Councilman DeCamp brought up the question of having the triangle at Arlington avenue and Benson Place put in good shape. Mr. DeCamp said that a lot of dirt had been dumped there which had been taken from the road and that it should be leveled off and some shrubbery or trees planted there. He stated that he thought the cost would not be much. It was referred to the ground committee. After some minor matters had been discussed the meeting adjourned.

PRIZE CLYDESDALE
COMES FROM MIDDLESEX.

The rather long step from the whirlpool of Wall street to the ideal life on a New Jersey estate, says "The Spur", has been taken with a great deal of satisfaction by Robert A. Fairbairn, of this town, who is busy accepting congratulations on selling a yearling Clydesdale horse of his own breeding at the record-breaking price of $5,000.

Some years ago when Mr. Fairbairn was an active member of the New York Stock Exchange, he astonished many of his friends by abandoning the excitement of a thrilling day in the street for an hour or so, the while he concluded the purchase of his present home. Hitherto the best Clydesdales had been bred in the West. Nothing daunted, the New Jersey squire secured some of the finest blood in Great Britain and last December he started the same West by carrying everything before him at the great International Live Stock Exhibition, just as he had done the year previous in New York.

Mr. Fairbairn has not only demonstrated that magnificent draft horses can be raised in the Eastern States, but also that it is possible to put rundown land in New Jersey on a paying basis if up-to-date methods are employed. His wonderful yearling colt, Fairholme Footprint, by Demure Footprint out of Harlestown Baroness, was purchased by F. Lathrop Ames, of North Easton, Mass., who is now adding Clydesdales to a large estate on which have been produced some of the best Guernsey cattle ever bred in the United States.

They arrived there on Monday and Tuesday of last week and were welcomed by Acting Mayor of the City and a committee composed of members of the city council. The entire city was at the disposal of the delegates and everyone had a good time.

IMPORTANT POST
FOR DR. SAVITZ

Appointed Assistant Commissioner of Education. Will Continue to Live in Westfield and Will Keep in Close Touch With Work Here

Dr. Calvin K. Kendall, the State Commissioner of Education, has appointed Dr. J. J. Savitz, assistant commissioner of education to succeed G. A. Mirick who has resigned. The Westfield Board of Education has given Dr. Savitz a year's leave of absence.

Dr. Savitz's duties will be to inspect the schools of the State, counsel with the boards of education, county superintendents and supervising principals. This is one of the best school positions in the United States and it is especially gratifying that it was offered to Dr. Savitz, after Dr. Kendall and Mr. Mirick and the other Commissioners had frequently inspected the Westfield schools. Dr. Savitz will still continue to live in Westfield and be in close touch with the school work here.

After completing a Pennsylvania Normal School course Dr. Savitz spent three years at Lafayette, following this with work at New York University leading to the Bachelor's, Master's and Doctor's degrees. For ten years since the Doctor's degree was granted him he has been taking work on Saturdays at Columbia and New York University. The courses in which he was especially interested were Philosophy and Psychology of Education. He has also had extended courses in the treatment of mentally deficient and retarded children.

Dr. Savitz was superintendent of the schools of Stratford, Pa., from 1889 to 1896; Roanoke, N. J., from 1896 to 1901 and Westfield from 1901. He was also county superintendent of schools of Union County by appointment of the State Board of Education from 1907 to 1914. In 1910 he was President of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association.

BOY SCOUTS HAVE ENJOYABLE HIKE

Westfield Troop No. 1, of the Boy Scouts of America took a hike to the Passaic River in the vicinity of Berkeley Heights, last Friday afternoon at 4 P. M. They left the headquarters, the Baptist church at that time and at 6 P. M. pitched camp along the river. By nightfall they had built five wigwags or lean-tos as they did not take any tents with them but used only material found in the forest.

The Scouts found that the Mosquito Commission had forgotten about the Passaic Valley as the boys were stung to sleep by a chorus of a thousand or more of these pests. Pink Eye slept the clock around and had to call the first aid to open his eyes from the mosquito bites.

At daybreak all were ready for Scout work but the bass were biting in good form so the boys caught a mess for breakfast. The boys studied signaling, trailing and woodcraft.

Bus Clotworthy was so anxious for a swim that he went in clothes and all. Vie Jaquish got fond of egg shampoos and used up all the eggs. On Saturday Camp Enslinham was visited by S. D. Winter, Mrs. Chamberlain, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, Miss Jessie Winter and Harold Morgan. During their stay Mr. Winter hooked a fourteen inch bass.

Those who took the hike were Scout Master Horace Rockhill, Patrol Leader Howard Meyer, Stanley Jones, Victor Jaquish, Earl Winter, Robert Chamberlain, Edward Howe, Russell Clotworthy, Russell Morgan and Burton Decendorf.

BOYS USE PLAYGROUND
AFTER HOURS; ARRESTED.

Harold Conover, Irving McHarg, Brock and Harrison Urban, all young boys were brought before Recorder Bunnell on Tuesday night on complaint of W. A. Brown, janitor of the Washington school, who complained that the boys were using the playground after hours which was in violation of the Playground Commission's rules and that they were throwing stones at the chutes. The boys did not deny the charge. Recorder Bunnell after talking to the boys adjourned the hearing until Wednesday night and told the boys to bring their fathers with them at that time and if they could not take care of them the court would. On Wednesday night the boys appeared again with their fathers and after giving the boys another talking to placed them in the care of their fathers.

On the same night Edward Townsend and Harold Rowland were before the Recorder on complaint of Mr. Brown and Mr. Huber, one of the teachers of the high school and who is an assistant instructor at the playground on a charge of using the playground after hours and using obscene language. Recorder Bunnell gave these boys a severe warning and allowed them to go.

MANY SPEND DAY
AT THE SEASHORE

Have Ideal Day and Return Home Tired But Happy

While the "Big Eight" Sunday school excursion to Ashbury Park and Ocean Grove from this town yesterday was not as well attended as in former years owing to the threatening weather, still those who did go had an enjoyable day at the seashore and returned home in the evening tired but happy.

When the excursion trains left the station it was predicted by the stay-at-homes that those who went would have a wet day. Such was not the case however, as before noon the sun came out and the weather for the remainder of the day was ideal.

