

Future use of the Kent Place School area will remain up in the air until the newly-formed Pingry-Kent Place Corporation advises the Ad Hoc Committee as to what use, if any, will be made of the Summit properties.

In a report to Mayor Elmer J. Bennett Joseph C. Hazen, Jr., chairman of the mayor-appointed Ad Hoc Committee, also reported that the former Wilson property, known as Dalkeith, was found to require "very extensive maintenance" if it is to be used in the present form or to be remodeled.

Mr. Hazen pointed out that before the Committee could pursue any further deliberations about future use of Dalkeith, a professional estimate of the cost of building restoration and building demolition was needed. The Committee has asked that these estimates be undertaken.

In referring to the Kent Place property Mr. Hazen reported that the Committee had found out that the formation of the Pingry-Kent Place Corporation included possible future plans for the Short Hills Country Day School. The Corporation is in the process of selecting an architectural firm for the purchased site near Liberty Corner and a fund-raising program is in preparation.

It is expected that sufficient funds to permit the beginning of construction will be available in the fall of 1973, and it has been determined that the move onto the new campus will hopefully take place in the fall of 1975.

As yet the corporation has not determined whether or not to dispose of all or part of the Summit properties, since there is a possibility that part or all may be used in conjunction with the new Liberty Corner campus.

It is expected that the Ad Hoc Committee will make recommendations to the Mayor next spring, but it has been conceded that even those recommendations may be tentative or interim in nature, since final recommendations can only be made after the school corporation has "crystallized its thinking and begin to take action on its plans."

Mr. Hazen indicated that the committee may decide to conduct public meetings on the possible use of the school property. In the interim any resident or organization is welcome to contact Mr. Hazen at 37 Lenox road regarding possible uses of all or part of the property.

In connection with the Wilson property, Mr. Hazen pointed out that in requesting estimates for reconstruction or demolition, the salvage value of the building should be taken into consideration in estimating the cost of demolition.

The Committee has recommended that unless there is an urgent need for an earlier recommendation on use of the Wilson property that consideration of both the school and residential properties may be or should be related. Suggestions regarding future use of the residential property by the public are also welcome by the Ad Hoc Committee.

Athenaeum Decides to Close After 65 Years of Operation

The Athenaeum of Summit, for years one of the foremost lecture platforms in the nation, is going out of business.

Joshua Levin, president of the 65 year old Athenaeum said this week that a special advance membership solicitation had produced too few responses to mount a successful season this fall. Dwindling memberships over the last five years and failure to attract younger members were the principal reasons cited for the decision to terminate the Athenaeum rather than continue on a limited basis.

The decision to terminate the world famous lecture platform was made at a final membership meeting held on June 8 at the YWCA. The executive committee said it would refund advance membership contributions.

The Athenaeum, which in the past had been addressed by such persons as Woodrow Wilson while he was president of Princeton, Admiral Richard Byrd, Pearl Buck, Randolph Churchill and Leroi Jones among others, for years met on the second Thursday of each month. During the 1920s and 1930s, Athenaeum was generally a black-tie affair conceded to be one of the major social events of the month. Members of Athenaeum would give pre-lecture dinner parties for each other and then depart en masse in their formal dinner clothes to listen to a world famous guest speaker.

In announcing Athenaeum's suspension, Mr. Levin expressed the hope of the executive committee that the community, particularly its younger families would react to the announcement by evolving a new type of cultural organization that might inherit the mantle of The Athenaeum. Toward that end, the membership authorized the committee to remain in office for two more years and assign the title and remaining cash assets of the Athenaeum to a new organization if an appropriate one should develop.

Among other reasons given for Athenaeum's demise is television with its many talk

Both Adele Lynch and Chesebrough scholarships went to Miss Riggins, who was also the recipient of awards from the Combined PTA and the Summit Education Association.

Mr. Lubey received scholarships from the Chesebrough Foundation, the Combined PTA and the Summit Education Association, while Mr. Clabby received scholarships from the General Organization, the Summit Booster Club and the Kiwanis Club.

A recipient of a New Jersey State scholarship, Miss Roome also received awards from the Junior Fortnightly Club and the College Club.

At this time last year total contributions were at $3,600. This year a total of 81 needy Summit boys and girls have been selected to attend camp. They come from broken homes where money is extremely scarce. Some are orphans while others live with relatives and are shunted from one home to another.

Donations to the fund are solicited only through The Summit Herald. There are no administrative expenses and all money received goes directly into the fund.

Among this week's donors were Village Exchange which gave $100 and the Kiwanis Club which donated $50. There was also an anonymous gift of $100.

The total list of donors is listed below.

Contributions should be forwarded to the Summit Herald, 22 Bank street, Summit, New Jersey 07901. Checks should be made sets and that all countries are getting into the act. Proof sets in the United States have been collector's items for many years and prices have gone up and down as the supply and demand changes. There was a time when the 1960 small date was selling for $40 to $50. This same set now sells for under $20. The early proof sets of the U.S. prior to 1953 still command a good price and are worth keeping. The more modern ones are reasonable in price and perhaps in 20 or 30 years will increase in price as the number of collectors increase.

Golden Hills
However, in the last few years, foreign countries have found that there is gold in these hills and have produced proof sets and coins which are never-circulated in the country of issue but are produced by private and foreign mints solely for collector consumption. The countries of Panama, Sudan, Liberia, Jamaica, Bahamas, India, Nepal and Trinidad-Tobago just to mention a few have arranged to have these sets marketed through private concerns having the sole distributorship. Regardless of the face value of the coins, the proof set never sells for less than $15 and sometimes a great deal more. They are produced in a limited number which is supposed to increase their price in a short period of time.

Some countries such as New Zealand, South Africa, Canada, Israel, Australia, France and others have for many years produced what are called Proof like sets with the price not too much out of line with the face value of the price of gold pieces which are being held by collectors for sentimental value or for their own satisfaction. A person who purchased gold a year or so ago has found that it has increased in price so that he can sell it for what he paid for it - in short, he has wiped out the dealer's commission. If you have a small amount of gold and you do not need the money, perhaps the best advice is to hold on to it. You cannot not lose in any event.

What to do about the silver coins. In one of the recent numismatic publications, an eye witness reported that European Mints are melting down U.S. silver quarters and silver dollars to produce modern silver coins. He did not report the source of these U.S. coins but unless there is a sudden upsurge in the amount of silver mined, silver coins can not go anywhere but up. It is also of interest that mintage figures are of no value now and some of the common silver coins may become valuable in the future due to the fact that so many were melted down. There is no record of those that were used in this manner. So again, a little advice. If you don't need the money hang on to your silver coins a little longer.

