Farewell To Waldwick!.....And Then.....

As we walk along the corridors of our beloved Waldwick School we see a group of teachers, Lou Parrillo, Donna Aiello, Rosemary Shelly, and Laura Chaparian, talking about the school basketball and softball tournament. The physical education instructors Sandy Zacco, Rich Craig, and Tony Barchetto have been busy planning the event. Suddenly Linda Schocklin, school counter-spy comes screeching down the hall in search of Joe Borrelli, our public defender. "I just came from the girls' room and I saw a flying saucer go by!" she screamed. Jim Vermilyea and Al Mader, two of our school doctors, came rushing up to help her. Of course by now the hall was in its usual confusing state. Thomas Torregrossa and Jim Robinson came running down the corridors. "She's right, there is a flying saucer trying to land out there."

Two photographers, Billy Spada and Tommy Welch dashed down the stairs to get a picture of the outer planetary vehicle. Bob Haase, aeronautical engineer followed them. Actually it was just another calm day at our school but Harriet Morgan and Ardith Pooley, two nurses dashed outside also.

Even Lloyd Feder the school baker came out from the cafeteria to see the unusual sight. Then Jamie Sives, George Kevins, and Nora Ackerman, some brilliant college professors from nearby, made their way through the crowd. Anxiously everyone awaited the landing of the saucer shaped object. James Maguire called for some auto mechanics and electronics, and John Robertazza and Danny Bleyhl rushed to the scene.

Finally the moment arrived and the pink saucer landed with a thud and who should tumble out but Diane Sorensen, headgear and all. "Where have you been?" everyone asked. "Oh, at pilots' school." Then her comrades, Bob Cottrell and John Davidson, stumbled out dizzily. "What's it like in outer space?" Steve Kimbro asked. "It's different," John answered, "but nice." The saucer's nurse Judy Pepe came flopping out of the vehicle. "And I thought you were the nurse, you look sicker than everyone else aboard." Robert Zeller said, "Very funny!" Judy exclaimed.

Meanwhile, Ned Vaivoda, a West Point cadet, and his pals Richard Schneider, a Naval officer, and Brian Jacobs, a sailor, had been talking to a group of career girls. Among them were Susan Helwig, a New York model, and Anne Krauss, a noted actress. Many other well known celebrities were in the crowd. Bob Derow, a great baseball player was accompanied by Arthur Nazzaro, sports writer for Fishy Magazines, Inc. It was decided that we would show the saucer crew, Judy, John, Diane, and Bob, around our great town.

We'll begin with the school. "Ugh!" said Frank Iovine. In the auditorium, Cathy Foresta, our new music teacher, was arguing with another teacher, Nancy Jones, about the chorus. "I think they sing very well," Cathy said, sticking up for her group. "Sure, they all have beautiful voices, but why is it every time they sing the aquarium in my room falls over?" "Well, they're powerful, I guess," Cathy answered.

From here we go upstairs to the new science laboratory, where we see scientist Diane Love and Richard Hampel, who is a land and climate expert, performing an experiment. Before we dare imagine the possible results, let's travel on. In the teachers' room we see Barbara Smith, Margaret Brehm, and Bob Nelson cooking their lunch. Golly--I thought home ec cooking was bad!

Now we all climb into the pink flying saucer for a short trip around Waldwick. As we pass the Municipal Building, we see lawyer Elaine Garofalo bringing up a case in court. It seems that dentist Guy Werner drilled right through Jim Edward's mouth. Poor Jim is all wrapped up in bandages, but with a little of Elaine's help he has a good chance of winning the case.

Not far away we see the beauty shop. Here Anne Ambrosio and Cathy Moore are busy giving Don Nydam a manicure.

Our new hospital is our next stop off. We see some of the nurses, Karen Grimsdale, Judy Kihm, and Judy Alexander watching Steve Sherman, who was giving a demonstration of his snakes. Hilda and Melvin, the cutest of them all had gone chasing up the hospital corridor after Dr. Ronald Weisinger and Dr. Edward Picard. Then we all made our way down to the dog kennels. Here Joan Kieck, Judy Webster and Lance Penhale, the veterinarians, are chasing some turtles and frogs down the hall. Oops-squish-"Well, poor Franklin had to go sometime." Judy said.