The excursionists enjoyed themselves bathing, setting on the beach, visiting the different amusements to be found at this popular summer resort and altogether had a glorious day.

A feature of the excursion was the fact that there were two sections of trains to bring the people back. The first one left Ashbury Park in the early hours of the evening and brought those home who wished to get back early. The second section left the seashore at 8:50 and gave those a chance who wished to remain of taking a promenade on the board walk and seeing the resort at night.

There were a large number of people down at the station when the two excursions came back and every one of the five hundred or more who went expressed themselves as having had a most enjoyable day.

BUILDING COMMITTEE
TO MEET TONIGHT.

The building committee of the town council will hold a meeting in the town hall tonight for the purpose of taking up the report made by the Newark Bill Posting Company at the last meeting of the council to erect a bill board on South avenue. At a meeting of the council about six weeks ago the Bill Posting Company asked for permission to erect a bill board and the permission was turned down. At the last meeting of the council a representative of the company appeared before the council with another request and stated that his company had numerous decisions against municipalities where they had refused to let them put up bill boards. According to a decision of the United States Supreme Court a municipality cannot stop bill posting companies from erecting signboards if they make a request for them. The building committee will no doubt recommend that the request be granted and that it will be done at the meeting of the council on Monday night.

Sheridan Linn, Teacher of History in High School, Appointed at Meeting of Board of Education Last Night to Take Place of Dr. Savitz

At the special meeting of the Board of Education held in the Washington school last night, Sheridan Linn, who has been the teacher of history in the high school for the past year was upon the recommendation of J. Winter Davis, made acting supervising principal of the schools in the place of Dr. J. J. Savitz while the latter is on his year's leave of absence. Mr. Davis recommended that Mr. Linn and the principals of the other schools meet with the teachers committee one evening each week during the school year and go over matters pertaining to the school work. This recommendation was unanimously adopted by the Board. Another recommendation of Mr. Davis which received the unanimous support of his colleagues was that when a new manual training teacher is appointed he should be one that would advise with the building committee and one who would be able to supervise the construction of the high school building under the direction of the building and grounds committee and the architect.

In recommending Mr. Linn for the position of acting supervising principal Mr. Davis stated that he was the most available and best fitted for the position and that while the other principals of the schools might make good that they did not want to take them away and that Mr. Linn was well qualified for the position and had been recommended by Dr. Savitz.

J. Russell Company and Miller & Tobin. After the bids had been opened and read they were referred to the building and grounds committee.

The recommendations of E. A. Farther as manual training instructor and R. E. Martin as principal of the high school were also on the recommendation of Mr. Davis they were referred to the building and grounds committee.

Mr. Grape of the buildings and grounds committee reported that all the contracts for the new schools had been signed but one. He then presented a report which he stated he wanted to read on the minutes as a matter of record. It was his own personal report and stated that he thought the new building should be built forty feet back from the street instead of twenty-five and that he was opposed to the installing of steel boilers in the new building. After the report had been read Mr. Dennis took exceptions to the report and said that it had never been before the buildings and grounds committee and that he thought the board should not pass upon it until it had.

Mr. Mahan another member of the committee said that it had never been before the committee for consideration. After some discussion President Dempsey asked the members if the rules of the board regarding committees was to be adhered to or not. He then read the rule and Mr. Grape made a motion that they be lived up to in the future. This motion was carried and the meeting then adjourned.

Those Opera Dresses.
Myles—You say you like to have your wife go to the opera?
Styles—Sure.
“Why so?”
“Because I don't have to button up her dress in the back.”
“You don't?”
“No; you see, the dresses she wears to the opera have no backs.”

Honeymooners.
“I see a tunnel in England is said to be four miles 642 yards in length. How would you like to kiss for four miles, dear?” said the man.
“Why not kiss for the additional 642 yards?” asked the girl.
“Oh, you would need the 642 yards to get your mouth back in proper shape, dear.”

He Was for It.
“Do you believe in this back to the farm movement?”
“You bet I do! I'm for it.”
“Think it's the right thing, eh?”
“You bet! Back to the farm for mine! If I had a farm you'd find me on every pleasant day with my back to it, either fast asleep or looking up through the branches at the sky.”

Absent-Minded Man.
He rushed into a laundry office in a good deal of a hurry.
“How long does it take you,” he asked, “to do up a white waistcoat.”
“Generally about two washings, sir,” said the attendant, before he thought. He was discharged shortly after making that break.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mrs. Henpeck—Next summer at the seashore I'm going to learn diving.
Mr. Henpeck—You'll never succeed. You've got to keep your mouth shut to dive.

Early Example.
While Caesar fought, he'd also write
And send stuff on in batches,
Convinced no doubt that half the fight
Was in the news dispatches.

His Only Feat.
“That amateur wrestler is boasting of the professional men he can throw.”
“That fellow? Why, the only thing anybody has ever seen him throw is his shadow on the pavement.”

The Star Attraction.
Hostess—I am glad you children decided to come for dinner.
Little Josie—We didn't turn for dinner; we turn to hear Willie's grandpa eat his soup.—Judge.

The Drawback.
“In your automobilizing, are you running under your first estimate of expenses?”
“I would be, if I could only keep from running over people.”

Indians Wore Feathers.
Mr. Flattie—It is believed that previous to civilization baldness was unknown among American Indians.
Mrs. Flattie—Well, I can't understand why you object to my putting some money into feathers.

His Guess.
Mrs. Flattie—I see that discrediting the queues in Canton, China, have glutted the market for human hair.
Mr. Flattie—Which accounts for the pink, blue and green wigs on the market, I suppose.

Their Style.
“Cracksmen do not take such risks in their profession, do they?”
“Why not?”
“Isn't theirs usually a safe proceeding?”

His Natural Way.
Visitor to the Circus—How did you ever get to find out that ugly cobra?
Snake Charmer—Oh, he managed to wind himself around my feelings.

TOO MUCH

Autolist—I hear you have sold your car?
Footer—Yes; I couldn't stand the expense of running down pedestrians and running up repair bills.