The Governor's VIEW

By Gov. William T. Cahill

While the cost of just about every service or product we use has been rising steadily, education is unquestionably the single public service that has escalated the most rapidly in the last dozen years.

For far too long, education failed to receive the priority it deserved, and in far too many cases, underpaid teachers helped subsidize lower tax rates by struggling in outmoded buildings to educate our children.

Enormous strides have been made to correct these conditions and to improve the quality of education in our state. But we've had to pay a price. That price has been an almost constant rise for the past decade in our local property taxes.

In most municipalities throughout the state, the cost of operating our local schools accounts for approximately 60 per cent of money raised by local taxation. Since real estate is the principal source of local revenues, it means that most of the cost of education is borne by the property owner. This cost has become burdensome — some think unbearably so — and, unfortunately, all experts agree that it can only become worse under our present tax set up.

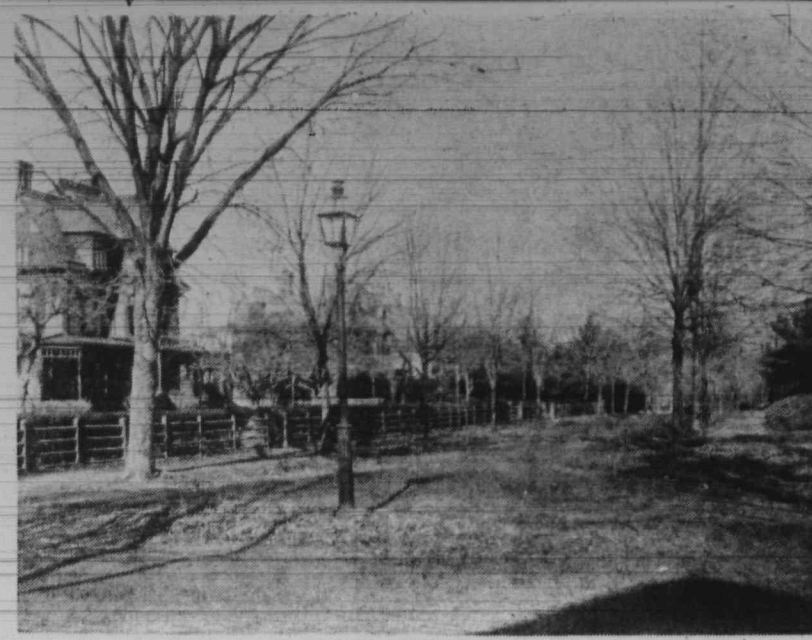

That's why the Tax Policy Committee has recommended a whole new approach to our problem of financing education, one that will free us from a system where very often those who can least afford to pay, pay the most. The effective tax rate for families with income under $3,000 is 14.6 per cent while families with income in excess of $25,000 pay only 3.3 per cent of it in taxes.

The most practical viable answer is for the state to take over the responsibility of financing the schools. This is really the essence of the Tax Reform program which I have recommended to the Legislature. Taxation for school purposes would be levied by the state at the rate of $1 for each $100 of assessed valuation on real property, and it would be pegged at this level by constitutional amendment to insure against future increases. Since this would raise less than the amount now being raised by the local districts, the difference would be made up by a graduated income tax. This would then place the cost of government where it belongs, on those who can best afford to pay.

The most frequently raised objection I've heard is the fear that this plan would mean the end of local control of schools. This is a condition the Tax Committee has carefully considered, and, I believe, fully insured against. The proposed law provides for local boards of education to carry on the functions they now perform. They would continue to hire teachers, to establish budgets,

Time is Running Out

Time is running out on some of Summit's children.

Because The Summit Herald's Fresh Air Fund has not yet reached the $3,000 mark in donations, it is becoming increasingly possible that not all the children who have been chosen for a camping experience this year will be able to go. This would be a heartbreaking gesture if some of the kids were told at this late date, that because of a lack of funds, camp is out for them this year.

What would make it even more appalling is the fact that many of the children who were destined to go on a camping trip come from homes that are broken and poor, or from homes where the parents can barely make ends meet, or from homes where one parent or both are dead, are in a hospital or don't give a damn about their children. These are the children The Herald Fresh Air Fund is mostly concerned about, and these are the children who might be left behind this summer if more funds are not raised immediately.

We would hope that if each of the Summit Herald's 6,000 plus subscribers donated $1 each, the needs for this year would be more than met with enough left over to start the 1973 drive in a more comfortable financial position than usual.

We feel the Fresh Air Fund is a worthwhile cause since it helps those youngsters who are desperately in need of love, understanding and a better break in their young life.

Your help is needed. Won't you give it now to help a little boy or girl who can't do it alone? Checks or money orders should be made out to "Summit Herald Fresh Air Fund" and mailed to The Summit Herald, 22 Bank street, Summit. Please do it today. Time is running out on some of Summit's children.

The Athenaeum

The sad news that The Athenaeum is going out of business after a run of over 65 years is indeed depressing.

Athenaeum, which had been considered by many to be one of the foremost lecture platforms in the nation, is an example and a victim of changing times, values and needs.

We would have thought that a lecture platform which had been addressed by such persons as Woodrow Wilson, Admiral Richard Byrd, Randolph Churchill, would have been a tower of strength with interested persons battering at the admission door for membership. However, it was not to be.

Television, college campus speakers of note who will lecture for nothing, movies and a host of other rapidly changing social patterns, can be blamed for Athenaeum's decision to suspend its activities.

However, there is one ray of light that shines through the decision to call it a day, and that is the hope that there are those in Summit who would band together to organize a similar cultural organization that might inherit the Athenaeum's mantle.

Athenaeum was a symbol of Summit. It's a shame to see it die. Perhaps if enough people... but that's something to think about.

Anything for a Buck

It is truly disturbing to realize that once again an enterprising business has resulted by ascribing heroic proportions to a lawless individual.

This time it is a song and a T-shirt that contrive to make a hero out of the man who hijacked a jet plane and who parachuted into oblivion with a $200,000 ransom.

Let us be honest as well as fair. The people who buy such items have no regard either for morality or for young people. Song and wearing apparel make a hero of a hijacker, a man who jeopardized the lives of others to gain his dishonest objective.

In simple terms, this is making a hero out of a lawbreaker. Doesn't it tend to make the impression on young people that crime is glamorous as well as profitable? There will be excuses and explanations and alibis but the basic immoral facts remain.

