Oak Knoll
Annex Hits
Zone Snag

A request for a zoning excep- tion which would permit con- struction of an addition to the present high school at the Oak Knoll School of the Holy Child will be heard by the Zoning Board of Adjustment at its next monthly meeting scheduled for Monday, January 14 at 8 p.m. in City Hall.

The application requests per- mission to construct the addition in A-10 and A-15 residential zones which, under the city's zoning laws, prohibits construc- tion of any building other than for residential use. The area is located on Blackburn road and bounded by Ashland road, Lar- ned road and Prospect street.

The proposed addition would provide space for approximate- ly 60 additional high school stu- dents and would be constructed onto the rear of the present senior high. The structure would contain a cafeteria, classrooms, art, language and science rooms. At present the high school holds 145, and with the proposed addition, the enroll- ment would be increased to 200.

The existing high school was constructed in 1955. At present total school enrollment from kindergarten to the senior high stands at 390.

The school was originally founded in 1924.

Trucksess, Gilson to Vie
For Seat in GOP Primary

Ogden D. Gensemer, Mayor of Summit since Jan- uary 1, 1958, resigned on Tuesday.

In a letter to Common Council President David E. Trucksess, who was made Acting Mayor, the former Mayor said that a heavy business schedule during 1963 would require him to be out of the city for considerable pe- riods. He added that the "inter- ests of sound municipal govern- ment would be best served by my resigning the office of Mayor."

During 1962, the first year of his third term, Mr. Gensemer, an executive with the Long Lines Department of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., was in Europe on company busi- ness for several months and returned in October.

With Mr. Gensemer's resi- gnation came announcements from Acting Mayor Trucksess and former Councilman-at-large William R. Gilson that both would be Republican candidates for Mayor in the April pri- maries.

According to a City Hall spokesman, Mr. Trucksess will continue as Council President and Acting Mayor throughout

Local Woman's
Son Missing
In Plane Crash

The son of a Summit woman has been listed as missing by the U. S. Navy after a twin-engine seaplane, on which he was a crew member, crashed off the Mexican coast last Fri- day. The missing man is Lieut. Peter A. Cargen, son of Mrs. Elmer G. Houston of 91 Fern- wood road.

Lieut. Cargen was one of 13 crew members aboard the plane which was on a training flight. A destroyer and 14 planes are engaged in an intensive search for survivors following the spotting of the plane wreckage off Baja, California, Mexico. Cargen's family are hopeful that he may have swum to safety.

The 23-year-old flyer resided at Short Hills and attended Millburn High School but gradu- ated from a California high school. His father, Everett Car- gen, resides at Riverside, Cal. He graduated from Dartmouth College in 1961.

At Dartmouth he became an expert skier and mountaineer, and there met his wife, Ruth, who also was proficient in both. They were married in 1961 upon Cargen's graduation. He then enlisted in the Navy Air Force and won his wings two months ago.

Old Year Ends in Grip
Of Sub-Zero Weather

The year 1962 went out in a blaze of bone-chilling weather on Monday when the Summit Area was gripped in an Arctic embrace that plunged local tem- peratures to the below zero mark.

The weather was the coldest since February, 1957 when for three days local thermometers hovered near the zero mark.

Last weekend's weather was also accompanied by near-hurri- cane winds with some gusts measured up to 40 to 50 miles per hour.

The high winds knocked out huge windows throughout the city including one at Kresge- Newark, and toppled a tree at 396 Woodland avenue. There were no injuries reported.

The Fire Department said it had received a few calls from local residences whose furnaces broke down. There were no fires reported from over-heated boilers or stoves.

Local car repair firms did a land-office business throughout Monday charging dead batteries and checking anti-freeze. Many cars refused to start early Mon- day morning and tow trucks were kept busy with repairs through the better part of the day.

In spite of icy roads, the Po- lice Department reported no serious accidents. Most of the mishaps were minor.

A light snow which fell for several hours on Saturday added to the general discomfort of local residents.

Readings on Monday ranged from 10 below zero in parts of Berkeley Heights, to four below on New England avenue and five above on Euclid avenue.

Teachers Going
Back to School
For Two of 3 Rs

Summit elementary school teachers are going back to school to brush up on two of the 3 Rs, namely "rithmetic and 'riting. The Board of Educa- tion at its meeting last week gave approval to plans for all teachers in grades 4, 5, and 6 to take a course in modern math to be given by William McClurken of the high school faculty beginning January 28.

Mr. McClurken has completed a year's study in modern math- ematics at Bowling Green Uni- versity. The refresher course is designed to provide better math preparation for courses pupils will be taking in junior high school.

A similar in-service course in world history and geography will be given also for junior high school social studies teach- ers through a series of lectures by Prof. Johan Blustain of N.Y.U. The course is designed to serve as an overview of the 3-year social science program to be introduced in the junior high next year.

Johnny and Susie's postman- ship will also get special atten- tion as the result of a workshop planned for May 2 for penman- ship teachers. It is felt that a revision of the penmanship (Continued on Page 7)

Jaycees Seek
Nominees for Top Citizens

The New Providence Berke- ley Heights Junior Chamber of Commerce has announced that nominations for the annual distinguished service awards are now being accepted. The Jay- cees established the awards last year. This year's awards will be presented at a banquet in the last week of January, 1963.