THE REASON

First Boarder—Somebody kissed Miss Oldgirl in a dark hallway one night last week.
Second Boarder—I guess that's why she puts the light out in her hallway every night now.

RECOGNIZING HIS LIMIT

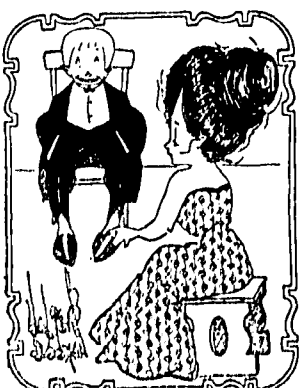

Miss Edith—Let me see—what's that quotation about a nod being as good as a wink, and so forth?
De Sapp—Why—er—I can't think—
Edith—Oh! I know that. I'm asking you to try to remember.

IN JAIL

Beggar—Won't you help me, ma'am? My poor husband can't get out an' about, ma'am.
Kind Old Lady—What's the matter with your husband?
Beggar—He's locked up, ma'am.

WOULD BE EASY

She—Mamma never goes along when I select a hat or gown. I just pick out what I want and have it charged to papa.
He—Hope you'll pursue the same course in choosing a husband.

WHITEWASH BRUSH FOR WESTFIELD TEAM

Townley a Plainfield Recruit Out-pitches Ortleb of Westfield Team

Westfield, with Ortleb in the box lost the second game of the series to Plainfield by the score of 5 to 0, before a fair crowd at Plainfield Saturday.

Ortleb, the Westfield hurler, pitched good enough ball to win, but his teammates failed to give him a single run to work on, as the best they seemed able to do was pop flies, only nine times did Westfield drive the ball out of the infield. While Townley pitched a good game, he is not the pitcher to shut out many teams.

Ortleb got Coyle and Dixon on strikes in the first, while Schenck, the new Westfield outfielder who has been showing up well in the last two games, caught Tom Mullin's fly, and TOWNLEY, PLAINFIELD'S TWIRLER ALL WOUND UP.

Ortleb looked in fine form, but in the second, after getting Harney on strikes, Crutty took Nelson's pop fly, with the count of two strikes on Stine he hit one that fell on the left field foul line for a home run, Taylor hit one in the same place in the seventh but the umpire couldn't see that one. Westfield looked bad in the fifth, Valleau error gave Stine a life and Dorman hit safe, Stine and Dorman both stole, Ortleb struck out Stewart but Townley fooled him and hit one out to Lentz, who handled it badly and scored Stine and Dorman. Coyle hit safe and Townley went to third and scored when Green made a bad throw to Valleau after Ortleb had Coyle picked off first, and Coyle was caught at the plate after an infield party when Tommy Mullin hit to Taylor whose throw to Hunt had Coyle by a few feet. Dixon struck out and finished the inning.

It was in the eighth that Plainfield counted again, when Coyle was safe on Taylor's bad throw to Green, and Mullin followed with a single that scored Coyle from second; Crutty took care of Dixon and Valleau, after taking Harney's line-drive touched second for a double.

The team missed Recordon and Douglas, but as a whole their fielding was good but for the fifth.

GEORGE ORTLEB SIGNS WITH ASBURY PARK.

George Ortleb, who worked against Plainfield last Saturday at Crescent Oval, was signed yesterday by Manager Andy Conkley of the Asbury Park Club of the Atlantic League. Ortleb should make good in the new circuit but he is getting with the wrong crowd because at present the Asbury Park team is so far down in the standing that it is in danger of dropping out of the league altogether.

Just at present the Perth Amboy club is also in the midst of a mid-season slump of the worst sort, and if the Amboy men don't brace up they will slide down past the Asburyites.

Ortleb twirled fair ball against the Pots Saturday, but the Plainfield sluggers nicked him for six hits. His team played in poor fashion behind him, however, and could not bat.

A Plainfield fan suggests the following problem: If George Ortleb allows Plainfield six hits and is beaten 5 to 0, and is then signed by the Atlantic League, what league is after George Townley, who allows Westfield two hits and shuts them out? A free ticket to Proctor's for the first correct answer. Plainfield Courier-News.

London Clubs and Strangers.

The Athenaeum club of London has rescheduled its rule forbidding members to invite strangers to luncheon and dinner in its public rooms. Only two clubs now remain in the British metropolis where a visitor cannot be entertained, the Guards and the Beefsteak.

Complete Your Schooling.

The question of continuous school attendance, and the keeping of pupils in school until a reasonable education is acquired, has been the problem of educators for years. In recent published statistics from the State of Wisconsin, the figures shown should be the subject of a great deal of study and consideration. They are as follows:

Out of—100 scholars entering the 1st Grade;
34 scholars remain through Eighth;
14 scholars enter High School;
6 scholars graduate from High School;
2 scholars enter College;
1 scholar graduates from College.

A careful investigation has established the fact that pupils remaining in school, to complete their education, have a far greater earning power throughout their whole life than those who leave at earlier ages, and the net results run into thousands of dollars. In fact, the average sum total of the loss in wages runs up into figures so amazingly large that there can hardly be a circumstance that would justify allowing a child to leave school before completing his full course.

It has been well said that every man is worth the going wage for common labor from his eyes down to his feet; his brain is able to earn almost any figure that might be named. This cannot be taken when there is no account made of the arts and trade in which skill plays so great a part, as in these the hands, plus the brains, produce the skill. So great is the burden of evidence in favor of a rounded out education that we cannot but strongly urge our young people and their guardians to keep at it until the end is reached and results obtained.

A Public Defender.

The public defender, which has been a feature of the social requirements in California for the past year has proved an unqualified success. It is the duty of this officer to take up the causes of the poor who are unable to employ a lawyer for defense or to plead their cases in court. Much of the injustice to which the defenseless poor have been subjected has been overcome by the public defender. The poor wretch charged with a crime is often thrown into jail. Though assigned an attorney by the judge, who is required by law to serve without compensation, the poor fellow stays in jail until a convenient time comes for the lawyer to take up his case and then, often times, without the proper attention. How many poor wretches have been railroaded to the penitentiary by a prosecutor who is zealous to make a record of criminal cases won, or a chief of police of a city who prides himself upon never having a crime committed in his city without apprehending the culprit.