As has been the case when criminals have been extolled, those who usually are first are those who are out for the fast buck. They do not care about the aftermath, they are unconcerned about the impressions they may create. Profit is their sole goal. And the parents who buy, or permit their children to buy, such items are in not much better state.

There has been too much of this thing in our country. We still have a complimentary legend in Jesse James. And consider the case of Bonnie and Clyde, the subject of a sympathetic movie. They were cold-blooded, sadistic killers. Even Dillinger has been the subject of glamour. These are the people we would press into heroic mold?

Perhaps an exception can be made in the case of Jesse James and other outlaws of the old west. In that era of our history we needed tough calibred men and women to face almost insurmountable odds.

But this is not the day of the old west. This is the day when the submachine gun, the grenade, the bomb and the hand gun have given psychotic individuals the power to vent their enmity to all mankind. They do not care whom they kill or how many.

Are we to make heroes of their ilk or are we to label them as they should be labeled? The people who turn such characters into heroes to make a few dollars need to feel the public scorn and the public boycott of their products.

Current Comment

(Science's Role—Montclair Times)

It has been an unwise practice for some of the great institutions of higher learning to continue to promote the idea that science and the humanities are separate academic pursuits. This may have been true in earlier years before the world became compacted and problems took on an international concern.

Many of the modern crises, however, demand the humanitarian assistance of science to correct. In its broadest sense science provides the tools for progress. Philosophical discussions alone cannot erase disease or solve the problems of the environment.

Science can, and in many instances it is the scientist who leads in the fight against such challenges as cancer and heart disease, the quest for a cleaner yet more productive environment, ways to improve overcrowded cities and other projects of humanitarian importance.

Science not only creates problems, it solves them. That is a useful point to remember.

Dwindling Nature

Editor, Summit Herald:

You know, I always thought there was some importance in being a native of a town, but I kinda think it isn't. I am not 80 or 103 where I could sit down and relate Summit's important history, but I have felt a cool breeze from an open field blow across my face where there is now a development. I have seen a beautiful red barn torn down — a simple narrow path destroyed for more big homes, but that's progress. People have to have shelter from the cold. People have to have their comforts.

How comfortable do we have to be? I don't believe man has reached the point where he doesn't want to sit alone in a woods with nature — or am I naive? Actually, without driving for eight hours, the only place left in Summit is along the Passaic River. There's a narrow path with a few rocks or stones along it, and it's comfortable on the feet — because it's part of nature and it's the only real thing left... as small as it is.

Green Acres has put in a large parking lot at the end of Stanley avenue for cars. For the convenience of parking that gasoline machine. The small wooded section they bulldozed was, I suppose, insignificant but it was a part of nature. Something to walk through. Is man still to continue to rape the small wooded sections left in Summit? When are we going to face the facts — there is no more land left! Summit has had it, and yet we must have a parking lot off a dirt road for our automobiles. Why do we dig up green young bushes for Macadam?

Hey man, you better wake up! Ecology? What the heck does that mean? Why not ride

Sweeping Away the Bias

(Editor's note: In April, 1971, for the first time in history, a presidential staff assistant — Mrs. Barbara H. Franklin — was appointed to the White House staff with the specific assignment of recruiting women for full time, top-level, policy-making jobs. During her first year at that post, the number of women in policy-making positions has almost tripled. With the Presidential re-endorsement, and then passage by Congress of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution even greater impetus is expected in the trend toward greater opportunities for women. In the following article, Mrs. Franklin offers some personal views on the changing role of women in today's world and on their increasing influence in government.)

By Barbara H. Franklin

More and more frequently, when I seek assistance from a key White House or other Federal official, it comes from one of the thousands of women who have moved into important jobs in the Nixon Administration.

These women hold positions which, in responsibility and opportunity, go far beyond the roles traditionally ascribed to women.

And at the very highest levels in the Federal government today we find women appointed by President Nixon to positions which in the past have been held by men: Catherine May Bedell, first woman chairman of the U.S. Tariff Commission; Helen D. Bentley, chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission; Charlotte Reid, first woman member of the Federal Communications Commission since 1948; Marina Whitman, first woman member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. And there are many, many more.

Jobs Have Tripled

Not only have the number of women in such top jobs — jobs that pay $28,000 a year or more — almost tripled within the past year since the President began the recruitment program, but more than 1,000 women have moved into middle-management positions paying $18,000 to $28,000 a year.

This phenomenon within the government reflects what can happen in the private sector and throughout American society. More and more women are pursuing their personal ambitions and goals even when they lead into areas which have been traditionally dominated by men. And they are pursuing these ambitions and goals not so much as women trying to storm the bastions of masculine employment but rather as individuals seeking career fulfillment in their areas of expertise.

The fact is that 44% of all American women over 16 years of age are now part of the workforce, compared with 34% in 1960.

Despite the increasing numbers of women who have to or want to and are prepared to work, discrimination against them solely on the basis of sex continues to be a major handicap. However, the Nixon Administration has taken major steps to remove many of the obstacles which still preclude women from pursuing careers of their choice, both in government and in the private sector.

In April, 1971, the President issued a directive to all heads of executive departments and agencies in the Federal government requiring them to develop and implement plans for attracting more women to top and middle-management positions.

At that time he said: "The nation's many highly qualified women represent an important reservoir of ability and talent that we must draw on to a greater degree. In this Administration we have firmly espoused the rights of women, and we must now clearly demonstrate our recognition of the equality of women by making greater use of their skills in high level positions."

At about the same time, he created the post to which I was appointed in an effort to actively recruit women for policy-making jobs.

The result of these initiatives, as I indicated earlier, has been a dramatic increase in the number of women holding key positions in the executive branch. And, most significantly, a great many of them have taken over jobs which in the past have been held exclusively or generally by men.

Also during the past year, President Nixon appointed Jayne B. Spain as commissioner and vice Chairman of the Civil Service Commission. The first woman member of the Commission in ten years, she is investigating every case of alleged unfair treatment or discrimination because of sex in the career federal service.

These are measures which have been taken within the federal government — steps which President Nixon, as chief executive, took on his own initiative — but what about the private sector?

Firm Action Seen

There, too, we have seen firm action. In December, 1971, federal guidelines were issued requiring government contractors to have affirmative action plans for hiring and advancing women within their organizations.

