ELBOW-ROOM FOR PEACE

Why does the very “breath” of peace seem to be scaring lots of people out of their crisis-conditioned ways? Simply because they fear “that our system can not be sustained unless continued huge expenditure for national defense.”

This bug-a-boo is met head-on by Robert C. Jackson of Washington, head man of the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute, who declares economic security lies in our continued “ability to grow.” Speaking before a group of textile manufacturers, Mr. Jackson stressed a single reform of the Old World.

Liberal and flexible allowances for depreciation, now rigidly controlled by tax laws and Treasury regulations, would give us the new tools industry needs to make every worker more productive and thus provide “and better things for more people.” Such liberalization would immediately provide “more and better service for New Jersey.”

Q—If both Hawaii and Alaska become states, who will decide the arrangement of the stars on our flag?
A—Congress can claim original jurisdiction or originality in setting the location of the stars. In June, 1777, the Continental Congress adopted a resolution saying: "The Bag of the 13 United States shall be 13 stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." But Congress has never passed a law saying specifically where they should be. Two bills have been introduced for realignment of the stars into a pattern of 40.

Q—What kind of progress is President Eisenhower making in his legislative proposals?
A—Four days of hearings on bills to give Alaska statehood have been scheduled to start April 14 before the Territories Subcommittee of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. In addition, the Committee plans to hold hearings in principal Alaskan cities in August.

Q—What kind of progress is President Eisenhower making with his legislative proposals?
A—By the end of the first quarter of 1953, the President had won Congressional approval of two of 19 specific legislative proposals. The 83rd Congress had taken action at all, not even held hearings on 11 Presidential recommendations for legislation.

Q—Are any representatives of church groups registered as lobbyists?
A—Officials of nearly every major denomination have Washington offices where they can keep close watch on legislative developments. Most of these groups have officials who have at some time registered under the Federal Regulation of Lobbying law.

Q—I understand President Eisenhower has submitted another reorganization plan to Congress. What does this one provide for?
A—April 2 the President sent Congress a plan to reorganize the Office of Defense Mobilization. It would merge the functions of the ODM and the National Security Resources Board and would give ODM permanent status. ODM would direct strategic materials stocking, a job now handled by the Departments of Defense and Interior. The ODM plan was the President's third. The first, already approved by Congress, was for a Department of Health, Education and Welfare; the second, called for reorganization of the Department of Agriculture.
