It's (tax) payback time

Council OKs plan to refund future property tax overpayments

By KEVIN COLLIGAN
THE RECORD

This is the time of year when lucky Westfielders are pleasantly surprised by dollar bills which spent the summer in a winter coat. But that sensation should pale in comparison to the jolt hundreds of town residents will receive when they find the dollar bills that spent a summer — or two, or three — tucked within the pockets of the local government.

Starting in mid-November, for the first time in at least a quarter of a century, the Town of Westfield will begin systematically notifying property owners who overpay their taxes.

The reform comes 103 days after The Record published the first of a series of reports on the council's practice of absorbing tax overpayments without notifying persons who overpaid.

Announcing the overpayment reform package at Tuesday's council conference meeting, Finance Committee Chairman James Gruba said the tax collector will start tracking down property owners who overpaid taxes in the last three years with the aid of an "interim" computer. Persons found to have overpaid will be notified by mail shortly thereafter and asked if they wish to claim the overpaid taxes.

No mention was made of taxpayers who paid too much before 1993. Eight hundred seventy property owners overpaid a total of $352,168.82 in taxes between 1983 and 1992 — the nine-year span examined by The Record. All of that money was transferred by the Town Council to the town's general surplus account.

Every current council member has voted to transfer at least one year's worth of tax overpayments to surplus. Each vote in the past decade was unanimous. Never once in that 10-year span was the resolution to transfer overpaid funds voted on as a separate item.

The council halted its practice of shifting overpayments to surplus after The Record detailed its transfer of more than $90,000 of 1992 overpayments in a unanimous June 20 vote. Monies to be refunded from 1993, 1994 and 1995 remain in separate overpayment accounts.

How taxes are overpaid

Most Westfielders pay their property taxes through mortgage companies. These companies collect taxes with each monthly mortgage payment. Tax money is held in an escrow account and then forwarded to the town each quarter.

When financial companies swap mortgages — which they often do — there is the risk the selling and purchasing mortgage company will duplicate a tax payment. The property owner's escrow account may be doubled-billed for one tax payment, but since he or she never pays (Please turn to page A-3)

Westfielder in race for freeholder

Six candidates, including two from local towns, are vying for three Board of Chosen Freeholder seats.

Westfield attorney Carol Cohen is focusing much of her campaign on law enforcement and the need for investment in the county's infrastructure.

She also hopes to counter the surge in domestic violence incidents reported in the county. She pointed to a program in Elizabeth in which officials from the Union County Sheriff's office accompany local police on all domestic violence calls as one she would like to apply to the rest of the county.

Ms. Cohen is a volunteer in the Westfield Symphony Guild and the Coalition for the Homeless. The Westfielder graduated Magna Cum Laude from Douglass College, received a master's degree in history from New York University and a law degree from Seton Hall University Law School.

"The county's 7 percent unemployment rate is the highest in our region. There is a 5.4 percent unemployment rate in the state," said Mr. McNeil. "And the county has a zero percent job creation rate, which is horrible."

Mr. McNeil earned a bachelor's degree from Bates College in Maine and a master's degree in public administration from Kean College.

Vendor: Butt out

Cigarette seller sues over vending machine ban

By KEVIN COLLIGAN
THE RECORD

Louis Mancinelli sat smoldering as one New Jersey municipality after another adopted ordinances barring cigarette vending machines.

When the Westfield Town Council passed an ordinance of its own, the owner of General Food Vending Inc. had enough. He decided to sue.

"These small town, part-time politicians are using my livelihood as a springboard to be political heroes," said Mr. Mancinelli. "We sued because we saw a domino effect. We saw a monkey-see, monkey-do attitude which is prevalent among small-town politicians."

General Food Vending of Mountainside and CIC Corp. of Springfield are seeking to overturn the town's ordinance banning the machines. The Town Council adopted the ordinance Sept. 12.

Mr. Mancinelli said his attorney Keith Biebelberg would be in court Friday to seek a temporary injunction to stop the enforcement of the new law. As of The Record's deadline, Town Attorney Charles Brandt was unaware of a Friday court date.

Mayor Garland "Bud" Boothe, who voted against the ordinance, said Westfield's ban would withstand the legal challenge. "This case will be thrown out on its ear," he said. "Which is exactly where it belongs."

At the time of the vote, ban supporter Fourth Ward Councilman Gary Jenkins said, "If the town bans these machines, it will send a message that we do not want to see a sale of cigarettes through either a machine or a person to any minor."

Though the state supreme court upheld an East Brunswick ban in 1993, the cigarette machine vendors are using a new tack. This time, they are arguing the state can regulate — but not eliminate — cigarette vending machines.

"I think we have a very strong position," said Mr. Brandt. Though, he added, "there is no guaranteeing these things."

This is not Mr. Mancinelli's first tangle with the Westfield council. In 1980, he successfully sued to reduce Westfield's annual $1,100 registration fee for coin operated video game machines. The fee was reduced to $500.

ShopRite proposal to go before Garwood planners

By KEVIN COLLIGAN
THE RECORD

The drawn-out ShopRite supermarket saga enters its latest — and perhaps last — phase next week when Village Supermarkets presents an amended application to the Garwood Planning Board to build an all-borough supermarket.

If legal arguments go Village Supermarkets' way, the new mart may be in the express lane.

Village Supermarkets originally applied to build a 58,000-square-foot structure along North Avenue on the Westfield/Garwood border. Westfield denied the application. Garwood approved it. Now the developer is eyeing a North Avenue site just across the Garwood border.

Three legal arguments should dominate the public hearing scheduled for the Oct. 25 planning board meeting, according to Garwood Planner Bill Nierstedt. The planner anticipated attorneys for and against the mart would argue over:

- whether Village Supermarkets can present an amended application moving the market from the Westfield/Garwood border to its new site or if it will have to file an all-new application;
- whether or not Village Supermarkets will have to duplicate testimony given for the original application;
- whether or not Westfielders opposing the supermarket have legal standing to voice their opposition. (Please turn to page A-3)

Principal hopes discipline plan will help his students 'CLICK'

By KEVIN COLLIGAN
THE RECORD

When an adolescent misbehaved in school in the late 1960s, most teachers would come down on him like a ton of bricks.

While that approach seemed to work then, Edison Intermediate School Principal Sam Hazell believes it is doomed to fail with the highly stressed student of the '90s.

"In the past, teachers would confront students who were acting violently, physically or verbally, at some high pitch, yelling at him to 'sit down and shut up or you'll be thrown out of here.' Today, that's only going to make a bad situation worse," said Mr. Hazell. "Teachers are losing jobs. There has been serious violence against school teachers and administrators. And the end result has been no change in the student's behavior."

For these reasons, and a parental desire for tightened discipline, Edison School launched Comprehensive Learning and Inter-tions for Correcting Kids (CLICK), a behavior modification program designed to deal with today's students.

"The program is premised on the fact societal pressures today are different for 10, 15, 30 years ago," said Mr. Hazell. "Students bring to school with them knowledge, attitudes, stress and pressures that were non-existent 10, 15, 20 years ago. What appeared to work 15-20 years ago, no longer necessarily works — or totally fails — today."

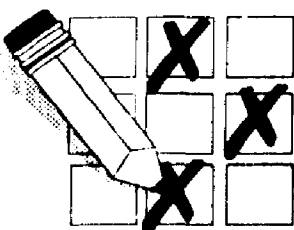

CLICK changes the way teachers have traditionally interacted with their students. "In order for students to change, teachers have to change their attitudes," said Mr. Hazell. "CLICK introduces a whole different set of intervention strategies that many successful teachers have already used intuitively."

Rather than huff and puff and shout an unruly pupil down, teachers will build a rapport with the student. Problems are handled by teachers before they get to the (Please turn to page A-2) taxes directly to the town, the error is hard to catch.

Westfield Tax Collector Violet Jacob told The Record her office was simply unable to keep up with the volume of duplicate tax payments made by rapidly changing mortgage companies.

But two neighboring towns of comparable size routinely identify overpayers and return their money. Scotch Plains traces all overpayments in excess of $5. Cranford traces overpayments in excess of $3. Overpayments absorbed by Westfield in 1992, for example, range from a penny to $4,462.39.

Technology and taxes

Before the tax collector's office received an "interim" computer last month, all tax collection records were posted by hand. A permanent machine has been budgeted for the office next year "to assist with the tracking and identification of overpaid taxes," said Mr. Gruba.

Town Administrator Edward Gottko said all municipal offices were slated to become computerized, but the overpayment flap has accelerated that process in the tax collector's office.

Councilman Gary Jenkins urged the administrator not to go too far in tracking down tax overpayers. He said taxpayers must understand they are partially responsible for keeping track of overpayments.

"We shouldn't be doing people's accounting for them," said Mr. Jenkins.

Mr. Gottko downplayed the scope of the town's absorbed overpayment problem. "Let's look at the magnitude of the problem," he said. "In 1993, only 60 properties out of 10,000 overpaid their taxes."

Councilman Neil Sullivan praised the Finance Committee for avoiding a "knee-jerk" solution to the problem and acting "in a very professional manner."

Referring to criticism levied at the council in the wake of the tax flap, Mr. Sullivan said, "There was a lot of huffing and puffing from people who didn't necessarily know enough about the situation to comment on it."

ShopRite to go before Garwood planners

The speed with which the Garwood board accepts or rejects the latest Village Supermarkets application depends primarily on the first argument, according to Mr. Nierstedt. "It all boils down to whether this is a new application or an amended application," said Mr. Nierstedt.

Planning Board Attorney Craig Greenawalt will act as an informal judge at the hearing, listening to the legal arguments and coming up with a recommendation as to how the Planning Board should proceed. The Planning Board can accept or reject Mr. Greenawalt's recommendations.

The legal wrangling should eat up most, if not all, of the meeting. It is doubtful any time will be left over for public input. "I'd really bet my bottom dollar they are not going to get to the public," said Mr. Nierstedt.

Meanwhile, two lawsuits have been filed in relation to the embattled supermarket proposal. Village Supermarkets is seeking $2.3 million in damages from the town of Westfield for its rejection of the original ShopRite application. A Westfield woman, Shirley Ann Fontana, is seeking to void Garwood's entire land use ordinance, and thus overturn the Garwood board's acceptance of the original two-town market application.

In the dark

School board should have studied stadium plan before rejecting it

The Westfield Board of Education acted prematurely last week when it pulled the plug on an offer from a citizens group to purchase high intensity lighting to allow for night sporting events at Gary Kehler Stadium.

The 17-member Gary Kehler Stadium Lights Committee offered to pay $100,000 for permanent lighting, set up a trust fund to pay for its maintenance and turn over control of the equipment to the school district.

At an Oct. 10 public meeting, the committee formally presented its plan and a petition signed by some 1,000 supporters to the school board. Speakers ranging from legendary football coach and former athletic director Gary Kehler to current Head Football Coach Jim Benedict to high school athletes told the board night sporting events would foster a renewed school and community spirit and help rebuild the district's once mighty football program.

Homeowners in the residential neighborhood surrounding the stadium vigorously objected to the plan. Despite assurances to the contrary from the lights committee, neighbors feared night sporting events would disrupt their peaceful neighborhood and drive down property values by drawing large, raucous — and possibly criminal — crowds.

Three local houses of worship also opposed the plan. Leaders of Congregational Church of Westfield, The Presbyterian Church of Westfield and Temple Emanu-El wrote to the school board to ask the plan be blocked.

The board listened to input from two factions of its constituency and then voted 6-3 to reject the offer.

Had board members been asked to choose between accepting or denying the "gift of lights," The Record would have supported their decision. Although night football, soccer and field hockey games would have undoubtedly energized the district's sports programs, Westfielders who live adjacent to Kehler Stadium should not be forced to sacrifice peace of mind and property values in the name of school spirit.

The lights committee bore the burden to prove night events would not significantly harm the interests of nearby residents. Judging by the reaction of stadium neighbors, it failed to do so.

If the options facing the school board were to light or not to light, the board would have been forced to reject the offer without question. Those, however, were not the options.

Board of Education President Susan Jacobson asked board members to vote to reject the offer or to refer it to committee for further study.

After more careful consideration, the board may well have reached the same decision. Or perhaps the lighting plan would have proven feasible. Unfortunately, we'll never know.

The board's hasty decision leaves observers with two sets of conflicting testimony. And with board member Melba Nixon's citation of religion as one reason she opposed the plan, we are left with the appearance of disregard for our nation's doctrine of separation of church and state. A more thorough review by the board may have cleared up such discrepancies.

For the Board of Education to make any decision without fully examining the facts is a disservice to the community ... not to mention a bad example for the children it is charged with educating.

Board was wrong to nix stadium lighting proposal

To The Record:

This past week, the elected Board of Education defeated the gift of lights for Kehler Stadium. With that defeat, our children for years to come were denied the chance to perform in front of their peers and, in many cases, their parents.

I believe the Board of Education was elected to represent all our children and all the families in Westfield, not just a few nay-sayers. If Thomas Edison has listened to all the nay-sayers, we would all be sitting in the dark. Our board listened to this small group, and sure enough, the Town of Westfield is in the dark today.

Over the years, we have had many complaints from the citizens of Westfield regarding children "hanging out" downtown. The lighting proposal would have solved part of that problem, but our elected Board of Education defeated it without even bringing it to committee.

Not only did the board reject the proposal of the town residents, it totally ignored the Westfield Police Department's belief that this would help the youth of Westfield.

In regard to the religious ramifications that Friday night games might create a problem, does this mean all activities such as music concerts, dances and all sporting events have to be rescheduled?

In closing, I would like to say this issue is not dead. The Town of Westfield had an opportunity to be a real family, where children of all ages could come together to be with their parents and to cheer on their friends, but our elected Board of Education listened to a few citizens and let us down.

Clearing air on PBA fund-raisers

To The Record:

The reason for this letter is to inform all of the residents and businesses of Westfield as to the annual fund-raisers which Westfield PBA Local 90 holds throughout the year.

It has been brought to our attention that there is some confusion over which fund-raisers are actually being held by the Westfield PBA. Since there are numerous county and state associates which come into Westfield to solicit funds, it is easy to see where confusion can arise.

Westfield PBA will hold three-four fund-raisers per year. Our first fund-raiser is our annual sticker drive which generally begins around March. This fund-raiser continues to be a success year after year, thanks to the continued support of the Westfield community.

We just concluded our first-ever Golf Outing, which was held Oct. 2, at the Echo Lake Country Club. To say that this Golf Outing was a success would be an understatement. After talking to those who participated in this outing, it is easy to see why Echo Lake Country Club has the reputation of being the most prestigious golf course in the area. We would also like to thank all of the residents and businesses who contributed and helped make this a memorable occasion.