One award, the "outstanding young man of the year," as in- dicated, is limited to males be- tween the ages of 21 and 35, be- ing the same requirements for Jaycee membership. However, Jaycee membership is not a re- quirement for the award. Last year's winner was Bert Abbra- zia of New Providence, long ac- tive in community affairs. The other award, the "outstanding citizen of the year," does not have any sex or age limita- tions. Last year's winner was George T. Loman, former May- or of Berkeley Heights. Nomi- nees for both awards must live in either New Providence or Berkeley Heights.

The judges committee will be composed of local civic leaders. Their decision will be based on the following criteria: Contribu- tions to the general community welfare, 50 points; evidence of leadership ability, 25 points; evidence of personal or busi- ness progress, 25 points.

Any resident of New Provi- dence or Berkeley Heights may nominate an individual he be- lieves worthy of an award.

Labs Perfects Glue As Thin as Molecule

Bell Telephone Laboratories is joining metals to plastics with a new kind of glue—a single layer of molecules one ten-millionth of an inch thick. The atoms in the molecules lock chemically with the metal and are imprisoned by the plastic to form a more permanent bond than any ever achieved between such materials.

Applications include the joining of plastic insulators to copper conductors to increase the reliability of printed circuits and improve the mechanical properties of telephone cables.

The bonds are so durable that one (aluminum to polyethylene) has stood up for over six months under 600 pounds per square inch of pull at 80 to 120° F and 100% relative humidity. In fact, the plastic itself fails before the joint does.

Dr. Harold Schonhorn of 58 Primrose drive, New Providence, developed the process.

He applied a technique developed by Irving Langmuir and Katherine Blodgett for depositing a single layer of molecules ("monolayer") onto a surface. Here's how the bond is formed:

Deposit a solution of stearic acid or a similar compound on the surface of water contained in a trough. The acid spreads out to form a film one molecule thick. Compress this film with a float. This pushes the molecules together so that they stand up straight on the water's surface. Part of each molecule lies dissolved just below the surface.

Lower a metal plate through the film into a rectangular well at one end of the trough. Raise the plate slowly. The metal forms a chemical lock with the dissolved part of the molecule. The entire molecule is pulled up and adheres to the side of the plate.

Finally, melt plastic onto the coated side of the plate. The free ends of the molecules stand out from the side of the plate and since they are similar in structure to the plastic, become immersed in it to form a strong physical bond.

Dr. Schonhorn has engaged in chemical research on adhesives since joining the technical staff of Bell Telephone Laboratories in 1961.

A native of New York City, he received a B.S. degree from Brooklyn College in 1950. He subsequently served in the U.S. Army and was assigned to the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C.

Following his military service, he continued his graduate studies at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and received his Ph.D. in 1959. He was with the American Cyanamid Co. for one year prior to coming to Bell Laboratories.

Dr. Schonhorn is a member of the American Chemical Society, the American Physical Society, and the National Geographic Society. He is also a member of Sigma Xi and Phi Lambda Upsilon, honorary societies.

City's Oldest Resident Dies In 103rd Year

Summit's oldest resident, Mrs. Anna S. Manthey, died last Thursday at age 103 at the Palmer Nursing Home where she had been a patient for the last four years. Mrs. Manthey lived in Newark before coming here. She celebrated her 103rd birthday last November.

She was a native of Germany and born on Nov. 25, 1859 and came to this country 71 years ago. She was the widow of Herman Manthey, a shoemaker who died in 1934. Mrs. Manthey was quite active until a year ago and was an avid TV viewer, did daily household jobs at the home, such as dusting and table setting, and even took part in folk dancing. She became seriously ill about two weeks ago. On her 100th birthday she was congratulated by President Eisenhower.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Anna Rothenburg of Sayreville, Mrs. Helen Loeffler of Union and Mrs. Elsie Weiss of Newark; five grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Saturday at the Brough Funeral Home, 535 Springfield avenue.

State Eases Requirements For Shelters

The New Jersey Division of Civil Defense has announced a relaxation of restrictions on the type of buildings suitable for use as fallout shelters. Prior to today's announced change in restrictions, only structures with a protection factor (PF) of 100 or more were qualified as shelter facilities.

Civil Defense officials define the protection factor of 100, in describing a building's protective cover, by pointing out that if a person is standing out in the open, that person has zero coverage, "but in a building with a 100 (PF), that person then has 100 times more protection."

According to Acting State CD Head Thomas S. Dignati, those buildings with a (PF) of 40 or better will now be posted. He added that the project will be speeded up for completion by January 31, 1963.

The director said that structures with a "PF" of 40 or better will be posted with shelter signs only if the building is suitable for a capacity of no less than fifty persons.

This latest change in the National Fallout Shelter Survey and Marking Program will have a two-fold effect on the project, said Dignati, by increasing the number of buildings and areas to be marked and by moving up the deadline date.

According to the director, the number of facilities to be marked will be increased by 30 to 40 per cent and the January target date was set after it was previously announced the project would be completed on June 30, 1963.

"It is impossible for local, state and the federal government to accomplish the sign posting job without the full cooperation of building owners, local, county and state officials and others living in municipalities throughout the state," added Dignati.

He added that the bulk of the sign posting work has been done by members of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, but with the increased workload, it is of the utmost importance that an effort is made to enlist the aid of municipal services and volunteers.

"Obtaining this aid," said Dignati, "will be a major contribution towards the protection of many New Jersey inhabitants in the event of a nuclear war."

Business Firms Urged to Watch Mailing Costs

With new postage rates due January 7 it is especially important now that local businessmen should "take a close look at their mailing practices to determine if they are operating with maximum economy and efficiency." Postmaster Robert M. Dunsmore said this week.

