

Art Center's Application To Be Heard

A special exception application to allow construction of a new Art Center building at 68 Elm street will be considered by the Board of Adjustment at its meeting September 8.

The property is located in the R-6 single family residence zone. The center also is seeking a variance to permit construction and use of private parking spaces within the required minimum side yards.

In June members of the Art Center voted to proceed with plans for a new building. The Elm street property is adjacent to the First Aid Squad building and opposite the Junior High School.

If the application is approved by the Adjustment Board, a house on the plot would be demolished. The 180 by 280-foot tract is large enough to permit off-street parking for normal class requirements. Its proximity to the Elm street municipal parking lot would provide additional spaces for evening activities.

The center is now housed in a structure on Cedar street across from the Public Library. The membership feels that expansion is needed to meet the needs of the geographic area served by the center. Currently, membership stands at more than 650.

In other business scheduled for the zoners' September session, a variance request will be presented to permit construction of a 36-unit tower apartment at 777 and 773 Springfield avenue.

The lots, in the multi-family district are zoned for a tower apartment with sufficient area for 32 units.

Mr. Pocaro, a local lawyer, built the recently completed apartment next to King's supermarket on Division avenue.

Labor Day Means Early Deadline

Since Monday, September 1 is the Labor Day holiday and the Summit Herald office will be closed, a 12 noon, Saturday, August 30 deadline will be placed on all social announcements, engagements, weddings, church notices, pictures, club news, sports and routine releases. Material received after the Saturday noon deadline will be omitted from the September 4 edition of the Herald.

The deadline for "spot news", display and classified advertising will remain at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, September 2.

The cooperation of all is requested.

New Report Lists 3,468 Qualified, But Unregistered, Voters In Summit

There are 3,468 Summit residents eligible to vote who are unregistered, according to new estimates released this week by the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University.

The report covers every community in the state.

This city, with a 1968 population estimate of 25,100, has 13,023 registered voters.

In New Providence there are 1,116 unregistered and 6,943 registered. Population of the borough is listed at 13,800. Berkeley Heights, with a 12,490 population, has a voter registration of 6,190 compared with 1,791 not registered.

Those Summit citizens qualified to vote in the November General Election and who are not registered may register or transfer with City Clerk Harry Kates at his office daily from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., except Saturdays and Sundays, on the evenings of August 28, September 4, 11, 18, 19, 22, 23, 24 and 25 from 4:40 to 9 p.m.

The new report, written by Dr. John C. Blydenburgh of the Eagleton staff, is designed to be helpful to both partisan and non-partisan groups who are currently engaged in campaigns to increase voter participation in New Jersey.

According to Dr. Blydenburgh, there are currently more than a million and a quarter unregistered voters in New Jersey, and the state has an "appalling low rate of voter participation."

The Eagleton report, one of a series of monographs prepared in the university's Institute of Politics on the subject of voting registration, is the first state-wide report on the numbers of unregistered voters in every municipality.

School Bells Will Ring Next Thursday; Fine Year Is Seen

A fine year — for teachers and students alike — is the prediction for Summit public school system.

With the opening of school doors only one week away "we're anxious to get started" school superintendent Dr. Robert G. Salisbury commented this week.

Some 5,000 youngsters will be enrolled this year in the elementary and junior and senior high schools. Attendance at the high school is estimated at 1,180 and at the junior high, 1,180.

The school staff compliment is set at about 304, including full and part-time teachers. The system's 46 new teachers will participate in an orientation on Tuesday, and the following day an orientation session will be conducted for all teachers.

School officially opens next Thursday, September 4.

According to Dr. Salisbury, there are some innovations planned for the coming year.

The Initial Teaching

Alphabet for kindergartners and first graders at Jefferson will be introduced and new social studies material will be utilized in kindergarten and first and second grades in all the elementary schools.

Also in all kindergartens through sixth grades new mathematics books and materials, published by the Singer Co., will be used.

For non-college bound students at the high school, an electronics course will be offered for the first time. A complete unit, "The Negro in American History," will now be incorporated at both high schools in American history courses.

As to the introduction of the controversial family living course (sex education), there will be no action taken on it — at least for the present.

A directive from State Education Commissioner Carl Marburger was received by local school authorities on July 29 requesting that systems not having sex education programs postpone decisions until hearings by a Legislative committee have been concluded.

Sex education hearings were started this summer by the Legislature and will be continued this fall. When they are finished, school officials and the Board of Education here will study the conclusions and recommendations before they consider further such a program for Summit.

Although some overcrowding will continue and the junior and senior high schools facilities at the remaining buildings are adequate.

"We're in excellent shape in the elementary schools now that the rooms at Lincoln School are ready for occupancy," noted Dr. Salisbury.

New Addition At Lincoln Ready When School Opens

With the addition to Lincoln School ready for occupancy, another successful step has been reached in the Board of Education's long-range program to update all elementary schools in the city.

For some years the board has been undertaking improvements and additions to the various buildings, with now only Franklin remaining to be modernized.

When school opens next Thursday, pupils at Lincoln will find two brand new kindergartens and three first grade rooms waiting for them. The new library learning center and multi-purpose ground floor room still must undergo some last minute touches but are expected to be ready shortly.

