THE LARGEST DRY AND FANCY GOODS HOUSE IN NEW JERSEY

Best of all June Special Undermuslin Sales!

This week an extra Special Sale of Undermuslins eclipsing all value-giving in our 30 years of Merchandising. The last Sale of this character held some 2 months ago attained in the opinion of our patrons the very pinnacle of bargain value, but now it is with much satisfaction that we spread before the ladies of New Jersey bargains even greater than we displayed at that time. You can come with absolute certainty of not finding a Sale of surplus stock, or of old unsalable numbers, but now fresh garments made up expressly for us and at the greatest concession in price owing to our large order and to the financial needs of the maker. Garments perfect in every detail—style, fit, materials and workmanship—of most serviceable Muslins, coolest Cambrics and softest Nainsooks.

We have for this sale 25,000 garments.

Corset Covers.	Gowns.
Drawers.	Chemise.
Underskirts.	Corsets.

By all means come to this Special Sale and buy a season's supply of Undermuslins.

Beginning Saturday, July 6th and continuing through July and August this store will remain open Friday evening and close at noon Saturday.

ADVICE ON PACKING.

A Few Points About Filling a Trunk That May Be of Value to Novices.

All the heaviest articles you have to carry go in the bottom of the box, with the spaces between filled up with stockings, vests and other small articles of underwear.

If you have boots and shoes requiring special stockings to match them, force these inside the foot part. They practically serve as trees, and you know where to find them at a moment's notice.

If you are not taking a dressing bag pack the toilet articles, such as eau de cologne, tooth powder, soap, toilet powder, etc. in a cardboard box by themselves and fill up with handkerchiefs, etc. Cared for in this way, bottles will rarely break in transit.

This small box and anything else breakable should go in the middle of the trunk on a soft layer of clothes and surrounded by garments folded smoothly and flat.

Even if you are taking several trunks it is good packing to provide a firm layer of undergarments at the bottom of each, upon which the dresses can rest.

Put the thickest skirts in first, having folded them as nearly as possible in the lines they take when in wear, and as you place the skirts in the trunk see that each is laid in the opposite direction to the one last put in.

Cover the heavy skirts with a towel; then place the light ones, with another towel to protect them. Next pack the heavy bodices, with a special covering also, and, lastly, pack away the light bodices and blouses.

As for skirts and bodices be folded as far as can be in the natural lines they take upon the figure it matters not how tightly they be packed.

A word about hats. If a patent hat box be not available it is a good plan to take the upstanding trimmings off all hats that are to be carried and to pack them in an ordinary tin hat box, one on top of the other, with the crowns fitting into each other.

He Wanted Her Fare. A conductor on the Park line had an experience the other day, that is quite certain to cause him many uncomfortable minutes in the future.

The woman evidently did not hear him, for she did not turn her head. Neither did she hold out the necessary coin.

A Lost Customer. The grocer thought the old man had come to make a kick about some purchase, but he hadn't, although he looked like a kicker.

One pint of scalded milk, one pint of cream, one teaspoonful of Isinglass, one handful of stoned raisins, one ounce of almond, shreds of pineapple preserve, ginger or cherries, four tablespoonfuls of wine, a little extract of almond, whites of four eggs, beaten to a froth, sugar to taste. Freeze as for cream.—Good Housekeeping.

ROUGH ON MOTH, FLY AND FLEA. Keeps fleas from dogs, Mosquitoes, Flies and Gnats from Persons, Horses, or other animals. Keeps gnats from Clothing, Carpets or Rug 25c. at drugists.

A Careful Mother. This is a story one woman is never tired of telling of a mother whose child had been ill with scarlet fever.

"Fare, please!" remarked the conductor. The woman evidently did not hear him, for she did not turn her head.

"Fare, please!" said the conductor, in a louder tone. But the woman paid no heed. Then the conductor touched her on the shoulder.

His Priceless Gem Was Not Appreciated by Mrs. Bowser and a Lady Caller, However, and He Suddenly Decided to Get rid of It.

Copyright, 1901, by G. B. Foster. Mrs. Bowser had a large package under her arm as she came home to dinner the other evening, and when Mrs. Bowser expressed her curiosity as to the contents she replied:

"Never you mind until by and by it's a little surprise, but it's still here." During the dinner hour he chuckled many times to himself and smiled to a

"BEHOLD THE GEM!" SAID MR. BOWSER, triumphant, but it was not until they had reached the sitting room that the mystery was solved.