Such an officer in every county in our state would be a benediction to the poor and unfortunate. The duties prescribed require that the public defender also take up cases of abandonment and bring the delinquent husband or father to contribute to the support of his family without an appeal to the overseer of the poor, in which procedure the suffering ones have to declare themselves to be paupers before their case can be cared for.

The penalty for non-support in California is a sentence to the road gang, which build and repair the state roads, and the wages earned by the delinquent husband and father, at the rate of $1.50 per day, are turned over to his dependents.

It would seem that the office of public defender is as much needed in New Jersey as in California, and we believe the results would prove as satisfactory here as there.

Increase in Commuters.

In reply to a query to the General Passenger Agent of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, regarding the number of commuters from Westfield this summer, Mr. W. C. Hope writes:

"I have pleasure in advising that the sales for the month of May show an increase of eighteen tickets over May last year."

This increase is very gratifying as it is an indication of Westfield's steady growth.

The Common Penholder.

To the common drinking cup, the roller towel, the street car strap and the drinking trough has now been added that other menace, the common penholder. The Kansas Board of Health is on its trail. It has examined several specimens of the peril in the post offices, the banks and hotel writing rooms and has been amazed by the indications.

"Look at the dents in the wooden handles," it is suggested. "One would think they are a sign language handed down from the Dark Ages."

"No, kind friend, those dents are the imprints of human teeth. Talk about Sherlock Holmes! Those Kansas officials make him look like an amateur. But listen! 'Those human teeth imprints contain death. The mouth is the common portal of entry for disease.'"

The cogitating calligraphers of Kansas who bite their penholders, must be twin brothers and sisters of the larger brood that sticks its pencils in its mouth between sentences.

But the pencil is not left laying around to be used by everybody. The first comer sees to that. The penholder remains, generally because it is of so little use trying to write with it that it is not worth stealing.

Possibly a state-wide warning against biting common penholders would be unheeded. The habit is probably instinctive.

Therefore, all that can be done, the board thinks, is to send the common penholder to join the roller towel, the finger bowl, the cigar cutter, and the common drinking cup in the discard.

The enlargement of the catalogue of every-day perils arouses the curiosity as to the probable next item.

Will it be the common umbrella? The health board that can scare the umbrella thieves of the nation into avoiding those not their own will deserve a monument.—Elizabeth Times.

Going Up.

And now we are face to face with the announcement that the price of meat is going up. It was hoped that the top notch had been reached. We were assured that the new tariff would let beef into this country from Argentina and Canada, and that American meat eaters would be able to buy steaks at a price that would allow everybody to have meat three times a day, if the desire ran that way.

The great and potent issue in the campaign two years ago was the lowering of the cost of living. The President of the United States, United States Senators and members of the house of representatives were elected on that issue.

A people whose earning capacity had never before been as great as it was in 1912, had tired of the tremendous demand made upon their purse by the markets. They cried out against the trusts and the tariff, which they were told, and believed, were responsible for the high cost of living.

Men seeking political power and public office told them that, if they put Democrats in the places occupied by Republicans, the trusts would be "busted," the tariff changed and the cost of living lowered.

They believed what they were told and gave the Democrats what they asked for. But the Democrats haven't given the people what they promised to give them. There has been no trust "busting," but there has been a change in the tariff schedules, with the result that the wage earners in the United States are earning less today than they earned two years ago and are paying more for what they have to eat and for wear than they paid before they fell into the sweetly baited trap of the political hornswaggler.

Marking Library Books.

Language usually reserved for political opponents is employed by the Portland Oregonian in an attempt to express its abhorrence of persons who "mark up" library books. "The people who commit this offense," it says, "fall into three classes: Those who use ordinary pencils, those who use indelible pencils and those who use ink. The first are worthy of the rock pile, the second of the penitentiary, the third of the gallows." The writer goes on to remark that they might be forgiven if they ever marked a good passage, but they infallibly select the silliest. "Their eye for nonsense equals the vulture's scent for carrion."

Surely this is to mitigate the offense of which the western writer complains. The most irritating part of their making free with public property is their lighting now and then upon the gem in a passage, and by labeling it, depriving any other reader of the pleasure of discovering the same delicious bit for himself.

Insult is added to the injury by the tacit assumption of the marker that no one else would have properly appreciated the lines which he is so gracious as to emphasize for the benefit of a stupid world.

Profitable Vacations.

Do not spend more money than you can readily afford to spend. No benefit accrues from trying to squeeze a $100 vacation out of a $50 appropriation. It is far better, on the contrary, to take a $25 vacation with your $50 allowance. You will enjoy it more, because you will not be harassed and nagged by the fear of lack of means or by the necessity of counting every cent and of getting the utmost out of every nickel.

Some persons, perhaps, may not mind this sort of mental labor, with its attendant worry, but most of us do. We invariably discount it, however, before the vacation is begun, only to regret it as soon as we are started. And the secret of the art of getting the most out of vacation lies in foreseeing this regret and forestalling it—in having not only barely enough money, but more than enough to do what you plan to do. It is better to take a trolley ride and come home solvent than to journey to the seaside and pawn your watch to get back. Vacations ought to afford freedom from vexation and not merely result in changing a familiar care.

—State Gazette.

WORK FOR THE EDITOR.

"Most anyone can be an editor. All an editor has to do is to sit at his desk six days a week, four weeks of the month and twelve months in the year and 'edit' such stuff as this:

"Mrs. Greer of Lost Creek let a can opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry."

"A mischievous lad of Matherton threw a stone and struck a companion in the alley last Tuesday."

"John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the back porch."

"While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise home from a church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green on the public square."

"Isiah Trimmer of Lebanon, was playing with a cat Friday, when it scratched him on the veranda."

"O. W. White, while harnessing a broncho last Saturday was kicked just south of the corn crib."—Town Topics.

DESERTED BY HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. John Byrd, colored, of Spring street, appeared before acting Recorder Bunnell, Monday night, and made a complaint against her husband who she claimed had left her without any provocation. She told the Recorder that she had two small children and that her husband left the home last Wednesday morning with the intention of going to a lumber yard to pay a small bill and that he took all the money they had and that she had not heard a word from him since.