With the addition completed, overcrowding in the elementary schools has been eliminated for this year.

During the summer, the school system's own crew proceeded with general repairs and painting to buildings and all was finished according to schedule.

Concentration was mainly the Junior High School, with

Soil Found "Suitable" For Pool

The Board of Recreation reported Monday night that soil analysis findings indicate that the Jefferson School site for a proposed municipal swimming pool is "completely suitable."

The Board added, during its exceptionally brief meeting, that its preliminary report concerning the municipal pool would be made public by mid-October.

In response to a resident's question, the Board noted that, at this time, plans called for an Ashwood avenue entrance to the pool site, rather than one on Michigan avenue.

Michigan avenue residents have opposed the plan to locate the municipal at the

Police Urge Cars be Locked

The Police Department this week urged local motorists to lock their cars when they leave their automobiles in the wake of several recent thefts of items left inside vehicles.

Police said at least three local motorists have reported the theft of golf clubs left in back seats and several musical tape cartridges from the dash board.

New Report

The Eagleton estimates of the numbers of unregistered voters are based on population data, registration data from 1968 and projections of changes in the number of eligible voters since that time. The memorandum, titled "Voter Registration in New Jersey Municipalities," is available on request from the Eagleton Institute.

In a previous memorandum on the same subject, the Eagleton Institute noted that New Jersey's voter registration procedures are in need of reform. New Jersey's early voter registration deadline, Dr. Blydenburgh said, deserves a major share of the blame for the State's low voter registration.

He noted that this year registration for the gubernatorial election will close September 25, even though voter interest in the gubernatorial election will not peak until sometime in October.

New Jersey has a particularly high rate of immigration of citizens from other states, and the present six months residence requirement excludes about 50,000 of the 75,000 new state residents from voting in local, state or congressional elections, Dr. Blydenburgh points out.

Eagleton has also recommended that New Jersey adopt the voting registration procedure now used in California, where deputy registrars travel to the homes of potential voters to enroll them. This system provides a check that the voter lives where he claims and makes it easier for the citizen to become registered to vote.

According to school business manager Walter S. Eddy, window smashing reached an unusual high. Most of the schools suffered broken windows but no attempts of breaking and entering were reported.

Stamler Rules State Pay Ads From Indigents

A unique ruling involving legal advertising costs incurred by indigents seeking divorce was made Monday by Union County Judge Nelson F. Stamler of 72 Dale drive. He handed down a decision that the state is required to pay such costs after hearing the case of an Elizabeth woman living in a public housing project who was previously directed by the court to serve notice of her divorce proceedings in a newspaper. A $60 payment for advertising was being sought.

Judge Stamler, said the state now waives court costs for indigents filing for a divorce and "it is a 'subterfuge' to provide a procedure to secure a divorce and then make relief hinge on payment which a plaintiff is unable to pay."

The judge intimated that possibly newspapers, who make profits from legal advertising, could absorb the costs of divorce proceedings advertisements by indigents.

You Guessed It - July Was a Wet Month

It was wet, wet, wet in July.

According to Harold D. Duflocq, meteorologist at the Union College Meteorological Station, precipitation in July totalled 9.42 inches. In his monthly report to the U. S. Weather Bureau, Mr. Duflocq said rainfall in July was 4.37 inches above the normal July total of 5.05 inches.

Measurable rainfall was recorded on 16 days in July with the greatest amount in a 24-hour period of 1.73 inches recorded on July 28.

The 9.42 inches of precipitation was the greatest amount recorded in a July since the Union College Meteorological Station was opened on January 1, 1960. A year ago rainfall in July totalled only 1.27 inches, which is 3.78 inches below normal. The driest July was 1966 when only .81 inches of rain were recorded.

Rainfall for the first seven months of 1969 totalled 27.23 inches, while 23.25 inches were recorded during the same period a year ago.

During the month, temperatures ranged from a maximum of 94 degrees recorded on July 9. The average temperature was 73.4 degrees, which is .7 degrees below normal. The highest daily average temperature was 83 degrees on July 17 and the lowest daily average temperature was 67 degrees on July 10 and 25.

The average maximum temperature was 82.8 degrees, and the average minimum temperature was 64 degrees.

The highest temperature on record for July at the Union College Meteorological Station was 101 degrees on July 3, 1966.

Thunderstorms were recorded on July 3, 12, 13,

17, 18, 27, and 28. There were only four clear days, five partly cloudy days, and 22 cloudy days.

College Flunk Outs Can Get Second Chance

Each year, thousands of young Americans reach a low point in their lives when they receive notification via the deans' offices that they have flunked out of college. In a new program initiated last year to save some of these "failures," Monroe College, Middletown, Virginia, offers a one semester course called "A Program for College Success."

Tests are administered to determine the student's areas of difficulty, and special work is assigned to strengthen his background. His classes emphasize writing composition and reading comprehension with concentrated studies in math, social studies, and foreign language.