"Businessmen should search diligently for more efficient and economically sound methods of handling their mail because they may be able in many cases to offset the postage adjustments effective January 7," explained.

Proper use of postage scales and meters, in particular, can be a good source of postage savings, he said. Specially, he explained, businessmen can minimize losses by using certain that mail—particularly, first-class and air mail—is correctly weighed and correct postage carefully applied.

Individuals unfamiliar with meter machines can add postage that is necessary which results in a direct loss to the business. The Post Office certainly wants correct postage but is anxious to encourage development of mail "know-how" to make certain that postal patrons pay not more than a fair.

During the last two years the Post Office Department, he said, has placed special emphasis on devising new techniques and "know-how" to assist business in mailing operations.

For example, all post offices including ours, Dunsmore said, have special mail technicians who are available upon request to assist businessmen in fostering better mailing practices.

Dunsmore cited the nationwide improved mail service program as an example of the type of closer cooperation that can and has been generated between business and the postal service.

NIMS, introduced last year, calls for large mailers to reschedule their bulk mailings to reach the post office during the morning hours avoiding the late afternoon rush when nearly 75 percent of all first-class mail reaches the post office. This enables the post office to more effectively utilize its men, machines, and space so business mail can be more evenly dispatched throughout the entire working day.

Knowing these dispatch schedules, which are also available at the post office, lessens the chance of mailers having to pay higher postage to meet special deadlines.

Dunsmore said that other techniques available to local businessmen include the use of "pressure-sensitive bands" which are used to separate first-class mail into local and out of town bundles.

This one method eliminates over three handlings which the mail would normally have to go through before it is delivered.

Good mailing practices not only save money, he stressed, but time saved in delivery and receipt of business correspondence can, without question, mean direct dollar savings for the organization, as well. "For example, if mail is 'short paid' it means collecting postage due from the addressee. This certainly will not promote good will," the postmaster commented.

The house cat, which can have two litters in a year, averages four young in each litter.

Rose Catalogs Budding With Brand New Ideas

Keeping up with all that's new in the ever-changing world of roses is part of the excitement and appeal that surrounds rose growing. Every year the rose enthusiast can look forward to new and better introductions, dramatic color breakthroughs, and learn of new landscaping ideas with the versatile rose that will make his home more attractive.

Millions of home gardeners keep posted on the changing rose scene with the mail-order catalogs that specialize in roses. Catalogs still claim title to being one of the favorite standbys in gardening. Sparkling new editions from the major nurseries appear a few times throughout the year so that the "news" reported is always kept up-to-the minute.

The 1963 spring editions—the important issues for rose lovers—have just been published. These often free garden guides and reference books—for modern catalogs of today are far from mere price lists—are brimming full of vivid color illustrations and new ideas for gardens next spring.

Catalogs are the indispensable companions for fireside gardening, one of winter's popular pastimes and surely one of its most productive. Their colorful pages transport the vast rose fields of the country right into your living room. In the comfort of your armchair, 1963 gardens really can begin to take shape.

Most of the guide books carry more than 100 different varieties illustrated in vivid color—far more in selection and color range than can be found anywhere else. Illustrations are accurate and realistic, making choices of color easy. Special assortments have been color coordinated for striking garden effects and feature money-saving prices. Some nurseries offer attractive landscape plans in their catalogs.

The All-America Rose Selections, which represent the best varieties the rose industry has to offer the American gardener, are featured prominently in the catalogs of the major nurseries. The choice roses for next year are the 1963 AARS title-holders, Tropicana and Royal Highness. It would be difficult to resist either one of these prize roses in plans that call for a new vitality and vivid color in the landscape.

The dazzling new orange-red color of Tropicana's hybrid tea flowers command attention in the catalogs as they will in gardens next Spring. Royal Highness' color is more subtle.

Strengthening Local Government through Regional Planning is the theme that has been chosen for the 1963 New Jersey State Planning Conference, to be held on Tuesday, February 5, at Trenton. The announcement was made by H. Mat Adams, commissioner of the Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

Commissioner Adams said the featured speakers will be Dr. Paul N. Ylvisaker, director of the Urban Affairs program of the Ford Foundation, and Dr. Luther Gulick, chairman of the Board of the Institute of Public Administration in New York. Dr. Gulick is the author of "The Metropolitan Problem and American Ideas," recently published in New York, and Dr. Ylvisaker has published "The Battle of Blue: Earth County and Inter-Governmental Relations at the Grassroots." He was co-editor of the November, 1957, issue of Annals, on the subject of "Metropolis in Permeation." Both featured speakers will take part in the morning session of the conference, to be moderated by Dr. William L. C. Wheaton, professor of city planning at the University of Pennsylvania.

Governor Richard J. Hughes will address the luncheon session, and William F. Gillette, president of the New Jersey Federation of Planning Officials, will be on hand to deliver the welcoming address. The affair is being co-sponsored by the latter organization and the Division of State and Regional Planning of the Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

In the afternoon, panel sessions will be held on (1) The Role of Civic Groups and Citizens' Organizations in Regional Planning, (2) The New Jersey Regional Study, (3) The Role of Counties in Regional Planning, (4) Metropolitan Regional Planning, and (5) The Regional Implications of Urban Renewal. Round-table discussions, entitled (1) Urban and Subdivision Clinic, (2) Master Plans and the Continuing Planning Program, and (3) The Capital Improvement Program, will be held simultaneously.

The commissioner announced that conference programs and pre-registration forms are being sent to members of planning boards and government officials. "I hope that other interested persons will plan to attend as well," he commented. "There will be plenty of food for thought for every conscientious citizen and voter."