"When he untied the package with the greatest of care, and after removing half a dozen different wraps he tenderly lifted up and held aloft an old blue platter and proudly exclaimed:

"Yes, it's a platter, and to your eye it probably appears to be nothing but a platter. I presume if you saw this thing out in the back yard you would kick it aside as worthless."

"Well, I shouldn't be much struck on an old platter with seven holes and two cracks in it. Did you bring it home to feed the cat?"

"To feed the cat on?" echoed Mr. Bowser as he backed off and waved the platter around his head. "Woman, haven't you an bit of sense in your head? An' that fresh from an asylum would not have asked a tawfol question like that."

"Then what is it for?" "What are rubies and diamonds and old master paintings for? Why do people pay fabulous prices for gobelin tapestry and old books?"

"Gobelin tapestry, my dear," she corrected. "Gobelin nothing, I said goblin, and I mean it. Don't make any mistake on me, Mrs. Bowser. When I don't know what I'm talking about, I'll keep my mouth shut. I was admiring goblin tapestry while you were in short dresses and eating bread and butter with sugar on it. There'd be a piece of it lying around now if you hadn't taken it for an old stocking leg and burned it up. To feed the cat on—"

And he tenderly placed his gem of a platter on the mantel and went of walking around with a glare in his eye, and the family cut looked out at him from under the piano and made up her mind that Mrs. Bowser would be lucky to get out of it without a row. There was silence for three or four minutes, and then Mr. Bowser looked in his promenade to take a loving look at the platter, and to softly exclaim:

"By Jove, but she's a beauty, a priceless gem! I can't get her size how lucky I am. Those decorations simply melt into each other, and the softness over all is like the mist of a June morning. If I only had a wife with a soul to appreciate such things!"

"I will do my best to appreciate it if you will explain things to me," said Mrs. Bowser.

"That is more reasonable in you. Not being born with a soul for the beautiful, you cannot fully appreciate such a work of art as this, but I will aid you all I can. This platter, to begin with, is the worst of old china!"

"Who said it was?" "For mercy's sake, what is that?" asked the caller as she heard the wince and the crash.

"I—I think the cat has knocked down a vase," replied Mrs. Bowser as her heart stopped beating for a moment. They both listened intently, but all was silence below. Mr. Bowser had sat down on the lounge to do some whispered swearing.

"I know it is!" "And worth what you paid for it?" "Two or three times over!" "Then of course there's nothing more to say!"

The women presently went up stairs to talk over spelling, housecleaning, and Mr. Bowser and the cat and the Marie Antoinette George III platter were left alone. The cat at once assumed an innocent, self-satisfied expression of contentment, but Mr. Bowser was not to be deceived. After a swift look at her he made a sudden jump for the mantel and seized the priceless gem with both hands and with a wild whoop he sought to bring it down on the floor's head. It struck the back of a chair, however, and as it was shivered into a hundred pieces he jumped up and down on the fragments and the cat resented into the hall.

"For mercy's sake, what is that?" asked the caller as she heard the wince and the crash.

"Of course he said it, and what object could he have had in lying about it? If he was deceiving me, he might as well have said that it belonged to Susan B. Anthony." Yes, the ill-fated queen used to eat her dinner off this platter!

"I wonder if she made these platters with her teeth?" innocently queried Mrs. Bowser as she examined the relic with more interest.

"She probably did," replied Mr. Bowser, struck with the new idea and wishing the value of this gem 50 per cent in consequence.

"Did you have to pay a pretty high price for it?"

"Well, pretty stiff, but I got it for less than its value. I had asked the dealer to sell it for an old table once used by Queen Elizabeth, and he felt he owed me something!"

"Was the stout of the teapot missing?"

"No, of course not. Why do you ask such a question?"

"I don't know but Queen Elizabeth bit it off some day while drinking cold tea."

Mr. Bowser turned red and white and breathed hard, and it was all he could do to hang on to himself. He wanted to talk platter to some one, however, and have some one rejoice with him over his luck, and so he swallowed his anger and said:

"As soulless as you are, you can see that it's worth $75, can't you?" "You don't mean it!" gasped Mrs. Bowser.