Our other fund-raiser is our annual dinner/dance, which generally begins in September. This year it is being held at Snuffy's Patisserie Renaissance Friday Nov. 3. I would like to encourage all of the residents and merchants of Westfield to attend this function and take this opportunity to personally meet the members of the Westfield Police Department.

Lastly, all of our correspondence has Westfield PBA Local 90 on it. If you have any doubts or questions as to the solicitations you have received, please do not hesitate to call the front desk of the Westfield Police Department.

President, Westfield PBA Local 90

A rebuttal on infectious disease letter

To The Record:

This letter is written in response to an article printed in your Sept. 7 paper, written by Ferdinand Gajewski, Ph.D. in Westfield. The article that I am referring to that Dr. Gajewski wrote does nothing but create hysteria and unless Dr. Gajewski is a microbiologist, I feel he is totally unqualified to even comment on any of the disease states which he mentions in his particular article. As a clinical infectious disease specialist, I see all of the disease entities which Dr. Gajewski refers to in his article and I would like to comment on a few of his statements.

Specifically regarding his comment about a patient with a stroke being in the company with a roommate with a "low risk" infectious disease like AIDS. Unless this patient with the stroke was going to exchange needles with the patient with AIDS or possibly have sex with them, it is essentially impossible for the HIV virus to be transmitted from one bed to the next. In regards to tuberculosis, some of his comments, one will take our public health department has failed us and is partly to blame for the increased amount of tuberculosis. The AIDS epidemic is another reason for this rather dramatic increase in reported TB cases, as well as the increased amount of resistance to standard, first-line tuberculosis medications. However, it is standard infection control policy that patients be placed in isolation rooms and in most hospitals where available, in negative pressure rooms. Very eloquent studies have demonstrated, however, that tuberculosis in and of itself, although easily communicable by a respiratory route, is unlikely to be transmitted by a single exposure to a patient even with active tuberculosis.

The final comment that hospitals would do well to publicize to consumers the precise nature of their infection control programs. Most of the general public do not understand what basic infection control even is, much less which ones are needed for what particular patient or what particular infectious disease. So to inform them of these things when their knowledge level is not present to understand these things, is a fairly useless endeavor. Nosocomial infection, I agree, is an extensive, difficult, expensive and demanding problem that must be attended to. However, nosocomial infection has been present since hospitals first were opened. It will continue to be a problem.

To highlight his final points, if a family would deem it appropriate and have the financial resources for private duty nurses, this is one option. However, the private duty nurses are usually pulled from pools of nurses that are working at particular institutions, therefore you are dealing with the same nurses that you may have had the complaints about before.

As a note, the best mode for decreasing the transmission of infection, be it community or hospital-acquired, is simple hand-washing, and Dr. Gajewski or anyone else should point out to any health care professional when hand-washing is eliminated in the patient care process.

Candidate comments on the Vo-Tech

To The Chronicle:

Recently, I had a meeting with several members of the Union County Education Association. The purpose of the meeting was for the members to question me as a freeholder candidate regarding my views on the Union County education system. I came away from the meeting with a much better understanding of the system and with disturbing information regarding the state of Union County Vo-Tech.

We built a modern Vocational-Technical facility in Scotch Plains, which has many classrooms and few students. With the rate of unemployment in Union County at 7 percent, the highest in the region, our school should be busy training and retraining the skills of our workers, so that they can find jobs in the community. Instead, the Union County Vo-Tech is vastly underutilized. The Union County Education Association members pointed out that in Middlesex, a county only slightly larger than Union, there are four full-time vocational schools. Why can Middlesex support four facilities while Union cannot support one?

Certainly we have a population that needs proper vocational training. Training in high tech industries, in health care delivery, in computers and other fields, that will produce real jobs to revitalize Union County.

Why then, is our system so underutilized? One suggestion was that we are not properly promoting and advertising our programs. It would be beneficial for us to consult with Middlesex to see how they attract students. In addition, we must carefully look at whether the present structure of the Vo-Tech as a part-time facility is a good educational plan or whether a full-time technical high school with full-time students would promote better education and a fuller use of the facility. We owe it to our students and to the taxpayers to take a hard look at our education system.

My view/ What impact will the pope's visit have on American society?

(A random survey of area residents conducted by Ellen Felicetta)

EMILY PETIX
Locust Avenue, Garwood

I can't say if it will be for the long term, but the pope's visit has helped people renew their faith. His visit here was a beautiful experience and everyone was touched by him. I believe his message will make people think more about helping the needy.

AL RIMONDI
Clark Street, Westfield

I think the most important aspect of his visit was that he pointed to unity. Although we all have our doctrines, we all need to learn to love one another as God's people. The most powerful and important message the pope brought concerned the right to life of the unborn.

JOHN ANTHES
Oak Lane, Cranford

Hopefully, it will be the pope's message that will have a long lasting effect on our society. He urged us to be less materialistic, to be thankful for what we have and to share it with those less fortunate. His physical appearance here served to strengthen his message.

DOROTHY SOBIN
Trinity Place, Westfield

I think the pope came just at the right time because whether or not you believe in his religious philosophy, his charisma and love touched everyone. His being here was uplifting and calming. America needed him at this particular time because of the O.J. Simpson controversy.

CAROLYN CHELLAND
Morse Street, Cranford

The pope's visit was a great booster shot in the arm to Catholics and people in the United States. But like most booster shots, their effect is short-lived. Ideally, we should all be better people after experiencing this papal visit.

JUDY MCLOUGHLIN
Montrose Avenue, Fanwood

I believe he clarified for people in the United States the dangerous impact of racism and religious and cultural divisions. He possesses an understanding of the respect American society needs to take on for all life — young, old and the handicapped.

Writer questions utilities authority's use of PR

To The Record:

I was astounded to read that the Union County Utilities Authority had paid over $500,000 in two years to Coleman & Pellet, a public relations firm.

Why would Utilities Authority need to spend that kind of money on public relations? If that was not enough, it has now come to light that the Republican freeholder candidates were prepped by this same public relations firm at the taxpayers' expense.

Since Mr. Fulcomer and his wife have alternated membership on the Utilities Authority since its inception, I wonder why they don't know what is going on at the authority.

If they need a public relations firm to tell them what is going on, then maybe Mrs. Fulcomer should step down as treasurer of the authority. It just doesn't seem right that the wife of a freeholder candidate is signing checks to use taxpayers' money to prepare her husband for public office.

If the public is going to regain confidence in its elected officials, these kind of shenanigans have to cease.

O.J. media hype promoted racism

To The Review:

By now everyone should be aware that the O.J. Simpson trial was not about who killed Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman. It wasn't about the cost of justice either. It certainly wasn't about whether or not O.J. was the killer.

What the "Trial of the Century" was really about was the polarizing of the races — white against black, black against white. The media had a message and that message was more important than whether the American system of jurisprudence works.

That message, titillatingly called "the race card," is nothing more than a continuation of the hypocrisy that media journalism, print or electronic, has become. It's all about the ratings and the bottom line.

Ask Ted Turner. CNN was doing poorly at the beginning of the trial with a mere 400,000 viewers. That figure boomeranged to over 2.5 million daily O.J.

junkies. With such a remarkable ratings increase Turner was able to convince megahit Time Warner to purchase Turner Broadcasting for over $2 billion. Exxon Michael Milken was paid $50 million for helping Ted negotiate the deal. The bottom line, that's all it was about — the "Trial of the Century" was nothing more, nothing less.

The media hype now desperately needs to continue dealing out the race cards until perhaps it generates some real live riots in the country. Then when the ratings go up, watch Dan Rather, Ted Koppel and the other media ringmasters keep the "circus of racism" going full-swing in the big tent.

I recently saw a bumper sticker with the right message in response to all this: "Kill Your Television." I think I will.

Group offers disabled help in voting

Many people take voting for granted. Sometimes it can be exciting, other times it may seem like a chore.

It involves a lot of time, learning about the issues and candidates. But those who vote regularly are keenly aware of how their votes count in a democratic society. It is a responsibility and a privilege.

For many people with disabilities, however, voting at the voting booth on Election Day has not yet been a part of their reality. Their disability has kept them away from the election booth for many years. The New Jersey Association of the Deaf-Blind hopes to change that.

The New Jersey Association of the Deaf-Blind Inc. has received a grant from the Developmental Disabilities Council to support people with deafness, blindness, communication impairment and/or developmental disabilities and their families to vote on Election Day, Nov. 7.

If you or anyone you know needs the unique assistance they can provide and would like to vote, please contact the NJADB at 805-1912.

They will orient individuals to the voting process, the voting booth, the candidates' positions and public questions on the ballot. They can also assist individuals in registering to vote. The staff is specially trained in sign language, braille, print-on-palm, tactual sign language and the use of various communication methods and devices. They will provide information in braille or on audiotape if needed.

In addition to election preparation, they can assist individuals on the day of the elections by providing a stipend for transportation, a sighted guide, an interpreter, portable lighting and/or a Service Support Person if needed.

The organization encourages all people with disabilities and their families to vote. It is one of the most important ways you can voice your opinion and make a difference.

Call the New Jersey Association of the Deaf-Blind at 805-1912.

Area Girl Scouts win high honor at Cadette level

The Cadette Girl Scout Silver Award was presented to nine Westfield scouts from three troops in a townwide awards ceremony in the chapel at The Presbyterian Church of Westfield. The award is the highest recognition at the Cadette level and the second highest in the Girl Scout organization. It recognizes a wide range of experiences, skills, abilities and a firm commitment from each girl.

The recipients of the Girl Scout Cadette Silver Award are: Maire Madden Abraham, Kristina Marie Barabas, Nicole Ann Bentivegna, Sara Rebeka Burnett, Laura Christine Capece, Shannon Elizabeth Darlington, Nicole Ann Netravali, Elise Karyn Tate and Megan Ann Yudd.

Each Girl Scout must complete a series of requirements including earning three Interest Project patches from the five Worlds of Girl Scouting. The From Dreams to Reality patch dealing with careers, or the Career Exploration Interest Project patch must be earned. In order to earn the Cadette Leader ship Award, the Girl Scout must serve a minimum of 30 hours on two or more occasions in some leadership capacity and the Scouts must earn the Cadette Girl Scout Challenge. These four requirements call upon each girl to build on her experiences. The final step is to design and implement a project that will benefit others.

The Girl Scouts from Cadette Troop No. 45 at Edison Intermediate School worked with the senior citizens from the Meridian Nursing Home in Westfield. Their project was called the "Empowering" of the residents to be somewhat self-sufficient.

Over a four-month period Marie Abraham, Kristina Barabas, Nicole Bentivegna, Ilka Netravali and Elise Tate baked cookies so the residents could have some refreshment for their visitors, made crafts according to whatever holiday was being celebrated and wrote out cards to family and friends of the residents. Finding these people so very interesting, they decided to take notes and record the happenings in their lives as a remembrance for their families. These Girl Scouts were the helping hands to residents in need and a young, friendly face who became their friends.

Two projects were done by the Cadettes in Holy Trinity Troop No. 268. Laura Capece planned and carried out a Girl Scout Court of Awards for the 90 Girl Scouts in the school. She organized the ceremony making sure that each troop would participate, coordinated the date, place and time, made sure that refreshments would be available and even made a seating plan so that the younger Brownies could see the older girls when they were on the stage. Rehearsals were scheduled and troop members assisted her in a well-run Court of Awards.

Nearly 100 Westfield Girl Scouts participated in the Deep Water Testing planned and coordinated by Shannon Darlington and Megan Yudd. They arranged for the Fanwood/Scotch Plains YMCA, reserved the date, gave detailed instructions to participating leaders so that their girls would know what the tests consisted of and what clothing the Girl Scouts needed to bring. The test is to assure that the Girl Scouts have a certain degree of swimming ability and can participate in various boating activities at the yearly encampment. If a tip-over occurred, the girls would know what to do in deep water to insure their safety.

Working under the direction of Nancy Walbert, PANDA director, Sara Burnett of Cadette Troop No. 502 at Edison Intermediate School coordinated troops throughout the town to place posters announcing the Drug Awareness Week in February and then have them tie red ribbons to the trees in town bringing a special focus to this week. She also was in charge of having the troops remove the red ribbons after the designated week.

Several of these Cadette Girl Scouts have been active in the Girl Scout program since they were in kindergarten or at the Daisy level. They have continually added to their experiences, practicing and learning new leadership skills. The leaders of these troops are Mrs. Karyn Tate, Mrs. Anne Fromling, Mrs. Jacalyn Yudd and Mrs. Bernadine Liebrich.

Girl Scout troops are forming for the 1995-1996 season. Girls for all levels — Daisy, Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior — are welcome to join. Adults are also needed as leaders and consultants for badge work. Call 232-3236 for further information on Girl Scout programs.

Children of all ages will delight in storytelling and puppetry presentations, dance and music workshops.

The festival will also feature a special art exhibit in the college's Tomasulo Gallery, curated by Hortense Green of Westfield. The exhibit will remain on display through Friday, Dec. 8.

Many of the works selected for exhibition were recently displayed at the Newark Museum as part of the 11th New Jersey Arts Annual.

Meet The Brisachs

- They have been married 26 years and still hold hands.
- They walk two miles a day - before breakfast!
- He says he's a retired attorney, but he works every day and still travels to NY to see clients.
- They found the perfect retirement community: Crestwood Manor.

"We loved Long Island, but Crestwood Manor really is home for us."

Gena and Ed Brisach like to plan ahead. They knew they wanted to have more time for each other, family, and fun things like traveling. They knew they would have to move far enough away so that Ed could stop working so much, yet stay close enough for family. Gena spent 21 years caring for her mother, and she and Ed both felt they did not want their children to worry about caring for them.

It took some serious research to find a place that met their high standards: beautiful grounds, clean, fresh air, the right amenities, congenial people, helpful staff and fiscal soundness. They found Crestwood Manor and they loved it. Everything just felt right. Even though they are both healthy, they like knowing the health care center is there should either need it.

Flowers, fine food on menu at adult school

Four new courses, which began Monday at the Westfield Adult School, are among the offerings in the fall curriculum taught by Westfielders who work locally.

Prospective students may register for any of these courses.

Joan Melloan, a Westfield resident who has lived in Europe for nine years, will present a five-session course called The Secret Gardens of Europe. Whether you're an armchair traveler or planning a trip, you will enjoy viewing color slides of many surprising public gardens and learning about their history and design.

Marianne Brady, artist-in-residence at the Drake House Museum in Plainfield, will give a two-session class in stenciling. This hands-on workshop, limited to 12 students, will focus on Chinese art.

