALLOWED. I might have succeeded in entering the room if a man hadn't crept up behind me and said warmly "Hello." I muttered something under my breath and quietly left still wondering what was in the little room.

The starting of the program interrupted my delving into the mysteries of television production.

It seems the night of our visit the show was celebrating its fourth anniversary on the air so it greeted Guy Lombardo, who appeared on the first show, in addition to the regular panel which consisted of Florence Rinaud, Fred VanDeventer, Herb Poles, and the teen-ager of the show Johnny McFee.

That night the panel was off as they answered only three of

YOUR GARDEN THIS WEEK

By FRED D. OSMAN

It's a great temptation to start garden plants indoors. As spring approaches, we become anxious to get things started. Although the ordinary house is far from the best place to germinate seeds and carry them on, many persons have solved the problem and grow satisfactory plants.

A supply of soil for the purpose should have been brought in during the fall while the soil was still workable. Even now it may be possible to collect soil without puddling it. It is advisable to use about one-third sand in soil used for sowing seeds.

One enemy of seedlings grown in soil is damping-off, caused by a fungus. Sometimes the seedlings fall to come up, sometimes they come through and then die off at the soil level. To prevent this, several steps may be necessary.

First soil sterilization. If you only have a small lot of soil, an easy way to sterilize it is to bake it in an oven. It can be done in the flats, boxes or pots or whatever you can use. Bake until it is steaming well, but stop before it becomes dry.

Avoid sowing seeds too thickly. Otherwise, seedlings will be crowded, become elongated and hence liable to attack.

Sow seeds in rows and cover them with sterilized builder's sand. This permits more air to circulate about the young plants and so helps to prevent damping-off.

Finally, as added insurance before sowing seeds, treat them with a fungicide. Buy a small package of Araman. Place a little of this, about the size of a pea, into each packet of seeds and shake until you are sure that every seed is coated. Then sow.

Vegetable gardening is simpler and more pleasant when a plan is followed, said Fred D. Osman, county agricultural agent.

With a diagram of the garden on paper it is easier to move swiftly and efficiently through the digging, seeding, planting and insect and disease control according to a pre-planned schedule.

Planning is a garden job that can be done now.

Suggestions for plans together with full details on successions of crops maturing dates, and other information are available in a bulletin available on request from Agricultural Agent, Court House, Elizabeth 4, New Jersey.

C. A. P. Offers Opportunities to New Jersey Youths

With the continued growth of air power, both civilian and military, in the United States, it is the aim of Civil Air Patrol to spread aviation knowledge to America's youth in increasing numbers. The C.A.P. Cadet training program and related activities is considered one of the best mediums of its kind today to give elementary aviation ground training and indoctrination flights to the many air-minded youth of this nation. The Cadet program of training consists of military art, aeronautical and allied subjects such as navigation, meteorology, theory of flight, airplane construction and service, weather, first aid, photography, radio, Morse code, crash procedure, control tower procedure and many other interesting subjects.

The C.A.P. Cadet Corps is a uniformed group under supervision of senior and Cadet Officers of the Civil Air Patrol. The Cadet Officers are selected for qualities of leadership, appearance, scholastic records, aviation interests and knowledge of the C.A.P. program. Cadets have opportunities to fly in U.S.A.F. liaison aircraft on loan to C.A.P. and can earn Observer Wings by actual flight participation. Also opportunities to learn Aircraft and Engine Maintenance and Flight Line duties, Radio operation of both mobile and stationary equipment and to secure their 3rd Class Radio Telephone licenses from the Federal Communications Commission, and administration work. Attendance at Cadet Summer Encampments at nearby Air Force Installations as guests of the Air Force is a summer feature.

Cadets may qualify to be selected as members of the New Jersey Crack Drill Team which last year won National Honors at Denver, Colorado and represented the United States at the Canadian Exposition at Toronto, Canada. In addition, outstanding Cadets are selected each year to participate in the International Cadet Exchange Program which offers opportunities for this select group to visit many foreign countries, namely England, France and Switzerland. These trips are as guests of the USAF and respective countries visited.