"Of course I mean it—that is, I mean I paid $50 for a platter worth twice or three times that. Why, if it was known that I would sell this relic for $75 our house couldn't hold the rush of would-be buyers."

"It would be dreadful if the old platter didn't turn out to be worth 10 cents," observed Mrs. Bowser as she turned away.

"Woman, what in thunder do you mean?" demanded Mr. Bowser as he jumped around. "Do you dare insinuate that I paid $50 for a relic not worth powder to blow it up?"

At that moment the doorbell rang, and a neighbor was admitted. It so happened that she was a fully well posted on old china, and Mr. Bowser knew she was. She had scarcely bustled in when she caught sight of the platter and ran to get a closer look.

"One of my purchases, ma'am," he stilly replied.

"Ah, I see! Perhaps you bought it for old china?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, I hope you got a bargain!"

"A decided bargain. In paying $50 for that platter I don't think I paid half its real value!"

"My stars, Mrs. Bowser," exclaimed the woman, "but you don't mean to say you paid $50 for that?"

"And why not?"

"Because it's a cheat and a fraud. There's no old china about it. That man came into my husband's office one day a week ago when I was there and tried to sell this very platter to us for $75. He said it used to belong to George III and that his favorite dog ate meat off it. He offered it for $5 before he got through, but he sooner have a platter picked up in somebody's back yard. I wish I had known you were looking for such things, as I could have saved you from being swindled."

"Thank you, ma'am," he sarcastically replied, "but I am very well satisfied with my bargain!"

"You believe it valuable?"

CYCLING ROUTES.

Will All Lead to Buffalo Next Summer. For the accommodation of the large number of cyclists who contemplate touring a wheel to Buffalo and the Pan-American Exposition and Niagara Falls next summer a series of "trunk line" cycling routes is being compiled. They will probably be as follows: 1. New York and Albany to Buffalo (via the Hudson River, the valley of the Mohawk and the cycle paths of Central and Western New York).

It Was So Sudden.

Foul Parent—Goodness! How you look, child! You are soaked! Frankie—Please, pa, I fell into the canal. Foul Parent—What! With your new trousers on? Frankie—I don't have time, pa, to take 'em off!

Maudering Jimmy.

Maudering Jimmy—Oh, Jimmy, I've got a fine idea. I'll get you a new hat. It'll be made like the one I bought at the laundry. Well, ma'am, I've got both crapped, and I braked my sneaky eyes. An' I'm sorry, but I can't beat the band. An' a meek, sweet my steel! Well, Mrs. Snow, she come an' said, 'You're in the worst I've saw!' An' she brought on another, an' 'See here, now,' up says ma'am. 'I don't allow no one to say my children's bad or who they are. You kin talk about me, Mrs. Snow, but don't talk about my child!' Well, Mrs. Snow, she said in another breath, 'You know, An' I'm sorry, but I can't beat the band. An' a meek, sweet my steel! They fought here for an hour or more. An' I thought I'd been enough an' whistled. 'Per Joe to come out to play! Well, before I went, I turned around, An' I said to me, 'I'll be a meek, sweet my steel. I'll compare mine, I'll be a meek, sweet my steel. Me down with my pin in front.'—Indianapolis Sun.

JUST A TRIFLE GAUDY.

"It's a hard life," declared the old circus man to the Detroit Free Press man, "and I always say at the close of every season that I am through with it. But there is something in the life, the smell of the sawdust ring, the glitter and noise, the changing scene, that appeals to a man who has once been in the business, and it is seldom that one leaves the life until death steps in. There is a good deal of humor in the business, too, as we are brought into contact with all sorts and conditions of men.

"I am reminded of a funny thing that happened to me a good many years ago when such a thing as moving a circus by rail was not thought of. It was part of my work at that time to drive our great $10,000 chariot, not only in the parade, but between towns as well. What little sleep I got I had to catch here and there on my seat while we were on our way to another town. One night my doze turned into a sound sleep, and when I awoke I discovered that the team, left without a driver, had turned into a farm yard and come to a stop before a haystack, where they were quietly eating. While I was rubbing my eyes and trying to grasp the situation the old man who owned the hay came out where I was and walked around the chariot and looked it over with a critical eye.