"We find that, more and more, we are becoming the citizens of communities that have enmeshed themselves almost unbelievably. The sheer growth of population has swelled municipalities to the limits of their own borders, and has stretched beyond through ties to neighboring municipalities, counties and states. Regional planning attempts to study the growing mesh of inter-governmental relationships that has resulted from this situation, and to devise simplified, workable procedures for satisfying inter-community needs."

"There will be many ideas to absorb, and many ideas to contribute at this conference," the commissioner concluded.

Evergreens Need Cover

Put in a few hours of "undercover" work this fall and you'll keep your evergreens healthy during their forty winter winks.

Winter protection is another name for this undercover operation. It consists chiefly—but not entirely—of spreading a mulch, or cover, of organic material around the base of your evergreens. For plantings a mulch serves much the same purpose as your own blanket indoors, or your overcoat outdoors.

A mulch is a must for evergreens of questionable hardiness such as boxwood, certain azaleas and fire thorn. Spruces, firs and the chief pines usually can survive on their own, but even they'll pull through a severe winter in better shape if protected.

Your mulch should be at least three inches deep and for best results, should cover not only the tree base but the entire root area—roughly the area of branch spread. Use whatever material is handiest—peat moss, corn cobs, wood chips, salt hay or dead leaves (oak if you have them). Peat moss possibly is best over all, but any mulch will keep soil warmer, hold back frost penetration and conserve vital moisture.

Because mulches, especially leafy ones, pack and shrink under rain and snow, you'd best start with five or six inches depth.

Your more tender evergreens will stand a better chance of surviving if, besides the mulch, you water them thoroughly and set up a wind screen. You might consider one of the new sprays to help prevent drying. Finally, protect trunks and stems against mice and other rodents.

While modern cars and trucks are built to operate more safely under most all conditions, drivers cannot afford to lose sight of the fact that these vehicles still need special preparation to operate safely and dependably in snow, ice, freezing weather and fog, says Harry Porter, Jr., manager of the Traffic Department of the National Safety Council.

Fortunately, says Mr. Porter, research on this problem by the Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards has developed many facts which have helped reduce the winter death rate in the United States. After twenty years of study and analysis the Committee's names reduced visibility and inadequate traction lights. How about your turn signals? Snowy or icy pavements make early or signaling of your intentions even more vital than in good weather. When the windows are closed a driver must rely on turn signals instead of hand signals. Make sure they are, always functioning properly.

How are all your lights? Not just your headlights. In winter is the dependable operation of windshield wipers. Wiper blade rubber should be checked for deterioration. Dead, baked out rubber smears. The arms should be adjusted so as to work without slapping, yet clean the greatest area possible. Arms should have at least one ounce of pressure for each inch of blade length. Otherwise blades ride up over snow, smear road muck around instead of wiping clearly.

Why do some cars start without professional checking your battery, your ignition system. Failure can mean start or stalling in traffic some cold damp morning. Because car windows are usually closed in winter, it is very important that the exhaust system, muffler and tail pipe should be in top shape.

That Word 'Resolution'

In the big office dictionary there are 3 definitions and 10 synonyms for the word "resolution." We have a wide choice. Naturally, one meaning that has been conspicuous in our thought and speech in recent times has been political. A resolution is a declaration of principle or intent proposed to or adopted by a parliamentary body. Most of us have been interested time and again with the desire or need to "adopt a resolution." The phrase pops up in Council meetings, PTA sessions and practically every type and size of organization, from local to federal level.

But a New Year's resolution is something different. It is individual, not collective. More than that, it is usually negative, not positive. Many, if not most, of these seasonal resolutions have to do with some particular habit or practice that is thought to be reprehensible. The habits or practices are not easily changed

Check the Wind Velocity

Everyone living in the northern climes of the United States has had experience with the vagaries of winter weather. They know that a supposedly mild day, as far as temperatures go, frequently seems more harsh than a zero temperature day. The perplexing situation isn't at all odd. According to the Army, temperatures are important but of even greater importance is the wind.

The Army faces the task of outfitting its men for battle readiness under all weather conditions. Therefore it is always engaged in research and, on the basis of experience in World War 2 and later in Korea, it has found that the wind is the dangerous enemy, more so than low temperatures. It has been able to expand its findings through continued research at Arctic outposts.

By way of example, the Army has found that the temperature may rise to 39 degrees. But if there is a 35-mile wind while that temperature exists, the effect on the human body is the equivalent to 38 degrees below zero under windless conditions.

The situation is not to be confused. Thirty-eight degrees below zero is terribly cold. It can cause serious damage to the human body through prolonged exposure. And, we must face it, it can bring speedy death to the unprepared.

The human body gears itself to cope with extremes in weather. When it is cold the body endeavors to generate greater heat which, combined with warm clothing,

A Two-Way Job

The best way to sum up a recent study on "Adolescent Attitudes Toward Academic Education" which was made by Dr. Abraham J. Tannenbaum is to note that both teachers and parents have a job to do if students are to be encouraged to do their best work.

Too many teen-agers are resigned to the theory that the brilliant student must necessarily be considered a "creep" or "grind." Dr. Tannenbaum, a national authority on talented youth, says this isn't necessarily true.

Brilliance in itself has no power either to attract or repel friends. But Tannenbaum finds that when combined with other personality traits brilliance can make or break a boy or girl, socially and intellectually.

