"Refreshing" and "Delicious" are words that we often hear after people have tried at our fountain. ORANGE PHOSPHATE is so common that it takes something extra to call forth such remarks. The secret of our is that we are careful to have fresh syrups made from the best material we can find. Fresh syrups mean syrups made not longer than the day before you taste it. Our ORANGE PHOSPHATE is delicious because it has that tart, acid taste that gives it its health-giving properties.

New England Meeting Houses.
Cotton Mather said: "I find no just ground in Scripture to apply such a trope as church to a house for public worship. A meeting house is the term that is most commonly used by New England Christians, and every town, for the most part, can say we have a modest and a handsome house for the worship of God, not set off with gaudy, pompous, theatrical fabrics, but suited unto the simplicity of Christian worship."

The people were seated in the early days, says Dr. Ezra Hoyt Byington, in his book on "The Puritan in England and New England," on rough benches, men and women on opposite sides. Pews were not provided first. Now and then a special vote was passed by the town authorizing some person to build a pew in the meeting house at his own expense. Squares on the floor, about 6 feet by 6, were deeded to individuals, on which they erected pews to suit themselves. The best seat was sometimes assigned to the man who paid the highest tax in the parish. Sometimes the committee was instructed "to have respect upon them that are 50 years old and upward, others to be seated according to their pay." In one instance we have a record that the committee was instructed "to have respect to age, office and estate, so far as it tendeth to make a man respectable, and to everything else that hath the same tendency."

Turks and Meerschmann.
According to the best authorities upon the subject, the idea of using white tale in the manufacture of pipes is of comparatively recent date, compared with the age of the habit of smoking, and what is still more curious is the fact that in the oriental countries which produce white tale, or meerschmann, as it is called, and where the use of tobacco forms part of the education of the faithful, the people never dream of making this substance into pipes. They make bowls and goblets of it, but no pipes. It may be that the long pipostems which allow the smoke to cool and lose its acridity before reaching the mouth leave the oriental smoker quite indifferent in regard to the quality of the bowl. At all events, one never sees a Turk with a meerschmann pipe. —Courier des Etats Unis.

SOME ROYAL DOGS.

Nearly every one of the sovereigns of Europe, it appears, has one or more pet dogs. The collies of Queen Victoria, the fox terriers of Princess Beatrice, with Jack as prime favorite, are known at least by hearsay to everybody.

The emperor of Russia is also a great lover of dogs. A London paper reports that he is always accompanied in his walks by a couple of fine Danish hounds, whose strength and vigilance their master considers his best safeguard. The gray czar is often seen playing with these monster pets. He himself has taught them their tricks, and they are nearly always about him.

The king of Greece shares the czar's taste for the Danish hounds, which are as intelligent as they are strong, and which, with hardly a bark to announce their intentions, will fly at the throat of any one whom their master may point out to them in case of need. When the empress of Austria goes on her long walks or rides, several pet dogs always accompany her. But perhaps the most widely known of all the "royal dogs" of the present day is Black, the pet dog of the Russian Grand Duke Alexis.

Black is a sportsman's dog, of no very aristocratic breed. Indeed, if the truth must be told, he is a member of the race of mongrels which the fishermen in the south of France take out to sea, employing them to recapture any wily fish that may fall through the meshes of their nets or slip suddenly back into its element after it has been once landed on board the large. Black is still rejoicing in the days of his youth, but his record, not only as a common fisherman but as a "fisher of men," is already great, for he has saved no fewer than six persons from a watery grave.

Some three or four years ago the Grand Duke Alexis was staying at Biarritz. One stormy night he went out on the cliff to see a view of the angry sea. A boat was just being wrecked below, and he saw a dog dashing with angry growls and barks into the water and bringing to land, one by one, three drowning men, while the crowd cheered the brave mongrel to the echo. The grand duke approached to caress the dog, and the animal's master then offered Black to him, refusing to accept any payment. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

G. A. R. ELECTION.

Col. Mack's Chances Fall When Cincinnati Was Chosen for the Next Encampment.

Gen. J. P. S. Gobin of Lebanon, Pa., was elected Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R. at the annual encampment at Buffalo, Cincinnati was selected as the place for the next encampment.

Gen. George H. Innis of Massachusetts, Gen. John C. Linehan of New Hampshire, Col. Mack and Gen. Gobin were nominated for commander.

As long as God permits me to live I will serve America, and when I die I will no better tribute than this. He was a worthy comrade of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Gov. Lew Wallace also addressed the encampment.

A report from the committee on school histories was presented by A. O. Marsh of Indiana. It says that the Grand Army is dissatisfied with the histories of the civil war.

Several histories, it says, have been written by Southern historians and are incorrect and disloyal to the Union.

On Wednesday of last week the property owned by Frank A. Magowan, ex-mayor of Trenton, N. J., was sold by the sheriff.

The receiver charges that the abstraction of funds began before September, 1893, at which time $3,670 had been taken by Frank Magowan.

EUROPE'S SHORT CROPS.

We Can Supply Her Needs in Grain, but a Potato Famine Seems Unavoidable.

An extensive inquiry into European crop conditions conducted by the Orange Judd syndicate or agricultural paper, published by late returns by cable, indicates that the food crop situation abroad is grave.

Commercial estimates of Europe's (including England's) need of wheat imports range all the way from 300,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels.

The impression is gaining ground that Europe's wheat crop this year is even less than in 1891.

But this is not the worst of it. Europe usually produces as much rye as she does wheat.

No part of the world apparently has any considerable surplus of cereals except the United States and Canada.