"Well," said I, with a grin, "what do you think of it?"

"Gosh," said he, "it's a trifle bit gaudy?"

"Well, what do you expect?" said I, indignantly at this implied reflection upon the great moral show that I represented.

"Well, I suppose it is all right," answered the old man doubtfully, as he looked it over once more. "It seems for me that it is just a bit loud. But I suppose it ain't used to city ways."

"It was now my turn to be surprised, and I was about to ask him what he was driving at, when he added that I might as well amble, as the funeral wouldn't be until two in the afternoon.

"Then there were explanations all around. It seems that the old man's wife had died and he had sent to the nearest city for a funeral car, and had mistaken our great $10,000 chariot for it. There had been a good deal of rivalry in the neighborhood in regard to funerals, and the old man had made up his mind to outshine them all, and he thought he was disappointed in the end when he discovered that he had been mistaken."

FACTS ABOUT MYALGIA.

A Muscular Affection That is Commonly Mistaken for Rheumatism.

This is a term used in a very general and indefinite way to denote muscular pain, especially pain for which no evident cause can be found in the muscles themselves. There are no signs of inflammation, no redness or heat of the skin, no swelling, and little or no local tenderness on pressure over the painful part. The trouble may be acute or chronic, sudden in its invasion, or of gradually increasing intensity. The pain varies much in character also, being sometimes sharp, sometimes dull, sometimes throbbing, sometimes cramplike. Usually there is a constant dull ache, which increases in acute pain, when the affected muscle contracts, but in some cases no trouble is experienced, while the muscle is at rest, the sufferer being reminded of his malady only when he makes a motion involving the painful part, says Youth's Companion.

Sometimes the myalgia is more or less diffused over a certain region, as the back or the chest, or is limited to one special muscle, such as the deltoid, which covers the shoulder joint. In children the most common form of myalgia seems to be the "dumb neck," in older persons the back, perhaps the most commonly affected "dumbago."

An acute stiff neck or lumbago, or other form of myalgia lasts usually for two or three days or a week, but the chronic form may continue indefinitely, the constant dull pain being interrupted from time to time by acute suffering.

Although myalgia is often called muscular rheumatism, it has no symptoms of rheumatism except the pain. In the causation, however, there seems often to be a rheumatic or gouty element, and measures which are useful in preventing the formation or in promoting the excretion of uric acid usually benefit beneficially upon myalgia. The affection is apt to be worse in cold or damp, and better in hot weather. Heat applied locally by means of a hot-water bag or a hot sand-bag, gentle rubbing over the affected muscles with the dry hand or with camphorated oil, or tapping with a small rubber hammer may give relief. Sponging the part with very hot water, then with cold water, followed by a brisk rubbing, is often a good form of local treatment. Electricity is sometimes of great benefit.

If the general health permits, the sufferer from chronic myalgia should be much in the open air, especially in the sunlight. Tonics are usually called for in chronic cases.

The Hostess' Funny Story.

"A very dignified young man took a seat in a smoking car," said the hostess, who joined in the after dinner story telling. "Near him were three traveling salesmen, well dressed, jolly fellows, one of whom suggested a game of cards, and the others agreed. They appealed to the young man to take part and make up a four-handed game.

"Thank you," he never play cards," came the response to the invitation.

"I am sorry for that. Will you have a cigar, will us?" added the spoke man, producing his case.

"I am obliged to you, but I never smoke," replied the dignified young man.

"They thought they would jolly the young fellow out of dignity, so the leader produced a traveling companion and asked:

"As you do not play cards nor smoke, you will not refuse to join us in a drink?"

"With this venerable man with ministerial aspect sitting in the seat behind the young man, reached forward and tapped him on the shoulder.

"I have heard what you have said to these men, and I do not do so lightly, and I admit to you the inability of character which has enabled you to sham and habits. I have a daughter in the parlor, for whom I should like to have you meet."

"Thank you, sir," replied the young man, turning about and facing the gentleman, "but the fact is I never intend to marry."

A Joke That Failed. Professor Rogers and Dr. Dale were once lecturing in England, and at every town which they visited Dr. Dale noticed that his colleague, who always spoke first, made the same speech. In fact, so often did the professor give that speech that the worthy doctor knew it off by heart, and this fact led the latter to think of a way of taking the wind out of his friend's sails.