Stopping off at a nearby farm we see Arthur Pope and Fred Guenthner feeding the pigs. What a nice job!

At the Center Drugstore Paul Fischer and Robert Axberg are somewhere behind the counter filling out prescriptions. When Diane Sorensen, our pilot, tried to start "PINKIE", our flying saucer, from the drugstore, she just wouldn't go. Much to our distress she wouldn't budge. We called for Ronald Paras and Richard Mahlschnee, engineers, to help us.

Before they came, Norman Mansfield rushed to the scene, and had taken our vehicle apart into about 25 pieces. But somehow he got it back together again, chugging better than ever. "Oh, I fix about 10 flying saucers a day." he said lightly.

From here we whizzed on to designing school. Here we see interior decorators Carol Roche, and Paulette Stevalet, architects LeRoy Freer and Pat Brady, and fashion designer Jeanne Politis. They are all drawing or scribbling something from what we see.

Now we spin around on "Pinkie" and land at engineers' school where we see Russell Greaves, Fred Gould, and Bill Pyne trying to put an alarm clock together, what a mess! Imagine how they'll do in electronics.

Stopping off at our historical museum we see archeologist Ronald Maas looking through some old bones. "Eeee!" Two housewives, Judy Klem and Laverne Schnare, race down the stairs and away from those squirming bones. On the way they see zoologist Richard Springmeyer visiting in the pre-historic section of the museum.

At our chemical nature laboratory John Bailey and Botanist Harry Howe are busy talking to a few of their secretaries, Dolores Iovine, Michelle Gers, Lynn Smith, Dorothy Feder, Lorraine Boyle, and Anita Feathers. They seem to be having a good time. Now we will return once more to our beloved Waldwick School.

As we enter Waldwick School we stop to take a look in some of the classrooms. On our first stop we find Elaine Schust teaching an eighth grade math class. My but they do look confused, and Gary Smith seems to be having too much fun with his pea shooter to pay attention. Farther on we find Justine Cobb who is just trying to teach. Mariann Schwinge is putting on her first "Spring Musical" and Rosemary Carino who is a famous dance instructor has come back to her home town to help Mariann. We find electrician Gary Entenmann helping with the lighting effects.

Kathy Smith, much to our surprise, is teaching English. Barbara Lang seems to be having a great time on the trampoline demonstrating a seat drop. Barbara seems to have enjoyed it too much so we called in our school nurse Jean Hamilton and school doctors Pieter Jager and Ed Myjack. After examining Barbara they tell our school secretaries Bonnie Barsten and Joan Dawson to call the drugstore and order a prescription from pharmacist David Carter.

Then lawyer Charles Banino is called to handle Barbara's case and we find Linda Cederburg his secretary. Charlie has to take a plane which was constructed by Bob Picicchio. His pilot is army officer Jim Bussing. At the airport Charlie is driven to our school in a car designed by Craig Jester. As he reaches the school he sees our garbage man Dave Coomber stopping by to do his job. As Charlie enters our school who does he find standing in the middle of the hall but millionaire Ronnie Eldridge who is talking to electronics engineer Bruce Bogart, technical engineer Gary Hickerson, an engineer George Springmeyer. Reaching the gym Charlie finds Bill Hall, our school coach, talking to athlete Antoinette Pretko, and Rich Domanski, who is still trying to get through high school. Rich has recently seen merchant marine Dick Clark, carpenter Chet Stagg and Louis DeMeo, mechanical engineer, he is telling how successful they have become.