Furthermore, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under the present Administration has filed numerous briefs on behalf of women who have brought law suits against their employers on the basis of alleged discrimination because of sex. And legislation recently passed by Congress and just signed by the President will enable the Commission to bring suits on its own in cases of discrimination.

All of these efforts by the Nixon Administration to promote equal opportunities for women comes as no surprise to those of us familiar with the President's past record. As long ago as 1951, when he was a U.S. senator, President Nixon was a co-sponsor of a constitutional amendment guaranteeing equality and prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex.

He has reaffirmed his support of such a measure a number of times during the intervening years, and on March 18 this year re-affirmed his support of the Equal Rights Amendment which was finally passed by Congress four days later.

But the major hope of the President and of most of us working with him to increase opportunities for women is

Urges Smaller Districts
Editor, Summit Herald:

The board of trustees of the Summit Young Women's Christian Association has sent the enclosed letter to Common Council. We would appreciate your publishing it in "Letters to the Editor."

Mrs. William Houpt
President
Board of Trustees
Common Council
Summit City Hall
Gentlemen:

The Board of Trustees of the Summit YWCA commends the League of Women Voters of Summit on its study, "Summit in the 70s - One Man, One Vote?" concerning the city's reapportionment.

On the basis of current census figures reapportionment of Summit's voting districts must be made. Therefore, the Board of Trustees of the Summit Young Women's Christian Association urges Council to study reapportionment plans that would divide the city into smaller voting units to ensure equitable representation for all Summit citizens, particularly keeping in mind minority group representation.

Furthermore, the Board of Trustees of the Summit YWCA would support the formation of a Charter Study Commission, should such a commission be necessary to achieve equitable representation.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. William Houpt,
President
Board of Trustees

"Gap" Applauded
Editor, Summit Herald:

Last winter, after being snowed in for a week I was able to get our car halfway down the driveway only to start skidding toward trees on both sides. Efforts to hire snow removal had failed when the four inch layer of solid ice under the snow was discovered, illness in the family left me the "it" and I had chopped and dug for over an hour when two young men stopped, chopped, shoveled and pushed until the car could be moved safely. When offered money for their hard work both replied they would feel insulted by my insistence and had enjoyed our conversation.

To Steve Farinigh and Tom Myers many thanks, not only for their hard work helping a stranger, but also for renewed faith in our young citizens who quietly perform constructive acts and thereby nullify some of the destruction of others.

Editor, Summit Herald:

Your front-page Boy Scout photograph on June 15 was a gem. Congratulations to the six new Eagle Scouts on an outstanding achievement.

Richly deserved recognition also should spotlight the unsung heroes behind the scenes - their mothers and fathers. Congratulations, as well, to the Crosses, the Hulls, the Roux and the Sterns.

Embittered Resident
Editor, Summit Herald:

I may not be heard for I am one. One common citizen. But there is a cancer and I've got to attempt to cut it out. The clique of this town may judge me crazy or stupid, but the facts must surface or the inevitable bureaucracy will surmount without challenge... I've had it!

This thorn is stuck in my gut like trash in my sink. It can never be washed down the drain well enough. The smell and dirty vision have already been here too long.

This fine community's Council, Board of Education, and as well as, perhaps unwitting, elitists who implement these groups are near totally ignorant and uncorrelative of the people. Some of the finest minds constitute these groups. Yet they have been blind, had their eyes poked out, been dissuaded, or are simply naive.

Evaluation sheets are made out on our teachers and rules are passed down to them which everyone knows is a lot of rot. In turn the Board of Education gets together, drinks coffee, and says a lot of words they like to hear. These include "suitable teaching" and "morally right." A teacher goes down the drain.

A lot of people talk, protest, write. None are heard. To soothe their (the Board's) conscience, they have a meeting for these people to come to. With a lot of rhetoric, equivocation, and ambiguous motive, the board assures the people that there will be serious consideration taken before a final decision. Somehow the garbage disposal is broken.

This same administration makes it possible not to be able to mention Jesus Christ's name on the auditorium stage, yet you may have films shown on Martin Luther King all day long in the name of brotherhood.

I am not finished. This may sound with overtones of bitterness. I'm sorry a person like me doesn't understand simple things like injustice. Mind you thorns have a rose on top if it can be reached.

Legalize Marijuana?
Gentlemen:

There are discrepancies in your editorial on marijuana (6-8-72).

You said both alcohol and marijuana are social evils because both ruin health and are responsible for auto accidents. It has been proven that alcohol may damage the liver, heart, kidneys or brain. It has not been proven that marijuana is physically harmful. No one else has statistics correlating marijuana use with auto accidents. Have you done a study?

You said marijuana, when legalized, will be "as easy to purchase as cigarettes or candy." Why not compare it with alcohol as you did earlier? Marijuana is already as easy to purchase as candy or cigarettes; pushers don't ask for proof of age.

Marijuana, you said, is one more "social problem" we don't need, so why make it legal? Last year the Congressional Committee on Drug Abuse stated that more than $200 million is spent on marijuana purchases annually and the figure is rising. Furthermore, the committee estimated that 21 million people in the U.S. have at least tried it. In view of this, I wonder if keeping it illegal is going to stop its use anymore than the Volstead Act stopped the use of alcohol.

Throughout your editorial, you called marijuana a "social problem." Why? Does it in itself cause crime? Mayor LaGuardia's investigation of that question in 1936 and a subsequent British Government survey in India shows no correlation between marijuana use and crime. Is it medically harmful? Every experiment indicating that THC (Tetrahydrocannabinol, the active ingredient of marijuana) may be harmful has been shown invalid for one reason or another. For example, the British recently concluded that some people who use marijuana and amphetamines have suffered marginal brain damage. Was it the marijuana, the amphetamines or a combination of both? Does marijuana lead to hard drugs? To say that it does is as sensible as saying that alcohol leads to marijuana. Many heroin addicts started on cocaine or pills. Assuming all marijuana use stopped, we'd still have a massive drug problem. What then is the social problem of marijuana use?

Should we legalize marijuana using the same restrictions as those placed on alcohol? Perhaps a case could be made for this: Police would not waste time on marijuana users who are not criminals. It seems to me that the police and courts have more pressing and serious work to do, not to mention the problems of overcrowded prisons. It would insure uniform quality of marijuana instead of the user having to worry about whether it is adulterated with hard drugs. If marijuana is taxed reasonably, the government would get more income and the Mafia less.