Membership in the C.A.P. Cadets is open to all young people in High School from 15 to 17 years of age who are in normal health and of good scholastic standing. In joining the Cadet Corps, the youth is committed to join any branch of the Armed Services and, membership is entirely voluntary with no period of time designated. Cadets meet one evening a week with their local Squadron or Flight Unit usually at a school, armory or airport facility, with drills and classes from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. Visits are made to local airport flight bases for practical work with aircraft, radio and similar duties where indoctrination flights with experienced senior pilots are eagerly awaited as the fledglings learn the feel of flying, aerial map reading and see practical application of mid-week training classes.

The N. J. Wing of Civil Air Patrol has 18 squadrons in this State. To join the Cadets a visit may be made to the unit nearest the prospective member or he may contact N. J. Wing Hqs., Ripple Bldg. No. 76, Kearny Navy Yard, Kearny, N. J., by mail and he will be referred to the Squadron in that area.

Protect Children From Accidents In the Home

Practice safety measures yourself if you wish to protect your children from crippling or tragic accidents, advises Mrs. Doris Anderson, extension home management specialist at Rutgers University.

Accidents, not disease, are the most ruthless killers of children between the ages of 1 to 14. And 40 per cent of these accidents happen in the home, reminds the State University specialist. If you make safe your way of doing things around the home is a safe way, your children will be more likely to develop safe habits.

Here are some ways you homemakers can eliminate hazards in the home:

Keep matches out of reach. As soon as your child is old enough, teach him how to use matches safely. Screen hearths and radiators. Place hot pans well back away from the edge of the table or stove, turning handles away from the edges. Don't leave buckets of hot scrubbing water on the floor.

Avoid suffocation accidents by checking highchair harnesses and guarding against poorly arranged bed clothes.

Store poisons and medicines (even those not harmful in small amounts) in locked closets or places beyond the reach of children. Check yourself here, too. Are poisons out of your reach so that they will not be mistaken for harmless compounds? Lye, kerosene, cleaning fluids and polishes become a terrific hazard in homes where there are small children if they are kept under the kitchen sink.

Safeguard your children from firearms. Make sure cartridges are never left in a gun. Keep weapons out of the reach of children, playing cowboy or soldier.

Broken steps, slippery floors and skiddy rugs are dangerous for children as well as adults. Make your rugs skid-proof. Prevent falls downstairs by using stair gates. Another good precaution is to have strong, tight screens, or to install other fall proof devices.

Your children will be safe outside if you remove snow from walks and sprinkle sand on ice.

Fashionable from Coast to Coast

By TRACY ADRIAN

Fun skirts coupled with scoop necked wool jersey blouses are a new fashion from Los Angeles, and wonderful stuff away from palm tree sun, too, say at ski resorts.

The colors are gay or smart white, for both skirts and appliques, and all-wool felt; colors are also giddy for the jersey blouses. Another skirt by Madalyn Miller, not shown here, has a giraffe applique stretching from waist to hem.

If you are still a Canasta-resister... does such a one really exist? You'll wonder why the circular motif in the lucky are design. It's a basket, and it is there because "canasta" means basket in Spanish. Try shuffling and playing with two packs of cards at once, and you'll see the application (as well as the applique!).

Penguins and snowflakes... a few snowballs, too... are pompous, fun appliques on the full four-gore circular sports skirt in the lower picture.

Tasty Dishes For Lenten Meals

Fly the poor homemaker who's married to a "meat and potato man." She'll have problems aplenty trying to decide on a diet that will keep him contented during Lent. There are numerous meatless dishes she can serve, however, to make him forget his steak and spuds, such, for example, as the following:

Macaroni Custard
Add 1 tsp. salt to 3 qts. rapidly boiling water. Gradually add 8 oz. elbow macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Place macaroni in bowl. Grate 1 medium onion into macaroni. Combine 2 well beaten eggs, 1 c. grated American cheese, 2 c. milk, 1/2 tsp. salt, dash of pepper; add to macaroni and mix well. Pour into a greased casserole. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 F.) 35 min. or until firm. Sprinkle top with paprika and serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Noodles Parmesan
Add 1 tsp. salt to 3 qts. rapidly boiling water. Gradually add 8 oz. egg noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Add 1/2 c. butter or margarine to the hot noodle meats. Add 1/2 c. heavy cream, 1 tsp. salt, dash of pepper and mix in a bowl and stir until butter will. Pour into shallow baking dish.