On their arrival at a town in south Lancashire Dr. Dale asked Dr. Rogers to allow him to speak first, an arrangement to which the latter readily agreed, so Dr. Dale rose and proceeded to deliver the speech of Dr. Rogers, looking every now and then out of the corner of his eye to see how that worthy gentleman was taking this practical joke. Dr. Rogers sat calm and composed, and when at length his turn came to speak he just as calmly rose and delivered, to Dr. Dale's utter astonishment, quite a new speech.

At the conclusion of the meeting Dr. Dale said to his colleague:

"I thought I had taken the wind out of your sails tonight."

Dr. Rogers replied, "Oh, no, I delivered that speech when I was here a month ago."

MAYDOLE'S HAMMER.

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

When Maydole was told that he made "a pretty good hammer," he said, "No, I don't make a 'pretty good hammer,' I make the best hammer that ever was made."

Every carpenter who saw a Maydole hammer wanted one. It was of the best material, perfectly balanced, and the head never flew off. Hammers were divided into two classes—1st, Benson's; 2d, all the rest.

Plasters are separated by the same line of cleavage. 1st, Benson's Porous Plaster, 2d, all the rest. When for rheumatic pain, a cold, a cough, kidney trouble, or any other disease or ailment that may be treated externally, you ask for a plaster, any honest, reputable druggist will give you a Benson's. He knows it is incomparably the best, and he assumes that you know it, too.

As the name of Maydole stood for hammers the name of Benson stands for plasters—the "real thing." All the medicinal potencies that are valuable in a plaster are in Benson's. Capsum, Strengthening and Balmolonia plasters are out of date.

An army of physicians and druggists, and millions of the people, have written of Benson's Plasters as a remedy to be trusted. Benson's Plasters have fifty-five highest awards. Accept no substitute.

Bunked. "His name was Alexander, and his weakness was the horses," said the reporter. "Surprising as it may appear, he won sometimes and enjoyed a brief nodding acquaintance with fortune. When the bookmakers got it back again, he took to drink and in the end went about trying to pick out a good place in which to kill himself.

"He bought a drink in a cheap hotel, and the quality of the liquor led him to believe he had found the place. He wished to do no man injury, but any one who sold that sort deserved to find a dead man on the premises. He tried a room, small, bleak, well calculated to make a man willing to blow out the gas, even if he had an aversion to it, which Alexander had not.

"He plugged the apertures, closed the transom, hung his coat over the keyhole, turned out the gas and lay down. Then he lighted it again and wrote a few foolish letters of farewell, so hard is it for even a tired mortal to quit with the word. Then he put out the light, saw that the gas was flowing freely and lay down.

"He noticed that it was ten minutes to 1 o'clock in the morning. He fell asleep, certain it was all over. (Oblivion.)

"He awoke. The sun was streaming in. It was high noon. Yes, he was alive. He could not understand it. There was no gas in the room, yet it was still turned on. He finally discovered that in hotels of that sort they turn the gas off at 11 a. m. Bunked, he said and went cheerily on his way."

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

To-day the Christian religion is accepted by practically 500,000,000 people.

The Stundists of Russia have a hymn book full of adaptations of the hymns found in the Moody and Sankey hymn books.

In the University of Munich 86 of the teachers are Catholics, 78 Protestants. In Berlin, out of 345 instructors, only 40 are Catholics.

The late Prof. Marsh of Yale, bequeathed his house and grounds for a botanical garden. They are to be made the home of a newly-created school of forestry.

The Methodist Episcopal church of Creston, Ia., claims the distinction of being the only church in the country that owns a bass drum. The instrument was presented to the Sunday school orchestra by John Gibson, a prominent member of the church.

The historic old St. Paul's church, Detroit, is now a desolate ruin. Several years ago it was partly destroyed by fire, and from time to time it has fallen until there is now little left. The parish erected a new church about ten years ago. St. Paul's dates back to 1824, when the society was founded. The church was completed in 1852 at a cost of about $50,000, and for years was one of the best churches in the city.

DELAWARE'S BLUE LAWS.