Boating Course Set By Power Squadron

A free course in small boat handling, piloting, marine compass and safety at sea will be conducted by the Watchung Power Squadron, a unit of the U. S. Power Squadron. Registration for the course, to be given at David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth, will be from 7:30 to 9 p.m. September 16 and 17.

The ten-week course will be held on Mondays at the school starting September 29 at 7:30 p.m. It is open to men and women and boat ownership is not necessary. For further information call Patrick R. Capone, 635-9024, for Millard B. Hall, 379-5281.

Library Again Will Open At Jewish Center

September 7 will mark the beginning of the second full year for the Maurice Kalen Memorial Library of the Jewish Community Center. The library's collection, presently comprised of over 800 volumes and 12 periodicals, is devoted entirely to Judaica.

This printed material serves the needs of all members of the congregation, with holdings ranging from pre-school picture books to scholarly tones. Of particular interest is the large reference collection.

The classification system used in the Kalen Library is one specifically devised by United Synagogue of America for synagogue and religious school libraries. It is an adaptation of the Library of Congress classification system, using letters rather than the familiar Dewey Decimal numerical system of classification.

The library is open Monday through Thursday from 4 to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., September through June. It is staffed by a professional librarian and volunteer aides, both adult and teen-age. Borrowing privileges are open to all members of the Jewish Community Center.

Non-members are welcome to browse and use the facilities for reference and research. Information about membership in the Community Center can be obtained by calling the Center office, 273-8130, or Bob Taber, Membership Chairman, 464-6891.

Moon Astronauts Wore Equipment Made Of Fibers Developed By Celanese

When Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin took their walk on the moon last month, they were wearing equipment woven from fire resistant fibers developed at the Celanese Research Co. laboratories here.

According to NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center, the moon men's portable life support system was harnessed to their space suits by 1 1/2 inch wide webbing made from polybenzimidazole (PBI) fiber. This fiber, developed by Celanese scientists in the mid-1960's under a contract for the U.S. Air Force Materials Laboratory, is fire-resistant even in the extreme conditions imposed by the 100 percent oxygen atmosphere of the spacecraft. The portable life support system, which provided life-sustaining oxygen for the men on the moon besides maintaining their suit temperatures at comfortable levels, is used in outside-the-spacecraft activities. TV viewers probably will recall that the girth of the portable life support systems barely permitted the astronauts to crawl through the hatch of the lunar module. Nevertheless, the PBI webbing material held the all-important oxygen tanks securely on the backs of Armstrong and Aldrin.

Also used on the Apollo moon trip, and also woven of Summit-developed PBI fiber, was the one-inch wide webbing used for the lunar surface conveyor system that hauled the 80 pounds of moon rocks aboard the lunar module for eventual transfer to the main spacecraft.

PBI fiber was used, too, in the 1 1/2 inch webbing restraint harness, a three-sixteenth inch wide webbing pull on the restraint harness, a one-sixteenth inch diameter braided scissors tether cord (which kept scissors from floating around the interior of the space capsule) and a one-inch wide webbing for the in-flight exerciser that Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins used to keep their muscles in trim during the nine-day trip to the moon and back.

Dr. A. E. Brown, president of Celanese Fibers Research Co., said the selection of PBI fiber for the epic journey to the moon, was based on its unique combination of fire resistance (which eliminated "flame travel paths" within the spacecraft), superior strength and abrasion resistance.

"As far as we can determine, PBI was the only material that fulfilled the requirements for all these properties," Dr. Brown said.

Research work on the PBI fiber started at the Summit laboratories back in 1963, under an Air Force contract that eventually amounted to more than $2 million. Dr. William C. Hunt of Basking Ridge headed the team of Summit scientists, which also included Dr. Russell O. Denyes of Maplewood, Dr. Anthony Concatori of Chatham, Arthur Prince of Basking Ridge, Thomas Bohrer and Willard Brinegar, both of whom are now located in Charlotte, N.C. at other Celanese technical facilities.

Dr. Brown said that PBI fiber currently is being evaluated for a wide variety of applications, apart from the Apollo project, where fire resistance is of paramount importance. Moon suits are a prime evaluation target because of the superior wearing comfort provided by PBI woven uniforms.

The fiber's high temperature resistance - it's resistant to temperatures of 350 degrees F. for extended periods of time and withstands brief exposure to temperatures as high as 1,000 degrees F. - also make it a likely prospect for re-entry drogue parachutes and jet braking chutes.

Summer is Over

The warm weather is still with us but there is a livelier feeling in the air. The tempo quickens and it is noticeable along Springfield avenue. Labor Day is just around the corner and then the schools reopen.

Schools mean a great deal to Summit and always have. Our educational systems, public and private, are a source of local pride. The fall resumption of school activities is an annual event that heralds the end of summer. School opening also is the return of life to the community.

Reopening of school brings plenty of action during the waning days of August. Children are temporarily removed from playgrounds and beaches so that mother can get the school wardrobe ready. There is a wistfulness in the air as well as a bustle. The summer is short. The school year stretches into the future for ever and ever.

A familiar sight right now is the small child being pulled through the downtown streets on his way to be fitted for new shoes and the kind of clothing discarded last June as vacation days began.