Combine 3 hard-cooked eggs chopped and 1 tsp. chopped

Home and Kids Favorite Shot Of Camera Fan

American amateur photographers—the occasional picture taker—prefers to take photos of his home and family. This was revealed as a result of a survey made by a film service, one of the nation's largest mail order film developers. The firm, handling as many as 600,000 prints a week, has conducted a survey in their Ridgefield, New Jersey plant of the pictures sent to them from throughout the country.

The volume has enabled the company to compile the camera tastes of a good portion of the American public. Family pictures made up over fifty per cent of all pictures developed, while sports pictures ran a not too close second. Subjects vary with the seasons as well as the locale, with wide open spaces predominating as backgrounds in the western states, while in the south, white sand and lots of ocean are to be seen.

The most predominant trend observed in the survey, is that more and more photos are being taken indoors throughout the country. Parties come in for a good deal of attention, as well as the family Christmas tree.

"Amateurs are fine photographers," says Charles Scharf, president of the film service firm, who personally supervised the survey.

THE CLOTHESLINE

By Muriel W. Shonnard

Maybe we didn't have a white Christmas, but all signs point to a "White Easter." White toppers, white hats, white trimmings and especially white neckwear on coats, suits, dresses, dominate the spring scene. Trimming counters suddenly blossom with a glittering galaxy of frosty white collar and cuff sets; flower corsages, gayly printed scarves and smart belts. And what a life-saver they can be.

With the pre-spring weather as unpredictable as a baby's smile and our tempers matching the weather, the clothes closet suddenly appears populated with a collection of tired old rags. It's too early to wear the gay, spring-intro summer pretties our hearts yearn for, and we're bored stiff with everything. What to do, what to do!

A speedy visit to the nearest well-stocked accessory counter is indicated.

First Aid to Dressmakers, too. Those counters overflowing with clever designs in collars and cuffs, lacy jabots and tailored dickies offer admirable "short-cuts" to the lass who is making her own spring wardrobe, too. Finishing the neck and sleeves is one of the most difficult chores in dressmaking. Why not skip it by designing a dress around a smart, ready-made set.

While most women are inclined to shop the accessory counters as the last port of call after everything else has been purchased, they should really be thoroughly explored first, before buying either ready-made clothes or piece goods and a pattern. The recollection of just the right collar for scarf, belt or flowers available downstairs may influence the selection of a dress that wouldn't quite do otherwise, or provide inspiration in the selection of a pattern and material for the seamstress. The process of shopping the accessory counter first instead of last will save endless wear and tear on the nervous system and put money in the pocket too, since a dollar pony or a $3.00 collar can add $10.00 to the looks of a costume.

"Linen versions" of the "little boy" collar, ranging from neat little turned downs to flaring wide Elons and elbow-boy shapes assure a becoming type for every personality. They're softened with rich embroidery or starched stiff for a crisp effect and worn with as many different designs in bows as there are designs in collars.

Pique is a favorite material for the sets. It is easy to launder, keeps its crispness and has texture interest, but linen, shantung, satin and nylon have an extensive following also. Nylon is a particular favorite for soft, frilly jabots or dickies, nicely feminine for contrast with softly tailored silks and woolsens.

An interesting development in the light of the trend for starched collars is the appearance of the (new) (permanently starched) (method) Long used on men's shirts, it is new in women's wear and may not be generally available as yet, but it's worth asking for.

Prune Trees in Early Spring

Many gardeners prefer to get their pruning jobs out of the way before the rush of other garden work in the spring. One of these jobs is that of pruning trees, both shade and fruit trees. Although bleeding from gowly cut branches later on is not a serious condition, it is far less prevalent when pruning is done early before the spring sap flow starts. There are a few exceptions to the above, notably maple trees. Pruning wounds on maples, the sugar maples in particular, bleed less and heal more quickly if they are pruned during the summer months than if done during dormancy or in early spring.

The best time to establish the frame work of both fruit and shade trees is while they are young. If they are not pruned carefully then, an unightly appearance or poorly shaped tree may result. Dead wood appears from time to time and its removal is the first job to do prior to thinning out the remaining branches. Many of the dead branches are the result of poor growing conditions.

It is especially advantageous to prevent any formation of "V" or narrow crotches of less than 40 degrees made by branches of similar diameters. Such branches are likely to become broken from wind or ice storms. As the tree gets older the crotched branches become larger and push each other apart as they grow. This condition can be prevented in the early stages of tree growth by removing the most lateral branch forming the crotch or by at least cutting and shortening it so as to keep it dwarfed compared to the other part of the crotch.