Your conclusion was that we should head off young people from the path of drugs. I agree with you. We should also stop the pharmaceutical companies from pushing aspirin and other patent medicines as though they were candy or soda pop. Young children exposed to these commercials may later assume hard drugs may be treated as casually as jelly beans. That combined with comprehensive education programs for young people and adults may alleviate the problem.

like those which have been put into effect by this Administration, will set an example which the private sector will follow on its own. Certainly, with the complex problems which we face in today's world there is an increasing need to draw on the talents and resources of women - as individuals - in seeking solutions to these problems - in working for peace in the world, in eliminating pollution, in alleviating poverty, in pursuing all of our goals for a better society.

Our effort in promoting equality for women is not to coerce the American woman into a new and totally different creature - to force a housewife to become a career woman.

On the contrary, the thrust of our effort is to remove the restrictions which have been placed on women in the past to permit each American woman to choose freely the career which she will pursue, be it that of a housewife a businesswoman or career professional in government or the private sector.

As President Nixon said in his State of the Union address in January: "This administration will also continue its strong efforts to open equal opportunities for women, recognizing clearly that women are often denied such opportunities today. While every woman may not want a career outside the home, every woman should have the freedom to choose whatever career she wishes and an equal chance to pursue it."

to plan facilities and all the other responsibilities now assigned to them.

Under the new arrangement, school financing will be based on a per-pupil cost, averaged throughout the state. This means that instead of having rich districts and poor districts. Districts spending more than the state average per pupil will be permitted to continue. In addition, districts desiring to spend more than the state allocation will be able to do so, provided it is first approved by the voters of the district. What we are doing, in effect, is putting a floor on our educational financing. We are saying that no child will receive a substandard education just because he lives in a poor district. At the same time, we are removing the burden of financing education from local Government properties, while leaving the authority for deciding the educational process at the local level where it belongs.

While state financing of schools will be the principal thrust in reducing property taxes, there will be other factors. The two principal ones will be assumption of state responsibility for an extremely-fragmented program.

Similar opportunities for efficiencies are presented by the state, rather than the counties, funding the major portion of our judicial system including the offices of the county prosecutors and their assistants, and the probation services which are desperately in need of standardized and modernized methods of procedure.

The effect of these changes will be to relieve property taxes of all except the funding of what are, essentially, county and municipal services.

Library Opens Annual Summer Reading Club

The summer reading club for boys and girls entering grades 2-6 started at the Public Library on Tuesday.

A miniature Indian village will be set up in the Boys and Girls Room. Five books read will build a tepee, each additional four books read will earn a merit badge to be attached to the tepee. The library will supply materials and each member may decorate his own tepee. Each child who has read 21 books next fall will be invited to a special pow-wow to celebrate.

Children are expected to read at their grade level. If any child has a reading problem, parents are urged to discuss this with the library staff and allowances will be made without any embarrassment to the child. Books will be listed on each child's chart as they are returned.

The summer story hours for pre-school children, ages 3 1/2 to 5 will begin Thursday, July 6, and continue each Thursday morning during July and August. Children and mothers will gather in the boys and girls room, and promptly at 10 a.m. the story program will begin. No registration is needed. Story time will last about a half hour.

A series of film programs for boys and girls grades 2 and up is scheduled for 10 a.m. Tuesday, June 27, July 11, 18, 25 and August 1. A variety of films will be shown and each program will last about an hour. Parents are requested not to send children below the second grade for the films in this series are too advanced and too long to be of interest to them.

The trick is how we teach you. On July 10, when our course begins, we start you off with simple words. El almuerzo (Lunch). Then simple sentences. By September 11, when the course ends, you'll find you know enough Spanish to get around. Comarero, esta cuenta es increíble! (Waiter, this check is outrageous!)

Because we've found that people learn best in small groups, only a few will be able to take this Spanish course. (Or our other language courses, which start the same week.) So call us en seguida. Or in other words, right now.

Comment on Film

by Jon Plaut

There have been some charges in the daily press recently that the movie industry is attempting to exploit for profit public anguish over current problems (especially drugs, race conflict, and crime) in contemporary films. My answer to that charge is simply: So what else is new?

In the '20s and '30s gangster films were prevalent. Movies about the flapper age and then the depression years filled our screens. In the early '40s the war and patriotism dominated movie production. In all eras, in fact, the motion picture industry has attempted to capitalize on public concern over contemporary issues.

In fact, if the motion picture is to be a relevant art form, it must bear a close relation to the events and happenings of the present.

This comes to mind in the course of passing on my brief impressions of three not very exceptional, but contemporary films. "Skyjacked" (with Charlton Heston and Yvette Mimieux, as well as a poor man's "all star" cast) is as current as today's headlines. It deals with a psychotic who hijacks a commercial airplane and subjects the crew and passengers to the terror of an unknown destiny. The movie is decently made, but there is not much suspense since everything seems pretty much a foregone conclusion and the character development is quite absent. Charlton Heston is a fine actor once more largely wasted in a wooden, one-dimensional role (he lots of steely tension) in "Skyjacked".

"Puppet on a Chain" is a relatively low budget movie about drug traffic in Amsterdam. It is sloppily written from an Allister MacLean novel. Some of the plot developments (such as when the head man in the drug gang exposes the police officer to his accomplice in disguise) are purely gratuitous. Barbara Hershey, who was so good in "The Baby Maker" has almost nothing to do in a weak and ill-thought out role.

"Fritz The Cat" is made in cartoon style. It has some relevancy to contemporary society and sexual mores and has been advertised as getting an x-rating. My opinion is that the film is ordinary stuff and not very imaginative at that. There is no consistently good animation (such as in "Yellow Submarine", or even "Fantasia") and the contemporary comment, even with the spice of sex and the novelty of cartoon characters, gets to be pretty dull.

The fact that these three films are involved with contemporary problems is their strong point. The lack in each of a first class script, which would afford some substantive and believable exploration of these problems, is what should be taken to task.