Recorder Bunnell after hearing the woman's story decided to turn the matter over to Overseer of the Poor fifth to see what could be done towards supporting the woman and children. Mrs. Byrd said that she had no money and the owner of the house where she lived had threatened to dispossess her if she did not pay the rent.

The building committee of the Bethlehem Union Chapel met at the home of George W. Baker on Broad street, last Friday night to complete plans for their new chapel which they expect to erect in the near future.

To the Voters of the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey

I respectfully beg to announce my candidacy for Republican nomination for member of the House of Representatives, at the Primary Election to be held in the Fifth Congressional District, comprising the counties of Union and Morris, on Tuesday, September 22nd, 1914.

While it is my intention to make a thorough canvass of the district during the next two months, for the purpose of informing the voters as to my belief and position regarding the vital questions of the day, I realize that there are many whom I cannot reach in person, and I therefore purpose the setting forth of my political doctrines and beliefs from time to time in the various newspapers of the district.

Welcoming the co-operation and support of all who believe in the Republican party, both for its deeds and accomplishment and for its promise as the great factor in the country's future welfare,

HIGHER PRAGMATISM

Story of How a Diffident Lover Got Out of the Amateur Class.

By O. HENRY.

Once upon a time I found a ten-cent magazine lying on a bench in a little city park. Anyhow, that was the amount he asked me for when I sat on the bench next to him. He was a musty, dingy, tattered magazine, with some queer stories bound in him, I was sure. He turned out to be a scrap-book.

"I am a newspaper reporter," I said to him, to try him. "I have been detailed to write up some of the experiences of the unfortunate ones who spend their evenings in this park. May I ask you to what you attribute your downfall in?"

I was interrupted by a laugh from my purchase—a laugh so rusty and unpractised that I was sure it had been his first for many a day.

"Oh, no, no," said he. "You ain't a reporter. Reporters don't talk that way. They pretend to be one of us, and say they've just got in on the blind baggage from St. Louis. I can tell a reporter on sight. Us park bums get to be fine judges of human nature. We sit here all day and watch the people go by. I can size up anybody who walks past my bench in a way that would surprise you."

"Well," I said, "go on and tell me. How do you size me up?"

"I should say," said the student of human nature with unpardonable hesitation, "that you was, say, in the contracting business—or maybe worked in a store—or was a sign-painter."

I frowned gloomily.

"But, judging again," went on the reader of men, "I'd say you ain't got a wife."

"No," said I, rising restlessly. "No, no, no. I ain't. But I will have, by the arrows of Cupid! That is, if—"

My voice must have trailed away and muffled itself in uncertainty and despair.

"I see you have a story yourself," said the dusty vagrant—impudently, it seemed to me. "Suppose you take your dime back and spin your yarn for me. I'm interested myself in the ups and downs of unfortunate ones who spend their evenings in the park."

Somehow that amused me. I looked at the frowsy derelict with more interest. I did have a story. Why not tell it to him? I had told none of my friends.

"Jack," said I.

"Mack," said he.

"Mack," said I, "I'll tell you."

"Do you want the dime back in advance?" said he.

I handed him a dollar.

"The dime," said I, "was the price of listening to your story."

"Right on the point of the jaw," said he. "Go on."

And then, incredible as it may seem to the lovers in the world who confide their sorrows only to the night wind and the gibbous moon, I laid bare my secret to that wreck of all things that you would have supposed to be in sympathy with love.

I told him of the days and weeks and months that I had spent in adoring Mildred Telfair. I spoke of my despair, my grievous days and wakeful nights, my dwindling hopes and distress of mind. I even pictured to this night-proowler her beauty and dignity.

"Why don't you cop the lady out?" asked Mack, bringing me down to earth and dialect again.

I explained to him that my worth was so small, my income so minute and my fears so large that I hadn't the courage to speak to her of my worship. I told him that in her presence I could only blush and stammer, and that she looked upon me with a wonderful, maddening smile of amusement.

"Now that reminds me of my own case. I'll tell you about it," said Mack.

I was indignant, but concealed it. "Feel my muscle," said my companion, suddenly flexing his biceps. I did so mechanically. The fellows in gyms are always asking you to do that. His arm was as hard as cast iron.

"Four years ago," said Mack, "I could lick any man in New York outside of the professional ring. Your case and mine is just the same. I come from the West side—between Thirtieth and Fourteenth—I won't give the number on the door. I was a scrapper when I was ten, and when I was twenty no amateur in the city could stand up four rounds with me. 'Is a fact. You know Bill McCarty? No? He managed the smokers for some of them swell clubs. Well, I knocked out everything Bill brought up before me. I was a middleweight, but could train down to a welter when necessary. I boxed all over the West side at bouts and benefits and private entertainments, and was never put out once."

"But, say, the first time I put my foot in the ring with a professional I was no more than a canned lobster. I dunno how it was—I seemed to lose heart. I guess I got too much imagination. There was a formality and publicness about it that kind of weakened my nerve. I never win a fight in the ring. Lightweights and all kinds of cerubs used to sign up with my manager and then walk up and tap me on the wrist and see me fall. The minute I seen the crowd and a lot of gents in evening clothes down in front, and seen a professional come inside the ropes, I got as weak as ginger ale."

"Of course it wasn't long till I couldn't get no backers, and I didn't have any more chances to fight a professional—or many amateurs, either. But lemme tell you—I was as good as most men inside the ring or out. It was just that dumb, dead feeling I had when I was up against a regular that always done me up."

"One evening I was walking along near the Bowery, thinking about things, when along comes a slumming party. About six or seven they was, all in swallowtails and these silk hats that don't shine. One of the gang kind of shoves me off the sidewalk. I hadn't had a scrap in three days, and I just says, 'De-lighted!' and hits him back of the ear."

"Well, we had it. That Johnnie put up as decent a little fight as you'd want to see in the moving pictures. It was on a side street, and no cops around. The other guy had a lot of science, but it only took me about six minutes to lay him out."

"Some of the swallowtails dragged him up against some steps and began to fan him. Another one of 'em comes over to me and says:

"'Young man, do you know what you've done?'"