The United States has no potatoes for export. It prices go high enough the United States can spare 240,000,000 bushels of wheat.

This would be the largest export ever made of American grain. It is just about enough to offset Europe's need of wheat and rye.

ALIEN TAX UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

So Decided in Pennsylvania by the U. S. Circuit Court.

The Alien Tax law is unconstitutional, so Judge Acheson, of the United States Circuit Court has decided.

A part of the judge's opinion is as follows: "The Fourteenth Amendment undoubtedly intended not only that there should be no arbitrary deprivation of life or liberty, or arbitrary spoliation of property, but that equal protection and security should be given to all under like circumstances in the enjoyment of their personal and civil rights."

New York's Big Chief Retires.

At a meeting of New York's Police Commissioners Wednesday, Chief Peter Conlin was retired, and the victorious majority in the Police Board forced upon Commissioner Parker, as successor to the Chief, the man to whose promotion he had said he would never consent.

SOME FAMOUS MEN'S WIVES.

They Are Given to Queer Marriages but Many Have Proved Very Upright.

It is well known that the great poet Helme married a woman who could hardly read and write and who was quite incapable of understanding what he wrote.

Goethe, the greatest of Germans, married his housekeeper. The wives of great men have much to bear.

The idea of the great electrician Edison's marrying was first suggested by an intimate friend, who told him that his large house and numerous servants ought to have a mistress.

"Out of the strong came forth sweetness" might be said of many soldiers. "An eye like Mars to threaten and command," but also a smile that betokened a loving disposition.

A Dream Invention.

Possibly the most interesting woman's invention was patented by the wife of a well-known western man. There had been some trouble with a lock, either at her home or at her husband's office, and she had been much wrought up about it.

The great German general Moltke married Miss Burt, a plain, not very cultivated girl, and lived most happily with her until her death, which took place on Christmas Eve, 1896.

Time for Serious Thoughts.

Make time for serious thoughts. Let no day pass without some memory of solemn things. Each morning as you rise remind yourselves that "God spoke these words and said."

A Modern Income.

The King of Siam has an income of about ten millions a year. His royal palace is populated by about five thousand people, and is a little city in itself.

To Avoid the Question.

"Why do you always go fishing at night?" "Well, you know, in daytime, a man carrying a rod always meets about a hundred persons who ask him if he is going fishing."

Stretching It.

PROVED THEIR CAPABILITIES.

How a Colorado Man and Wife Secured Political Jobs.

Ex-Gov. Thatcher of Colorado, tells this: "I had been in charge of my office but a few days when I received one day a large bear that had been recently killed, accompanied by a note telling me that it was 'mighty fine bear meat.'"

ENGLISH PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

The British Government More Economical Than Ours.

"Didn't she seem at all affected when you told her how her refusal had wrecked your hopes?" "No." "Not even when you told her that you had become desperate and were going on an expedition to the North Pole?"

Deceived by Appearance.

An old dandy was arrested for stealing a silver dollar. The dollar was found on his person and produced in court. "You stole this money?" asked the judge. "Dat's what dey says, suh!" "Well, what have you to say for yourself?"

A Wreath of Fancy. Lone Jack—"Say Butts, whats your theory about our strained Spanish relations affecting imported Havanas?"

The best thing about Coney Island is getting there and coming back—especially the latter.

If you expect to live long and be happy don't rush things. Don't eat as if you thought your victims would escape.

The STANDARD having opened the door of the Cranford board of education, anybody and everybody so disposed may now walk in and welcome. It having been understood that the meetings were held with closed doors, and that no visitors were wanted except those who had business with the board, the Cranford representatives of the press apparently had not thought of knocking hard to see if the door might not open in response.

In a certain sense the Palisades that flank the Hudson and contribute so much to the grandeur and fame of that noble river, belongs to the world while in the custody of Americans, and more particularly and directly under the protection of Jersey men who have never yet shown the white feather when patriotism has been called for, nor of devotion to nature.

Not long ago an anonymous pamphlet entitled "Tossed by its Fruits" was published by the Massachusetts Association opposed to the Extension of Suffrage to Women. It asserted, among other things, that while gambling goes on in other states, it is the peculiar distinction of Wyoming that gambling is licensed there; that homicide is held to be excusable when committed under sufficient provocation, and without the use of a dangerous weapon. A copy of the pamphlet was mailed to Chief Justice Grosbeck, of Wyoming, with a request for information as to the truth or falsity of these statements. He answered that his term as Chief Justice had just expired, and that he could therefore reply with more freedom than when he was in office. After mentioning a number of other States where gambling is legalized, he continues: I am not an apologist for the law, and have fought it in season and out of season. The excuse for its existence is that gambling would be carried on at any rate, and that the State ought to have some revenue for it, and place it where it could be under police espionage. Your people do not understand that, in pioneer communities, it is considered as respectable to do openly what in other communities is practised in secret. However, the law has been modified in such a manner as to regulate the matter of licensing gambling in municipalities to the several city councils. I am happy to say that in this, the University town of the State, (Laramie), gambling is forbidden by heavy penalties, and has been for many years, and this result has been very largely owing to the persistent efforts of the ladies of the W. C. T. U.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY

OF A VERY OLD FASHIONED, HIGH HANDED SORT.

Antonio Paghlinso, Neapolitan, Robbed of About $250 by two Fellow Countrymen, on the Highway in Broad Daylight.