Kay Cross, owner of Flowers ... Naturally of Westfield, will give a three-session course, Designing for the Holidays, Flower Design. After learning the basics of floral design, conditioning of plant material and mechanics, students will attempt more advanced techniques associated with color, texture and relationships. Each student will make a floral design in each class.

David Martone, owner of Classic Recipe Inc. Cooking School, will teach a four-session course at his cooking school, 401 W. Broad St., Westfield. In low-fat pasta, Chef Martone will demonstrate carbonara sauce, vodka cream sauce and fettuccini alfredo, all with less than five grams of fat per serving. Recipes with full nutritional analysis will be given out during each class.

This course will be followed by another new four-session course by Chef Martone beginning Monday, Nov. 13 on low-fat salads.

A business recruitment project, a critical need in town which is being addressed by Westfield Main Street, will be bolstered by a $4,000 foundation grant.

A matching grant of $1,500 goes to the Washington Rock Girl Scouts for capital improvements. Two additional grants will be used to purchase equipment. For a new copier machine, $1,500 has been awarded to Youth and Family Counseling. Another award of $1,000 goes to the occupational center to buy a rotary sealer machine.

Women's Club celebrates centennial

The first general meeting of the 1995-1996 club year of the Woman's Club of Westfield was held Oct. 9. The various departments in the club announced their plans for the coming year. The club, which is celebrating its centennial this year, will bring the festivities to a close with a dinner at Echo Lake Country Club in December.

Marie Teleposky, 6th District vice president of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, was a guest at the meeting. The New Jersey State Federation is responsible for a statewide effort to assist the American Cancer Society in its "Feel the Smile of a Child" program which aids children with cancer.

Concert harpist Georganne D'Angelo provided an unusual musical program titled "Jazzing Up That Harp." Ms. D'Angelo has received prizes in international competitions in Israel and Great Britain, and has made a compact disc recording of some of the most difficult harp music through a solo recitalist fellowship from the National Endowment of the Arts. She was recently commissioned to develop a bilingual performance piece combining video interview in English and Spanish, dance and harp.

The tea which followed the program was hosted by the Arts/Creative Department of the Woman's Club.

The SMAC 26 monitors several bodily functions. The CBC test includes a red blood cell count, a white blood cell count and differential count. It may indicate the presence of infection, anemia, allergies, lung disease and other test indications. The HDL test measures factors protecting against coronary heart disease. The SMAC 26 is used in assessing total cholesterol results to determine possible coronary risk factors.

Registration is required. To register, contact the health department at 425 E. Broad St., 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday-Friday, beginning Monday. Registration deadline is Thursday, Nov. 2. The SMAC 26 test will cost $16. Also offered are

Drive for new library members is under way

The annual membership drive of the Friends of the Westfield Memorial Library has begun, according to Jane Kelly, president of the group.

All Westfield residents are eligible for membership and the tax-deductible dues support the services of the Friends.

The volunteer group was organized in 1972 and is dedicated to broadening the range of library services and to providing an opportunity for greater community participation.

The Friends deliver books to shut-ins, coordinate the work of the volunteers, are responsible for the community display case, maintain the rental book collection and operate a duplicating machine at the library.

The Stop and Swap rack at the railroad station is stocked by volunteers of the Friends.

Through the annual book sale and other fund-raising projects, the Friends are able to provide funds for special projects and equipment not included in the regular library budget.

The series of Sunday afternoon programs open to the public without charge will again be sponsored by the Friends.

Jane Bishop, membership chairman, urges all interested persons to join the Friends. Membership is available on individual, family, sponsor or patron levels. The membership forms for present members should be arriving in mailboxes in the next week or two.

Membership forms are available at the library.

Y is offering courses on youth fitness

Now that the children are back in school developing strong minds, it's important for parents to help their children develop strong bodies, too.

Many of today's youth are less active than children of previous generations. Starting children on fitness programs can improve their long-term health, and help prevent kids from growing up to be couch potatoes. The Y believes in the value of regular physical activity and its contribution to physical and mental health and a positive lifestyle.

Generally, physical activities for children have focused on competitive sports, but if your youngsters are not interested in competing, it's still important for them to get their exercise in other ways. In order to help meet this need the Westfield Y is offering youth circuit training classes for children and pre-teens.

These classes stress those components of fitness most important for maintaining good health: cardiorespiratory endurance, muscular strength and endurance, and flexibility. The children are taught a variety of fun physical activities and games using jump ropes, balls, hula hoops, mini trampoline, steps and other props, in a circuit environment, that promote health related fitness. Early winter session at the Y runs Oct. 29-Dec. 23. Classes are being held Tuesday afternoons. For more information, call Lisa Gutmann at 233-2700, Ext. 257.

Lending nature a hand

So I'm driving to work, feeling rotten because it's a bad hair day and I've got Lake Erie sloshing around inside me, when the news comes over the radio: Liz Taylor is being operated on so both her legs will be the same length.

Some women are never satisfied! Liz Taylor ... blessed with gorgeous violet eyes, cleavage to die for and every hair in place. She's had, what? 18 husbands? She has been the darling of many rich and/or handsome men and has even been called the most beautiful woman in the world. While that may be a bit of an exaggeration, one only has to see the movie Cleopatra to know why Mark Antony's hormones were bouncing around like Mexican jumping beans.

Liz Taylor ... the woman who has it all. Now she wants both her legs the same length? The next thing you know, she'll be wanting all her fingernails to match (which is all but impossible unless you're dealing with acrylics, in which case you get sharp 3-inch nails and you can never scratch an itch again without accidentally tapping a vein).

If you delve into the Liz story a bit more, you find she is not simply indulging in frivolous cosmetic surgery. A previous hip replacement has left her with a pronounced limp, and surgery is needed to correct the foul-up.

But some people are having surgery simply because they're not happy with what they have. They pay for tummy tucks, butt tucks, face lifts, breast enhancements, liposuction and chemical peels and, as if those aren't bizarre enough, it's become fashionable to have a bone or two removed.

Am I the only one who has never heard of this? The guys in our sports department enlightened me.

I was admiring the array of pictures of beautiful women on one sportswriter's bulletin board. I'll call him Don, because if I identify him, he'll be very embarrassed. Aw, what the heck? His name is Rich.

Rich adores Janet Jackson and is absolutely enthralled by her beauty. A usually calm, easygoing person, Rich tries to get along with everybody, so when another sports writer mentioned the fact that some of Janet's endowments might be — umm — not quite natural, Rich seemed mildly annoyed but remained calm.

I defended Janet by saying, "How come when a man builds a better body, he's admired for his stamina and discipline, but when a woman does it, everyone says it's fake?"

"OK, so with men, it's usually steroids," piped up one of our 98-pound (probably envious) weaklings.

"Besides, Janet Jackson used to be chunky," another guy said. (Well that's a hanging offense, as we all know.)

"She lost weight and had some ribs removed," he added.

"You're kidding," I said in disbelief.

"It's done all the time," he said, shrugging.

"Right. It's in all the ads for plastic surgeons: 'Tummy tucks, fanny firming, spare ribs removed.'" I said sarcastically. "Hey, when you remove ribs, doesn't the person tend to slump to one side a lot? Don't they sort of — bend?"

"That woman on 'I Dream of Jeannie' ... think her body moved that way naturally?" he asked.

By now, Rich was reacting as if tattooed truck drivers had just instigated a brawl in the sports room. I cheerfully returned to my desk.

But darn it, I could be just as good looking as Janet or Liz if I just worked at it a little ... lose a couple of hundred pounds, get some violet contact lenses, have a few ribs removed.

You want those with Cajun sauce or honey mustard?

Screenwriter has a hit with war games tale

David Flynn envisions all-war cable channel

By KEVIN COLLIGAN
THE RECORD

Think back to the Cable News Network (CNN) during the 1990 Persian Gulf War. Now imagine a cable station covering every war all over the world 24 hours a day, complete with live remotes, combatant interviews and expert analysis.

If you can envision that, you have a pretty good understanding of the concept behind The War Channel, an award-winning screenplay written by Westfielder David Flynn.

"The thought occurred to me that with the burgeoning number of cable channels becoming available, and major entertainment companies scrambling to grab channels and put something on the air, sooner or later someone will decide to launch an all-military channel," said Mr. Flynn. "Why not take the elements the American people love — violence and live remote television — and marry the two."

"I thought, why not write a fictional account now, rather than nonfiction six to eight months from now," Mr. Flynn continued. "I wouldn't be surprised if some major companies were working on the idea right now."

The script apparently struck a nerve. The War Channel received the Bronze Award for Best Dramatic Screenplay in the screenwriting competition at the renowned Worldfest/Houston International Film Festival.

In Mr. Flynn's screenplay, the producer of network television's most successful news magazine sells international communications corporation GlobalNet on the idea of an all-war channel dubbed World Political News (WPN). The story is told from the point of view of David Summerfield, a rising television reporter hired to anchor "WorldWatch," the station's prime-time lynchpin program.

"From this basic format, they develop other shows scheduled throughout the day and evening," said Mr. Flynn. Programs are developed about major players in the war business, prisoners of war, and weapons and tactics.

"Eventually, they decide to expand coverage to include domestic violence with the rise of gangs in American cities," said Mr. Flynn. Through an adviser to the station, the screenwriter notes that American gangs outgun many of the small armies fighting in some of the 38 wars currently taking place around the globe.

"I look at the story as a cautionary tale which will probably happen for real within the next four to five years," said Mr. Flynn.

Mr. Flynn said he was struck with the idea of an all war, all the time cable station in 1994. The screenwriter spent three months refining the idea and jotting down notes, before he began writing in earnest. In six months, he had the first draft of his screenplay.

Mr. Flynn said his agent is submitting his screenplay to various producers. "One of the major cable companies that produces its own films liked the story, but felt it hit a little too close to home," said Mr. Flynn. "It was really written as a feature film."

Winning a major award can help in the competitive screenwriting business. Mr. Flynn said some 10,000 screenplays are registered with the Writers Guild of America each year. "As I've been told by an agent, probably 9,000 are not worth opening the cover. Of the 1,000 left, about 200 are produced each year," said Mr. Flynn. "It's a tough business. The odds are long, but success is always possible."

A long-time Westfield resident, Mr. Flynn lives with his wife Barbara and daughter Lauren. He began working as a professional actor six years ago, before branching into writing.

The thought occurred to me that ... sooner or later someone will decide to launch an all-military channel. Why not take the elements the American people love — violence and live remote television — and marry the two.

Corn husk dolls on tap at museum

The Miller-Cory House Museum will feature corn husk figure-making and open-hearth cooking 2-5 p.m. Sunday. The museum is located at 614 Mountain Ave., Westfield.

Eileen O'Shea of Summit will show visitors step-by-step how to create unique shapes from corn husks. Mrs. O'Shea has served the museum in many ways for many years which includes demonstrating her skills for the museum's outreach program in local schools.

Maize, also known as Indian corn, is native to North America and early settlers in New Jersey learned of corn from the Indians. The corn we enjoy today is a hybrid of maize which has smaller ears and kernels. Early Americans such as the Millers and Corys had many uses for corn. Corn husks were often used to stuff mattresses and make dolls and other toys.

Janet and Judy Murphy of Kenilworth and Sherry Lange of Cranford will demonstrate open-hearth cooking. Using authentic recipes and cooking methods, the cooks will prepare traditional corn and Indian foods such as roasted rabbit and venison, corn bread, succotash, pumpkin dishes, on-the-cob popped corn and stew. Visitors to the museum will be able to enjoy taste treats.

Built in 1740, the Miller-Cory House stands on the "road to the mountains" in Westfield and was named in honor of its two pre-revolutionary owners, both descended from the earliest settlers in this area. Costumed docents will guide visitors through the history-rich farmhouse and welcome questions about early American life in New Jersey. The quaint gift shop has a variety of colonial reproductions, foods, cookbooks and educational items.

Admission to the museum and its grounds is free for children under six years of age. Admission for adults is $1, and 50 cents for children over six. On Oct. 29 the museum will feature a natural dye demonstration. Information about the Bayberry Candlelight Tour Saturday, Dec. 3 and upcoming events may be obtained by calling the museum at 232-1776.

Fried earns Rotary's humanitarian award

Arthur C. Fried has been named recipient of the Charles P. Bailey Humanitarian of the Year Award. The award is given by the Westfield Rotary Club.

The award is given annually by the Rotary Club in memory of Mr. Bailey, a former mayor of Westfield and a former member of the Westfield Rotary Club.

Previous recipients are Robert L. Rooke in 1987, H. Emerson Thomas in 1988, William T. Meglaughlin in 1989, Robert Mulreany in 1990, Frank Ketcham in 1991, Ernest Winter and Nancy Reynolds in 1992, William Peek in 1993, and Robert and Alice Dillon in 1994.

Mr. Fried has called Westfield his home since 1951. For the past 44 years he has devoted many hours of his time to Westfield.

As a civic leader, Mr. Fried served as a Union County freeholder, a town councilman and as president of the Westfield Chamber of Commerce. In 1960 he was a candidate for mayor. At the age of 83, Mr. Fried continues to serve our community as a member of the Westfield Board of Adjustment, of which he has been a member for 16 years, and as a trustee of Fairview Cemetery.

His first community activity was in the 1950s with the Westfield Boys' Baseball League. His interest in youth sports was later demonstrated in the 1960s when he served for many years as a member of the board of the Westfield YMCA. As a member of this board, he became chairman of the speaker's bureau for the annual meetings. He was instrumental in securing such high-level speakers as Bill Bradley, then an undergraduate and All-American for Princeton University; Bobby Richardson, a second baseman for the New York Yankees, now a minister who recently officiated at the funeral of Mickey Mantle; Navy Captain Anderson, who piloted the submarine Nautilus under the North Pole; and Father Delpy, headmaster of Seton Hall Prep.

The health and well-being of our community always has been an important concern to him. He put that concern into action as the general campaign chairman of the United Fund of Westfield on two occasions and is still an active force every year. He has served as a member of the board of the Children's Specialized Hospital, working on fund raising efforts for the March of Dimes. He brought honor to our community when he was selected president of the New Jersey Division of the American Cancer Society.

In 1972, he was appointed by then-mayor Donn A. Snyder to serve on a citizens' task force to study the feasibility of a community foundation for Westfield. Because of a favorable report from the committee, the town now has the Westfield Foundation.

He is currently a member of the Westfield Historical Society and serves on the nominating committee of Westfield MainStreet. During our recent bicentennial, he was an active participant in the bicentennial play at Roosevelt Intermediate School.

Last but not least, he served his country and enlisted in the Army in 1942 and left as an infantry captain in 1945. He received a Purple Heart, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and five campaign ribbons in the European theater of operations.