At Dover, the capital of Delaware, as well as the county seat of Kent county, the list of criminals convicted and punished in that county is complete and readily accessible. This discloses that dozens of men have been punished with periods of imprisonment and lashes not exceeding 45 for stealing or attempting to steal sums of money ranging anywhere from two to $50. Thus on October 27, 1897, one Albert Gibbs was convicted of stealing two dollars and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, given 15 lashes and ordered to restore the stolen money before entering the world again. At the same time George Dennis received exactly the same imprisonment for stealing $30. A petty burglar, who stole seven dollars from a store at night, received two years in prison, 20 lashes at the whipping post and one hour in the pillory. Also, he was compelled to return the money and pay all costs, says Theodore Dreiser, in Alibates.

For the next year a very similar list is seen. Criminals stealing one, five and seven dollars were all whipped with many lashes, and some were exposed in the pillory. For the current year the records are, quite the same, and yet the whipping post is kept busy and a certain public is entertained. If an important crime should be committed no greater punishment could be administered for the lashes are limited to 45 and the pillory to a few hours.

There seems to be no public conception of this incongruity, although the stranger is quickly astonished by it. Any one convicted of one of these offenses, in petty or great degree, and either publicly pilloried or whipped is disgraced and can no longer exercise the privilege of a citizen. Thus a youth caught in some early and thoughtless offense is permanently ruined in reputation and practically driven from the state. It is generally declared by those in authority throughout the state that the law is justifiable because it reaches and controls the negro.

"Ninety per cent. of the cases so disposed of," said the sheriff of one county, are those involving negroes. It is the only way we have of retaining them."

Upon examination this statement turned out to be only partially true for negroes form less than 10 per cent. of the total number of cases so punished. There had been several instances in which white men standing fairly well in the community, have been caught in the toils of the law, and finding themselves doomed to be whipped, have offered all their possessions, together with a promise to leave the state, if they could be saved this wretched indignity. When ignored they seem to have considered their life blasted and have departed, never to return. Such men have paid a thousand times the penalty primarily supposed to exist in 15 or 40 public lashes. The case-hardened negro, or habitual criminal, of any color, knows no such torment, and comparatively may be said to have received no punishment at all. It is the man with conscience and feeling upon whom this rell of an older order of civilization weighs justly. The hardened criminal, whom it is supposed to reach, does not suffer at all, and is not corrected thereby.

Pictures Useful to Missionaries. A. B. Ford, who, in the west, the far east, and in all the great and mighty English mission has established one of the most valuable businesses imaginable. He has an immense stock of colored pictures of all sizes representing Biblical scenes. The figures in the pictures are of all nationalities, from the pigmy of the Congo to the negro of central Africa. One subject—the return of the prodigal son—has drawn and colored in 50 different ways. In one picture the figures are those of south sea Islanders, in another of Chinese, in another of negroes and so on, including Malays, Indians, Samonians, Dyaks and many of the others. The missionaries find these pictures more convincing than the conventional ones and buy largely of the dealer.—N. Y. Sun.

UNION WATER COMPANY

Incorporated 1870. Organized 1889. The Union Water Company supplies the inhabitants of the villages of Farwood, Westfield, Cranford and Roselle with water for domestic use.

"The Purest and Sweetest that Nature can Yield." In June 1895 the water supplied by the Company was analyzed by Allen Hazen, Esq., a leading hydraulic expert of Boston, and pronounced by him to be "water of great organic purity," and in a letter to one of the Company's patrons he writes: "You are to be congratulated upon having so good a supply, and you need have no anxiety whatever as to its wholesomeness."

The interest of the Company is identified with the villages in which its plant is located, and it is the policy of the management to do its full share to promote their growth and prosperity.

The Company refers to all its Patrons. A representative of the Company will be pleased to call on parties who do not at present use water from its mains, and explain rates, terms, method of service, etc.

Freeholder Robison moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By the committee on appropriations: Elizabeth, N. J., May 23, 1901.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen: Your committee on appropriations, after carefully estimating the probable necessities of the various departments of the county government, providing for the payment of bonds falling due, and the interest on the bonded debt, are of the opinion that with the same economical administration of the county affairs there will be no necessity of raising any more than was raised last year, and that two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) will be all that will be necessary to raise by taxation.