Fashion Issue Is Coming March 16

The Spring Fashion Supplement which will appear in this paper March 16 will be an issue that no fashion conscious woman will want to miss. Sylvia Jaffe, fashion coordinator for the supplement said yesterday.

Although fashion issues have been a regular feature of this paper each spring and fall, Mrs. Jaffe declared that indications are that the issue this spring would be more comprehensive and complete in its coverage of the fashion picture than ever before.

Mrs. Jaffe was appointed fashion coordinator for Community Publishers, of which this paper is a member. She has had wide experience in the field of fashion and has worked with outstanding graduate of Hunter College, New York and former publicity director and fashion coordinator of Cavendish Trading Corporation, buying office for department stores in New York City. She has also directed fashion shows in prominent New York hotels including the Waldorf-Astoria, Ritz-Carlton, Hotel Pierre and Hotel Astor.

Help Youngsters Form The Daily Bath Habit

If a bit of psychology is needed to encourage a child to form the daily bath habit, try giving him a personalized bathtub. Paint his name on a side of a galvanized steel wash tub and explain that the tub is for his use only. The brighter the paint, the better. He will feel important and will usually be more cooperative during bathing time. After the bath he may use the tub for skidding toy boats.

Suggests Pot-Roast Variations To Satisfy Keen Winter Appetites

With family appetites keen, many wise homemakers are turning to a savory pot-roast. This is the dish that's famed for both its satisfying heartiness and its thrifty use of less tender cuts of meat.

Among the meat cuts which may be cooked as a pot-roast, there is the boneless chunky tripe, the heel of the round, and the arm and blade. If desired, these latter cuts may be boned and rolled for simple serving.

According to Reba Staggs, home economics expert, cooking a pot-roast is really braising—the same as cooking Swiss steak or pork chops. The meat is floured or not as desired, then placed in a heavy utensil with hot lard and browned slowly on both sides. A small amount of liquid is added, the pan tightly covered and cooked over low heat until the meat is tender, allowing about 45 minutes per pound cooking time.

Variety is great in preparing a pot-roast. Spices may be added for a definite "different" touch—ground ginger or whole cloves. The cooking liquid is another way of changing a pot-roast—tomato juice, half catchup and half water or diluted vinegar.

BARBECUED DRIED BEEF
For an attractive luncheon dish, serve barbecued dried beef on cheese toasted buns. Cook the meat in barbecue sauce in a covered frying pan. Grate cheese over halved buns and toast in the broiler. Spread the barbecued dried beef over the buns and serve immediately.

Vegetables, left whole or cut in large pieces, may be added for still more variation. Combine them with the meat just long enough before the end of cooking time so they will be tender. Along with carrots, potatoes and onions, include turnips, squash, parsnips, green beans or peas. Or substitute vegetables with fruit—cranberries, dried apricots or prunes—for new flavor contrasts.

Good gravy is an essential part of any braised meat dish. It should be made in the pan in which the meat is cooked. The drippings are poured off, then measured back into the pan, blending an equal amount of drippings with flour (two tablespoons each for each cup of liquid). The liquid is added and the gravy cooked, stirring constantly, until thickened.

FIRST MINTED COINS
A mine was erected near Joachimsthal, Bohemia, in 1318 and Count Schlick issued the first minted coins, known as Joachimsthalers. This name was shortened to "thalers" and corruption of this word brought our word "dollars."

Technicians Play Vital Role in Hospital

Laboratory Team At Overlook Works Round-the-Clock

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles concerning developments in modern hospitals generally, prepared in connection with the forthcoming subscription campaign for the expansion of Overlook Hospital in Summit.)