For 33 years he worked for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in sales, and later as the director of public relations and marketing consultant for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of New Jersey.

The proceeds from the award will be donated to the Westfield Teen Center, which is located in the basement of Town Hall. The Teen Center is open to all Westfield High School students 8-midnight each Friday and Saturday night. The center features pool tables, Sega video games, ping pong, foosball, air hockey, bumper pool, large screen TV and VCR with movies, stereo system, refreshments and a lounge area. Contests and tournaments with prizes are held throughout the year. The Teen Center is a safe and enjoyable alternative for teenagers on a weekend evening.

This annual award will be presented to Mr. Fried at a dinner to be held in his honor Wednesday, Nov. 15 at Echo Lake Country Club. Tickets are available through all Rotarians or may be purchased by calling Rob Yeager at 232-8303 or 654-0138.

Johnathan Klausner and Bob Stern do some hands-free handiwork at Computer Voice and Vision.

The sounds of the future

Computer Voice and Vision may help make old, reliable keyboards a thing of the past

By KEVIN COLLIGAN
THE RECORD

Yelling at an uncooperative computer generally doesn't do much good. Unless, of course, your machine is equipped with one of the pioneering voice-recognition systems offered by Westfield's Computer Voice and Vision.

The company, which recently opened for business on North Avenue, is out to change the way people use their computers with a new software and hardware package that takes dictation and navigates a personal computer's operating system through voice commands.

"You just tell the computer what you want, and it does all the maneuvering," said Computer Voice and Vision President Jonathan Klausner.

Technical Specialist Bob Stern illustrated how the system can simplify a complicated job such as scanning a piece of art with an image scanner and placing it into a computer document.

"The process of going out, turning on the scanner and sitting a piece of art into a document used to be an arduous process," said Mr. Stern. "Now all you have to do is say, 'Bring in picture.'"

A stubborn relic

While computers have changed radically from the wildly expensive auditorium-sized machines which performed functions handled today by a good digital watch, the keyboard has remained relatively unchanged.

The first PCs were sluggish, glorified calculators.

Over time, they radically improved. Computer monitors which once displayed sickly green type on a black background now dazzle with millions of colors, full-motion video and "screen-savers" that range from tropical fish to flying toasters. One floppy disk of today holds information which would have filled several computer hard drives of yesteryear. In the past five years, the processing speed of personal computers has more than quadrupled.

But the lowly computer keyboard — a hold-over from the typewriter era — has endured. This link to computing has kept many people with disabilities from benefiting from the technology age. It has also been linked to debilitating repetitive stress injuries.

Voice recognition seems a logical evolution.

A "smart" application

Since no one speaks exactly alike, the system actually learns to recognize the subtleties of different computer users' voices. The first thing the software does is walk an operator through a list of commonly used words, correcting any missteps along the way.

Once it has a basic grasp of a user's voice, the system is ready to go. Each time the system is used, it learns more about a speaker and becomes more accurate. The system can "learn" to understand several different users.

A basic voice recognition package, which includes a microphone, software and 30,000-word primary and 120,000-word backup dictionary, costs $695. An advanced system with a 60,000-word primary dictionary runs $1,695. Specialized medical, legal, foreign language and other dictionaries are also available.

Machlowitz to head N.J. Corporate Assoc.

The New Jersey Corporate Association, a group of almost 600 lawyers representing more than 300 corporations, has elected its officers for the 1995-1996 year.

David S. Machlowitz of Westfield, associate general counsel, Siemens Corporation, will be president. Mr. Machlowitz serves as general counsel to Siemens' medical device division in Iselin, which has revenues in excess of $1.8 billion, and manages the counsel for other Siemens' companies.

He has edited a book on environmental law, authored many articles in The Wall Street Journal, American Lawyer, and other periodicals. He is a frequent speaker concerning compliance programs, litigation tactics and law department management.

As president of the NJCCA Mr. Machlowitz said, "I hope to help in-house counsel work harder, faster and better than ever before. I want to find leaders who will reflect the diversity of the membership, from race and sex to size of a law department. The NJCCA must also serve as a means of improving communications between corporations and government, the media, the public and even the plaintiff's bar."

To assist Mr. Machlowitz during the upcoming year, the following officers were elected:

President-Elect Richard K. Jeydel, senior vice president, secretary and general counsel, Kanematsu USA Inc.; Vice President/Secretary Antoinette Bennett, attorney, AT&T Corporation; Vice President/Treasurer Ted D. ## Burgdorff touted for window display

The Westfield MainStreet Design Committee has selected Burgdorff Realtors, 43 Elm St., as this fall's "Spotlight on MainStreet" business.

The distinction is presented seasonally to the downtown merchant whose window illumination most effectively contributes to the welcoming and safe atmosphere of Westfield at night.

Strollers on Elm Street notice Burgdorff Realtor's warm and inviting window display. To showcase current home listings, the reality office, with the help of an inhouse designer, has created a "homey" effect by displaying specially framed artists sketches among billowing plants and miniature furniture pieces.

Lighting incorporates task light from small lamps placed near the furniture and general illumination in the form of track lighting from above and behind the floral swag of the window treatment. Both forms of lighting are effective, creating a mood and showcasing the listings.

"We wanted to showcase our homes and create a look that would be warm, friendly and homey. That was our goal," said Office Manager Jean Massard.

In addition to successfully creating a home of their night-time window display, Burgdorff Realtors has been finding homes for people in Westfield and the surrounding area for more than 27 years. Burgdorff is New Jersey's second largest privately owned residential real estate firm and provides marketing and sales of single family homes and condominiums, national and international relocation, rental service and third party management.

Based in Murray Hill, Burgdorff Realtors have 34 branch offices serving 16 counties throughout central and northern New Jersey, as well as the Yardley area of Pennsylvania. Recently, Burgdorff merged with Barnett and Crain Realtors and acquired the location at 43 Elm St., where it actively supports the efforts of the downtown revitalization program.

"The revitalization project has been a boom ... anything that keeps up the appearance in town benefits," Mrs. Massard said.

Since May 1993, Westfield MainStreet has worked to make the downtown area a pleasing, economically healthy and consumer-friendly place. # Double dose of Devils in county tourney

Westfield boys ready for test with Elizabeth

By JAMES REILLY
THE RECORD

Timing is everything in sports and the Westfield High boys soccer team is performing with the precision of a Swiss watch just in time for the Union County Tournament.

The Blue Devils (11-2) smothered Roselle Catholic 4-0 in the first round of the UCT Friday as sophomore striker Dylan Dupre scored two of his team-leading 10 goals, and senior co-captains Scott Mueller and Alex Schmidt also found the net.

Even more impressive than the offensive showing of Westfield, as they prepare for a tough second-round match with Elizabeth Saturday at Gary Kehler Stadium at 3 p.m., is the rock-solid defense displayed the last two weeks.

"We've got five consecutive shut-outs, and although that may have something to do with the level of competition we've been facing, it's still indicative of the defense we've been playing," said Head Coach George Kapner. "We feel confident going into the tournament."

Vinnie Brodo has been solid in net, while Bob Schultz and Colin McGee man the flanks, with Schmidt at sweeper and Mike Baly at stopper. Jason Corcoran and Kevin Mansfield patrol the middle of the field, while Liam Wertheimer and Nick Bonner split time with Shane O'Boyle and Derek Fisher as the outside halfbacks, who make frequent forays upfield to support attacks, as well as defending the wings.

Up front Mueller and Dupre provide a tantalizing blend of talents, as Mueller's strong tackling and Dupre's deft touch keep defenses on their heels.

Elizabeth (7-4) beat Rahway 2-1 in the first round as striker Andrzej Dziedzic scored both goals, and Kapner will have his troops on the lookout for the Minuteman poacher.

"We're aware he's a very talented player with strong legs and a tough game," said Kapner of Dziedzic. "But with Dupre and Mueller we feel we have a good variety to our attack."

"I also think the excitement of playing in front of a large crowd will be good not only for us, but for school spirit. I've often heard that Westfield is a soccer town, with the success of our and the girls team the past few years. The opportunity to play in front of the school and community supporters will be great."

Westfield High's Katie Egan and her teammates will host Cranford at 1 p.m. Saturday at Gary Kehler Stadium, before the Blue Devil boys take the field opposite Elizabeth.

WHS girls soccer clash with Cranford in UCT

By JAMES REILLY
THE RECORD

When the Cranford and Westfield high girls soccer teams take the field at Gary Kehler Stadium Saturday in the second round of the Union County Tournament, it will be a case of the new kids on the block going up against the defending champs.

Westfield (11-0) has won 13 of the past 14 UCT titles, including last year, while Cranford (5-5) is building what it hopes will be a championship caliber team for years to come under new Head Coach Mark Best.

"Early in the season the kids came up with their goals for the year and one goal was to go deeper in the UCT than the first round, which we've done," said Best. "Now that we've drawn in the top-seeded team it will obviously be very tough. Westfield has three of the best forwards in the state in Amy Coccaro, Jessie Czar and Katie Egan, so defensively we'll have to be on top of our games."

Keying the Cranford defense in front of keeper Beth Koehler are outside backs Melissa Murray and Amy Matz, stopper Regan Stempniewicz and sweeper Shannon Murray, while midfielder Erica Platt has been instrumental in defending the opposition's best player.

Cranford advanced to the second round of the UCT by stopping

GIRLS SOCCER

Union 3-0 Friday in Cranford. Jen Sands, Kim Kaltreider and Devon Murray all scored for the Lady Cougars, who got six saves from Koehler.

Westfield, on the other hand, received a bye as the top seed and Head Coach Pete Giordano feels that as long as the Lady Devils play up to their abilities, they'll be tough to beat.

"They just have to play their game," said Giordano, while adding that today's match at the top-ranked team in the state, East Brunswick, is foremost in the team's collective mind. "When we place nice soccer, bring the ball down and pass it around to the open player, we can beat anybody."

In addition to Coccaro, Czar and Egan up front, the Lady Devils have junior Amy Williams guarding the net behind fullbacks Katie Bertelson and Becky Hamilton, and the midfield boasts Gretchen Mansfield.

With a tight-marking defense Westfield has yielded only two goals on the season, and with a high-scoring offense to complement their stingy backline, the Lady Devils will be tough to beat.

AUGUSTO F. MENEZES/THE RECORD
Westfield High football Head Coach Jim Benedict will get back to basics in practice the next two weeks with the Blue Devils.

Westfield football plowed by Union

By JAMES REILLY
THE RECORD

The topsy-turvy season of the Westfield High football team took a turn for the worse with Friday night's 41-7 loss at Union, and the Blue Devils now face an off week before traveling to Linden Oct. 28.

The extra week of practice should give the team time to figure out what went wrong against Union, and Head Coach Jim Benedict already has a few ideas.

"I think it was a combination of us playing poorly and Union playing very well," said Benedict. "For some reason — I don't know if it was the excitement of the night game or what — the team did not perform as we prepared in practice. My hat's off to Union for playing a strong game, but we just had a large breakdown as a team, and didn't play as we should have."

Westfield started off well, as Kevin Dowling completed a pair of passes to tailback Brian Cierniecki — the second a 34-yard touchdown strike — but after that the wheels fell off.

"We figured Cierniecki would be getting single coverage and we could exploit that, and it worked on the first drive, when he got open and Dowling made a nice pass," said Benedict. "But after that Union came at us and we couldn't stop them on defense, and then our offense started missing assignments, too."

Union's two exceptional running backs did most of the damage as Corey Ferguson piled up 250 yards on 16 carries and Leonard Nii-Moi rushed for 125 yards on 17 tries.

For the Blue Devils, it's back to the drawing board.

"We're going to use these two weeks to go back to page one, and start emphasizing simple tasks like blocking, tackling, recognizing assignments and what keys to look for," said Benedict. "It's back to basics, and we're going to stress excellence on the practice field in order to stay sharp during the lay-off."

"Every team is a group of individuals. Some will have a hard time preparing without a game this week, and some will go out there and improve every day, which is what we stressed since we started in August. But we will work very hard to get better and be ready for the rest of the season."

Hurting Hornish helps harriers

Nobody would blame Westfield High girls cross country coach Tom Hornish if he took this season off, but he wouldn't hear of it.

"There was no way I was going to miss this season," said Hornish. "This is the best girls cross country team that Westfield has ever had. Wheelchair and all, the kids take care of me at both meets and practices."

Hornish is confined to a wheelchair after falling from a ladder while painting his house this summer. He suffered extensive injuries, including a fractured pelvis, broken right ankle and fractured left wrist.

Despite his injuries he hasn't missed a day of school as a history and social studies teacher at Westfield High, nor has he missed any girls cross country practices or meets. He hopes to be back on his feet by December and expects a full recovery from his injuries.

"Assistant coach Bonnie Hagerman has been my right-hand person," said Hornish. "She drives me to and from the practices and meets. My young lady athletes also make sure I get whatever assistance I need. That's the kind of great people we have here in Westfield."

Hornish has been teaching at Westfield High since 1973. He was named the Parent Teacher Organization's "Teacher of the Year" in 1988. That same year he was also selected to be a Governor's School Scholar as part as a statewide teacher enrichment program. He's been listed in the Who's Who in American Education since 1993.

He's also been a coach at Westfield High since 1973, serving as assistant boys cross country and track coach from 1973-79; varsity indoor boys and girls track coach from 1976-81; varsity spring girls track coach from 1979-92; assistant spring girls track coach from 1992-

95; and varsity girls cross country coach from 1980 to present.

His girls cross country teams won the state sectional titles in 1991 and 1994 and were Union County champs in 1988, '89, '91, '93 and '94. He has been named Union County girls cross country "Coach of the Year" in 1988, '89, '91, '92, '93 and '94.

He's a 1967 graduate of Caldwell High School, where he lettered in soccer and track. In his senior year he was goalkeeper when his soccer team won the school's first-ever Group III state championship.

He also graduated from Seton Hall University in 1971 after playing four years of varsity soccer. At "The Hall" he was named "Most Improved Player" in his junior year and "Most Valuable Player" as a senior, when he also served as team captain.

He earned a master's degree from Rutgers in 1981 and is currently working toward a doctorate there. He's also been awarded a three-year grant by the National Endowment for the Humanities to attend Columbia University studying South Asia.

His family was also quite active in sports. His father, Donald, attended the Naval Prep School in the 1940s, where he was an outstanding football, baseball and basketball player. Brothers Peter and Kevin played soccer at Caldwell High School, and Kevin was also a top-rated pole vaulter in high school and college.

Tom's wife, Donna, teaches math at Westfield High. They were married in 1976.