The young who go unwillingly back to school does so with more show than cause. He is inwardly glad of the forthcoming new experiences of new classes, new teachers, in some cases a new building. Summer is good, but like so many things it palls after a while. So although there is bound to be protests about school, about new shoes, about new clothes, it really isn't sincere.

For all purposes, summer is over but when the colleges reopen, then we know that it is really over.

The Need to Know

There was little surprise element in the announcement by a study group of the Food and Drug Administration which stated that the agency is not equipped to protect the American consumer from bad food, bad cosmetics, bad drugs, household products and other items that can kill or maim.

But if the Food and Drug Administration can't, then who can? We have had suspicions about the labeling on products. Try to read the labels. It takes a graduate chemist to understand the names of ingredients of various drugs, garden sprays and some foods. How much is in the giant size and what, if any, is the saving over the economy size? Try to find out what is in a prescription or what will happen to the person who combines a couple of recommended remedies. Just what happens if a weed killer is inhaled or gets into the eyes? We are cautioned about such things but usually in terms far beyond the scope of the average consumer.

The report says the FDA lacks manpower, money and legal authority. The FDA also has no manpower to help police the Fair Packaging and Label Law which goes into effect September 10. The FDA has inadequate control over imported drugs. In short, the FDA is woefully lacking.

The government should be advised that American housewives are apporaching a state of seething rebellion. The frugal housewife always did want to get full value for her housekeeping allowance. With the prices sky high, the need to know what you are buying becomes even more important.

The housewife wants to know what is in a product, if it can have any bad effects, if it is dangerous to have around children, if the food on the grocery shelves is tainted from long storage. She also wants to know if she should stock up on giant-sized packages or whether there is no saving in buying such packages.

She wants honesty in packaging and labeling because she is now paying top prices for everything she buys. She has expected the Food and Drug Administration to work for her and help solve her problems. That makes the news from the study group hard to take.

Current Comment

(Taxpayers Are Aware - Woodbury Daily Times)

The New Jersey Taxpayers Association, in its latest breakdown of what it costs taxpayers for the operation of the various segments of our government, reports what most taxpayers are already aware - the tax levy has increased.

Local property tax levies this year have risen 10 per cent - for a total in excess of $1.7 billion. And, of that total, nearly $1 billion represents school costs - which rose 14 per cent, which the Association said is the largest one-year increase in the history of the state.

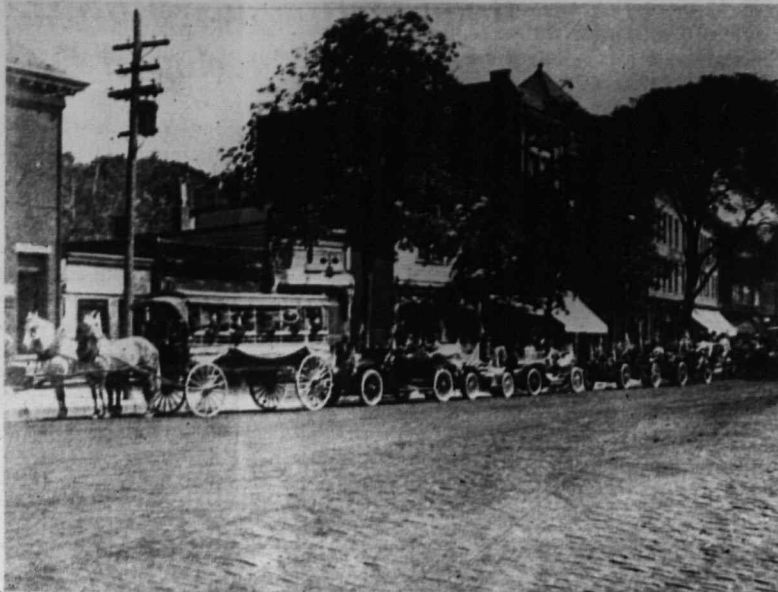

The tax figures, as broken down by the Association, are alarming if it can be anticipated that further increases are ahead of us.

During the past decade local tax levies have risen $937 million; with taxes for school purposes up by than a half-billion dollars. Based on the breakdown reported by the Taxpayers Association - and we have never found them incorrect - the schools account for 56 per cent of the total levy; municipalities about 22 per cent; counties, 20 per cent and deductions for veterans and senior citizen exemptions, two per cent.

The question that must necessarily arise in the mind of the taxpayers is where will it stop? Homeowners, in a great many areas of the state, would appear to be paying just about the limit - if we can believe the statements we hear from many sources. Certainly, it is evident that there must eventually be a new - or broader - method of meeting the increasing cost, without sacrificing, for instance, the educational requirements of our young people.

We cannot help but feel that New Jersey should look to the federal government for a far greater return from the tax dollars collected from the residents of this state. As it is now, the federal government collects several hundred millions of dollars in excess of the funds that are returned to this state. Surely, under today's conditions, New Jersey could not be criticized for seeking a more equitable distribution of these funds.

A quarter of a million dollars - devoted perhaps to educational need, or assistance to municipalities - could make the tax picture more attractive.