Antonio Paghlinso (generally pronounced Paboo) is a quiet, plebian looking Neapolitan of about 45 years, who has been in America about four years. He left a wife and five children in Naples, and was expecting last week to return shortly to his native land and, presumably, live luxuriously on the interest of the $250 he carried in his trousers pocket. Antonio is not handsome, but it seems plain enough that he is industrious and economical, and it is more than probable that he is a thoughtful parent and faithful husband. He has been working for James Miller, who farms it and runs a cider mill in season, just this side of Fairview cemetery. Antonio boards with a fellow countryman on Central avenue, and walks to and from his work morning and evening. Nicholas Cipola, better known as Big Nick, is a well educated Italian from Geneva, it is thought, who has been in this part of the country for some years. He drove a beer wagon for Richard Connors, then of Garwood, for seven or eight months, stopping January 1 last. He peddled or sold Rising Sun beer for perhaps two months after that, since which date—some time in March—he is not known to have done anything for a living. He had an agreement with Connors, now with Lawrence Powers in Westfield, whereby he was to receive 10 per cent. of some $100 of outstanding beer accounts due Connors, if he collected them. Connors has just learned that Nick had collected about $100 of the amount, up to a few days ago, but made no return. He is said to have been a policeman in Italy, and to have been obliged to leave there on account of having killed a man. He is big, 6 feet or more tall, built in proportion, with large hands and feet, and stands very straight. He is very fair for an Italian—looks more like a German—gray eyes and brown hair and mustache, turning gray; looks to be 38 or 40 years old.

Frank Pnea, better known as Big Joe, is an Italian who has lived much at Scotch Plains for some years, but who is almost as well known in Westfield, it seems, as Big Nick. He is as big a man as Nick, but not so tall. He is darker, and would be more readily recognized as an Italian—has black eyes and dark complexion and hair. Nick might be known for an Italian by his speech, though he talks pretty plainly, and Joe talks nearly or quite as good English as Nick. Both men have loafed about Westfield for some months, doing no work that anybody knows of. They got most of their meals of an Italian who lives in Spring street, who has not received any pay for them.

For some days or weeks past Frank Pnea (Big Joe) has cultivated the acquaintance of Antonio Paghlinso quite assiduously, for no apparent reason—or for no reason that Antonio suspected—but Antonio thinks now, in the light of recent events, that Frank was trying to learn how much money he had and where he kept it.

Last Wednesday morning Paghlinso, on his way to his work, met the two men above described in the road on top of Gallows Hill, a mile east of town. Paghlinso has been so rattled since the robbery that no very correct story of the performance is obtainable. But it is known that the two big ruffians threw him to the ground, tied his hands behind him and carried him into a cornfield nearby, where they robbed him of his savings, filling his mouth with dirt or sand to stop his utterances. They left him on the ground tied, and started off diagonally across the cornfield toward Union. The robbery was committed about 5:30 a. m.

Constable Todd saw the two men as he was coming to his work in Woodruff's meat market, and afterward saw Paghlinso running and yelling. The constable followed the victim for five minutes to learn what was the matter, and then the two highwaymen were out of sight and he came on to town.

One story is to the effect that Charles Santor's hired man carried Paghlinso, and another is that he wriggled loose himself. His face was covered with dirt and blood from the mauling he had received, he was covered with the soil of the cornfield, and his clothes were badly torn; altogether he was a sorry looking specimen, and was dreadfully rattled. He talks very little English, so that his account of the assault can hardly be said to be graphic.

Constable Marsh drove out to Gallows Hill and saw the marks of the scuffle in the cornfield, and the trucks the robbers made when they started away. Then he came came back and telephoned the police authorities of the Jersey towns in all directions from Westfield to keep a sharp lookout for the highwaymen. He feels pretty confident they will be caught before long. It is the general impression they will try to take ship for Italy, or for some European port, and therein lies the best chance of catching them.

Meantime Antonio sits around looking decidedly glum and saying very little. His dreams of wealth and comfort have been rudely shattered, and if his money is not recovered, his spirit may be broken to such an extent that his industrious habits will never be resumed.

THE NEW STUDIO.

In the course of a few weeks Ernest Winchester will have one of the finest equipped musical studios in this or any other state. He is getting the two beautifully located front offices in the Schmitt building in readiness. The floors have been oiled and polished and all the necessary accessories to a modern studio will be found here. A leading piano firm has sent Mr. Winchester one of their finest toned instruments. The large front studio will be used for vocal and piano instruction, while the smaller room will be used as a reception room.

Mr. Winchester has arranged with four leading artists, engaged in college and conservatory work in New York to come to Westfield at stated periods during the winter, to give explanatory recitals (both vocal and instrumental). These recitals will be of the highest and for the instruction of his pupils. Mr. Winchester is well known in Westfield, having been organist of the Congregational church for two years, where he brought many of the finest vocalists obtainable. His church work is now with St. James, at Elmhurst, Brooklyn, where he has a fine surprised choir and is doing successful work, which is highly appreciated by the music loving and cultured congregation of that parish.

His studio in Westfield will be ready September 10, after which date arrangements may be made for lessons daily except Wednesdays and Fridays, between 2 and 5 p. m. Successful teaching in past seasons, backed by the highest conservatory and professional endorsement, warrants the belief that a good share of the local patronage will be given to Mr. Winchester.

Jersey State Fair.

The New Jersey state fair opens at Waverly on Monday, Sept. 6. It is the thirty ninth annual. The arrangements promise a fair that will surpass all previous years in number, variety and class of exhibits. They declare they have never allowed the horse or the track to overshadow the other departments, but that each is kept abreast of all the others. There will be a large show of horses, neat cattle, sheep, swine and poultry, improved farm machinery of every description, carriages, wagons, etc.; also an extensive assortment of fruit, grain and vegetables, and of domestic and home made productions. The classes for tandem, cobbs and road horses will be hotly contested, and the special prize competition for runabouts, it is considered, will eclipse all others in popular interest.