The most popular, and socially accepted student is the brilliant boy or girl who appears not to put too much time in studying while taking part in athletics. The least popular is the brilliant student considered a booby and non-athletic. Put another way, American teen-agers are like the rest of us, having a weakness for sports and an excessive admiration for the successful athlete.

As a result of the failure to appreciate intellectual achievement in school Dr.

Lady in the Dark

(Baltimore, Md., Sun)

Recently Leonardo's "Mona Lisa," im-mured in an air conditioned trunk, was whisked from New York to Washington. Once out of the protective eye of the Coast Guard she was surrounded by detectives, Secret Service men, curators and heaven knows what other security precautions. Along the route special details of State policemen flocked around at predetermined points. Unlike some other diplomats, Mona Lisa did not stop for a bite on Route 40 but went right through to the capital. Once there, she will be shut up in a basement until January 8.

Why the delay? Well, for one thing, the President is away and he wants to be there when she receives the public. For another thing, Congress wants to be a and the breaking of a resolution is quite as widely accepted as the making of it. No one suffers but the maker, and the result is that the New Year avowment has become a standard topic in American humor.

There is another and broader meaning for the word and this is a good time to remind ourselves of it. The dictionary lists it under the classification "Character." Its definitions and synonyms are well worth carrying into this, or any, fresh new year.

"Resolution" also means: Steadfastness, Firmness, Constancy, Fortitude and Determination. Those are strong words. They express strong ideas. We have need of their strength in times of stress.

They can express, moreover, the elements in the "character" not merely of an individual, but also of the state and the society in which he lives. A whole people can be firm and steadfast.

keeps us safe from harm. There is where wind chill figures importantly. The more severe the wind, the greater the demand placed on the body's heat producing machinery. The wear and tear thus becomes the equivalent of extremely low temperatures.

Army research has been thorough. The results have proven so satisfactory that all Army installations have a wind chill chart which enables personnel to determine how to dress. Wind chill is important all through the year, but especially in winter. A thirty-degree temperature with a 35-mile wind creates conditions equal to forty below zero. A forty degree temperature with a ten-mile wind is as harsh as zero without wind.

Even on a mild day, with the temperature at 51 degrees, exposure to a 45-mile wind has produced frostbite on body surfaces. The wind chill table shows that the impact on the body was the equivalent of 5 degrees above zero without wind.

It's fine to be vigorous and enjoy the outdoors in winter. But it also pays to exercise a normal amount of caution. Wind chill exposure can be dangerous to all, particularly children. It may prove particularly threatening to the lungs.

The Army believes its wind chill findings are accurate. If that is the case, the weather habits of Americans are hazardous. Instead of just looking at the thermometer before going out of doors, we should take into account wind velocity and then decide how to dress.

Tannenbaum finds that too many students lapse into mediocrity in order to avoid rejection by their fellow students. Such a situation must inevitably bring failure to cultivate fully the intellectual resources of the nation's youth.

Why are we missing the opportunity to make academic brilliance a quality to be desired? Dr. Tannenbaum feels too many schools do too little to praise or stimulate the bright student toward high scholastic standing. These officials show a reluctance to direct student aspirations toward scholarship and creativity.

How do parents fail to encourage their boys and girls to meet the challenge of intellectual brilliance? In too many instances, according to Dr. Tannenbaum, parents are more excited about their son making the football or basketball team than they are about him getting an A. In placing a premium on athletic success the youngsters are simply reflecting the views of their parents.

The task is to make students as proud of being able to solve an advanced mathematical problem as they are of hitting a home run or scoring the winning field goal with a one-handed jump shot. It presents a challenge to educators and parents.

welcoming committee, and it is thought wise to wait until it has recovered from the New Year and assembled itself. Mona Lisa's attendants want to be sure the change of air is not going to affect her complexion, and will run some tests meanwhile. And, perhaps, Santa Claus and the Sugar Plum Fairy have protested to the State Department that they would like to occupy center stage without competition until the twelve days of Christmas are over.

One point is sure: short of sending an army with Napoleon at its head to invade this country, the French government could hardly have made more of a sensation. Maryland had little part in the festivities—Mona Lisa, like most V.I.P.'s just rushed through our State on the way to Washington. How about putting up signs on the Harbor Tunnel and renaming it "The Route of the Mona Lisa?"

School Budget Up 10.7 Over '62-'63

Berkeley Heights — A tentative budget of $1,463,526 for the school year 1963-64 was adopted Wednesday, December 26, by the Board of Education. This represents an increase of $141,702.75 or 10.7 per cent over the current budget of $1,321,823.25.

The budget is based on a projected pupil enrollment of 2,575, an increase of 275 pupils of 12 per cent.

The proposed budget, subject to approval by Dr. William West, Union County Superintendent of Schools, will require $1,237,163 to be raised by district taxes for the school year 1963-64, $128,943.75 above the 1962-63 budget of $1,128,219.25, which required an increase over the previous year of $138,790.60. The increases of $141,702.75 for the budget and $128,943.75 in tax monies for 1963-64 are respectively $33,770.25 and $9,846.85 less than the increases that were required for the 1962-63 budget.

The 1963-64 budget includes salary increases and increments.

The proposed teachers' guide calls for a beginning salary of $4,900 with a bachelor's degree to a maximum of $8,100, master's level of $5,300 to $8,500, and a doctorate of $5,600 to $8,800. A brochure detailing the budget will be sent to all residents prior to the public hearing which will be held January 28 at 8 p.m., in the auditorium of Columbia School, Plainfield Ave. The budget as finally adopted will be voted upon February 13.