Senator Case Reports to You

This summer's debate over ABM and other military questions reflects a profound - and, in my judgment, irreversible - change in our approach to the problem of assuring our survival as a nation.

The American people, I believe, are no longer willing to accept as inevitable the upward spiral of the arms race.

And the United States Senate clearly is no longer willing to accept as infallible the Pentagon's or even the President's judgment that a particular weapons system is essential to national survival.

For when the 100 members of the Senate divide 51 to 49 on a great issue, as we did on the question of deploying the Safeguard ABM system, they have not disposed of that issue. On the contrary, such a vote signals a beginning, rather than an end.

The heart of the matter is put clearly and bluntly in these words by John W. Gardner, chairman of the Urban Coalition and former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

"The domestic departments exercise a rigorous and healthy discipline over their expenditures, not because they are thrifty by nature - far from it - but because they are subject to tough, raking scrutiny by the Budget Bureau and the committees of Congress. If that scrutiny were eliminated, they would grow lax and fat.

"That, in a nutshell, is the condition that has prevailed in the Defense Establishment for many, many years. The time is ripe for an unsparing examination of every aspect of defense spending, an examination that will extend to procurement practices, use of manpower, administrative overhead, maintenance of overseas bases and the basic rational underlying force levels and weapons systems."

That "unsparing examination" has just begun. Where it will lead no one can say. But it is encouraging to know that, already, the civilian leaders of our defense establishment have recognized the necessity of top-to-bottom re-examination.

The Pentagon's chief scientist, Dr. John S. Foster, jr., addressed the Armed Forces Management Association on August 19 in the following terms:

"The country until recently has been patient with us. We have assumed that we had time to do better. But now the country's patience has run out. The signs are all around us. The magazines, the newspapers, the networks are playing up stories about Defense Department and industry mismanagement and about Congressional intent to reduce mismanagement by reducing funds....

"Their exasperation is easy to understand, and I won't attempt to justify our past. We have told our story. The public, the press, and the Congress are interested in cost-overruns and weapons that don't perform as promised, not in further explanations.

"... There is nothing that will help now except to make sure that all persons understand that the situation is critical and make clear that we are making the changes that must take place."

The spending cutbacks announced by Secretary of Defense Laird on August 21 point in the same direction.

There remain, however, some even more basic questions - to be explored in the weeks and months ahead. For example, Senator Mondale and I are urging a complete review of the need for attack aircraft carriers when no other major power has any such carriers.

The Senate, in short, is preparing to meet its responsibility to exercise a far greater influence upon the course of national security policy.

It's Your Town

Health

Municipal, county and private institutions combine to provide for the health needs of Summit residents.

Board of Health

The five members of the Board of Health, appointed by the mayor with confirmation by the Common Council, serve for three-year terms without compensation. The board has the responsibility of enforcing the State Sanitary Code and to enact other ordinances and regulations necessary for the health of the community.

Its staff consists of a full-time health officer, a physician, appointed by the board, and a part-time doctor in charge of clinics. Other full-time employees are a sanitary and plumbing inspector, a public health nurse, a secretary-registrar and a clerk-deputy. There is also a rabies control warden who acts as agent for the board.

Clinics are held at the board's office at 71 Summit Ave., Monday through Friday at 9 a.m. with a physician and public health nurse in attendance. There is also a baby-keep-well clinic on Mondays at 1 p.m. Through these clinics the Board of Health furnishes the public with vaccinations and inoculations against smallpox, diphtheria and typhoid, instruction in infant care and hygiene, tuberculosis patch tests, Wasserman tests, and, in the case of venereal infection, tests and treatment. Food handlers are examined at the clinics and health cards issued without charge.

Every year the Board of Health offers free anti-rabies inoculations for Summit dogs.

The public health nurse assists at the clinics, keeps records and sends monthly reports to the State Department of Health. She makes visits to the homes of pre-school children, mothers-to-be, communicable disease patients, boarding-homes for children, schools and the Child Care Center.

Inspections

The sanitary and plumbing inspector supervises the issuing of plumbing licenses assisted by a board of three plumbers. He carries out inspection of the plumbing and sanitary conditions of retail food stores and restaurants, school cafeterias, cold storage lockers, laundries and laundromats, tenements and apartment houses, barber shops, beauty parlors, public buildings, hotels, theaters, schools, the railway station, rooming houses, swimming pools and back yards. He is also responsible for the control of ragweed, poison ivy, flies, mosquitoes, rodents, other vermin and air pollution.

The registrar and the clerk record births, marriages and deaths. A copy is kept for local records and the original sent to the State Department of Health. They issue birth certificates, marriage licenses and permits for burial, transit and disinterment.

The budget of the Board of Health is prepared by the board and financed by an appropriation from the Council: Money received from fines, licenses and permits is returned to the city treasurer.

The water supplied to Summit by the Commonwealth Water Company comes from state approved watersheds, reservoirs and artesian wells. The Summit Board of Health periodically sends water samples to the State Department of Health for examination.