We would, therefore, respectfully request and recommend that the sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) together with the sum of twenty-eight thousand dollars ($28,000) assets now on hand and all miscellaneous items which may be collected during the present fiscal year be appropriated for the expenses of the coming year.

Your committee would further recommend that amounts hereafter mentioned be certified by the County Board of Assessors and placed in the tax levy for the year 1901, as per accompanying resolution.

Resolved, by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, that the sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) be raised by tax for the use of said county for the fiscal year commencing May 8th, 1901, to be appropriated together with the sum of twenty-eight thousand dollars ($28,000) of the assets of the county for the following purposes:

- For Courts $30,000
- For County Jail $20,000
- For Constables $10,000
- For compensation and travel expenses of Chosen Freeholders and Committees and salaries of their officers $12,000
- For fees of Coroners $10,000
- For disbursements of the county $10,000
- For stationery $5,000
- For advertising, publishing and printing $2,000
- For incidental expenses and schools' bureau $2,000
- For salaries of soldiers and monuments $2,000
- For children's guardian account $2,000
- For payment of principal on bonded debt $5,000
- For payment of interest on bonded debt $1,000
- For payment of bank interest on temporary loans $1,000
- For permanent improvement of public buildings and grounds $8,000
- For erection and repairs to culverts and bridges $25,000
- For repairs to county roads $17,000
- For hospitals $2,000

Total amount of the county $328,000

Total amount to be raised by taxation $200,000

To be assessed and collected in the manner and at the times prescribed by the laws for the assessment and collection of taxes for the use of the State, and the laws for assessment and collection of taxes in the city of Elizabeth, Plainfield, Summit and Rahway, in said county, respectively, and that the Board here by direct the assessors of the respective townships and wards in said county to assess the said sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) together with the sum of four thousand six hundred and thirty-eight dollars and fifty-four cents ($4,638.54) interest on county road bonds on the inhabitants and their estates, agreeable to the law for the time being for the raising of money by taxation for the use of the county of Union, State of New Jersey; and that said assessors meet at the Court House in the city of Elizabeth on the 3d Monday of July next at 10 o'clock a. m. to adjust and ascertain the proportion of said sum to be levied in each township and ward in said county and that the clerk of the Board send a copy of this resolution to each of said assessors.

Freeholder King moved that the report be received and the resolutions therein contained adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

New Business

By Freeholder Farrell: Resolved, that a committee of five (5) be appointed to examine the bridge on Jacques avenue, Rahway, and report on the advisability and probable cost of widening said bridge to the full width of said avenue.

On motion of Freeholder King the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Farrell, Adams, King, Scudder and Gerstung. By Freeholder Farrell: Whereas, the commissioners heretofore appointed in the matter of the application of this Board for the appointment of commissioners to condemn lands belonging to Jonathan P. Glasby and others, have filed their report, which report was duly confirmed by the court, and

Whereas, exceptions were filed to said report by George T. Parrot, attorney for the estate of John A. May, and

Whereas, upon conference with said attorney of said May estate the county attorney recommended that the numerous exceptions filed by the various parties in interest were without merit with the exception of the above named; and

Whereas, for the purpose of avoiding any litigation over said report recommended that this Board pay to the estate of said May, or its attorney, the sum of $200, in addition to the award made by said commissioners; therefore be it

Resolved, that E. M. Wood, County Collector, be and hereby is authorized to pay said J. A. May estate, or its attorney, the sum of $200, in addition to the award made by the commissioners in said matter, and that the said sum of $200 be paid by said County Collector from the funds received by him from the sale of buildings in said proceedings herein referred to, he, the said Collector, taking a full receipt and release therefor.

Freeholder Farrell moved the adoption of the foregoing preamble and resolution which was duly seconded.

County Attorney Collington briefly explained that of the exceptions to awards filed with the commissioners none were of much merit except in the case of the May estate, in which the award made appeared to be insufficient, and he would advise the payment of the additional $200 as, in the event of the matter being referred back to the commissioners, the probable cost to the county would be about $500.

Freeholder Farrell's motion was then, on roll call, unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Farrell moved to adjourn, which was carried.

The Director declared the Board adjourned until Thursday, June 6, 1901, at 8:30 p. m.

Town Topics on the Southern Railway.