"'Oh, beat it,' says I. 'I've done nothing but a little punching-bag work. Take Freddy back to Yale and tell him to quit studying sociology on the wrong side of the sidewalk.'"

"'My good fellow,' says he, 'I don't know who you are, but I'd like to. You've knocked out Reddy Burns, the champion middleweight of the world. If you—'"

"But when I come out of my faint I was laying on the floor in a drug store, saturated with aromatic spirits of ammonia. If I'd known that was Reddy Burns I'd have got down in the gutter and crawled past him instead of handing him one like I did. Why, if I'd ever been in a ring and seen him climbing over the ropes I'd have been all to the sal volatile."

"Well, I must be going," I said, rising and looking with elaborate care at my watch.

When I was 20 feet away the park bench called to me.

"Much obliged for the dollar," he said. "And for the dime. But you'll never get 'er. You're in the amateur class."

"Serves you right," I said to myself, "for hobnobbing with a tramp. His impudence!"

But, as I walked, his words seemed to repeat themselves over and over again in my brain. I think I even grew angry at the man.

"I'll show him!" I finally said aloud. "I'll show him that I can fight Reddy Burns, too—even knowing who he is."

I hurried to a telephone booth and rang up the Telfair residence.

A soft, sweet voice answered. Didn't I know that voice? My hand holding the receiver shook.

"Is that you?" said I, employing the foolish words that form the vocabulary of every talker through the telephone.

"Yes, this is I," came back the answer in the low, clear-cut tones that are an inheritance of the Telfairs.

"Who is it, please?"

"It's me," said I, less ungrammatically than egotistically. "It's me, and I've got a few things that I want to say to you right now and immediately straight to the point."

"Dear me," said the voice. "Oh, it's you, Mr. Arden!"

I wondered if any accent on the first word was intended.

"Yes," said I. "I hope so. And now to come down to brass tacks." I thought that rather a vernacularism, if there is such a word, as soon as I had said it; but I didn't stop to apologize.

"You know, of course, that I love you, and that I have been in that idiotic state for a long time. I don't want any more foolishness about it—that is, I mean I want an answer from you right now. Will you marry me or not? Hold the wire, please. Keep out, Central. Hello, hello! Will you, or will you not?"

That was just the upper-cut for Reddy Burns' chin. The answer came back:

"Why, Phil, dear, of course I will! I didn't know that you—that is, you never said—oh, come up to the house, please—I can't say what I want to over the phone. You are so impudent. But please come up to the house, won't you?"

Would I?

I rang the bell of the Telfair house violently. Some sort of a human came to the door and shooed me into the drawing-room.

"Oh, well," said I to myself, looking at the ceiling, "any one can learn from any one. That was a pretty good philosophy of Mack's, anyhow. He didn't take advantage of his experience, but I get the benefit of it. If you want to get into the professional class, you've got to—"

I stopped thinking then. Some one was coming down the stairs. My knees began to shake. I knew then how Mack had felt when a professional began to climb over the ropes. I looked around foolishly for a door or a window by which I might escape. If it had been any other girl approaching I mightn't have—

But just then the door opened and Bess, Mildred's younger sister, came in. I'd never seen her look so much like a glorified angel. She walked straight up to me, and—

I'd never noticed before what perfectly wonderful eyes and hair Elizabeth Telfair had.

"Phil," she said, in the Telfair, sweet, thrilling tones, "Why didn't you tell me about it before? I thought it was sister you wanted all the time, until you telephoned to me a few minutes ago!"

I suppose Mack and I always will be hopeless amateurs. But, as the thing has turned out in my case, I'm mighty glad of it.

MOTOCYCLIST HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Lynn Case, of Oak Tree, had a narrow escape from being killed while riding his motorcycle west in North avenue, last Friday night. Case was one of a party of young men who were returning from a spin through the county. Case was leading the party and neglected to turn with the road at Elmer street. He ran his motorcycle up the embankment and struck a telephone pole. He was thrown off the machine and rendered unconscious.

His companion ran to his assistance and a doctor summoned. Dr. R. G. Savoye responded and the injured man was taken to the police station where he remained unconscious for nearly two hours. His injuries comprised several cuts and bruises which were dressed by the doctor. The motorcycle was wrecked.

Case was injured in exactly the same place where a Cranford motocyclist and a young woman were hurt a month ago. The curve is a dangerous one but is marked by red lights.

CRAIG SIMPSON HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Craig Simpson, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Simpson, of Harrison avenue, had a narrow escape from serious injury as he was coming out of the alley way between the Westfield Theatre and the rear of the Arcanum building on Elm street, last Friday afternoon.

The boy in attempting to steer out of the way of an automobile ran his bicycle into the horse attached to one of the delivery wagons of E. Lawrence, the Broad street grocer. The driver of the wagon brought the horse to a standstill immediately but not before the horse had stepped over the boy and the front of the wagon was over the boy's body. The boy crawled from between the wheels apparently unhurt, except for a few bruises. His bruises were washed at Frutcher's Pharmacy, after which the boy went home. The bicycle was a complete wreck.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

When Wiedle was searched by the Chief after he was hit by the train, a .32-calibre revolver was found on him. He was held by Recorder Bunnell to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Woman Suffrage Pro and Con

SUFFRAGIST HECKLERS.

Is Their Treatment of Mr. Wilson Approved by Women's Clubs?

To the Editor of the New York Times:

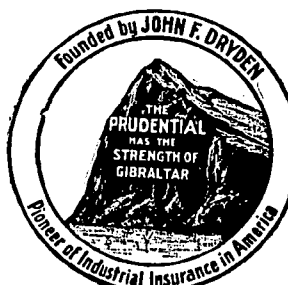

Are militant tactics to be used to express "the moral support" pledged to the suffrage movement by the convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs? The first fruits of that pledge appeared on Tuesday, June 30, when 700 or 500 clubwomen—it matters little which—were assembled in the East Room of the White House. Their spokesman, Rheta Childe Dorr, attempted to cross-question the President, who, quite properly, refused to allow that lady the joys of an impromptu debate with the Chief Executive. There should be no surprise at the incident.