Highlanders, Summit, Pioneers in Vital Games

After playing only one game during the Christmas holidays, the Summit Area's three powerful public high school basketball teams will return to action this week with vital games.

Governor Livingston Regional High School of Berkeley Heights, which has won its three games for the first time in the school's three-year history, played at Bridgewater-Raritan High School yesterday afternoon.

Coach Don Wodeck's Highlanders will return home tomorrow night for their first basketball meeting with Springfield Regional. Wodeck's tall and talented cagers also are slated to play host to Rahway High next Tuesday afternoon.

New Providence returned to action yesterday afternoon, facing a dangerous foe in Roselle Park at the Panthers' court. The Pioneers will be idle tomorrow, but meet Piscataway for the second time next Tuesday afternoon in Piscataway.

Summit opens its bid for Suburban Conference honors in game in Summit tomorrow night against Madison High. The Hilltoppers have another conference game on their own court next Tuesday afternoon, playing host to Caldwell.

Governor Livingston, which has come from behind twice in winning its first three tests, faced a rugged foe in the Golden Falcons of Bridgewater-Raritan, a team expected to make a strong bid for the Somerset County League title this season.

Tomorrow night's game with Springfield Regional figures to tax the capacity of the Highlanders' gymnasium for the second time this season. This first basketball meeting of these Regional School District rivals has been eagerly anticipated by Governor Livingston.

Springfield was upset by Rahway in a real stunner and looked to be defeated, but still is rated a threat for watching conference honors. Rahway has been an up and down outfit this season, and could give the Highlanders trouble if they happen to be "up" next Tuesday.

Coach Ed Lieder's New Providence cagers face a pair of tough assignments. Roselle Park battled Summit down to the final minutes before losing. The Pioneers must be wary of an upset on the makeshift Pangier court.

New Providence whipped Piscataway in the season opener in New Providence, primarily on a superb exhibition of foul shooting. Piscataway will be even tougher on its home court, but Lieder's boys are getting better and better as the season progresses and should be equal to repelling the Braves' bid for revenge.

Charles Nears Lead In Summit Rec. Loop

Summit, the pre-season choice of the conference coaches for the Suburban Conference Championship, gets its first chance to justify its high rating in its game with Madison. With its first two conference games at home against Madison and Caldwell, the Hilltoppers would seem to have an excellent chance of getting off to a fast start in conference play.

Summit — Werner Motors had its lead in the Summit Recreation Bowling League reduced to a single game when it dropped two games to Jim's Chevron, while second-place Ciba dropped three games to Larry's and third-place Charles swept its match with Madison.

In their remaining match, Fred took three games from West Penn Oil.

Nick Colangelo of Jim's Chevron continued his fine bowling with a big 624 series on games of 175, 216 and 233. Sedgie Philippi of Werner's had the high series for the night with a 629 on games of 205, 211 and 213. Phil Rossello with a 246 game and 594 series was next high for Jim's Chevron and Al Swick with a 216 and 539, was second for Werner's. All three games were closely contested with only a total of 37 pins difference for the three games.

In another very close match, Larry's won three games from Ciba by a total of 40 pins. Joe Barter with a 220 single game and 575 series and Al Galt with a 567 combined to sink Ciba. Rudy Burger, with 571 and Don Coughlin, with a 222 and 556, were high for Ciba.

Despite the fact that Mabe's rolled with only four men, Charles had its hands full in registering the sweep. Bill Welch of Mabe's hit 625 on games of 198, 206 and 221, while George McNally had a 235 middle game and 594 series for Mabe's.

John Hunt of Charles was high for his team with a 605, followed by Howie Taylor, with a 243 single game and 581 series. John Deutrich with 573

The Highlanders of Governor Livingston and the Pioneers of New Providence survived rugged contests with tough foes to score their third consecutive victories.

The Highlanders overcame an eight-point deficit in the third period in downing Watchung Hills Regional, 52-48, in Berkeley Heights.

The Pioneers led by only two points with less than three minutes to play, but scored the final four points of the game to hand Chatham its first loss, 51-45, in Chatham.

Summit won its second straight game, crushing Cedar Grove's first-year quintet, 75-27, with 13 Hilltoppers getting into action and 10 of them scoring.

Governor Livingston, which had never beaten Watchung Hills on the Highlanders' court, trailed 39-31 in the third period. The Highlanders then exploded for 16 consecutive points in a streak that carried into the fourth quarter.

Lynn Nesbitt scored five points and Bob Clarkson four during the decisive outburst. Nesbitt led the scorers with 16 points, while Clarkson, Bob Heuer and John Adamiak all scored 10 for Governor Livingston. Dave Juhansky scored the other six points.

A fellow gave us an interesting quote taken from a story by Walter Cowen published in The Lutheran: "A certain man had been a faithful builder for an employer for many years. His employer decided to take a world cruise. Before leaving he left his builder plans for an ideal house. 'Build it according to specifications; spare no necessary expense.' I want this house to be a good house for a special reason. But the builder, thought of the many years he had worked for small wages and decided to make a profit for himself, so he substituted cheap materials wherever it would not show. On his return his employer observed the house with satisfaction and said, 'You have served me well these many years. In reward, I have planned this house for you. It is yours, to own and live in.' Business, of course, is part of life, and it certainly is true in business that you can take out a quality and reward no better than it has been put into it. We demonstrate our appreciation of that truth in recognizing that it is in our own interests to look out for your best interests. ## Old Summit Tavern Once Washington's Quarters

Editor's Note: The following account of Briant's Tavern was written by Edwin A. Baldwin of 128 Canoe Brook Parkway, an authority on Colonial and Revolutionary War history in the Summit Area. From time to time Mr. Baldwin will submit other articles of historical interest to Summit residents.