This year's team is currently 4-0 in dual meets and winner of the prestigious New Jersey Catholic Track Conference and the Stewart Memorial championships. The team's captains are Karen McGuire, Sharon Gambino and Xanda Martins.

"Our 1995 team is really a team in every sense of the word," said Hornish. "At any moment anyone can come forth to lead us to victory. Our immediate goal is to be Watchung Conference champions. We still hope to go to the Meet of Champions. Whatever happens, it's been a phenomenal experience for me and an honor to be part of the Westfield track program."

AUGUSTO F. MENEZES/THE RECORD
Westfield High's Ryan Stefiuk and Abdallah Simiaka should be key contributors to the cross country team's title hopes at the Watchung Conference Meet Saturday.

WHS x-country running for titles

By JAMES REILLY
THE RECORD

As the Watchung Conference championship meet approaches this Saturday at Warinanco Park, the Westfield High boys and girls cross country teams are in the running to win the American Division titles.

The boys are currently 7-0 in dual meets and are led by one of the top runners in the state in junior Matt Elmuccio, who'll be the heavy favorite Saturday. Following Elmuccio for the Blue Devils is a strong group of athletes which Head Coach John Martin feels can supply the necessary points needed to complement Elmuccio to win the crown.

"With Lawrence Ho, Ryan Stefiuk, Abdallah Simiaka, Mike Krug, Chris Tafelski and D.J. Curry, we have the guys to reach our goal, which is to get better every meet, so we can challenge for a state title," said Martin. "Winning Saturday is a step toward reaching that goal."

The girls team is 10-0 in dual meets and with Suzy Kozub, Terry Milanette, Lauren Saul, Kellie Goncalves, Shannon Stone and Sharon Gambino on hand, Head Coach Tom Hornish likes his chances.

"We have two girls who can challenge for first place in Suzy Kozub and Terry Milanette," said Hornish. "But then our next four or five girls can finish in the top 10, which would probably be enough to win the meet."

"But in order for us to win, we'll need to run with the top girls, Ana Tavares and Sonia Noal of East Side, and split them with our pack of runners. If we can do that, we can win."

The Lady Devils have finished second in the Watchung Conference every single year since 1988, and Hornish feels ready to break with tradition.

"To be totally up front, although I know it'll be tough, and it'll take terrific performances from our girls, we do hope to win it this year," said Hornish. "We're hoping to finally break through. We've been bridesmaids for too long and now it's time to be brides."

"We've beaten everyone in the conference already, and now we just need to come up big one more time."

Westfield PAL tops Millburn

The Westfield D team defeated Millburn 12-6 behind two touchdowns by Jan Cocozziello.

They exploded from the gate again as quarterback Cocozziello took the first snap and ran for a 65 yard touchdown. After solid runs by Keith Zemsky, Devin Stanley and Matt DuPont, Cocozziello struck again. Sweeping the left side, he powered through five tacklers on a 47 yard touchdown run. The defense took over as Joe Wisniewski had three tackles, Thomas DeDuca and Darnell Butler had two tackles and Paul Dyer, Jourdan Loffredo, David Reinhardt and Rick Brautigam each had one tackle, and were holding fast. Millburn scored on their ninth play with a 25 yard touchdown pass. That made the score 12-6.

Westfield's second series featured runs by Brad Trzesniewski for 13 yards, Luke DiMatteo for 12 yards, Cocozziello for 10 yards and Stanley for five yards. The offensive line of Jody Seagull, Alex Crawford, Brian Bigelow, Nick Gismondi, Brad Cantor, Sean Hurley and Richard Fussell kept opening good holes all afternoon. Westfield held Millburn to only 27 yards on their next series. Wisniewski made three tackles. Millburn's quarterback broke a bootleg left and was headed for a score when Loffredo brought him down from behind. David Hewitt closed things out by recovering a Millburn fumble.

PAL C TEAM

The Blue Devil C team won 21-0 on touchdowns by Matt LaCroix, Ben Kokett and Brian Butts, who had 104 total yards, and with great team defense. Butts and Phil Bartlett stuffed Millburn on their first possession for minus eight yards. After a 16 yard punt, Butts got Westfield started with two bursts for 11 yards. Then LaCroix took a double reverse to the left, broke several tackles and went right for an exciting 39 yard touchdown. Brian Ludlum ran for the extra point, making the score 7-0.

Millburn's only yards on their next possession were from a penalty. Kyle Sullivan, Pat Daly, Dave Inman and Kokett led the tough defense. A short 18 yard punt had Westfield starting on their 40. Butts hit Jay Cook for 11 and 21 yard pass completions around a 22 yard sweep by Ludlum. That set up a 16 yard touchdown run by Kokett on a right sweep. Ludlum's extra point run made the score 14-0. Westfield's offensive line of Kyle Sullivan, Monte Glasco, Dave Inman, Phil Bartlett, Richie Harris and Ricky Roig were dominating the trenches.

Millburn was held to two yards on their next series as Matt Toth made two tackles and Chris Gismondi, Adam Trzesniewski, John Logan and Cook made a tackle each. A 37 yard punt was returned 14 yards by Ludlum, to give Westfield the ball at their 37. Diano Reavis ran three times for 24 yards, and Kirt Giresi ran twice for five yards, but their drive was stalled by a clipping penalty. A 30 yard punt was returned 30 yards to give Millburn great field position at the Westfield 40. Sullivan led the hot defense by stopping a sure touchdown on a 21 yard pass completion. Butts, Roig, Inman and Ludlum stopped the drive to close out the half.

Both teams were three and out to begin the second half. Westfield got started again from their 18, and Butts went to work. He ran three times for 45 yards, and passed to Cook for nine yards. Kokett ran for six yards and Ludlum chipped in a nine yard burst. Butts finished the drive with a two yard touchdown run. Kokett's extra point made the score 21-0. Joe Martucci, Brett Snowden and Trzesniewski closed out Millburn in three plays. Westfield was rolling again as Reavis ran five times for 41 yards, and Mike DeFazio took a reverse for 40 yards. A fumble at the seven yard line gave the ball back to Millburn. Cook shut down Millburn to finish the game and keep the score 21-0.

PAL B TEAM

The Blue Devil B team won behind two Mike Mroz touchdowns, Glenn Hurley rushing 12 times for 114 yards and a touchdown, and a tough defense led by Joe Robinson. Millburn started with a passing game that moved them 24 yards on their third play. Robinson had three tackles and a quarterback pressure. Matt Andzel, Jake DuPont, Hurley and Mroz made tackles and stopped them on downs. Westfield started with Hurley and Mroz rushing behind the improved line of Jim Mitchell, Nick Geisler, Terance Jenkins, Chris McKay, Vince Wilt, Mike Duels, Lou Mercer and Andzel. They lost the ball on downs, and Steve Muzeni got off a 35 yard punt.

On Millburn's next four plays, Robinson had three tackles, two for 11 yards in losses. He was helped by Jim Villane and Jenkins. On third and 21, Hurley intercepted a pass and returned it five yards to the Millburn 17. Four plays later, Mike Mroz swept right and cut back to score from 19 yards out. He also ran in for the extra point, making the score 7-0. Dave King led the charge against Millburn on their next series. On their fourth play, Vince Wilt intercepted a pass and returned it 20 yards to the Millburn 15. Four plays later, DuPont connected with Mroz for a 24 yard touchdown pass. Hurley kicked the PAT to make the score 14-0 at the end of the first half.

Westfield opened the second half with Hurley carrying six times for 20 yards. A Mroz sweep on fourth and 11 was a yard short, giving Millburn the ball on their 37. Jordan Brown broke one for 38 yards before DuPont tackled him from behind to save a touchdown. DuPont, Robinson and Jenkins shut down Millburn, with Jenkins knocking down a fourth down pass. Westfield was three plays and out, and punted 25 yards to the Millburn 46. They started marching, despite Jenkins, Andzel, Wilt and Duels tackles. Mroz then intercepted a third down pass on the Westfield 21 to stop the drive. Hurley broke the game open on the next play as he ran around right end for a 79 yard touchdown. His PAT kick made the score 21-0. Westfield shut down Millburn's last drive as Duels, DuPont and Pete Martinez made fine defensive plays.

WESTFIELD ROCKETS

Rockets 2, Wappinger Falls, N.Y. 2
Rockets 3, Hamilton Thunder 0
Rockets 0, Cosmos 4

The Westfield Rockets, a Division 5 team, participated in the Hamilton Invitational Tournament Columbus Day weekend and represented itself well in this highly-competitive event.

In their first game, the Rockets dominated the first half against Wappinger Falls using a nice passing game, but trailed at the half 1-0 after the New York team scored on a breakaway. In the opening minutes of the second half, the ever-present Alex Barrett headed a clearing kick toward the box where Matt Delaney, a consistently smooth operator at forward, won the ball and found the original "Mad Dog" scorer Matt Solka in the penalty area, where he slipped the ball toward the goal, past the goalie and powerhouse striker Nick Schuster had held his position and pounced on the rolling ball and dropped it into the net to tie it at 1-1. On the next score Jeff Nusse won a midfield ball to keep the Rockets on offense and found Mark Gately hustling into the middle where he received the pass, faked the defender and sickly pushed it through to Amada Thiam. Thiam, always a danger near the goal, converted by one-touching and directing past the goalie for the 2-1 lead with seven minutes to play. Unfortunately for the Rockets, they gave up a breakaway for the 2-2 tie and were denied a shot on an open goal when the referee blew the whistle to end the game with a Rocket getting ready to run from eight yards out. Goalies Chris MacDonald and Taylor Hogarth played well in goal and were only scored upon due to the breakaway goals.

Sunday morning, the Rockets rolled over the hometown Thunder with a second half scoring outburst after dominating a scoreless first half.

With the Rockets dominating the first half, they out-shot the Thunder 12-1 but could not score.

On the only Thunder shot of the second half, the Rockets' big keeper, Chris MacDonald, slid into a charging striker, sacrificing his body to prevent a score at a crucial point in the game. The Rockets finally got the scoring going when Nusse found Solka in the box and the mad dog fought off a defender and drew a foul. Lee Tomasso, a deadly shooter, stepped up and converted for a 1-0 lead.

Tomasso continued to work the offense from his sweeper position and fired across from 25 yards out on the right side to find Barrett in the box where he trapped beautifully and crossed to Solka in front for a chip, Rockets 2-0. Nusse continued the onslaught as he took a ball out of the air and sent a high pass through to Thiam who made it with a volley over the goalie for the 3-0 final.

In their last game the Rockets ran into a powerful select team, the Cosmos, from South Jersey. The kept the game competitive for the first half and hung in for a 0-0 halftime score. The Cosmos mounted tremendous offense pressure early on, however, goalie Taylor Hogarth came up tough and made four beautiful saves to turn away the frustrated Cosmos.

On one play, Hogarth made a diving block and stopper Matt McManus sped to the ball, rolling in front of an open net, and rifed a clearing kick to save a goal. McManus continues to provide speed and tenacious play on defense.

The Rockets started to turn the tide, led at midfield by Barrett and Nusse along with tough full back Richie Moran, who always comes up with timely stops on defense. Tomasso took on the Cosmos' speedy forwards and led several charges out of the defensive end and put the Rockets could not break the Cosmos iron clad defense. In the second half the Rockets wore down and gave up four goals.

WESTFIELD COMETS

Comets 2, East Brunswick 2
Comets 3, Watchung Hills Elks 1

The Westfield Comets improved their record to 1-0-2 after an impressive victory over the Watchung Hills Elks. Westfield jumped out to an early lead on a boot into the back of the net by Patrick Farley. Midfielder Dan Mahoney provided Farley with the assist. Later in the first half Dan Francis fed forward Neal Kroncke who blew by the Watchung defenders. Kroncke culminated the breakaway with a low driving kick into the right hand corner.

The Comets demonstrated strong defensive skills throughout the game. The defense was led by sweeper Brian Piro who stole ball after all from the advancing forwards. Mike Checchio's solid contributions in the fullback position enabled the Comets to remain on the offensive. Stopper Joshua Dennerlein had several steals and started the midfielders in motion via accurate passing. Midfielders Jess Abramowitz, Steven Myer and Rylan Palumbo made good defensive plays and distributed the ball to the hungry forwards. Chris Johnson's goalie camp attendance this summer was evident as he held Watchung scoreless in the first half. J.J. Sobala and Farley also stopped several as they shared the goalie responsibilities.

In the second half the Comets' pace slowed. The Elks took advantage bounding upfield to score a goal. With only a one-goal lead, the Comets were energized by Coach Joe Sobala. Coach Sobala put Piro in at center forward, Sobala in as left forward and Mike Huber in as right forward. Huber demonstrated good speed and was able to move the ball upfield. Johnson was moved to left halfback were "Lefty" bootied strong crosses in front of the goal mouth. Sobala tried several times to increase his 1995 goal total but was just wide. Matt Rowe stole the ball and made good forwarding passes to keep Westfield on the offensive. Westfield's attack was highlighted by the third and final goal. Piro executed a perfect header which flew just over the outstretched hands of Watchung's goalie and bounced into the back of the net.

The Westfield Comets' two previous games had ended in ties. The Comets are looking for local teams for scrimmages. Interested teams should call Joe Sobala at 654-9050.

WESTFIELD SHARPSHOOTERS

The Westfield Sharpshooters lost to a tough Rahway team, but bounced back with a resounding win over Mendham. The first quarter of the game against the Rahway Rebels saw the Sharpshooters narrowly miss on several opportunities. Striker Brady Lau and halfback Matt Gallagher both had booming shots that carried over the goal. Sharpshooter goalie Edward Degottal made seven stops in the first half including a jumping catch of a direct kick. The Sharpshooters scored first when left halfback Paul Goldweitz centered on a crossing pass from the sideline and right halfback Brendan Egan touched it once in front of the net and put it by the goalie. Rahway tied it late in the half on a rush from the right side. Will Imbert at left fullback and Joe Geissler at center half showed good trapping and clearing skill to prevent further Rebel scoring. The third quarter was scoreless as the Sharpshooter defense was led by fullbacks Ryan Shallicross and Brad Fechter each of whom had tremendous clearing kicks. Gregory Speir at center half worked with striker Jeffrey Shuts showing great work on the offensive end near the goal. The Rebels broke through for two goals in the fourth quarter to make the final score 3-1. Brady Lau at right half had one shot stopped by the Rebel goalie and another deflected by a Rebel fullback with the goalie out of the net.