The Congressional Union, that suffrage body which boasts of its well-filled treasury, arranged this hearing of "representative clubwomen from all parts of the country." The Congressional Union's heart and hinge is Alice Paul, American citizen, who wears the badge of honor conferred on English militants who suffer or enjoy imprisonment. During inauguration week in 1913, Mrs. Pankhurst's colors floated over the headquarters of the Congressional Union in Washington, a hint, or, perhaps, a defiance to authority, that at least a wing of the suffrage party stood for direct action.

As the Congressional Union arranged the White House audience, so the

MOTORCYCLE HITS AUTO.

A Miss Crawley, of Rahway, received a fracture of the collarbone
and her brother Richard W. Crawley, received minor injuries, when the
motorcycle on which they were riding
collided with a runabout automobile, driven by John B. Mottley, of Plainfield, at the intersection of Martine
and South avenues at about five o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The automobile was proceeding
northward along Martine avenue, from the direction of Rahway, and the
motorcycle was coming eastward,
down South avenue, from the direction of Plainfield. The automobile had almost completed the turn into South avenue, toward Plainfield, when the motorcycle came along. The machine was going at such a speed that
the driver could not slow down in time to avoid the collision. The motorcycle struck the left running board
of the car breaking the mudguard.
The force of the impact knocked the
front tires of the automobile almost off, and bent the front fork of the motorcycle almost completely around.

The young lady, who was riding on
a cushion fastened on the baggage carrier, was thrown off and her brother
was badly stunned. Dr. Westcott was called to attend the injured people. Dr. Murray, of Plainfield was also summoned. From a hasty examination, the doctors judged that Miss Crawley had a fracture of the collar bone and other injuries. Dr.
Murray took the young lady to the Muhlenberg Hospital in Plainfield, in his automobile. Mr. Crawley was unhurt with the exception of a few minor cuts on his forehead and was taken to his home in Rahway by H. C. Lockwood in his touring car. The occupants of the automobile, Mr. Mottley and his son were uninjured. The automobile was a Hupmobile runabout and the motorcycle was a Harley-Davidson machine. Mr. Mottley lives at 225 Richmond street, Plainfield and Mr. and Miss Crawley live at 1 Walter street, Rahway.

Recorder Charles A. Sheelen came to the scene of the accident to investigate matters. Both parties exonerated each other and would enter no complaint.

Another accident occurred on North avenue a short time before. The front of Wallace Cattelle's Ford touring car was badly smashed when the automobile ran into a tree near the residence of Burton P. Hall, on North avenue. The steering gear broke and Mr. Cattelle was unable to control the machine. A motorcycle came along and tried to avoid a collision, but the car struck it and the rider was thrown off. Mr. Cattelle was uninjured but his little daughter, Elizabeth, was cut by the broken glass of the windshield. The front axle of the car was broken, the radiator was ruined, the lamps and wind shield were smashed and the front wheels were bent.

The motorcyclist said that tried to steer clear of the automobile but that it kept coming toward him. He quickly recovered himself after his fall and seemed unhurt. He left his machine at the residence of E. J.
Reeder on Martine avenue and took the train for his home in Newark.

Mrs. Charles Bent, of North Asbury Park, invited the members of the Lasrs. Irving Demiltz and Porter, all of Fanwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Well, of Netherwood.

The Saturday Night Club held a very pleasant entertainment in Fanwood hall last Saturday evening.
Cards were dealt during the forepart of the evening and dancing followed.
Dushanek's orchestra furnished the music for dancing. Several out of town guests were present. It is not likely that the club will hold any more entertainments until the fall.

A number of Fanwood people attended the Palace Theatre, in New York, last week to see Marshall Montgomery, the ventriloquist, who was a feature on the week's bill. Mr.
and Mrs. Montgomery have a number of friends in Fanwood. Mrs. Montgomery is a member of the Aud Lang Synce Club which was entertained by Mrs. E. J. Rhodes and Mrs. Adler, of this place, some time ago.

Judgment in Public Affairs.

Judgment is a possession of an enormous value to a nation, and in proportion as it contains men of judgment, in direct proportion will that nation prosper. What is it that I mean by judgment in public affairs? I mean the capacity for taking a large,
calm, and unbiased view.—Lord Ros-sbery.

Everything Lacking.

Personally we have met some men who, if weighed in the balance, would be found wanting everything, including the balance.—Galveston News.

Precaution.

During the preparation for battle
Pat emerged from his tent wearing his uniform hind side before. This soon attracted the attention of his superior officer, who demanded an explanation. Pat scratched his head and seemed loath to comply, but finally replied, with a sheepish grin:
"Well, begorra, Oi thot Oi wore Oi this way, thim when Oi had to retreat Oi wouldn't get shot in the back."

MOTORCYCLE HITS AUTO.

A Miss Crawley, of Rahway, received a fracture of the collarbone
and her brother Richard W. Crawley, received minor injuries, when the
motorcycle on which they were riding
collided with a runabout automobile,
driven by John B. Mottley, of Plain-
field, at the intersection of Martine
and South avenues at about five
o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The automobile was proceeding
northward along Martine avenue, from
the direction of Rahway, and the
motorcycle was coming eastward,
down South avenue, from the direction of Plainfield. The automobile
had almost completed the turn into South avenue, toward Plainfield, when
the motorcycle came along. The machine was going at such a speed that
the driver could not slow down in
time to avoid the collision. The motorcycle struck the left running board
of the car breaking the mudguard.
The force of the impact knocked the
front tires of the automobile almost
off, and bent the front fork of the motorcycle almost completely around.

The young lady, who was riding on
a cushion fastened on the baggage
carrier, was thrown off and her brother
was badly stunned. Dr. Westcott
was called to attend the injured people. Dr. Murray, of Plainfield was also summoned. From a hasty examination, the doctors judged that Miss Crawley had a fracture of the
collar bone and other injuries. Dr.
Murray took the young lady to the Muhlenberg Hospital in Plain

Little Miss Kennedy Celebrates Birthday.