Overlook Hospital

Overlook Hospital, a voluntary, non-profit community hospital, is located in Summit off Morris Avenue. It has a bed capacity of 438, plus 46 bassinets. It serves over 17,000 in-patients and 17,000 out-patients annually from Summit and surrounding towns.

Overlook is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, the American Hospital Association, American Association of Blood Banks, and the New Jersey Hospital Association.

A new, seven-story wing finished in 1967, has provided many medical advances and raised the hospital to the level of a comprehensive community health center. New services include a short-term psychiatric unit, monitored coronary care unit, cardio-pulmonary laboratory, an intensive care unit, a cystoscopy section and an isolation unit.

The Radiology Department provides supervoltage radiation therapy, a complete radioisotope department remote control fluoroscopy and an array of highly specialized equipment for diagnostic purposes.

The Emergency Department has four experienced doctors who rotate duty to give qualified medical coverage 24 hours a day. The hospital provides 13 clinics: Obstetrical, Gynecological, General Practice, Medical, Surgical, Hypertension, Genitourinary, Orthopedic, Pediatric, Dental, Nutrition, Diabetic.

Comment on Film

by Jon Plaut

This week I would like to discuss and compare four different films, in order to make a point about how an industry goes about the task of movie making.

"Run Wild, Run Free" is a charming movie which is ostensibly for children, but is really quite adult. Made in Scotland, it is the story of a young boy who does not talk or otherwise relate to his parents. They live on the edge of the moors and the one satisfying thing in life for him is the animal life of that area. At the film's conclusion, he saves a beautiful stallion from death in quicksand and learns that he must help himself in the prison of his silence if he is to survive.

It is a beautifully made movie, although sometimes too drawn out or too slowly paced, but negative criticism of it is in a sense petty, because "Run Wild, Run Free" achieves exactly what it sets out to do - that is be an intellectual film for and about children, which asks them to think and feel and understand something about life. It is the kind of children's movie that the British are extremely good at making and at which the Hollywood film industry, with its either Shirley Temple or Tom and Jerry philosophy, is a failure at producing.

If "The April Fools" is not the perfect example of a product of our film making at its worst, then I don't know what is. Here we have a competent American star (Jack Lemmon) and a highly talented and beautiful French actress (Catherine Deneuve), who has made a whole series of excellent films, including the recent "Belle de Jour", and a highly promising director (Stewart Rosenberg), who made "Cool Hand Luke", and the result of the pooling of their talents is a complete mess. Why? Because the film script with which they had to work is just plain abominable.

In a recent Sunday night telecast Joseph Losey's "Lord of the Flies" was reshown. It is not a perfect film, and surely is not as deep as the book on which it is based. But it is a highly ambitious work and fully uses the cinematographic technique to make the world of the children seem like the only world. I mention this film at this time (I have reviewed it before) because I saw it on TV on the night that I had returned from a local, neighborhood theatre having just seen "The April Fools". In my displeasure with "April Fools", I was particularly reminded of the fact that Losey was forced to leave the United States and make films abroad during the McCarthy era. He has never returned here for film making.

Jackie Gleason was pretty good in "How to Commit Marriage". Even Bob Hope had his moments (he has never made a really funny film). But the movie gets tired and extended and the formula comedy is unending.

Union College, Cranford, is preparing plans for library and classroom buildings as part of its $7.5 million master plan.

Dermatology and Endocrine. Clinic patients are screened for financial need through the Social Service Department.

The hospital has recently developed two new programs to expand services to the community. The Out-Patient or Ambulatory program is designed to treat many types of cases not requiring in-patient care, thus reducing costs and reserving hospital beds for patients seriously needing acute nursing care. The Visiting Nurse-Home Care Service offers care for the homebound patient, including nursing service, diet counselling, home health aids, speech and physical therapy.

Overlook maintains three professional schools, Practical Nursing, Radiologic Technology and Laboratory Technology, as well as its Intern-Resident Training Program.

It has auditorium facilities for community health programs, as well as medical seminars.

The Overlook Hospital Women's Auxiliary counts 2,200 members, and has a junior volunteer program for teen-age girls.

How is Money Actually Lost?

By Mabel G. Stolte
County Home Economist
Studies conducted within the last few years indicate about $700 million dollars in varying denominations is lost each year. The man and woman of the house are about equally involved.
Women tend to lose their purses or forget them in stores. Men lose bills or coins stuffed carelessly into pockets when they pull out a handkerchief, keys or gloves. Insects and pests have been known to feed on our U.S. bills. Youngsters sometimes cut paper dolls or boys make planes from that "nice green paper" found lying about the house. Adults sometimes even place money in an envelope to save and then discard or burn it up with the rubbish.
Home-style savings accounts also continue to produce their stories of woe. Hiding places commonly used and forgotten include mattresses, cookie jars, bureau drawers and telephone books.

Electric heat will go anywhere to keep man cozy.

On July 20, 1969, it went to the moon. It kept the crew of Apollo 11 warm for their 240,000-mile journey into outer space. And it kept them cozy during their visit on the moon where temperatures dip to 250 degrees below zero.

It is logical that the most reliable and efficient heating system on earth was chosen for the moon. After all, only electricity can deliver heat that's flameless, odorless and practically silent.