The Sharpshooters then had their best showing of the season with a 4-1 win over the Mendham Jaguars. The Westfield team dominated the first quarter but did not score, as the Mendham goalie was peppered with shots from right half Speir and center half Imbert. In one sequence, Imbert passed beautifully to Shallicross at striker, but his shot was blocked wide left by the Jaguar goalie. Brad Fechter at right half got the Sharpshooters on the board in the second quarter as Shallicross and Imbert pressed close to the goal and Fechter hit a crossing off a deflection. Imbert showed good midfield work with header traps and ball distribution. The defense of Lau and Shuts at fullbacks and Egan at sweeper completely shut down the Jags. Mendham broke through in the third quarter despite great goal work by Mark Kline who stopped seven shots in the quarter including a one-on-one breakaway. Westfield went ahead for good on a penalty shot awarded when striker Fechter was taken down in the box. Matt Gallagher converted the penalty in textbook style hitting it low and into the far left corner. The Sharpshooters then tied it in the fourth quarter with two scores. Center half Shallicross took a pass from halfback Degottal, split two defenders, and put his shot high into the right corner of the net to make the score 3-1.

The final score came as sweeper Egan fired a pass to Shallicross who got it to the striker Imbert who put it just past the goalie. Fullbacks Geissler and Goldweitz dribbled and cleared away offensive thrusts by Mendham.

Westfield High's David Koye (23) and the junior varsity boys soccer team are beginning their chase for the Union County Tournament title this week.

MELISSA KLAVER/THE RECORD

WHS junior varsity boys are ready for UCT action

The Union County Junior Varsity Soccer Tournament was scheduled to begin yesterday for the Westfield High boys with a home game against Oratory Prep of Summit.

Westfield, under new Head Coach Mickey Cassu, is seeded fourth in the tourney based on its 5-3-1 record, which includes a 3-1 mark in Union County. Even for a JV group, it's a very young collection of Devils.

"Any JV team experiences a pretty drastic turnover each fall, but I inherited only three players from last year's JV and they're all sophomores," said Cassu. "We're primarily a team of underclassmen, and younger than most of our competition."

The team's scoring has been paced by freshman Bob Stroud and tri-captains Peter Lau and Dave Koye. Sophomore Jordan Kaplan and freshmen Jeff Nahaczewski and Joe Schaffer have added depth to the attack.

The defense is anchored by tri-captain Dan Todd from his defensive midfield position. Other key defenders from the team are stopper Scott Mann, marking backs Andrew Cambria and Tom Murch, and sweeper Matt Coltrera. Two key defensive players from last year's freshman team, Adam Cohen and Nick Friedman, have both been plagued with injuries and have yet to see much action. The goal has been tended by freshman Mike Idland, with relief provided by Rob Jessup and Scott Cutro.

Coach Cassu also depends on a number of midfielders with good foot speed and ball control. They are led by Peter Lau and Dave Koye with support from David Geissler, Jeff Kivetz, Nick Pino and freshman Michael Stotler.

OT setback ousts Devils from field hockey tourney

The Westfield High field hockey team fought the good fight, but was eliminated from the Union County Tournament Monday when Kent Place's Kristen Osborne scored in overtime to give the Lady Dragons a 2-1 first-round triumph.

The Devils' Ashley Szezyler tied the game up 1-1 in the second half at Summit to force the extra period, and goalkeeper Trudy Schundler had an excellent game, recording 22 saves for Westfield (3-6-2).

Westfield hosts Union Monday, and Roselle Park Wednesday.

Westfield 1, Oak Knoll 0 — The Lady Devils emerged victorious from a hotly-contested game in Summit last Wednesday as senior left winger Amanda Love scored off a nice pass from Beth Giameo for the game-winner. Goalkeeper Trudy Schundler was strong in net, stoning five shots by Oak Knoll.

GIRLS TENNIS

Westfield defeated Scotch Plains-Fanwood High 5-0 Monday as first singles player Heather Post dropped only a single game, as did Laura Faulkner at second singles. Becky Matro won 6-2, 6-0 at third singles.

In doubles play, Marcy Beller-Shari Gersch won 6-1, 6-2 at first doubles, while Meghan Corbett-Jen Matro won a tough 6-4, 6-3 match over Lady Raiders Eileen Hannigan-Danielle Kapner at second doubles.

Westfield 5, Summit 0 — The Lady Devils stood head and shoulders over the Hilltoppers Friday as Heather Post recorded a 6-0, 6-3 win at first singles, Laura Faulkner won 6-1, 6-1 at second singles, and Becky Matro came back from a shaky start to win 0-6, 6-3, 7-5 at third singles.

First doubles duo Beller-Gersch won 6-0, 6-1, and second doubles tandem Corbett-J. Matro won 6-1, 6-2.

Westfield 5, Roxbury 0 — Westfield whitewashed Roxbury Thursday in the North Jersey Section 2, Group 4 sectional tournament. Post won 6-2, 6-0 at first singles, Faulkner won 6-1, 6-0 at second singles, and Becky Matro won 6-4, 6-3 at third singles.

Beller-Gersch won 6-1, 6-2 at first doubles and Corbett-J. Matro won 7-5, 6-0 at second doubles.

MELISSA KLAVER/THE RECORD

Westfield High's Molly Phelan (28) and her field hockey teammates were eliminated from the Union County Tournament when they fell to Kent Place 2-1 in overtime.

Hometown Hero

Dave Brown, in his second year as the starting quarterback of the New York Giants, is a graduate of Westfield High School and Duke University. Each week, the Record will track the accomplishments of the fourth-year pro.

This week: Brown completed 9 of 18 passes for 82 yards before being benched by Head Coach Dan Reeves midway through the third quarter of the Giants' 17-14 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Brown's replacement, Tommy Maddox, was 6 for 23 for 49 yards and threw three interceptions, which made any hopes for a Giant comeback futile. After the game, Reeves announced Brown would retain the job as starting QB — for now.

This Sunday the Giants (2-5) have a bye before they travel to Washington Oct. 29 to face the Redskins.

Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. M. A.

'Buy-it-yourselfers' turn to Internet

Homeowners use computers for product information, designs, comparison shopping

Nearly 80 percent of homeowners now consider themselves "buy-it-yourselfers." Only one in five say they rely on the advice of professionals to assist in their product buying decisions, according to a survey by Better Homes and Gardens Special Interest Publications.

Buy-it-yourselfers can get that advice from one of the fastest-growing sources of information for homeowners — the Internet's World Wide Web — say building product manufacturers. The Web grew by 360 percent in just the last quarter of 1994, according to Open Markets, Inc.

"Buy-it-yourselfers demand information about home products where they can reach it, when they want it," said David Sidman of Pella Windows and Doors in West Caldwell, a distributor for the Pella Corporation. He said area homeowners are seeking product information once requested only by builders and contractors. "They demand competitive comparisons, details of product features and examples of what the product will look like installed."

Right now, more homeowners are looking for this kind of information on the Internet. "If it's not there, that product may not be considered when it's time to buy," said Randy Iles, vice president of marketing for the Pella Corporation, which recently established a site on the Web to provide on-demand information about windows and doors.

With a home computer, modem and browser software, homeowners have everything from product photos to technical information at their fingertips. And while only two percent of building materials manufacturers have World Wide Web sites now, according to WebTrack's InterAd Database, Mr. Iles expects that number to rise quickly.

Like Pella, companies such as Frigidaire, Electrolux, Master Lock and Grohe Faucets have anticipated this demand and established sites on the Web.

Upon accessing Pella's home page through an online service, users may choose informational paths including "Windowscap-ing," which provides photos and descriptions of design ideas; "Crash Course," which includes a glossary of window and door terms and energy efficiency ratings technology; "Jamb Session," which highlights product line options and benefits; and "Windows of Opportunity," where users can request free information about making window decisions by entering their name and mailing address.

"We expect the Web to support our sales personnel," Mr. Sidman said. "Buy-it-yourselfers now have the window and door information they demand — at their fingertips when and where they demand it."

For free literature about making window decisions, call 1-800-847-3552, or visit Pella Corporation on the World Wide Web at <http://www.pella.com>

The chairman, president, executive staff and all the employees of Burgdorff Realtors' Corporate Headquarters will not report to work on Wednesday. Instead, they will report to the Community FoodBank of New Jersey in Hillside for a full day of volunteer duties.

"After thirteen successful years assisting more than 3,000 families with our Stocking Project, we have decided it is time to go in a new direction," said company president Peter Burgdorff. "Many of the agencies we served over the years with this project have sent us lovely letters of gratitude that express their understanding of our need to reach out to others. One of the reasons we selected the Community FoodBank is because we can go as a group, no matter how large, and participate together. We are all extremely excited."

John Grace, a sales associate with Weichert Realtors' Branchburg office, has qualified for the company's 1995 Ambassador's Club, an honor achieved by only the top 2 percent of the company's 7,500 sales associates. This is the fifth consecutive year he has earned this honor.

John and his wife Maryann have been listing and selling homes together for 16 years. They are members of both the Somerset and Hunterdon County Boards of Realtors. Their sales performance has earned them numerous honors. Most recently, the team was recognized as the region's top producers for selling the most homes and securing the most revenue units in June.

In addition to consistent membership in the Ambassador's Club, Mr. Grace has been a member of

What we need

It's so dull sifting through press releases every day. Letters, especially about Weekend Confidential, really make a day. Our fax number is (908) 526-2509.

We're working on a pet story and so humorous anecdotes about companion animals are also welcome.

Dear Weekend Plus

I am writing to let you know how much I appreciate the caption and picture you entered for your movie review in the Sept. 27-29 issue.

Your comment that you are an "all-American family newspaper" and "refuse to run degrading and sexist photos from Showgirls just because everyone else did" was truly appreciated. This is the kind of publication I choose to support and have in my home.

Thank you again for your public stand in this matter. We truly appreciate it.

WEEKEND CONFIDENTIAL

TV: Expect more of the same

Weekend Confidential had the opportunity recently to watch some shows included in the fall TV lineup. Three of the shows captured our interest, maybe as they all take place in the city that doesn't sleep or win basketball games: New York.

Simon, which airs 8:30 p.m. Sundays on the WB channel, focuses on a slow-witted New Yorker played by Harland Williams. Simon shares a Harlem apartment with his unemployed brother, Carl, played by Jason Bateman and they spend a lot of time trying to get it right in the prime of their lives. Weekend Confidential gives it a 6, which is being generous, as it really wasn't that funny.

The next show is one we endured as a courtesy to you, dear reader, so you wouldn't have to go through the agony of watching it yourself. This show is The Single Guy, airing 8:30 p.m. Thursdays. Jonathan Silverman as said Single Guy has friends played by Jessica Hecht and Joe Slotnick, who are married, which makes Johnny the odd man out.

They fix him up with seemingly good women who end up having a major problem. The show delivered about as much impact as the Tyson-McNeely fight and will probably end quicker. We gave it a 2 for being horribly lame and stupid.

An hour later on the same network, Weekend Confidential saw Caroline in the city. Lea Thompson is — you guessed it — Caroline, an attractive, single cartoonist who has trouble with men. The supporting cast is made up of Amy Dietz as Annie, Caroline's friend, and Richard, a schizophrenic cartoonist, played by Eric Lates.

The show is about a young woman trying to mix love, success and happiness into her life and the trouble she has getting any of them. The show has excellent writing and a lot of laughs. We gave it an 8.

Of course, Weekend Confidential realizes you don't have to take our word for it. Our only piece of advice is to watch The Single Guy soon because this bomb is ready to explode.

Less of the same

Forget about New York City. If you want a real running challenge, try the Yonkers Marathon like Weekend Confidential did recently.

While every marathon is 26.2 miles, a challenge daunting enough, Yonkers has to be the hilliest area in the Metropolitan area. We ran up, up, up huge hills and then down, down, down again and again.

"Hey, bud," said one grizzled veteran at the starting line. "If you can do this, New York is a walk in the park."

The race's support staff was excellent, providing water stops at every mile marker. The course was lined with directional arrows and police were everywhere directing traffic and protecting the competitors.

We did reasonably well, but woke up extremely sore the next day ... the day we received our confirmation number for New York City.

Like that's something our aching legs really want to think about right now.

Not the same old

It's worth the admission price just to see John O'Brien as "The Creature" in Frankenstein at Somerset Valley Playhouse. He is at once loathsome, fearsome, and yet sympathetic.

A laboratory scene is quite exciting, particularly for local theater.

We can recommend this unusual offering for non-profit theater even if you're not into the macabre.

Video Rewind

Everybody else (including Mr. Magoo) has done A Christmas Carol, so apparently it was time for the Flintstones to do it.

The Flintstones Christmas Carol has Fred playing Scrooge onstage (with much of Charles Dickens's text intact) and off (without).

The moral is something about remembering to buy your wife and daughter presents, making you a better person.

It's relatively harmless and cost $14.98 or less.

The video re-release of Cinderella still works in any event, and you don't even have to know that the singing voice of the prince is former TV talk show host Mike Douglas.

In Tommy Boy Chris Farley has to learn how to run a business and David Spade has to teach him.

Don't ask me to tell you any more than that.

Demi Moore does feminist Hester Prynne and Gary Oldman does racy Reverend Dimmesdale in The Scarlet Letter.

Hollywood's magic touch strangles another classic

BY JEFFREY COHEN
Weekend Plus film critic

The current version of The Scarlet Letter to reach the screen includes an ending that does not adhere to the Nathaniel Hawthorne novel. Douglas Day Stewart's screenplay is "freely adapted" from the novel, and in making the movie a vanity production for Demi Moore he and director Roland Joffe threw out all but the very basics of Hawthorne's plot. The movie bears as much resemblance to the novel as it would if this were now a story of a young woman trying to make the varsity team at Rutgers University. You wonder after a while why they didn't change the names to Hester Smith, Rev. Arthur Jones and Dr. Roger Daltrey. Calling the movie The Big Red "A" would have made more sense.

Making sense was not foremost on the mind of Joffe or Stewart. What was most important was to present us with a postfeminist Hester Prynne who runs around wearing lace when she's not supposed to and lusting after Rev.

Arthur Dimmesdale. Moore has a British accent that comes and goes.

Gary Oldman, who plays Dimmesdale, looks like George Harrison and spouts an Irish brogue while explaining he's lived in Salem, Massachusetts, all his life.

The movie begins long before the novel with Hester arriving in Salem in 1668 (the novel's with her hair down and she watches from a cliff as the good reverend takes his customary skinny-dip in a nearby lake.

Joffe, whose good films (The Killing Fields) create a real sense of place, gives us a Puritan village that makes us feel like we're watching a demonstration of butter churning at Colonial Williamsburg. Stewart, whose better screenplays (An Officer and a Gentleman) concentrate on conflict between characters, brings in a last-minute rescue by Indian warriors.

That gives Oldman the chance to shake off the shackles of inactivity the rest of the movie has given him opening scene is more than halfway through the film). A voiceover from her daughter Pearl informs us that Hester was a woman of some rebellious tendencies.