Little Miss Catherine Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Kennedy, entertained twenty of her young friends at the home of Mrs. T. D. Bunce on Elm street, last Friday afternoon in honor of her sixth birthday. The decorations were of pink and the favors were baskets of candy. The afternoon was spent in playing games after which refreshments were served. The table contained a handsome birthday cake upon which were six kewpies. At the close of the afternoon's pleasure gift were presented to the boys and girls through a grab bag. Miss Kennedy was assisted in entertaining her friends by her mother, Miss Lucy Worth, Mrs. T. D. Bunce and Mrs. M. B. Harrison.

A feature of the afternoon was the playing on the piano by Lee Townley, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Townley of Kimball avenue. Master Lee played "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "Onward Christian Soldiers" while the twenty little guests present sang the hymns. Those present at the party were John Worth, Gertrude Butler, Ruth and Swane, Helen and Sprague Talbot, Elmer and Frederick Swan, George Hill, Elizabeth Evans, Belle Wagner, Dorothy Stultz, Marjorie Benson, Shirley Sinclair, Edgar Newcomb, Virginia Carr, James Carvin, Harris Stultz, Lee Townley and John Sulz.

CHARLES H. KYTE'S AUTOMOBILE SKIDS.

An automobile owned and driven by Charles H. Kyte of this town, while going up South avenue, on Tuesday afternoon skidded and turned half turn on that thoroughfare. Mr. Kyte alone in the auto and when it went over he was pinned inside. He lost the presence of mind when he saw that the car was turning over to get off the power. One of the rear wheels was broken as well as the axles and the axles were bent. Residents nearby rushed to his assistance and got him out from the inside of the car. He was not hurt in the least. The car was taken to the Westfield Garage, where it is being repaired.

Leo Ugardi, a Naples hairdresser, married his sweetheart subject to an undertaking on the part of her father to spend $60 for tonsorial attentions within two years of the wedding in lieu of dowry, failing which the wife is to be returned to her parents.

Woman and Forgiveness.

The only way to gain forgiveness from a woman is at once to offend again.—From "The Making of an Englishman," by W. L. George.

If our right hand is not to know what our left does, it must not be because it would be ashamed if it did.—Ruskin.

Laughter.

There are two kinds of laugh; one is a restrained bellow and the other is an audible smile.

The Union County Mosquito Commission has placed a bottle containing 3,500 mosquito eggs in the grocery store of J. M. Schoonover on Mountain avenue, Mountainside. The object of the exhibition is to illustrate to the residents, who are unfamiliar with the habits of the mosquito, the growth of the wrigglers until they become adult insects.

Stuck.

Little Harold was sent to a neighbor's house on an errand. In due time he came back and was questioned by his mother what Mrs. Gilchrist's folks were doing. "They had company, and they were all talking German," answered the lad, "but I couldn't tell what language they were laughing in."

IMAGINARY CONVERSATIONS.

"I love you!"
"Isn't that splendid? I love you."
"When shall we get married?"
"Oh, any time. I don't need a trousseau, and I never like ceremonious weddings."
"My salary is only ten thousand a year."
"That doesn't matter. I can do my own housework."
"And where shall we go on a honeymoon?"
"Don't let's go anywhere. We'll sit at home and read aloud."
"But your wedding gown—we had forgotten that."
"What's the matter with this one I have on?"—Life.

His Mistake.

"She said she would go to the end of the world with me."
"And is that why you are going to marry her?"
"I suppose so."
"Can you afford it?"
"Two can live as cheaply as one."
"Perhaps so; but two cannot travel to the end of the world as cheaply as one. Before you committed yourself you should have consulted a ticket agent."

AN OLD TALE.

He—Now, you've promised to marry me, I am perfectly happy.
She—Oh! I've promised that lots of times.

Tutti-Frutti.

Upon the street I see the girl
With heels as high as a wallows;
They're painted like a butter pole
And powdered like marshmallows.

Good Reason.

Bill—What do you think of this back-to-the-farm movement?
Jill—I'm against it.
"Why so?"
"Because I read in the paper, today, that by connecting a player piano to a country telephone system a piano company supplies music to its rural patrons."

Speedy.

Mrs. Todd went into a store to buy some gingham.
"Are these colors fast?" she asked the clerk.
"Yes, indeed," he replied earnestly; "you ought to see them when once they start to run."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Human Distrust.

"Do you mean to say you are going to build a Turkish bath in Crimison Gulch?"
"Yes," replied Bronco Bob. "A Turkish bath is the only place we can have a card game and feel sure that no gentleman has any aces concealed in his clothes."

The Usual Way.

"Don't you remember me?" asked the man on the street.
"No, I do not," was the reply of the man addressed.
"Why, you borrowed five dollars of me over a year ago."
"Yes, I said I didn't remember you."

CITING AN EXAMPLE.

Mrs. D.—Hope is certainly a wonderful thing.
Mrs. W.—It is. Why, one little nibble will keep my husband fishing all day.

Horse Laugh.

I bought a new automobile,
Forty horsepower, they said;
But when I tried to climb a hill,
Just thirty-nine were dead.

Finally Proved.

Professor—Now, have I proved anything to you by those statistics?
Student—Yes, professor, you have proved to me that statistics are a bore.

Plenty of Water.

Jacon—What was your first impression of Venice?
Robert—Why, nearly everything appeared to be floating before my eyes.

ONE MAN'S WISDOM

Young Widow—You really ought to have a better half.

The Bachelor—Yes, but the trouble is after a woman has been a man's better half for a few weeks she wants to be the whole thing.

FEW AND SHORT

Book Clerk—"The Love Letters of a Husband to His Wife" makes a very bulky volume.

The Proprietor—Oh! well, I guess they were written during the first year of their married life.

MAKING PROGRESS

The New Chauffeur—Do you think I'll ever be able to learn to run one of these blained autos?

The Old Chauffeur—Sure! You've only been at it two days and you've nearly run over seven persons already.

DID NOT IMPROVE WITH AGE

Tess—Why of course you can't kiss me. I've only known you for a week.
Ted—I was afraid you wouldn't allow it if you knew me better.

SUCH A DIFFERENCE

The Preacher—I am told that there is discord in the hearts of the choir.
The Choir Director—Maybe so; but there's harmony in their voices.