"Trial of Catonsville Nine" Is Simple But Electrifying

by Jon Plaut
 "The Trial of the Catonsville Nine" by Daniel Berrigan has been playing this spring throughout the area. Last Thursday the cast of players (many from Summit) and the sponsoring community peace organizations brought it to the Unitarian Church in Summit. It was a stunning success. I first saw "The Trial of the Catonsville Nine" in New York City as it was staged off-broadway in another church auditorium. That production was nothing short of electrifying. Daniel Berrigan, already a leading reform Catholic priest, a saint in the peace movement, and an uncommon poet, had crafted a genuinely exciting, balanced, witty, powerful narrative recreating his trial with his older brother Phillip and seven others. The Berrigan play so clearly documents the dilemma of the issues (the Vietnam war; pacific resistance to it; American economic and political dominance; the Christian act for a committed Catholic; the necessity to take a stand) for the court (can the law accommodate; may an unlawful act destroying property be tolerated; in judgment must we follow conscience or law). Not only does the torment of the Berrigans and the other protestors become obvious, but the play precisely details the anguish of the court. Gilda Biro is to be credited for mounting "The Trial of the Catonsville Nine" in a manner so as to allow the ideas to be paramount (Berrigan's play really demands this type of treatment, cutting back and forth as it does and thus in a sense denying the usual courtroom drama routines). The actors, too, understood the necessity for them to submit to the material. All were commendable, but Ralph Pape as Daniel Berrigan and Aaron Heyman as the Judge demonstrated with wit and force special insight into their more fully developed roles. Peter Bricker, Sandra Pruzansky Bricker, Tom Gillooly, Marita Friedler, Dick Nystrom and John Friedler (subbing for Thomas Gillooly Sr. as the prosecutor) of Summit competently joined with the other cast members in ensemble acting to make "The Trial of the Catonsville Nine" a memorable and meaningful evening for the enthusiastic audience, and for me.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC SERVICE ELECTRIC AND GAS COMPANY CUSTOMERS

PROPOSED RATE INCREASES

Public Service Electric and Gas Company filed a Petition with the New Jersey Board of Public Utility Commissioners on June 16, 1972 requesting a general increase in the charges for electric and gas service.

The cost of supplying electricity and gas continues to rise, due to increases in labor and maintenance costs, the price of materials, and taxes. Furthermore, the cost of obtaining money to finance a vital expansion program is high. We plan construction expenditures of approximately $2.5 billion for the 1972-1976 period, the largest five-year total in our history. Most of this amount will have to be raised by the sale of stocks and bonds, the latter at interest rates that have nearly doubled in recent years. Our construction expenditures will reflect the cost of keeping pace with New Jersey's growing demand for energy, while minimizing the impact of our operations on the environment.

The Company has requested an overall increase of 10.2% providing for electric revenue increases of 10.3% and gas revenue increases of 10.1%. The tabulations below show the proposed monthly increases for residential customers that would apply to various dollar amounts. Rate increases for other than residential customers would approximate the percentages shown above, depending upon the specific rate schedules involved.

It is expected that the New Jersey Board of Public Utility Commissioners will schedule hearings on our rate increase request. Present electric and gas rates will remain in effect until the Board approves the new rates.

Copies of our Petition to the Board, showing proposed increases in electric and gas rate schedules, are available for review in every Public Service Electric and Gas Company Commercial Office.

Family Health Center

More Than Hanging Out a Shingle

By Barbara Young
When Overlook Hospital initiated its new Family Health Center, it knew it would have to do more than just hang out a shingle stating "open for business."

With the aim of bringing preventive medicine to low income families in the Summit and Vauxhall areas, the Family Health Center decided to reach out into the community for members by employing para-professionals to spread the word door to door.

Dressed in the blue uniform of the public health nurse, which makes them easily identifiable, Mrs. Sarah China and Mrs. Graciella Reyes have been making house calls as field workers to explain the Center, enlist "members" for the clinic, and make appointments for them to come in for an initial check-up.

Mrs. China, a resident of Summit for 21 years, and Mrs. Reyes, who's lived here seven-years since leaving her native Cuba, were both selected in cooperation with community groups. Indeed, the idea of a Family Health Center was planned for four years with the community prior to its recent opening in Summit last October and in Vauxhall this past April.

Goal is 1,000
Its goal is 1,000 members for the year, as outlined in the state grant which funded the pilot project. Thus far 259 members are enrolled in the program at the hospital in Summit and at a former Baptist church in Vauxhall which has been converted to the Family Health Clinic.

Adjustments Needed
During the relatively short time it's been in operation, it has become apparent that certain adjustments in the program need to be made to reach more people and increase its effectiveness.

According to Mrs. Eleanor Claus, Overlook's Director of Community Nursing, eligibility requirements have been one stumbling block to adding more members to the Center. Others include the need for more staff and difficulties in overcoming the attitude which says, "I'm not sick, why should I see a doctor?"

To Overlook's credit, it is moving to increase the eligibility requirements, which are based on family income. The adjustment is necessary because the hospital realizes that while incomes in the area are more than expected, they are still not sufficient to provide many families with adequate medical care and "we don't want to deny good care to anyone," Mrs. Claus said.

Increased Time Sought
Furthermore, she would like to see the staff increased and the hours of doctor time, doctor only if one is sick, presently on a volunteer basis, also increased. The job of the field workers.

Overcoming that hurdle is the Mrs. Sarah China has had the greatest difficulty in Thursdays, including reaching elderly residents of the community who have what might be called "fear of the unknown." Many don't want to know about problem areas if they are currently feeling all right. Indeed, when most do come in they do return but less reluctantly, and problems do reveal themselves.

Expands Nurse Role
On duty all day when the Health Center is open is a nurse-practitioner, Judy Werner, who in an expanded role of the nurse, gives primary care under the physicians direction. Miss Werner interviews the member, arranges for any tests, and suggests problem areas to the physicians.

The term "member" is preferred to patients to counteract the prevailing attitude that one sees a

Language Barrier
Mrs. Graciella Reyes visits the 153 families of Summit's growing Spanish-speaking population. "It's very hard for them to see private doctors because they need to take an interpreter with them," she explained. At the Overlook Family Health Center, Mrs. Reyes is on hand to overcome the communication's barrier.

While Mrs. China finds repeated incidences of hypertension and overweight among the elderly, Mrs. Reyes very often comes across emotional problems in members she sees. Primarily, these are due to problems in adjusting to life in suburbia in a new and strange country. Upper respiratory problems are also part of adjusting to a new climate. In addition, Spanish-speaking residents often work for companies which provide medical benefits of which they are unaware.

That they do come in initially, is largely due to Mrs. China's persistence combined with a bit of psychology. "I hate to give up until I've accomplished something," she stated. The field workers for Summit and Vauxhall, have been given one-months' training followed by in-service education.

Detroit University was founded in 1877.

IT HELPS TO FIND A FAMILIAR FACE—Overlook's Family Health workers comfort young patient Orlando Salcedo of 216 Morris avenue, one of their family plan enrollees as he recently came to Overlook for emergency treatment of an arm injury. margin of victory. Patrick Ocasio. After two walks, Vic Anderson singled to send Chiappa home with the winning run. Ernie Moyer and John Kessler hit two-run homers for Balish.