The Rubber With Cranford.

The third ball game with the Cranford Athletic club will be played on the Walnut street grounds, Elizabeth, on Monday (Labor Day) morning at 10:30 o'clock. This should be a very exciting contest, and the Westfield boys are prepared to serve up the game of their life. Don't miss this game. Take your family on the 9:27 train and go and witness a red hot game of ball.

THE JUNIORS' FIFTH.

Anniversary Entertainment of Central Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. Central council distinguished itself last night by giving a fine anniversary entertainment in the club hall.

After an overture by Brittingham's orchestra W. M. Stamets, secretary, gave a brief history of the five years' career of Central Council. M. J. Fitzpatrick of Newark sang "The Chimes of Trinity" (his own composition); Walter W. Waters sang a song and told a story, the orchestra played, there were some piano selections by Harry Lem, a banjo duet by R. K. Taylor and Mr. Bastable. H. Pearsall's phonograph charmed the audience for awhile, and then Wm. S. Clarendon spoke on the objects and principles of the order. Part 2 was almost a repetition of Part 1, with the addresses of Stamets and Clarendon left out, with the difference that Fitzpatrick sang a new song of his own make entitled, "He is Sleeping in the Klondyke Vale To Night." The audience filled the hall, and went away much pleased with the quality of the entertainment offered.

The City's Fair.

The American Institute fair, an exhibition which takes the place of the county and state fairs for the city folks of New York, opens this year on September 20, and continues till November 4. The striking feature of the year will be the number, variety and novelty of the electrical exhibits, but machinery in motion and manufacturing processes will, as usual, constitute one of the most interesting features.

John and Wesley Hender were brought before Justice Collins yesterday afternoon by Game and Fish Warden Benj. E. Brown, of Roselle, for fishing with a net or seine in the brook where Echo Lake was before the dam broke. The accused claimed they used the fish caught to stock other ponds, and the Justice suspended sentence.
"The Story of Ben Hur" to be recited by Professor H. Theodore Chamberlain next Wednesday in Arcanum hall, before the Old Fellows of Westfield lodge and their friends, illustrated by a hundred or more stereopticon views, including one of the famous chariot race, promises to become a red letter night in the history of the lodge. It is a thing which should on no account be missed.
Labor day is to be celebrated in Westfield by the Grand Army. Winfield Scott post of Plainfield will locate the two bronze cannons on the soldiers' plot in Fairview cemetery, with appropriate exercises. The Woman's Relief corps of Plainfield are expected to attend, and 5 minute speeches by prominent men are expected to be a feature of the occasion. A club house dinner is talked of.
The Congregational church Sunday school reopens Sunday next at 12 o'clock, having been closed during the month of August. Mr. Ketchum will preach at the morning service, and the Christian Endeavor society will resume its Sunday evening meetings at 7. A preparatory service will be held next Wednesday, and the Sunday evening church services will be resumed September 12.
A very one-sided collision occurred under the Westfield avenue railroad bridge late Thursday afternoon, between Miss Alice Warneke and Robert Woodruff. Miss Warneke was riding south on Westfield avenue, looking round at something, when Woodruff came into the road from Spring street. Her wheel was considerably bent, and she was badly shaken up and bruised, though not seriously. A passing carriage took her home.
Jacob Schreff died at the residence of his mother in law, Mrs. C. Johnson, on North avenue, last Saturday morning at 3 o'clock, aged 34 years. He was the husband of Mrs. Schreff, nee Johnson, who was killed by a train on the night of May 21 last, at a point near her mother's house. Deceased injured himself by lifting a year or two ago and had been an invalid ever since. He came from his father's house, near Plainfield about two months ago, and had been living at Mrs. Johnson's since. The couple left one child, Katie, five years old. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Rev. W. H. Ruth officiating. Members of the Baptist choir sang. Interment was in Fairview cemetery.
Civil Engineer M. L. Salisbury has returned from a visit to his old home in Maryland.
To-morrow's Ball Game. The crack Bayonne Field club come to Westfield to-morrow to play the Westfield club team. A good game can be looked for, as the visiting team feel sorely their defeat of a few weeks ago by the Westfield boys.

HEPTASOPHS ORGANIZE. A Conclave of 30 Members Organized Tuesday Night. As previously announced, the Westfield convales of the Improved Order of Heptasophs was duly organized last Tuesday night by District Deputy J. H. Primrose assisted by several grand officers of the order. The meeting was held in Arcanum hall. There were present, beside District Deputy Primrose, Supreme Officer Sanford of Newark, J. P. D. Krich, secretary Protective convales of Plainfield, and John Green and A. V. Langer of Plainfield. The convales having been duly instituted the membership elected officers as follows: Past Archon, R. P. Grant; Archon, C. A. Smith; proost, Edwin Shield; financier, H. C. Piker; secretary, P. D. Collins; treasurer, C. K. Darrow; prelate, W. J. Hart; inspector, E. C. Winter; warden, W. Kleinfelder; sentinel, E. E. Love; trustees, Dr. R. R. Sinclair, C. E. Pearsall, A. K. Gale. The order is expected to furnish safe insurance at a very low rate.
A South Broad Street Fire. Martin H. Pickell brought in an alarm of fire from South Broad street last Wednesday afternoon about 3.30, which was responded to by sending out the small hose cart, the hand engine, the chemical engine and the hook and ladder truck. The fire was found in one of C. F. W. Wittke's houses, occupied by Andrew Gordon, colored. It had started in a corner of the front room, had burned through into the space between the plastering and weatherboarding, and so found its way up into the attic, where most of the smoke seemed to originate when the crowd arrived. Neighbors had the fire neatly out when the firemen arrived, so that water from the hose was not really needed, though some was put on. Ira Lambert seemed to have been directing the efforts of the impromptu fire brigade to good purpose. The plastering was burned off in the corner where the fire started, the weatherboarding between two studding burned through to the eaves, and the second story front room pretty thoroughly smoked up. The damage to the house can probably be made good by the expenditure of a hundred dollars. The household goods of the family had nearly all been moved out, and lay scattered all over the lots in the vicinity. Gordon and his wife were both away at the time the fire started, their small boy and the baby being the only occupants of the house. The baby was carried out asleep by the neighbors. No one knows how the fire started, but it is presumed the small boy and the match box got together and were responsible for it in some way.
Plainfield Business College removed to city bank building reopens Wednesday, Sept. 1. It now has four courses, commercial short hand, telegraphy and English. It runs night and day, and is open to both sexes. Two courses will be given for the price of one, if the offer is accepted at once.
Something to Depend on. Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, New Coventry, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with a gripe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into lousy consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and a half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at Dorvall's drug store.