One who travels through the Southern States after a lapse of ten years is amazed at the development in railway road bed, equipment and general provision for the comfort of travelers. I recently had occasion to go to New Orleans over the Southern Railway on what is termed the "The Washington and Southwestern Vestibled Limited." It would be difficult to specify any one feature encountered in this trip wherein the service was behind that of any of the great trunk lines of the North. Roadbeds have been ballasted, heavy rails laid, steel bridges substituted for more fragile structures, and neat and commodious station-houses built. Powerful engines now draw the trains that are up to the latest model of the wonderful Pullman system. The dining car service appeared to me in many respects superior—possible because of a better market in that region at this time of the year to the service of the North, notably of that part of the route between Atlanta and Montgomery where I was served with broiled pompano, King of Southern fishes, with fresh cucumbers, stiffer fresh green peppers, duckling that was thickling, spring lamb that was not small mutton, fresh green peas and new asparagus, strawberries and cream makes one's mouth water to remember. The whole list I found far better than any other dining car list I remember to have seen. It covered high-class champagnes like Reims Brut and Pomery Sec. As Champagne and lager beer are the only two drinks that are ever fit to be taken on a railroad car, and as generally the whole list of dining cars are confined to two or three of the ordinary brands of champagne, I was agreeably pleased at the names I found on the Southern Railway list.

Now comes a new find for this line. On May 26 to each of these trains was added a Pullman club car, which means a car with all the appointments and comforts of a first-class club smoking room and buffet. The reason for all these developments in railway facilities is found in the fact that no section of the Union at any period ever developed so rapidly as the South has been developing in agriculture, manufacturing, trade and general prosperity in the last few years. This and the consolidation of the lines under great and powerful companies have given to the South facilities of travel both in speed and comfort equal to any other section.

Always Finished the King.

"A beautiful scene," said an old theater goer, "may be utterly ruined by some trifling mistake, and an error of seemingly infinitesimal dimensions throw out an entire company. Oftentimes however, the ready wit and presence of mind of an actor or actress may save the day and turn what might otherwise have been disaster into triumph. One of the most difficult of all scenes to carry off successfully occurs in the opera of 'Siegfried.' You will remember that Siegfried awakens Brunhilde from her long sleep with a kiss. Wagner has so arranged it that the kiss seems as long to the audience as the immortal slumber itself. In reality it lasts about 70 seconds, but it seems unending. It is a most trying situation for the singers, for the audience is extremely likely to go to restless.

Some years ago at a performance of 'Siegfried' in St. Louis Alvery—a poor chap—was singing Siegfried to Mme. Schuler's Brunhilde. He had got about half way through his lengthy oscillation when the gallery began a succession of snacks, constantly increasing in volume. It was a critical moment; but as the event proved, one that was to add to Alvery's already large wealth of laurels.

Slowly he raised his magnificently handsome head and turned toward the audience and silently looked the galleries into silence. In ten seconds he had completely mastered them, and you could have heard a pin drop in the great house. Then he dropped his face on that of Brunhilde, and that kiss went on to its appointed end, Sapholke finish without further interruption from the audience. It was as fine an exhibition of the control a great personality can exercise over an audience as I have ever witnessed."—New York

A Cherokee Dish.

An article of food much used by the Cherokees is made from corn. The process is first to soak the corn in strong lye, made from hickory ashes, just as white people in this country make hominy. This removes the hulls. The corn is then put into a large mortar made by hollowing out the end of a large log and is pounded by a huge pestle.

As the process of pounding goes on the crushed corn is removed from the mortar and placed with a sieve made of cane and then strained in the wind to remove the hulls. The "grit," as the course meal is called, is then placed in the mortar and pounded into a fine meal. It is then boiled up with cayenne pepper and other ingredients. A small amount of lye is left in the meal, and it has a tendency to preserve it for a long time. However, if the stuff sours, it is regarded as a great delicacy. It is known as "con-hanna." The food is sometimes varied by the addition of nuts, which is considered especially fine. With the nuts it is called "con-atch."

In the olden times cakes were made of "con-hanna" by baking the substance in rudely constructed rock ovens or in hot ashes. These cakes would keep for a long time and, in connection with the wild game, provided nourishment for the Indians on their long hunts. Many of the older Cherokees still use the mortar and pestle to make the dish.—Kansas City Journal.