West Summit Garage had up-ended the Sounds a day earlier with Don Geddis notching the win over Ed Torres. The Garagemen fell behind, 1-0, in the top of the first when Ed Shupe tripled and Vic Anderson doubled.

The lead was short-lived, as Willie Horn boomed a three-run home run in the bottom of the inning to give West Summit Garage a lead it never relinquished.

Shupe doubled home two runs in the fourth inning, but West Summit had scored again in the third inning and added an insurance run in the fourth to win 5-3. Shupe had a triple and double for the Sounds and Connie and Willie Horn collected two hits each for the Garagemen.

The Italian American Club came back from the brink of defeat to score two runs in the bottom of the seventh to tie Dill Contractors, 6-6. Fireballing Tom Dochak looked to be in complete command until he walked the bases loaded in the last frame with one out.

Art Lepore then came through a base hit to knot the score. Dochak then got the next two hitters with the winning run on base to halt the IACF one run short of victory.

Bob Davenport was the opposing moundsman as the Italian Americans played to their third tie. Jim Brannon, Bob Foster and Tom Armstrong each had two hits for Dill Contractors. Seven IACF players shared in the seven-hit attack.

YMCA Swimming Program Changing

The national YMCA progressive swim program has undergone a revolutionary change in scope and concept, according to Louis T. Choquette, Summit Area director, who has just returned from the Middle Atlantic YMCA Aquatic Instructors Recertification Institute held at Penn State University last week. Accompanying him was Mrs. Joseph Coporaso, swimming instructor at the Summit Area "Y."

The up-dated program will be instituted at the Summit YMCA beginning in the fall with all aquatic directors, instructors, and leaders required to recertify during the next few months, Choquette explained.

The new philosophical base for YMCA instruction will stress endurance, personal safety, and lifesaving as well as swim skills from beginning classes on.

Included in all class levels will be movement education, use of flotation devices for beginners, peer grouping, increased emphasis and work for endurance and fitness by using kickboards and doing series, swimming, and drills to problem solving.

More time of each class will be spent in the water, with multi-skill tests replacing the current more frequent single skill tests.

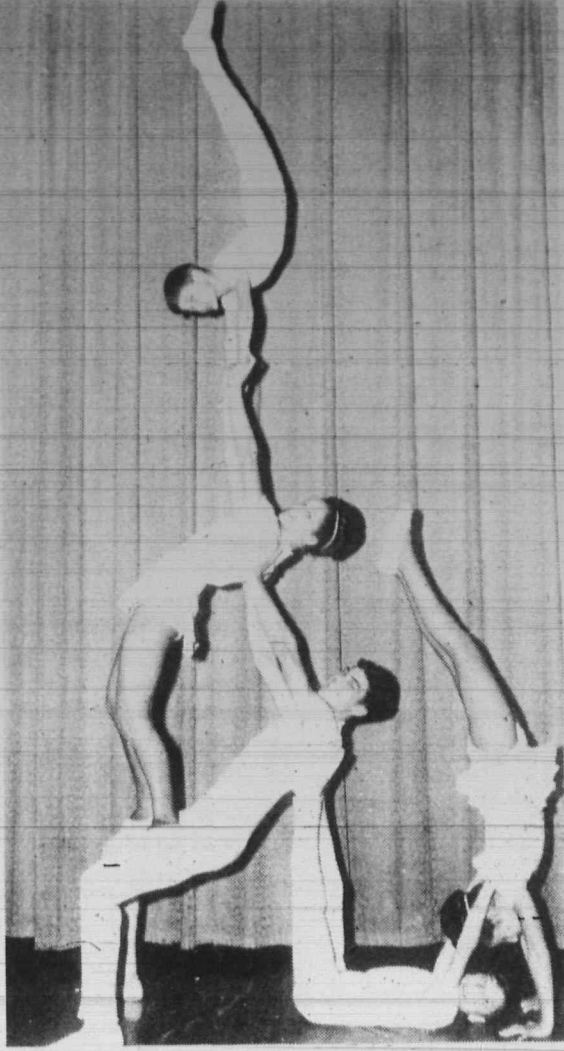

One of the greatest objectives will be to disseminate water safety information to as many persons as possible, regardless of age, swimming ability, skill or physical limitation.

"Drown-proofing," teaching resuscitation and basic assists, will be stressed from the beginning level through all progressive classes building up to senior lifesaving which will also be upgraded.

Updated methods and requirements have also been built into all aquatic instructor and leader courses.

According to Choquette, the YMCA is probably 10 years ahead of other aquatic agencies in updating its entire aquatic program.

Choquette points out that

ON HAND FOR JULY 4TH - The Pisani Family of acrobats will be on hand July 4th to help Summit celebrate Independence Day with an all-day program at Memorial Field. The day-long festivities will begin at 9:45 a.m. and will include a rock concert at 1:30 p.m., a circus at 4:15 p.m., a concert at 7:45 p.m. with an aerial act at 8:55 p.m., all to be climaxed with a fireworks display at 9:10 p.m. An appeal for funds to support the annual event has been mailed to all Summit residents. Official identification tags will be mailed to all contributors.

Swim Lessons To Be Offered

The Summit Community Pool will offer a free instruction program for children of member families beginning Tuesday, June 27. Registrants will be accepted until Sunday, June 25, at the pool. Application blanks are available at the main desk of the pool. There will be two five-week sessions so that every child will have a chance to participate. Classes will be held to a maximum of 10 children. All registrations will be processed on a first come, first served basis. In order to participate, a child must have reached the age of five years by September 1, 1972.

There are five levels of instruction: from the Primary Course, which will introduce small children to the water, to the Super Swimmer Course, which will attempt to increase the student's endurance and versatility in the swimming strokes.

Any questions about the program will be answered by Joe Della Badia, Manager, or Walt Clarkson, Assistant Manager, at the pool.

Reid Hurls Shut Out; Elks Win Opener, 3-0

The Summit Elks battled both the elements and the Cranford Cobras last week to begin their defense of the Intra-County Baseball League championship.

Mike Reid took the mound for the Elks in the opening assignment and proceeded to hurl a three-hit shut out. He picked up where he left off as one of Summit High's standout pitchers as Summit won 3-0.

The game began in a light rain. After Summit scored three times in the first two innings, the rain stopped to allow the game to be completed.