If electric heat kept the astronauts warm during what was indeed mankind's greatest leap forward, think what it can do down here for you.

To find out more, give us a call. Or visit a Reddy Kilowatt Electric Home Heating Dealer who displays this sign. He wants to keep you cozy, too.

College Information Center On Wheels Attracts 25 In Summit

Union College's mobile College Information Center was visited by 25 persons during its visit to Summit on August 13, it was announced today by Fred L. Lang of Chatham, director.

During a one-day visit to Summit a year ago, the Center also attracted 25 visitors. The College Information Center on wheels was stationed at Summit avenue and Union place.

About 1,330 persons have visited the College Information Center in its first seven weeks of operation this summer in visits to Plainfield, Elizabeth, Rahway, Union, Roselle, Westfield, Cranford, Kenilworth, and Summit. This is nearly twice as many visitors as during the same period last summer.

The College Information Center on wheels is designed to interest young people and adults in college careers, Mr. Lang said, and to bring directly to the community information on colleges and universities and other educational institutions offering training beyond the high school.

The mobile center, financed with a special grant from the Bayway Refinery of the Humble Oil and Refining Company and the Bayway Chemical Plant of Enjay Chemical Company, both printed materials, film strips and viewers. Students are given direct help in filling out college applications and forms for financial aid. It is a college admissions and counseling office on wheels, Mr. Lang explained.

"This center is directed toward stimulating interest among disadvantaged young people and adults in seeking higher education, toward providing an informal away-from-school place where parents can obtain information about colleges and about the means to attend college, and toward assisting current high school students in planning their high school careers so they can gain entrance into college, and toward recruiting more disadvantaged young people into programs preparing them for college, "Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, acting president of the college, said.

MMT Chalks Up Another Success With "Funny Girl"

The musical "Funny Girl" is a vehicle which was specifically written and produced to be a showcase for Barbra Streisand and as such, the entire production is geared toward the glorification of the lead. Consequently, the story line is not too strong, and in fact, quite hokey, and some of the musical numbers are difficult to sing and have little razz-ma-tazz.

However, working with what they had, members of the Metropolitan Musical Theater, in association with the YMCA, produced "Funny Girl" last weekend at New Providence High School. It was a fine professional job, well done.

Much of the credit must of necessity go to the double-threat team of Chase Newhart and Kevin Farrell, who constantly prove that youth have zing, zip, vitality and originality. The production was well-staged using the ingenuity that was needed to have a revolving stage made of the bare essentials of steps and wood.

Since "Funny Girl" is basically a "super star" show, the responsibility of performance rests with the female lead, who in this case was Jackie Gershon, a Borough girl currently enrolled at N.Y.U., where she undoubtedly met up with the double-threat team.

And, Miss Gershon, with the mantle of delivery resting firmly on her shoulders, surely did deliver. She belted those songs out, in a voice that appears to be a cross between Streisand and Garland. And she was good, very, very good. In fact, much better than Fanny Brice was in her high-day.

While Miss Gershon was on-stage during almost the entire performance, she was not alone, but ably supported by many other local youth, who are not short on talent. It is impossible to list all the positive contributions of the cast; but suffice it to say that Bill Baker, as the handsome husband, Nick Arnstein, was a sight to behold and hear. The original Mr. Arnstein, if memory does not fail, somehow fell short of the elegant man on the stage of the New Providence High School last weekend.

Good Poker Cronies

Miss Cathy Snitzer played the role of Mrs. Brice with good humor and good timing, while the Misses Joanne Chasnow, Rhona Tuchscher and Doris Cochran played the poker playing cronies from Henry Street with suave fun.

Walter L. Talley, playing the role of the rejected suitor but long-time friend, Eddie Ryan, displayed not only a creditable musical sense but that boy can really dance.

With a cast that literally must have exceeded 100, together with a good-size musical comedy orchestra, which housed some of the over-30 crowd, credit must go to all the participants, and especially to the double-threat kids, Newhart and Farrell, who have surely made a sizeable dent in the local theatrical scene. Irma Zehr choreographer for the excellent production numbers, bears considerable watching in the future.

"Funny Girl" may not be the true story of a not very funny girl; it is not even the true story of Fanny Brice; but last week-end it was truly good musical comedy because of local efforts. We thoroughly enjoyed ourselves.

The 30-second oven cleaner 7¢

(It takes just 30 seconds of your time to whisk away the dirt. Costs less than you're now paying.)

Ladies, get your heads out of the oven. Now you can have an electric range with an oven that cleans itself automatically, for an investment of about 7¢ and 30 seconds of your time per cleaning.

With most models (check the instructions first) you can even put the surface-unit drip pans into the oven. Then, when you turn the switch to "Clean", spills and spatters disappear from the oven, racks and drip pans during the average 1½ hour cleaning cycle. Only a trace of powder remains. You whisk that away in about 30 seconds.

There's no worry about scrubbing the surface units either, because spills disappear from them while you're still cooking. Only electric ranges can give you this "total cleanliness".