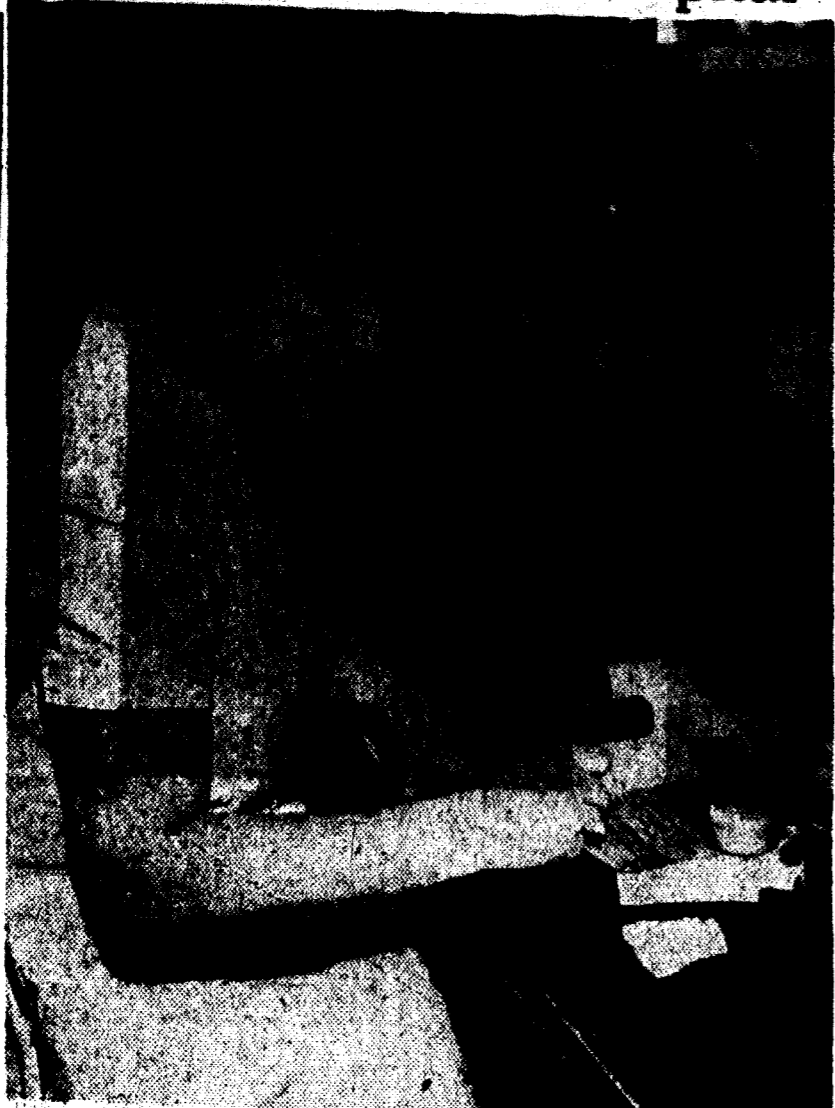

Vivacious competent and completely interested in her work, Miss Emily Manno, chief technician in Overlook Hospital's expanding laboratory, is helping that hospital earn a broader reputation among the important health protection centers in this area.

Under the direction of Dr. George L. Erdman, Overlook's full-time pathologist, Miss Manno is a member of the "round-the-clock, seven-days-a-week team" which last year completed an average of 100 laboratory examinations per day, each one of which enabled a physician to know, in greater detail and with greater certainty, an important fact about his patient. Keeping pace with new medical discoveries hospital laboratories today are becoming more widely appreciated as centers in which special skills and special techniques are combined to produce data helpful in the diagnosis and treatment of disease.

Miss Manno, who lives with her mother, Mrs. Anna Manno, at 900 Ridgewood road in Millburn, came to Overlook's laboratory by way of Bloomfield High School, Upsala College in East Orange where she took a pre-medical course, and St. Michael's Hospital in Newark. She has two sisters, Natalie, a Berkeley Heights teacher, and Vita, section manager at Hahn's in Newark.

While most laboratory techniques are designed to aid in diagnosing the nature of an illness, many have been devised to help the physician determine the type and amount of medication necessary to facilitate the recovery of the patient. Some examinations alert the doctor against possible harmful reactions from highly useful drugs which, while beneficial to most patients, will in a certain few cause adverse changes.

In addition to the routine laboratory work, the technicians at

MISS EMILY MANNO of Millburn is shown recording the results of an examination which she has made by means of a microscope in Overlook Hospital's busy laboratory, where she is the chief technician. Last year, 34,517 tests were made in Overlook's laboratory, which will be substantially expanded under the building program on behalf of which a subscription campaign will be conducted throughout this area during April.

Overlook Hospital's laboratory play an important part in the operation of the Blood Bank which last year issued 857 pints of blood. Before a single pint can be issued to a patient 7 or 8 different tests must be made to insure that the blood is pure and is of the right type and Rh-factor. In the course of a year this adds up to a large volume of work, but in view of the expansion program of the hospital it is expected that at least twice the amount, or 1600 pints a year will be needed!