Summit tallied twice in the first inning. Jim Gross led off with a double down the right-field line. Steve Baker delivered Gross with the Elks' first run of the year with a single. Larry O'Mahoney, used as courtesy runner for Baker, then scored run number two, when he stole second and Willie Wilson belted a long single.

Reid gave up a hit and base on balls in the first inning and set the side down in order in the second for no damage. Summit then scored again in the bottom of the second when Jim Gross reached base on a fielder's choice, raced to third on Col Leisher's hit-and-run single, and scored on Baker's sacrifice fly.

Summit Threatens

Summit threatened throughout the game as it collected seven hits. Cranford hurler McNally kept Summit at bay for the rest of the game as he and Reid matched shutout innings.

The Cobras threatened in the fourth inning when they had the bases loaded with one out. Restelli hit a fly ball to right field where John Carr caught it and then made a strong throw to catcher Wilson to keep the runner from scoring. Reid then got McNally to pop to Leisher to end the threat.

Jim Gross led the Elk attack with a double and single in four at bats. He could have had two more hits but shortstop Rich Mazzella made two fine defensive plays.

The Elks were scheduled to play Roselle at Roselle last night and are playing Rahway tonight at Veterans' Field. On Saturday, Summit will travel to Teener Field in Union to play the Union VFW, and Monday, June 26, will travel to Scotch Plains.

Ed Lyons To Coach Upsala '9'

Ed Lyons, Summit-High basketball coach, has been named head baseball coach at Upsala College, East Orange. He had been assistant baseball coach at Upsala for the past 12 years.

Pintos, Comets, Chargers Win Final Contests

The Summit Recreation Sixth and Seventh Grade Baseball League ended with the Pintos edging the Cougars, 8-6; the Comets nosing out the Hornets, 11-10, and the Chargers trimming the Mustangs, 15-9.

The Pintos and Cougars each had eight hits but the Pintos had the difference in Mike Horn. Mike belted two home runs, one of which was a grand-slam, as he accounted for six runs. Chris Lose was the winning pitcher, striking out nine. Mark Jeffrey was the losing hurler.

The Hornets were leading the Comets by six runs in the sixth inning and then proceeded to go downhill as the Comets won 11-10. Craig Johnson was the winning Lyons will succeed Donald "Doak" Walker, who is retiring after 26 years at Upsala. Walker, whose teams had a 364-190 record during his long career, will continue as athletic director at Upsala.

In 1971 Walker was selected as Coach of the Year by the American Association of College Baseball Coaches.

Lyons, who brought Summit's basketball program out of the doldrums last season when the Hilltoppers posted a 21-2 record and won the Suburban Conference title with a 14-0 mark, is a former professional baseball player.

He also has managed minor league teams for four major league teams and currently is directing a team in the Cape Cod, Mass., League; which is one of six collegiate summer leagues sponsored by the major leagues.

No matter which new Audi you choose you still get 7 cars.

Every one of the Audis you see below has a lot in common with 7 of the finest cars in the world.

1. They all have the same type of steering system as the racing Ferrari.
2. They all have the same type of brakes as the racing Porsche.
3. They all have front-wheel drive like the Cadillac Eldorado.
4. They all have independent front suspension like the Aston Martin.
5. They all have an interior that bears a remarkable resemblance to the Mercedes-Benz 280SE.
6. They all have just about the same headroom and legroom as the Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow.
7. They all get the same kind of expert service as a Volkswagen.

Now we'd like to tell you the difference between each one of our models. Our Audi 100LS is the car you've heard so much about. Well, this year we gave it a larger engine as well as a better ventilation system.

Our two other Audis are completely new models.

There's the Audi 100 which doesn't cost quite as much as our 100LS because it isn't quite as fancy. But like we said, it has the same outstanding features as some of the world's most expensive cars. And there's the Audi 100GL. It's got a vinyl roof, a center console, tinted windows and an automatic transmission—all as standard equipment. So naturally, it costs a little more than the other Audis.

The Audi 100, the Audi 100LS, the Audi 100GL.

No matter which one you buy, you get a lot of cars for the money.

On the "Lamb" Some of the What's and How's
WHAT IS LAMB?
Lamb is delicate, flavorful, and easy to prepare. It can also be economical as well as elegant. If knowing how to buy and prepare lamb cuts, other than chops, is a problem for you, we may have help.

WHAT ABOUT ECONOMY?
The economical lamb combination package is two meals in one. It includes neck pieces for a stew and shoulder chops for broiling (delicious and tender if marinated first!). Any of the lamb breast shank or neck cuts can be used in stews, stuffing or for braising.

CAN'T USE A WHOLE LEG OF LAMB?
Use one half for a roast, cut up the other half into cubes for shish kebabs or fondue. You can also buy a butt-portion or shank portion, which is half of a leg. For leftovers, add oil to sour cream and serve with cold lamb slices.

WHAT ABOUT IMAGINATION?
Try some new and different lamb cuts during our lamb sale. Use your imagination, some subtle herbs and spices and "voila" — some savory lamb meals at considerable savings. Ask any of the meat personnel if you have questions. They will be glad to help you. Good luck and enjoy!

Nature Club to Again Sponsor Audubon Wildlife Film Series

The Summit Nature Club will present the nationally famous Audubon Wildlife Film lectures to children of four public school systems in the vicinity next season. Continuing its practice of the last two school years, programs will be presented at Summit, Chatham Township, Millburn and Maplewood schools. The motion picture nature lectures have been given during the last two years at Chatham, New Providence, Summit and Berkeley Heights school systems. Leonard Soucy, the club's conservation chairman, says that funds to cover the costs of these popular and effective educational programs are provided from the Conservation Fund, sources of which include proceeds from ticket sales to the evening Wildlife Film series, now entering its 24th season.

Program for the 1972-73 evening series includes the most widely known ornithologist in the U.S., Dr. Roger Tory Peterson. Dr. Peterson is author of the "Field Guide to the Birds" series, and an outstanding photographer, painter and naturalist. He will speak and show a movie on November 20 on "Wild Africa Today". Other films will be "The Living Jungle" by Greg McMillan on October 31, "Bermuda, Land and Sea" by William J. Jahoda on February 22, 1973, "Three Seasons North" by Dee Jay Nelson on March 26, 1973, and "Small World" by Fran William Hall on April 17, 1973.

All programs will be in the Junior High School at 8:15 p.m. Season tickets for the five lectures are $4 and are available from Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Johnson, 102 Oakland street, Berkeley Heights, phone 464-2870.