MORE KLONDIKE ARRIVALS.
The Portland brings twenty-six, but only $10,000 in Dust.
Seattle, Wash., Aug. 29.—The steamer Portland arrived at her dock at 3:30 o'clock this morning after an uneventful trip of fourteen days from St. Michael, Alaska. At St. Michael she landed the 200 passengers who had carried north safely with their baggage and outfit and saw them comfortably aboard the Charles Hamilton, the new steamer just completed by the Alaska Trading & Transportation Company for the Yukon-Klondike trade, and this was to be her maiden trip. They anticipated reaching Dawson today, everything favoring them.
As the reporter stepped over the rail the first words that greeted him from one of the Portland's officers were:
"Help stay this mad rush to the Klondike and starvation, for that's what it means if the men on their way there ever reach their destination."
"The steamer Weare is two weeks overdue at St. Michael and we waited for her several days because it was reported that she had treasure on her to the value of about $1,000,000. No, the passengers of the Portland did not bring much gold, although all have money. It would be a conservative estimate to place the amount of gold dust among the whole crowd at not to exceed $2,000 or $30,000. According to their statement all have gold claims that will be worked by their partners all winter. Inquiry among their clients the statement that they are so well satisfied with the Yukon as a rich gold country that they will return in the spring, carrying provisions enough to ensure them beyond want of the possibility of starvation.
"They all confirm the statement of great strikes, however, and some of them have participated in them, spending money in development and prospecting more claims. These twenty-six men from Klondike may represent miles of wealth, thousands or millions of money, and every pan will show pay dirt, but it is not to be counted till it is separated from the gravel. Men who endure the hardships of the Arctic circle deserve all the gold they find. Yes, the ship returns, but not with passengers booked through to the Klondike this year."
TREASURER CR. ZER IN HIDING.
Charges as to the Use He Made of Some of the Loan Association Money.
Peter Crozer, the defaulting secretary and treasurer of the two wrecked loan associations of Trenton, N. J. is being hidden by his friends until arrangements can be made to secure bondsmen. Bail in a large amount will probably be required, or he will be arrested on charges of embezzlement made by the other stockholders.
John N. Lindsay, the President of the associations, said that he could not see where the missing money had gone. The association by-laws require the President to sign warrants to pay out money, and he had not, he said, signed warrants to any such amount as $30,000, the amount of Crozer's shortage. James Buchanan, counsel for Crozer's assignees, however, has a large number of notes and checks showing large loans to Lindsay and to Edward W. Evans, the former solicitor of the associations.

GREAT REJOICING IN FRANCE.
The Treaty With Russia Was Signed on Wednesday Soon to be Published.
A cablegram from Paris says that it has been learned definitely that the treaty of alliance between France and Russia was signed on Wednesday last. The two governments have arranged to publish the text of the treaty simultaneously. August 31 was observed as a national holiday in celebration of the ratification of the treaty.
The government has decided upon a demonstration, including the dedication of the public and other buildings, on the occasion of President Faure's return from St. Petersburg.
All of the Paris newspapers express keen delight that the French-Russian alliance has been proclaimed formally. The confidence between the Czar and President Faure, the papers agree, has had a most happy result as regards the interests of France and Russia and the peace of the world.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.
WHEAT—After the skyward tendencies last week, wheat has settled back a few points, and the present prices are devoid of speculative indications. The market is resting on actual values.
RICE—Holders take rather a steady view of the market for medium and pearl, but the demand at present is light from all sources. Red kidney are quite firm.
HONEY—Receipts show just a little increase, and will be an improvement in the demand the market held a slightly unsettled tone. As a rule, however, there was no disposition to make further concessions in price and the business accomplished was quite generally at the "for arbitary" fancy fresh creamery.
EGGS—The arrivals continue moderate, and there is still a light offering of blue fresh gathered eggs. Trade is not active, but there is a slight leaning to hold the market firm for the very best Western in the back of it.
APPLES AND PEACHES—Receipts of apples continue moderate, a fair demand for desirable qualities at steady prices. Receipts of peaches were heavy and the fruit was in regular condition. There was a little improvement over the low rates last week, the great bulk of the Jersey fruit offering in range of 25¢ to 30¢ per basket.

MISS-MISS SPARED.
HE CAPTURED THE GRIZZLY JUST IN THE NICK OF TIME.