So throw out the expensive oven cleaners, the cans of stuff, the brushes, the steel wool, and the dirty rags. Buy a new electric range with a self-cleaning oven. You'll find a large selection at the local appliance dealer displaying the familiar Reddy Kilo-watt seal. He's open right now.

Soleholders of General Public Utilities Corporation

Dennis Ritz came to Las Vegas via Valley Forge, New York City, and Rochester. This route took him from his hometown in Pennsylvania to New York University, and later to Rochester as a public relations man for Kodak. During these years he was an amateur skater with a love for any form of show business.

When he arrived in Las Vegas, Dennis Ritz pursued his trade as public relations specialist, opening new hotels. He helped launch the new International Hotel and, previously, the Frontier.

The publicist was intrigued, though, by the ice skaters who were performing at Las Vegas hotels, and, in time, the idea of "Pazz On Ice" began to take shape.

He developed his idea by first putting together the best skating group available. The result was a cast of 16, including representatives of the United States, England, Norway, Canada, Australia, and both East and West Germany.

Then came the development of four big production numbers incorporating 22 acts in a fast-paced, two-and-one-half-hour revue, backed up by today's popular music.

"Pazz On Ice" boasts six title-holding champion skaters, including Jon Wertz, an American who twice has held the professional men's championship of West Germany. He is the only non-German ever to hold the title.

"We're trying to update the ice show, and this is what attracted our performers," says producer Ritz. "The major shows have not really changed for many years." Producers of the major shows, says Dennis Ritz, have been most helpful. "No doubt they're watching to see how successful we'll be."

After its run at Paper Mill, "Pazz On Ice" will go on to Puerto Rico, then tour South America and South Africa. A tour of Israel may also be scheduled.

Triolo, Ennis Seeking Berths on Ithaca Eleven

Senior Joe Triolo and junior Ned Ennis of Summit, were out to gain starting berths this week when the Ithaca College N.Y., varsity football team opened its pre-season practice sessions under the direction of third-year Head Coach Jim Butterfield.

The Ithacans will play the toughest schedule in the school's history this year. They open up at West Chester Pa., on September 20 and then play at Lehigh University the next week. After a home game with Cortland on October 4, they move to Susquehanna and then return for home contests with Wilkes and C.W. Post. The season closes out with road games at Bridgeport and Central Connecticut.

Triolo has been a starter for the past two seasons for Ithaca as a linebacker and, despite his small size of 5'8-180, has played exceptional football. He was named to the ECAC weekly All-Star team a year ago after an outstanding defensive performance against West Chester.

STRONGEST MAN

"Joe offsets his size with strength and quickness," Coach Butterfield remarked. "Pound for pound, he is the strongest man on the team. He has good hitting ability and is one of the team's five most coachable players."

Ennis saw limited action

last season, but in the team's spring practice sessions he looked excellent and gained the favorite's role for an offensive guard slot. The 5'10, 190-pounder, is an exceptionally hard worker, "who contributes greatly to the team through his spirit and attitude," Coach Butterfield remarked. "His main qualities, technically speaking, are good speed and lateral movement."

Copper Springs Swimmers Tie, Win Meets

After losing its first four meets in the Mountain Valley Swim League this season, the Copper Springs team came back to upset the Colonia Swim Club, 155-81, and tie the Nomahegan Swim Club, 118-118.

Copper Springs' swimmers set 10 club records in defeating Colonia. Copper Springs held a narrow lead most the way against Nomahegan and was in front, 118-111, with only one relay event remaining. Nomahegan won the final relay event, the boys' 13-17 years medley relay, to salvage a tie. The race was decided by the narrowness of margins, with Nomahegan's freestyler coming from behind on the anchor leg.

Winners for Copper Springs in the meet with Colonia were Lindsey Weeks, Diane Blackwell, Sue Fenske, Missy Barrett, Tim Garrett, Mike Paytas, Jim Bartz, Ted Blackwell, Dennis Blackwell and Mike Blackwell. Lindsey Weeks, Diane Blackwell, Missy Barrett and Jim Bartz were double winners.

Members of winning relay teams for Copper Springs were Dee Dee Montgomery, Lisa Paytas, Lyn Dunn, Lindsey Weeks, Ellen Paytas, Laurie Weeks, Diane Blackwell, Laura Bartz, Sue Fenske, Kristy Weeks, Missy Barrett, Judy McKeith, Ted Blackwell, Tim Rech, Mike Quilty, Matt Paytas, Mike Paytas, John Radley, Dennis Blackwell, Ted Williamson, Jim Bartz, Paul Paytas, Mike Blackwell and Joe Paytas.

Winners for Copper Springs in the meet with Nomahegan were Lindsey Weeks, Diane Blackwell, Sue Fenske, Missy Barrett, Tim Garrett, Ted Blackwell, Mike Paytas, Mike Quilty and Dennis Blackwell. Lindsey Weeks and Missy Barrett won two events each.

Members of winning relay teams were Dee Dee Montgomery, Lyn Dunn, Eileen McEnroe, Lindsey Weeks, Sue Fenske, Kathy Weeks, Judy McKeith, Missy Barrett, Mike Paytas, John Radley, Dennis Blackwell and Tony Miles.