The first of Summit's many fine hotels when it was a plush summer resort was built in 1858 by the enterprising Jonathan Crane Bonnel (1790-1883), who, among other achievements, brought the railroad into Summit in 1837. His hotel, The Summit House, was erected near Central Presbyterian Church and close enough to the street-level railroad tracks of that day so that the traveling public had no difficulty reading its sign.

Actually, The Summit House was not the first hotel of the Summit Area. Its oldest and most famous landmark was Briant's Tavern, a hostelry of the Colonial period that served as General Washington's headquarters and witnessed more stirring scenes in local history than any of the elaborate structures of the city's later days. This original tavern was in the eastern end of Summit where the Morris County trolley line left Springfield and continued through Summit on a private right-of-way, up what is now Broad Street.

Site Verified
It stood just inside Summit at the intersection of Springfield Avenue with Morris Street and the road to Springfield center. Although no trace of it now remains, its location appears on one of the maps of Robert Erskine, surveyor-general of General Washington's army during the Revolutionary War. Its site was definitely established by the late Arthur W. Hicks, Summit realtor and local historian, who reported that when the trolley tracks were laid at this point, portions of the old tavern's sub-structure and some Revolutionary relics were uncovered.

Jacob Briant (or Bryant) who operated this tavern, was the identified as the first settler in Brandon of Cornelius Briant, Springfield in 1717. Cornelius moved here with his family from Hackensack in Bergen County. His will, dated Oct. 2, 1720 and probated Dec. 19, 1720, named his wife and children and "his house in Springfield on the south side of the road."

A study of available public records indicates that Cornelius Briant's house was on the southwesterly side of the old Minisink Indian trail (present-day Morris Turnpike), near its intersection with Short Hills Avenue. His plantation adjoined the Nicholas Parcel tract of several hundred acres, which lay along the base of the mountain in East Summit. A portion of this Parcel land was acquired by Simeon Briant, a son of Cornelius, and was bequeathed by him to his son, Jacob Briant.

Innkeeper Jacob Briant was licensed in April, 1772 to keep a public house in Springfield (which until 1869 included Summit). Jacob was born in Springfield on Feb. 23, 1739. He married Abigail Rushmore, had three children, and died in October 1799.

Troops Rallied at Tavern
Col. John Cleves Symmes, in his account of the first battle of Springfield which occurred Dec. 17, 1776, tells how Major Oliver Spencer of its American outpost was forced to abandon Springfield and fell back towards Chatham until "he met the brigade at Briant's tavern." That brigade, commanded by Col. Jacob Ford, then advanced and attacked the enemy, and the fighting lasted until nightfall. Colonel Symmes continues: "The brigade fell back that evening only one mile to Briant's tavern—struck up fires and lay all night on their arms, intending to make a second attack in the morning." However, the British invaders retreated during the night.

In the later major battle of Springfield on June 23, 1780, Maj. Gen. Nathaniel Greene, commanding, states in his report to General Washington that in order to meet the main British thrust through Springfield and a flanking enemy column advancing from the direction of Millburn, he had his troops in reserve "take post upon the first range of hills, in the rear of Briant's tavern, where the roads are brought so near a point that succor might readily be given from one to the other."

Washington Had $800 Tab
It is recorded that General Washington, who was in the

THE SUMMIT HERALD, Thursday, Jan. 3, 1963

Springfield area from June 7 to 22, 1780, made Briant's tavern his headquarters during a part of that period. His account book shows that he received a bill of $800 from Jacob Briant for entertainment of him and his staff.

In all fairness to the General, it should be pointed out that his account was computed by Briant in Continental currency, which by that date had so depreciated that its exchange rate was 40 to 1. In other words, the bill actually amounted to $20 in hard cash.

Highlander Wrestlers Hopeful

Berkeley Heights — Having picked up some additional experience in a Christmas Holiday tournament at Bridgewater-Raritan High School, the wrestlers of Governor Livingston Regional High School are hopeful of posting their first dual-meet victory of the season tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Jim Neddott's inexperienced grapplers would seem to have a good chance of pinning down Cedar Grove High School's first-year team on the Cedar Grove mats.

The Highlanders, who dropped their season debut to Westfield, 37-5, also have matches scheduled next Tuesday afternoon at Clark Regional and next Thursday afternoon at Middlesex High.

Neddott's matmen figured to be underdogs in both of these meets. Clark traditionally turns out one of the stronger squads in the Watchung Conference and has whipped the Highlanders the past two seasons.

Middlesex, a relative newcomer to wrestling, has developed into a power in Somerset County circles.

Seven other schools participated in the first annual invitation tournament at Bridge-water-Raritan. In addition to

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

COUNTY GOVERNMENT
PUBLIC SPOTLIGHT
County government, with its history in governmental affairs dating back to early colonial times, will be in the 1963 legislative spotlight.

New Jersey
In the backseat when New Jersey modernized its state government machine with a constitution in 1947 and provided optional government for its municipalities in 1950, county government has now become the subject of searching review as the State and Municipal Law Revision Commission with revision of Title 52 of the state statutes applying to the county level has been specifically confined to specific areas such as courts and well-

In recent years increased emphasis has been placed upon the county by the spread of suburban and industry into suburban and rural areas, creating with it the need for broad-based county government and services extending beyond narrow city limits and municipal boundaries.