How the Hudson Bay Tribes Dispose of the Old and Indigent Members—This Old Warrior Bought Another Death and Got a New Lease in Life.

"There is but one beast that the Indians are really afraid of," said Egerton Young, the Baptist minister who recently returned from a long sojourn among the Hudson bay tribes, which was the pioneer missionary. "That is the grizzly bear, the tiger of North America. Only once have I heard of a grizzly being captured alive, and in that case the feat saved the life of a famous old warrior."
"Among many of the Hudson bay tribes it is the custom for the able bodied to put to death the old men and women who are no longer able to do their share of the work. The old women are simply knoeked on the head without ceremony. The process of getting rid of an old man is more elaborate. The Indians do not think it well to stain their hands with the blood of one who was once a warrior. So they delegate the task to their hereditary enemies, the wolves, to which they render all assistance in their power.
"When it has been decided at a solemn powwow that any particular old man is to die, instructions are given to a number of young men to take measures to get rid of him immediately. Among the executioners are always the sons of the condemned man. The day after sentence has been passed these executioners call on the veteran, attack him with stones and spears and drive him into the wilderness. There they leave him to his fate. A few days later they return and collect a few well gnawed bones, which they bring back with fitting ceremony.
"Among all the warriors belonging to a tribe with which I made a long sojourn, none had a more glorious record than Miss-Miss. But Miss-Miss was getting old. His eyes were dim, his hands were slow, and rarely did he bring home a fat buck. Furthermore, food was scarce, and Miss-Miss retained an excellent appetite. One morning Miss-Miss got orders to be prepared to receive the next day a delegation of young braves led by his two stalwart sons.
"But Miss-Miss, though he had assisted in many such ceremonies in his day, did not yet come to consider himself old and useless. He was very angry. Just as Miss-Miss had done reviling the ingratitude of the young a boy rushed in to say that a huge grizzly was feeding a short distance from the camp. Here was the veteran's chance. All the braves were away at the hunt. Children and squaws and Miss-Miss were the sole occupants of the camp. He knew that to face a grizzly single handed was certain death, but it was the death of a man. So Miss-Miss armed himself with his spear and tomahawk and went forth to seek the bear.
"He had not far to go. Within a few hundred yards of the camp he espied the largest and leanest bear he had seen for years, making a scanty meal of dried roots. Crawling up as close as he could, he hurled his spear. The weapon struck the bear in the flank. As he had calculated, the wound had no further effect than to infuriate the brute and turn its attention upon him. Miss-Miss took his stand with his back to a tree, grasped his little tomahawk firmly and awaited death.

"Now, had it been an ordinary little black bear the peril of Miss-Miss would have been small. A black bear would have risen on its hind legs when it came to close quarters, and leaving its chest quite unprotected, tried to insert its paws between the man and the tree in order to hug him to death. All Miss-Miss would have had to do would have been to wait until it came within arm's length and plunge his hunting knife into its chest. One thrust would have been sufficient. But a grizzly is different. It strikes with its mighty claws. Miss-Miss awaited the onset. When the bear came to close quarters, it rose on its hind legs and made a mighty, sweeping blow at his body. Setting his teeth, Miss-Miss struck at its head with his tomahawk. The weapon was dashed from his grasp and he was hurled to the ground, but, much to his surprise, unharmed. Instead of the sharp claws in his side he had felt a mighty buffet as if from a huge boxing glove. Miss-Miss scrambled to his feet. The next glance explained matters. Like himself, the bear was a veteran. It had lost its claws long since. Miss-Miss dodged round and round his tree and from one tree to another. The bear, whose sight was dim with age, aimed blow after blow, with no other effect than that of bruising its paws against the trunk. The fight went on, and Miss-Miss' strength was giving way, when through an opening in the forest he espied the haze of a campfire close at hand. The bear saw it, too, and with a grunt of disgust and disappointment turned round and trotted back into the depths of the forest to resume its meal.
"Miss-Miss hastened back to the camp and called the oldest of the boys together. "Take your lassoes," he cried, "and we will capture a grizzly alive." So out they went. When the party arrived within range, Miss-Miss whistled. The bear raised its head and the boys cast their lassoes. One noose fell over the brute's neck.
"When the braves returned in the evening, prepared to chase Miss-Miss into the wilderness, they found a huge, roaring grizzly tethered in the middle of the camp. No one of the tribe ever had done such a deed. They concluded the Great Spirit had willed that Miss-Miss should live, and Miss-Miss is alive today and in high honor with the tribe."—New York Sun.