Following established principles of modern hospital practice, laboratory technicians rotate regularly through the various areas in which tests are conducted, ensuring the individual ability of each to serve in any emergency.

The $2,000,000 building program which is to be undertaken upon completion of a public subscription campaign in April throughout the wide area of communities whose residents look to Overlook Hospital in time of sickness and emergency, includes plans for substantial expansion of laboratory services, and subsequent broader responsibilities for those who perform them.

"Everyone who works in a modern hospital," Miss Manno said recently to an interviewer as she glanced up from a microscope, "believes his or her work is important. We don't treat patients in the laboratory, and many of those for whom we make tests we never see; but we like to feel that we are important members of an important team."

Miss Manno's "feeling" is founded on fact. In 1939, the Overlook Hospital laboratory conducted 13,162 examinations; last year, the tests numbered 34,517 — an increase of more than 150 per cent!

State Teachers Seek $2200-$4200 Salary Minimum

TRENTON—New Jersey teachers will ask the 1950 Legislature for a state-wide minimum salary schedule, with salaries ranging from $2,200 for a teacher with no experience up to $4,200 for a teacher with a Master's Degree after 20 years.

Information on the new teacher-pay program appears in the current issue of the New Jersey Educational Review published by the New Jersey Education Association.

The proposed schedule would take the place of the teachers' traditional request for a flat state-wide minimum salary of $3,500. The teachers contend that the flat minimum does not carry any reward for experience or training. The schedule would be the basis of fixing the least that any Board of Education could pay its professional employees; any board would be free to pay more than the schedule calls for.

The schedule would call for annual increases of $100 from the starting salary of $2,200 until the teacher reached $4,000, with two additional increments of $100 for those holding Master's Degrees. It also provides for additional adjustments of $100 each year for teachers who are below their proper place on the schedule.

It calls for full credit for all teaching experience and it would apply to teachers holding permanent, limited, or provisional certificates. It would not apply to those holding temporary or emergency certificates. Teachers changing position would be permitted to bargain on the starting salaries, but both regular increments and adjustments would be compulsory if the starting salary is below the schedule provisions.

The Education Association contends that such a schedule is needed to meet the competition for teachers by neighboring states. Every state bordering on New Jersey, it argues, has some such schedule. It also points out that this schedule does not abandon the $2,500 minimum salary formerly sought, since under this there would be an effective minimum of $2,500 for all teachers under tenure.

The Association presents figures to show that a large number of teachers are already on schedules as good or better than the one proposed. The added cost of making this proposal effective is placed at $1,500,000 for the first year. After seven years the total added cost would reach $7,800,000. The Association states that the adoption of such a schedule is contingent upon increased state school aid.

CATCHING UP WITH THE WORLD

By GREGORY HEWLETT

A little high, fast and fancy flying is necessary today to catch up with things going on in this fast-moving world of ours.

Starting close to home, we find first that Governor Albert Driscoll last week presented his delayed budget message to the Legislature. It was, as he had indicated, a no-new-tax budget and thus a document to catch the eye. But it contained a few gimmicks which are likely to catch something else before the whole thing is signed, sealed and delivered.

The Governor listed proposed expenditures of $164,542,442 for 1950-51, $211,367 less than this year's appropriations and a big $71 million less than departmental requests. Even so, his total is some $22 million more than anticipated revenues, and he proposes to make up the difference by using funds marked for highway purposes.

That's one of the gimmicks. Mr. Driscoll hopes not to lose federal highway aid in this maneuver, but he can't be sure that he won't.

Then there are such little items as the State Museum, which he suggested be closed, and the adult education and migrant labor programs, which he proposed be abandoned. All have strong supporters . . . and there'll be loud howling if they're killed.

And, too, there was the Governor's stage whisper that may be the Newark College of Engineering and the Rutgers College of Engineering, a very important segment of Rutgers University in New Brunswick, might possibly be merged into one institution . . . in Newark. That's another one, we suspect, that's going to kick up a lot of smoke.

The Driscoll budget, we suspect, is tuned not alone for New Jersey ears. More and more, Governor Al is hitting the national headlines and becoming a national figure in the Republican party. Politically speaking, you know, 1952 is not very far away.