This problem is treated in the advance draft of the law revision commission's report. It suggests municipalities and counties could work out arrangements for handling local services that could be provided more efficiently on a regional basis. Local governments, in certain instances, might provide more efficient service through cooperative handling of public health, sanitation, street maintenance, property assessment, traffic control, police and fire protection. It is pointed out. Streamlining of the county government structure to provide for separation of legislative and executive powers and a single responsible executive administrator, either elected or appointed along the lines of the optional municipal charter forms provided for municipalities in the "Faulkner" law of 1950 also would be made possible.

Life New Jersey Taxpayers Association observes that "as the proposals reach final form, the public will have opportunity through discussion and public hearings to become more familiar with the problems in county government and proposed means of solving them. Public understanding will be necessary in reaching final solution."

May File Tax Returns Now

Director Frank S. Turbett, Jr. of the Internal Revenue Service reminded Newark District taxpayers today that 1962 Individual Income Tax returns may be filed immediately.

Mr. Turbett pointed out that taxpayers who keep good financial records have no trouble in preparing their tax returns. He suggests these days be utilized for locating and assembling in one place all cancelled checks, receipts, records of contributions and other papers which will be needed to complete individual tax returns. Complete records are especially important to taxpayers who itemize their deductions. Copies of returns filed in prior years are excellent guides for preparing 1962 returns.

"Now is the time to gather all of your records together, sort those cancelled checks, receipts and similar documents. Like the task of determining the amount of tax you will owe or the size of the refund check you will receive an easy one," Mr. Turbett said.

The first Polish immigrants to the New World were named Goscinski, Matka, Bogdan, and Sadoski. They came in response to a call for craftsmen from Capt. John Smith, whose original mission had become more interested in gold hunting than working.

that encrusted sandstone in the hills of Pahaquarry. Indians brought copper, or at least word of copper, to Esopus in about 1650. Through the river valleys from Esopus went the Dutchmen, following old Indian trails or hew their own way. Here, for the picking, was the wealth that had brought them to a new world!

Those Dutchmen attacked the formidable rock of the Kittatinny Mountains. They dug well and they dug often, opening a seven-foot-high tunnel to a length of nearly 100 feet into the mountain, and then exploring from this at right angles for another 50 feet on either side. They sank at least two other inclined shafts to depths of 40 to 60 feet.

All of this, mind you, in the 1650's—some 10 years before the English controlled New Jersey, some 25 years before Philadelphia was founded. Every foot of stone was removed by hand and every pound of copper was extracted by raw manpower.

But copper in Pahaquarry and copper in Holland were two vastly different things. By the banks of the Delaware, the ore was so much stone; in the market-places beside Holland's canals it was easy to trade for gold.

Up the valley toward Esopus went the ore-burdened Dutch, widening and leveling their road as they went. Their "mine road" by 1659 stretched open and clear the full 104 miles from Pahaquarry to Esopus.

Some questions will always remain concerning the copper digging, but there is undeniable evidence that the mountains were mined extensively before New Amsterdam fell to the English in 1664. The mine openings remain, and records dated as early as 1729 tell of the mining, even then being enveloped by mystery and time.

The Dutch miners kept their ore secrets to themselves, for records indicate that they took their copper to Holland in 1659 without telling Governor Peter Stuyvesant. Directors of the Dutch West India Company promptly wrote Stuyvesant to some anguish. They had interviewed one Claes de Ruyter, as "a person who showed that he was not ignorant of it" and suggested that the governor investigate.

Stuyvesant investigated and learned only that there was indeed a copper mine in some vague area along the South (Delaware) River, but knowledge of the mining was vague. Meanwhile, between 1659 and 1664 the mine road from Esopus to Pahaquarry grew ever more useful. Undoubtedly this was the first major improved road cut between his Massachusetts home and Philadelphia.

Today both road and the Dutch mines remain, plus several other holes dug in the 19th and early 20th centuries by johnny-come-lately copper hunters. The copper is still there, too, but is never likely to prove commercial, although geologists won't say so flatly.

So Pahaquarry settles back in the mystery of three centuries. Its 63 steady residents are not much more than the number of Dutchmen there in 1660; there must have been many diggers then, for a 100-foot-deep tunnel. The pointsettia was discovered by U.S. Minister to that country, name.

Pahaquarry knows of Philadelphia, of course, and there is a road to (and from) New York. Nevertheless, when visitors come, they seek mainly to re-new contacts with 300 and more years ago—and they come to travel "The Old Mine Road" northward through the beauty of the Warren and Sussex mountainland.

NEW JERSEY TERCENTENARY TALES

THE "HOWLING WILDERNESS" ROAD
By John T. Cunningham

Mystery and isolation still lie heavily on Pahaquarry Township, least settled of all New Jersey municipalities. Rare is the visitor, particularly when winter closes its icy grip, and only 63 people claimed Pahaquarry as their home in the 1960 Census.

Pahaquarry nestles in a long strip between the Kittatinny Mountains and the Delaware River in Warren County. Northward through Sussex County a narrow road winds casually along the river bank to Port Jervis. Then the road cuts sharply across country north-eastward to Kingston, N. Y., on the Hudson River 70 miles north of New York City.

Even today a journey from Pahaquarry to New York, via Port Jervis and Kingston, would provoke comment—yet more than 300 years ago Dutch adventurers hacked a road through a "howling wilderness" from Kingston (then Esopus) to reach Pahaquarry.