The movie bears as much resemblance to the novel as it would if this were now a story of a young woman trying to make the varsity team at Rutgers University.

She speaks before being spoken to, often disagrees with the town elders (mostly Robert Prosky) and becomes the object of either scorn or lust, depending on the character with whom she's interacting.

When Hester first sees Dimmesdale, she is wearing a ring of wildflowers around her head and treat us to the exploits of Arthur Dimmesdale, Action Hero. If Moore's husband Bruce Willis had been cast as Dimmesdale, it wouldn't be more inappropriate, maybe less so.

The Scarlet Letter goes through so many ludicrous episodes — including a nude scene with Robert Duvall, who plays Hester's mostly-absent husband Roger Chillingworth — the happy ending has been made irrelevant other than to get us out of the theater. After 135 minutes, that is truly a blessing.

FROM RUSSIA WITH LOVE

New Jane Voorhees Zimmerli exhibit captures snapshots of Soviet history

BY MARC O'REILLY
Weekend Plus writer

The death of communism in the former Soviet Union has brought force a new life force in the way of art, some of which can now be seen in New Jersey.

Beginning Sunday, the Jane Voorhees Zimmerli Art Museum at Rutgers University in New Brunswick will feature an exhibit "From Gulag to Glasnost: Nonconformist Art from the Soviet Union."

The 350 works on display were drawn from nearly 10,000 in the Norton and Nancy Dodge Collection of Nonconformist Art from the Soviet Union. The museum also recently became the home of the private collection of noted soviet art collector George Riabov.

"I believe that the two unique Soviet and Russian art collections will define the Zimmerli's identity in the 21st Century," says the museum's director Phillip Dennis Cate. "A hundred years from now, I'm hoping that people will say, 'You have to come and take art history at Rutgers, because they have the Dodge and Riabov collections.'"

About 10,000 square feet has been dedicated to the collection, and an expansion under way on the museum will result in another 3,000 square feet for the exhibit.

Appreciation for the art requires some degree of understanding of the plight of the Soviet Union in the past century.

"It is very important to understand the history of these works. In many cases, this is a much more didactic type of art, even when abstract, than much Western art in the 20th Century. It would be closer perhaps to the significance of knowing the religious background of say, medieval art.

"One should even know something about the different regions: the Baltics, where a lot of very exciting work was done, was more liberal than, say, Moscow," Mr. Cate says.

Communism's reign in Russia delivered a dampening effect on art.

A history of art trends provided by the museum cites the establishment of specific unions for different art forms by Stalin in 1932.

Social Realism became the officially-approved style in 1934. In 1946, there were attacks on liberal arts policies by the Politburo and Council of Ministers.

Unable to exhibit their works, and denied paints and canvas (distributed through the Artists' Union), nonconformist artists often supported themselves with menial jobs or relied on their spouses, some of whom were official artists.

Most nonconformist art was created in small cramped rooms. Their works depicted the ordered life of the Soviet Socialist Republic. Through art, they kept the spirit of rebellion alive.

A piece by Evgenii Abezguaz titled Adam Ate and Ate of the Fruit that Eve Gave Him but Knew Nothing shows a Russian couple in a small fenced-in garden in the countryside. The man sits on a stool eating apples the woman has gathered up in her blouse. Their faces are sullen.

Shuvalovo Station by Vladimir Ovchinnikov is an oil on canvas pieces depicts a group of Soviets waiting at a railroad station. On the tracks is a man with a snow shovel watching a group of angels who are sitting on the rails. In the background, we see army tanks on a transport train, but no passenger cars.

After Khrushchev denounced Joseph Stalin's hard line limits on art in 1956, the Soviet Union began to see what Norton Dodge called "a thaw in the arts."

But turbulent political events still directly effected artists — censorship was tightened in 1963 as a result of Khrushchev's humiliation over the Cuban Missile Crisis.

Although the Zimmerli's opening of this exhibit will be spectacular for art enthusiasts, the display is not likely to cause the ruckus similar art did in the Soviet Union.

When a group of unofficial artists organized an outdoor exhibition in front of the Odessa State Theater of Opera and Ballet, it was dismantled by police within 3 hours of opening.

An exhibit organized as the Fall Outdoor Show on Sept. 15, 1974 on the outskirts of Moscow later became known as the Bulldozer Exhibition after authorities demolished the display and arrested a number of artists.

International attention to the bulldozer prompted a second Fall Outdoor Show Sept. 29 1974, which drew a crowd of 5,000 spectators in Izmailovsky Park in Moscow.

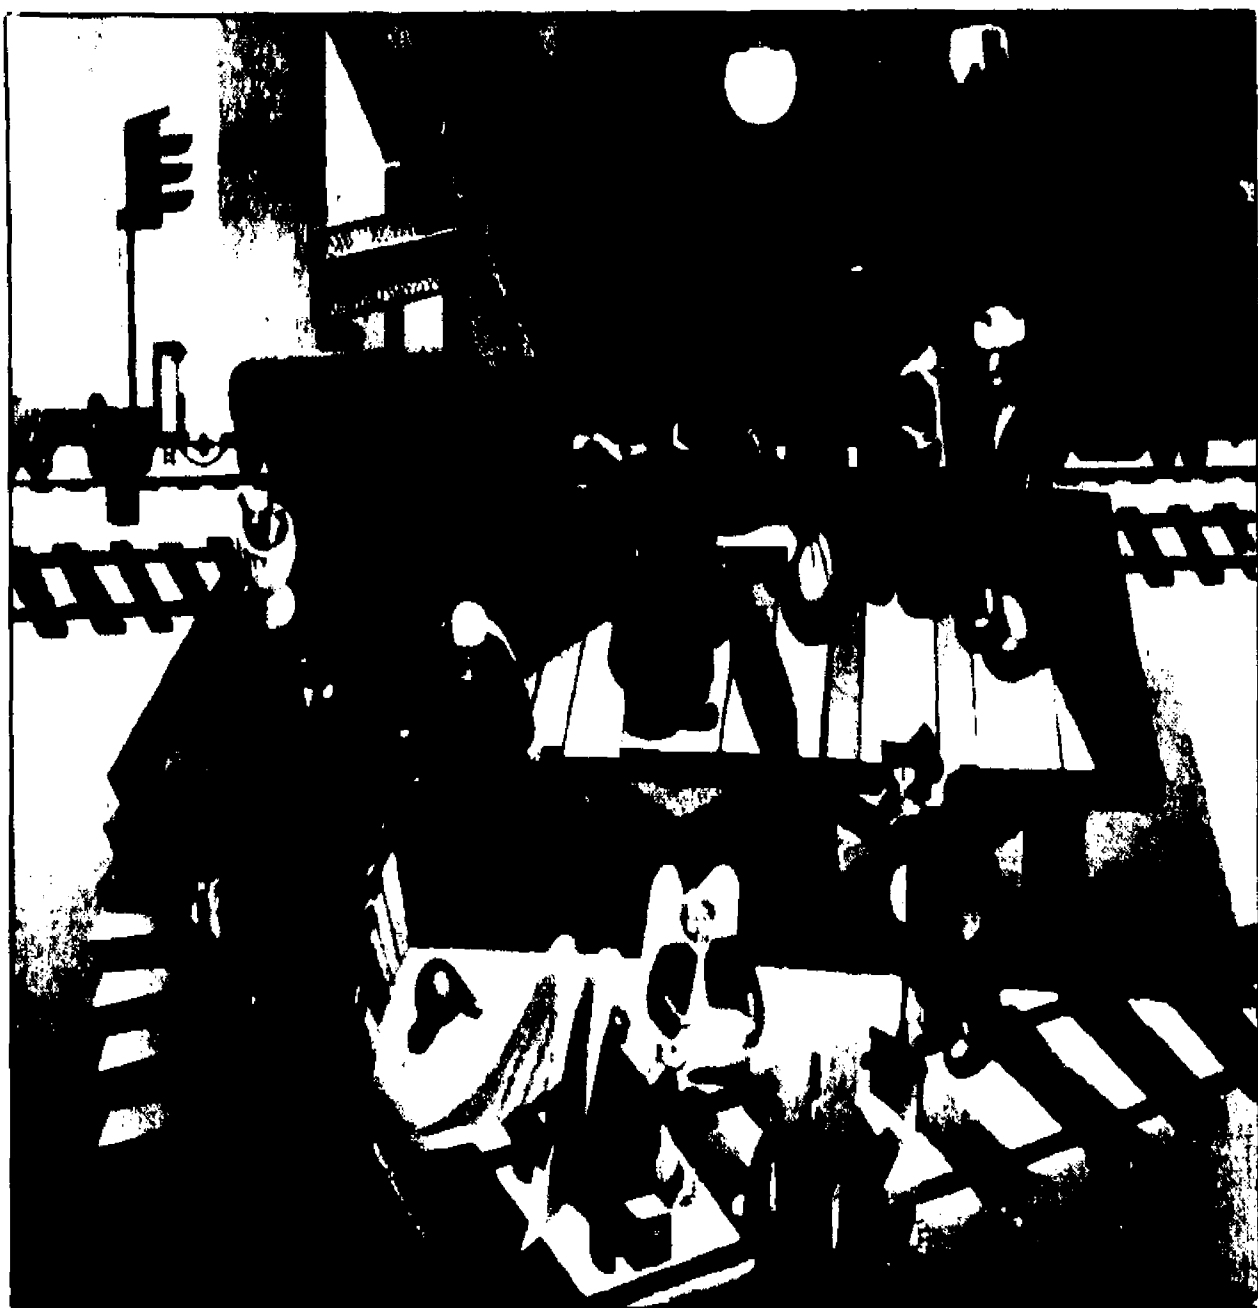

A catalogue featuring about 500 illustrations of the exhibit will be published this fall, 312 of the illustrations in color. The catalogue will show the extensive background of this artistic period.

The Jane Voorhees Zimmerli Art Museum is open 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Tuesday-Friday and noon-5 p.m. weekends. It is closed every Monday. For more information, call (908) 932-7096.

Where to go What to do

Watchung is gearing up to celebrate Dr. Eaton Day Sunday, Oct. 22. Festivities will kick off 10 a.m. with services at the historic Wilson Memorial Church on Valley Road. The service will be presided over by Reverend Ronald Miller, author of A Prophet in the House.

The Reverend says he got to know Doc Eaton through letters and journals from the family and through New York Times articles.

"And I talked a lot with his congressional colleagues," says Rev. Miller. "After listening to their stories about what a good man who had a terrific sense of humor, I felt like I really knew him."

On the desk in the Reverend's study sits the journals Doc Eaton had begun to write. He had intended to write his biography.

The memorial service is free and the public is invited to attend.

Invited guests include Governor Christine Whitman, Congressman Bob Franks, and Eaton family members who will be able to sit at the inlaid walnut desk Doc Eaton worked at during his 30-year political career.

The desk, the size of the one in the Oval Office, now sits in Reverend Miller's office at Wilson Memorial Church.

After the services, a Parade Through the Decades lead by Watchung Hills Regional High School's Marching Band, horse-drawn carriages and vintage automobiles along Mountain Boulevard will wind its way to Twin Brooks Country Club.

Residents are encouraged to line the Watchung Village Circle, the shores of the Watchung Lake and Mountain Boulevard to cheer on the parade as it makes its way to Twin Brooks Country Club. The roads will be closed to traffic.

A champagne brunch awaits participants at the country club.

On display at the reception will be a presentation of Doc Eaton's achievements through memorabilia donated for the occasion by his family.

Tickets for the reception are available for $15 at Watchung Borough Hall and at the library.

To reserve a horse-drawn carriage, register a vintage automobile to join the parade, or for further information, call Catherine Iichert at 757-6895.

The wide world of the Foxy Grandpa

Watchung recognizes resident statesman who shaped map of the postwar world

BY CHRISTINE GRAEF

Weekend Plus writer

He strode to the platform, flung back his shock of white hair, squared his big shoulders and faced the crowd.

At 80 years old, his eyes still sparkled with some inner mischief as his speech gently eliminated his opponent and Dr. Charles Aubrey Eaton won the primary to save his Congressional seat.

Known as the "Foxy Grandpa," Dr. Eaton served on the U.S. House of Representatives 1924-53. As the county celebrates the 50th anniversary of the signing of the United Nations Charter, Dr. Eaton's hometown of Watchung honors the memory of their native son. Doc Eaton, as he was known to his friends, signed the U.N. Charter June 26, 1945, on behalf of the United States.

Although Mayor Anthony Addario never met Dr. Eaton, he says he knew the grandson's wife, Dot-tie Eaton, very well.

"I listened to stories about him, told by those who knew him when they were children," says the mayor. "When you're little, seniors make a real impression. After reading his press clips and biography, I felt this was a very special man."

The mayor added both President Roosevelt and President Truman appointed Doc Eaton to the Foreign Relations Committee. It was in this capacity the Foxy Grandpa signed the U.N. Charter.

"He must have been a very influential leader for two presidents to put him in that position," says Mayor Addario. "His contributions to this country were formidable. His leadership in Congress was legendary and his oratory notable. And yet, the Foxy Grandpa drew much of his wisdom from his family, his home and his farm in Watchung."

Before becoming a congressman, Doc Eaton lived a varied career. Born the youngest of 11 children, the doc became a minister and preached in Baptist churches in Massachusetts, Canada, Ohio and New York. During his decade in New York, he worked as Editor-in-Chief of Leslie's Weekly.

An excerpt from his biography, Prophet in the House reveals in 1909 — during the task of finding a home suitable for his family of six children — Doc Eaton left the crowded city on a train. As the train approached Plainfield, he glanced out the window to the north and his eyes were instantly attracted to the hills. He departed the train and rented a horse and buggy to search out the enticing rural country.

As they plodded along the dusty and rocky main road, Doc Eaton became certain he had found the spot he wanted to make home. He quickly bought 300 acres for $1,500 and rented an apartment in Plainfield while construction was completed on the Valley Road farm.

A year later, the Eaton family moved there.

"Whenever Grandfather came home to Watchung from Washington, the first thing he did was to sit down at the big kitchen table and have a piece of apple pie with cheddar cheese," says his granddaughter Hester Hyde. "Then he'd take a long walk around the farm."

In 1924, a group of his neighbors in Watchung asked him to run for the House of Representatives in an attempt to oust Democratic Congressman Charles Browne. Mr. Browne's slogan was "Browne can't be beaten" until the doc's campaign won with a slogan of "except by Eaton".

In the intervening years, Doc Eaton waged 26 campaigns, 13 primary contests and 13 general elections without tasting defeat.

Few people realize the important role he played in getting the Marshall Plan passed. Two-thirds of the Republican majority membership were opposed to it.