STREET CAR CONDUCTORS.
They Work Harder and Rate Lower Than Their Steam Road Brothers.
You often think it's hard for the passenger conductor of an accommodation train which stops at two or three stations to the mile to tell who has paid his fare and who has not. The conductor of a short run accommodation train especially must be a peculiarly gifted man. He must be at once both cool headed and even tempered, or if not he will be a total failure.
But if the requisites of a railroad conductor are such, what are the requirements of the man who runs a common street car? Why, as much as those of the railroad man and several times more. The railroad accommodation conductor on one of the short run trains which leave the big cities has little more work, little more responsibility and requires less skill than the man who by grace is called "conductor" on a trolley car of one of our cities.
Both men, of course, have thousands of cars. The railroad man has a certain number of stops to make, and a certain schedule time allowed for getting over his run of the railroad. The street car conductor has an uncertain number of stops to make, yet he still has his certain scheduled time to make on his run, and he must make it, too, or be able to give an "A No. 1" excuse for failure.
The railroad conductor is always the biggest man on his team. Is ever the street car conductor the biggest, unless every passenger is off and the motorman also? These things make it hard for the patient man, who must be polite and who is expected by the company for which he works and spurred on by a dozen or so sharp eyed "spotters," or "street car detectives," as they call themselves, to feel as lovely as a spring morning, and they make his already nervous work doubly so. The railroad conductor doesn't meet that phalanx of existence once in a decade, or if so not any oftener.
No one presumes to expect so much from the knight of the ticket punch as he does from the knight of the trolley rope. Every one who travels on street cars expects the conductor to know every cross street on his line and just where it strikes that street, and, indeed, he should know this much, but in addition he is expected to know every one who lives on the streets along which his line runs, every one who lives on all the countless streets which cross the route of the street car and then all the immediate streets and their inhabitants the whole length of his line. The street car conductor is expected to be porter as well on his car. He must help people on and off, lift up and lift down huge baskets and bundles, never get tired of all the questions which only the city directory could answer, and then, in addition, keep all of the strict rules of the company for which he works and see to it that all of his passengers do so too. For this work he gets $3 or $3 25 a day, while the railroad conductor, who is a very kind in comparison, draws his $5 or $6 per day, or $125 a month, and is not classed as a "social suspect" either.

JOURNALISTIC AMENITIES.

How Hot Weather Effects Great Editors. Described by the Sun.

The New York Sun, Mr. Dana's paper, says that after describing Hawaii as a rotten republic...

Over all this insupportable position, we propose to submit the Amer. can flag. We take Hawaii into our Federal sisterhood...

Saturday, like Friday, was an uncommodious hot day. On Friday the Minkworth Evening Post came to the melancholy conclusion that popular government had ceased to exist...

Saturday's heat acted somewhat different upon the cranium of the Times. We as a nation are all right, whatever the Evening Post might say to the contrary...

How much better it is that in newspaper offices where intellect is at the mercy of the thermometer the ebullition of the gray matter should manifest itself in such comparatively benign symptoms...

Not yet the age of chivalry is gone. Not yet, nor ever will be while human nature to itself holds true. The splendors of knight-errantry are past.

Soldiers' Beds. The soldier's bed varies notably in the different Eu. pan armies. According to Dr. Viry, the following are the principal varieties, in which, perhaps, we may see the reflection of national characteristics.

A Case of Experimental Suicide. Journalistic enterprise has led to a curious insurance case in Paris. M. Henry Martin, chief editor of the Courrier de Lyon, was found dead in his room hanging from a cord passed over a hook in the ceiling and attached to a dog collar round his neck.

Eggs in Molasses. In Jamaica and other West India islands they have a very curious way of preserving eggs fresh for a considerable time. A layer of eggs is placed at the bottom of a barrel, and ordinary black molasses is poured over in sufficient quantity to cover them.

An Oklahoma Indian Tradition. Tradition among the Caddo and other Indian tribes of Oklahoma gives an account of a cannibalistic tribe that once existed in their locality.

What Discharge Killed Him. The Court—as I understand it, the deceased policeman was killed in the discharge of his duty.

Rough on Unmarried. The Faith Frisbys are very profitable to a plow who don't marry. One of their legends says that after death old maids are doomed to cut a piece of the sun when it sets and the ghosts of the old bachelors must blow them up in the east, running like launghighers, all night up and down a ladder.

IN A MINE ABOUT TO EXPLODE.

John Kendall, who was recently the foreman of a mine at Roseland, N. C., lately underwent an experiment that has left him a physical wreck.

Kendall and four other men lighted the short fuses under eight charges of black powder in the True Blue mine and then jumped into the basket to be hoisted to the surface and out of harm's way.

Kendall jumped from the basket and began pulling the fuses from the primers, which were to explode the powder.

Fortunately, he says in describing his actions, "the two shots had been put down close together. I was able to seize a fuse in either hand. Providence was with me again, for neither blast exploded as I drew the fuse from the primers."

There are no rich men, says William Allen White in the Atlantic. In these Kansas towns, the men who own a million dollars' worth of property number less than half a score in the whole State.

A Bridge Kept in Repair by Muscles. The byssus, or silky beard, by which the mussel moors itself to the stone, is a familiar object of our sea rocks.

The following is an instance in which the mooring of the mussel was useful to effect a purpose which human skill could not accomplish. A large bridge, with twenty arches in the town of Huddersford, in Devonshire crosses the Tor-dale river near the spot of its junction with the Taw.

The tide flows so very rapidly here that it was found impossible to keep a boat on a tugboat in ordinary operation. The corporation therefore keeps boats employed in bringing mussels to it, and the interest of the bridge is filled by hand with these mussels.

FIERCE AMAZONS OF AFRICA.

Women refused to Enter the Army. Considered an Honor to them.

One of the most picturesque of the African institutions, which are disappearing as England, Germany and other European nations take possession of the continent, is the Amazon army of the Gaboon coast.

The Amazon soldiers consisted of women of two kinds—those who were originally spinsters, selected by the king for the service, and those who had been separated from their husbands.

About one-third of the army had been married women. The rest were maidens, watched with the greatest care to prevent them from indulging in the human weakness of falling in love.

Their uniform consisted of a blue and white tunic without sleeves and a petticoat, under which they wore a pair of short trousers, much like the bicycle bloomers of the United States.

The Amazon army was divided into battalions, one of the most curious of which was the "razor brigade" armed with razors two feet long, used in cutting off the heads of enemies killed by the others or of criminals condemned to death.

Jenny Lind's solution in America was fruitful in many ways. Her progress led a chain of charities through the land by which orphans and sick are still nurtured and healed.