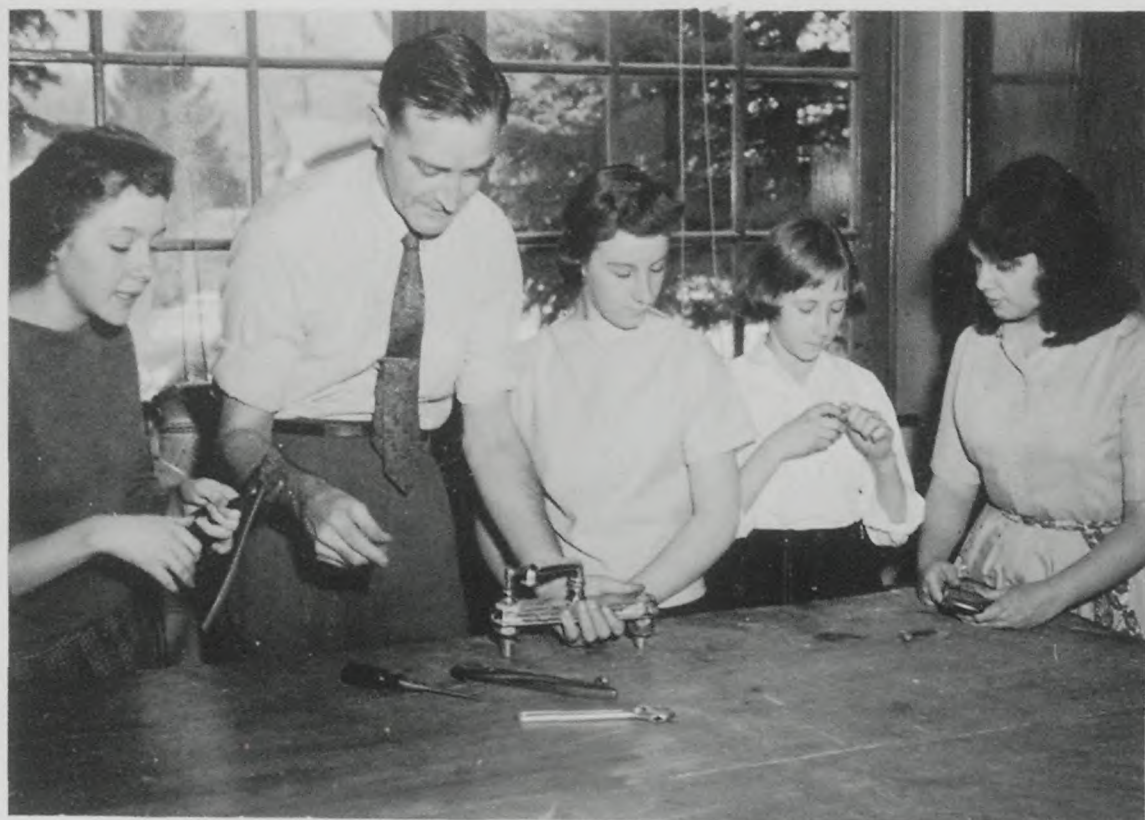

Finally Charlie reaches Barbara, but there seems to be some commotion out in the hall. We find career girl Verne Henshall talking to builder Richard Beir. Rich has recently constructed Bill Bogart's bakery. Rich decides it's time for a vacation, his companion will be famous fishing writer Jay Burman. We find Martin DeHeer and Judy Andersen are still taking life easy while poor Paulette Rosen is going to college, leggings and all.

We say farewell to Waldwick School and travel on. Riding through town we pass an exclusive beauty salon and find Coreen Wediemier, Judy DiPippo, Pat Yeomans, and Carol Stevens, four very successful beauticians. We also notice some construction work going on, where we find Bruce Corbett supervising, and construction engineers Greg Dimick and Ronnie Gilchrist. Continuing on our way we pass an insurance company where Lynn Jopling, Pat Crawford and Donna Whitfield are secretaries. Across the street from this insurance office is a doctor's office. Here we find Doctor Barbara Gisler and nurse Sue Thompson. We decide to stop to talk to Barbara, she informs us that she has just come back from a sick call at John Rich's farm. She also informs us of a country school where she found Carolyn DiCrosta, and Janice Hoebel teaching kindergarten. Joe Cervati and Dennis Morrow have taken over the physical education department quite well. Dennis told Barbara their school basketball team won 6 games out of 8 and Joe said he has finally conquered the art of tumbling. Traveling up to the mathematics department Barbara said she found Diana Shiphorst teaching Algebra.

After learning that everyone has turned out successful we leave Waldwick bidding farewell and good luck to all.