As the weeks wore on, observers became alarmed as word got around the Foxy Grandpa proposed to clutter up the vital European Recovery Plan with an impossible burden to aid China, Trieste, Greece, Turkey, and their destitute children.

The bill passed by a whopping majority. Moreover, the final product, the Foreign Assistance Act, was considered superior to original proposals. And it included help for China, Trieste, Greece, Turkey and the destitute children.

"As early as 1930, Doc Eaton wrote that the world had shrunk to neighborhood proportions," says Mayor Addario. "He felt that the U.S. must nurture its role to reach out to help neighboring nations as any American would reach out to help our neighbors next door."

Suitable for family viewing

TV addicts battle for remote control

BY RACHAEL HIP-FLORES
Weekend Plus youth writer

In my family, you will find such a variety of taste when it comes to TV. It's unbelievable. Anything from nature shows to the 'novelas' (Spanish-speaking soaps) can be found on one of the screens in my house.

Here's just a taste of the immense diversity of our family TV habits.

The Pope? Click. Halfway-decent movie? Click. Animal carcass? Now we're talkin'!

This is most likely what goes through my dad's mind as he flicks through the tube's almost-wide selection of viewing enjoyment.

A now-11-year-old girl can only take so many lions hunting so many zebras catching so many hundreds of them. However, a 47-year-old man is a different story. My dad is addicted to seeing animals and insects getting slaughtered. What's worse, he has the annoying habit of putting these totally nauseating nature shows on at dinner.

I'm thinking of becoming a vegetarian. At least plant life has no guts and gore.

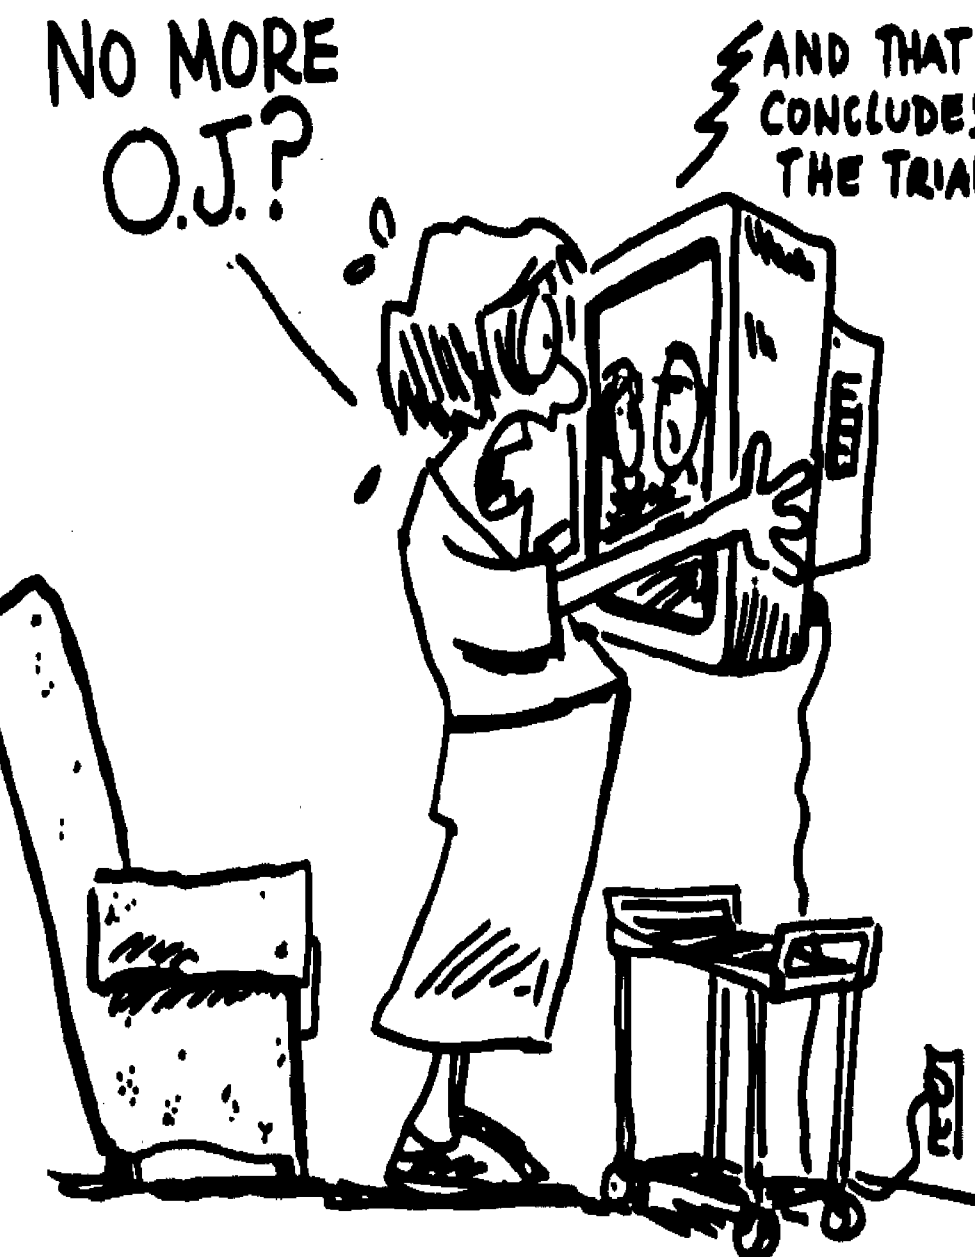

Speaking of addictive, my mom is another case in point. I'm sure some of you out there are like my mom — total news junkies. I continually pray in hopes of getting a hot meal that a riveting news story does not come out every week. The O.J. trial was a catastrophe at my house.

My mom couldn't get anything right. If I wanted a glass of water, she would bring me a chocolate doughnut, and I learned to ask for a chocolate doughnut when I wanted water. You would think a full-grown woman could tear herself away from Mar-ena, Johnnie, Chris and Bob, not to mention F. Lee, long enough to cook dinner. Thank God for pizza delivery, otherwise we would all be close to starvation.

I won't even begin to go into the Gulf War. Even the microwave was cold. Thank God cameras have now been banned from most of the high-profile cases.

As for mom's condition now, she still hasn't completely gotten over the shock of the fact that the "Trial of the Century" is now over. She is practically walking into walls. At least she remembers how to walk, although I think it might take a while for her to remember our names.

Classy, my sister, is a special case. We worry about her. She watches totally wholesome and nutritious TV. It's disturbing an 18-year-old actually wants to watch C-SPAN and begged us to tape the "State of the World" address with Margaret Thatcher, Mikhail Gorbachev and George Bush. Way weird. We're presently giving her steady treatments of Ricki Lake and Jerry Springer, but I have a sinking feeling this may not be a phase.

Click. Click. Click. Click. Click. Click. There was a trial once about a woman who killed her husband as he channel-surfed continually. I don't know about you, but if I were on the jury, I would have acquitted her. I mean, that click-click-clicking can absolutely drive you insane. I should know. Whatever my brother David gets hold of the remote you get to watch about one-third of a second of any given show (Unless, of course, it's sports. Then you watch the entire game, which could be pretty painful if you happen to land on football or something).

I usually try not to let the remote fall into the evil hands of my brother, but unfortunately it always does. When David gets hold of this little technological demon, I might as well leave the room and hunt down another vacated TV because I too might wind up on trial for homicide. Guilty as charged.

I have a Cuban grandma and a Cuban great-grandma, who absolutely, positively live for their soaps. The novelas are like American soaps, but twice as badly acted. And my grandmas get really into it. They start saying stuff like "¡Estupido! ¡Eso es el bebe de Carlos! ¡Quidado! ¡El tiene un revolver!" (Translation: "Stupid! That's Carlos's baby! Look out! He's got a gun!") At least the novelas reach a dramatic conclusion after about two years, unlike American soaps, which are totally pointless.

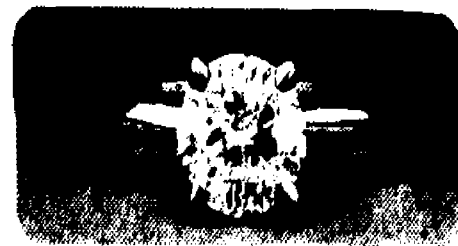

I have a great-grandfather who unfortunately also is in love with the tube. He is hard of hearing, and so you would think he'd turn the TV up loud enough for the neighbors to become hard of hearing. I've got news for you: If you haven't already noticed, my family is a bit eccentric.

Grandpa puts the sound down so low, it ceases to exist. Considering all he watches are spaghetti Westerns, he ain't missin' much. (I thought these shows were extinct or banished or something, but Grandpa always seems to find them) Odd. Eerie. Totally annoying.

As for my own TV habits, well, they're pretty tame. On Tuesdays, I watch Frasier, on Thursdays Friends and Seinfeld, and on Fridays The X-Files. Such taste. Such simplicity. Why can't the rest of the family be like me? I rule! Sike!

Rachael Hip-Flores, 11 — when she's not watching TV — is a student of Martin Luther King Elementary School, Piscataway. This column runs the third week of the month.

Home or away, fine Jewish fare comes at your convenience

BY PHYLLIS RECKEL

Weekend Plus culinary correspondent

A truism: You don't have to be Jewish to enjoy a corned beef or pastrami sandwich on rye bread. If you subscribe to that truth, Jewish or not, one of your best bets for a great sandwich is Jack Cooper's Celebrity Deli and Restaurant in the Tano Mall in Edison.

If you have a little mouth, you'll have trouble taking in a bite of their piled-high, very lean yet incredibly tasty corned beef or pastrami ($5.95). But it's worth the effort.

A corned beef pastrami combination sandwich ($8.50) is a bargain. You can easily eat half now and the other half at home.

Another good way to enjoy those meats is served on potato pancakes ($9.50) with apple sauce. The pancakes are a crispy mouth-watering accompaniment.

The Celebrity Deli menu includes most every Jewish (but not kosher) deli item you'd expect: cold borscht ($1.50 a cup), smoked whitefish salad platter ($9.95), bagel and lox ($7.25), salmon and whitefish served many ways, Hebrew National franks and cold cuts.

The pickled herring in cream sauce ($4.95) appetizer and the split pea soup of the day ($1.75-$2.25) were both enjoyable.

With my sandwich, I included a potato knish ($1.95). I enjoyed this despite it being different than most as it was baked, rather than fried — just a bit healthier. A dining companion had the kasha (a grain) knish. She enjoyed kasha varnishkas (a kasha and bowtie combination for $2.50), an acquired taste.

In addition to the myriad deli salad platters, hot and cold sandwiches, omelets, burgers and tidbits, Celebrity Diner's menu includes entrees ranging from stuffed cabbage or Virginia ham steak ($8.50) to southern fried chicken ($9.95) and braised brisket of beef ($10.95).

The Coopers (father Jack and son Warren) also offer customers a daily dinner special, very un-deli-like. The night we were there the says Doug, "so we're going to try them."

In addition, more vegetarian and fresh fish dishes will be on the menu.

But now and then, even the most diligent dieters desire a pastrami sandwich. That, plus all the cold cuts and salads served in the dining area can be bought at the delicatessen counter at one end of the restaurant.

For out-of-towners craving that deli sandwich or wanting to celebrate a special occasion, Celebrity Diner will ship overnight most anything, from hors d'oeuvres, soup, cold cuts, smoked fish, or dinners (including soup with matzo ball, noodles or kreplach). The cost is the food price, plus tax, plus packaging in a reusable insulated container ($7.50) plus airshipping charges, $1.50 per pound of shipped weight.

There are many ways to get in touch with Celebrity Deli. At the Edison restaurant, the phone is (908) 549-4580, fax (908) 549-4599; airshipping orders (800) 525-3354; world wide web: www.rivint.com <http://206.26.136.3/>; Internet: jcooper@rivint.com or celebdeli@aol.com.

If it's been a while since you've had Jewish deli food, try Celebrity. You'll like it.

Water. Water. Everywhere. Make sure you drink a lot, especially when exercising.

Losing fluid through perspiration can cause fatigue and hinder performance. Also, drinking water is important for weight management. Just make sure if your intake is abundant, there's a proper place for your output. Sweat doesn't get rid of it all.

Drink before, during and after exercise. Experts recommend one or two cups of cold water before a workout. I recommend maintenance drinks every 20-30 minutes, depending on the exercise, and at least 2 cups of water when you're done exercising to replenish lost fluids.

Don't wait until you feel thirsty. If you do, you may be on your way to dehydration. Other warning signs include: fatigue, loss of appetite, flushed skin, heat intolerance, impatience, indistinct speech, stumbling and dizziness — these can also be a sign of PMS. Or MSS Male Stress Syndrome.

Drink cold water on a hot day, warm water on a cold day. The idea cold water causes cramping is an old wives' tale. Actually, cold water is preferable during hot weather as it is absorbed much more quickly than warm water, so an overheated body can get cooler faster. Likewise, to stay warm in cold weather, drink warm liquids.

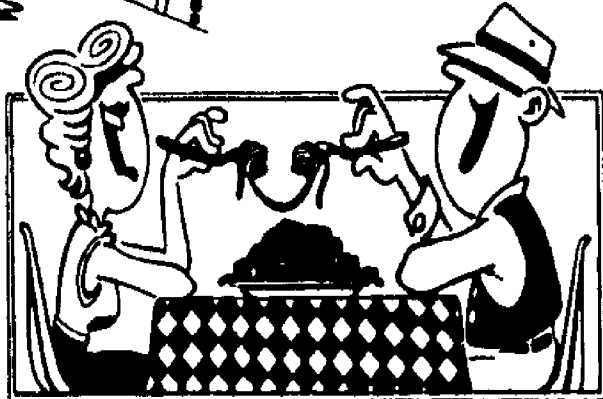

Stay away from caffeinated drinks. Like alcohol, caffeine in coffee, tea and sodas cause you to lose water through increased urination. Drink water to get rid of water weight. Strange as it may seem, the less water you drink, the more your body will hold for future use. If you drink 8-10 glasses a day, the body has a large supply and won't retain it as excess weight.

Drink before and during meals. Drinking a glass of water before and during meals tricks the stomach into thinking it's fuller than it really is. The result is you eat less.

Drink to keep your body humming. Water helps balance body systems, digest food and remove waste products created by the breakdown of fat — especially important when changing eating habits.

Add no-calorie flavorings. Try a pineapple ring, a lemon wedge, an orange slice, a sliver of kiwi or a splash of cranberry juice for a tart twist.

I'll be back next week drinking water at the same time, same place but trying different natural stuff. (Facts supplied by National American Precis Society. Humor supplied by me.)