Dumas gives an account of a conversation carried on in his presence. As illustrating the almost incredible extent which the Italians—the Sicilians especially—can communicate with gestures, grimaces, and what is called the sign language generally.

CRANFORD.

The Standard is on sale Tuesday and Friday at the Union News Co's stand. All communications for Cranford Department should be sent to E. R. Clyma, Cranford, N. J. POST OFFICE DIRECTORY, OCTOBER MAILS.

Three good ball games are on the program of the Cranford one during the next three days. To-morrow they will play the Stellen club of Stellen, N. J., on the Roosevelt Manor grounds. The Stellen are a good team and have played in Westfield and several other towns by town this season. On Monday Labor day they will play the rubber with the Westfield nine on the E. A. C. grounds, Walnut street, Elizabeth. Westfield expects to send down 200 rooters for their time, and Cranford should do no less for the home team. Game will be called at 3 o'clock. Cranford people who attend should leave on the 9 11 train. In the afternoon, at Cranford, the ball team of the Yonkers A. A. of New York will play the home nine on the Roosevelt Manor grounds. They're a lot of good ball players, and have played some good games with strong teams. The Athletic club will have practically the same team in these three events than played last Saturday.

TREATING INSOMNIA.

ADVICE TO THE VICTIMS OF A DISTRESSING DISEASE. An Affliction That is Widespread in This Hustling Country How to Win the "Sleep That Knits Up the Raveled Sleeve of Care."

Insomnia is a widespread American disease. It afflicts the best brains of this country—lawyers, teachers and other professionals and especially men of affairs whose minds are overtaxed with a multitude of harassing, incessant business details. It is caused by an undue distention of the arteries supplying the red blood to the brain, resulting in unrelieved pressure on the nerve cells of the gray matter, eventuating in prolonged wakefulness during the night, at a time when they should be allowed to remain quiescent and recuperate the tissue wasted during the active hours of the day. Shakespeare poetically says, "The sleepless eyes that roll the sleeve of care." This is also true scientifically and physiologically. It is capable of being expanded into a whole treatise. With the lightning-like glance of genius he saw into the very structure of nerve tissue, the cause of its wear and tear and the remedy.

As for the grays, they were not afraid to live in the heart of the oak, and what store of nuts harvested in the hickory's on the hill, they did manage to "store" up there. They must have been a peck at least when I ruthlessly chopped into the hollow with a sharp hatchet and captured the hoard of young ones that were soon tamed into grateful and affectionate pets. The old father and mother were not wild even if we could have caught them, because they are fierce and untamable in captivity. The abduction of their pretty children did not seem to weigh much on their minds. They gave no sign of the poignant grief, not to be comforted, that I have seen, for instance, in bluebirds whose nest had been despoiled, but retorted their den as snugly as before and raised another family. When my spirit's went harvesting, one of them first held his head in the mouth of the hole for half a minute to see if the coast was clear. Presently out he whisked and stopped again to make sure, while his mate followed. Then Mr. Squirrel gave a rasping, long drawn bark of defiance, which must have filled his lady's heart with admiration for his boldness and with apprehension lest some unwary creature should come within reach of his lord's anger.

Then—if you didn't betray yourself and send both scurrying in wildst fright back to the hole—after playing hide and seek for a few moments they ran in single file out to the topmost twigs of a great lough, gamel a branch of the neighboring bare walnut and, crossing to its farther side, made a d's pevite flying leap into the top of a young livery. Running half way down this, they used a succession of dogwoods and oak saplings until they had reached the grove of tall, straight hickories on the hill, an eighth of a mile from their hole in the oak. Come on them suddenly now if you would care to see fast time made over this queer course and some hard breaking leaps that fairly take away one's breath.—Scrimer's Magazine.

Autograph Fiends. The author of "Chats With Celebrities," Mr. Guild, says of the demand upon Longfellow for his autograph: "I remember one very pleasant party at the poet's dinner table, at which Mr. Moon, Professor E. N. Horsford and myself were present, when Mr. Longfellow related a number of amusing anecdotes respecting applications that were made to him for autographs. He was very kind to autograph seekers and used to keep in a little box upon his writing table a number of slips upon which were written, 'Yours very truly, Henry W. Longfellow.'" One of these would be sent to the applicant by a member of his family to whom he passed over their requests.

Periodicity is of great assistance. Going to bed at exactly the same hour every night, the film and string belt in the fact that you will sleep at that hour; the diversion of the mind just before retiring by some light reading, amusement, work or exercise will help. Retire, if possible, to discuss or dwell upon unimportant topics or ailments. Should the sufferer suddenly awake in the night before the allotted hours for repose have passed, his best plan is not to be awake in bed in the dark, starting violently. The over-sensitive mind conjures up gloomy thoughts at this time in the deep, still darkness of the night, when all outside day sounds and noises have ceased their distraction. These cases can be successfully treated at once, and not by drugs. Have a night table handy, light a candle, arise, throw off and air the bed clothes, sit up, with a convenient wrapper around you, in an easy chair, having first thrown open a door or window to completely change the vitiated air of the room. Of course one must have a chamber to himself to do this. All the conditions external being changed will tend to produce a change of those internal of the body—the brain and the nerves. After a suitable interval one can again close the doors and windows, replace covers and retire to approaching slumber.

This was the method of Benjamin Franklin, who had a large, active brain, filled with multitudinous private and public affairs, during a long and active life, and he found it to succeed. (See his autobiography.) Different remedies will suit different constitutions. The same will not do for all alike. Each person must study his own case, the moral and physical causes, remove these and find out what will best soothe his exhausted nerves and induce peaceful repose.—James M. Loring in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