Parties Mixed Up
From the sound of things at Washington, the closeness of '52 is pretty well recognized by both the GOP and the Democrats. The former have finally unloosed a national policy statement and a slogan—"Liberty vs. Socialism"—and have found out definitely what everyone knew before: There's no single-mindedness of purpose and objective in their ranks.

The same is just as true, perhaps more so, among the Democrats, what with the Southern branch being opposed to much of President Truman's domestic program. Some day, maybe, there'll be a realignment into Liberal and Conservative parties—more accurate in name than the present setup and more like the British division.

Pick Laborites
Speaking of the British reminds us that we should stop off briefly in England to look at today's general election, the first time since the Labor government took control back in '45. It's been as hot a campaign as the kind we're used to here in Jersey . . . and by tomorrow the world will know the outcome.

As we see it, there's little chance that the Laborites will be defeated or, conversely, that the Conservatives headed by Winston Churchill will return to power. And if it works out that way, it's obvious that Britain will move farther into Socialism in the years ahead.

Power Politics
Speaking of Britain and Churchill and Socialism brings up two other subjects in this world-wide tour.

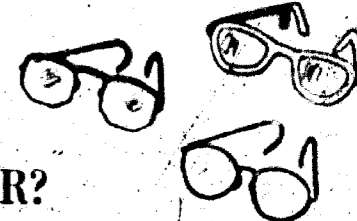

In his campaign, Churchill made a dramatic suggestion that set the world talking: That it was time for another highest-level talk by the big powers on the A-bomb and H-bomb, i.e., a confab of President Truman, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Attlee (or his successor).

In Washington, State Department sentiment seemed to be that the U.S. is always ready and willing to talk with Russia . . . in the United Nations. In the Senate, sentiment became stronger that something more than that must be done.

Not far removed from all of this, really a part of it, was the announcement of the outcome of Chinese Communist Leader Mao Tse-tung's long visit in Moscow: A series of treaties between the Chinese Communist government and the Soviet Union.

The treaties revealed were not at all surprising—30 years of "friendship, alliance and mutual aid," an agreement regarding the Chinese Changchun railroad, Port Arthur and Port Darien, the granting by Russia of credits of $50 million a year for five years for capital equipment and raw materials from Russia.

A PIECE OF YOUR MIND

By KARE PLATZER, Psychologist

W. Edward Young, principal of Fielding School, Maplewood, where I spoke last week, has devised effective methods for meeting the problem of how best to train those children who are forced because of their physical handicaps to be educated at home. An account of these methods was found worthy of publication in the American School Board Journal, a monthly dealing with school administration.

Mrs. Marion Blumenstock, acting as home instruction teacher under the supervision of Mr. Young, early realized that the mental and emotional development of a physically handicapped child was of utmost importance. The challenge is met through treating each pupil as an individual, studying his unique needs and abilities, and applying those techniques which prove most effective.

One little girl was a victim of spastic paralysis, totally unable to walk and almost wholly unable to talk. Mrs. Blumenstock began by interesting the child in reading for enjoyment. Upon this basis she was able to interest the girl in lessons designed to exercise her vocal chords. For the first ten minutes of each lesson the teacher and the child discussed current events in the community and the world. In the manner the child not only feels herself a part of what is going on outside her home but also practices voice control.

As an aid toward motor control and coordination, Mrs. Blumenstock introduced word games through cards. In order to hold the cards, a specially designed rack was shaped. As the child practiced, what were apparently uncontrollable twitchings and fumbings have been corrected. Next weaving was introduced. A special frame and needle enabled the student to learn to weave. As a result of the step-by-step solid movement which the child has demonstrated, she is confident in her ability to find and maintain a useful place in society.

Another handicapped pupil was a little boy who because of a stomach ailment is unable to eat solid food. He had little interest in learning any subject matter at all. Under the supervision and encouragement of the home instruction teacher, he developed an interest in making models of balustrades and in weaving and crocheting. As he progressed in these, he turned out articles which were so attractive that a market was found for them. He was encouraged to keep a record of his earnings, his sales, and his profits. These accounts developed an in-

Galvanized Cans for Safe Fuel Storage
Liquid fuel stored near buildings is a serious fire hazard, according to Norval Wardle, safety specialist of Iowa State University. Underground tanks located well away from structures are recommended for large amounts of gasoline or other flammable liquids. Small amounts may be kept in galvanized steel gasoline or oil cans. These cans may be stored in cool, damp areas without fear of fire, rust, or corrosion.
